ITALY AND AUSTRIA SEEKING MILITARY ACCORD

Chicago Faced By Transportation Strike Hungary Is Also Involved In Move From Mussolini

UNION HEADS LISTENING TO NEW PROPOSAL

Bus Drivers Strike Reported About Ready to Blow Wide Open; 20,000 Workers Will be Involved If Executive Board Reports Favorably; FERA Workers Stage Riot at Milwaukee

(By The Associated Press) Union labor is considering a proposal today for a general transportation strike in Chicago where a police executive had described the bus drivers' walkout as about "ripe to blow wide open."

Chicago surface line employees are to ask the executive board of the Amalgamated Association of the Street and Electric Railway Employees of America, meeting in Detroit, for permission to declare a sympathetic strike.

Elevated unions made a similar request yesterday.

Should the executive board approve, 20,000 workers will take a walkout home.

Tear gas bombs and riot sticks were used to quiet a riot in Milwaukee where 250 FERA strikers sought to rescue a companion from police yesterday. A woman in a gray dress roared the workers into action.

Police at Portland, Oregon, were told to arrest twenty-five men for questioning as result of a clash between workmen, longshoremen strikers, in which one man was shot to death.

Philippine Island officials planned intervention to prevent the walkout of 8,000 cigar makers from growing into a general strike. Three thousand persons advanced on the police station to free twenty-five women prisoners, but the women already had been released.

Francis Gorman, chairman of the United Textile Workers' strike committee, but the next move up to the industry or the administration, as he pressed plans for a tie-up of the cotton and textile industry by September 1 with a walkout in other textile lines to follow.

The Minneapolis market strike remained "no man's land" as national guardsmen sought to forestall violence in the truck drivers' strike.

Government plans for the return to work of 8,000 employees were taken under consideration by the strikers with little prospect of acceptance.

A Federal conciliator began negotiations in the strike at the Lever Brothers Soap Factory, Hammond, Ind., and at Portsmouth the National Steel Labor Relations Board heard declarations and denials of walkouts at the Wheeling Corporation.

BYRNES HEADS SPEAKER RACE

Numbers of Party Leaders Listed For Important Post in the U. S. House

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The name of Joseph Willington Byrnes headed many lists of likely successors to the post of the late Speaker Rainey today.

Though the matter has not been settled, and may lead to strong intra-party rivalry, the ten Representatives who are credited leaders, appeared to some observers to have a place in the race. The list of possible contenders included:

Representatives Sam Rayburn, of Texas; William B. Bankhead and John McDuffie, of Alabama; Clifton Woodrum, of Virginia; John McCormack, of Massachusetts; John Rankin, of Mississippi; and Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina.

BRIGHT LEAF LARGE CROWD ROLLING INTO EXPECTED AT MARKET HERE CRUCIAL GAME

Annual Pilgrimage of Tobacco Growers Expected to Reach Peak Tomorrow Nite

The annual pilgrimage to Greenville—one of the world's greatest bright leaf centers—was under way today and will continue from day to day until the crop has been disposed of.

With the first load of tobacco arriving here the latter part of last week, the movement of the weed became more noticeable today and by tomorrow night the peak will be reached. The market by the hour of the opening Thursday morning will be a sea of golden leaf and seething humanity, and the crowd will follow the sales listening with keen anticipation to the auctioneers as they cry their bids, bringing what is generally believed will be the highest prices in years.

Greenville factories and warehouses are all set for receiving the tremendous offerings. Improvements during the summer have placed the market in the finest shape in years, and offerings of the growers from many miles are expected to be handled with the greatest rapidity and ease in the history of the tobacco business.

With the prospect of improved prices growing out of advances on the Georgia and South and North Carolina border markets, growers are in better spirit than they have been in years. Last year when the market opened low, a holiday was declared, the government asked for aid, growers placed under contract for reduction of acreage, and the price upturn started.

The golden leaf in reality is expected to live up to its name this year, and the thousands of dollars paid out on the market daily are expected to play an important part in helping lift the community back to the high ground of better times.

Greenville people have thrown open the gates to the thousands of visitors always on hand when the market opens, and everybody will put his best foot forward in an effort to convince the visitors that the city lives up to its slogan: "Our Greenville, yours if you come."

RECAPTURE CONVICT WHO MADE HIS ESCAPE

Durham, N. C., Aug. 21.—Harvey Stephens, who sawed his way out of the State Highway camp here last week, donned the clothes of Superintendent Fred Colcough and walked away from the prison, was captured today by local officers. Stephens was turned over to Superintendent Colcough to complete the remainder of a term for store-breaking and larceny.

Chester, S. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Quinn, Sr., of the Bethel section of York County, and their daughter, Anne Reece Quinn, superintendent of the Randolph County Hospital at Asheboro, N. C., were injured in an automobile accident Sunday on the York-Chester road near here.

