Deputy Sheriffs Jailed In Shooting In Textile Strike

RUSHED OUT OF MILL AREA FOR PROTECTION

Several Thousand Citizens Roused Over Shooting at Bridgeport Surround Jail; Officers Spirited To Another Jail to Prevent Possible Disorders

Bridgeport, Pa., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Five sheriff's deputies arrested after a bystander was shot to death during a textile outbreak were in the Norristown jail today for protection from several thousand aroused citizens.

Elwood Quirk, 23, was shot in the disturbance at the James Lees & Sons Textile Mill yesterday as officers escorted workers from the plant through a crowd of strikers and died later in the hospital.

The five deputies took refuge in the mill where police arrested them on a charge of homicide.

With thousands of men menacing Bridgeport borough, all the deputies were hustled instead to Norristown, only to be followed by the crowd that surrounded the jail. Officials said "all is quiet" early today.

PITT FARMER KILLS HIMSELF

Paul Dail Fires .22 Calibre Bullet Thru His Head at Home Near Stokes

Paul Dail, farmer, committed suicide yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock by firing a bullet from a .22 calibre rifle through his forehead at his home three miles from Stokes. Death was described as instantaneous.

The act was ascribed to poor health and financial troubles over which Dail had been worrying for the last year or so.

Coroner A. A. Ellwanger, viewed the body shortly afterward and held an inquest unnecessary because, he said, it was a plain case of suicide.

Dail and his wife were grading tobacco at a barn near the home when he suddenly complained of feeling unwell and told his wife he was going to the house.

Shortly after he reached the house Mrs. Dail told Coroner Ellwanger she heard the body of her husband hit the floor and rushed to the house to see what was the matter. She found the body on the floor with the rifle lying nearby. Life was already extinct.

Funeral services were held from the late home this afternoon at 3 o'clock and burial was made in the Mizelle burial ground near Lees, former home of the deceased.

Dail had been living in the Stokes community for a number of years and was engaged in farming. Prior to coming to this county he lived in the Parmele and Lees communities.

He is survived by his wife and eleven children, Roy, Clifton, Artis, Garland, Jesse, Charlie, Heber, Ernest and Miss Berdine Lees, all of the home place. Surviving also are four brothers and five sisters, John Dail, Durham, Bonnie Dail, Hassell, Louis and Arthur Dail, of Parmele, and Mrs. Will Stocks, of Ayden, Mrs. Scott Haskins, of Roanoke Rapids, Mrs. Robert Edmundson, Edwards, Mrs. Lawson Hutchinson and Mrs. Fred Jones, of Parmele.

LOSS BY FIRE IN THIS CITY

Fire Department Co-operating in Observance of Fire Prevention Week

Fire Prevention Week will be observed throughout the nation next week and citizens of all communities have been called on by President Roosevelt and the governors of the various states to do their bit in helping cut down the annual loss by fire.

Along with the observance George Gardner, chief of the local fire department, today called attention of the public to the proclamations issued by the President and governor, and urged everybody to give due attention to fire hazards during the week.

The fire loss in Greenville dropped from $200,834 in 1931 to $33,841 in 1934, and indications, Chief Gardner said today, are that the loss this year will be considerably below that of last year.

Mr. Gardner said the loss so far recorded this year was $5,563, about $28,000 less than the previous year. The statement covers the first nine months of the year and barring unusually large fires during the last three months the toll here is going to reflect a pronounced decrease.

Disastrous fires last year cost North Carolina alone $7,000,000, a report from the State Department in connection with Fire Prevention Week stated. The national loss is $327,000,000 annually. It was said that 10,000 people lost their lives in blazes throughout the country during the past year.

Chief Gardner urged the public to give due attention to hazards during the week and help establish the lowest record of years here.

President Roosevelt's proclamation follows:

"Disastrous fires destroy each year property of many kinds to a total greater than the whole value of property in the nation in the days of our forefathers. This loss seriously offsets our normal gain in national assets.

"It is a simple obligation of every citizen to realize, knowing this, that a large proportion of these fires can be prevented by the exercise of proper care and by the use of appropriate fire-prevention measures.

"I call special attention to the unfortunate fact that a very large percentage of fires in every part of the nation is caused by acts of individual carelessness and that millions of dollars' worth of property could be preserved each year by the realization on the part of the individual of his or her responsibility to the community.

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and designate the week beginning October 7, 1934, as Fire Prevention Week, and I particularly urge state and municipal officials, civic and commercial organizations, school authorities, the clergy, and the press to emphasize the danger of fire and needless waste caused by fire and to encourage the study of ways and means whereby fire hazards and the disastrous consequences of fire may be prevented as far as possible.

"I Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

CITY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE JUMPS HERE

White Schools Show Increase of 200 Over Last Year and Colored About 150

A pronounced increase of attendance at both white and colored schools was announced today by J. H. Rose, superintendent, following a check of enrollment figures shortly after the opening of the various institutions last week.

White schools showed an increase of about 200 and all colored schools about 150.

Enrollment at the high school for whites this year was 491 as compared with 420 the previous year. Elementary school figures were given as 1,675 as compared with 1,545 the previous session.

Colored school figures were 1,100, against 950 for the former session. Mr. Rose said that when the harvest season is over the colored school enrollment was expected to jump to approximately 1,500.

All schools have been congested for the last several years and this condition has been more noticeable this year with the general increase of attendance at all schools. Teachers' loads this year in many instances, are greater than the previous year, but teachers were reported to be pushing ahead rapidly with their work hoping to make the term as successful as the previous one.

TWO LAWYERS IN FIST FIGHT

Prominent Barristers Cited For Contempt Of Court at Winston-Salem Today

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Fred M. Parrish and John J. Ingle, prominent local attorneys, who are charged with engaging in a fist fight in the Forsyth courtroom yesterday, were cited today for contempt of court.

Judge Oscar Efrid, who was out of the courtroom when the fight occurred, cited them to appear before him today and show cause why they should not be held for contempt of court.

