President Roosevelt To Take Up Protest Of Mill Strikers

NRA TO ALSO GET ATTENTION LATER TODAY

President Roosevelt said today that he would take up immediately—probably late today—the question of NRA reorganization on the protest of textile strikers of the discrimination by employers.

At his desk in the White House the President talked with newspaper men in a press conference after his return from his stay at Hyde Park. He did not refer to his letter of last night accepting the resignation of Hugh S. Johnson as recovery administrator.

The President emphasized again that reorganization of the NRA would be of an evolutionary nature and that changes would be made over time to time on the basis of trial and experiment. Asked about the questions submitted him by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States the President said he did not have time to answer all question put to him by various organizations. He said that in reading the questions of the Chamber of Commerce he was reminded of the lawyer who put the question in this form: "Have you stopped beating your wife?" Little doubt was left that the Chamber of Commerce would not receive a reply from the President.

Another Grower Repays Loan Here

Along with announcement yesterday that two farmers had repaid loans obtained the first of year from the Federal Land Bank of Columbia the statement today that another grower who obtained a loan in April had made part payment to the local office of the institution.

Judge F. M. Wooten, local representative of the Land Bank, said M. O. Gardner, who borrowed $3,800 in April, came to his office yesterday and paid $1,900.

TWO FARMVILLE MEN ACCUSED OF ASSAULT

Farmville, N. C., Sept. 26.—Warrants have issued for D. E. Oglesby, cashier of the Bank of Farmville, and local agent for the Commercial Insurance Company, and Judge Walker, assistant cashier, charging assault on W. L. Smith, Jr., Wilson insurance man, a former resident here. The assault is alleged to have occurred as the outcome of an incident occurring in the spring and involving a prospective customer, to whom the Farmville agency sold a policy, and which was said to have been reported by Smith to the State Insurance Commissioner as sold by Walker, who is not a licensed agent. While Smith was in the bank last Friday, he was approached by Walker regarding these charges and the alleged assault then took place, without anybody being harmed according to the reports here.

LOWER POWER RATES HOPED FOR IN N. C.

Stanley Winborne Says New Schedules Have Been Proposed And Rejected

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Stanley Winborne, State Utilities Commissioner, said today that conferences looking toward reduction in electric light and power rates in communities of North Carolina served by the Carolina Power and Light Company, have progressed to the point that new rate schedules have been proposed and rejected.

The commissioner expressed the hope that lower rates may be effected in the future to save consumers in North Carolina who are served by the concern as much as $300,000 yearly.

Report Progress In Disposing Of Bank Real Estate

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Gurney P. Hood, State Bank Commissioner, reported today that "we have been very successful in the past twelve months in disposing of real estate found among the assets of closed banks," and said the department is now making a special drive to dispose of "other real estate" not including bank buildings which are listed with the assets of 108 closed banks at a book value of $3,595,707.

"If all of this real estate can be sold between now and January 1, 1935, it will enable us to pay additional dividends to depositors and will be one more step looking to complete recovery from the depression," the commissioner said.

TWO KINSTON MEN INJURED IN COLLISION
Tarboro, N. C., Sept. 26.—I. J. Sparrow and J. W. Moore, of Kinston, were given medical aid last night in the Bass Hospital for injuries received in an automobile accident which occurred about 9 o'clock near Lawrence. A construction truck came on the highway from a side road and a collision followed. Both men were cut about their heads and suffered body bruises also. After receiving treatment they were able to leave for their home. The name of the driver of the truck was not learned today.

DOSHER WILL SPEAK HERE

Lieut-Governor of Kiwanis To Speak at Get-Together Meeting Friday

Wilbur Doshier, lieutenant-governor of the Seventh Division of Kiwanis, will be the principal speaker at the get-together meeting of Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and the Chamber of Commerce here Friday evening, it was announced today by D. C. Moore, Jr., a member of the program committee.

This will be the first visit of the lieutenant-governor to Greenville since his election to this high post. He is from Wilmington and has taken an active part in development of Kiwanis over a period of many years.

The meeting will be held with the Kiwanis Club at the Woman's Club building, and mayors and members of boards of aldermen from seven cities of this section have been invited to attend.

Although the program had not been completed today, it was said several other entertaining features would be included, among them being brief talks from the mayors of the various cities.

