SURPRISE ARREST PREDICTED IN LINDBERGH CASE

Roosevelt Asserts Unified Attack Will End Depression

URGES LOCAL COMMUNITIES TO AID RELIEF

Tells Conference on Mobilization of Human Needs it is Privilege Rather Than Duty of Americans To Bear Share in Relief; Says Inefficiency in Government Effort to be Followed by Efficiency

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Confident that a unified attack for a little longer would master "old man depression" was expressed today by President Roosevelt in addressing the 1934 conference on the "Mobilization of Human Needs."

To the assembled leaders of the group at the White House the President emphasized it was up to local burden of relief. He called it the burden of relief. He called it the privilege rather than the duty of the individual American to bear a share in relief.

"It is that personal appeal, that personal drive, which has carried us through the trying years," he said. "Unity of effort for a little while longer will, I am confident, bring eventual success to our nationally unified effort to bring old man depression to a point where we can master and destroy him."

Mr. Roosevelt said there had been some inefficiency in the emergency effort to alleviate distress, but that he looked forward to greater efficiency.

TURNAGE WINS IN WILL CASE

Son of Late James Turnage Successful in Breaking Father's Will

A jury in civil court this afternoon held that "undue influence" was used upon the late James Turnage of Winterville in the execution of a will, and the property automatically goes to his son, John W. Turnage of Greenville, said to be the only living relative.

The jury returned its decision shortly after the noon recess today, and brought to an end the case which has held attention of the court for the last two and a half days.

Turnage alleged the property was left to persons not related to his father because they used undue influence upon him while in a state of mental incapacity. The propounders alleged no pressure was brought to bear and that the aged man was in good mental condition.

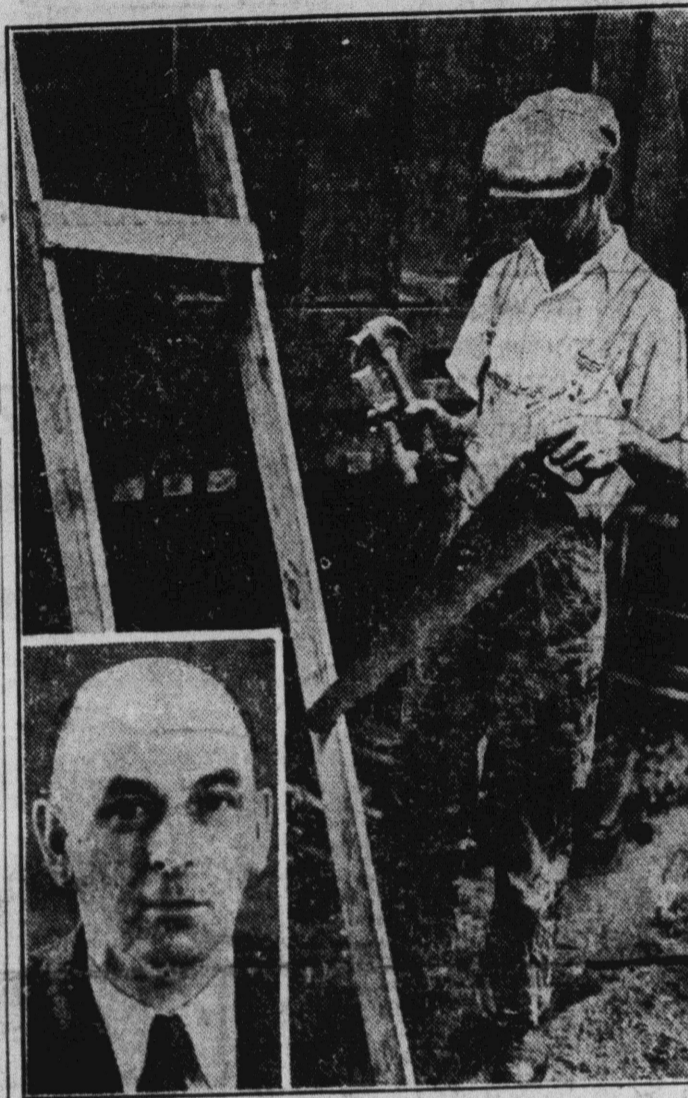

The case began two days ago, went to the jury this court recessed 10 o'clock, and when court recessed to noon, the jurors were reported to be no nearer a decision than when they started.

When Mr. Turnage died about two years ago he willed $3,000 in cash and the small amount of property to persons described by the caveat as "no relation whatever to him." The son was remembered with only a bequest of $25, and immediately took steps to break the will.

The propounders contended Mr. Turnage was in sound mental condition when the will was made and that no undue influence was brought to bear upon him.