The attorneys, rivals in a civil case, had conferred outside the courtroom on a possible settlement. Entering the courtroom they engaged in a heated verbal exchange of words which led to Parrish attacking Ingle.

CIVIL COURT WILL SIT HERE IN NOVEMBER

One Month Break in Term Causes Elation Among Court Attaches Here

Superior court officials today were looking forward to a little "breathing spell" after several sittings of civil and criminal court here the last two months.

With the next term scheduled for November court attaches expected to take this month off catching up with the records, and clearing the docket for the great volume of work to come during the remainder of the year.

During the several terms of court here during August and September around 300 or more civil cases were cleared from the slate along with probably a hundred criminal actions.

The terms came so close together that employees in the office of the clerk of court were not able to clear up work from one term before another opened.

Clerk J. F. Harrington today was smiling broadly with the prospect of a breathing spell ahead, and declared he was going to clean his slate as far as possible before the beginning of another term.

A one-week term of civil court was concluded here last Friday and records indicated the handling of around thirty or more cases of the fifty-case calendar.

County court will hold the spotlight during the month or more break in higher court terms and numbers of cases were expected to be marked completed during these sittings. Approximately twenty cases were heard during the sitting here Tuesday, but it is not believed the docket will be as heavy next week by reason of the fact that court will not have to be idle a week as it was during the Superior court sessions.

HAVANA SCENE NEW TROUBLE

Disorders Quelled Today Without Casualties; City Quiet But Tense Today

Havana, Oct. 4.—(AP)—A double-barreled outbreak of terrorist bombings in Cuba's two largest cities—Havana and Santiago—ended at dawn today without casualties.

Squadrons of cavalry clattered through Santiago last night and took control of the streets after electric light and power lines had been slashed, making nervous citizens extremely anxious.

More than twelve bombs exploded in the city. Motion picture houses and other public places were closed immediately. Terrorists were protesting the inauguration of Dr. Ernesto Ganivet as mayor. Radicals opposed him because they claimed he is an attorney for banking interests and United States firms.

Some eighteen bombs went off in Havana, but most of them were small.

Army forces and Havana police were on duty and night stick checked suspicious persons loitering along the streets. There was a slight disturbance in Central Park. Soldiers and police were reported to have struck several persons who were reluctant to obey orders.

KIDNAPPERS SENT TO PEN

Nine Years Each Given Harry Copper-Smith and Quint Carter at Columbia

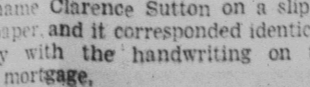

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Sentences of nine years each in the Atlanta penitentiary today confronted Harry Copper-Smith and Quint Carter, both of Portlick, Va., after they had pleaded in Federal Court here to kidnaping Will Morrisette last August 6 and taking him across the line into Virginia.

The defendants drew several other sentences, in connection with their crime, but they will run concurrently. Five other men are charged with kidnaping Morrisette and beating him for aiding in the seizure and destruction of a liquor still, but they have never been apprehended.

FOREST FIRE LOSS LOW IN SEPTEMBER

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 4.—Favorable weather during the month of August was instrumental in reducing losses from the forest fires in North Carolina to the lowest figures for any month within recent years, according to a report issued yesterday by the Department of Conservation and Development. The report showed a total of only four fires for the month in counties which co-operate in fire prevention work, these being held to unusually small areas by the wardens. Twenty-two acres were burned over and the estimated damage was only $48. Smokers are charged with setting two of the fires the cause of one was placed in the miscellaneous column and the fourth was set by lightning. One fire each occurred in the first, second, fourth and fifth districts. Although forest fire losses have been low during the last several months, forestry officials learned that destructive flames may be expected as the full season advances and the woods dry out unless the public co-operates by preventing the outbreak of fires.

SEASON LEAF AVERAGE $30 ON THIS MOUNT

Total Amount of Money Paid Out on Greenville Market Near $10,000,000

The total amount of money paid out on the Greenville tobacco market neared the ten million dollar mark with indications the end of the week will see that figure passed.

The official report of sales made public this morning, by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales, showed the market to date had paid out $9,691,987.50 to the growers of this district with an average of $30.12 a hundred. The average is nearly three times as great as that for the previous period last season, indicating to some extent the rapid advance made in the price situation this year.

Mr. Cobb gave the total amount of tobacco handled here this season as 32,176,734 pounds.

Sales yesterday were among the lightest of the season, the supervisor said, and indications were the same conditions would hold forth today. Work today was expected to be completed shortly after the noon hour. Sales yesterday were given as 565,972 pounds for $19,776.24, an average of $35 a hundred.

Prices reached the highest level of the season here the first of the week, and averages went beyond the $39 a hundred mark. The situation continued favorable yesterday and today.

In view of the fact that tomorrow expected a heavy break would be the order of the day, and everybody was looking forward to a continuance of the splendid prices which have brought joy to the hearts of ends activities for the week it was growers throughout the season.

FUND DRIVE STARTED BY TRADE BODY

Campaign Committee For Eastern Carolina Association Begins Canvass Today

Judge Dink James, chairman of the Greenville section of the Eastern North Carolina Association "Forward Movement," and his contingent of local business men will go forth this morning seeking the support of the citizenship of Greenville and Pitt County in order that the association will be equipped to carry on its program of development for this part of the State.

The executive committee composed of Judge James, John Mitchell, W. H. Woodard, L. A. Stroud, and J. H. E. Hunt met Tuesday night to perfect the organization of the campaign workers. The committee has called upon the following business men who will take two or three hours from their own business Thursday, Friday and Saturday to raise Greenville's portion of necessary revenue:

Dave Turner, P. L. Goodson, Julian White, R. L. Powell, Dave C. Moore, A. J. Rock, Herbel Waldrop, A. A. Ellwanger, S. G. Wilkerson, John Mitchell, Charles Horne, T. T. Hollingsworth, B. B. Suggs, Guy V. Smith, N. O. Nettwick, H. L. Omond, J. B. Smith, Joe Tate, W. Z. Morton, T. Y. Walker, J. A. Watson, John G. Clark, C. Heber Forbes, H. L. Hodges, W. H. Dail, A. M. Moxley, Dr. K. B. Pace, Dr. W. I. Weston, Dr. A. M. Schulz, K. W. Cobb, B. W. Boskie, J. W. Mann, H. H. Duncan, L. W. Netherland, R. M. Garrett, Hoke Bags, and J. H. Ross.