Mr. Quinn, 70, and his wife, aged 65, suffered lacerations that in themselves were minor, but because of shock and their advanced age their condition was described as serious at the hospital here.

TOBACCO MART GIVEN ROUSING SEND-OFF HERE

Fine Spirit Prevails at 'Community Booster' Meeting at Yum Yum Barbecue Palace

The Greenville tobacco market, which opens here Thursday morning, was given a rousing send-off here last night at a "community booster meeting" at the Yum Yum Barbecue Palace on the opposite side of Tar river. Between 150 and 200 tobaccoists, business and professional men were present and heard the tobacco industry extolled to the skies and declared the greatest factor in the progress of the community.

J. C. Lanier, loose leaf tobacco warehouse code administrator, who makes his headquarters in Greenville, was the principal speaker of the evening. He spoke principally on the code and the Smith-Kerr act recently passed by Congress as a means of throwing a protection around the thousands of growers who contracted to sell their tobacco under government regulations and receive better prices in return.

Introduced by W. Z. Morton, local tobacco warehouseman, as "a man who has done great things for the tobacco industry," Mr. Lanier first dealt with the Smith-Kerr act, which imposes a 25 per cent tax on all tobacco sold in 1934-35 by farmers who have not entered into an agreement with the government for reduction of acreage.

The act, the speaker said, is merely an effort on the part of the federal government to throw a safeguard around the thousands of farmers who are abiding by the government contract, attempting to improve their condition, and the government is going to see that the legislation is rigidly enforced.

Mr. Lanier said the government issues tax payment warrants to growers who signed contracts and these are accepted as payment of the tax at warehouses where the tobacco is sold. The contract signer is released of the tax and the non-signer pays 25 per cent of the gross value of his tobacco.

Although provisions of the code, which governs the operation of the warehouses were not explained, Mr. Lanier gave his hearers a clear idea of what it means to both the industry and the farmers who sell their tobacco under auction system from year to year. He described the code as a great boon to the industry and said in years to come tobacco men would look back upon it as the Magna Charter of their business.

He described it as a law binding warehousemen to fair trade practices by the elimination of cut-throat competition and permitting all to make fair profits out of the business. He said the code was drafted for the good of all connected with the business and that the farmers would benefit just as much as the warehouses.

Referring to the method of sales adopted during early stages of the industry, he said the "auction system" is the only feasible system for selling tobacco as it afforded an open market with plenty of competition for the farmers' products. He declared years had proven the fact.

Asserting it was his purpose under the code to clean up the auction system to such extent that nobody would want any other kind of system, the administrator urged his hearers to go to it, knocking other markets, put boosting on a true spirit of service and attempt to do their best in really making the industry what it should be.

The gathering was sponsored by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, the Tobacco Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce and its auxiliary, the Merchants Association, and all persons interested in the industry had been invited to attend.

Representatives of the various organizations made three minute talks. Ed Batchelor, representing the Chamber of Commerce, pictured the local market as the "greatest in the world" and complimented the men who have maintained such a high type of service.

W. H. Woodard, speaking from the banker's standpoint, stated he regarded the market as the greatest asset of the community, and said the banks of the city were ready to render the highest standard of service in helping the market keep (Continued on page three)

TOBACCO TAX MEN MEET HERE

Administrators Of Smith-Kerr Act Receiving Final Instructions Today

Fifty government representatives who are to administer the Smith-Kerr act when the various tobacco markets of this bright leaf belt swing open Thursday were in Greenville today receiving final instructions preparatory to going to work.

They were addressed this morning by J. C. Lanier, tobacco warehouse code administrator, and told that the act provides a protection for growers who have signed government contracts providing for reduction of acreage.

Another session will be held this afternoon when final instructions as to their duties will be given by C. W. Wingfield, of Lynchburg, Va., and E. G. Bagley, of Raligh, head of the government field forces.

The Kerr-Smith act was passed by the last congress in an effort to protect the thousands of farmers who took advantage of the government plan by agreeing to take a portion of their acreage out of cultivation. The field men will have tax-exemption warrants providing tax-free sales for farmers who signed the government contract. Farmers who did not sign the government contracts will have to pay 25 per cent of the amount received from their tobacco.

It was one of the last pieces of legislation passed by Congress and is designed to give honest growers a chance of benefiting from participation in the government campaign without being interfered with by non-contract signers who might have thought they would get away with something and now find they can't

STATE BANK BUYS CITY'S NOTE ISSUE

The local government commission announced today from Raleigh that the $10,000 note issue for the city of Greenville had been bought by the State Bank and Trust Company of this city at an interest rate of 3-1/2 per cent.

