EXPECT BREAK IN KIDNAPING OF WEALTHY BREWER

Tugwell Says South Must Decide On Cotton Policy

WORLD MART INVOLVED IN THE DECISION

Under Secretary of Agriculture at Clemson College, Says Acreage Reduction Must be Made Permanent Policy; Decision Must Be Made in Time For Next Planting

Clemson College, S. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—The South itself must decide its future policy on cotton, including the part it will play in the world market, Rexford G. Tugwell, Under-Secretary of Agriculture, said here today.

TOBACCO CROP ABOUT HOUSED

Growers Expected to Begin Moving Toward Leaf Market in Short Time Now

With the opening of the Eastern North Carolina bright leaf tobacco belt scheduled for next Thursday, farmers are expected to begin their annual pilgrimage to the local market any time now. Usually wagons and trucks begin moving toward market several days in advance of the opening in order to get first places on the warehouse floors and the notoriety which the first farmer arriving here usually receives.

The warehouses are all set to receive the annual rush with increased facilities. The same situation prevailed at factories where improvements have been made during the summer in anticipation of handling the harvest of golden weed with all possible speed.

K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales of the local market, estimated today that about 99 per cent of the crop had been housed and expected the remainder to be cured and ready for marketing by next Tuesday.

Housing and curing operations cause growers to spend many sleepless nights watching their fires to properly cure the leaf and get it in the best shape possible for marketing. When this task is over, many of them will put on their best bib and tucker, load their weed and come to market to see how opening day prices are going to pan out.

TWO KILLERS WOUNDED BY VA. OFFICERS

Men Wanted in North Carolina For Murder Captured in Mountains Today

Lynchburg, Va., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Wounded with buckshot from a policeman's gun, Lowell Massie, 23, and Roland Earl Allen, 21, were brought out of the mountain fastness of Nelson County this morning to face murder charges in North Carolina.

Allen told police he was from Atlanta where Massie recently served out a term in Federal prison. Massie is seriously wounded and may die. They were fleeing from the officers when shot.

Salisbury, N. C., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Roland Allen and a companion, known here as Jack Massie, or Massie, have been sought by officers of this county since the night of August 9 following the killing of Will Reeves, prosperous farmer of Morgan Township.

HALF HOLIDAY SEASON ENDS

Today Marks the End Of Celebration of Wednesday Half Holiday

Wednesday half holidays officially came to a close today, although it was probable some business houses would close next Wednesday for the baseball game between Greenville and Kinston, leaders of the Coastal Plain League race.

R. L. Powell said the holiday closing order originally was set for next Wednesday, but in view of the early opening of the tobacco market, merchants had been released from their agreement.

This is the season of the year when merchants begin laying in new stock to take care of the usual rush accompanying the opening of the tobacco market, and with the market scheduled to open Thursday of next week, every effort was being made to have everything in shape.

AAA CORRECTS STATEMENT ON LEAF SURPLUS

Tobacco Administration Explains Ruling For Selling Surplus Tobacco

A statement appearing in yesterday's News and Observer regarding tobacco contract allotments was declared as incorrect today by the tobacco section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration at Washington.

The statement referred to follows: "Under the Kerr tobacco bill, farmers who signed acreage reduction contracts will be allowed to market 70 per cent of their 1933 production tax-free. Farmers who signed reduction contracts, but who market more than 70 per cent of their last year's crop, must pay a tax of 25 per cent of the price of all tobacco above the 70 per cent figure."

MAN HELD FOR VIOLATION OF LINDBERGH LAW

Bervel Colson Given Preliminary Hearing At Norfolk, Bond $35,000

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Bervel Colson, of Elizabeth City, N. C., arrested yesterday under the new "Lindbergh Law" was ordered held for the Federal grand jury under $35,000 bond by U. S. Commissioner Harry A. Brinkley after a preliminary hearing.

The young man is charged with kidnapping last August 8 Janice Walston, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Walston, of Norfolk, Va.

He also faces charges of violations of the Mann white slave act and the Dyer motor vehicle act.

Von Hindenburg Leaves Legacy To His Country

Berlin, Aug. 15.—(AP)—As his legacy to Germany, the late president, Paul Von Hindenburg, left a declaration made public today that the "new Fatherland" is built "on the basis of the free development of the individual within the frame and responsibility of the entire nation" and not upon a frenzied foreign doctrine.

