Grand Jury Considers Hauptmann's Case Some Plants Go Back To Work As Others Stay Shut

KIDNAP CASE ADJOURNED UNTIL OCT. 1

Adjournment Granted as Hauptmann is Arraigned in Magistrate's Court Today; Request Made by Assistant District Attorney; Hauptmann Remains Silent During Proceedings

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A Bronx County grand jury today began consideration of the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, 35, alleged receiver of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom money.

The jury of 23 men, with Patrick Dwyer as foreman, was sworn in by Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin, who in his instructions made no reference to the Lindbergh case.

He instructed the jury on the importance of its oath regarding secrecy of what transpired in the grand jury room, and termed the jury "a bulwark of justice."

He also told the jurors that sixteen were necessary to convene the grand jury and that a majority of twelve was necessary for an indictment.

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Bruno Hauptmann was arraigned in a Bronx magistrate's court today on charges of extortion in the Lindbergh kidnaping case and his case was adjourned for one week, until Monday, October 1.

The adjournment was granted by Magistrate Bernard Mogliesky at the request of Assistant District Attorney Andrew C. McCarthy.

Hauptmann was led into the courtroom by Lieut. James J. Flinn, of the New York police department, and he said nothing during the brief proceedings.

The defendant was clean shaven, wore the same wrinkled suit he had on when taken into custody last Wednesday, and had on a white shirt with no tie. His hair was carefully combed.

As the prisoner was led into the courtroom principals in other cases before the magistrate and spectators jumped to the benches to get a better view of Hauptmann. Officers ordered them back to their seats.

Hauptmann stared ahead of Magistrate Mogliesky and blinked his eyes occasionally at the flashes of photographers' bulbs standing beside him during the arraignment was a man who took no outward part in the proceedings and did not identify himself. He was said to be an associate of James Facette, attorney for Hauptmann.

CITY SCHOOL SYSTEM OPENS

Record Attendance Indicated as Various Schools Begin Work This Morning

City schools opened today with indications of the largest enrollment in history.

Although it was impossible to obtain attendance figures this morning, J. H. Rose, superintendent, said this would be announced tomorrow after a check has been made of all schools.

The first session today was confined to assignments of lessons. All schools turned out around the noon hour.

Mr. Rose said a general teachers' meeting would be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock. No meeting was held prior to the opening of schools, this practice having been abandoned two or three years ago.

Following the general meeting, Mr. Rose said a meeting of principals would be held.

In spite of the crush of attendance and the large loads carried by the various teachers, the school head was anticipating a good year and hoped to see the largest graduating class in history leave the school at the end of the year.

RUSH TO ALTAR HAS COLLAPSED

Only One License to Wed Issued This Week Compared With 14 Last Week

In striking contrast to the previous week-end, only one applicant for marriage licenses appeared at the local office of the Register of Deeds during the past Saturday, reports indicated this morning.

The previous Saturday fourteen couples obtained licenses to marry, and virtually all sections of the county were affected by the desire to enter the field of matrimonial felicity. It was the most sweeping rush to the register's office since last Christmas holidays when an all-time record was hung up for the issuance of licenses.

Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins, who is never more happy than when taking a preliminary part in sending couples to the altar, was visibly disappointed this morning when records showed only one application for the week-end.

He is an optimist, however, and declared he looked forward to a revival of the push toward the matrimonial realm with the coming of the first of the winter holidays. In fact, with the most favorable financial situation prevailing in years, Mr. Gaskins said he believed this year would see a new record established by those stricken by Cupid's darts.

The couple that took the limelight last Saturday was Raymond Moe and Flora Wilks, colored, both of Greenville Township.

CASH PAID FOR COTTON IN NORTH CAROLINA

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 24.—North Carolina cotton growers are scheduled to get $3,646,520 in rental and parity payments in October.

This will complete the 1934 payment of $5,677,351 by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration to cotton growers in this State who signed reduction contracts, said Charles A. Sheffield, of State College, who has charge of the North Carolina cotton program.

The first half of the rental payments, amounting to more than $2,000,000, was paid this summer. The remainder is being held until the work of checking compliance with contracts is completed.