The fiscal year of the expanded organization will date from October 1. Greenville's quota is $3,500. Next week a similar drive will be launched in Wilson to be followed by similar efforts all over the territory.

In commenting upon the work Judge James of the executive committee said last night:

"I am surprised how few of the people of this area realize the splendid work Eastern North Carolina Association, Inc. is doing. I am sure when the people in the counties which it serves are informed as to the constructive work it has done and the well-rounded program it will pursue for the good of all Eastern North Carolina over the next three-year period, the association will receive both the numerical and financial support, enabling it to become a powerful weapon both for development of our territory and as an agency which can mobilize quickly in a crisis to defeat any movement proposed detrimental to this section of the State."

District Attorney Foley Says Hauptmann Can Reproduce Sections of Lindbergh Estate From Memory; Alleged Slayer Also Fished in Several Areas of Kidnap Zone in New Jersey

New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—District Attorney Samuel Foley announced today that investigators had found in Bruno Richard Hauptmann's trunk a road map of the Sourland Mountain section of New Jersey where the estate of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh is located.

Foley also stated that Hauptmann is able to reproduce certain sections of the Hauptmann territory from memory, even down to the smallest intersection forks of roads.

"We also found in this trunk," Foley said, "an English-German dictionary of the 1,000 most commonly used words. The more difficult words appearing in the ransom note were in the dictionary, and this to some extent confirmed the theory that Hauptmann misspelled a number of the smaller words while the more difficult words were written correctly and indicated he looked up the spelling of the harder words in the dictionary."

"We know now," the Bronx prosecutor said, "that he fished in those sections. He also had road maps covering the territory around Jay Head, Buzzard's Bay, Elizabeth Island and Martha's Vineyard. We also are able to show that Hauptmann fished in these sections also."

The Bronx district attorney has consistently refused to discuss a possible New Jersey kidnaping or murder case. However, he did say that "We have never contended the baby was never in New England; in fact, we are going to prove it was not."

Foley stated Hauptmann's road maps covered sections in the kidnaping and murder investigation. The prosecutor said no new witnesses were brought to his office today for questioning. "We are concentrating all our energies on preparations for trial," he said.

Foley also said he had received official notice of the calling of a hunchtown, New Jersey, grand jury to meet a week from today to consider charges against Hauptmann. The trial filed in the Bronx is scheduled to start the same day.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: When Marian Gordon tells her old school friend, Silver, that she has divorced her husband, Silver is angry. Cliff Hamilton, who only wanted, according to Silver, to make his former wife lose face with the world, Marian telephones her sister and learns that Cliff may live. At that moment, Lon Casad, whom Marian loves better than anyone, arrives. He has followed Marian all the way to Reno—but Silver catches sight of him as soon as he arrives. Silver asks Marian to tell Lon about the situation.

Chapter 11 CHARMING LON

ION looked at Marian expectantly, but she remained silent. "Jan," prompted Silver.

"Why not let her tell you what she learned when she called the hospital," suggested Hamlin with gentle sarcasm.

"Jan," Silver leaned forward, eyes dilated, one exquisitely formed hand over her heart—"he isn't, don't tell me he's—"

"No," replied Marian shortly, "he isn't. He has more than a fighting chance. He decided to fight after he'd received a telephone message—"

"Jan—the color was back in Silver's cheeks.

And "Silver," came the sharp reminder from Hamlin.

She leaned back again, was silent a full minute, then whispered—"the relief of it . . . almost too much to bear." Then she turned to Lon. "I guess I'll have to tell you, it doesn't seem fair to you, that you should be here with us and not understand."

And she closed her eyes to veil the gleam of triumph which came as Lon cast an indignant look at Marian.

"I was married when I was just a youngster," Silver explained. "My parents insisted, and I . . . well, I thought it would be a lark to be able to have some freedom. I learned bitterly that freedom was the last thing I had won."

"My husband, considerably older than I, was insanely jealous. I stood it four years and then I broke. I didn't want to go on living that way. It was easy enough to win a divorce under the . . . the circumstances."

"I was given my decree today . . . yesterday now, and then he did as he threatened. He said he couldn't live without me and he shot himself."

She made an effective pause, then continued. "Of course I feel terrible. I feel as if I had murdered the man. I don't love him. It's all over between us, but . . . I had to do something about it, so I sent word to him that I did."

"I had to save him, but I know I'll be forgiven that . . . I told him to fight for his life and I'd rush down to be with him. I couldn't do less, could I, Mr. Casad?"

"I think you've been wonderful," blurted Lon, sincerely. "Just one grand sport."

"I knew you'd understand," murmured Silver, gratefully, "and now I have to find some way of hurrying into Reno to catch the morning train. Mr. Casad, would you, could you drive me in?"

"I should say I could," declared Lon heartily, and turned to Marian.

"There's room for the three of us. I'll rig up a place for Hero in the luggage carrier."

"Oh, but Mr. Casad," protested Silver, "I don't feel that I could be crowded at a time like this . . . my nerves are simply shattered. I feel ready to break down. Jan can stay here and rest. She's worn out; she'll look after the dog, won't you, Jan?"

Lon and Silver turned to look at Marian, who seemed concerned chiefly with a blaze in the heart of the hearth fire.

MARIAN sat looking into the glowing embers as though stricken with sudden grief. Not by any rule of sportsmanship could she turn to Silver, or to Lon, and demand the other woman's true character be revealed.

"Marian, you won't mind, will you?" queried Lon in a voice that took her acceptance as a matter of fact. "I'll carry Mrs. Gordon to Reno, then come back for you."