The case was begun Wednesday morning, and has been marked by presentation of considerable evidence on both sides. Yesterday afternoon and part of the morning were featured by arguments of counsel.

REPRODUCES LINDY KIDNAP LADDER

An employe of the National Millwork and Lumber company in the Bronx, New York, is shown building a ladder like the one used to kidnap the Lindbergh baby. A study of the kidnap ladder by Arthur Kohler (inset) at the federal forest products laboratory, Madison, Wis., supplied police with clues enabling them to trace the ladder's wood to this lumber company, where Bruno Hauptmann, suspect in the case, worked shortly before and after the kidnaping. Starts Attack For Recovery In This Nation

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Roosevelt administration in a swift quickening of tempo has started an autumn attack on the recovery problem with several major moves.

Paramount among them is the President's action in placing control of NRA policies in the hands of those generally described as among the more liberal leaders of the government.

NEGRO HELD FOR ROBBERY

James Jackson, of Baltimore, Jailed Yesterday For Allegedly Snatching Money

James Jackson, colored alleged pickpocket, was taken into custody here yesterday, charged with robbing another negro, Jack Foreman, of $18 on the circus grounds in the western section of the city.

He officers said, the negro probably would be given preliminary hearing sometime today.

Jackson was said to have been attacked by Foreman after the pickpocket was snatched, and Deputy Pierce, standing nearby, took a hand and placed Jackson under arrest.

The money was returned to Foreman who was being assisted by another negro in the recovery of his money when the officer interfered.

This was the second case of pick pocketing reported in the city the last two days, a farmer the day before having been robbed of nearly $100 in the tobacco district.

Jackson told the officers he was from Baltimore, but originally lived in Farmville.

LEAF PRICES STILL CLING TO HIGH PERCH

Second Highest Average of the Season Recorded on Local Market Yesterday

Tobacco prices, which have been taking a fling with the stars here the last few weeks, continued to hold their high perch yesterday and the second highest price average of the season was recorded.

The official report of sales made public today by K. W. Cobb, market supervisor, said the market sold yesterday 1,020,966 pounds of tobacco for $362,456.88 at a general average of $35.50 a hundred. The highest average set the first of the week was $35.65 a hundred.

Mr. Cobb also gave a complete report of activities for the entire week, including yesterday, the end of the report week. For the period the market sold 6,607,152 pounds for $2,073,420.84, with an average of $34.17 a hundred.

For the same period last season, the market disposed of 7,102,048 pounds of leaf for $204,152.46, at an average of $11.32 per hundred. The report also placed season sales at 23,327,878, with farmers receiving $8,247,976.92, at an average of $29.11 per hundred.

While sales were comparatively heavy today, the market was expected to clear during the late afternoon in preparation for continued heavy offerings Monday morning and the remainder of the week.

Today's sales were expected to carry the total amount of money paid out this season to near the nine million dollar mark, the greatest sum probably ever paid out by any market for a similar length of time.

WAKE COUNTY GIRL IS SLAIN

Alva Smith, 15, Shot By Nine Year Old Brother as She prepares For School

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Alva Smith, 15-year-old daughter of James C. Smith, Wake County farmer, was instantly killed this morning as she prepared to go to school when a gun her nine-year-old brother was playing with discharged, the bullet penetrating her head above the right eye.

Coroner L. W. Waring, of Wake County, said the father of the girl, grief-stricken, had tried to take his own life and had been placed under watch and all weapons hid from him.

The girl's brother took up the rifle that had been left at the home by Jim Clark, neighbor, and while playing with the gun, it exploded. Clark who works at a dairy said he carried the gun from work each day and when he left it at Smith's house he did not know it was loaded.

Coroner Waring said he did not deem an inquest necessary. Funeral services for the girl, who joined the church Sunday and was baptised, had not been arranged.

SEES NO NEED FOR TEXTILE LABOR BOARD

Industry Spokesman Promises Co-operation To Bring Peace To Industry

Washington, D. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The cotton textile industry was pledged to co-operate in the government's efforts to carry out peace plans that ended the recent strike, but its spokesman expressed belief that the Textile Labor Relations Board named by President Roosevelt to adjudicate the dispute was unnecessary. The first word to come from the mill owners since the great textile walkout ended almost a week ago was in a statement by the industry's code authority. It was issued late yesterday by Chairman George Sloan.

The new board was already at work investigating charges there had been discrimination against workers. The industry said it agreed with President Roosevelt's request that all be employed except those who engaged in unlawful violence during the strike.

The boundaries of the new voting places are carried in official notices elsewhere in today's paper and voters throughout the two townships in position to cast their ballots in the election scheduled for November.

