STRIKERS RALLY FOR STAND AT BELMONT MILLS

Gorman Threatens Strike Of Every Textile Mill Division

STRIKE HEAD IN ULTIMATUM EARLY TODAY

Says Effort Will be Made at San Francisco to Oust Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Head; Charges Scarcely a Union That Has Not Been Injured by Unjust Rulings of Johnson

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, issued an ultimatum today that if the strike was not settled this week all remaining divisions of the industry would be called out.

At the same time Gorman disclosed plans and resolutions would be adopted by the approaching convention of the American Federation of Labor in San Francisco demanding the resignation of General Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator.

"Neither General Johnson or the state militia," Gorman said at a press conference, "have been able to break the textile strike. If General Johnson is an officer of the NRA at the time the American Federation of Labor convention meets our delegation in that convention will introduce resolutions demanding that he either resign or be discharged and you can take it from me the resolutions will be adopted. I think I know how organized labor feels in general about General Johnson. There is scarcely a union that has not been damaged by his unjust rulings and actions."

EX-HIGH POINT COP HELD FOR HIGH COURT

High Point, Sept. 17.—L. G. Jones, former High Point police officer has been bound over to Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, and Fred Hendrix, former Randolph deputy sheriff, charged similarly as the result of an affray here on August 3, was fined $15 and the costs.

Hendrix, who was beaten into unconsciousness by Jones over an alleged statement regarding Jones' character, was confined to the hospital several days as a result of the altercation which occurred in the downtown section of the city.

JAMES SENT TO COUNTY COURT

Negro Who Drove Car Into Drug Store Held For Hearing Tomorrow Morning

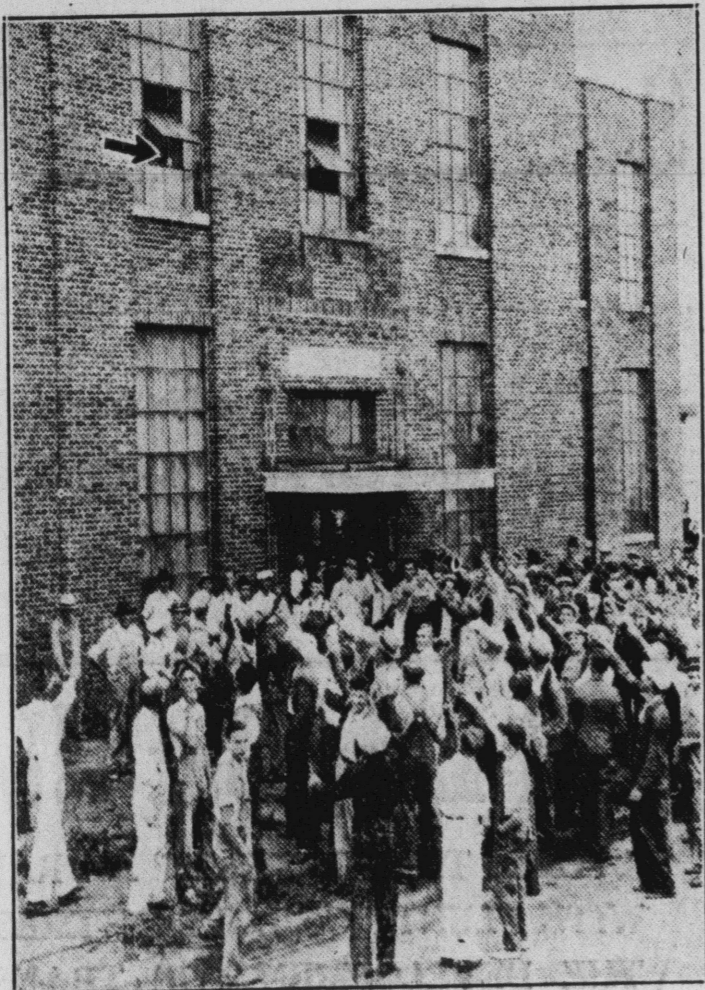

Willie James 17-year old colored youth, who drove his car through the front of C. O. H. Horne's drug store Saturday night a week ago, injuring four persons, was given preliminary hearing in police court this morning on a charge of reckless driving and was bound over to County court under bond of $500.