After the gathering Mr. Doshier is scheduled to meet with members of the board of directors of the club for discussion of work for the new year. The program is one of the most ambitious of years, and members of the club were prepared to do their part in putting it across in a big way.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

SLOW AT CORNERS

Do not approach an intersection at high speed and depend upon your brakes for a sudden stop. This is not only hard on your tires and brakes, but is also very often the cause of a rear-end collision with the driver behind you. Unless you can see perfectly in all directions, approach an intersection slowly.

DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST CITY IS NON-SUITED

$10,000 Suit Brought By Arthur Mavis, Colored, Taken off Of Calendar

A $10,000 damage suit against the city of Greenville was non-suited in civil court here yesterday because the plaintiff, Arthur Mavis, colored, of the Ballard's Cross-Roads community, failed to appear.

Although Peter Hines legal representative of the plaintiff, attempted to have the case continued, the request was refused by Judge R. Hunt Parker who declared the case had been on the calendar long enough.

Mavis filed suit against the city after he claimed to have been injured when he came in contact with a high tension wire after a storm in the Ballard's community about two years ago. The city claimed it was not responsible for the damage, and had prepared considerable evidence in preparation.

Several note actions also marked. Several other actions also marked during round notes.

They follow: J. H. Harris, Administrator, vs. J. T. Stokes and others, judgment for $500.

J. H. Harris, Administrator, vs. G. C. Carris, judgment for $400.

J. H. Harris, Administrator, vs. F. R. Worthington, $150 judgment.

J. H. Harris vs. J. B. N. L. and G. C. Worthington, action dismissed because of settlement outside of court.

Court continued work on its calendar of forty-odd cases, and there was every indication the bulk of actions would be completed during the latter part of the week when work is scheduled to come to an end.

DENIES PART IN STRIKE DEATHS

Superintendent of Honea Path Mill Says He Did Not Fire Pistol From Mill

Anderson, S. C., Sept. 25.—(AP)—Denial that he took part in the battle of Honea Path on September 6 in which seven strikers were fatally wounded, was made today by J. B. Beacham, superintendent of the Honea Path mill and mayor of the small textile town.

Two witnesses at an inquest yesterday said that Beacham stood in the rear of the mill and fired several shots from a pistol.

COMMODITY VALUES TAKE TURN UPWARD

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Market values of wheat, corn, hogs, and cotton, the four basic farm commodities defined by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration act, was shown today to be 101 per cent higher than the average of last September, 1932.

Whereas, late in April this year, the Chicago market price of commodities averaged 27 per cent higher than in April, 1932, they now average 101 per cent above the corresponding date two years ago. Early this year these prices averaged only 71.5 per cent higher than the corresponding date in 1932.

Compared with a year ago the basic farm products now average 35 per cent higher. Corn and hogs showed the greatest percentage of increase. Figures did not include $2.25 a hundred pound processing tax which after the government collection is an indirect benefit to the producers.

FARMERS BANK BUILDING SOLD

Greenville Banking & Trust Co., Announces Acquisition of Structure

Greenville Banking & Trust Company has acquired the old Farmers Bank building at the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Pitt Streets, it was made known today by W. H. Woolard, vice-president of the institution.

Mr. Woolard said the property was purchased from Z. V. Murphy who bought it at public auction some time ago. The transfer was completed yesterday, but the amount involved was not revealed.

The building was erected in 1927 and is one of the handsomest bank structures in the community. It has been occupied during the last four years by a branch of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company. The branch was opened in the locality for the convenience of patrons of the institution, Mr. Woolard said, and to improve facilities for the general expansion of business.

Mr. Woolard said the branch was opened at the request of patrons of the vicinity, and business over the four years' period had fully warranted the action.

Greenville Banking and Trust Company was established here in 1901 with capital of $10,000. Today the institution has a capital, surplus and profits of over $400,000 with deposits of nearly four million dollars.

Additional branches are operated at Bethel, Snow Hill and Bellhaven.

Plan To Attend Coal Conference

The Southern Coal conference will be held at Seaside Inn, Greensboro, October 5-6 it was announced here today.