Fair Motorcade Visits This City

The State Fair motorcade came to Greenville this morning, told a crowd of people gathered at the High School building of the many features of the fair and then departed on the remainder of their tour of this part of the State.

In addition to a boosted talk, considerable advertising matter in connection with the fair was distributed. The State College band provided music for the occasion.

CALL FOR NEW VOTING PLACES IN TWO AREAS

Board of Elections Issues Notices For Polling Places in Greenville and Chicod

The Pitt County Board of Elections today issued notices calling for the creation of four voting precincts in Greenville Township, three in Chicod and a complete new registration in Farmville Township.

The order also provided for new registration in Greenville and Chicod Townships, to begin October 6, and be ready in ample time for the November election.

The board at a meeting in June decided the new voting places were necessary. Congestion at the single voting places in Greenville and Chicod was so great that it was almost a matter of physical impossibility to handle the vote of the two precincts with desired speed accuracy.

It required a night and part of the next day to count the ballot in Greenville in a previous election and almost as long to complete tabulations in Chicod, and action looking to the setting up of additional voting places was started immediately.

In addition to the order for the new voting places, the board also instructed that new registrations be held in Greenville and Chicod Townships. New registration books, properly typed and indexed, were also ordered.

The new registration was found necessary in Farmville Township after it was discovered that one of the registration books had been lost. The books there were also ordered to be indexed and properly typed.

Greenville and Chicod are the most populous townships in the county and the voting strength of each as a consequence is considerably heavier than any other single precinct of the county. The population in Greenville especially has increased rapidly the last several years, making it impossible to handle the tremendous vote with facility without additional balloting places. Voters and both precincts received news of the board's action with gratification and believe it will play an important part in speeding up the handling of the ballot in the forthcoming elections.

The boundaries of the new voting places are carried in official notices elsewhere in today's paper and voters throughout the two townships in position to cast their ballots in the election scheduled for November.

MAYOR WILL SPEAK TONIGHT

R. C. Flanagan One Of The Headliners At Tonight's Get-Together Meeting

A brief talk by Mayor R. C. Flanagan will be one of the headliners of the Rotary, Kiwanis and Chamber of Commerce joint meeting at the Kiwanis club in the Women's club building tonight at 8:30. It was made known today by members of the program committee.

Although the subject of Mayor Flanagan's talk had not been announced today, it was said he would present a proposition of vital concern to this part of the state.

Another of the principal attractions will be an address by Wilbur Doshier, lieutenant governor of the Seventh division of Kiwanis.

Mr. Doshier will outline some of the objectives of the organization for the new year. After the general meeting he is scheduled to meet members of the board of directors of the organization for discussion of the year's program.

Mayors, civic club presidents, chamber of commerce presidents and superintendents from water and light plants from Kinston, Wilson, New Bern, Farmville, Tarboro, Washington and Rocky Mount have been invited to attend the session and hear what Mayor Flanagan has to say in connection with the matter affecting those cities as well as other parts of the state.

The meeting has been designated as a get-together affair, but it is expected to be more than that with the mayor all set to fire his big oratorical gun in behalf of a problem described as of the utmost importance to both city and rural dwellers.

Dr. Condon Says 'Development' Expected Shortly

Late News Flashes

"Passes Buck" On Relief. Washington, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Harry Hopkins, relief administrator today served a blunt warning that States "passing the buck" on relief needs to the federal government face withdrawal of relief funds.

Examine Hauptmann. New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, indicted as the extortioner in the Lindbergh kidnap case, stole a spoon at breakfast today, broke it in four pieces and sharpened the bowl.

Sheriff John J. Handley, who with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley announced the latest development in the Hauptmann case, said with further sharpening the bowl with the spoon might have been used as a defensive weapon or one to do violence to himself. The sheriff declined to express himself as to what he believed Hauptmann intended to do with the pieces, the prisoner had hidden them in the toilet bowl and in the drain of the wash bowl of his cell.

A plan to have Hauptmann examined by a psychiatrist was announced by his counsel.

The lawyer, James M. Fawcett, made his announcement when he arrived at the Bronx county court-house to confer with District Attorney Foley but he declined to give a reason for the move.

"Does this mean that you are going to offer a defense based on insanity?" (Continued on Page six)

CLASS WORK BEGINS HERE

Nearly Thousand Students Enrolled at College as Actual Study Commences

There were 932 students reporting for classes when formal work at East Carolina Teachers College began this morning. This is not only the highest number ever reached during the regular registration period, but is in excess of any fall enrollment. The students are still coming in and will continue to come for the first two weeks of the term, when registration will close.