Sheffield pointed out that it may take some time to issue the huge volume of checks necessary to cover the rental and parity payments. The first checks will be issued in October, but it may be some time in November before the last check is delivered.

MAN TAKEN ON RIDE AND SLAIN AT ATLANTA

Max Sjoblom Killed and Then Robbed by Two Men Arrested By Georgia Police

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The body of Max Sjoblom, 36, of Rock Island, Ill., and Davenport, Ia., was found dead today in a wooded section of an Atlanta suburb and police advanced the theory he had been taken for a ride and murdered and robbed.

County police said the man had been shot to death in his own automobile which was found blood-stained with a bullet imbedded in the rear of the driver's head in College Park.

City Detective C. E. McCrary, going with county officers on the case, said they were booked as Hoyt Summers and Tom Riley, both of Atlanta. McCrary said Riley had confessed he and Summers jumped on the running board of Sjoblom's car at Spring and Marietta Streets and when he put up a fight they shot him twice and carried his body to a wooded spot near a church six miles from College Park and left him.

McCrary said Riley told him they abandoned the automobile at College Park where it was found yesterday. The detective said Riley also had confessed to other robberies.

Miss Mary Dirnberger Begins Work at College in Teaching of Dramatics

Miss Mary Dirnberger, of Chapel Hill, arrived in Greenville the latter part of last week to begin instruction in dramatics at East Carolina Teachers college.

Her work is being sponsored by the government in co-operation with the college and will begin immediately upon opening of the college this week.

Miss Dirnberger said here program calls for plays in Greenville and possibly other parts of the county where relief work is being carried on by those taking part in the government literacy program.

EXCESS LEAF MAY BE SOLD

Contract Growers Can Sell Surplus Tobacco by Paying Five Cents a Pound

Contract tobacco growers who have been worrying about what to do with their surplus tobacco this year saw the light of day today with announcement by the government that excess leaf may be sold with the payment of five cents a pound.

Before such sales can be made, however, it will be necessary to obtain what has been designed by the government as "Georgia allotment cards." The cards may be obtained from Raleigh through the local farm office.

E. F. Arnold, director of the local farm department, said today that all contract growers desiring to dispose of tobacco above their allotments should apply at his office for the Georgia cards and that applications will be immediately sent to Raleigh.

Under the provision, any contract farmer will be able to sell all of his surplus leaf by payment of five cents a pound. The non-signer is not affected by the provisions, as he will continue to pay 25 per cent on all tobacco sold.

Prior to the government announcement, farmers had been puzzled about what to do with their surplus tobacco, but now they have been put in the clear they are expected to go ahead with their marketing with assurance of being able to sell every ounce of leaf above their allotment.

'COMPLAINTS' TO BE CARRIED TO CAPITAL

New Rumblings of Discord Heard as Textile Workers Attempt to Return to Work in Several Sections; Loray Mill at Gastonia and Vast Erwin Chain Fail to Open; Labor Head Scores Mill Managements

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Erswhile strikers claiming themselves locked out as they sought to return to work at numerous mills, set up a new rumbling of discord in the Carolinas textile industry today. Although mills in many spots apparently were running with partly full forces and no reported friction, reports from others seemed to dash hopes for an early healing of the general textile strike wounds.

Some 300 strikers seeking to return to work in several Concord, N. C., mills marched on the courthouse and occupied it in a gesture of protest after managements, they said, had told them their jobs had been filled. Approximately half as many reported the same story in Lincoln County and planned to take their cases to Washington.

Reports that several hundred workers sought to return to their jobs at the Loray mills in Gastonia, scene of rioting in 1929, only to be told there were no openings, could not be confirmed immediately.

The mill management was silent in the face of bitter union charges that hundred of strikers had been employed under National Guard protection during the past week.

From points scattered in every direction came reports that mills had not attempted to open and mill managements in every case declined to talk of their plans.

A number of Gaston County mills reopened, but a majority of the county's 104 mills still had locked doors. Manufacturers of the area met today to discuss future plans, but declined to make any predictions.

