Johnson In Verbal Brush With Labor Head

WOLL SCORES NRA LEADER FOR REMARKS

Johnson Charges Strike is in Violation Of Agreement With His Department; Woll Charges Johnson With Airing Prejudices Against Organized Labor

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson's charge that organized labor in calling a strike of textile workers had broken its word to him drew fire today from Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

Said Johnson in a Carnegie Hall address last night to various code authorities:

"The present strike is an absolute violation of any understanding between Thomas S. McMahon, president of the United Textile Workers and myself.

Said Woll:

"Johnson, by his unwarranted utterances and prejudices injected into the situation has made for greater difficulty in closing the existing differences."

Johnson said that this is his first experience with organized labor in the textile industry "was not encouraging."

"If such agreements of organized labor are worth no more than this then that institution is not such a responsible instrumentality as can make contracts on which this country can rely."

Woll, who was among those who heard Johnson speak in a statement issued after the meeting:

"Representing the president as he (Johnson) does, it becomes him as administrator of NRA to manifest his personal feelings and prejudices against labor and on matters of such vital public interest and grave public concern.

"Despite Johnson's attack on organized labor the textile strike movement will go on. I am confident that the textile workers can and will answer Johnson."

J. A. McIVER CLUB SPEAKER

Baptist Minister Tells Kiwanis of His Recent Trip to Foreign Countries

Rev. J. A. McIver, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, who recently returned from a trip to Europe. Last night told members of the Kiwanis club of some of his experiences while abroad.

The minister attended the Baptist World Alliance at Berlin, Germany, and in addition to sitting in on the one week session of the Alliance, he had the opportunity to obtain some first hand information about Adolf Hitler, president of Germany, whose use of force in the revolution several weeks ago caused varied opinion throughout the world.

Mr. McIver said he walked the streets of Berlin in perfect safety and changed his mind considerably concerning Hitler. He said the new ruler of Germany was attempting to restore some of the lost prestige to his country and was succeeding in spite of opposition encountered on every side, especially in the loss of a number of lives and established Hitler as one of the really great leaders of his nation.

He told of the many things of interest in France, Germany, England and Switzerland and referred especially to the Passion Play at Oberammergau which is witnessed by thousands of people from all parts of the world.

He thanked members of the Kiwanis club who helped make the trip possible.

Mr. McIver was in charge of the program and President Dink James presided. Delegates to the District Convention of the Carolinas to be held in Asheville October 10 and 12 were named. They were Dink James, Rev. J. A. McIver and D. C. Moore, Jr. Alternates were Charles Wilker, Jr. (Continued on page three)

MELLON AGAIN FACES INCOME TAX CHARGES

Government Plans to Seek Million Dollars From Former Treasury Secretary

Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The government today planned another effort to collect more than a million dollars from Andrew Mellon.

The bureau of internal revenue arranged to file a petition with the board of tax appeals claiming that the money is due from the former secretary of the treasury and ambassador to Great Britain because of a deficiency in income tax payments.

The assessment for 1921 was made last spring after an unsuccessful attempt to have Mellon indicted for tax evasion.

A Pittsburgh federal grand jury refused to return an indictment.

CIVIL COURT HERE SEPT. 24

County Court to Probably Consider Slot Machine Order Next Tuesday

J. F. Harrington, clerk of Superior court, said this morning another one week term of civil court would convene in this city week after next with Judge R. Hunt Parker, who presided over the term closing yesterday, on the bench.

This will make about the fourth term of court held since the latter part of August and the sittings will continue at frequent intervals until next summer when the usual recess is declared.

Scores of civil cases have been heard during the recent terms but the calendar for the forthcoming term is expected to contain the usual forty or fifty cases.

The bar probably will meet within the next few days to prepare the calendar.

Next Tuesday county court, which was idle the past week because of civil court, will hold forth and the order recently issued by Judge Dink James for the closing of illegal slot machines was expected to get attention.

Judge James ordered the closing of slot machines after the grand jury at a previous term of Superior court recommended that the matter be considered by the lower tribunal. The time limit for the closing of gambling devices was September 12, and officers were instructed to arrest operators and seize all machines found in operation after that date.

It was understood some machines have been seized for "test cases" but no arrests have been reported.

Over $400,000 Paid Out On Leaf Mart Friday

Prices soared into higher ground on the local tobacco market yesterday and the largest amount of money was paid out for any day during the season along with establishment of the highest general average.

The report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales, made public this morning, showed the market in addition to setting a new record from the financial point of view, also sold more tobacco than any other day of the season.

The official report showed 1,412,518 pounds of leaf were disposed of for $404,297.71 at a general average of $28.62 per hundred pounds.