The number of applicants who have paid fees exceeds a thousand, and each day there are arrivals that have not made previous application. The first assembly was an inspiring sight, with the Austin auditorium filled to overflowing, with many standing outside.

Dr. Meadows, acting president, gave a warm welcome to the students in his first chapel talk to them. The absence of pedagogical advice and the human interest touches were marked feature of his talk. He made them see the advantages of college life in this particular school and those of the town of Greenville by welcoming them to share these advantages.

He welcomed them first to the city, enumerating the advantages offered by living in a live, wide-awake business town, with churches whose doors were open to them with excellent schools, a good library and many other things that make it a good place in which to live. He welcomed them to the campus, one of the most beautiful in the South with its stretches of lawn, beautiful lake and woods. He welcomed them to the life on the campus and in the college halls, to the extra-curricular activities, such as the Y. W. C. A., the literary societies, athletic league and the various clubs.

He spoke of the welcome that would be given them in the classrooms, where they found teachers second to none in the South.

As a climax, he welcomed them to the spirit of the college, that indefinable something that had made the college what it is and which they would feel and catch.

His comments on the chapter in the Bible read caught the interest of the students and made them listen with eager attention.

The ministers of the various churches will be introduced to the students at the assembly hour tomorrow morning.

TWO PERSONS ARE TRACKED BY OFFICIALS

Man Described as Stooped Shouldered And Woman of Latin Appearance Sought in Connection With Kidnap Case; "Jafsie" Declares Everybody Will be Surprised by New Development

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Dr. John S. Condon, the "Jafsie" in the Lindbergh killing case, said today: "There will be an important event shortly."

"The nature of this arrest will surprise everybody," Colonel Ohio Lindbergh's ransom emissary, predicted last night.

His declaration followed closely a statement by Department of Justice officials that they are tracking a stoop-shouldered man and woman of Latin appearance in connection with abduction of the 20-month-old Charles Lindbergh, Jr., two and a half years ago.

The stoop-shouldered man is the "John" who masking his face with a handkerchief peered into Lindbergh's automobile while the flyer awaited Dr. Condon's return from the ransom rendezvous. It was over a nearby cemetery wall that "Jafsie" passed $50,000 for the return of the baby whose battered body already had been abandoned in the woods.

Only one suspect is now under arrest, Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

LAND BANK TO HOLD MEETING

Officials to Speak At Gathering Scheduled For Here Tomorrow Morning

Julian Scarborough, president of the Federal Land Bank of Columbia, S. C., will be unable to attend the meeting of borrowers of the organization here tomorrow, but two other representatives will be present, Judge F. M. Woolen, local Land Bank representative was advised today in a telegram from President Scarborough.

The telegram advised that Judge H. D. Reed, general counsel of the organization and Alfred Scarborough, president of the bank for co-operatives in four states, will attend the gathering and discuss some of the things which the bank is doing for the general improvement of the condition of growers in all sections of the country.

The bank has loaned money to hundreds of people in Pitt and Martin counties the territory served by Judge Woolen, and every one has been advised to attend the gathering here and attempt to cooperate with the movement to bring better understanding between the bank and its borrowers.

The meeting will be held in the courthouse tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock and everybody who has obtained a loan from this source the past year was urged by Judge Woolen to be on hand to hear the two distinguished visitors.

Mr. Scarborough is a member of the Kiwanis club, and he and Judge Reed will arrive in Greenville this afternoon to be present at the Kiwanis, Rotary and Chamber of Commerce meeting here tonight.

A GOOD MOVE

The County Board of Elections today issued notice to the voters of Greenville and Chicod townships that additional polling places were being provided in these townships and new registrations will be called beginning about October 6. These additional voting places in this county will be a big improvement over the conditions of previous elections and certainly the voters in these two larger townships will find it more convenient to vote and this fact should mean a larger vote in this county in the future elections. Then too, providing the smaller polling places will mean that the vote can be tabulated in less time and will do away with the necessity of election officials having to work 24 to 36 hours on a stretch as has been the practice at the Greenville and Chicod boxes for the past several years. Although it took the election board a long time to ever put this reform into effect, it is gratifying that the step has now been taken and we believe the board by so doing has rendered a great service to the voters of the county.

Drought-Resisting Crops Brown In Unirrigated Soil

Hastings, Nebraska—(AP)—Former Congressman Fred G. Johnson is blazing a trail for farmers in the drought belt to follow.

When the drought struck Nebraska this year, Johnson began casting about for drought-resisting forage and pasture crops. Pearl millet, the Jerusalem artichoke, the kudzu vine and the Cufa or earthnut were among those selected.

He enjoyed a great measure of success in his experiments and at the Adams County fair exhibited the results of his work.