He was unable to give bond and was remanded to jail to face trial probably tomorrow.

James, driving an automobile belonging to Bryant Harris, colored farmer, and occupied by three or four other colored people, lost his head on Evans street when his car scraped the fender of another car, stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake, causing the car to plunge through plate glass windows after striking the four men on the street.

Jack Tripp, young farmer, was seriously injured and was carried to the hospital suffering from a fractured pelvis and other leg injuries. The three other men in the group on the sidewalk were Dick Bundy, Raleigh Lee, and Jim (Bully) Anderson. They received minor bruises. The loss to the drug store was given as around $600 and was not covered by insurance.

GERMANY IN GREATER MOVE FOR EQUALITY

Government Says Relations With League Cannot be Discussed On Status Now

Geneva, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Germany holds that her relationship with the League of Nations cannot be discussed as long as her equality rights are in any way questioned from certain quarters.

This position was outlined in a recent reply to European powers in which she was said to disagree with the eastern Locarno treaty sponsored by France to insure peace in Eastern Europe.

This prospect was indicated unofficially today as the assembly of the league engaged in formalities expected to culminate in the election of Russia to membership. It was reported the delegation from the Netherlands had been instructed to vote against Russia instead of refraining from the ballot.

The German note pointed out that sponsors of the eastern pact made no note of Berlin's future relations with the League and said "if this omission is to intimate that it is being taken for granted that Germany will return to the League, as a matter of course Germany much prefer to declarations repeatedly made."

The reply then specified the necessity of equality before the question of a return to Geneva is accessible.

COUNTY COURT LEAF PRICES HERE TUESDAY MOVE HIGHER

Slot Machines Expected to Receive Attention Following Re-echoes from the recent court order calling for the closing of all gambling devices in this county are expected to be heard in the regular weekly sitting of County court here tomorrow.

Judge Dink James, who issued the order several days ago, will preside over the court and is expected to call upon officers for a report of activities in connection with the drive to close illegal slot machines and other gambling devices.

The order became effective September 12, although officers were instructed to notify slot machine operators that they must close down or face arrest before the date of expiration.

Officers reported the seizure of a number of machines, for "test" cases and others were expected to be brought into court where the status of the machines will be determined.

In addition to this matter, court is faced by a docket of forty or fifty cases which have been hanging fire the last two weeks because of the one week sitting of civil court here last week that prevented County court from doing business.

It was expected that from one to two days would be required to complete work.

Judge James said he was determined to rid the county of gambling as far as possible following a grand jury recommendation that he take action in the matter. A report of his activities will be made to the grand jury when the drive is completed.

The 74-year-old veteran of the rails is now employed by the Chesapeake and Ohio after serving four other lines. Two sons are C. & O. train dispatchers and the other is assistant superintendent of transportation.

ALTAR RUSH BEGINS HERE

Fourteen Licenses to Wed Issued by Register of Deeds Over the Week-End

The desire to get married has hit the countryside like a storm along with the general improvement in the financial situation, and records in the office of the Register of Deeds today showed that fourteen licenses to marry were issued over the week-end.

Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins said it was the largest number of licenses issued since last December when the annual Christmas rush shattered all records and set up a new mark which is going to be difficult to improve upon.

The Register of Deeds, who is always happy when the march to the altar is at its height, said he expected hundreds of couples to join "the parade to the altar during the fall and winter. He looks for the rush at Christmas time to surpass that of the past year.

The majority of those applying for licenses were colored, but white people are expected to snatch the honor away from the other race.

Those applying for licenses were: G. B. Weatherston to Miss Annie Briley of Carolina Township, Archie Evans to Miss Beulah Lewis, both of Chicod, David Dixon to Miss Mildred Sutton, of Chicod.

There was one white couple that asked for delayed publication. Colored Eddie Barrett to Ada Cobb, of Greenville, Joseph Mooring to Rachel Bunn, Bethel, Henry Moore to Alberta Croom, Griffon, Preston Dupree to Lilly Graham, Greenville, Willie Blount to Lillian Cherry, Beaufort County, Manning Waters to Della May Green, Swift Creek, Augusta Blount to Annie Streetler, Farmville, Everett Jones to Corrine Williams, Greenville, Alex Fleming to Annie Sutton, Carolina Township, Willie Jones to Mary Meyers, Greenville.