GROWERS TOLD TO SAVE THEIR 'FEED' CROPS

Drought in Western States Causing Serious Shortage of Hay And Fodder

With hay in the Middle West being destroyed by drought, farmers of this section have been advised to save all fodder and hay possible as it will be too high to buy in the future.

THURSDAY TO BE 'TAG DAY'

Drive to be Made For Improving Financial Standing of Local Ball Club

Tomorrow has been designated as "Tag Day" for the Greenville baseball club of the Coastal Plain League and young ladies with tickets valued at $1 each will see how many persons they can send to the game here with Ayder, to help boost the financial standing of the local club.

Tickets, R. L. Powell, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who is directing "Tag Day" activities, said will admit holders to the gate and grandstand.

Powell said the club was running behind in a financial way and hoped to bolster itself through the sale of tickets tomorrow.

"Tag Day" will be featured by a game between Ayden and Greenville and hundreds of people from this and other parts of the country are expected to be on hand to watch these two clubs, vying vigorously for second place honors, battle for supremacy.

Greenville defeated Ayden four times last week, and today had six wins out of seven games to their credit. With the splendid brand of ball the locals are playing, and the fight they are making for a part in the championship series, every effort will be made to make attendance the largest of the year.

POLICE WORK ON ALL ANGLES OF THE CASE

Sister of John Labatt, Of London, Ontario, Says Her Brother Plans to Deliver $150,000 Ransom; Every Effort Being Made To Seal Movements of Man With Ransom Money

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. R. E. Balders, sister of the kidnapped John S. Labatt, of London, Ontario, said today her brother, Hugh, "has left with the ransom money for the kidnapers to obtain John's freedom."

Hugh Labatt, Mrs. Balders said, carried the $150,000 demanded by the captors.

Toronto, Canada, Aug. 15.—(AP)—Police said today they expected a break in the case of the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, wealthy brewer, by 5 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time).

They gave no information as to what form of "break" might take place, but it was evident that both Ontario and Toronto police forces were working actively on the angles of the case.

Every effort was being made to seal the movements of Hugh Labatt, brother of the abducted man who drove 140 miles from London to Toronto yesterday within a few hours after the brewer had been taken from his car while driving from Sania to keep an appointment in London, the brewery headquarters.

At his hotel in Toronto today to which he was spirited in a Toronto police car last night after several hours of conferences with Toronto and Ontario police heads, Hugh Labatt said he had not paid over any ransom.

He was authoritatively said, however, to have drawn from a London bank $150,000—the amount demanded by the abductors in a kidnap note—under threat of death to the kidnapped man.

OVER 150 BUY SEATS AT BIG BOOSTER MEET

Ticket Committee Urges All Interested In Gathering to Make Reservations

The ticket sales committee for the "community boosters" meeting to be held at Yum Yum Barbecue Palace next Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock, stated today that 150 reservations have already been made for places at the banquet table.

The committee urged that those expecting to attend the affair to see members of the ticket sales committee at once and make their reservations. The committee is composed of R. L. Powell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and Dave Moore, secretary of the Kiwanis Club.

The object of the meeting is to boost the Greenville tobacco market, to inject everyone with enthusiasm and get them in a receptive state of mind for the opening of the great brief leaf tobacco belt next Thursday.

Sponsoring the meeting are the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs, Tobacco Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce and its Merchants Association division.

J. C. Lanier, Greenville lawyer, code administrator of the loose leaf tobacco warehouse industry, will be the keynote speaker, and three minute talks will be made by a business man, professional man, tobacco man and farmer.

Ralph Deal, known as one of the outstanding toastmasters in this part of the state, will fill that post and keep interest around the banquet at top-notch all the time.

Mr. Lanier, who recently addressed warehouse operators in the various tobacco belts, announced yesterday his subject here would be "The Warehouse Code in Relation to Competitive Practices Between Markets."

THE "TAKE-A-CHANCE" CLUB

You won't find the address of the "Take-a-Chance Club" in any telephone book or city directory. It has never been incorporated, and it has no club-house. But a good many thousands of Americans belong to it—though they wouldn't admit it—and no "fraternal" organization in the world exacts such high dues.