Johnson, whose farm is near here, says that in Pearl millet he believes he has found the solution to the forage problem in semi-arid districts.

Planted in May

Planting his crop late in May in unirrigated soil and, with frequent cultivation, he says the millet was the best yielder of green forage on the farm. Plants also were produced from seed planted on ridge land and given no care at all.

Pearl millet, says Johnson, is resilient to all livestock and will continue to thrive and grow all season if cut frequently.

The Jerusalem artichoke, he says, produces from 200 to 400 bushels an acre without irrigation in ordinary years and makes green fodder for ensilage almost equal to corn fodder. The artichoke is a triple purpose crop, producing ensilage, livestock feed and artichoke flour, the latter being a special favorite with hog raisers.

For Sick Stock

From Japan comes the kidsu vine which is relished by sick stock. After the third year it yields from three to ten tons an acre in forage. The earth-nut, a grassy nut-producing plant provides grass for horse hay and nuts that are excellent for poultry and swine, Johnson says.

The earth-nut is one of the best drought resisters, he adds, and, if

Marian Gordon by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: William Brown, building inspector, just has been acquitted of a charge of accepting a $10,000 bribe for passing defective work on a new high school building. Marian Gordon, Morning Dispatch reporter, returns from the trial to find that her former school friend, Silver London, has been granted a $500 divorce from Cliff London, and that Cliff has shot himself. Marian is flying to Reno to break the news to Silver, accompanied by Estes, a Dispatch photographer.

Chapter Six DIVORCE PARTY

MARIAN wondered how Silver would take the news. She tried to recall any hint of tragedy during school days, and of Silver's reaction.

There had been the time Silver's imported chow dog had been run over by a truck. Silver had seemed more angry at the driver than concerned over the dog. Marian had been the one to carry the whimpering animal to her room, summon the veterinarian, then accompany the dog to the hospital to stand by while his forelegs were put into casts.

She remembered too that after the casts had been removed and the dog moved about with a grotesque limp, Silver had discarded him with a laugh. Oh well, he was happier through the night she relaxed, slept. Estes prodded her into consciousness as they topped the divide, a moment later, pointing out Truckee below, and then not long after that, the long straight row of lights which marked Reno's thoroughfare. She was wide awake by the time the ship had taxied into the vast hangar which opened into the reception room.

Henry Marks, the Dispatch correspondent, was waiting at the door, and rushed them through without the ceremony of a greeting.

"Got to step on it," he remarked as he ushered them into his car. "We're taking the Galena Creek road over Mt. Rose. It's a little rough and may be slick on the top side but we couldn't make it in time by any other route. Hang on and pray."

Marian understood what he meant a few moments later. They had left the Carson highway and were racing, it seemed, straight for the sky. She who had ridden fire trucks, police ambulances and airplanes, gripped the side of the car and hoped the equipage would stay on the road, and she in the car.

AND then she forgot her fear. They had topped the mountain and below, spread out like a crinkled piece of silver paper, lay the moon-washed Lake Tahoe, rimmed with than he had ever been with her. He spent serenely glorious days on the Gordon ranch, chasing cotton tails he could never catch, because his hop so closely resembled their own.

Perhaps marriage, four years of living in unity with another being, had taught her something, softened her. Husbands were more important than pets. Yet, Marian believed one could gauge much of a person's character by their treatment of animals. That made her think of Lon and his Hero, the big golden blond German shepherd who rode about with him when she wasn't in the car. She must see he wasn't deprived of his rides. The three of them could ride in that wide seat.

They were circling Sacramento. She put her thoughts aside like so many cards as they landed. A messenger was waiting for her with a wire. From Bowen probably. She hesitated a moment before opening it, then did and read:

"Headon holding his own. May last through night. Effect reconciliation. Bowen."

Marian handed the wire to Estes, who read it with a queer little snort of disgust. "He must think you're Dan Cupid's twin sister," he remarked.

MARIAN smiled, but she was relieved that her word to Silver wouldn't be one of death. She relaxed, as they took off again, and when the stewardess came with sandwiches, salad and coffee, found her early evening appetite had returned.

Refreshed, she leaned back, determined to enjoy the trip. Dark blue sky above, a lazy old moon working its way up from the hills below and ahead of them. The far flash of beacons wheeling white rays against the silvered tips of the Sierras, or punctuating the landscape with dots of red and blue.

Somewhere down there was her home. Its planted acres spread out like a tattered crazy quilt with pines and redwoods for a fringe. She wondered if the family would bear the roar of the ship and remark, "There goes the east bound," never realizing she was in it.

Lulled by the rush of the ship planted in sandy loam soil, should produce one hundred bushels to the acre.