Warns in More Trouble Washington, Sept. 17.—(AP)—William F. Disorders in Maine. Portland, Maine, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Stones were thrown, mill windows broken and the ranks of textile strikers swelled today as the nation wide textile strike led a bit deeper into the industry in Maine. Additional national guards were ordered to duty, one company each being sent to Sanguerville and Bidder, increasing to approximately 750 the number on duty in textile communities.

Saco and Bidderford, comprising one of the largest cotton textile centers in the country, saw from 10 to 26 per cent of the employees of the Peppercill Manufacturing Company and the York Manufacturing Company join the strike in response to the local strike call. The Peppercill company normally employs 3,800 and the York 700.

PUSH PROBE OF MURDER AT NORTHFIELD

Detectives Seek Solution of Mysterious Slaying of Dr. Elliott Speer

Systematic questioning of persons who might shed light on the mysterious slaying of Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of the Mount Vernon school Friday night was resumed today by detectives.

Intermittent rain interfered with plans of the investigators to search nearby wooded sections for new clues and for the weapon used by the slayer.

District Attorney Joseph Barlett announced that Brigadier General Daniel Needham, commissioner of the Department of Public Safety, would arrive in Northfield today to look over the scene of the shooting. Dr. Speer was slain by someone who fired a shotgun through the screen and window of his home.

PATROL SENT TO STRIKE AREA

Local Highway Patrolmen Go To Tarboro And Gastonia For Strike Duty

Members of the divisional highway patrol left Greenville early this morning for strike duty at Tarboro, Gastonia and other points where there was indication of trouble with strikers it was announced this morning.

Headed by Lieutenant Lester Jones, six patrolmen left the local office and those in other parts of the division were also ordered to leave for the strike centers.

The patrol about two weeks ago went to Tarboro to assist in keeping the roads open when a flying squadron forced the cotton mill there to close.

The only function of the patrolmen is to keep the highway open and to allow no interference with textile goods sent from the mills by truck to other sections of the state.

LOCAL CHURCH EXTENDS CALL TO OVERMEYER

Presbyterian Minister Of Bluefield, W. Va. Offered Pastorale Here

The congregation of the Presbyterian Church has extended a call to Rev. J. B. Overmeyer, acting pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Bluefield, West Virginia. It was made known today by B. W. Moseley, member of the pulpit committee.

The pulpit committee reported its selection to the congregation at a general congregational meeting yesterday morning and the report was unanimously accepted.

The church has been without a pastor since the death of Rev. W. S. Harden, who died last December after serving the congregation for ten years. During the last three or four months, however, Rev. J. R. Potts, evangelist, has been doing supply work here. Members of the congregation today expressed appreciation of the fine work of Mr. Potts, whose services will end the first of the month should Mr. Overmeyer accept the call.

Mr. Overmeyer, described as a speaker of no little ability, received his ministerial training at the Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va. He later studied abroad, returning to America several months ago to accept supply work with the Bluefield church.

Speaking at two services here Sunday before last, Mr. Overmeyer was said to have made a profound impression upon the congregation.

After considering his qualifications along with a number of other prospects, the pulpit committee yesterday morning reported its action to the congregation and was thanked for its work.

TROOPS PROVE COSTLY IN U. S.

Each State Finding Sending of Troops to Strike Zone Rather Expensive

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—In a survey of eight states approximately 11,000 national guards have been mobilized for strike duty. Wages and "sustenance stipends to maintain these units are reckoned at $45,000 daily and the cost is being met by state governments. Tear and nausage gas are extra expenses.

Georgia which has ordered the greatest mobilization of all states, has approximately 4,000 officers and men patrolling strike centers. Two regiments of engineers are at Savannah to stand by. Wages range from $5 a day for brigadier generals to $1 a day for privates.

Rhode Island has mobilized 19,000 guards with an average wage of guardsmen being $3 daily.