The conference is known as the "all convention of the North Carolina Code Merchants Association in a combined meeting with the Divisional Code Authority No. 15, N. C. Inc., of the Retail Solid Fuel Industry and members and representatives of the State Retail Coal Merchants Association and the Divisional Code Authorities of Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, and South Carolina.

It was said today that several members of the industry here expected to attend the conference, considered of much importance to the industry in this as well as other states involved.

Thorn, Poland.—(AP)—A new list of German books, topped by "With Hitler on the Road to Power" by Dr. Otto Dietrich, reich's press chief, were banned here by court action under a law which forbids "public diffusion of false reports which may bring public disturbance." Hitler's own work, "My Fight," was on an earlier list.

Late News Flashes

Woman Kills Two of Her Children
Newberry, S. C., Sept. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Annit Strauss Bizzelle, 45-year-old farm woman who shot her husband to death two years ago, killed two of her children today in what apparently was a maniacal rage and set her home afire.

Martin, 17, and Annie, 12, were the children slain. Immanuel, 16, was shot in the shoulder, but fled to a neighbor's home.

By the time the neighbors reached the home it was in flames. Two bodies were taken from the house.

Mrs. Bizzelle was believed by officers to have perished in the flames herself, but her body could not be found. Physicians said the bodies taken from the burned house were those of the children.

Immanuel said he did not know how his brother and sister died. He was awakened about 6 a. m. by his mother who shot at him twice, the shots taking effect in his shoulder and arm. He ran from his home and saw the home in flames before he reached a neighbor's house.

Mrs. Bizzelle shot and killed her husband, Tom Bizzelle, on November 18, 1932, but was acquitted of murder on a plea of self defense. For some months afterward she was confined in the state asylum at (Continued on Page 4)

CIRCUS HERE ON THURSDAY

Two Mile Long Parade To Mark Appearance of Hagenbeck-Wallace Show

Preparations had been completed today for the arrival here tomorrow morning of Hagenbeck-Wallace circus which is scheduled to give two performances at Higgs' Field, near West Greenville school tomorrow afternoon and night.

The circus was playing in Kinston today and will come to Greenville tomorrow over tracks of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

For the first time in several years the circus is offering a genuine old-time street parade with innumerable gilded wagons drawn by over, four hundred horses.

The pageant is described as over two miles long and will contain hundreds of thrills for youngsters and grown-ups alike.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools, announced today that children in all schools would be turned out at 12:30 to make it possible for them to attend the afternoon performance. He said arrangements were also being made for the students to see the parade scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock. In order to accomplish the abbreviated session, Mr. Rose said that school would begin at 7:45 instead of the usual time.

Representatives of the circus were in the city today and announced completion of the route of the parade.

Leaving the circus grounds promptly at 10 o'clock the pageant will proceed down Chestnut Street to Grand Avenue; then down Pamlico Street to Fourth Street; east on Fourth Street to Pitt Street; north on Pitt Street to Evans Street; then down Evans Street and Dickinson Avenue to Paris Avenue; down Paris Avenue back to Chestnut Street and along Chestnut Street to the circus grounds.

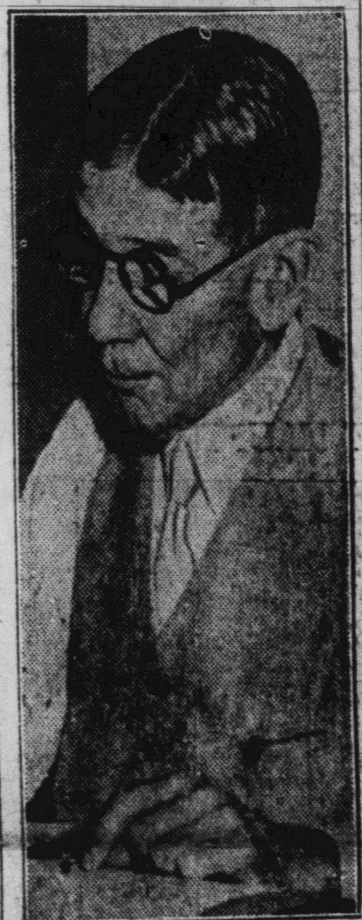

In order to carry out its schedule, the circus will reach the city at an early hour in the morning and hundreds of people desiring to get a first glimpse of the great show will be on hand to witness the unloading process.