The rate is one of the lowest probably recorded on a note sale herein sometime and was received with interest and gratification by members of the Board of Aldermen who were called upon recently to raise sufficient money to finish paying for construction work on the municipal swimming pool, described as one of the finest projects in this part of the State.

NAB SLAYER OF SHERIFF AT CONCORD

Ralph Davis, Wanted For Killing Sheriff Kimball, Arrested in Boarding House

Concord, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Ralph Davis, 20-year-old outlaw wanted for the slaying of Sheriff G. C. Kimball of Statesville, was captured today.

The outlaw, object of a widespread hunt in this section since Kimball was slain last week, was found in a rooming house where he surrendered to Sheriff R. C. Hoover, Chief of Police B. F. Widenhouse and two deputies without any show of resistance. Davis denied to the officers that he killed Kimball.

Information that Davis was at the rooming house was given Sheriff Hoover by R. T. Hagler who operates the house.

Hagler informed the sheriff this morning that Davis had been in the house two days. He said he recognized the outlaw from this morning's newspaper photograph and immediately communicated with the sheriff.

With two deputies, Sheriff Hoover and Widenhouse left for the house. Deputies were left at the doors and Hoover and Widenhouse went to the room occupied by Davis with drawn pistols.

The outlaw was in bed and surrendered without any show of resistance. "I know when I'm beaten," the arresting officers quoted him as saying. Davis had a pistol under his pillow.

After Davis' arrest he was taken to an undisclosed jail.

JUDGE SETS VERDICT ASIDE

Decision in Favor of Plaintiff in Land Suit Referred Today by Judge Parker

John Stewart and wife, colored people of the Grifton area, won the majority of issues in their suit in Superior Court today seeking to recover on a house and lot they allegedly bought from V. M. Seymour, who contended they never finished paying for the property.

Judge R. Hunt Parker, of Roanoke Rapids, who is presiding over the session, set aside the verdict for reference.

The Stewarts contended they bought the house and lot from Seymour, paid him for it and then demanded a deed to the property. Seymour, on the other hand, contended they did not pay the last two notes and refused to give them a deed.

They immediately filed action in Superior Court.

The case was begun yesterday morning and went to the jury this morning following the charge by Judge Parker. The jury was out only a short time, although it had about six issues to answer.

CONFERENCE HELD TODAY AT FLORENCE

Clause Would Permit Italy to March Into Austria if Necessary To Aid That Nation; Mussolini and Chancellor Schusnigg Refuse to Give Out Information on Conferences

Florence, Italy, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Unconfirmed rumors said today that Premier Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Schusnigg of Austria meeting here were drafting a military clause for the Italo-Austro-Hungary accord. The clause would be one of mutual assistance between the three countries and will permit Italy to march into Austria, if necessary, to aid that nation.

Well-informed sources said they were not inclined to give the rumor much credence.

Certain it was, however, that Mussolini and Schusnigg conferred together with Fulvio Sivich, the Italian under-secretary of state, after Schusnigg's arrival by train from Austria this morning.

They talked in the magnificent old villa DeMarinis set deep in the park of trees overlooking the city.

Both Premiers emerged from the meeting looking apparently satisfied by their long talk, but without giving out any information on the subject of their conversations.

From the conference room they went into a strictly restricted luncheon attended by fourteen other dignitaries, including Sivich and Archille Starace, the general secretary of the Fascist party.

Because Florence is the center of military maneuvers the city is under war-time measures, and the head of the neighboring governments enter it under cover of darkness early today.

LEAF HOUSE IN FINE SHAPE

Johnston's Warehouse Ready For Opening After Making Many Improvements

Work had been completed today on improvements at Johnston's warehouse and everything will be in readiness when the market swings open Thursday morning. J. T. Timberlake, operator of the house, stated today.

Offices have been moved from the main floor to the basement to afford quicker handling of the tremendous volume of business transacted by the firm. The offices are complete in every respect, and are a greater convenience to both employees of the warehouse and farmers.

Spacious rest rooms have been provided for men and women of both races and persons patronizing the warehouses will have ample place to rest while waiting for their tobacco to be sold.

Johnston's Warehouse is one of the best lighted in this section, aiding greatly in the handling of the tremendous quantities of bright leaf from day to day.

Tom Timberlake is a native of this city, having grown up in the tobacco business. He has been connected with the industry in other cities, but returned to Greenville two years ago to operate Johnston's Warehouse. This is his third year on the local market.

Associated with him will be his father, H. A. Timberlake, one of the pioneer tobacco men of the State, who came to Greenville 37 years ago and who has been connected with the market since its infancy.

O. G. Rucker, former resident of this city, but who has been in Kinston the last several years, has returned and will auctioneer at Johnston's Warehouse.

Speaking of the outlook for the season, Mr. Timberlake said the situation was brighter than in years, and held out greater possibilities to the community.