The ritual of the club runs something like this:

"I will always take a chance when driving my car. I will cut corners and drive on the wrong side of the road if I happen to feel like it. I will make a regular habit of passing other cars on hills and curves. I will always drive faster than road conditions warrant, and I will be especially careless when it is raining or snowing and visibility is poor. I will not make regular inspections of my car's lights, brakes and steering. I'll take it for granted that they are good enough. I will make no effort to learn the traffic laws of my state and community, and if I do happen to discover some of them accidentally, I will break them at every opportunity. I'll let the other driver watch out for men as well as himself, and I'll act as if the highways and streets were my private property.

"I'll pay no attention to traffic lights and stop signs, and I'll do my best to practice none of the courtesies of the road."

The members of the "Take-a-Chance Club" follow this ritual to the letter, and the result is that each year some 30,000 people are needlessly killed in automobile accidents, and property is destroyed to the extent of $1,000,000,000.

Are you a member of the club?

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE
 (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

A mid-season survey of primary and convention results shows that the political map still is strewn with confusions and contradictions. Weather sharps would call it extremely "spotty."

The Republican drought continues over large areas. No one denies that. In other sections weathervanes have been shifting appreciably and the outlook is unsettled. Nowhere is there any sign of cyclonic developments.

The Democrats expect to keep most of their present big majority in the House, and while Republican gains are accepted as certain, few leaders of that party go so far as to forecast any actual Republican ma-

SPITE MARRIAGE
by Katherine Heston Taylor

Chapter 45
FINAL STORM

"YOU see I never had anyone to love me or care, and so many men offered me the thing they called love that I began to think it a rather lawdy thing which grew out of hunger and made overeating and indigestion afterward. And that made me marry you as I did. Then it didn't seem serious."

She paused and, because she was weak, sagged a little. He stood up, settled back of her, and pulled her against him.

"It is better for you this way," he explained, "you really shouldn't be sitting up."

"I'd rather talk without looking at you too," she answered. "Do you understand so far?"

He said he did. And he added, "Let your head rest on my shoulder," and she did.

"Well," she went on, after the new position was assumed, "you loved me and I began to know what love could be. The sort that is big enough to be gentle, to make real and tender care for the other person, and to be happy when the other person is happy. You did depend on my moods, didn't you, Bob?"

"My dear, always."

"I thought so. And all that made me utterly mad—no, entirely sane—about you. But I couldn't tell you because it was so real and big that it made me feel like crying lots, and as if something were swelling and crowding my heart. And I used to touch your coat and your things in my room when you weren't there. I suppose that sounds silly."

He bent his head until his cheek was against hers. He couldn't help it; he hoped she would forgive him, and let him have, for the few minutes, that much.

"And then," he said in a voice that was rough, "Geoff came, and you found the old love—"

"Just as rotten," she said energetically and characteristically, "as I always knew he was!"

"What do you mean?" he blurted out, as he moved quickly so that he might look at her.

"I mean I disliked him—loved you. No, there's more—lots more. He accused me of forgetting. I had promised to marry him sometime, you see, and I said 'I thought you were married,' and he made me tell him that that was why I married you. (He couldn't make me do anything today!) and then you came in. And later you said you didn't want me."

"I lied. I did! I will always."

"No, it isn't half over yet, Bob." He felt her grow limp in his arms; he, himself, quieted and controlled every emotion in order that he might soothe her.

"Comfortable?" he asked, stiffly. He felt her nod.

"Bob?"

"My dearest?"

"You might kiss me before I go on."

He caught his breath sharply and turned her in his arms only to be stopped with a semi-hysterical "No, I won't! Don't, Bob. . . . I'll go on. But I'll sit up to do it. And you must face me. Please, Bob."

Reluctantly, he moved to settle so that he faced her.

"I WANTED to be with you, and to go back with you, after—after mother was through with me. You won't understand how much I wanted it, because you couldn't know how wonderfully beautiful I found it to have people like you and your mother care."

"It seemed sometimes as if it didn't matter how I got back with you, so long as I did. And I planned a lot, Bob, how I would make you love me again, if I could get off alone with you. You see, no one ever did really care for me before, nor had I ever cared for anyone either. But I am wandering dreadfully."

"I don't mind, but, my dearest, I am getting close to the breaking point. I don't think I can stand much more without—"

He leaned forward, touched her hands, her arms, her face, her hair with broken little staccato caresses. Gently, but definitely, she put him away.