RULES WINSTON PEOPLE MAY HAVE OWN WINE

Winston Salem, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Under a ruling of Municipal Judge W. T. Wilson, local citizens may make and keep wine in their homes for their own use up to five gallons.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

Weaving in and out of traffic is a dangerous practice. There is little to be gained by it, and everything to be lost. The amount of time saved in 20 miles of driving in this unsafe manner is almost negligible and certainly is not worth the risk. For every yard of headway made by the "weaving" driver, scores of other drivers are thrown into confusion and the orderly progress of traffic is disturbed and delayed.

FEW PLANTS ATTEMPT TO RESUME WORK

Several Mills in South Carolina Open Under Muzzles of National Guard Guns

Charlotte, Sept. 17.—(AP)—A thousands or more pickets crying "you'll start a revolution" faced a company of national guardsmen across one of the state's busiest highways at Belmont today as the textile strike neared its third week in the Carolinas.

Strike activities were also reported from various other sections as strikers sought to consolidate their positions in the face of machine guns and bayonets. Several pickets from Roanoke Rapids and Tarboro were arrested as the Hart mill, employing approximately 150 men at Tarboro, reported for work.

The men were charged with trespassing as officers escorted employees who wished to work in the plant.

Few mills which have been closed during the strike sought to reopen today despite the presence of ten national guards companies on duty in the Gastonia area in anticipation of such an attempt.

The Monarch mill at Lockhart, S. C., near Union, reopened after an anti-strike vote by its employees but no attempt was made to start operation at two other units of the company employing 1,100 at Union.

Despite the vote to return to work many company officials indicated they wish to see how the Lockhart experiment turned out before making additional reopening attempts.

The Pacific mill at Lyman, S. C., reopened as national guardsmen were ready with machine guns, tear gas and fixed bayonets. There were no disorders.

The Borden Manufacturing Company at Goldsboro, employing about 360 workers, reopened without disorders, although a larger number of pickets faced a heavy contingent of police and special officers.

The demonstration at the Hart hosiery plant at Belmont began at dawn after reports were circulated that at planned to begin operating at 7 a. m. A crowd of 500 reported and an hour later it had grown to 1,000 or more. No attempts to operate the plant was made but the crowd remained on watch.

The Weldon cotton mill in Halifax reopened for work while other mills in the section, the only eastern county drastically affected by the strike, remained closed.

Potts To Hold Week's Revival At Williamston

Rev. J. A. Potts, acting pastor of the Presbyterian church, left today for Williamston where he will begin a one week revival service tonight.

Mr. Potts said that either he or the minister at Williamston would fill the local pulpit next Sunday and that he would be here for his concluding service the following month.

TIGER ISLAND

A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

SYNOPSIS: Left to drown with their shipwrecked crew, the S. S. Boldero was scuttled by her villainous captain Wong Bo. Harvey Bowers and Ivy Green have managed to escape to Tiger Island on a raft. Most of the animals which they released have reached the island also. Bowers and Ivy, accompanied by Ivy's pet monkey, Helen, have established themselves in a cave, and are awaiting rescue.

Chapter 29 WONG BO AGAIN

The gunboat which Bowers and Ivy had failed to signal was named Ladysmith and flew the British flag. She had picked up Flint's first SOS and while hurrying to the scene of the disaster had received word from the admiralty in Singapore to take any survivors prisoners with the exception of two passengers.

In "spilling the beans," as Flint himself had called it, he had gone into particulars and separated the sheep from the goats. It was known to the newspaper men, who made much of it, that Harvey Bowers, the famous big-game hunter, and a fellow-passenger, a Miss Green, had been abandoned on a sinking ship.

It would have been a front-page story anywhere. The ship had been scuttled by her Chinese captain for the insurance, and that captain would if caught and in case the passengers perished, either be hanged by a special arrangement with the Chinese Government or beheaded at the execution-yard of Canton.

The captain and the crew of the Ladysmith were young and adventurous men out to show off and make record. To be hurrying—the scene of the disaster and to be upon the trail of a Twentieth Century pirate exhilarated them beyond measure.

A given spot in the seas cannot be precisely located by instruments, however, and, oddly enough, there was a time when they passed immediately over the sunken Boldero, but by now all signs of the wreckage had been dispersed far and wide by the ocean currents.