The vast Erwin chain in Durham and Harnett counties remained tightly closed. Officials would give no hint of future plans except to say their machinery was being inspected and gone over. The Durham Hosiery Mills were reported planning to re-open late in the week.

R. R. Lawrence, president of the North Carolina Federation of Labor, said charges of discrimination were pouring into his office from Winston-Salem, Shelby, Gastonia, Roanoke Rapids and other points.

"The mill owners are doing just like they have always done," said Lawrence. "They have no respect for an agreement with anybody, not even the President of the United States. We are taking these matters up with Washington. They think they can break us through this concerted attempt, but the union will show them."

C., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Funeral rites will be held tomorrow for Weaver Nolan, 23, and Clyde Still, 21, pedestrians who were fatally injured about 11:45 o'clock Saturday night when two automobiles collided on the Greensboro-Reidsville road, near Poplar Grove, seven miles north of Greensboro.

Nolan and Still were walking beside the highway when the cars collided, one of which overturned, pinning them beneath the automobile and fatally injuring both.

Obsequies for Nolan will be conducted at the Hanes Funeral Home here at 10 o'clock, interment following in Mount Holly Cemetery. The Still funeral will be held at Smyrna Presbyterian Church in Rockingham County, near Wentworth, at 3 o'clock, and burial will be in Smyrna Cemetery.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

TIP FOR NIGHT DRIVERS Danger as well as annoyance is in store when it becomes necessary to stop for a puncture, blow-out, or engine trouble on the highway at night. If such a stop becomes necessary, drive off the pavement or road if the surface permits. It is up to you to prevent a rear-end collision with approaching vehicles, even if this demands personally signalling all approaching cars. Keep your lights on, both front and rear, and as you work with your car to repair the damage be sure to avoid obstructing head or tail lights.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK SOON

Between October 7th and 13th—Fire Prevention Week will be observed again. The week, which has become a national custom, will be formally initiated by proclamations by the President, governors of states, mayors of cities and other prominent persons in public and private life.

During the week every citizen will have a splendid opportunity to learn the fundamentals of fire prevention and control. Through speeches, newspaper and magazine articles, exhibits and other means, an intensive effort will be made to enlist the citizen's interest. He can blame no one but himself if he fails to learn.

Fire prevention is a civic duty which every citizen owes to himself and to every other person. We all pay for fire—we pay for it in lost business, destroyed jobs, higher taxes and insurance rates. On the average, each family contributes $4.00 a year as a tribute to Moloch—dollars which are destroyed as surely as if we tossed them into a stove. Worse still, three people—two adults and a child—out of each 39,000 of our population, are sacrificed to the pagan god—because we are ignorant and careless when it comes to fire.

In the past, it has often been the experience that fire losses dropped during the week and for a short period thereafter, only to rise again as the public gradually forgot the information gleaned. This year we should look forward to the week and devote a little time during it to really learning the fundamentals of fire prevention, then remember and practice them in the future.

BUSINESS SHOWS EXPANSION SIGNS

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Evidence accumulated this week that this insistent consumer is prodding sluggish industry into seasonal expansion of output.

Continued reports of better than expected retail trade, increased orders in wholesale markets, together with a marked pick-up in the movement of merchandise freight, and further expansion in the volume of bank clearings, combine to indicate this goods are going into consumption faster than they are being produced.

Industry remains quiescent. Such seasonal revival as has appeared has been rather feeble. The textile strike remains a conspicuous deterrent. President Roosevelt's personal appeal for a truce and a return to work at the end of the week lifted hopes of an early rift in the strike clouds, however.

Effects of the strike became more conspicuous in business and trade reports. Dun & Bradstreet said "acute shortages of many textile items, rapidly turning the dry-goods division (of the wholesale market) into a sellers' market." And

by JEANNE ROWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Marian Gordon, Morning Dispatch Reporter, is anxious to go to dinner with Lon Casad, who is waiting for her in front of the Dispatch building. But her managing editor demands a round of the Brown bribery trial; Marian tells him how Jonny Case, Brown's tiffed fiancee, has accused him of accepting $10,000 to pass a defective high school building, and how the girl Brown married admitted to Jonny that she knew of the bribe all along.