The total amount of money paid out by the market each day for the last week or so has neared the four hundred thousand dollar mark but yesterday was the first time that the figure was exceeded.

Mr. Cobb said better grades registered the highest ground of the season yesterday and that farmers were overjoyed at the upward trend.

Sales were marked by a slight block which the supervisor said would be cleared up in thirty minutes Monday morning.

Yesterday's large sale brought the total season poundage to 17,838,320 for which the farmers have been paid nearly five million dollars.

The Greenville tobacco market has paid out the largest amount of money this season of any other market in the country, it was said. The report of the supervisor showed that over two million dollars was paid out this week, the largest amount for the same period of time in the history of the tobacco industry.

With favorable weather holding sway throughout this part of the state, continued heavy sales were anticipated next week. The movement of the leaf for Monday's sales was already under way today and warehouses probably will be well filled with the golden leaf when auctioneers begin chanting their tune of dollars Monday morning.

M. Stack here this morning.

The two convicted men took the stand again this morning before judgment was passed and each placed the blame on the other for the fatal shooting as they have consistently done since their capture.

Formal notice of appeal was given.

Elmer Waggoner, who was also involved in the case, when arraigned today pleaded guilty to being an accessory before the fact to robbery and was sentenced to serve two to five years at hard labor and to wear stripes.

RUM DEALER BOUND OVER

Monte Barnes, Colored, Held For Hearing in County Court On Tuesday

Monte Barnes, colored, picked up by a member of the highway patrol while allegedly measuring whiskey on the old Stantonsburg road Wednesday morning, will go on trial in county court sometime Tuesday.

Given preliminary hearing in police court this morning, Barnes was bound over to the county tribunal under bond of $300. He was unable to arrange bail and was remanded to jail.

Police said the negro was busy transferring ten gallons of whiskey from a keg to half gallon fruit jars when Lester Jones, lieutenant of the division highway patrol appeared upon the scene.

Barnes was brought to Greenville and turned over to police.

He had an old automobile in his possession at the time of his arrest and this was confiscated by authorities for the school fund, although it appeared ready for the scrap pile instead of for sale.

Late News Flashes

Demands Johnson Resignation. Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—The strike committee of the United Textile Workers today in a statement demanded the resignation of General Hugh S. Johnson, National Recovery administrator.

The strike leaders assailed Johnson for his charge last night that the textile walkout violated an agreement made last June.

Francis Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, asserted that Johnson himself had violated the agreement of June 2 and declared "At least I think he has demonstrated his utter unfitness to hold public office. We demand that he resign."

Gorman accused Johnson of making frequent attacks on organized labor and called his address of last night "a despicable piece of business."

SIXTY GUARD UNITS REMAIN ON JOB TODAY

Officer of Statesville National Guard Unit Stabbed at Disorders Around Cannon Mills at Concord Last Night; Two Hundred Strikers Take Part in Concord Clash; No Change in Extent of Strike

Charlotte, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb directed at the E. M. Holt plant at Burlington today shattered the peace which prevailed on the Carolinas strike front as mills were closed for the week end.

Defying national guardsmen on duty at the plant two unidentified men rode by in an automobile and threw the bomb into the mill yard.

The ensuing explosion broke windows for fifty feet from the mill and residents described it as like an earthquake. No one was injured.

Troops and special officers at the mill were inside. It was at the Holt mill that five strikers were slightly wounded by bayonets as guardsmen drove off pickets during a melee yesterday morning.

Approximately sixty national guards units remained on duty in the two Carolinas regardless of the surface calm.

Today's incident at Burlington forced a break in the link of violence occurring as opposing sides girded themselves for Monday's resumption of operation by mills which are not completely closed by the strike.

Sergeant Charles Clewing of Statesville, attached to a machine gun company was stabbed in the back in a clash between his company and a crowd of 200 strikers in front of the Cannon mills at Concord. He was not seriously hurt.

As the week ended there was no change in the extent of the strike in the Carolinas. No more mills reopened and no more were closed down.

A survey showed 297 mills closed down in the Carolinas and 385 mills operating, some with curtailed forces.

MAN HELD IN GIRL'S DEATH

Luther West Arrested At Lumberton in Death of Miss Edith Holmes, Age 22

Lumberton, Sept. 15.—(AP)—A theory that Edith Holmes, 22, was slain and her body placed on a railroad track to make it clear she died accidentally was advanced today as Luther West, Wishart township farmer, was held on a charge of first degree murder.

Dr. R. K. Baker, who examined the body, which had been mangled almost beyond recognition apparently by a train, testified at an inquest that there was no blood on the body and only a small quantity on the scene.