"Not yet," she said, and then, "Your mother didn't write that note, Bob."

"What, dear?"

"She didn't write it. I wrote it."

TIGER ISLAND
A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

Chapter One
ZOO SHIP

THE S. S. Boldero, Captain Wong Bo, flying the flag of the Chinese Republic, had put into the little port of Sinbao because of sickness on board.

The Boldero was of an ancient vintage. It seemed incredible that she had ever been trim and new. She was a tramp; she had no regular run. Upon the hint of remunerative cargo, Captain Wong Bo was ready to go anywhere at any time.

At the moment she was carrying a miscellaneous cargo of goods to Singapore and a very special deck-cargo of birds, reptiles and mammals. A blind man coming within a hundred yards of the Boldero on a still day would have known as much. She reeked with menagerie smells.

This was not the fault of Angus McLeod, who had collected the beasts upon order and speculation. He was a man to whom cleanliness and thrift were very close to godliness.

He had labored under a handicap. The two Chinamen whose duty it was to keep the cages clean and swab down the forward cargo-deck about which they were ranged, had various disqualifications.

One of them was a lazy fellow who could not be driven, and the other was afraid of everything but the song birds. All reasonable persons are afraid of tigers. But he was afraid also of the honey-bear and long it would be before the port doctor, whose launch was at the moment parting company with the customs-wharf, came aboard; and he was hoping that the message which Mr. Flint, the wireless operator, was at that moment receiving and recording in the wireless-room, would be a message of good omen.

But when at last Mr. Flint emerged from the wireless-room, the even of the little Rhesus monkeys.

"What seems to be the matter," asked Van Reuter.

In addition to these two visible handicaps, McLeod for three or four days had been suffering from an invisible handicap, which hurt him cruelly. It had started with a chill on a night when the thermometer stood at 102 degrees Fahrenheit. This chill had been followed by a general sense of abdominal discomfort. There was a pain, but one could not put one's finger on it. It was not so much one pain as an infinite number of small illusive pains. Gradually these drew together into a focus on the right side of his abdomen and rather low down.

McLeod was forty-five years of age, a strong man who had lived cleanly, but to have seen him at his work of feeding and tending his collection of wild things, you would have thought him an old man bent with age.

Early in the game he had diagnosed his trouble correctly, but he had hoped that the sudden inflammation would subside and that without wasting any more time or money, he could make Singapore. But, the inflammation growing more acute, he ordered Captain Wong Bo into Sinbao, where there was a little Dutch hospital with an excellent reputation.

IN THAT reek of heat and humidity, Captain Wong Bo looked cool and serene. He was tall for a Chinaman, smooth and heavy. It would not have been possible to guess his age within ten years. He was dressed in a tunic and trousers of white duck, and he wore a tropic helmet. If you had watched him for a little while, you would have known that he was a Chinaman. Concealed somewhere in his right sleeve was a small folding fan.

He was wondering why the white man on the mattress below there couldn't keep still. He wondered how what they call the "liberal" elements among the voters.

But in Minnesota, the Democrats are seeking a fusion with the Republicans to defeat the ultra-liberal farmer-laborites; in Virginia a group of "young Republican liberals" is seeking the overthrow of Democratic Senator Byrd; in West Virginia, Rush D. Holt won the Democratic senatorial nomination with the support of organized labor and on a platform too liberal for the Farley-backed Shaver to accept.

The evidence is widespread that the pendulum of public opinion is swinging away from old-time "bossism" in politics.

But in Missouri, Messrs Tom Pennington and Kansas City won probably his greatest State-wide victory in securing the nomination of his candidate for the Democratic nomination for Senator.

Even the windiest politicians, who ordinarily will undertake to explain anything from tiddlywinks to the Einstein theory, grow confused when they try to account for all that is happening today.

But even if they can't explain it,

000 ounces a month and made silver certificates redeemable in gold. President Cleveland forced repeal of the silver purchase laws in 1893, bringing on the McKinley-Bryan campaign in which free coinage of silver was a ringing issue.

Treasury Buys Silver

In 1900 the gold standard act of the McKinley administration demoted silver again. Subsequent economic tides brought on a clash of public opinion over whether the value of gold was too high in relation to the general commodity price level and there arose a militant cry to "Do Something For Silver."