NEW PARKING ORDER BEGINS

One Side Parking Regulation Becomes Effective on Dickinson Avenue Today

The one-side parking regulations became effective on Dickinson Avenue today in accordance with a recent request by the government that all streets thirty feet wide or less, which had been improved with government funds, allow parking only on one side to improve traffic conditions.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning the regulation would be about like they were last year. One side parking will be in force from Pitt to Greene streets, missing a block, and then on to Five Points.

Two-side parking will be permitted on all other parts of the street. Markings have been placed to advise motorists of the changes and one hour regulations will be in vogue on all sections of the avenue.

Dickinson Avenue is one of the most congested thoroughfares in the city during tobacco season, and it was hoped the change would relieve the crush of traffic to some extent although patrolmen are going to be kept busy trying to keep the street open for the thousands of vehicles passing along the street night and day.

Chief Clark said the regulations would be strictly enforced and citizens were urged to cooperate in the effort to improve traffic conditions during the great rush period.

Chapter Six THE BARGAIN

"Oh," said the animal trainer, "we ran out of food and the money to buy food, so I kissed them good-bye and let them go."

"That's where you made a mistake," said Bowers. "You need a trainer yourself, young woman, or a guardian, or a nurse, or something of that kind..."

"Oh, no, you wouldn't," said she. "Why wouldn't I?"

It was her first phrase in which there was any expression of sentiment; and it began to dawn on him that she had a personality of many sides...

Leod, I'd give you the job like a shot.

"McLeod?" she said. "Angus? the collector? What's he got to do with it?"

"It's his menagerie," said Bowers. "He is in the hospital, and just about now they are separating him from his appendix."

"Still," said she, "I don't see what he's got to do with it. I am competent, and I need the job. Why can't I have it?"

"Only," said Bowers, "that the words of a badly worried man, who is about to have his appendix out, have a kind of sanctity. He told me to get a man to help me."

"Isn't that a quibble?" she asked. "If he had known that the only available man was a woman, wouldn't he have been willing to take a chance?"

"Very possibly," said Bowers; but still he hesitated. It was hard for him to realize, it always had been, that even out of her normal and natural sphere, a woman may sometimes function as effectively as a man.

At this moment Helen, the monkey, drew attention to herself by a sound which perhaps is a little described by the word chittering.

others in which sentiment, fancy and high motives played a part.

"When you opened the cages and let them out," he asked, "weren't you frightened?"

"Me!" she exclaimed. "Me frightened? Of tigers? Why, tigers are just like children if you understand them."

"As for instance?" suggested Bowers.

"Why," she said, "when they are hungry, you feed them." Then suddenly she smiled for the first time. It was just a flicker of a smile, but there was in it a hint of gaiety and mischief.

"When their heads ache," she said, "you give them aspirin; and when they are naughty, you slap them."

Bowers fell into her mood with a chuckle, and she continued:

"The worst times, of course," she said, "are when they get homesick for the jungle."

"That must be awful," said Bowers. "What do you do for them then?"

"Just what you would do for a man who was down on his luck. You matter them."

"I suppose I am dumb," said Bowers, "but even if I made up my mind to matter a tiger, I wouldn't know how to go about it."

"Oh," she said, "just praise them. Tell them how handsome they are, make them feel important and self-satisfied. At such times, I often recite Blake's poem to them." And she quoted:

"Tiger, Tiger, lurning bright, In the forest of the night, What immortal-hand or eye Could frame thy fearful symmetry?"

"That's the stuff that makes a tiger feel good all over."

BOWERS was secretly astonished and delighted. He had never imagined that animal trainers had a sense of humor and read literature.

"When I came in just now," he said, "and you were rude to me without meaning to be, I was hurt. I didn't like you a bit. But that's all ancient history. I think you'd get my menagerie to Singapore in great shape, and if it weren't for poor Mc-those happily situated Democratic senators who have Republican colleagues. With their party in power, control of ordinary patronage in their state rests exclusively with them. Such control is, in itself, a powerful weapon in carrying out state Democratic leadership.

It Hasn't Worked Out

But what actually has happened? Take the situation in Ohio, for example. Senator Bulkley occupies a unique position there. Yet in the recent Ohio primaries Bulkley apparently suffered a decisive defeat in his effort to direct the course of Democratic affairs through loss of the senatorial nomination for his man, Representative West.

Step along to Missouri. There another young Democratic senator—Bennett Clark—who inherited a great name in politics and who showed indications of being ambitious to become party master in Missouri, saw his hopes smashed when his candidate ran third for the senatorial nomination.

In California there are reports the leadership of Senator McAdoo is threatened by the possibility of an "interloper" capturing the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

White House Attitude

Divided senatorial representation almost invariably encourages attempts by the senator of the dominant party to set himself up as the boss in that state.

