Tobacco Market Hit New High Price Yesterday

AVERAGE WAS $28.74 PER HUNDRED LBS.

Over Million Pounds Sold Yesterday; Price Has Increased Each Day Since Opening

Increased prices were the order of the day on the Greenville Tobacco market yesterday with the day's average price reaching a new high level for the three days old season. Official figures on yesterday's sales revealed 1,056,798 pounds sold for $303,712.73, averaging $28.74 per hundred pounds.

All sales were completed yesterday and the market got off to a new start this morning with lighter sales and indications that the sell out would be completed around the dinner hour.

Complete satisfaction among the growers continued to prevail as the prices paid especially for the lower grades continued to range from two and half to three times as high as for the same grades last season.

While there has been a scattering of the better grades on the market the offerings have consisted mainly of first curings and common tips and observers express an opinion that the market will show even higher averages just as soon as some of this inferior quality is disposed of and the general average quality of the sales is better.

So far the offerings have been marketed in good condition and there has been a minimum of damaged tobacco offered and growers are being urged to be careful in their grading and to keep their tobacco dry and as free of strings as possible. With the market high especially on the lower types the growers are being urged to grad and market these types of tobacco now.

Prices continued to hold good on today's sales with indications that today's average price might surpass that of yesterday.

The Turlington Act is North Carolina's stringent prohibition law.

Mr. Burgess said in his letter that he had discovered a number of indications in recent months of plans to weaken the dry laws of the state. ## DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

TEST YOUR HEADLIGHTS

Safety in night driving demands good headlights. This means they must be strong enough but not glaring, and they must be properly focused. The vibration of your car easily changes the tilt and focal adjustment of your lights and may loosen the lamps. Test your lights frequently. Turn them on at night and then walk down the road 50 or 75 feet. Turn around and look at your lights, then ask yourself, frankly, how you would like to meet them on the highway.

ROTARY HEAD CLUB GUEST LAST NIGHT

District Governor Tom Sykes, of High Point Paid Official Visit to Local Club.

Tom Sykes, District Governor of the Rotary Club of this area, addressed the local Rotary Club last night at the club building. In his usually inimitable manner he fashioned a speech of profound thought interspersed with good wit and all seasoned with enthusiasms about his organization.

Opening his remarks with a compliment to the "unique" Greenville club he proceeded to say that he wondered at times if there is anything new as he looks at the "ancient" members like Secretary Claude Gaskins.

"The old say there is no more to learn; no more thrill. But we Rotarians cannot but feel that we have got something to share with every fellow up and down the road. If you do not feel the importance of Rotary go look into the mirror. Say, you are just one of 152,000 in 37,000 clubs in two nations. If that is not enough do it again. It is no commonplace thing to be a Rotarian today."

"Twelve years ago Rotary was the govt of the 'cocksurest' group of philosophers who had a lot of fun at Rotary's expense. It is true. Mencken would have had nothing to write about it if it had not been for Rotary who thought they were nothing but a good bunch of back slapping fellows on the road to nowhere."

"But Rotary is today stronger and doing greater service than ever before in its history. Right in the face of the recent depression. Made great gains in the worst years. Mencken did not know this for he did not know what fellowship was. They thought we were only a lot of amateurish good fellows mouthing platitudes. Shaw now admits that he is ignorant. We knew it all the time he was talking so loud. We get help and inspiration from our being together."

In regards to the world situation Mr. Sykes said that the old world did not need economic reconstruction so much as a new controlling spirit. He is of the opinion that unless we are men who put service before self with moral fiber that keeps men from trampling others heedlessly underfoot, we have no pleasant prospect.

"We must come back again to the old American spirit of neighborliness. In time of sickness neighbors used to visit. Don't now. Have let many things slip. Rotary comes nearer than any thing else to recreating the old fashioned tradition of American neighborliness."

"There have been many organizations born before ours on a basis of mutual service and fellowship. But we have added to this by meeting and leaving outside the meetings things that would be liable to prevent fellowship in the meeting."

The speaker related how service came into the Rotary creed via an old doctor, a dead horse, orphans, a gift of a live horse to serve the orphans. Rotary's first five objectives were to do with service to club members, and community. Following the World War which left a world less safe for Democracy, Rotary saw the issue and added a sixth objective in its creed: to promote good fellowship between international business men in their contacts.