Col. Lindbergh Appears Before N. Y. Grand Jury

Was He Right?

More than two years ago E. C. Farrer (above), handwriting expert in the treasury department, characterized the writer of ransom notes in the Lindbergh kidnaping as a methodical German carpenter. And when they finally arrested Bruno R. Hauptmann, who had $13,750 of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's ransom money buried in his garage, much importance was attached to Farrer's prediction—for Hauptmann was revealed as an alien German carpenter. (Associated Press Photo)

LEAF PRICES STILL STRONG

Greenville Market Has Paid Out Nearly Million Dollars During Past Two Days

With prices reaching the highest peak of the present season, the Greenville tobacco market paid out nearly one million dollars during the last two days, it was revealed today in the official report of sales made public by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales.

What is believed to have been a world's record for money paid out in a single day's sales was established Monday when the market paid out $528,967.68 for nearly a million and a half pounds of leaf. Yesterday $470,304.85 was received by the farmers, bringing the total for the two days to $999,272.53.

The report also showed that the market yesterday handled 1,380,530 pounds of tobacco with the general average being $34.07 per hundred.

Prices, which hit a new high Monday, continued to show renewed strength yesterday and the demand for the various grades of leaf was as good as any other time of the season.

Sales were comparatively light today, and it was indicated that floors would be cleared in readiness for tomorrow's sales during the afternoon.

In spite of the prospects of rain, sales are expected to be heavy the remainder of the week as growers rush their offerings to market to take advantage of the continued advance in prices for the leaf.

MONEY FOUND BY LABORERS EARLY TODAY

Package Containing Bills Rushed to The Grand Jury Immediately; Believed to Be Part of the Lindbergh Ransom Money; Pistol Found in Hole Back of Board In Garage

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—A Bronx County grand jury indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann today on charges of extortion as alleged receiver of the $20,000 Lindbergh ransom.

The indictment was handed up to the Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin by the Bronx County grand jury less than an hour after the jury had returned from a thirteen-day recess.

At the morning session the jury had heard from Colonel Charles Lindbergh his own story of his futile attempt to ransom his kidnaped son two and a half years ago by payment of $50,000 through Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafise" of the negotiations, to a supposed emissary of the kidnaper in St. Raymond's cemetery.

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Four rolls of bills amounting to $246, were found today in Bruno Hauptmann's garage, and District Attorney Samuel F. Foley said Hauptmann stated it was part of a bundle of money given to him for safe-keeping by the late Isadore Fisch.

"Every one of the bills is a Lindbergh certificate," Foley stated.

New York, Sept. 26.—(AP)—Police in their search of the home of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today found more money in Hauptmann's garage and rushed it to the District Attorney's office. The money was not immediately identified.

The money was found by Lieut. Martin Tobin ten minutes after a police crew of two carpenters and three laborers had begun dismantling the garage. Tobin declined for the time being to state the amount of the money found or whether he believed it a part of the Lindbergh ransom money. It was found wrapped in a burlap bag resting on a beam inside the blanking on the south side of the garage.

After announcing the find Tobin jumped into an automobile and sped toward the District Attorney's office. Persons who got a glimpse of the bag as it was rushed to the District Attorney's office estimated that the bundle was three feet in length and six inches wide.

Later it was reported that the money was found in four holes back of the board on the side of a garage having been rolled to fit the hole. Back of the board also was found a .25 calibre automatic pistol. When Tobin arrived at the county courthouse building the money was rushed to the grand jury room.

New York Sept. 25.—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was before the Bronx County grand jury today thirty minutes in the investigation of Bruno Richard Hauptmann alleged Lindbergh ransom receiver.

The fier came out of the grand jury room and was joined by Col. C. H. Norman Schwarzkopf head of the New Jersey State police who had accompanied him to New Jersey from his Englewood, N. J. home.

He smiled as he walked down the corridor and was joined by Inspector John J. Lyons Inspector McDaid and two officers. They went directly to the street.

