FARM STRIKE THREATENED IN THE MIDDLE WEST

Farmers Union In Iowa Plans To Halt Foods

TAKES CRACK AT NATIONAL FARM AGENCY

Charges Farm Administration With Trying to Put "Farmer in Straight Jacket"; Proposal to Strike Made Before Convention Yesterday; Vote Scheduled For Today With Favorable Action Predicted

Des Moines, Sept. 20.—(AP)—A farm strike in the Middle West was threatened today.

The threat came from the convention of the Iowa Farmers Union and recalled disorders a year ago when the National Farmers Union Holiday Association attempted to reduce the nation's food basket with a nation wide strike.

The proposals to strike were put before the convention yesterday by John Chalmers, of Madrid, vice president of the union who charged that the Farm Administration is "putting the farmer in a straight jacket."

The strike is to be called, the resolution said, unless the government gives the farmer immediate consideration.

A vote was scheduled for today with Chalmers declaring he would be "the most disappointed man on earth" if the measure is not adopted.

TWO INJURED AS CARS WRECK

Tarboro Woman and Son Hurt as Two Cars and Truck Crash

Mrs. W. T. Crisp and her two-year-old son, Robert, were painfully but not seriously injured when two automobiles and a truck collided on the Bethel-Tarboro highway, near Bethel last night. It was revealed here today.

Suffering from loss of teeth and cuts Mrs. Crisp and the child were rushed to a Tarboro hospital for medical attention. They were reported getting along nicely today, although still suffering considerably from their injuries.

The car was driven by W. T. Crisp who escaped without injuries as did F. C. James of Bethel, driver of the other car, and the driver of the truck whose name was not obtained.

The three machines were traveling along the highway with a car in front, the truck in the center and the other car bringing up the rear.

The front car was turning off the road when the car behind crashed into the truck causing that machine to hit the car in front.

The automobile occupied by Crisp caught fire and was destroyed. The other machines were damaged also.

BURLINGTON ALDERMEN
CALL FOR CHEAPER GAS
Burlington, Sept. 20.—Resolutions calling upon the wholesale gasoline distributors in Alamance county to lower their average retail price to the level of standard Piedmont N. C. scale were passed by the board of aldermen here Monday.

A fig tree imported from France to Seattle bore six gallons of fruit this year, providing the species can be raised in the northwest's cool climate, its owner believes.

HIGHWAY TO PINETOPS IS THROWN OPEN

New Ribbon of Concrete Reduces Distance From Here to Rocky Mount

With the opening of the Falkland-Pinetops highway yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock a new trade territory was thrown open to business interests of this city, and thousands of dollars which have been going to other section of the state in recent years are expected to flow into Greenville in the future.

The highway, which connects Greenville, Falkland, Pinetops and Rocky Mount by a ribbon of concrete, covers a distance of around 36 miles, shortening the route from Greenville to Rocky Mount by six or seven miles.

The road between Falkland and Pinetops for years has been one of the worst in this area and during rainy season was absolutely impassable forcing the thousands of people of the Pinetops area to trade and market their offerings at other points. However, with the opening of the new road a new field of trade was thrown open to the district.

Work on the road was started last summer and was pushed forward as rapidly as possible to open new marketing centers to the rich agricultural section and reduce the distance between this point and Rocky Mount.

The movement to effect the paving of the road has been under way for a number of years but did not become possible until the federal government made additional funds available to the State highway department for improvement of this kind.

The movement of tobacco from Pinetops area to Greenville will be conducted with greater facility than ever before because of completion of the new road, and will be increased perceptibly the remainder of the season and years to come.

It is impossible to say what the improvement will mean in dollars and cents to people of Pinetops and Greenville, but the fact that it will bring the two districts closer together, enabling them to expand their business horizons is a matter of much gratification to citizens of both places.

COUNTY COURT CLEARS DECK

Several Cases Disposed of in Second Day's Session Here Yesterday

J. G. Campbell and Jesse Langley, two young white men of the Bethel community, were fined $25 and one-half cost each in the second day's session of county court here yesterday on a charge of selling beer and home brew without license.

In addition to imposing the fine, Judge James ordered the youths to close the filling station which they have been operating. The order was to become effective immediately.