SUES FOR $20,000 BECAUSE OF INJURIES

Goldboro, N. C., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Bee Jones Outlaw, of Duplin County, has filed suit in Wayne Superior Court against D. F. Ingram for $20,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been received when a car in which she was riding with her husband, Magnus Outlaw, on July 1, was in collision with a car driven by the defendant on the highway ten miles north of Goldboro. The complaint alleges that the defendant drove from a side road into the highway, striking the car in which the plaintiff was riding, injuring her back.

INDIAN CHILDREN TO GET MILK FOR FIRST TIME

Tama, Ia.—(AP)—There's a delicacy in store for the Mesquakie Indian children on the Tama reservation here—cow's milk.

Few of the children have ever tasted it, as not one of the nearly 400 Indians on the reservation owns a cow.

Now, thanks to the AAA, 50 head of milk cows are to be shipped to the reservation from drought areas.

Among other things, O. C. Culver, agency farmer, says it will be necessary to teach the Indians how to milk the cows and how to care for them.

The cows are to be owned by the Indians individually on the provision that they return a calf from the cow to the AAA in three years.

ESSAY CONTEST FEATURES FETE OF GOLD DISCOVERY

Gass Valley, Cal.—(AP)—A few months ago James Marshall found the flakes of gold which precipitated California's gold rush, he headed an invasion of '49ers into Nevada county.

As a result, only seven times in 48 years has the county failed to produce more than $2,000,000 worth of gold. The grand total is estimated at about $272,000,000.

An essay writing contest will feature the district's celebration of "Discovery Day", October 27-28— which might suggest to some that times have changed since the hectic days of You Bet, Hangtown, Red Dog and Bidwell's Bar.

PLANE DROPS MACHINERY AT INACCESSIBLE SPOT

Valdez, Alaska.—(AP)—Parachutes have been introduced into the delivery service of mining machinery parts in the hills 15 miles from here. An airplane and two chutes were used in getting equipment to an almost inaccessible spot 5,000 feet above sea level. The job was completed in about an hour and a half.

An engine was taken apart, the most fragile parts being wrapped in mattresses, and then dropped over the mining site in chutes from an elevation of about 300 feet. The heaviest piece weighing about 250 pounds, was dropped in the snow to prevent breakage.

KITCHEN DANGER SPOT FOR HOME ACCIDENTS

Urbana, Ill.—(AP)—Keep out of the kitchen and avoid accidents, says Gladys J. Ward, home management specialist of the University of Illinois, to housewives.

It is filled with equipment and utensils capable of inflicting serious and sometimes fatal injuries, says she, and cites a survey showing that at least half of the accidents occurring in the home take place in the kitchen.

The world's production of diamonds in 1933 was approximately 3,775,000 carats, worth about $14,100,000.

YOUNG MAN KILLED BY FATHER-IN-LAW

Laurinburg, Sept. 28.—Rupert R. W. Powell, 35, was killed by Peter Pate, his father-in-law, at the latter's home late yesterday afternoon. Domestic trouble was said to have led to the tragedy. According to best available information young Powell showed up at the home of his father-in-law and was asked by the latter what he was doing there. Powell jerked a pistol out of the bosom of his shirt and fired but missed. Mrs. Powell and a woman friend, who had been sitting on the porch, fled around the house. They said they heard the report of another gun. Powell was found dying.

The older man had shot him from the window of his home, the load from a shotgun taking effect under Powell's arm. A coroner's jury is investigating.

BOY'S BODY FOUND IN PILE OF COTTON

Rocky Mount, N. C., Sept. 28.—Mystery said surrounded the death of thirteen-year-old boy whose body was found stuffed in a pile of cotton early yesterday afternoon near the home in Edgecombe County.

The child, Ernest Walton Dempsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dempsey, who live near this city, disappeared from the home shortly after 10 o'clock yesterday morning and the body was discovered by the mother about noon.

Dr. J. G. Raby, Edgecombe County coroner, was summoned and a jury late yesterday afternoon had failed to agree on a verdict and the investigation was ordered continued.

The body had been placed head downward in a pile of cotton in an outhouse and examination revealed no signs of violence.

The boy attended a grammar school in this city and was well liked by his playmates. His father holds a responsible position with the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

PINEVILLE WOMAN KILLED IN COLLISION

Pineville, N. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Sam White, 50, wife of a filling station operator here, was killed instantly early today in an automobile collision two miles from here.

Jasper Burrage, of Charlotte, who was driving Mrs. White's automobile, told police it was struck by a large sedan occupied by four negroes who fled after the accident.

At the time of the accident, Mrs. White and Burrage were returning from Fort Bragg where they had gone last night to take her son, Private Jim White, back to camp.