"But you don't need to, Mr. Casad," interposed Hamlin. "I've all ready arranged to take care of Miss Gordon, during the remainder of her stay in Nevada. I'm leaving for Reno this morning, and we'd planned that I should take her in, then after she'd had a good rest, take her out to see the sights."

"Oh, you had?" demanded Lon belligerently. "Well, I'd made different arrangements."

"Too bad," said Hamlin. "However, if you care to join us this evening we'll be glad to have you. Oh, and we can take care of Hero in my car. He seems to accept Miss Gordon as his mistress."

He nodded at the dog, who had remained with Marian, nearly paralyzing the foot across which he had stretched his bulk, but even the paralysis seemed comforting to Marian. She was silently blessing Hamlin for his "magnificent lie," a lie Silver couldn't question because she had hurried to her room immediately after Lon had assured her he would drive her into Reno.

Forcing gaiety into her voice, Marian looked at Lon and said in excellent imitation of his voice a few moments previous, "Lon, you won't mind, will you?"

"I think you ought to rest instead of running around," he retorted.

"Oh, she'll have time to rest," Hamlin assured him. "We'll be in town in a couple of hours and she can sleep until six, then we'll all meet in the lobby of her hotel around seven-thirty, how's that?"

"Fine," declared Marian and stood up. Hamlin went for her wraps, helped her into them. "See you later, Lon; I'm stopping at the El Cordova."

Hamlin had been ready to leave for Reno, as his bags were all ready in his car, parked before a nearby cabin. He tucked Marian under a robe, then went into the place for a last minute survey. Hero took his place in the seat beside Marian.

They wheeled passed the lodge just as the sun, topping the Sierra Nevada, slashed the lake with the blade of its reflection. The water along the rim of the road they skimmed turned a Maxfield Parrish blue, against which the pines stood like ebony statues.

HAMLIN asked questions; clever questions Marian recalled days later. She wondered then how much she had actually revealed to him, of herself, her home life, Lon Casad, and all she knew of him.

When he seemed satisfied to concentrate his attention on the road she sat musing, too tired to be actually disheartened at the turn of events, thinking of Silver, her interest in Lon; thinking of Silver and how every frock she wore told a definite story, created a definite picture. Anne had suggested new clothes . . . she'd buy some, she'd been careful with her generous salary, now she would . . . would splurge. She wished she had something other than the lilac angora for tonight.

"Mr. Hamlin, would you think I was too feminine if I asked where I might buy a dress to wear tonight?" she asked.

Hamlin gave her a quick, wise smile. "I'd think you were very feminine and very wise," he returned. "The stores won't be open when we reach Reno. If you'll make a list of what you want, I'll have a professional shopper choose some things and send them up to you on approval."

"You are kind," murmured Marian, and slept. She had a dim memory of stumbling blindly into the lobby of the El Cordova, of hearing Hamlin say he would look after the dog, of being carried aloft to a warm, lovely room, of slipping between sheets—then came oblivion.

Then there was a bell. She awakened, reached for the instrument.

"It is five-thirty, Miss Gordon," explained the operator. "You asked to be called at that time."

"I did, didn't I, and will you connect me with the beauty salon?"

"Certainly. Do you want the boxes sent to your room at once?"

"Boxes?" questioned Marian, then remembered she had discussed shopping with Hamlin and had forgotten to leave a list. He had remembered. "Please do," she told the operator.

The boxes came, big boxes and little boxes, medium-sized boxes and long flat ones. Marian watched the porter wheel them in and gasped.

Surely the porter needed a substantial tip. She usually carried small change in her coat pocket for such emergencies. She thrust her hand into one pocket and found it stuffed with paper . . . copy paper, she supposed; she never threw away any notes until she had scanned them for future reference . . . she must do that right away.

She tipped the porter, then stared in surprise. What she had thought was copy paper was the letter Cliff Gordon had written to Silver—but how had it gotten into her pocket?

Then she leaned forward in surprise. The blurred purple stamp at the top of the page read "The Modern Construction Company." That was the name of the firm from which William Brown was supposed to have accepted a bribe.

The Doll Memorial which is to be sponsored by the club in honor of Mrs. R. L. Smith, our deceased member, was adopted as a permanent project for Sheppard Memorial Library.

Mrs. Herbert ReBarker and Mrs. Guy Smith graciously accepted membership in the club which was proffered them by election to fill the vacancies occasioned by the death of Mrs. Smith and the departure of Mrs. R. G. Fitzgerald to another city.

Mrs. H. J. McGinnis gave a most interesting paper on "Women of Colonial Times." She chose three outstanding women of that age, Ann Hutchinson, who was first to take up woman's rights; Mrs. Hale who interviewed Lincoln to establish the Thanksgiving Proclamation; and Mrs. Abigail Adams, wife of John Quincy Adams, who was the only woman with the distinguished honor of being both wife and mother of a President.

Mrs. White presented "her" baby, Glenn Scott, Jr., who was greatly admired and looked very wise for his age of five months as he was commented upon by each one present. Then Mrs. Scott, the mother of the baby, was introduced and gave a musical selection which was very much enjoyed.

Delicious refreshments in the club colors were served by Mrs. White, and the favors were decorated with the club flower.

Every member of the club was present and they together with the guests enjoyed to the fullest the second meeting of the club year.

Sans Souci Club Meets.

The Sans Souci Book Club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. J. B. Kittrell Tuesday morning at her home on Fifth street. This was the first meeting of the club year and the entire membership was present to greet each other, to talk over the happenings of the summer and to make plans for the coming year's work.

The loveliness of the drawing room where the meeting was held, was enriched by the addition of a huge urn filled with pink dahlias and bowls of pink roses. Mrs. Sam White, president, called the meeting to order and welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Donaldson and Mrs. Barnes of Greenville, Tenn., guests of Mrs. J. B. James.

Mrs. C. M. Warren, chairman of the book committee, read the list of new books which have been selected. This was accepted and the committee complimented for their choice in selection.