It was Commander Ashton's theory that Bowers and his fellow-passenger had gone down with the ship and his examination of the nearest land, Tiger Island, was perfunctory. Wong Bo and his pirates would not choose so small and precarious an asylum. They would make for Borneo.

If the disaster had been of an ordinary nature, Commander Ashton would have stood by Tiger Island long enough to send a party ashore. But he had to do with pirates and it was his duty to overtake these, if possible and bring them to justice. An examination of the distant shore of Tiger Island through a pair of powerful marine glasses revealed nothing.

If Bowers had been able to make a smoke, it would have been seen from the Ladysmith. The officers and the crew were on the lookout for anything of the kind. If Bowers had been able to fire his elephant rifle, the detonation might have been heard. As it was, the Ladysmith saw nothing and heard nothing and presently at full speed made a long turn to starboard and headed for Borneo.

The air-pressure and later the steady breeze which had so helped Ivy and Bowers and the progress of their raft in equal measure delayed the progress of Wong Bo, and the breeze with which he had to contend was if anything stronger.

THE Ladysmith, when she was in a hurry, could do a little better than fifty-seven knots an hour. She carried a powerful searchlight and a little after midnight and within a mile of the Borneo coast sighted the three boats in which the pirate captain and his crew were trying to escape.

If Wong Bo had not been caught red-handed, his guilt was clear. The stolen goods with Bowers' initials engraved on the scutcheons were a dead give-away. Even if Bowers and the woman were saved by a miracle, there was still the murder of Flint to account for.

Wong Bo's case was hopeless. He would either hang by the neck, a most undignified way out of the world, or his neck would be stretched and his head topped off by a fellow-Chinaman who would enjoy doing it.

During the night Captain Wong Bo, in spite of his manacles, succeeded in swallowing a quantity of gold leaf which was concealed about his person, and two or three days later died in agony in spite of the agony he succeeded in keeping his gizzard tight to the bitter end.

Upon the officers and the crew of the late Boldero it was not possible to inflict any penalty for first degree murder. To hear them you would think that they had made the most vigorous protests and representations to Wong Bo. They had begged him to leave the passengers to their fate. But he had ordered them into the boat, and what could they do but obey? He was the captain.

The passengers, they informed the court, had been locked in their cabins. When they had seen the Boldero they would think that they had made the most vigorous protests and representations to Wong Bo. They had begged him to leave the passengers to their fate. But he had ordered them into the boat, and what could they do but obey? He was the captain.

Why had Wong Bo wished for their death? Perhaps his designs against the Boldero had leaked out. Perhaps it was only because he had stolen the man-passenger's valuable guns and did not wish to be at the trouble of an explanation.

Nobody would ever know. Not even the judges in hell would be able to find out, because Wong Bo was much too astute a man to tell them his real name.

So it was taken for granted in Singapore and Hongkong and wherever the news was carried, that Harvey Bowers, the great hunter, and his fellow-passenger, a Miss Green, had both perished. If they were ever discovered, it would not be because anyone was hunting for them.

THE valley upon which the back door of the new abode opened was richer in grasses than a tree. It had a parklike appearance. A slow stream meandered down the middle, and in this stream swarmed and there were formidable eels. At the head of this valley the river-water fell thirty feet into a fine pool.

The eels' habitat being lower down, it was a magnificent combination of swimming-pool and shower-bath. They soon found that the best way and infinitely the shortest to get from the valley to the other was through their own house, and that was a matter of minutes.

But to go around from the one door to the other took hours. The upthrust of volcanic rock which divided the one valley from the other was in every part, except toward the beach, where it faded to nothing, precipitous and worn smooth by erosion. These physical facts at a later date were to stand them in good stead. Just now they seemed rather in the nature of a nuisance.

The flora was rich in species. There seemed to be traces, terraced-like formations of stone, of former habitations. This would account for the presence of the banana, for a fine grove of breadfruit in the more open valley, for the oranges and for the superior size and quality of some of the mangoes.

There were wild yams in abundance. Fish were to be had with very little trouble once you had made spears and got the hang of using them. Bowers' mouth sometimes watered for meat, for pork or even goat. But he thought best to let the wild pigs and the goats supply the tigers with food as long as possible.