Several other cases were disposed of during the day, bringing the total number cleared from the calendar during the two-day sitting to around forty.

Court continued sitting this morning with three or four other cases awaiting disposition before adjournment.

Other cases cleared from the docket yesterday were:
F. C. Hubert, driving drunk; $50 and cost; license revoked for ninety days.
Lonnie Filpot, colored, non-support; pay $2 a month for 100 months to mother of his child.
Matthew Sheppard, liquor for sale; $25 and cost.
Leslie Harris, liquor for sale; $25, cost deducted.
Hugh Sutton, careless and reckless driving; $25 and cost; filed notice of appeal to Superior court.

Albert Graham, colored, disturbing religious worship; $25, cost deducted, or 90 days on the roads.

J. F. Ward, assault with a deadly weapon, $100, cost deducted and balance go to the use of the prosecuting witness.

After passing on the legality of several slot machines, court adjourned.

GEORGIA LEAF GROWERS GET PRICE BOOST

Atlanta, Sept. 20.—(AP)—South Georgia's bright leaf growers received 7.43 cents a pound more in 1934 than they did during the previous selling season, it was shown today by figures compiled by H. K. Ramsay, state department of agriculture statistician.

The total first hand sales of 52,623,474 pounds during the recent season brought growers an average price of 18.73 cents a pound as compared with an average of 11.30 per hundred paid for the 59,853,963 pounds in 1933.

PRICES STILL MOVE UPWARD ON LEAF MATT

Second Highest Average of The Season, $30.78, Hung up Here Yesterday

The second highest average of the season was hung up on the Greenville tobacco market yesterday as prices continued to find new high grounds, especially on the better grades, it was revealed today in the daily report of K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales.

The report showed that 692,908 pounds of bright leaf was handled during the day. Farmers received $213,256.96 and the average was $30.78 per hundred pounds.

Sales were completed during the early afternoon and floors were cleared more quickly than in the last several days in preparation for today's offerings.

Mr. Cobb said there was approximately a million pounds of tobacco on the floors of the various warehouses with indications sales would be completed by 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The report revealed that renewed strength was reflected on the market yesterday, especially on the better grades. The demand for all types was strong but buyers seemed to be looking for improved grades and didn't mind paying for them.

The sale yesterday and today were the lightest in the last several days because of rainfall which started day before yesterday and continued intermittently through last night and today. However, growers who had already graded their tobacco speeded the leaf to market between showers in an effort to take advantage of the gradual advance in the price situation.

ASK INVESTIGATION OF SCHOOL SITUATION

New Bern, Sept. 20.—Request has been filed with the State authorities for an early and thorough investigation of the school situation at Pollocksville, where various objections have been raised to local school officials and management, and meanwhile many parents are keeping their children out of the school. The attendance so far this year since the reopening of the school on September 10 is only a third of last year's enrollment.

W. L. Bowman, of Boone, Tenn., is the new principal of the Pollocksville school, succeeding R. L. Patrick, who was not reelected by the local committee for this term. On the school board are C. S. Simmon's, Ransom Booth and Chairman H. A. Creagh.

Department of Justice officials in Washington said the case was hot and there were unconfirmed reports in New York that four men and two women were being questioned.

Jersey City—The Jersey Journal today said an unannounced German was arrested in New York City today in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case.

The newspaper said that shortly after the man's arrest officers found between $35,000 and $40,000 (Continued on page six)

Vigilantes Reported Active On Carolinas Strike Front

PITT SCHOOLS SHOW LARGER ENROLLMENT

All Institutions Reported Crowded Following Opening Last Monday Morning

Congestion in both white and colored county schools was reported today following opening of the various institutions in all sections of the county the past Monday.

Enrollment was described as the largest in years but it was said work had been organized rapidly and that everything was moving along as smoothly as possible considering the large number of students assigned to each room.

Although attendance figures had not yet been compiled at the Board of Education here, it was said this would be completed during the latter part of this or the first of next week. Donald Conley, director of public instruction, was busy today making his rounds of the various institutions looking into attendance figures and helping the teachers make the best of the crowded condition of the various institutions.

There was no change in the transportation situation when school children began their annual pilgrimage back to the school room, those living two miles from school being forced to walk the distance and those living a mile from bus routes being required to use their feet in covering the distance.