There is a role for Rotary and its mission in the face of rising dictatorialisms and rattling words in Europe. "We can save America from taking over dictatorship and come to say 'Hail Johnson Hail Smith or Hail Roosevelt. We Americans have to watch out for what we hurrhah."

"Rotary has just touched the fringe of prosperity. We have got to bring in new blood. But we must be careful about the kind of new blood. A man is not an asset until he is in a state of mind to serve his community. Why do we tolerate kickers. They do nothing but upset things."

"Rotary goes on because it meets the needs of men. You come from your work all blue and in ten minutes with the fellows and one is all reinvigorated with rest for living."

"Spirit of Rotary has become a power that will influence the whole world if we push it," he said in conclusion. "With relatively few dollars Rotary, already contributing to international feeling more than thousands of dollars have succeeded in doing by other means."

Beside Mrs. Thomas Sykes last night Mrs. Howard J. McGinnis, Mrs. Leon Powell, David J. Whitchard, and Edwin Wilkerson enjoyed the hospitality of the club. Miss Rebecca Scoville acted as club pianist for the evening.

Howard McGinnis was acting chairman of the meeting in the absence of both president and vice president of the club.

UNION HEADS TO MEET WITH TEXTILE MEN

Gorman Says Only "Definite Concessions" Can Avert Impending Strike

Washington, Aug. 28—(AP)—The strike committee of the United Textile Workers today accepted the invitation of the National Labor Relations Board to confer with manufacturers on Thursday but reiterated that a general walkout in the industry can be averted only by "definite concessions."

Chairman Lloyd Garrison has asked us to see him and meet in his office, Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee told newspaper men. "If he chooses to ask others to meet him at the same time that cannot affect our attitude toward his invitation. If responsible and duly authorized spokesmen of the industry decide to make the strike unnecessary by agreeing to negotiations immediately and to a swift conclusion on the basis of our demands meeting them measurably then we would accept by not doing what it would be no longer necessary to do."

Meanwhile an answer to Garrison's request for the conference was awaited from George A. Sloan head of the Cotton Textile Institute. Garrison yesterday asked Sloan to organize representative manufacturers to meet with the union leaders.

"We have said at all times," Gorman said, "that we shall be drawn into no more fruitless conversations and we stand by that decision. Remember we are under specific mandate of instructed delegates of the conventions in which the workers spoke their choice. We cannot change what the convention laid down and we would not if we could but we shall accept Chairman Garrison's invitation, partly out of the very real respect we have for him and partly because we never refuse to meet any sincere person to discuss our problems."

LEGION HEAD CALLS FOR WAR ON COMMUNISM

Daniels Says Undercurrent Against Government at Work in This State

Greensboro, Aug. 28—(AP)—Retiring State Commander Tom C. Daniels of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion in his annual report before the legion convention at the National Theatre this morning, made a heated attack upon communists activities and called upon every legion post in the state engage actively in the task of exploding the theories of that type of propagandists.

Commander Daniels declared it was the outstanding primary duty of every legion post to wage war to the death on communism which he said was being promoted quietly but intensively under the name of the Civil Liberty Union. He said the primary objective of this communists at the moment is to break down the national recovery act and to that end they are endeavoring to worm their way into the CCC camps and the ranks of the CWA and other federal workers. Communist groups, Daniels continued, are working within the state school system and are using other effective methods of circulating their propaganda.

St. Paul—(AP)—Minnesota sportsmen are thanking Mother Nature for this year's duck storms.

For years duck hunters have blamed the gradual lowering of the state's 10,000 lakes to the drainage ditch "spree" which the state inaugurated about 20 years ago.

Recurring droughts of recent years have circumvented the need for drainage ditches. Whereas years ago, vast areas of rich low ground were under water, now most of the sloughs have dried up.

This destroyed valuable nesting grounds for ducks, and cut in so heavily on duck breeding facilities that clouds of fowl were conspicuously absent during shooting seasons.

Now sportsmen believe that a return of normal precipitation combined with the filling of many drainage ditches with top soil carried from cultivated fields, will restore the sloughs and gradually solve Minnesota's duck supply problem.

TWO TRAINMEN DIE IN WRECK

Seven Cars of 22 Car Freight Plunge Into Washed Out Embankment

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 28—(AP)—Two trainmen were killed and another was seriously injured when seven cars of a 22 car Southern freight ran into a washed out two miles south of Piedmont early today.