The 1934 primaries to date have shown this clearly. Thus far, however, it has been the bosses within the state, many of whom never held office or have gone to Washington in an official capacity, who have out-manuevered their senatorial rivals for party power.

Just what the White House thinks about the unkind blows primaries have dealt Democratic senators with state boss aspirations is not of record. Examination of the attitude on some aspects of Mr. Roosevelt's policy, shown by some of these senators in the two recovery sessions of Congress, would suggest, however, the President might have greeted the news with private chuckles.

By JOHN SELBY

"Pungent" is probably the stock word which would best describe Mary Kidder Rak's "A Cowman's Wife."

Mary Rak and her husband, Charles, have a huge cattle ranch in southeastern Arizona, in a sort of basin about five hours and 56 miles from Douglas. And there they live apart, wrangling cattle, struggling with itinerant Mexican laborers and learning about life and cattle raising.

The place is called Old Fort Rucker Ranch, because old Fort Rucker was once on a part of it. As a matter of fact, the Rak home was the adobe fort itself until it was ruined by fire. Then they moved into a little wooden cottage which is so small that Mr. Rak declared one couldn't "cuss the cat without getting fur in your mouth."

Mrs. Rak knew nothing about cattle, and Mr. Rak, with the typical cattlemen's contempt for a tenderfoot, refused to teach her. But he capitulated when she threatened to call a neighbor—he couldn't bear the disgrace of having another man know what an ignorant wife he had. That was a long while ago; Mrs. Rak found that learning about cattle was possible and fascinating, and when she herself had become expert she achieved her husband's contempt for those less knowing than she.

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington (AP)—Time was when a United States senatorship often meant that the wearer of the senatorial toga exercised political domination over the party machinery in his state. It still is true in some instances. Huey Long of Louisiana is the political czar in his state. Matthew Neely of West Virginia recently demonstrated his power when a 29-year-old youth, who had his blessing, copped the Democratic senatorial from two veteran politicians. Political observers, however, have noted that thus far in the 1934 primaries there has been a tendency for the voters to kick over the traces of senatorial bossism. Especially has this been true among some of Library Circulation For Past Year. During the past year Sheppard Memorial Library has loaned a total of 84,751 books. In reports made to the American Library Association, the circulation of children's books is usually about 25 per cent of the total. The circulation of junior books at the local library for last year was 41 per cent of the total figure. The library records show a stock of 6,015 volumes. The number of registered readers is 4,014.

The library is used just as widely by the people who live outside of Greenville as by those who live in the town. The larger part of the reference work is done by pupils in the city schools. The records show that as many as 32 children have used encyclopedias and other reference material during one afternoon.

The Ayden Public Library, a Woman's Club project, has a book stock of 488 volumes. Packages of books were borrowed from Sheppard Memorial Library and from the North Carolina Library Commission in an effort to supply books for their readers. During the year this library loaned 5,340 books, 3,080 to adults and 2,260 to juniors. In Ayden the circulation of children's books is about 42 per cent of the total. AGED MAN KILLED WHEN HIT BY CAR. Mt. Tabor, N. C., Aug. 21.—English Hinson, about 70, lost his life in what was termed an unavoidable accident twelve miles east of Tabor late Sunday afternoon when he is said to have walked into the path of a moving automobile. Reports of the accident are that the aged man walked in front of an automobile driven by Crowell Black, of Whiteville. An investigation into the accident resulted in holding Black blameless in the tragedy.

The Bears' Sorrow

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER. The dogs were rather ashamed of themselves after their fight. They became friends again, wagged their tails and tossed sticks for each other, and then they started a base ball game.

Willy Nilly was only too ready to provide a ball for the game, and there were bats to be had, too, in the big box in which Willy Nilly kept Things Just For Fun.

Top Notch, the rooster, was so upset at what had happened that he didn't know what to do. He changed from moment to moment. Now he would strut about and talk in a grand way to all the visiting creatures, and then he would go off in a corner and wonder if they would all leave before long, or if they were going to stay forever.

At last he had a chance to speak to Willy Nilly.

"You see," he explained, "when I was around calling on all my friends I told every one that a nice place we had and that they must come and visit us. I had no idea they would all decide to come right away—and that every one of them from every barnyard where I had been would come."

"I'm afraid I said too many nice things about Puddle Muddle."

Willy Nilly understood how Top Notch had boasted, and he was glad.

Of course, the rooster was so proud of his home. But certainly this crowd had overdone it to say the least!

"I'll just have to tell them that they must go home," said Top Notch, "but I'm ashamed to do that."

At that moment there came growls from the bears.

"This is too much!" they growled. "Oh, oh, how terrible!"