Mr. Conley expressed the hope several days ago that the next legislature might see fit to appropriate additional funds for transportation making it possible to put more buses into service and reduce the distance which children have to walk during last year.

Washington, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Arrest of Richard Hauptmann in New York City in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping case was announced today by Attorney General Cummings.

New York—An impending break in the two and a half year old mystery of the Lindbergh kidnaping case caused Dr. John F. Condon, "Jassie" emissary of the Lindberghs to be taken to police headquarters this afternoon.

Slot Machine Owners And Operators Fined In County Court Here

Definite action looking to ridding the county of the slot machine racket was taken by Judge Dink James in County court this morning when several owners and operators of mint vending machines were fined and ordered to cease distribution and operation of illegal machines at once.

The defendants were: E. L. Blanton, owner of machine seized in James Harris' place, Both Blanton and Harris were required to pay $50 each.

N. L. Massengill, owner of machine and Cecil Moore and Roy Tripp, operators. Massengill was fined $50 and cost, and Moore and Tripp were required to pay $25 each.

In the case against L. B. McCormick, owner and Key Norris, operator, no action was taken by the court pending decision as to the legality of the machine involved.

Judge James ruled that the mint vending machines demonstrated before the court were illegal and in addition to ordering suspension of distribution and operation, instructed Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, to seize all such machines found in operation in any part of the county in the future.

The action followed closely on the heels of an order issued by Judge James recently, calling on officers in every part of the county to notify operators of gambling devices that they must cease operation by September 12 to face arrest and seizure of their machines.

Complying with the order, officers seized several machines for "test cases" and instructed the operators and owners to appear in court this week to face trial.

Shortly after issuance of the order, Chief of Police George Clark said not a single slot machine that should be placed in the gambling classification was in operation in the city, although a number of small pool tables remained open.

Judge James informed distributors and owners of mint vending machines that they would be required to take all such machines out of circulation, declaring that failure to do so would result in arrest and seizure of machines.

The action of the court struck not only at operators of the machines described by the court as illegal but went to the source of ownership seeking to eliminate as far as possible the menace of gambling in many prominent public places throughout the county.

Judge James took action in the matter following a recommendation from the grand jury of criminal court for immediate action of his court to relieve the county of the slot machine menace. The jurors declared they had received numbers of complaints against slot machines from citizens in various parts of the county and asked County court to take steps looking to improvement of the situation.

The action today was the most far-reaching in the history of slot machine manufacture and operation and is expected to result in a perceptible reduction of slot machines and complete cessation of operation of mint machines classified by the court as illegal.

Ambrose Johnson, Native Of Pitt, Dies At Kinston

Word was received here this morning that Ambrose Johnson, 64, native of Pitt county, died at the home of his sister in Kinston last night following serious illness of several days. He had been in bad health for a number of years.

Mr. Johnson had been in Greenville the last several weeks soliciting subscriptions for several newspapers. His condition became so much worse that he was carried to Kinston yesterday to be with his sister.

Mr. Johnson was born and reared near Greenville. He moved to Kinston about 25 years ago and made his home there since that time.

He was remembered by a large number of acquaintances when he returned to his community and news of his death was received with sorrow.

PICKETS AND SOLDIERS ON THE SIDELINES

Vigilante Committee Of Several Hundred Circulates Through Streets of Belmont; South Carolina Organization Determined to Halt Work Of Communists

Charlotte, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The spirit of the vigilantes showed itself today on two of the strike map's sorest spots as troops and pickets faced each other for another day along the strike swept textile front in the Carolinas.

As hundreds of strikers and sympathizers gathered at the little town of Belmont to bury the ninth victim of the strike in the two states, a vigilante committee composed of several hundred farmers, merchants and others circulated through the streets.

Belmont, scene of disorders for several days, is in Gaston county, some yard center of the world, where the vast majority of mills have been closed since the strike began in Greenville, S. C., where the other vigilante committee has been organized, the thirty mills have been operating.

The aim of the Belmont organization was described as primarily to help preserve law and order and to prevent recurrence of violence.

At Greenville the announced purpose of the vigilantes was to ferret out the activities of radicals and communists in the strike situation there.