Programs for the year's study were presented by Mrs. J. H. Blount. These are gotten up in most attractive form in purple and gold, the club colors, and contain a variety of subjects. "Mickey Mouse" will have his place on the program, as well as "Kagawa." The whole is interesting and well planned and proved a broad and thoughtful course of study.

Mrs. Fred Forbes was in charge of the morning's program, having as her subject, "Movies and Morals." Her paper presented the motion picture as both a great educational force and a great factor for harm. She urged us as individuals to crusade for better pictures. Her paper provoked much interesting discussion.

The club was given the additional pleasure of hearing Mrs. Donaldson sing two songs.

At the close of the program, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. L. R. Meadows, served a delicious luncheon. Mrs. James Brown of Baltimore, and Mrs. W. H. Tolson were luncheon guests.—Reported.

Mrs. Hines' Book In Library.

Mrs. Walter Hines of Short Hill, N. J., who is vice-president of the annual New York Flower Show, and a distinguished writer on garden subjects, will speak in Raleigh on October 24 and 25 at the Garden Club school conducted by the Garden Club of this city for all gardeners and flower lovers of the state. She will also give a broadcast Wednesday, the 24th. One talk will be on flower arrangement.

Mrs. Hines' book, "The Arrangement of Flowers," was placed on the Junior Woman's Club book shelf in Sheppard Memorial Library, two years ago.

A piece of toast was always added to liquor for delicacy in ancient times. From this grew the custom of drinking toasts.

The first regular mass meeting at East Carolina Teachers College was held yesterday. The main purpose was for the nomination for student offices which for various reasons have been left vacant. The George B. Singletary Chapter United Daughters of the Confederacy will meet Friday afternoon at 3:30 in Sheppard Memorial Library.

Greenville Male Chorus.

Every man and boy in Greenville who loves harmony will be interested in joining the Greenville Male Chorus. Mr. Allen, the director of the Greenville unit of the North Carolina Music Festival Association, plans to organize as large a male chorus as possible in Greenville. Barber shop tenors and basses will find a place. This will be a branch of the adult chorus group. If you are interested in getting into this organization meet Mr. Allen at the library building on Tuesday nights and get started. You do not have to be able to read music, or have a solo voice. All you need is the desire to sing. Sometime during the year the State Association hopes to have a big male chorus of some thousand voices with all the combined men's choruses of the state in a big concert program.

The general tone training of the male chorus will be done in the regular choral meeting and the time of rehearsal for the men will be planned to work in conjunction with the big choral group. There is nothing so pleasing to the average audience as a group of men singing in well balanced and trained harmony under capable leadership. Greenville has plenty of material to have a male chorus of forty or fifty members. It will be a big community asset as well as a source of great enjoyment for the men who are members.

Many programs during the year will be given in Greenville and other towns. The various directors hope to be able to have a large male chorus ready to sing at the big state festival in the spring when some five thousand voices will be presented in the first big State-wide festival of the association.

The Greenville unit meets every Tuesday night at 7:30 in the auditorium of Sheppard Memorial Library.

METHODISTS TO ORGANIZE MEN'S CLUB HERE TONIGHT

WILSON DIVORCE CASE TO BE TRIED OVER AGAIN

Wilson, N. C., Oct. 4.—Alexander D. Vernelson, Wilson County farmer, was denied a divorce by a Superior Court jury here Tuesday, but Judge W. A. Devin disagreed with the verdict and immediately set it aside without comment and granted an appeal renewing the petition for the same court at the December term. The appeal was allowed at the request of counsel for the wife, Mrs. Edna Vernelson, with whom the jury sided in reaching their decision.

It was admitted by Vernelson that he had left his wife two years ago but denial was made that he had ever treated her cruelly as charged. Joseph G. Eagles, prominent tobacco warehouseman, and several other Wilsonians testified as to the good repute of the petitioner. Mrs. Vernelson contended her husband had beaten her with a tobacco stick and that he had gone around often with another woman.

DISTRICT FORESTER INJURED IN ACCIDENT

New Bern, Oct. 4.—L. A. Carter district forester for District 4 and 5, with headquarters at Washington, N. C., is confined to his home at Washington with a broken rib and a broken collar bone, sustained in an automobile accident Friday while he was en route home from a business visit to the CCC camp at Hollister.

Mr. Carter's car was struck head-on on the highway by a car that had just previously sideswiped another car ahead. Forty-seven gallons of liquor were found in the other car, and its three occupants were arrested on charges of transporting whiskey. One of the trio suffered a broken back in the collision.

The district forester is reported to be getting along nicely at his home, following treatment at a Washington hospital.

CORSICA 'DISCOVERS' COLUMBUS BIRTHPLACE

Calvi, Corsica.—(AP)—The citizens of Calvi are convinced that Christopher Columbus was born here in a tumbledown hovel, historians to the contrary.

To be on the safe side the city council decided to buy the old house. Mrs. Baker asked $466. The council thought this too much for a building that might fall down any minute and offered $46.

After some hesitation Mrs. Baker accepted the offer, realizing that should the house be declared an historical monument, she would be obliged by law to put it in repair at her own expense.

FIRESIDE VOTING LEGAL FOR AGED IN ISLE OF MAN

Douglas, Isle of Man.—(AP)—Voting at the fireside has been made legal by new election laws passed in the Isle of Man.

Persons unable through illness, infirmity, or old age to go to the polling booths will henceforth be able to vote at home in the presence of a magistrate or an election officer.

Under the laws an employer of an elector must, on request grant him reasonable facilities to vote. Any employer failing to do so is liable to a fine of $40.

After an election the government will refund to candidates the cost of postage spent in sending out election addresses.

The Meeting Place

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
Willy Nilly had finished the shed for Quick-Dick, the horse. The Puddle Muddlers were all anxiously waiting to hear when the new member of their family would join them.

Even the thought that peaches were being cooked over at the Galumps' did not particularly interest Christopher. He might, later on, see if he could open some of the jars in which Grandma put her preserved peaches, but now was not the time.