One day they came upon a nestful of eggs, and Bowers had visions of an island thickly populated with pheasants. Unhappily that same night one of the tigers discovered the nest and devoured the eggs. They found his tracks.

Now and then they caught a glimpse of a deer, and they seldom went abroad now without seeing and hearing the Rhesus monkeys which had escaped from the ship. These became more and more tame and friendly.

They would call to Helen from near-by treetops and invite her to join them. But she, sure of human protection and any number of meals a day, would leap up and down on the ledge outside the cave and shout defiance, or she would wheedle and invite them instead to come and visit her.

It is only in motion pictures and wild animals attack man without cause. Sometimes a wounded or cornered animal attacks and sometimes one which is half famished. The man-killing lions and tigers are mostly superannuated and often lame specimens, who can no longer overtake and kill down the wild swift game on which they have become accustomed to feed.

If Tiger Island had been sufficiently provisioned with goats, pigs, deer and antelope, the tigers Big Ben and Larline might never have caused Bowers and Ivy a moment's anxiety. But the island was not well enough provisioned.

(Copyright, 1934, by Gouverneur Morris)

Tomorrow, the tigers begin to grow hungry.

The matter of the legality of voting on the proposed New Constitution in the coming November election is now before the Supreme Court and whether or not we will get to vote on the matter is now uncertain. If, however, the court decides that the matter is to be voted upon this year it is to be hoped that the voters will vote against it. As we have stated before, there are some good points in the proposed constitution but there are so many objectionable features in it that the voters will do well to turn it down and then let the next legislature make provision for the submission of the good points in the form of amendments to be voted on at an election after that time.

FARMERS, WATCH YOUR GRADING

Attention of tobacco growers is called to the necessity of properly grading their tobacco before marketing it. With high prices this season the growers have apparently been grading their tobacco at a very rapid rate in order to get it on the market but poor grading is costing the growers real money in view of the fact that when piles of mixed grades are offered the price is much lower because the buying companies cannot use the tobacco without considerable trouble in separating the grades and throwing out that portion that does not coincide with the types they use. So serious has this situation become all over the belt that the Tobacco Boards of Trade on several of the markets have found it necessary to spend their money for advertisements to warn the growers to see to the better grading of their tobacco before bringing it to market. Grading your tobacco closely, keeping it free of strings and marketing it in good order will cause it to bring you much more money and the extra money will pay you well for the extra trouble you may go to in properly grading and marketing your crop.

MISSING HEIRESS HAPPILY MARRIED

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Dan McCafferty, the former Virginia Ewing Gates, 22, daughter of the wealthy Dr. Thomas Gates, Philadelphia president of the University of Pennsylvania, prepared today for a career in married life with her wrestler-mechanic husband whom she met on a hitch-hiking tour of the west. Miss Gates disappeared from a dude ranch August 14. She was found yesterday in Boise after a search for her had spread generally over the nation, in which Department of Justice agent took part. With her was her new husband a former El Centro, Calif., taxicab driver, wrestler and machanic. Chief of Police Tom Cribbins found the couple here. They were guests in his home last night. First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 16.

The golden text was from Philipians 4:19: "My God shall supply all your need according to his riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

Among the citations which composed the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "The earth is the Lord's, and the fulness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein. For he hath founded it upon the seas, and established it upon the floods." (Ps. 24:1-2).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "That matter is substantial or has life and sensation, is one of the false beliefs of mortals, and exists only in a suppositious mortal consciousness. Hence as we approach Spirit and Truth, we lose consciousness of matter. The admission that there can be material substance requires another admission—namely, that Spirit is not infinite and that matter is self-creative, self-existent, and eternal. From this it would follow that there are two eternal causes, warring forever with each other; and yet we say that Spirit is supreme and all-presence."

Noted Artist To Demonstrate His Skill Here

L. Pierre Bottemer, internationally known artist, has established a studio in the display window of Baker-Davis Hardware Company here and for the next ten days will give public demonstrations of his skill with the brush.

The studio was arranged today and hundreds gathered about the windows of the local store to watch the famous artist at his work.

Bottemer, whose work was on display at the Chicago Fair, is known as the "southpaw" artist and is skilled in landscape, figure and model painting.