RELIEF SENT TO STRIKERS

Norman Thomas Tells South Carolina Strikers Cash and Food Will be Given Them

Greenville, S. C., Sept. 20.—(AP)—Norman Thomas notified southern strike headquarters today that "cash and food" would be forthcoming for needy textile strikers.

The national chairman was informed by E. L. Johnson, socialist organizer here, that the offer of aid would be accepted in the area. Johnson said he understood the relief would be made available through a special "relief" committee headed by Thomas.

Leo Krazyski, national chairman of the socialist party and vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, sent Thomas the following telegram:

"Southern strike headquarters of United Textile Workers at Greenville will be responsible for distribution of cash and food to strikers as possible for distribution to you for the much needed help."

No information was available as to the amount of relief to be afforded or the scope of the relief program.

A number of Greenville strikers went to work on FERA projects to earn $2.40 a day, one day of each week.

ENDEAVOUR WINS FIRST RACE IN CUP SERIES

England scored the first blow in the historic American cup series off Newport, R. I., when T. O. M. Sopwith's yacht Endeavour (dark hull), the challenger, sailed ahead of Harold S. Vanderbilt's Rainbow (light hull, foreground) in the initial race to count. The first trial on Saturday was declared "no race" because neither finished the course in the prescribed time. In this striking picture T. O. M. Sopwith's challenging yacht Endeavour is shown as it crossed the finish line off Newport, R. I., to win the first official America's cup race. The defending yacht Rainbow led during the first part of the race, but the English sloop came from behind and administered a sound beating to the American defender in one of the swiftest and most dramatic races ever waged for the famous mug. Endeavour also won the second race. (Associated Press Photo)

FLYING SQUADRON HALTED BY INTERNMENT

Picket duty for this group of textile strikers has been halted, at least temporarily, by the barbed wire fence around the internment camp near Fort McPherson just outside Atlanta, Ga. Rounded up by national guardsmen at Newnan, Ga., they were imprisoned under the watchful eyes of troopers. At the top is shown a group of the men begging cigarettes from a photographer. TROOPS GUARD STRIKERS INTERNED BEHIND BARBED WIRE

This picture of the internment camp for "flying squadrons" of textile strikers is reminiscent of World War days when German prisoners were interned at Fort McPherson on the outskirts of Atlanta, Ga. The strikers' camp, encircled by a barbed wire fence that is patrolled by national guardsmen day and night, stands about 100 yards from the location of the Germans' prison. Members of the "flying squadron" were seized by troops at Newnan, Ga., and concentrated in the camp after Gov. Talmadge declared martial law and ordered the militia to protect the rights of all textile employees who wanted to work in defiance of strike pickets. (Associated Press Photo)

IMMORALITY CHARGES ARE AIDED IN DURHAM

Durham, Sept. 20—Sixteen defendants, including the managers of two local hotels were haled before Judge J. R. Patton in recorder's court today to answer charges tending from immorality to soliciting and vagrancy. Prominent in the list of defendants was Ike A. Kilday, operator of the Commercial Hotel. He was charged with Nora Ray for using a room for immoral purposes. Judge Patton first sentenced Lindsey to serve four months on the roads, but later gave him the alternative of paying a $500 fine. The Ray woman's six months sentence in the county work house was changed to a fine of $50.

Clark Fowler of the Royal Hotel was given a serious talk by Judge Patton for letting such women come into his hotel for their traffic. Thirteen others, men and women, found in the hotels were fined in a session that took up most of the court here today.

Roosevelt Textile Mediation Plan May Save Code

By FRANK I. WELLER
Washington.—(AP)—A mediation board for the textile strike may be President Roosevelt's way of trying to save his "ideal" Code No. 1 of the national recovery administration.

It was the "code to end strikes." When signing it on July 9, 1933, the President said that a conference of leaders of industry, labor and social service presided over by the government, "had considered the most controversial question—the wages and hours of labor—and brought that question to a definite conclusion."

The long-troubled textile industry had studied the possibility of self-government through a more com-

The Frightened Ones

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
Christopher awoke with a start.

So did Top Notch.

"Caw, caw, caw, Danger!"

"Cock-a-doodle-do! Wake up, Willy Nilly!"

"What's the matter?" asked Willy Nilly.