On June 12, 1934, President Roosevelt signed the silver purchase act under which the Treasury began buying the metal at home and abroad to build up a new huge silver reserve. Eventually the Treasury will have to acquire about 1,300,000,000 ounces of silver—until the silver reserve is built up to where it is one-third the size of the gold reserve.

to protect the currency system of the nation he might require the sale of gold coin, bullion or gold certificates to the Treasurer of the United States. In January, 1934, gold was nationalized by act of Congress and title to all gold was vested in the Federal Government which buys and sells the metal at stated prices.

Government Gains Profits

Nationalization of silver gives the Treasury control and vests in the Federal Government title to the silver of the United States except that which is fabricated.

One aim of nationalization of a monetary metal is to gain for the government any profit which might be made to buying and selling it. Another purpose is to give the metal a more stable value.

When the United States was on a bi-metallic standard during the last century the fact that the market price of silver differed from the mint price resulted in an unsatisfactory monetary system.

Bi-metallic in 1792

The battle between gold and silver in this country is almost as old as the country itself. The mint act written by Alexander Hamilton in 1792 established bi-metallic with silver at a ratio of fifteen units to one of gold.

By 1873 large domestic deposits of silver opened up, and the currency act of the Grant administration terminated the use of the white metal as a major base for currency. Silver was officially demoted, and gold became the single standard for American money.

The Bland-Alison act of 1878 remonetized silver over President Hayes' veto, and the Treasury was instructed to buy at least $2,000,000 of silver a month and coin it. The Sherman silver purchase act of 1890 increased silver purchases to 4,500,000 ounces a month.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. "Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 12.

The golden text was from Zechariah 4:6: "This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

The lesson-lesson also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit being God, there is but one Spirit, for there can be but one infinite and therefore one God. There are neither spirits many nor gods many. There is no evil in Spirit, because God is Spirit. The theory, that Spirit is distinct from matter but must pass through it, or into it, to be individualized, would reduce God to dependency on matter, and establish a basis for pantheism. Spirit, God, has created all in and of Himself. Spirit never created matter. There is nothing in Spirit out of which matter could be made, for, as the Bible declares, without the Logos, the Aeon or Word of God, was not anything made that was made. Spirit is the only substance, the invisible and indivisible infinite God."

COUNTY COURT DISPOSES OF HEAVY DOCKET

Thomas Hathaway, charged with manufacturing whiskey, was sentenced to six months on the roads in yesterday's session of the County Court, the first sitting of the tribunal in a month due to annual vacation season.

Hathaway was arrested by county officers the early part of last week along with a distilling plant, several gallons of whiskey and several hundred gallons of beer.

The docket yesterday was one of the heaviest in months because of the month of inactivity. Around thirty cases were disposed of and court sat for a short time this morning to complete the docket.

John "Geech" Weston, negro, charged with shoplifting at Blount-Harvey's Store here last week, was sent to the roads for twelve months. Weston, who is something of a character with local officers because of his frequent appearance in court, informed arresting officers he would not mind serving 90 days on the roads. But Judge James evidently didn't consider the desire. The negro described by Manly Sellars, head of the convict forces, as the best water boy he had ever seen.

The remainder of the cases disposed of during the day follow: Easter Johnson, colored, assault; pay cost.

Robert Johnson, colored, assault with a deadly weapon; eight months on the roads.

Andrew West, colored, disturbing religious worship, $25, including the costs.

Raleigh Mitchell, colored, assault with a deadly weapon; six months on the roads.

Robert Harris, driving drunk, $50 and cost, and license revoked for 90 days.

Willie Oakley, assault with a deadly weapon, 90 days on the roads.

Henry Harris, non-support, six months' sentence to the roads or leave the county.

Isabel Dixon and Lula McKell, colored, assault with a deadly weapon, one-half cost each.

John Atkinson, colored, larceny, 60 days on the roads or pay cost of action.

Eibert McCoy, driving drunk, $50 and cost and license revoked for 90 days.

Perry Tripp, liquor for sale, $25, cost deducted, with road sentence suspended on good behavior.

J. A. Lee, driving drunk, $50 and license revoked for 90 days.

James Sawyer, colored, larceny, judgment suspended on payment of cost.