Chapter Two
SILVER HONDON

"BROWN insisted," Marian went on, "and proved that this ten thousand came to him from a personal friend as a loan."

"Who was the friend?"

"A fruit rancher from Sonoma county, T. T. Lawson. They put a tracer on Lawson's account, but could find no evidence that ten thousand had been paid him at any time, so the jury was forced to accept Brown's word."

"As far as I can see, Mr. Bowen, the only thing proven in this case is that Jonny thought up a neat way of getting revenge on Linda for stealing her man."

"The usual honor among women," commented Bowen adding, "present company excepted. I understand the case went to the jury this afternoon and that Jones is down of her spirit. Know Silver Hondon? Hadn't Silver made her hours of joy and misery combined; hadn't that exquisite pet of the girls' school taken everything she had ever held dear, from the kakemono Uncle Tom had brought from Japan, to her first beau?"

She thought of Lon and shivered slightly, rebuked herself for being fifty-seven varieties of a fool. She hadn't seen Silver for at least four years, not since her marriage to Cliff. It wasn't likely she'd be seeing her again, they lived such different lives.

"Yes," she answered Bowen, "I know Silver, why?"

"Did you know she was getting a divorce from her husband?" Bowen queried.

"I knew she went to Reno soon after Cliff began losing his money. I didn't think she was there for her health."

"That's a feline remark," chuckled Bowen.

"Not when you know Silver," protested Marian; "she's been living up to her name ever since I've known her."

"From what I've read of the young lady, she should have been called yellow-back or some such," contributed Sanderson. "This Reno divorce says she was given her divorce decree this afternoon."

"You know Silver Hondon, don't you?" asked Bowen.

there for us, waiting for the verdict. I want you there too. Let Jones handle the verdict. You watch Jonny Case. It may be that she has bluffed in order to discredit Brown, and it may be that she hasn't. You can tell by watching the expression on her face. Don't pay any attention to the judge or jury, watch the principals."

"We've had paving scandals, but poor pavement isn't as much a mortal hazard as poor buildings... school buildings particularly. And somehow, I've a hunch we are going to hear more of this before the summer passes."

Marian nodded and arose. She wasn't going to hear more of it, she was sure.

Lon hadn't said anything yet, but she knew; knew secretly and surely, that before the summer was over she would be Mrs. Lionel Casad with no further interest in politics or newspapers.

"By the way, Marian," asked Bowen, "have you talked this case over with your father?"

"No, I haven't been up to the ranch since the trial started."

"IAN, why do all good office holders retire to ranches?"

"In order to stay good," flashed Marian.

"You may be right, and say, who is the good looking fellow who parks in our loading zone and alights that he's there, waiting for you?"

"Lionel Casad, a friend of mine."

"Isn't he working, or doesn't he have to?"

"He isn't working at present. He wants to go into business for himself, and came out from the middle west to look this country over. He's a school friend of Dr. Al Steele, my room-mate Anne Stanton's fiancé."

"Anne still on duty at Central Emergency Hospital?"

"Yes, on the dog watch now, midnight till morning." She stepped back from the desk as Sanderson, city editor, came in with an Associated Press dispatch in his hand.

"Walt, Ian," said Bowen, "you know Silver Hondon, don't you?"

Marian looked up, a flood of apprehension flooding the former peace

according to Cram's automotive reports the strike became a factor in the decrease in automobile production, as the curtailment by the Ford Motor Company was attributed in part to body shortages created by a lack of materials.

The communique said the British would concede absolute liberty for Italian Maltese to use Italian as distinguished from Maltese.

The Malta correspondent of Rome's La Tribuna regarded this with suspicion. He wrote that conceding the mere privilege of learning Italian to a population, "which

CIRCUS STARS HAVE PETS

If you have ever wondered what big-top performers with the major glances do between shows, a glance at the accompanying photo will give you a slight idea. Of course it is only one among numerous ways they find to spend the time for there are all sorts of interesting things to do on the circus lot.