The dead are Elvin Nece, of Columbia, white fireman; and Henry Parks, Greenville, negro brakeman. R. C. Carter, engineer of Greenwood, was taken to the hospital with a broken leg and other injuries but hospital attaches said it was believed his hurts were not critical.

Conductor G. M. Lee, of Columbia, identified the two men. Lee was uninjured.

The wreck occurred when the train enroute to Columbia from Greenville ran into a washed out fill about 3:50 a. m. Heavy rains in this section during the night are credited with having weakened the embankment which bordered a small creek.

TIGER ISLAND A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

SYNOPSIS: Harvey Bowers, big game hunter, has volunteered to take Angus McLeod's wild animals to Singapore for him. McLeod has fallen ill of appendicitis and been put ashore. Bowers has as assistant Ivy Green, animal trainer from a stranded circus; both Bowers and Ivy, the S. S. Boldero's radio operator, think Ivy extraordinarily attractive. Bowers has placed his hands between Ivy and the rest of the ship to protect her from the crew. And to complicate matters Wong Bo, captain, plans to swindle the Boldero to get the insurance.

Chapter 12 DANGEROUS PLANS

BOWERS laid himself down and wondered if the girl was already asleep. It seemed to him a matter of moment: one simply had to end out. So he lay upon his back and "rained upward at the star, and remarked in a cool and casual voice: "Now I wonder if that Miss Green has gone to sleep."

"If you really want to know," said Ivy, "she hasn't. And if people will talk, she is not apt to."

"The reason I wanted to know," said Bowers, "is because I have an apology to make. I have an electric torch for you, and I forgot to give it to you: it is mighty handy on a dark night. Shall I bring it to you now?"

"Give it to me tomorrow," she said. "And if I should need one tonight I'll stink out for it, and thank you for thinking of so many things to make me comfortable. My mattress isn't nearly as thin and hard as you said it was."

"Dinner was fun, wasn't it?" said Bowers. "I get a great kick out of Wong Bo. What a lot he knows, and how cool he keeps!"

"Yes," said Ivy. "And what good food he serves at his table!"

"Did you notice the cabin boy who waited on us?" asked Bowers.

"He has a cute face," said she, "but I especially noticed his filthy silk brocade. I wanted it."

"Then you didn't notice what I noticed," said Bowers, "and maybe I didn't notice it; but if someone came along and wanted to bet a hundred dollars that he wasn't a cabin boy but a cabin girl, I wouldn't take the bet. Ever notice how many young Chinamen might be the one thing or the other?"

Ivy had noticed that. And who that has lived in the Orient hasn't? Bowers changed the subject.

"Did you see the feedin' memorandum?" he asked.

"No," she said, "you didn't; but I suppose it is the usual thing. Three o'clock for everything except the birds. Their feed-lins have to be filled all the time."

"Don't the tigers get any breakfast?" he asked.

"A dozen raw eggs apiece," said she, "would be good for their coats; but eggs come apt, and I doubt if they are on McLeod's menu."