Robert Garris, driving without license, $5 and cost. Dixie Ballinger and Dave McLawhorn were fined $5 each for failure to appear as witnesses in the Garris case.

William Black, colored, carrying concealed weapon, $50 and cost.

Grunting Pigs

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER It was hard on the ducks, Willy Nilly felt, to see these visiting ones take all their food, even helping themselves to the bags of grain that had been put aside.

After all, these visiting ducks had not been invited by Mr. and Mrs. Quacko.

But Willy Nilly simply had to keep order with all these creatures in Puddle Muddle, and he was glad that Mr. and Mrs. Quacko were now being so polite and unselfish since he had reminded them how beautifully they entertained.

"Grunt, grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal, squeal" came from many pigs' voices. They were simply everywhere, digging into the ground, pulling up roots, emptying pails of trash, and making the most untidy mess of the whole place.

"Here is some pig weed that's very good," said Willy Nilly, as he came back with an armful that was growing wild a little distance away from his house. He had rushed out to get it in order to try to stop the pigs from upsetting the place and grabbing at everything.

"Thank you, grunt, grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal," granted and squealed the pigs. "We can get pig weed at home. We like all the treats we're having here better."

Willy Nilly did not know what to do next.

And now each pig was shouting something and it wasn't anything that pleased Willy Nilly in the slightest degree.

"It can't be possible," he told the pigs. "It's true, grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal," shouted every single pig.

change, styles and tastes may vary but the circus will always be a welcome visitor, and the child or youth denied the pleasure of a visit to the circus is to be pitied. The circus appeals to all classes and conditions of people—it is just about the one accepted national entertainment same as baseball is the national sport. While every country on the globe has circus entertainment yet there is not another country in the world that has a circus such magnitude, such variety, such newness and novelty as the circus as conducted in this country of which Russell Bros. Circus is a notable example.

The agents of the Russell Circus were in the city yesterday and they have completed arrangements for its exhibition here. The grounds secured are located at the Winslow circus grounds, Dickinson Avenue. Like more than 90 per cent of circuses these days, this circus travels overland. There are only three shows moving by rail now. The motorized circus hold many advantages over the railroad circus, all of which enable it to give just as good performance at a much less price of admission. Circus performers and attaches have declared that they enjoy being with a motorized show more than with the railroad circus account of having more comforts and conveniences.

The Russell circus program is presented in three rings, and on the hippodrome track, and they guarantee to present many absolute exclusive features. They carry a managerie which may be visited free by all patrons of the circus.

Kiwanians to Attend "Community Booster" Meeting Next Monday Night

The regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club, scheduled for Friday night, will not be held, it was announced today by Secretary D. C. Moore, Jr., in view of the "community booster meeting" to be held at Yum Yum Barbecue Place next Monday evening.

The booster meeting, which will be attended by all club members, will count as a regular meeting and therefore the next meeting will take place as usual two weeks hence.

Postponement of the meeting until Monday evening will be also give members of the club an opportunity to attend the divisional meeting of Kiwanis International at Wrightsville Beach Friday evening.

This gathering will be attended by clubmen from many sections of eastern Carolina and will be featured by addresses by the district governor and trustee in addition to a dance.

It had not been determined how many members of the local club would attend the divisionary meeting, but it is expected the club will be well represented.

The club has obtained for all its members to the "community booster" meeting, and indications are that Kiwanis will be represented one hundred per cent as well as other clubs and organizations of the city.

Mayor Flanagan Off For Trip To Seven Springs

Mayor R. C. Flanagan, who has been sick for the last several months, left today for Seven Springs where he will spend a week in an effort to recuperate.

The mayor, who all his life has confined his thirst to water, hoped to derive considerable aid from the seven different kinds of water dispensed at Seven Springs, and the water that clicks will be the kind he plans to stick to during his sojourn in the rolling country around the springs.

The mayor has been suffering from an attack of malarial the last several days, and while ordered to remain in bed by his physician, pressing business necessitated his appearance at his office from time to time. However, he has gone to Seven Springs to forget business and everything else as he confines his attention to absorbing enough of the health-giving water to send him back home in better physical trim.

Silver Nationalization Tops Money Control

By FRANK I. WELLER Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Nationalization of silver marks another move on man's troubled trail from the ancient temple of Juno.