Officers expressed belief Miss Holmes apparently had been killed and her body dragged on the tracks where it was found yesterday after it had been run over by a Seaboard Airline passenger train.

MISTRIAL IN COERCION CASE

Jury in King vs. State Bank Case Fails to Agree After 6 Hours Deliberation

After deliberating six hours the jury in the two cases of J. F. King vs. State Bank and Trust Co. and J. F. King and wife vs. F. C. Harding, attorney for the bank, failed to agree last night at 10 o'clock and Judge R. Hunt Parker of Roanoke Rapids ordered mistrial.

Members of the jury said they had no nearer an agreement in the case when they quit than they were when they started and were apparently hopelessly deadlocked when Judge Parker called them out and ordered a mistrial.

The cases, begun Thursday afternoon, were heard as one.

They involved a charge of coercion on the part of the plaintiffs in an effort to stall the foreclosure of a $6,000 mortgage which the bank held against King and which was signed by Mrs. King.

Mr. and Mrs. King charged that bank officials coerced Mrs. King into signing the mortgage securing a debt the husband owed the bank.

Bank officials, on the other hand, asserted the transaction was regular and was completed without the use of persuasion on the part of either officials or their attorney.

The case consumed more time than any other heard during the session.

It was received by the jury during the late afternoon following the presentation of considerable evidence by both plaintiffs and defendants.

Clerk of Superior court J. F. Harrington announced this morning that around two dozen cases were disposed of during the one week sitting of court. The majority were compromised, only a few being actually tried.

Immediately after the jury in the King cases reported disagreement Judge Parker adjourned court and left for his home in Roanoke Rapids.

TIGER ISLAND

A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

SYNOPSIS: Harvey Bowers and Ivy Green, cast ashore from the S. S. Boldera after that dingy tramp had been scuttled by its villainous Captain Wong Bo, are exploring Tiger Island for a plane to live. So far they have heard nothing more than a tiger's roar to tell them what happened to the wild animal camp taken there just before the Boldera sank. Bowers finds a cave, and Ivy and Helen, her pet monkey, explore it with him.

Chapter 28 HAVEN

THE floor of the cave was smooth, and slanted a little upward from the mouth. The mouth was no broader, though considerably lower than an average door.

Within, the cave expanded to a width of perhaps fifteen feet and to a height of eight or nine. These proportions obtaining for perhaps twenty feet, offered the house-hunters one large, airy, dry room.

At the farther end the sides and the roof of the cave drew together into a dark and narrow opening which perhaps led to caves and passages beyond, or merely narrowed off to nothing. That would be for future exploration.

They could not have been more elated if they had been given the use of a modern house with running water, electric lights, ice-boxes and door, and the conversion of the tree on the terrace into a flagpole.

Bowers notched his way to the top and removed the whole of it, nut by nut, and frond by frond. He improvised a block, and using strong fish-line for halyards so arranged matters that whenever the time came, he could raise the Stars and Stripes and declare his whereabouts.

He would have liked to raise his flag every morning at sunrise and to lower it when the sun set, but that would have been folly. Roving piratical fishermen still infested the Java Sea.

Their first days were devoted mainly to exploration. They even climbed to the top of the volcano and got themselves half choked with sulphurous fumes. On that day they made the discovery that there were wild pigs on the island, and far off on the upper slopes of the volcano, they saw a little group of goats.

To Bowers, who at times found himself wondering what the tigers were going to live on, the knowledge that there were both pigs and goats to be had was most comforting. If the tigers ever should run out of food, they wouldn't be pleasant neighbors.

The cave itself, both front door and back, was wholly out of their servants. The ledge outside with its one stately palm was the perfect veranda.

If the tigers should run out of food—

By felling a tree here and there as the time offered, there would be an unobstructed view of the lagoon, the surf on the barrier-reef, the ocean beyond and anything that might happen along in the shape of a passing ship.

Water, they thought, would have to be fetched and carried all the way from the river, and that was a nuisance, but it couldn't be helped. In this matter, as events proved, they were mistaken. Their cave, upon more intimate examination by torches made of candle-nuts, after twisting and turning and appearing to lead into the bowels of the earth, led instead to a seepage of water (and if it seeped now, it would flow when the rains came) and beyond that to a practicable opening onto the other side of the valley shoulder.

This last opening, like the first, was inaccessible from the ground without the aid of a ladder. It was at the head of a narrow precipitous gully in which there was an incredible tangle of guavas and wild oranges. Their house had thus a front door and a back, one fine room, "Good enough for anybody," they said, and running water.