Willy Nilly was sleeping, as he walked out to the front of his house and saw Christopher and Top Notch excitedly trying to tell him something without raising their voices.

"The two men are back—we saw them just a few minutes ago," explained Christopher. "They must have been champing around here all night."

"You know—the two men who wanted our cubs to act in the movies. They probably have been waiting around to capture Blacky and Jupiter when no one was looking, and just as soon as the bears were leaving their cubs alone for a little."

"We saw them and wanted to awaken you at once. I don't know where they are now. Shall I look?" Christopher ended.

Willy Nilly was afraid that what Christopher said might be true.

The men were probably very angry with him for keeping them waiting and then refusing to let the cubs go. They probably had decided that Willy Nilly would not be able to do anything to them if they just took the cubs.

Now there came a loud quack-quack-quacking from the pond.

"Fly down and see what the trouble is there!" cried Willy Nilly.

"Give four short caws and one long one if you should see."

"Dear me," thought the little gnome-like man, "dear me—what next? When will I ever find time to attend my sticking-out ears?"

fact trade association set-up. Code No. 1 was NRA's answer.

Two fundamental elements of discord led to the calling of the general textile strike.

Every code guarantees workers the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. As early as last March President McMahon of the textile workers declared in a public hearing that workers were being resisted in their efforts to organize and predicted a strike.

Agreed To Await Probe

In May textile manufacturers declared goods were piling up with production running above consumption. NRA granted permission to curtail machine operation by 25 per cent. Labor immediately threatened a strike but agreed on June 2 to await a federal investigation looking toward higher pay and shorter hours.

Investigators reported that workers' demands could not be met because increased costs could not be passed on to the consumer, because they could not be absorbed by the manufacturer and because the margin available for payment of wages had been squeezed between rising prices of raw materials and falling prices of finished goods. The 25 per cent curtailment was permitted to run to August 25. Mills now are permitted to operate full time.

But labor contends that, as a result of the curtailment, wages were cut under the south and $13 in the north, with the average for the industry now $10.86 a week and in some sections from $7.40 to $9.50.

Say "Stretch-Out" Revived

It complains that the banished "stretch-out" or practice of requiring employees to operate an additional number of machines has been revived.

Earnings in the industry now are at pre-code levels, labor says, and rates of wages paid the more skilled workers are being pushed down toward the minimum. It charges hundreds of workers, have been discharged for activity in labor organizations.

The cotton textile industrial relations board is branded ineffective as employer-dominated.

Employers insist the machinery of the code has been used effectively to temper competition and protect labor and that the curtailment now ended, prevented wholesale

They say code machinery is normally available to deal with such problems as the stretch-out and that individual violations of the right to bargain collectively have been and will be dealt with.

But, employers maintain there is nothing to show that the textile union represents a majority of the workers in the industry or that it speaks for any large body of workers.

Meditation of the strike differences would appear to presuppose ability of the code machinery to settle the industry's own disputes. It is there as the instrument of cooperation by which employer and group.

Judge Dink James started clamping down the lid on the slot machine racket in this county at this morning's session of County Court when he meted our $50 fines to several slot machine owners and the proprietors of places of business in which the machines were being operated.

Despite the elaborate demonstration of his machine put on in court by Mr. McCormick, in which he contended that the machine was played only for amusement and the mints that are received when a nickel was placed therein, it is still our opinion, and we believe that of the majority of our citizens that the main attraction of these machines is the gambling feature and despite present contentions that the checks are worthless it is known that in times past these checks have been redeemable in cash or merchandise in most places where a slot machine was operated.

We have no personal fight against Mr. McCormick or any of the other owners and operators, but we do feel that the slot machine racket in this county is a detriment to our county and we want to see Judge James continue his fight against any and all owners and operators, big or little, until he has rid the county of the machines.

And while Judge James is about this slot machine business he would do well to also take some action to break up the gambling that is going on in some of the drug stores and other public places on the ball machine. It is true that these ball machines themselves might not be gambling devices, but if one will stand around some of them now being played in this city he will soon see that they are being used almost solely for the purpose of gambling and the money changes hands between the players right in the open for everybody to see.