It was there the first coins were made which people could give in exchange for the things they needed. Moneta was the surname of the Roman goddess, and gradually these pieces of metal came to be known as "money."

The process by which metal was made into money was called "monetization," which, strictly speaking, meant to endow that metal with power to be the standard of exchange.

Monetization, remonetization and demonetization of precious commodities have, in their turn, influenced the political, economic and social fortunes of mankind ever since the first coin was swapped for a loin cloth.

Bank Crisis is Start Nationalization of a monetary metal in the United States has been of recent origin, but springs from the age-old struggle to manipulate the functions of money. It began during the banking crisis in March, 1933, when Congress passed a law providing that when the Secretary of the Treasury deemed it necessary

LOCALS LICK SNOW HILL IN TIGHT GAME

Reynolds May, Greenville hurling ace, who has done effective emergency work in recent games, appeared in the role as pinch-hitter with the bases loaded in the tenth inning of the Greenville-Snow Hill game yesterday afternoon and produced the single necessary to give the locals a 4-3 victory over the visitors.

A hit, an error, a walk and May's single turned the trick as several hundred fans packing both grandstand and bleachers, watched breathlessly as the locals staged the rally to keep themselves in the race for the championship series.

It looked as if Snow Hill meant to walk away with the game during the first six innings. With Sivley, ace moundman, doing duty for the visitors, Greenville apparently was unable to get a look-in on the game until the seventh when two triples by Bostic and Weaver and a double by Wagner and a single by Wadsworth produced three runs to tie the score.

The terrific attack resulted in the retirement of Sivley. He was followed by Maxwell, who succeeded in temporarily halting the onslaught until the tenth when the necessary run to put the game on ice was shovelled over the platter.

David Smith went the route on the mound for the locals and held the visitors pretty well in check at critical stages. They were able only to chalk up one run an inning in early stages of the game and collected only six hits off Smith's delivery.

Milton Harrington, Greenville centerfielder, and former manager of the club, featured in the field, accepting several difficult chances and making every one good. The youngster has been playing like a house afire for the last several games and chalked up several long running catches which otherwise have gone for extra base knocks.

Newman led the batting attack for the visitors, being credited with a double and single. Weaver, with a triple and double and Woodworth with two singles, led the batting spree for the locals.

It was the fifth victory of the local club in the last week and helped them maintain their position near the top of the standing of clubs.

Kinston and Ayden were tied for first place with Greenville running a half game behind with the beginning of the week's play yesterday. Ayden lost, Kinston won, thereby gaining definite lead of first place. Ayden's loss also placed Greenville in definite control of the second position.

The local club went to Snow Hill this afternoon and Ayden will play on the local lot tomorrow and Snow Hill Friday.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Walter (eastwhile The Great Mails, after almost three decades of play in particularly every Class RA or better baseball league in the country, finally admits he may be slipping.

Hero of the 1920 world series which Cleveland won from Brooklyn, Mails has been performing as jack-of-all-trades for the San Francisco Seals this year, pitching a little; pinch-hitting now and then and coaching at third.

What Mails mourns most isn't the fact that he has lost his great hurling ability so much as that he is slipping in repartee, losing one of his greatest baseball assets.

Coast league fans and opposing players, who still laugh at his long red coat and coaching line antics, think Mails will still do as a diamond jester, but Walter feels grim.

Said the once Great Mails, who pitched a three-hit game against Brooklyn in the world's series of 1920:

"Guess I'm slipping, all right! Won two and lost eleven, if I can count that high. I'd be about twenty won and two lost at this time of year when I was young and trying to get along. But I'm slipping and I know it.

"How do I know it? I walked Rudy Kallio (Portland pitcher), the worst hitter in baseball, the other day. I'll never get over that. Walked him with the bases full. Can you beat that?

"I said to him when I was pitching to him: 'If they were alad hitters like you I'd still be in the big leagues!'

"Then he cracks back with: 'If they were alad hitters like me, there wouldn't be any big leagues!'

"Beats me to the punch in the kid-dilping league, and then gets a walk with the bases full! I sure am slipping!"

It Looks That Way!
The boys were chatting with the eminent Jerome Herman Deane around the dugout when some one mentioned the fortuitous circumstance by which the Cardinal right-hander entered an agreement with a St. Louis business man this year—an agreement by which Dizzy, in return for some part-time radio ball-hooey, receive $100 for each pitching victory. The total now is around $2,100.