To remove their effects from the shore to the cave was a matter of many goings and comings and two days' time.

Early on the morning of the second day, and on their first trip to the cave, they pushed a peahen. Ivy thought that it was one of those which had flown ashore from the Boldera, an extraordinary flight for a peahen, but she could not be sure.

Of the other birds and beasts they neither saw nor heard any sign. It looked as if they were to have less company than Adam and Eve had had in Eden.

reach, but if they ever ate their way through all the things that had come ashore with them, and through all the pigs and the goats, he and Ivy would no longer have the freedom of the island. It would be difficult and dangerous to keep themselves in food.

The fact that his guns had been stolen rankled in his breast. He had loved them. And now he needed them. The lack of an effective weapon might make all the difference between a paradise set in the turquoise seas, and a hell.

But he did not speak of his misgivings to Ivy. If she had any misgivings of her own, she kept them to herself. She loved him with all her heart, and he loved her in the same way.

And Helen, in her own curious way, loved both her mistress and her newly found master. Helen was, in addition, quite the busiest member of the party.

It was she who superintended the removal of each separate piece of luggage, including her own suitcase. She took no chances with her suitcase this time.

She scrambled up the improvised staircase leading to the cave ahead of Bowers, each time he made the trip, and occasionally leaped to the top of the load he was carrying, and nearly overbalanced him. On these occasions she shrieked violently to Ivy, standing helpless below, and spoke to Bowers in sailor language.

But at night Helen was as quiet as her worn-out master and mistress, and for the same reason. The work of carrying the duffie to the foot of the ladder was inconsequential compared with the work of getting it up the ladder.

So that at the end of each day, after supper and a good look about to be sure that no ship was approaching, three exhausted bodies fell into sleep from which nothing short of another eruption by their volcanic neighbor could have aroused them. And when daylight came three refreshed and alert walks rose to confront a new day.

STELLA CRONIN COMMANDS HUGE PACHYDERMS IN ACT

"Age cannot wither nor custom stale her infinite variety"—some ancient bard thus eulogized a lady of his acquaintance, but the phrase might well be applied to that great American institution, the circus. In all the years that it has raised and lowered its "big top" from Maine to California, and from Florida to Oregon, age has not withered nor custom staled its appeal to youngsters of all ages.

Elephants, it is the same today as they did when P. T. Barnum swung around the country with his famous Jumbo, but there is a vast difference today in the way they are presented, for now each and every elephant must be an actor. Not only must they march in the daily street parade, "spot" the heavily loaded baggage wagons on the lot and "act pretty" while on exhibition in the menagerie, but they must do their bit in the elephant displays.

Elephants with the great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus are said to be the best trained in all spangleland. Cheerful Gardner, master trainer of the five huge herds, has accomplished wonders with the big fellows, and no other circus on earth offers a display rivaling that of The Highest Class Circus On Earth this season.

Beautiful and accomplished girl trainers, including Stella Cronin, declared the most efficient of female trainers, will be in command when the huge beasts, 40 in number make their triumphant entry into the three rings, and around the great hippodrome track.

The big show, second largest in the world, with more than 1,400 people, including the 600 men and women star performers, will come to Greenville on Thursday, Sept. 27 for afternoon and night performances.

A two mile long street parade, the most colorful "March" ever presented in the land, will wind its way through the downtown streets show day morning.

For the administration to announce just at the time the congressional campaigns are about to enter the home stretch that more than one million dollars a day is being pumped into the pockets of the farmers of the west is news calculated to make any politician sit up and think.

To date more than 637,500 participating farmers have received almost one-half of the estimated first installment of $133,000,000 to be paid on corn-hog contracts.

Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the republican national committee, already has charged that to his way of thinking the administration was playing politics in this matter; that checks were being withheld until voting time approaches.

Discrepancy in Estimates
Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture immediately retorted that Fletcher's accusation was "contemptible" and that instead of striving for delay for political purposes "we regret the delay because farmers are in need of the money and would be in a better frame of mind if we could get it to them sooner."

AAA officials offer this explanation for the delay in paying the farmers off.

It was a highly technical problem to convince 1,200,000 farmers that their ideas of the number of hogs they raised and the amount of corn they planted over the past three years was wrong.

Hogs caused the most trouble. The bureau of livestock estimates in the agriculture department has its census of the hog population of the country. It was taken by mail carriers who received from farmers a count of their animals.

That count has come to mean money. The farmers told the government how many hogs they had. They contend the figures given the mail carriers were not accurate but merely offhand estimates.

Christopher flew down to the foot of the hill. The men came up and seeing the excited, happy looking animals, and Willy Nilly's face so creased up with smiles that his tiny nose could hardly be seen, were delighted beyond words.