The Galumps were angry with the squirrel who had eaten parts of so many peaches and they were probably in a grouchy mood than ever. Christopher didn't intend to get into any mischief when there was so much excitement going on.

It was all they could do to wait for the answer to Willy Nilly's letter. At last they saw the boy with the bicycle coming up the hill, and they all went forth to meet him.

"Quack, quack, cackle, cackle, growl, growl, caw caw, wow-wow!" they shrieked.

Willy Nilly took the letter eagerly. He had a big red apple to give the boy this time and then he read the letter.

"Quick-Dick, the horse, is going to be sent to the railroad stop down the line!" exclaimed Willy Nilly.

"He's to be shipped in a box car and we're to meet him tomorrow afternoon. They'll know about him on the train, and his pension money is going to be put in the bank in my name so I can draw it as it's needed. The bank is over in the same village where they have the little postoffice. "We must hurry and get ready!"

THE HIGHEST MARKET

Those tobacco farmers throughout this section who still have some of their crop unsold and who have been selling on other markets, would do well to sell the balance of their crop in Greenville. Figures based upon official reports show that for this season the Greenville market has paid out more money than any other market, even though one of the markets has sold nearly a million pounds more tobacco and the season's average price on the Greenville market is above that of any other market in the belt. The growers selling on the Greenville market have received more money for their tobacco and naturally since everyone wants to get as much as possible for his crop other growers would do well to sell the balance of their crop here.

LOOK TO THE WINTER

While hundreds of our Negroes are now employed in the tobacco factories and receiving regular wages, we do not feel it amiss to urge them to take care of a part of their wages to carry them through the winter months. Of course, we do not mean that we want them to deprive themselves of any of the necessary things at this time but with a short tobacco crop the work in the factories will not last as long as in previous years and the wise workers will try to provide now for the coming winter months.

Kin Fight Over Her

has nowhere else to go and the State of North Carolina is too kind-hearted to chase him out.
He is beginning to doubt that he will ever get back to his Pennsylvania home.
Gottlieb was reared by an aunt in a suburb of Pottsville, Pa. He was sent to an institution for mental defectives, from which he escaped and came south. In North Carolina he broke into a store which got him a sentence. He robbed the store because he was hungry, not because he was bad, Gottlieb said.
Recently Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus paroled him. That meant nothing to the youth, since he could not get back home.
Once his aunt sent two men for him but that was before the parole was granted. The men returned without him. Recently two guards from the Eastern Pennsylvania penitentiary came here for a prisoner who had violated his parole and fled. The superintendent of the local prison camp appealed to them to take Gottlieb back with them, his home being only a hundred miles or so from the pen. Orders forbade that, sympathetic though they were.

Thousands of Women Benefited By Cardui

The benefits many women obtain from Cardui give them great confidence in it. "I have four children," writes Mrs. J. L. Norred, of Lagrange, Ga. "Before the birth of my children, I was weak, nervous and tired. I had a lot of trouble with my back. I took Cardui each time and found it so helpful. Cardui did more to allay the nausea at these times than anything I have ever used. I am in very good health and believe Cardui did a lot of it." Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. the future of NRA, or relief.

But underneath the public expressions of dissatisfaction there was apparent a certain feeling of gratitude that the President had gone as far toward reassurance as he did, and had left unsaid some of the things of a contrary character when a hasty temper might have written into his speech.

The truth is that in certain business circles Mr. Roosevelt was being accused of the most extreme radicalism.

He was being pictured in whispered consultations as wholly out of sympathy with organized industry, bent on destroying the "profit system," veering directly toward a nationalization of property closely resembling socialism.

Various recent events were cited to prove that thesis: his speech at Green Bay, the reception he accorded Upton Sinclair, the restoration of Lewis Douglas's budget director, the delay in lifting NRA's regulatory powers over business.

There were those who speculated whether he was not now ready, in the presence of convincing evidence of his hold upon the people, to take the decisive plunge, openly defy the industrial groups, and roundly denounced "big business" as a public enemy.

Pledge of Good Faith

Instead of the unmeasured rebukes which might conceivably have been inspired by the questioning of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for instance, the business world heard a pledge of the government's good faith in an effort to help business, not destroy it.

Besides mentioning the word "profits,"—a thing the President's right-wing advisers have been trying for some time to do—do unequivocally—he hinted at NRA relaxations and proposed a capital-labor truce which easily might have a very wide significance. Certainly the administration has been accused often enough of having gone over to the labor unions. In the very logic of the present situation, unionism finds the strike its most potent weapon for expansion. The recent textile strike, among others, undoubtedly had behind it a purpose to build up the textile union, and increase its prestige.

When Mr. Roosevelt asks organized labor to relinquish this weapon, just at this critical period of the development of the new planned economy, he is asking something rather important.

For all of these reasons—both because of what the President did say to comfort the right wing and what he refrained from saying to comfort the left wing—his address was rated as conciliatory within some of the highest circles or organized industry.

It did not stop reports of radicalism at Washington, but it started counter reports that the administration now was swinging right, rather than left. A comparison with the Green Bay speech, in line and implication by implication, will show why.

CHILDREN UNLOADED

IN CROSSING BRIDGE
Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 4.—The bridge across the Neuse River between White Hall and Seven Springs in Wayne County, which has been condemned for loads over five tons, has to be crossed twice daily by a large double-unit school truck. The one hundred or more children taken to school on this truck have to get out and walk across the bridge and then get back into the truck every morning and afternoon, regardless of the weather. The truck loaded with the children will weigh eight or ten tons.
It was pointed out that the bridge is an old rattle-trap sort of structure. The situation has been called to the attention of the local highway committee, and it is hoped that a new and substantial bridge may be built.

STATE READY FOR SKIRMISH WITH 'DEAKS'

College Station, Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 4.—When Basil Melton ran 70 yards to score against Wake Forest in 1929, State College made its last touchdown over Demon Deacons. Since that game, which State won, 8 to 6, the Wolfpack has been held scoreless by four successive Wake Forest teams.