The tonnage of cargo handled at the Oakland, California, port has increased 107 per cent since 1928 to a total of 656,334 tons the last year.

Reading The Letter

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The boy had hoped he would hear what was inside the letter, as every one in the next village had asked him to come back and tell.

The letter for Willy Nilly had been sent special delivery, and this boy, who lived in the village beyond the nearest one to Puddle Muddle, had been told to take it to Willy Nilly on his bicycle.

He had never visited Puddle Muddle before and he was very much interested in it. The village where he lived had a post office, whereas the one next to Puddle Muddle only had boxes in front of the people's farms. It was really almost too small and too scattered to be called a village.

But the boy was pleased at receiving the bar of chocolate, so now he was off, eager to tell how Willy Nilly had received the letter.

"Now," said Willy Nilly, "we must all share the letter, and decide what we think about the request."

The Puddle Muddlers eagerly sat around and waited to hear.

"The letter is from a fire department of a little town."

"What?" quacked and growled and berked and cawed and crowed the Puddle Muddlers.

"Yes," repeated Willy Nilly, "it's from a fire department chief."

"I should like to meet him!" quacked Fire Chief Quacko Duck.

"Does he say he wants to meet me?" "No," answered Willy Nilly.

"There, you see you're not so important," cackled Top Not.

"Be quiet!" growled Jelly Bear.

"We'll never hear the letter if we interrupt."

"I'll read it all aloud to you," said Willy Nilly.

Willy Nilly now read the letter through without any further interruption. This was what it said:

Dear Willy Nilly:

"We have heard about you and your animal friends in Puddle Muddle, and that you can understand the language of all animals."

"For some time we have had a very up-to-date fire department instead of our old-fashioned engine and hook-and-ladder which were drawn by horses. We had three horses, and a farmer in the neighborhood asked for two of them. But we still have one horse and no one seems to want him."

"We are so grateful to this horse for all the work he has done in the past that we cannot bear to sell him. He might get an owner who wasn't kind to him. He might have to end his days doing work that was too hard for him."

"He is not too old to do some work and he would be glad, we know, to do his share. But we want to feel that he has good care and devotion. You will like him, we know."

"At a meeting held the other night it was decided to pension this horse for life in return for the magnificent work he did for us in the past. So we have made a collection and there is enough money to take care of him always, and this we would give to you so that he would not be an expense to you.

"At the same time he will help you. There is no one around here now who needs another horse, so may we hear from you as soon as possible? We trust your answer will be 'Yes.'"

"Yours sincerely, Fire Chief Crabapple."

CIRCUS DRAWS LARGE CROWDS

Hagenbeck - Wallace Show Leaves For Washington After 2 Performances Here

The Hagenbeck-Wallace circus has come and gone, but it will be many a day before Greenville people forget the two fine performances here yesterday.

Almost capacity crowds were present at both afternoon and evening shows and enjoyed the varied features offered in a program extending two and a half hours or more.

The circus left here for Washington where it is scheduled for two performances today.

The two-mile parade scheduled for yesterday morning at 10 o'clock had to be abandoned by the show people when several of the parade wagons bogged in mud on the show-ground short after the arrival here. So serious was the situation that loads of paraphernalia had to be transferred to lighter vehicles and transported to the center of the show grounds where the main attraction held forth.

Thousands of people from many miles around had gathered along the streets to witness the pageant, described as one of the most spectacular and brilliant ever put on by a circus in this part of the country. They were keenly disappointed when informed after an hour or so of waiting that it would be impossible for the pageant to be staged because of the inability to move the large parade wagons.

The show is described as one of the greatest live animal attractions on the road, and it lived up to the reputation in every sense of the word. Hundreds of animals filled the menagerie and were viewed with admiration and wonder by the thousands who filed through to the big show.

Captain Clyde Beatty, said to be the youngest lion tamer in the world, was the main attraction of the "big top." Walking into a cage containing two-score lions and tigers, the young trainer demonstrated his ability to handle the vicious beasts with astonishing skill. He put one large tiger through a series of tricks that drew expressions of admiration from the crowds.

The new opening spectacle, "Persia," was a gorgeous display of Oriental splendor, including numbers of dances by brilliantly dressed women. Music reminiscent of the Orient was mingled with the dance numbers.

Aerial acts and other acrobatic features marked the performances in addition to some of the best trained horses, elephants, seals, and ponies ever seen here. Numbers of clowns, ambassadors of fun, were on hand throughout the show and evoked considerable laughter with their unique costumes and funny tricks.

Then the News

"How about it, general?" comes the cry.

"I have an important statement to make, gentlemen. Then I am going to let you photograph the prisoner and the money," says General O'Ryan.