However, Anna Butler and Besse Hoy aerialists and riders of note with the big show, were caught by the cameraman entertaining "Lil-limas," a baby camel which was born in a stock car a few days ago. Her mother, one of a herd of thirty camels to be seen in the huge menagerie was imported from Egypt early last year, and this is her first season as a trouper. Over a thousand rare and costly animals will be on view in the Great Hegenbeck-Wallace double-menagerie, when the big show with its 500 men and women acrobats stars come to Greenville for performances afternoon and night, Thursday, September 27.

Five herds of elephants—40 in number and a big assemblage of nationally known funsters will be noted among innumerable other features in the big street parade at 10 o'clock show day morning. It is by far the largest and most colorful circus parade ever presented in America.

Forty Cases of More Or Less Importance On Tap For One Week Term Here

A one-week term of civil court convened here this morning with Judge R. Hunt Parker, of Roanoke Rapids, presiding.

The calendar, completed the early part of last week, contains around forty cases, the majority of which are expected to be completed by adjournment Friday afternoon.

Approximately twenty cases were cleared from the calendar about two weeks ago, several going the compromise route and the remainder being actually tried.

This is the third or fourth term of civil court held here since the latter part of August, and more are on the slate for the remainder of this year and the first of next.

Judge Parker has succeeded in speeding up the wheels of justice to no little extent the last several terms, and the end of the week probably will see the bulk of the calendar for this term completed.

Peaceful Puddle Muddle
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Now the two men were off for good and all, and all was peaceful in Puddle Muddle.

The place was in great disorder. Never had it looked more in a mud-die than it did now, but Willy Nilly did not mind.

They were all together, and even if there was a great deal to be done it was a beautiful place.

The ruts had an attractiveness of their own! The paths and roads were so uneven, so rough, so winding, with such bumps in them. The garden was all dug up. The automobile wouldn't go. The house needed a good cleaning. But each tree, each blade of grass, even the weeds of Puddle Muddle were better than the best of things anywhere else.

Willy Nilly was sure the sky was more blue here when the day was clear than over other places, and the clouds more fluffy and the sunsets grander. But then he knew he was being a foolish little man when he thought in this way. It was just that he loved Puddle Muddle and Rip, the dog, and Top Notch, the rooster, and Christopher Columbus Crow, and the ducks and the bears and the cubs, and knew that they cared for him.

"I must tell you a story," Willy Nilly told the Puddle Muddlers. "Once there was a little man and he had everything in the world because he had friends named Rip, Christopher, Jelly and Honey Bear, Blacky, Jupiter, Top Notch and Mr. and Mrs. Quacko."

"And they had everything," quacked, cawed, crowed, barked and growled the Puddle Muddlers, "because THEY HAD WILLY NILLY!"

"I'm certainly an exhausted little man," said Willy Nilly, as he sat in front of his house in Puddle Muddle, surrounded by his animal friends.

"But it doesn't seem to matter that I'm so tired," he continued. "I feel such relief and happiness that we're all together, and that we quack! let our two cubs, Blacky and Jupiter—go with the men who wanted them to act in the movies."

The cubs came close to Willy Nilly as he stood on their little hind legs, did a dance. At the same time they shouted:

"Woof, woof, we're here to stay. We're not actors anyway."

The Puddle Muddlers laughed at the little bears and all thought how impossible it would have been to let them go. They cared too much for the cubs.

"Your acts will just be for us," smiled Willy Nilly. He knew he should get at his chores. Puddle Muddle was in such a muddle. The place was all upset, they needed more food, his automobile Two-Ways had not been repaired, and then, of course, there were his ears.

When would he ever have the chance to attend to his poor, sticking-out, pointed ears? Not for a long time with all that was here now for him to do.

Just then a boy came riding his bicycle up the hill.

"Whatever does he want?" Willy Nilly wondered. Now the boy had reached the top of the hill.

"Are you Willy Nilly?" he asked. "I have a letter for you."

This speech certainly surprised the little gnome-like man who lived in Puddle Muddle. Who could be writing letters to him? It must be a mistake, he thought.