After all it seems a little queer to us that some busi-

TIGER ISLAND A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

Chapter 32 HUMAN BAIT

AS A boy, Bowers had mixed fishing with shooting, and had mended and even made rods. To wrap the gun with wire he used the same technique with which the joints of a fishing-rod are wrapped.

Ivy's best efforts to capture one of the wild monkeys had been unsuccessful. They relished any food that was thrown them, they made great and on the whole ingratiating chattering and chattering, but neither she nor Helen could induce one of them to climb all the way up the notched palm trunk and submit to capture.

But one day Ivy came softly through the cave to the back door where, in the pleasant afternoon shadows, Bowers was whitening her spoon out of orangewood, and said that the monkeys had come on a visit, and she thought perhaps if she herself kept out of sight they might actually come on the ledge and play with Helen.

"If they'll only come one," she said, "and find that nothing awful happens to them, they'll repeat. Some of them in their hearts long to be tame monkeys."

After a while she stole back to the front of the cave to see if she had guessed right. What she discovered was the opposite of what she hoped. The wild monkeys had not yielded to Helen's invitations and blandishments. It was she, the big little egg, who had yielded to theirs.

Ivy was disappointed, and at the same time she was more amused than troubled. It was not the first time that Helen, as Ivy expressed it, had listened to the "call of the wild and gone native."

She returned to Bowers and reported. He cut a delicate shaving from the handle of the spoon and thought to himself: "If not Helen, then what—or—" and a smile flickered in the corners of his mouth, "who?"

That night the tigers paid a visit, but this time they came up through the back valley and kept a certain distance. Bowers' arrangement of heavy logs all ready, to fall was viewed by them even in their ravenous state of hunger with profound suspicion.

To the question "Who?" there could be but one answer. No pig or goat was to be obtained. Helen had run off. Ivy was of course out of the question, and it seemed to Bowers that he himself was the only possible solution.

TWO nights later, while Ivy was soundly sleeping, the opportunity offered. The moon was nearly full. Having looked from the front of the cave and seen nothing and heard nothing he had gone to the back.

He perceived the tigers almost at once. One was standing and one was lying. Their heads were turned in his direction. The one that was lying down growled and rose to its feet. The beasts looked thin and ragged. Their ribs were prominent.

Bowers fetched his gun and hammer-stone, to be on the safe side, also his ax, and climbed down the notched ladder into the gully.

He believed in his deadfall. He believed himself to be in no more danger than if he had remained in the cave. Nevertheless, at finding himself on the same level with his enemies, his heart beat faster. "Well," he thought, "here I am, a big lump of sound meat. Come and get it!"

Finally the female stepped one paw a little way into the network of shadows and then the other. Nothing happened. She looked nervously to the right and left and then upward in the jungle she had never seen just such an arrangement of tree-stems, and she did not like it.

tall moving in spasmodic jerks, she began to creep slowly toward him. She could have reached him with one bold leap. In building the deadfall he had not thought of this possibility. She looked for all the world as if she were getting ready to spring. He was badly frightened, but his head remained clear and his hands did not tremble too much. He calculated as well as he could where she would be toward the end of her spring. Holding the gun with his left hand, he directed the muzzle toward this imagined place, and with his right hand grasped the hammer-stone with which to strike the firing-pin when the time came.

The muscles of the great gaunt she-beast were all tensed and quivering, but she did not spring. She tensed forward inch by inch until presently the first trigger obstructed her. She placed one forearm lightly upon it. The first touch could not have broken an egg but as she continued to edge forward, the paw had to support weight, and suddenly the trigger gave way and in a moment she was broken and buried under a ton of heavy timbers.

Now, of course was the male's chance, but in the crash of the deadfall and the sound of his mate's one scream he forgot the hunger that tortured him and fled in an abject panic of fear and with no more sublimity than a common housecat when jumped by a dog.

The crash and the scream waked Ivy from her sound sleep. She hurried through the cave to the back door, stumbling, tripping and barking her shins in the darkness. When she reached the opening Bowers was already more than halfway up the ladder. He was badly shaken, and his nerves were jumping like fleas. He was panting as if he had been under water, and words came from him only in jerks.

"WE GOT one . . . phew!" This was followed by a broken laugh. He leaned against the side of the cave and bit his lips.

"You're not hurt?" His breath now came and went more smoothly.