As they walked down the corridor Colonel Schwarzkopf was asked whether Colonel Lindbergh would (Continued on page six)

News OF THE Day IN Pictures

Around the world spread the news of the Lindbergh kidnaping, and closely there followed the man-hunt touching every corner of the world. Hundreds of letters were received by authorities within a few hours, each giving some clue, each clue proving worthless. But all were investigated by the army of officials. In a frantic effort to regain their baby, the Lindberghs issued an open letter to the kidnapers pledging protection.

When the heartfelt plea proved of no avail, there entered the confused picture three strange characters. Irving Bitz and Salvatore Spitalo were named by the Lindberghs to negotiate through underworld channels for the return of the baby. Their mysterious movements in and out of the scene gave rise to speculation, but nothing else. Five days later, March 10, 1932, Morris Rosner, who was said to have close contacts with the underworld, launched an investigation.

Daily crowds swarmed around Hopewell, N. J., a little town near the Lindbergh home from which the child had been snatched. Automobiles raced in and out, newspapermen and photographers elbowed the natives and curious for vantage points. Police tramped through the streets which never had known such excitement. The name of Hopewell went to the world as a symbol of bitter grief. And still the worldwide search went on, relentlessly, untiringly. Hope that the child would be recovered alive spurred the searchers on.

From the muddle of evidence, from the whirl of investigation there emerged "Jafsie." He was Dr. John F. Condon, a New York educator, who had received a note from the kidnapers following his offer to act as intermediary. In a series of 11 advertisements in a Bronx newspaper he achieved what was considered at the time contact with the kidnapers of the child. His negotiations could not be kept entirely secret and the hopes of the world rose that they would bring the famous baby back to its mother.

STRIKE OVER, TEXTILE WORKERS GO BACK TO JOBS

Thousands of workers went back to their jobs in textile mills in the east and south as the national walkout ended. There were scattered disorders as the strike came to an end, and Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee, charged that a number of employers were discriminating against active union leaders in the re-employment of strikers. Here scores of workers are shown gathered at the offices of the Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills, Atlanta, as they went back to work. (Associated Press Photo)

STRIKERS HOMEWARD BOUND FROM INTERNMENT

Headed for home on a state highway truck after their release from the internment camp for textile strikers near Atlanta, Ga., these girls were in happy mood when the camera caught them. They and more than 100 men, who were imprisoned by national guardmen as a consequence of strike disorder at Newnan, Ga., were liberated soon after national strike leaders agreed to end the walk-out. The militia gave them free rides back to Newnan. (Associated Press Photo)

YOUNG GIRL SAID ADMITTED KILLING

Williamston, N. C., Sept. 26.—New developments indicating that Linwood Lee, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lee, of the Spring Green section, was murdered on August 18, were reported by the sheriff's office yesterday afternoon. Evelyn Purser, 11 years old and a granddaughter of Mrs. Lee, is said to have confessed the killing a few days ago.

"I shot him to see if the girl would shoot," she was quoted as saying when she confessed the killing to her grandmother. Just how the girl cleared herself following the shooting could not be learned.

Leading other members of the family at the time to believe the shooting was accidental, the girl is said to have told her mother, Mrs. Harrell, about the shooting soon after it happened. When officers went to investigate the killing, the mother is said to have sent her daughter to the home of a neighbor and she was not questioned.

THREE SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTO-TRUCK CRASH

Statesville, N. C., (Sept. 26)—In a terrific crash late last night between a big truck and a coupe on Highway 26, six miles northeast of Statesville, the car was demolished, the truck was wrecked and three people seriously injured, one probably fatally.

William Tharpe, 44, and his son, Foster Tharpe, 20, were headed north toward their home near Turnersburg, when their coupe crashed into a large southbound truck loaded with automobiles, headed for Florida. The little car was demolished when it sideswiped the rear of the truck, rebounded and struck a negro, James Leech, who was walking along the highway. The two white men and the negro were brought to the Davis Hospital in an ambulance. William Tharpe's injuries were scalp wounds and concussion of the brain; Foster Tharpe received extensive fractures of the skull, and he is in an extremely serious condition. His physician stated last night that he remains unconscious and his recovery is doubtful.

James Leech was bruised all over the body. Don Martin, of Florida, driver of the truck, escaped injury, but his truck was put out of commission temporarily.

The first residence built in General Grant Park, California, has been saved from destruction by the subscriptions of pioneers and will be used for a museum.