TOBACCO MARKET GIVEN ROUSING SEND-OFF

Dr. L. R. Meadows, acting president of East Carolina Teachers College, declared if the tobacco market falls "we fall with it." He said everybody was eager to lend a hand in boosting the great industry. He reminded his hearers that money derived from the crop could be converted into the great human channel of good citizenship, better schools, churches, and a higher standard of public life, as well as affording regular needs.

Dr. Herbert ReBarker, president of the Rotary Club, saw among the most outstanding things produced by the market, money, people, business, publicity and employment. Although he admitted he didn't know a thing about tobacco, he said he realized the value of the industry to the community and was one hundred per cent behind it.

Dr. R. S. McGeachy, president of the Kiwanis Club, forgot about tobacco and called attention to the serious public health situation in this county. He said the infant death rate was the highest in the state, or three times as high as any other in the state, and urged that immediate attention be given to improve the situation. He blamed poor sanitation conditions in all sections of the county responsible for the situation.

K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales of the tobacco market, told of the value of boosting to the market and what it had achieved during his eleven years of service as supervisor. He told of the attempt of his department to sell the market to Greenville people and then to the world. Courteous treatment of growers who sell here has been as largely responsible for the phenomenal growth of the market, Mr. Cobb declared, as the high prices the market has paid.

Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids, who is holding Superior court here, said down in his section everybody thought cotton was king, but since listening in on the talks, he was convinced that tobacco must be the monarch.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "America" directed by W. W. Lee and blessing by F. C. Harding. R. C. Deal, toastmaster, explained it was not an ordinary booster meeting, but one designed to show how much better the community is than it used to be and how great and glorious the future is destined to be.

Preceding the speaking the guests were treated to a delightful spread of Brunswick stew, barbecue, chicken and accessories and some of the boys ate so heartily it was difficult to understand how they hope to be present when the market actually opens.

SEARCH FOR OUTLAW IN DANVILLE SECTION. Danville, N. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—It was learned on reliable authority today that private detectives have come here to search for Ralph Davis, North Carolina outlaw and alleged slayer of Sheriff Godfrey Kimball near Statesville, N. C., last Friday.

Bloodhounds from Statesville followed blind trails yesterday in Caswell County, North Carolina, near the Virginia line. Two suspects were detained but were later released.

The World of Stamps

By QUINTON JAMES. France has joined Canada in paying postage tribute to the sixteenth century French explorer, Jacques Cartier, who started out 400 years ago across the Atlantic and was the first white man to sail up the St. Lawrence River.

The stamp is an oblong printed in blue and bears a large drawing of Cartier's head against a background of the Atlantic Ocean containing two sailing ships of the type in which Columbus crossed to America. It has a face value of 1.50 francs, and also bears the dates 1534 and 1934.

Panama Anniversary. Six stamps marketing the silver anniversary of the National Institute of Panama have just been issued by that Central American republic.

The set ranges in value from 1 to 15 centimos. Four of the series have portraits of Panama presidents. Obaidia on the 1-centesimo green, Morales on the 2-centesimo carmine, Padi on the 12-centesimo yellow green and Arosemena on the 15-centesimo dark blue. The 5-centesimo dark blue bears this quotation from Emerson: "Only those who build on ideas build for eternity." The 10-centesimo brown pictures the National Institute building.

In addition each has the dates 1909 and 1934 as well as the phrase, "Bodas de plata," which, translated, reads: "Silver anniversary."

Athletic Stamp. In connection with the golden jubilee of the Gaelic Athletic Association, the Irish Free States has printed a 2-pence green stamp to remain on sale until the end of the year. It shows an Irish hurler. Hurling the nation game, is a variety of hockey.

The stamp was designed by R. J. King of Dublin. At the bottom in Irish characters are those words: "Gaelic Athletic Association."

From Over the World. The first-day sale date for Uncle Sam's first communication stamp, a 16-cent airmail, to care for the regular 6-cent air post rate as well as the 10-cent special delivery fee, has been set for August 30 at Chicago.

Peru is making plans to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the founding of the city of Lima by a special set, to be ready early next year.

The new Austrian issue of 18 varieties, scheduled to appear this month, will be for regular postage and will supplant the present set of the artistic designs by the painter, Georg Jung of Salzburg, depict the various peoples of Austria, including bridal couples of the Tyrol Mountains and of Vorarlberg. Eight picture girls from different sections of the country.

Two new surcharges have appeared. Panama has overprinted its 20-centesimo special delivery for use on air mail, while France has a new overprint for military use. It is on the 50-centime rose red of the recent peace and olive branch issue. It bears the letters "F. M." in black.

'Chiseling' Wheat Farmer Wins. By HARRY MONTGOMERY. Tyrone, Okla.—(AP)—R. B. Duckett, an Oklahoma Panhandle farmer who would give up, a developed a type of "chiseling" on the drought which may become popular in dry-farming areas of the United States.