"No," he said. "But was I scared?" "What happened?"

Words and phrases now came easily, and he told her full speed ahead.

"And so," he finished, "all we have to do is to build our trap again and wait until the male comes into it. Just now he probably thinks that he would rather starve to death. But he won't be strong enough to do that. Hunger will hurt him so that he'll be willing to try anything once. The yellow dog! Sending his wife in first to see what would happen! Then, if nothing had happened, and she'd got me after taking all the risks, he'd have driven her off until he had eaten all the choice pieces."

They rebuilt the deadfall only to find, one morning, that it had been sprung during the night. Examination disclosed the crushed, mangled body of McLeod's thirty-foot python, which had swum ashore from the Boldero.

Hitherto they had hardly given the great serpent a thought, but now they experienced retrospective thrills of horror. He could have oozed up their ladder and into the cave at any time, and without effort and crushed one or the other of them as they slept.

At the base of the gully where the volcanic ash was loose and deep, they scraped a shallow pit and buried the remains of the python. When the deadfall was once more set, they thought, the odor of these remains, uncovered for the purpose would draw the remaining tiger into the trap.

But the remaining tiger was again ravenously hungry. He lurked in the neighborhood of the deadfall all the time they were rebuilding it, and behaved so menacingly that they laid and maintained a barrier of fire against him. Sometimes he came close to this fire and roared at them.

While Bowers tolled Ivy stood by with the gun and the hammer-stone, ready to pass them to him if the need arose. This time he was working backward from the mouth of the gully in order to place at least a few heavy logs and one loosening trigger between them and the enemy.

But this necessitated certain changes and rearrangements, and what with this and the fact that he was working nearly all the time with one eye on a tiger, made progress slow.

WOLFPACK TO MEET 'CATS' ON SEPT. 29

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 20.—When State College's Wolfpack meets Davidson's Wildcats at Greensboro, Saturday night, September 29, North Carolina's two largest tackles will face one another.

The big boys are Carl Goode of State and Holland Hand of Davidson. Goode tips the scales at 240 pounds and Hand at 238—473 pounds of fighting, scrapping football flesh.

Goode is a sophomore and in the absence of Carl Isaacs, regular State tackle who is in and out of drills because of flu, has been filling the left tackle job on the No. 1 team. Although the heaviest tackle in the State he is perhaps the fastest. At least he is the speediest of the State tackles.

Fans watching State's drills and scrimmages marvel at the speed of the big fellow. He is one of the first to get down under punts and crashes through on line plays with the power of an army tank and with the speed of a fast stepping half-back. Goode came to State last fall as a freshman with a great high school record as an end at Avondale. "He was too fast for a tackle," his high school coach told Bob Warren, State's freshman coach.

Davidson's big tackle—Hand—is a senior, and has been a regular since his sophomore days. According to Grier Martin, press agent at Davidson who keeps a close eye on the 'Cats' Hand is looking better this year than ever. Hand is not as fast as Goode, but is as powerful they say and as hard to take out of play. Hand has one advantage—he has two years of varsity experience.

Hand will likely start the game. Goode will come in as a substitute as Carl Isaacs will start. When the two big men get together the sport scribes will have something to write about and the fans something to talk about.

State will have several other big tackles at Greensboro that night. Clifton Daugherty, weighs 205 pounds, Isaacs, 196; Carl McIntire, 205; and Al Edwards, 199. Davidson has another big tackle in Robert Johnston, 196.

Two Hundred Fifty Dollars REWARD

The Warehouse Code Authority will pay Two Hundred Fifty Dollars for proof that any tobacco warehouseman has, directly or indirectly, paid any trucker to haul tobacco to his warehouse. The evidence must be sufficient to convict.

A truck driver has committed no offense by accepting compensation from a warehouseman. The information may be furnished without jeopardy to the informant.

A warehouseman who hires truckers or solicitors is violating the Warehouse Code, which is the law governing his industry. He is doing his part to tear down and destroy the program that has brought prosperity to the tobacco growers; he is opposing the efforts of our President to bring about a permanent improvement in the tobacco industry.

Tobacco growers should not patronize warehouses who seek to violate the Code. All violations should be reported by growers who are in sympathy with the present program.