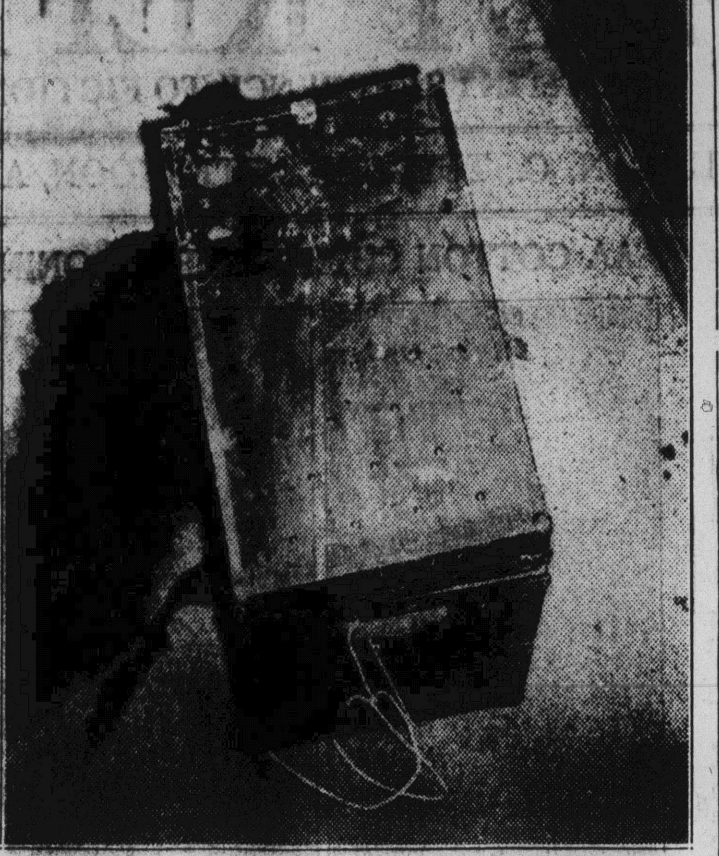

"How about the snakes and those things that look like overgrown lizards?"

"Travel upsets those lizards of things," said Ivy. "They probably wouldn't eat anything if we offered it to them. Most of the snakes and lizards are good for months without eating."

"I haven't had time," said Bowers, "to give the collection the once-over. Are there any poisonous snakes?"

"No," she said. "There was apparently a very big king cobra, but he was so angry at being caught and locked up, that he just simply died of it."

Washington — Word is being passed around on the inside to keep an eye on a frail-looking nervous and earnest senator from the Pacific coast when the Nye committee opens it big munitions show on capitol hill next month.

Washington Daybook

Washington — Word is being passed around on the inside to keep an eye on a frail-looking nervous and earnest senator from the Pacific coast when the Nye committee opens it big munitions show on capitol hill next month.

His name is Homer Truett Bone of Washington state, elected to the Roosevelt landslide of 1932, and one of the group of seven senators authorized by the last congress to inquire into the American munitions industry.

Senator Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the investigating committee, already has announced a plan of attack, covering a dozen or so fronts ranging from how large a part of the American tax dollar reaches the makers of munitions to possible connections between American and European manufacturers of implements of war.

Bone, however, plans to concentrate on one phase.

For Government Operation He is a staunch advocate of government operation of all munitions and war materials manufacturing plants.

Although he has been a member of only one congress, already he has made a stab in this direction. When the Vinson big navy bill was before the senate in the last session, he fought for inclusion in the measure an amendment providing that all ships and naval airplanes be built in government yards and factories.

He was not wholly successful, but the bill as finally approved by the President provided that ship contracts would go alternately to government and private shipyards, and that private bidders could not make more than 10 per cent profit on contracts of $10,000 or more.

It was the first major step in years to extract some of the profits out of the building or armaments by private manufacturers.

More Economic, Too With this as a wedge, the Washington senator is ready to push for further advantage in the coming inquiry. He will insist that the government can construct its own naval vessels and planes far more economically than private yards and he is armed with figures he says will prove it.

He is more skeptical than some of his colleagues on the committee of diplomatic procedure "to take the profit out of war."

"Government operation of war materials plants, including powder and shell factories, airplane factories and shipyards," he says, "is the way to remove the profit motive for war and at the same time eliminate the lobbies for powerful naval and military armaments."

School Attendance Of 31,000,000 Seen In Fall

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE Washington — (AP)—The nation's educational system, still staggering from the blows of the depression, is getting ready to care for about one-fourth of the country's population this fall.

With attendances augmented by thousands who in normal times would find compensatory occupations, it is estimated that the enrollment will reach a record-breaking grand total of more than 31,000,000 students, some 2,000,000 in private schools and 3,000,000 in private institutions. The increase over last year's attendance is figured to be between 300,000 and 400,000.

Government education officials say the brunt of the burden imposed by increased enrollment will be borne by the high schools, which already are overcrowded and handicapped by drastic curtailment of facilities. Moreover, the drought and continued pressure of adverse economic conditions are expected to make 1934-35 the worst year for the schools in some sections of the country.

Sundown Stories

They All Remain By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"But why," one of the farmers asked, "do we find all our animals sound asleep? You must have put a magic spell over them. It can't be that they've merely eaten so much. They eat well at home, but they never all went to sleep, and stayed asleep, at the very same time."

"They've probably never eaten at home as they have here," answered weary Willy Nilly.

"When, oh, when," he sighed to himself, "will I ever get the time to attend to my sticking-out, pointed ears and all the other things I have to do?"

"Do you mean to say we don't feed our animals well enough?" asked another farmer.

"Maybe you do," said Willy Nilly, "but here they've eaten more than enough!"