The inventor used it last year to beat the worst dry spell in the weather history of the former "no man's land."

Success of this method is attested by an average yield of 24 bushels of wheat to the acre while his neighbors on the sides have harvested no more than three or four bushels, and a good many didn't harvest at all.

Dr. Duckett used his "chised," which is nothing more than a narrow strip of steel to scratch the soil down through a hadd pan—on 250 acres. The first sixty acres he harvested yielded 28 bushels to the acre. From 169 acres which was not blowing and on which the device has not used, the yield was three bushels an acre. His brother, John G. Duckett, used the "chisels" on ninety acres and harvested 26 bushels an acre.

"We didn't get more than seven or eight inches of rain during the wheat season," Duckett said, "but all of it was saved, and it carried out wheat through, while crops on land that was not chiseled burned up."

"If the ground is chiseled deep enough, every drop of rain will soak in, making little whirlpools, it goes down as far as."

Top Soil Drift Stopped. The chisel can be used before or after any type of planting. Some of the finest millet and came I ever saw was grown on land furrowed with this instrument last year.

"The process pitches flakes of the hard pan up on the surface, mixing it with the top soil to stop blowing, and at the same time leaves furrows to catch water."

Duckett runs his furrows about 40 inches apart and from ten to sixteen inches. The cost is about the same as listing, but land thus treated is much less expensive to prepare for wheat planting because there are no ridges to tear down. The furrows can be run over after wheat is up with little damage.

Not Patented. Duckett's "chisel" is a strip of steel sixteen inches long, about three inches wide (or wide enough to cover the lister beam to which it is attached) and three-quarters of an inch thick. It is served to fit a lister beam from which the moleboard and frog have been removed.

The end of the chisel which penetrates the ground must be sharpened but not pointed. It protrudes about three inches below the point of the lister beam and is held in place by four bolt—two through either side about six inches apart.

"Any blacksmith can make one for $3 or $4," Duckett said. "The idea is not patented. I am willing for farmers to have the benefit."

The experiment has attracted wide attention. "We have had visitors from every where wanting to see it," Duckett said. "One man drove all the way from North Carolina."

Cables Of Hollow Copper To Carry Power From Project. By HOWARD W. BLACKESLEE (Associated Press Science Editor). New York.—(AP)—To transmit the giant electric power from Boulder Dam, the Tennessee valley and other projected waterpower sites, the copper industry has developed a new type of cable, a hollow copper tube.

The hollow cable makes use of the "skin effect" in transmission, the fact that, an alternating current travels to some extent on the outside surface. The greater the diameter, the larger the skin surface.

The present and future American power sites offer voltages which would require excessively heavy cables if made of solid copper. The hollow copper cable reduces weight and expense. It increases the diameter without adding excessive weight.

Reduces Corona Loss. One effect of this enlarged outer surface is reduction of corona loss. This is the escape of electricity into the air, which can be seen during darkness as a blue glow. It is light given off by molecules of the air as the electrical energy breaks them down.

The hollow and semi-hollow cables have reduced corona loss to a minimum. When a cable is properly designed the corona loss is small compared with loss due to heating of Adjustment Necessary. To those who may charge the administration with inconsistency in its position of now trying to keep prices down, whereas before it has crusaded for a higher price level, an answer has been prepared.

The big objective of AAA, it is pointed out, has been to raise the price of basic raw materials without hiking unduly the cost of the finished product.

The early stages of the depression threw the two sets of figures sadly out of balance. For example, the price the farmer received for his wheat fell much more than the cost of flour; hides depreciated in value more than shoes, and cotton more than shirts and overalls.

This discrepancy in price relationships threw everything out of kilter. The purchasing power of large sections of the country was reduced. Barriers to the profitable exchange of goods were created.

the conductor as the electricity passes through it. Several types of cables have been made by large companies and tested in the Harris J. Ryan laboratories at Stanford University. In addition to copper, the laboratories report that an aluminum cable has been tried and found to do very well for high voltage transmission.

How Cable Tried. One of the interesting new types of lightweight copper conductors in the Stanford tests is a hollow cable made by the Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corporation. It is a hollow copper tube, covered with twisted strands of wire in several layers, the outermost strand is solid copper wire. The other strands are small, hollow tubes, made by bending thin strips of copper into tubular cross-sections. This method of building up the cables allow of great flexibility of design.

Other sites where hollow cables are expected to be useful are the St. Lawrence waterway development, the Grand Coulee in Washington and the Casper-Alcova project in Wyoming.

A Washington Day Book

By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The word "adjustment" in the agricultural adjustment administration's title is destined to take on a new meaning in the coming months.