The Boy Waits

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"The letter is for you, isn't it?" the boy who had brought it asked of Willy Nilly.

"Yes, it's for me," answered Willy Nilly.

"What does it say, quack, quack?" quacked the ducks.

"Tells us what's in it," urged Rip, the dog, barking with excitement.

"Growl, growl, let us know quickly," growled the bears.

"I wish I could read," cawingly sighed Christopher Columbus Crow. "Then I'd perch on your shoulder and see what it said."

"That wouldn't be a nice thing to do at all," cackled Top Natch, the rooster, sharply. "You see you're not so clever. You don't know everything. You can't read."

"No more can any of us," answered Christopher. "I have enough to do without learning how to read. Besides it's not expected of me."

"And of course you only do what is expected of you," answered Top Natch.

"Well," retorted Christopher. "Willy Nilly wouldn't mind if I did read over his shoulder—that is if I could read. You know I wouldn't do anything to Willy Nilly that wouldn't be right. At least I'd try not to do anything that wasn't fair," he added, remembering that his love of mischief sometimes got the better of him.

The boy who had brought the letter was still waiting.

Willy Nilly had now read it.

"Yes, this letter is certainly for me," Willy Nilly told the boy.

"Thank you for bringing it. I've a bar of chocolate in my pocket you may care to have. I'll have to answer the letter after talking it over with my friends. It's an unusual letter."

Tomorrow—"Reading The Letter"

TEACHERS ARE BACK AT WORK

College Faculty Members Spend Vacation In Various Parts of Country

The members of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College spent the summer months in many ways, in work, study, travel or other forms of recreation. Many remained on the campus, teaching in the summer school, some teaching both terms, others only one.

Dr. I. R. Meadows, acting president, has been on the job, even when not on the campus. Immediately after the close of summer school he left to make a tour of visits to teachers' colleges throughout the South. He visited colleges at the following places: In North Carolina, Boone; in Tennessee, Memphis; in Arkansas, Conway and Arkansas; in Louisiana, Natchitoches; in Texas, Commerce and Denton. His family, who were visiting Mrs. Meadows' mother, joined him in Shelbyville, Tenn., and they made a short visit to relatives in Louisiana. They also took a prep at the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals and at the Milky Way plant.

Miss Morton spent the summer quietly at her home in Beaufort or visiting in the State.

Miss Elizabeth Smith, who acted as dean during the entire summer, spent September visiting various places in the State and in Washington City.

Dr. R. J. Slay taught Methods in Science in the University at Chapel Hill the first term of summer school, and in Duke the second term.

Dr. C. L. Adams spent six weeks in Harvard Medical School studying physiology and anatomy of the nervous system. He and Mrs. Adams toured New England and later visited relatives in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Dr. Lucille Turner and Miss Gorrill spent the summer in Europe. Dr. Turner did some research work while abroad.

Miss Lewis for three months studied art in the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts and later visited in the Virginia mountains at Martinsville.

Dr. H. C. Haynes, after receiving his Ph.D. degree in June at Peabody College, spent the remainder of the summer in Georgia.

Dr. Beecher Flanagan studied at Peabody College, receiving his Ph.D. degree in August.

J. B. Cummings taught in the Stephens F. Austin State Teachers College, at Nacogdoche, Texas. He says the temperature ranged from 100 to 110 and there was no rain during the entire summer.

Miss McGee taught in Piedmont College, Demorest, Georgia. Later she and Miss Hyman attended the World's Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Picklesimer, after the close of summer school, visited relatives in Ohio and Kentucky. Mrs. Picklesimer is teaching in Peace Institute.

Mr. Deal between the close of the summer school and the FERA intlude, he divided the time between Atlantic Beach and Greenville, S. C. The only excitement he reports is that, on the way home, he was held up by a Flying Squadron of strikers.

Mr. Henderson, after teaching the full time in the summer school took a trip to Texas.

Mr. Hollor says he spent the entire summer at his home on the outskirts of Greenville picking off sand spurs and eating watermelon. He taught in the second term of the summer school.

Dr. ReBarker and family, after the second term of the summer school, visited in Kentucky and Tennessee. Dr. McGinnis has been at his desk as registrar, all the summer.

Mr. Fort and family, after teaching throughout the summer, visited in South Carolina and took a motor trip through the mountains and Washington City.