A hundred reporters wait breathlessly. Camera in readiness, the photographers are poised for Hauptmann's arrival.

Now the statement—the name of the man, his identity, his capture. Reporters shout question: "Did he

Drama Follows Arrest In Lindbergh Tragedy

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York.—(AP)—It is 4 p. m. in Greenwich Street and the steel gates that barricade the entrance to the vaulted courtyard of Greenwich police station buckle, but do not give, as the mob strains and tugs to catch a glimpse of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the man who is charged with receiving the Lindbergh ransom money.

But they do not see Hauptmann. He is high in a secret chamber, ringed by accusers, tight-lipped, adamant.

They see, instead, scores of men with yellow cards in their hats, and scores of others with rectangular contraptions with flashlights bulbs attached. These are the reporters and photographers called to the spot to record the climactic chapter in the biggest kidnap story the newspapers ever ran.

Nightsticks Welded

They see dozens of policemen and plainclothes men come and go in a continual stream. They see stout coppers rap skulls with their nightsticks when the crush at the barricade becomes too great.

Inside, in the courtyard, the reporters and photographers are tense and waiting. They take stock of the surroundings, wondering how they will manage to break through that crowd and reach telephones when the flash comes.

Heavy footsteps resound in the hallway. But it is only a plainclothesman. He goes directly to four detectives who stand at the door of a 1932 model car—the automobile that was said to have been stolen somewhere in New Jersey the night before Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped.

General Waiting

He nods significantly. There is a shout, and through a confused babel comes the long awaited announcement:

"The general is waiting, boys."

"Show your passes! Show your police cards!" yells a policeman standing in the gloomy stone doorway.

The rush is on. Through the corridor, a turn to the left, up three flights of twisting stairs. On pell-mell through another corridor and finally into a small court-room where sit the three chiefs.

Tense, but radiating satisfaction, ironed-haired Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan faces the press. At his left sits Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of New Jersey State police, and at his right, J. Edgar Hoover of the division of investigation, department of justice.

Then the News

"How about it, general?" comes the cry.

"I have an important statement to make, gentlemen. Then I am going to let you photograph the prisoner and the money," says General O'Ryan.

A hundred reporters wait breathlessly. Camera in readiness, the photographers are poised for Hauptmann's arrival.

Now the statement—the name of the man, his identity, his capture. Reporters shout question: "Did he confess?" "Did he kill the baby?" "Get ready to photograph the prisoner," the commissioner says.

Cameras Focused

Somebody lifts an extra chair onto the raised stand where the three chiefs sit. A reporter jumps into it for a second so the photographer can focus cameras.

Suddenly—as if by some pre-arranged signal—the stir and confusion cease. Every eye is trained on the door.

Hauptmann is lead into the room.

FREE FOR 24 HOURS. PILES UP MORE TIME

Durham, N. C., Sept. 28.—Twenty-four hours of freedom after his escape from a local State highway camp, will probably cost Jack Ray, 23-year-old Durham County man, a few years at the camp for the various acts he committed during his impromptu A. W. O. L.

Escaping from the camp, Ray made his way to Goldsboro where he allegedly stole an automobile. He drove the automobile through the streets of Durham in an intoxicated condition. Disregarding orders to stop, he sped beyond the city limits.

Finally run down, he resisted arrest. Tried this morning for driving an automobile while intoxicated, the case was not pressed in order that he might be turned over to Goldsboro officers for the larceny of the automobile. Ray was serving a two-year sentence, at the time of his escape, for the larceny of another automobile. He has served about six months of the sentence.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, three points higher to two points lower on trade buying of near months and Southern hedge selling of the late positions.

There was little interest on the buying side and prices sagged about three to five points from the initial levels. After selling back to a few points below yesterday's closing levels the market held about steady and December which sold off from 12.50 to 12.45 recovered to 12.48 with the general market about one to four points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

The market developed renewed weakness later in the forenoon and sold off into further new low ground for the season. The decline of December to 12.41 and of May from 12.67 to 12.61, or to net losses of six or eight points brought in some trade price-fixing and prices recovered four or five points from the lows by mid-day.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Index price movements were the rule in most of the today's full financial markets.

Stocks were dull and somewhat irregular under profit-taking on the "good" news of the new margin rules which were about in line with expectations. Stimulating influences appeared to be lacking.

The metal shares came back rather substantially. Support from some of the metal issues followed an advance of 3-8 of a cent an ounce in bar silver to 50 cents. American Telephone and Gas dropped about one point each.

U. S. Steel reacted fractionally while General Motors and New York Central were steady. U. S. Smelting rose four points. 8he late tone was irregular.

Transfers were 560,000 shares.