"You're not very polite, to say the least," spoke up another farmer. "My manners completely gave out," sighed Willy Nilly, "along about the time that your animals took to fighting with my friends here for their special food that had been put aside for an emergency. I like visitors and I like to entertain but when my garden is ripped up, my place put in such disorder, it's enough to try even my patience."

The farmers looked around and they saw that their animals had indeed upset Puddle Muddle. They decided it would be best not to say another word, but to take their ducks and pigs and hens and chickens and roosters and dogs along with them.

It might be, they thought, that Willy Nilly would ask them for something for the damage that had been done. But they couldn't get their animals to budge!

DEPOT AT WINDSOR LOOTED BY ROBBERS INSTANTLY KILLED IN COLLISION OF AUTOS

Windsor, Aug. 28.—Several cartons and boxes of snuff and a quantity of cigarettes and plug and smoking tobacco were stolen from the Carolina Southern depot here on Sunday night. Supt. C. H. Pruden went down to the depot which is at the foot of Queen street on the Cashe river, about 8:30 o'clock on Sunday night, and made the discovery. The Enfield bloodhounds were summoned. They took up the trail and followed it to a house in the colored section of Windsor known as Ghent. The man of the house was taken into custody but nobody believes him to be guilty.

It is believed the theft occurred during a heavy rainfall here early Sunday night. A check-up of the freight and express on Monday morning by the agent, O. Hale, revealed several hundred dollars worth of goods missing. Every possible clue is being followed.

Mr. Yoder lives near Newton but works at a hosiery mill at High Point and was on his way to High Point. He was not seriously hurt and went to a Statesville hospital for treatment. Later he was brought to Salisbury and placed under bond for a coroner's inquest Wednesday.

Mr. Miller was a Spanish-American War veteran and for years was a street car conductor in Salisbury. Lately he has conducted a filling station at Millford Hills. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Bill Bame of Winston-Salem and Mrs. J. E. Becker of Salisbury.

Let's crack this subject of car buying WIDE OPEN

again we urge you DON'T BUY ANY CAR TOO HURRIEDLY

You experienced car buyers know how well it pays to look around, drive several makes of cars and compare before you sign an order.

That's why Hudson and Terraplane dealers say to you: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." We want you to be sure you're right, because then you're sure to be satisfied.

We will gladly give you facts about Hudson and Terraplane. Performance? We can show you the longest list of official AAA records held by any cars. Then you drive and judge for yourself. Ruggedness? Economy? Long life? You can see sworn affidavits of owners, and talk to as many as you like. Get facts like these, then get them about other cars—if you can.

DOUG AND MARY ON ANOTHER EXCURSION

Hollywood, Aug. 27 — (AP)—Douglas Fairbanks and his estranged wife Mary Pickford went motoring to the actor's Rancho Zorro near San Diego today. They spent the morning in the ranch's romantic atmosphere, looking at the plantings, the horses and cattle. The couple used to ride together here often. They did not discuss the progress of Fairbanks' supposed intermittent wooing of the star.

Hollywood—(AP)—Hollywood, part of cosmopolitan Los Angeles, didn't hear about one of the town's most colorful fiestas the other night.

In fact, few in Los Angeles proper knew that the city's Japanese colony was unfurling before the eyes of the spectator oriental pageantry that might have caused envy in Hollywood where they think they know about such things.

Perhaps the Japanese didn't think anyone would be interested, or perhaps they wanted to keep their spectacular presentation politely to themselves. At any rate, they foregathered without ballyhoo or public announcement, and we are therefore indebted to a fortunate eye witness for the report that Charles Chaplin, Hollywood's silent star, was Hollywood's sole representative at the festivities.

More than that, Chaplin made a speech, which is something he seldom does in Hollywood. He addressed the huge throng, gathered in a blocked-off street of the Japanese section, over the loud speaker, his words not being broadcast further, however. He talked about his admiration for the Japanese, his love of and interest in their culture and art, and his delight at being present.

Hundreds of Japanese children, in colorful, gorgeous kimonos, danced traditional dances to native music, while Chaplin watched fascinated. He must have been impressed, too, by the politeness of the oriental autograph seekers. As he made his way to the speakers' platform, he was besieged—but gently, obsequiously, most genteelly—by hundreds of youths with pencils and paper or books to be signed.

Chaplin signed his name to many of them, smiling and could have kept on all night except that officials rescued him and piloted him to the microphone. Even then, the Japanese fans fell back, smiling politely and did not press him further.