RED OAK NEWS

READ OAK NEWS. J. J. J. J. Sunday was a day long to be remembered by those who attended the Home Coming day at Red Oak Christian church. From the time Sunday school started at ten o'clock until the close of the afternoon program at three, thirty not a dull moment was spent. There were nearly one hundred present for Sunday school. Dr. Hilley of Atlantic Christian College and Mrs. J. B. Spillman of E. C. T. College both gave a most inspiring talk on our Sunday school lesson to the members of the Sunshine class. Rev. Toppins of Rosemary taught the adult class and the regular teachers had charge of the younger classes.

Dr. Hilley delivered the morning sermon which was on the topic, "Unfinished Business". This was a most inspiring sermon and was enjoyed by a large congregation.

A violin solo by a young lady from A. C. C. and a quartet by A. C. C. boys completed the morning program, after which a most bountiful dinner was spread. Needless to say that was one of the most enjoyable things we had.

After dinner we enjoyed the afternoon program. Beautiful solos, by Rev. Pitman, Mesdames James duets and quartets were rendered and Fenner Allen the Free Will Baptist quartet of Greenville and the quartet from the Atlantic Christian College. Miss Rubelle Vandorff delivered the address of welcome in her most inimitable way which was responded to by R. W. Smith of Ayden. Mr. Smith stressed the word "Home" and to impress the meaning of it more fully on our hearts he recited the poem by Edgar A. Guest "It Takes a Heap O' Living."

Mrs. Spillman then gave a splendid talk on "Christian Giving", she urged her hearers to give more freely to Christian education so that we would not have to give so much for the upkeep of correction institutions.

Short talks were given by Messrs Ed Smith and Allen Moyer from Reedy Branch church, Mrs. R. R. Tyson, from Piney Grove church, Mrs. Hawkins from Sweet Gum Grove Church, Jimmie Edwards from Timothy Church, Rev. W. H. Brunson, R. W. Smith and John from Timothy church, Rev. W. H. R. Smith from Ayden Christian church and R. S. Allen and H. C. Smith from Red Oak church.

Besides visitors from the churches first mentioned we were delighted to have friends from Farmville, Winterville, Greenville and several other places.

The most inspiring thing of the day was the baptism service for a young man and his wife who joined our church during the revival last week. This service was in the Eighth Street Christian church in Greenville. We are so glad to welcome this young couple to our church and we know their lives will be blessed by this act. Mr. Brunson extended an invitation to us to attend services at Rountree church next Wednesday night. We are planning to go if it is not raining. We hope every one from the community who can do so will attend services at Rountree's Wednesday night of this week. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Perry spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Jones near Farmville. Mr. and Mrs. Preston Phillips and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Manning Sunday.

On the second trick a spade was ruffed North. The ace of hearts put South in again for a ruff of another spade north. The lead of the king of hearts took West's last trump. Then came the ace, king and ten of clubs. West having to take the ten spot.

West then had in his hand the queen and jack of spades and the king, jack and eight of diamonds. North had four diamonds and a

West gave up the ghost without playing the hand out. If he led a spade North would ruff and the queen of diamonds would be discarded South, the declarer having trumps and the ace of diamonds for the rest of the tricks. End Play
A great assortment of kings, queens and jacks might arouse hope of setting a slam contract, but paradoxically, it might be unwise to double with such a holding. From Henry Enoch, master of Bridge House, New York, is a hand which shows the point. The holder of the honors was forced into the Enoch, holding the South cards, opened the auction with a heart and West bid with spade. North said three hearts. After East's pass, Enoch leaped to six hearts, which West promptly doubled, expecting to cash at least one king and one queen, if not more.

The opening king of spades went to South's ace. Would Enoch play the hand on the theory that after trumps were drawn one club could be lost and the queen of diamonds fished? No, sir! Not after that double West!

The thing done was to eliminate spades and clubs from the North and South hands and then after trumps were drawn put West into the lead so that either he had to lead a diamond or something which could be ruffed North and afford a parking place for the queen of dia-