They had had a long wait, but they were going to secure two of the most appealing bear cubs they had ever seen.

MILL OWNERS SHUN ARBITRATION

President Roosevelt's textile inquiry board called operators of cotton mills to Washington in hopes of settling the strike, but abandoned the mediation after the manufacturers refused to arbitrate. Three spokesmen of the operators are shown strolling a Washington street. Left to right: W. D. Anderson of Macon, Ga., president of the American Cotton Manufacturers association; George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, and E. N. Hood, president of the Pequot mill at Salem, Mass. (Associated Press Photo)

THE HIGHWAY TOLL

(Elkin Tribune)

According to figures submitted in the report made by the Motor Vehicle Bureau, 455 lives were sacrificed on North Carolina's magnificent highways during the first seven months of the present year. Drunken, reckless, and hit-and-run drivers are charged with most of this toll, while simple carelessness and crave of speed on the part of the motorists furnish cause for the balance.

The records show that drunken drivers were responsible for 7 deaths; speeders slew 16; recklessness resulted in 17 fatalities and 5 lives were lost in grade-crossing mishaps; 7 children were struck down while at play, 4 of them being the victims of hit-and-run varmints, not yet made to account for their crime.

These fatalities are by no means the only loss. There must be added the injuries that did not prove fatal and the material loss involved, and these present abundant reasons why we should be pulled up with a jerk.

We have this long list of fatalities, injuries, and damage to property because the motorist has not yet grasped the meaning of his responsibilities. He refuses to drink his liquor and remain from under the steering wheel; he does not concern himself with what or who is around the bend or across the brow of the hill; he does not place the proper value on the lives of little children; he is not going anywhere in particular, but he craves speed and is in a powerful hurry to get there.

Until motorists in general desert their present frame of mind, nothing can be done about it unless we provide a driver's license law with teeth—one that will keep his

SCRIMMAGE ON TAP AT STATE

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 15.—Coach Frank Anderson at North Carolina State will bring the second week of grid training in the Wolfpack camp to a close this afternoon with a scrimmage, scheduled to start at 3:30.

Anderson said he would use four full teams playing two full regulation games of 60 minutes. The first and second teams will take the field first. The second two elevens will come on at the half and will play 30 minutes before turning the field over to the regulars to finish their game.

The scrimmage today will end two weeks of offensive training in the Wolfpack camp. Beginning Monday of next week, Anderson will stress defense. The final scrimmage before the opening game with Davidson at Greensboro, Saturday night, September 29, will come on Saturday of next week. There also will be a scrimmage Wednesday afternoon of next week.

A large number of spectators are expected for today's scrimmage. The one last Saturday was witnessed by a crowd estimated at more than 500. Many of the fans came out to see the battle between the two big fullbacks, Ray Rex and Vernice Farrar. These two line crackers will be watched again today as they are working hard for the post and the type of football they are playing is enough to delight the sporting heart of anyone.

Rex is scheduled to work in the No. 1 backfield today along with Red McAdams and Howard Bards, halfbacks, and either Maurice Roy or Lawrence McCulley, quarter. Farrar will be in the opposing backfield.

New York Cotton

COTTON—New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, one higher to one lower with steady Liverpool cables offset by southern selling.

Orders were about evenly divided on the call with some hedging and foreign selling or liquidation absorbed by trade buying.

The demand was limited and the market soon weakened under continuance of the pressure which carried prices off to 12.65 of December and 12.92 for May by the end of the first half hour, or to five points lower on the active positions.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Signs of resistance appeared in today's brief stock market session but most rallying efforts was a bit feeble.

The list was aided by week end shorts covering. Further weakness of a few leaders caused little sentiment.

The close was irregular. Transfers were 330,000 shares.

The news generally was colorless and traders apparently were too timid to back up their opinion with any large scale buying.

The fact that U. S. Steel preferred sank to a new low for the year with loss of around two points and that United States Smelting lost about 3 was sufficient to put a damper on any revival of enthusiasm.

Other new lows for 1934 were recorded by such issues as U. S. Steel Consolidated Gas, Corn Exchange Bank, Western Union and Allied Chemicals.

The stock recovered moderately in the last half hour with the exception of Western Union which was off a point and furnished with a narrow price range.

Battery D, field artillery of New Bern, and headquarters company of the First Battalion Infantry at Oxford were ordered to mobilize and report to Col. R. B. Lewis who is commanding the Gastonia area.

Colonel Lewis was directed to assume command of the Belmont area in cooperation with the local authorities and to make his own distribution of troops.