Heretofore, AAA has been almost entirely associated in the public mind as a governmental agency set up primarily for the benefit of the farmer. "Farmer-protection" has been an oft-repeated phrase among "new dealers" as they have stressed the importance of a higher price level for agricultural products.

"Consumer-protection"—also provided for in the act which created AAA—has come in for so much attention.

The possibility of soaring food prices as a consequence of the drought, however, has reversed things. AAA officials are now busy re-reading the law to see what powers they have to prevent gouging of the public. "Summary action" against profiteers has been promised.

Adjustment Necessary. To those who may charge the administration with inconsistency in its position of now trying to keep prices down, whereas before it has crusaded for a higher price level, an answer has been prepared.

FIELD DAY TO FEATURE GAME ON WEDNESDAY

Wednesday will be just another day to people who don't appreciate thrills, chills and sore tonils. But then it will be a gala day to lovers of real sports, for it will be Field Day at the local baseball park.

Many stunts will be participated in, among which will be hitting the "bull's eye" on a barrel placed at second base. Other events will be base-running and perhaps a song rendered by Manager "Tick Poole."

The member of both teams will be awarded various prizes for their prowess, the one obtaining the most hits, the most runs scored, the longest extra base hits, etc., etc. It is assumed that all ardent baseball fans who attend the Field Day festivities Wednesday afternoon will probably suffer from sunburned tonils and stiff necks, after following the long hits which will soar through the ozone during the game.

Kinston, present league leaders, will be our opponents and what a game it promises to be. The time will be 3:30 p. m.; the place, at Third Street ball park.

Much interest is being manifested in our ball club and each day shows an increase in supporting spirit. Greenville Bugs have secured for themselves the second from top of the league standing ladder and with a little support from our local fellows will make it comparatively easy for them to maintain this position. Of course, this position will assure Greenville fans of a share in the post-season series. So be out at every game, especially the Field Day activities and the game with Kinston.

Various merchants in Greenville have graciously offered prizes to be given to the teams and our rivals will share the same as our own boys.

If it is baseball you like, be sure to be there, and be there early enough that you may enjoy the whole show. Admission will be the same as usual, and the only cost to you will be the lotions you will have to buy to mend your injured tonils and quieten your nerves. Hot dogs, what a game, what fun!

Well, fellows, be seeing you at the ball park Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 p. m. Remember, it's Field Day, and we are playing Kinston for the last time this season; that is, until the post-season series.

LEAGUE OFF ON LAST STRETCH

The Coastal Plain League's stretch finish promises to be a thriller. The circuit today enters the final week of the regular campaign, and only one game separates Kinston's league leaders from Ayden's third-place club. In between—half a game behind Kinston, and half a game ahead of Ayden—is Greenville.

Greenville and Kinston meet today and tomorrow in a series which will have an unusually big bearing on the final outcome. Under league rules, the club finishing in first and second places will meet in the post-season championship series.

Aside from the Kinston-Greenville series, to be played today and tomorrow, there are two games sending first division clubs against each other. Greenville will play at Ayden on Thursday and Ayden will play at Kinston on Friday.

Greenville and Kinston meet today at Kinston. Ayden will play Tarboro at Ayden and New Bern will play at Snow Hill.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Stocks took a turn for the better today, and while there was no pronounced buying, rush recoveries of one to two or more points were scattered throughout the list and the activity was ahead of yesterday's stagnation.

Rails and metals led the reversal and most other groups followed more or less cautiously.

Rubel office, reaching it just as Lillenthal opened the door. He rammed the muzzle of the gun in Lillenthal's back.

An employee of the ice company reached for the telephone on the counter. The robber grasped it and yanked it off the wire.

Returning to Lillenthal he reached into his armed holster and disarmed the guard. The robber then ordered Lillenthal to march out.

Meanwhile the rest of the robber band had surrounded the truck, training machine guns on it. Four men pushed into the truck, shoving Allen ahead of them. Then the robbers began transferring the bags to their own car. The transfer took 3 minutes, the robbers working speedily. They found the money bags which contained coin and currency so heavy that they left one containing $29,000.

The robbers leaped into their cars and roared away. The truck pursued by the bandits drove the cars at such a mad pace that about a mile from the scene of the robbery they had vanished.

HOLD INQUEST TODAY IN MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Gastonia, N. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Sheriff Clyde Robinson said today that no progress had been made in solving the apartment murder of Dick McGee, 25, of Lincoln, whose body was found last Saturday morning in his blood-drenched automobile on a lonely road near Cherryville. The sheriff said he was still without clues.

Meanwhile Coroner George Riddle has announced an inquest for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Cherryville city hall. Among witnesses to be heard are Cal Rudisill, who found the body; Bud Groins, who lives near the scene of the death car, and Carl Werber, negro tenant farmer, who told officers of hearing two shots about nine o'clock last Friday night seemingly near the spot where the body was discovered.