If he were present at recent film previews at Hollywood theaters where over enthusiastic fans swarmed around Joan Crawford, Constance Bennett and Gloria Swanson, fairly tearing at them as they passed, Chaplin must have enjoyed the contrast.

Incidentally, the comedian gave one of the little slant-eyed dancers a moment to remember all her life. He singled her out from the line of kimonos and took her to the platform with him.

The pretty child was awed into a speechless state that must have delighted the soul of the one film star who persists in making silent films!

Russell Bros. Circus Coming.

The program of Russell Bros. Three Ring Circus, like that of some other big circuses, has many foreign acts, many of them of international renown.

It is generally conceded that in the class of acts done by foreigners they are extraordinarily clean, perfect and well dressed. They seem to insist on absolute perfection in their work more than the Americans. However, there are several American performers with the Russell Circus who dispute this claim of superiority on the part of the foreigners.

The Russell Circus has representatives from Russia, France, Austria, Germany, England and Ireland, but it also has a good representation of clever Americans who are headliners in their line. Among these is Dad Whitlark, perhaps the oldest active circus star in the circus field. Born in Ypsilanti, Michigan in 1855, he is now in his 79th year, and yet he does a more wonderful difficult contortion act today than the youth of 19 years. So remarkable is the work of "Dad" as he is familiarly called around the white tops, that "Believe it or not," in his cartoon "Ripley featured him as a hopeless invalid, young Whitlark was forced at the age of ten years to quit school and help his mother keep the family together in Ann Arbor. When 18 years of age, he lived with an uncle on a farm near Lansing. There was a wagon show wintering there and acting upon the advice of his uncle who had noticed the limber antics of the boy, young Whitlark "joined out." Since then he has been constantly before the public, having been with 49 enterprises. However, he had some vacations when he suffered broken ribs, and again in 1909 when he had both ankles broken. Another time he had six boils on the back of his neck and as his act requires him to put both feet on the back of his neck, Dad had another vacation period. Barring accidents "Dad" health is perfect even now, at 79 years of age. He describes his health to steady work, outdoor life and careful eating. At one time he discovered he was becoming unable to handle liquor so he quit it entirely and he did likewise with cigarette when he concluded they were hurting his breath.

"Dad" Whitlark is a remarkable feature with Russell Bros. Three Ring Circus which exhibits in Greenville Monday, Sept. 3rd, and it is safe to say that in this city as in other places where the Russell Circus exhibits he will be given an ovation at the finish of his act.

"Dad" is modest in reference to his arctic performance, but he is proud of the fact that his father was a cousin of Queen Victoria and his mother was a niece of General Lee of Confederate fame.

something out of the Pan-American idea.

"The 'good neighbor' policy of the present administration first was looked upon as just another slogan, but all thinking persons now realize the United States is not indulging in empty words, but is backing up its commitments with action."

Gruening was appointed by the secretary of the interior and, therefore, is not subject to confirmation by the Senate. He can speak his mind freely. And he does. For example:

"The administration really has done a swell job. In only a few months it has continentalized the Monroe Doctrine, scrapped the Platt amendment, pulled the marines out of Haiti, and taken steps to end the financial domination of the smaller Latin-American countries."

Such frankness and enthusiasm might cause the doctor some trouble called upon to pass on his qualifications.

Kinston Rules Favorite For Coastal Plain Title

Kinston and Greenville will meet at Kinston tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, in the opening game of the post-series. The opener was scheduled for today but was postponed on account of rain.

All attendance records are scheduled to be cracked in this series for the down East title.

By J. GASKILL McDANIEL
Bunn Hearn's cocky Kinstonians ruled as heavy favorites today, on the eve of their Coastal Plain pennant series with Greenville.

In fact, if season records and early indications mean anything the grimly determined Greensies will be fighting with their backs to the wall during the entire play-off. The fact that the loop leaders open in their own backyard serves but to increase the odds against Tick Poole's boys and a Greenville series sweep would be little short of an Alger book story come true.

Opening Pitchers
Orlin Rogers, whose only defeat of the season came at the hands of New Bern on July 2, will probably start for Kinston on the mound. If dope runs true to form, his opponent will be Reynolds May, mainstay of the Greensies. Both pitchers are capable and a bitter duel is not unlikely. However, Kinston's left field fence was made to order for the home towners, and a circuit clout or so is apt to spoil May's efforts. Another obstacle in the path of a low score affair is the soft ground in the Kinston outer garden. Even the best of ball chasers resemble flies on tanglefoot, when a line drive heads in their general direction.