Miss Graham, teaching in the second term of the summer school, spent a week at Carolina Pines and then helped keep open house to friends and relatives at her home in Warrenton.

Miss Holtzclaw, after the first term of summer school, took a southern cruise, visiting Cuba, Panama, Spanish Honduras, Guatemala, and New Orleans. She and Miss Greene visited Miss Davis at Toxaway.

Miss Greene, who also taught in the first term, visited in New York and Washington, then rested at her home in Abbeville, S. C. She was in Honea Path when the strike was raging.

Miss Grigsby camped in the Tennessee mountains near her home at Whitehorn, and near the Morris Dam, where she followed with interest the Tennessee Valley power development.

Miss Newell spent some time at Back Log Camp. She was at her home in Salem, N. J. the remainder of the summer, except while teaching the second term.

Miss Coates taught during the first term and in the FERA school.

She spent her vacation at her home in Smithfield and visiting in the State.

Miss Rose, after teaching the first term, attended the World's Fair and then enjoyed a family reunion in Minnesota.

Miss Hunter, after six weeks of teaching here, visited on the Peabody campus, then spent sometime in Clarksville, Tenn.

Miss Wilson says after her first term of summer school teaching she crawled into a hole with her salamanders, which means she did some work in nature study. Between times she visited in Chicago and Washington City.

Miss Hooper, after teaching in both terms of the summer school, spent her vacation at her home in Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Charlton had a quiet summer at her home in Savannah.

Miss Sommerville spent the summer in Alabama, her home State.

Miss Williams enjoyed a long vacation at her home in Greenville, Kentucky.

WATCH OUT FOR PEDESTRIANS!

Here is something that every automobile driver should keep constantly in mind: The pedestrian must always be given the right of way. He is, by comparison with the motorist, in a precarious position — when a crisis occurs, his only chance to escape unharmed often depends upon the driver of the car which is in danger of running him down.

The pedestrian accident toll constitutes one of the worst phases of our disgraceful automobile accident record. In 1933, 37.14 per cent of all motor accidents involved pedestrians. These accounted for 30.83 per cent of all injuries, and 44.95 per cent of all deaths—showing that when a pedestrian is in an accident, the chance of his being killed is greater than in any other type of automobile mishap.

This year the automobile fatality record is rising over the 1933 level, and if the present trend continues the death toll will reach a new high. And, as usual, the pedestrian continues to get the worst of it.

Every automobile driver should regard pedestrians as being his personal responsibility. You may save a fraction of a second by dashing across intersections thronged with pedestrians—but is it worth it in view of the fact that that "saving" may cost a life?

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—In all the fevered activity accompanying the "new deal" in the capital—the glamor of this and that newly-created alphabetical agency even for office space—one spot in Washington this far refuses to be disturbed.

It is the Federal building within a stone's throw of President Roosevelt's office itself, described by the architecturally-inclined as a "monstrosity." It houses the State Department.

Not that the State Department has no share or interest in the whirl of activity on and off Pennsylvania Avenue. What with negotiating "new deal" reciprocal trade agreements with other countries, furthering Mr. Roosevelt's "good neighbor" policy and the like, its share in the administration is considerable.

But the department refuses to get excited about it.

Motto: Keep Cool

It's the theory of everyone connected with the No. 1 post in the President's cabinet, from the Secretary of State on down, that no matter how much interest its individual members may feel in what occurs here or abroad the department should be run in such a manner the wildest furor will slide across State Department desks as part of regular routine.

An excellent illustration of this was to be had only recently during

Marian Gordon by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: William Brown has been accused of accepting $10,000 to pass defective work on a school building as the result of evidence gathered by Jenny Case, his sister-in-law. Marian Gordon, Daily Dispatch reporter, has been held so long on the case that she has missed a dinner date with Lon Casad, who is most important in her scheme of things. But just as the jury announces it has reached a verdict, Lon arrives in the courtroom, and Marian feels better about everything.

Chapter Four VERDICT

WILLIAM BROWN was deathly pale. He had affected an air of assurance which seemed almost grotesque when one noticed the twitching nerve in his upper cheek, and the quick clenching and unclenching of his hands.