"Say," injected Dizzy with feeling, "he's sure a wonderful guy. He would do anything for you—give you his shirt, if necessary."

"Yeah," came back one of the lads, "you will have his shirt before the season's over."

Fred Gets 'Hung Up'
The host embarrassing moment for Fred Frankhouse was not an occasion when he was knocked out of the box but had to do with an episode one day when he was patrolling an outfield post for the Houston club of the Texas League.

"I made a long run and a spectacular leap high against the fence to spear a hard hit ball," he explains. "A huge spike was sticking out of the fence and it caught my shirt between the shoulders and there I stuck."

"My feet were high off the grass and I hung there helpless like a dressed turkey on a butcher's rack, squirming and choking while the crowd and rest of the players howled."

KINSTON WINS
Tarboro, Aug. 15.—Kinston regained full control of first place in the Coastal Plain League by defeating Tarboro 10-1 yesterday, as Ayden was losing to New Bern.

The Kinston club banged 16 hits off two local hurlers and forged to the front early in the game. Woodleaf, Tarboro's starting flinger, was overcome by heat in the sixth and had to retire.

Heading the Kinston attack were Peele, who hit a homer, triple, and single; Rogers, with a homer and a double, and Zaiser, with a homer and a double. Jim Tatum, catcher, made three hits in four chances.

Bill Croom, outfielder, made two hits in four chances to lead Tarboro's eight-hit attack.

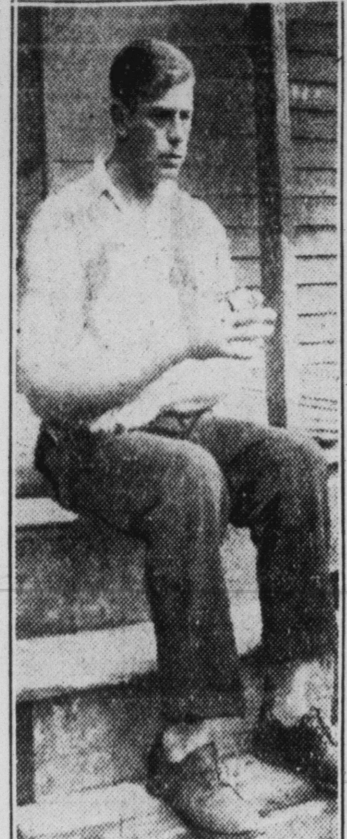

Batteries: Kinston—McKeithan and Tatum; Tarboro—Woodleaf, Perritt and Richardson.

NEW BERN WINS.
New Bern, Aug. 15.—Playing sensationally on defense behind Lefty Kennel's six-hit pitching, New Bern defeated Ayden 7-4 yesterday. It was the locals' first win of the season against Ayden.

Not content with thoroughly out-pitching Byrd and Cesnovar, Kennel stopped the hitting streak of Faust Johnson, Ayden outfielder, who had hit safely in 32 consecutive games.

Swamp Norwood made three hits to lead New Bern's 10-hit offense. Smokey Ferebee was next, getting a triple and a single.

Holds Faith Cured Rattlesnake Bite

Albert Teester, 39-year-old "holiness preacher" of a country church near Sylva, N. C., is shown as he slowly recovered from the effects of a rattlesnake bite to which he had submitted to prove that "faith" could cure him without the aid of medicine. Note his greatly swollen arm. the answer is

CHEVROLET'S KNEE-ACTION RIDE

Doubles

the pleasure of motoring

The best way to prove that Chevrolet's Knee-Action actually makes motoring twice as pleasant as before is to drive the new Chevrolet over all kinds of roads. You will find that the continuous jars you used to get even on smooth pavements are ended. The steering wheel is free of vibration. Back seat passengers are comfortable and relaxed. You can maintain higher speeds over rough roads that used to slow you down. You will find in fact, that probably for the first time in your experience, every foot of every mile is equally enjoyable. This fine feature is combined in the new Chevrolet with beautiful, luxurious Fisher Bodies, safe, weatherproof, cable-controlled brakes, the flashing performance of an 80-horsepower engine, and the great economy of six-cylinder, valve-in-head construction. This combination is exclusive with Chevrolet. Perhaps that explains why so many people are buying and recommending this extremely low-priced car.