Wake Forest has score but twice itself since then, once in 1930, to win, 7 to 0, and again in 1931, to score a 6 to 0 victory. The games in 1932 and 1933 resulted in scoreless ties.

The 1934 grid editions of the two Wake Forest schools meet again Saturday night at 8 o'clock on Riddick Field at State. The Wolfpack is anxious for battle and wants to break the non-scoring habit it has had since 1930. Wake Forest is just as anxious for the game to begin. It would like very much to beat State and regain some of the prestige it lost Saturday's unsuccessful battle with Carolina.

Ray Rex, the big 215 pound fullback who gave Wake Forest so much trouble in 1932 and last fall, will be in there again Saturday, leading State's dangerous offense. Rex is looking much better this fall, his blocking and defensive work having improved with his running.

Because of his brilliant work in the Davidson game last week, Coach Hunk Anderson moved Rex to the No. 1 fullback position this week, replacing Venice Farrar. Should Rex be unable to pound the Deacon line with telling effect, Farrar, almost as big and as powerful as Rex, will go in at full. Farrar started the Davidson game and lived up to all that had been said of him.

Working in the backfield with the two fullbacks will be such stars as Red McAdams, Howard Barnes and Roscoe Roy. Fans will watch Barnes Saturday night with unusual interest. He is a sophomore and his kicking, running and blocking in the Davidson game stamped him as one of the finest backs in the State this year.

Lawrence McCulley, the senior quarterback who failed to error once in guiding the Wolves to a 7 to 0 win over Davidson, will start at quarter again.

Arden vs. Snow Hill
Arden, N. C., Oct. 4.—Arden High School football team will open its home session Friday when it meets Snow Hill here. Arden last week played its first game, battling Washington to a scoreless tie.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

The United States may be having an off-year in sports, but U. S. athletics are still outstanding in other lands; throughout the world, despite the fact that they are very often comparatively unknown at home.

Consider, for example, this letter from our scout in England on one Pete Desjardins:

Pete Desjardins, the little bronze statue from Florida, who captured three world diving titles in the 1928 Olympics still is the world's finest diver, according to English critics who have watched him perform in the British Isles this summer.

"Pete can perform every dive on the tariff, and then some, and his technique is the standard. He thinks nothing of practicing four to five hours a day.

"It is too complicated. If I had been brought up in the British Isles I would never have become a champion," said Pete, "because the climate is far too cold for the necessary maximum training in the open air, for which Florida is excellent."

"One of Desjardins' most intricate feats is the 1-2-3 front somersault with a full twist from the three metre board. His success with it is caused it to be added to the Federation Internationale de Natation Amateur list.

"Previously this dive was considered too complicated. In executing it, Pete bounces from the board like a rubber ball to marvelous height, turns and twists with ease and perfect rhythm in movement, then slips into the water head first.

"Thrills British
This summer British crowds have gone wild with cheers and shouts even on his first trial dive. After he has displayed feats ranging from the easiest to the most intricate he stages a comic act. In this he does his famous cork tail dive. The recipe for it is a running reverse somersault to land back on the board, a bounce up and 1-2 forward somersault in the half lever position.

"Pete has made himself popular in Britain by his advice to the youngest novice and experienced veterans alike he has coached scores of divers, given numerous lectures at clubs. Capt. G. Baudains, Secretary of the amateur diving association, who is looking after his arrangements here, says 200,000 is a conservative estimate of the number of people who have watched him dive. His last London performance this summer was in the Wembley pool in connection with the Empire swimming club."

IS HE 'AMERICAN TRAGEDY' KILLER?

Robert Allen Edwards, 21-year-old mine surveyor, is shown as officers led him from jail at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., to stand trial for the death of his sweetheart, Freda McKechnie, who was about to become a mother. The prosecution, demanding the death penalty, charged the youth bludgeoned her as they swam in a lake—just like the story Theodore Dreiser tells in his novel, "An American Tragedy." Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—The president of Dartmouth College up in New Hampshire, Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, has laid down a new rule for classification of brains in government: It makes re-examination of the characteristics of the Roosevelt "new dealers," from top to bottom, urgently necessary if it is to be applied.

From the President down, who are Dr. Hopkins' "explorers" and who his "provers"? Who of the Roosevelt "brain trust," in Dr. Hopkins' phrasing, are "men intellectually brilliant but doctrinaire" and who "men intellectually honest without brilliance"?

In his address at Dartmouth Dr. Hopkins drew this distinction between the types to safeguard "the great social and political experiments of the present day." And he called upon "every friend of governmental reform and of social advance to insist that "provers be given equal place with explorers" in such experimentation.

Lacking such trial and error methods, he argued, "experimentation unaccompanied by critical judgments" invites failure of "aspirations of political leadership in America for human welfare," risks "a Stalin or a Hitler" of vast political power unchecked by any such ethical code as medicine knows against "hazardous experimentation upon human beings."

"New Deal" Has Both
The President would not phrase it the Hopkins way. His gift of expression is of the political order. He talks to and for the masses, not in the rarified atmosphere of higher education. He seeks homely similes and metaphors understandable to the man in the street. Yet there is much to indicate that something very like Dr. Hopkins' separation of "explorers" and "provers" as co-

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, Calif.—(AP)—Neglected talents of certain stars are due to come to light in new pictures, and the idea, if carried out generally, would have amusing and interesting results.

Jean Crawford, who danced her way into pictures and then went heavily melodramatic, got her twinkling toes in shape again in "Dancing Lady," and now is to do some fancy stepping in her new film with William Powell and Franchot Tone.

Ann Sothern, whose big hit was in "Let's Fall in Love" as a singer, merely talked and acted in several pictures that followed, but in "Kid Millions" the voice rings out again.

Ann Dvorak, who danced her way up from the chorus, recently decided she wanted to dance some more and take a rest from the leading lady roles that have been hers since her hit in "Scarface." Ginger Rogers, on the other hand, got tired of so much dancing and insisted on a chance to act.

How It Might Line Up
Now if all the stars stood firmly on their rights and demanded to go back to their historic beginnings, there'd be some fun.