Linda Brown, present at this important moment, seemed the more composed of the two, but Marian wondered if that composure wasn't steeled defiance of Jenny Case, who sat watching—"like Tabby waiting for me to put the saucer on the floor."

The judge was on the bench, had questioned the jurors and the foreman was on his feet, the folded slip which contained the future of William Brown in his hand.

"Cliff shot himself?" Marian repeated.

"We the jury," he said in his sonorous voice, "find the defendant, William Brown," he paused impressively, "not guilty."

A roar swept over the courtroom in spite of the rapping of the bailiff's gavel. Marian, eyes intent upon Jenny Case, saw the girl's mouth open in ludicrous astonishment. She started to arise as though to protest, then sat back, jerked there by the hand of someone beside her. "But he is guilty—" her lips formed the phrase.

Marian turned to the defendant who had stood to accept the verdict. He had sank into a chair as though his knees had suddenly given away. Linda was standing, not looking at her William, but gazing over his head, across the room at Jenny, bitter triumph in her expression.

"And that's that," remarked Marian wearily to Lon, "come on, let's get out. Jones will phone in the story, I'll report to Bowen tomorrow."

They made their way through the crowds to the street and Lou's roadster.

"Marian," said Lon, "you look worn out. I'm going to take you straight home. Ian, this work is too hard on you, I'm going to—" he stopped as a driver shot his car up on the left hand side, then cut directly in front of him, "can't talk here, I'll talk to you tomorrow night. Your day off isn't it? Anne says you have to sleep all day if she has to give you a sleeping powder, so if it's agreeable to you, I'll meet you there at five o'clock."

"It is," said Marian, delighting in this masterful assumption of authority. They had arrived before the apartment house.

"Nearly twenty hours before I see you again," he mused as he left her at the door, then, "we're going to do something about that, also."

Something in the tone of his voice brought a flush to Marian's cheeks and a starry brilliance to her eyes. She let herself into her apartment then leaned back against the door.

"Is that you, Ian?" called Anne Stanton from the dressing room.

"Who else has a key to this apartment," teased Marian, as she made her way into the mirrored cubicle.

"I don't know whom you've been giving keys to this week," returned Anne, flashing a dimpled smile. "Tired?"

"I should say," answered Marian, tossing her hat to the top shelf with expert accuracy, "going to take a hot tub and pile into bed." She was stripping as she talked and had slipped into the bathroom, before Anne, who had been taking pins from a freshly starched nurse's uniform spoke again.

"Ian, your M. E. called a few minutes ago, he wants you to call the office immediately."

"Now what?" asked Marian re-appearing in a woolly bath-robe. "Watch the tub for me, will you?"

And outgoing telephone calls alone average from 4,000 to 4,200 a day. Still, the only time State Department officials admit they get a bit rushed is when the United States and foreign governments start exchanging notes on war debts.

One RIDE is worth a thousand words

CHEVROLET If you keep up-to-date on motoring advancements you will naturally decide that a car with such modern features as Knee-Action, Body by Fisher, an 80-horsepower, valve-in-head engine, and cable-controlled brakes is a car well worth considering. So try the Ownership Test—drive this car over the same route and in the same way you drive every day. You will learn that Knee-Action does more than protect you from jolts—it provides a new and far more enjoyable ride. You will learn that the Chevrolet is a big, luxurious automobile with more speed than you will probably ever need, and with remarkable ease of control. Yes, driving is knowing—and to drive a new Chevrolet is to know that motoring has gone a long way ahead in a single year.

the feverish events in Vienna with their dramatic accompaniment of gunfire, executions and shaken governments.

At the time of this outburst, fraught with world-wide ramifications, the State Department was engaged in the task of whipping into shape the first of the "new deal" reciprocal trade treaties.

A few extra cables from George S. Messersmith, American minister to Austria, made available to the public in casual fashion through the department's division of current information, represented, outwardly at least, the only symptoms of official concern.

Off the record it was known by newsmen assigned to cover the department that Messersmith's cables (in code) were rushed post haste to all interested quarters of official Washington where they were scanned thoroughly and anxiously.

War Debts Different The last time the statistically-inclined at the department took the trouble to figure it out they found that over a period of a year three million letters, cables and telegrams were cleared (incoming) through the division of communications and rec-