Address all communications regarding violations to:

Noted Aerial Star Has Many White-Top Callings

The "Versatility Girl" is what the 700 men and women are performing with the highest class circus on earth, call Stella Cronin, charming, and most daring of the big show's scores of aerialists.

And justly so, perhaps, for the attractive little Miss has more accomplishments than any person known in the land of sawdust and spangles. Besides her daring on the aerial rings, she will be seen as a featured rider in the big high-school horse number—as one of the three star trainers of elephants, and again as the star horsewoman in the great Hagenbeck-Wallace display of thoroughbred high-jumping equines.

But that is not all, for she is also one of the three solo dancers in the opening spectacle, "Persia"—an accomplishment she herself did not know she possessed until the opportunity of being taught to dance was offered her by the dancing master with the show.

With the great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus coming to Greenville on Thursday, Sept. 27 there are great multitudes of stars in every white-top calling who present over 100 acts, displays and numbers. Only one, however, has a calling all his own. Clyde Beatty, the most fearless wild animal trainer in the world, and he will appear in person at each performance starting at 2 and 8 p. m.

Five herds of elephants—40 in number, and the largest menagerie on tour in the world with hundreds of rare and costly animals, will be additional features, as will the huge assemblage of nationally known clowns and all will be seen in the two mile long street parade show day morning. It is the largest and most colorful street pageant ever presented in America.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep...Vigor...Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount, causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Texas 'Hot Oil' Still Produced Despite Codes

By CARL C. CRAMER

Washington—(AP)—"Hot oil" is being produced illegally in Texas at the rate of 30,000 barrels a day, according to estimates received by the petroleum administrative board, despite all contracts, regulations and codes thus far devised to curb the flow.

Yet, the oil administration has just rounded out its first year in the experiment to stabilize a $12,000,000 industry and to conserve one of the nation's most valuable resources with a number of accomplishments claimed to its credit by Secretary of Interior Ickes.

Prices Go Up

Crude oil prices that were averaging 30 or 40 cents a barrel have been raised to 90 cents or $1 where they cover the cost of production in most fields. Daily crude oil production that was averaging 2,900,000 to 3,000,000 barrels has been reduced to an average of about 2,400,000 barrels for the past year, with total legal and illegal oil probably not exceeding 2,500,000 barrels a day at any time.

through a bewildering labyrinth of moves and counter-moves to cope with a new "bootleg" product.

Latest of these has been a gasoline purchase plan, extended to all the country east of the Rocky mountains, by which the large oil companies contract with small refiners to take excess gasoline stock off their hands and by which the small refiners in turn agree not to handle or process oil in excess of the allowable quotas.

Designed to bolster a shaky gasoline market which might be the forerunner of a rapid price decline and resulting "gas wars," the plan previously had been put into effect only in Texas.

The major oil companies which can hold the gasoline thus purchased will need to buy about 1,700,000 barrels of excess gasoline during the first month, it is estimated.

In a 31-day drive reminiscent of the old days, 650 head of cattle recently were driven across Pecos county, Texas to new pastures.

Reports from California's border checking stations indicate approximately 80,000 persons will visit the state this year by automobile, an increase of about 10,000 over last year.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady unchanged to two higher with disappointing Liverpool cables offset by trade buying.

There was also little outside buying on the theory that recent declines had prices low enough in view of the government 12 cent loan offer to growers. Southern offerings were not large and the market ruled quiet and steady on early trading. December sold off from 12.72 to 12.68 and May from 12.87 to 12.84 with the general market unchanged to 3 net over. At around 10:30 the market became steadier and trading appearance of little outside buying through Wall street and commission houses. December rallied from 12.68 to 12.81 and May from 12.84 to 12.98 with the general market registering gains of 10 or 12 points at midday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 20.—(AP)—Sentiment in the financial markets was not too bright today but at the same time the gloom did not appear to be so thickly as recently. Stocks were unable to continue their forward thrust of the previous session and prices showed a highly irregular tone in trading that still lacked any show of activity. Bonds were inclined to do better although U. S. government securities were narrow and quiet. Grains rallied a cent or more a bushel. That the marginal position may be clarified soon was seen in advices from Washington stating that the Federal Reserve experts had completed their recommendation for credit extension by board dealers and bankers for securities trading.