For the second game, Cliff Bolger is almost a sure starter for Hearn's outfit. Tick Poole can be depended on to start either Smith or Taylor and from this angle we favor the latter. Many baseball men rate Bolger above the touted Rogers, and as for Taylor, when he's right he can cut corners like a seamstress. Their experience should count for plenty in tight spots.

Physic or Longest can be expected to get the nod as Kinston's third starter, and the aforementioned Smith looks good for the Greenville choice. Poole may see fit to start Lefty Dean, although the youngster is no longer the sensation that he proved to be last summer. His fast ball is just sweet enough to kill, and his curve ball doesn't deserve the name. Dean's case is the real sob story of the approaching series.

Infield Prospects
Ty Wagner, Greenville's slugging catcher, should play superior ball to Big Jim Tatum, the Kinston backstop. There's apt to be plenty of stolen bases racked up against both receivers, however. At first base, Weaver compares favorably with Red Hayworth, but the rest of the Greenville infield is overshadowed by Bunn Hearn's all-star combination. Virgil Weathers is far better than either Woodworth or Huiscamp at second, and Zaiser has considerably more class than Runt Bostic at third. Incidentally, Bostic's mediocre work around the hot corner may make a whale of a difference. Although Lambreth is a smooth working shortstop, Tommy Irwin of Kinston is a better bet than Tick Poole's star.

The Kinston outfield is a formidable one, boasting Sandy Peele in right; Vick in center; and Love or Rogers in left. Vick can hardly be expected to unreach much hitting in the series, but his fielding will probably highlight the defensive play of his team. If Huiscamp holds down second for the Greensies Woodworth is due for an outfield berth. Milton Harrington's fly chasing in centerfield is liable to aid the underdogs, and he is a fair threat with the willow as well. Lefty Dean or Manager Poole will no doubt round out the Greenville gardeners.

"Grudge" Angle
The series has a grudge angle that may knock advance predictions into a cocked hat. It was the Greenville club that exposed Guy Fletcher, Kinston hurler and former member of the Winston-Salem Twins in the Piedmont League. Ruling Fletcher ineligible cost the Kinstonians nine wins in which he had participated and it is significant that Greenville was given four of these games by the decision handed down from league directors. That Fletcher was ineligible according to the loop's three year ban on profession pitchers is beside the point. The fact remains that it almost cost Kinston a chance to participate in the play-off for the pennant, and gave Greenville sufficient margin to finish in the runner-up position. Little love is lost between the two clubs, the bleacherites can at least expect a bitter struggle until the final fadeout.

Today's opener is scheduled to begin at 4:30 o'clock, and all attendance records for the Coastal Plain league are expected to fall by the wayside. Despite the fact that Kinston is highly favored to win handily, Greenville is expected to send a large delegation to the game and baseball being baseball, their excursion may turn out to be a joy ride on the return trip.

New York Cotton

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened quiet unchanged to two higher on steady Liverpool cables offset by further rains in the western belt. Some thought the storm might delay hedging in Southern Texas however, and there was buying here through houses with foreign connections.

December sold up to 13.39 or about four points above yesterday's closing quotations and was holding around 13.28 at the end of the first half hour, when active months showed net gains of one to five points.

Buying became a little more active and the price went up to 13.33 for December and 13.51 for May or about 6 to 11 points net higher.

Prices were within a point or two of this figure at midday. Futures closed steady 8 to 13 higher. Spots steady; middling 13.55.

SNAKE TRAPPED BY TINY SPIDER

A foot-long garter snake entered the cellar of a Baltimore home and sought to make a morsel of a shiny black spider, barely larger than a pinhead. Instead it ran afoul of the spider's web. Locked in a death due for several days, the struggles of the reptile became less violent as the tide of battle was definitely in favor of the minute foe when the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals put an end to it by snipping off the snake's head. ## N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Most financial markets were formless affairs today with dullness paramount and moderate price changes indicating little more current indecision regarding nearby trends. The major city of stocks moved in a narrow groove failing to find sufficient stimulus in the news to give them a substantial push in either direction. While cotton improved grains and other commodities were somewhat hesitant. The list stiffened in late trading. Transfers approximated 370,000 shares.