Bottemer was born in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1900, of Parisian-French parents. At the age of four his father died. His mother returned to France with young Pierre and married a noted sculptor. The foster father made his headquarters in Bombay and Calcutta, India, took an exceptional interest in young Bottemer's talent and encouraged him in his inclinations for art.

When Bottemer was 12 he returned with his parents to the United States. At 15 he joined the French army, serving as interpreter for French and English officers. In 1917 he was placed in the intelligence department of France and served there until the close of the world war.

He resumed his painting when the war ended, studying figure painting and portrait under Gorguet, French master and overseer of the famous world war painting in Paris. He later studied landscape painting from the German artist, Schwartz, and his marine studies were under the noted ex-Australian count, De-sage.

Since his return to the United States Mr. Bottemer has been engaged incessantly in oil painting. He also has done "lighting" scenic work with lyseums and chautauquas and is one of the recognized artists of the world.

BIBLE HELPS THIS FARMER KEEP LAND UNTIL HARVEST

Milwaukee, Wis.—(AP)—"Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap," says the Bible, and Judge Joseph E. Cordes, who consults it often before handing down decisions, is of the same mind.

And that is why John Szentes continues to occupy a small farm near the city limits and will until harvest time.

Arthur E. Woghan, owner of the 12-acre plot Szentes is farming, brought action claiming that Szentes had said uncomplimentary things about the land when prospective purchasers visited it. Later, ordered to move, he refused, Woghan said.

Women Ministers 'Out'

Leicester, Eng.—(AP)—The Methodist Conference here decided not to admit women to the ministry because of the extreme difficulty of placing men in the itinerant ministry. The consensus in the church is that women should be admitted, but out of every four men who wish to be received into the itinerant ministry, it is possible to place only one.

"when as in silks my Julia goes"

Robert Herrick 1591-1634

So through the centuries comes this glamorous substance—silk... first introduced to ancient Europe by Paphlania of the isle of Cos—so translucent she discovers 'as to reveal and yet conceal a woman's charm.' About 300 A. D. the Emperor Aurelian refused his wife a silk shawl because it was literally worth its weight in gold... but she still wanted it! Right through the ages this amazing fabric—so strong and light as to hold a ten pound fighting trout on a featherweight silk line, yet fine enough to strain honey—has been women's desire for luxury, strength and wear.

we have joined the Silk Parade

Our collection of silks is at its best... oatmeal crepe, 98c and 1.49 yd.; silk failles, 98c and 1.49 yd.; canton crepe, 79c yd.; crepe back satin, 79c yd. New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—Cotton futures were one to four higher on trade demand buying which offset Liverpool cables.

Pressure dwindled in the later months under southern hedge selling and Liverpool offerings on narrow differences.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 17.—(AP)—The gloom was rather thick in the securities markets today.

Although news that might have influenced speculative sentiment was scarce most traders appeared to find little incentive for bullish enthusiasm.

When a few shares bucked the trend numerous issues dropped to new lows for the year or longer.

The heaviness of some of the so called leaders was discouraging to the financial sector.

Grains, however, improved materially under the leadership of corn and cotton.

The late tone was slightly irregular. Transfers were 700,000 shares.

Order Martial Law in Georgia. Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 17.—(AP)—Governor Talmadge today ordered martial law in the textile strike areas where national guardsmen were in control.

in Georgia and to protect the lives of all citizens as well as their property.

Adj. General Camp gave orders for the erection of the camp from Newman where he personally handled a flying squadron of guardsmen against pickets.

The general ordered that the camp be ready in two hours to receive some 150 pickets at Newman, who composed a flying squadron from nearby towns.

After the quick action at Newman the general ordered prisoners led into two huge trucks of the highway department and hurried off to Atlanta where they are to be interned.

The general permitted all Newman strikers to be picked up in his roundup and those from outside the town to go free with the admonition, "All those who want to work are going to work, and all those who want to strike can strike, but I want it understood there will be no trouble."

Among the general's camp of prisoners were 20 women and 14 negroes.

The governor said martial law had been in effect since Friday but was not disclosed until today.

He said martial law was necessary before he could send armed guards to the textile strike area and that the military law proclamation was drawn up last Friday.