We might see Wallace Beery, big and husky, tripping in line with the other chorus boys, or perhaps doing duty as a female impersonator. James Cagney and Allen Jenkins, two tough boys, might be in line beside Wally, as hoofers. These two were once in the same musical show.

And Gary Cooper might insist on being exclusively the big he-mane of the West as he was in his first major screen role, in "The Winning of Barbara Worth." Barbara Stanwyck, in fact, not long ago staged such a return to an earlier acting forte. Her big hit was in smartly gowned "Ladies of Leisure," and it was not long before she was playing in a succession of drab stories and wearing aprons, smocks and cheapish garb. She "got away from the farm" and became a smart dresser again.

Fields Was a Juggler
Joe E. Brown could—in fact, did—go back to circus days as in his recent film, and Cary Grant could demonstrate his acrobatic prowess—if any—after this lapse of years.

Will Rogers, of course, would give up "acting" and go back to roping, twirling and wisecracks, while Al equally essential to success of planned social progress has guided him in staffing the "new deal."

The Wallaces, Tugwells, Moleys et al of the Roosevelt "new deal" are men of an essentially different type from its Johnsons' its Harry Hopkins, its Ickes, its Jesse Jones, its Henry Morgenthau. The Wallace-Tugwell combination to deal with the farm problem is the only assignment of the "explorers" to executive and administrative functions. In that case, by his own say-so, President Roosevelt himself is the "prover." If it doesn't work he has said, he will be the first to say so and seek another method.

A Third Classification
There is a third classification in the "new deal," however, that Dr. Hopkins' formula wholly ignores. What will be done with the Farleys, the Rogers, the Louie Howes and a lot more who are neither academically trained explorers or provers but experienced and wily politicians? They are just as essential in a government of, by and for the people to success as any social or economic planning as the "brain trust" contingents.

You have to have the votes first of all to start experimentation. If any long range project is launched they become doubly necessary to carry on. That is the phase of the "new deal" they are concerned with right now.

Check Your Ailment!

1. Sleeplessness	5. Acid Indigestion
2. Nervousness	6. Chronic Constipation
3. Tired—Run Down	7. Headache
4. St. Clock Headaches	8. Gassy Fullness

If you have checked off one or more of the above symptoms, you need a dose of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. For, while every thing may seem to be all right, any doctor will tell you that most of the above painful symptoms are due to faulty and food fermentation.

Four tables are necessary to control this condition: First, stimulate the action of the alkaline gastric juices.

Second, soothe the acid, inflamed stomach lining.

Third, change fermentation and putrefaction in the gastro-intestinal canal.

Fourth, rid your bloodstream of the foul poison given off by the fermenting poisoner.

No more indigestion, acidity, or laxative will do all this for you.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a pleasant way of accomplishing all four things and getting you on the sunny side of life. Macleod's Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Take two tablets after each meal and before retiring—drinking plenty of water—and you'll keep out of your skin for life. Don't let "Stomach" steal your happiness.

MALARIA

Speedy Relief of Chills and Fever

Don't let Malaria tear you apart with its racking chills and burning fever. Trust to no home-made or mere makeshift remedies. Take the medicine prepared especially for Malaria—Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic gives real relief from Malaria because it's a scientific combination of tasteless quinine and tonic iron. The quinine kills the Malarial infection in the blood. The iron builds up the system and helps fortify against further attack. At the first sign of any attack of Malaria take Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Better still take it regularly during the Malaria season to ward off the disease. Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is absolutely harmless and tastes good.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic now comes in two sizes, 50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2 1/2 times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money. Get a bottle today at any drug store.

Busy At Kamenz

Detective Arthur Johnson (above) of the New York police department has been working in Germany on the Hauptmann case, one of his duties being a search of the home of Frau Hauptmann, the Lindbergh kidnap case prisoner's mother, at Kamenz while the aged woman was away. (Associated Press Photo)

Johnson could play the role of a minstrel man with the conviction of experience.

After a while, a recently neglected talent of W. C. Fields may come back into play. It's juggling. Fields has made an effort to keep it from stamping him as a juggler rather than an actor.

RECLAIMED PONTINE AREA SHOWS LEAP IN CROPS

Rome.—(AP)—The reclaimed Pontine marshes are beginning to pay returns in teeming crops of golden grain on the heavy investment of redeeming them from the swamp-land.

Count Orsolini Cencelli, director of the reclamation work in the Pontine district, has just presented Mussolini with figures showing an almost four-fold jump in production this year compared with last.

He told Il Duce that last year 6,130 acres were planted in wheat, and 65,645 bushels were harvested. This year, he said, 15,770 acres are planted, and the harvest is 248,325 bushels.

Before the Pontine marshes were reclaimed, only about 450 acres could be sown each year, and 7,500 bushels grown.

YAROSZ REACHES TOP AFTER FIGHT TO TAKE UP GAME

Pittsburgh, Pa.—(AP)—Thaddeus Yarosz, 24-year-old boy who pounded out a fifteen-round victory over Vince Dundee to take the middle-weight crown, had to wait until his father died before going into the ring.

Yarosz's father was opposed to the boy's intention to fight in the prize ring, but the boy took this method of supporting his mother and his six brothers and two sisters after his father died.

Though referred to as "a second Harry Greb," Yarosz's tactics in the ring are far different from Greb's. There is nothing of the windmill in the youngster's attacks. He is a boring, cautious battler.

And that doesn't leave the rest of the folk much to talk about except price.

So don't be talked out of the "G-3." This great tire gives you more miles of safety at no extra price! Come in and see for yourself.

GOODYEAR

Here's what you get in Goodyear's new "G-3"

- You get the broader road contact of a flatter, wider All-Weather Tread.
- You get quicker stopping and the greater road grip of more non-skid blocks in the center.
- You get the easy steering and smooth travel of wider riding ribs.
- You get the slow, even wear of inter-locked non-skid blocks and ribs.

New York Cotton

COTTON
New York, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady two to four points lower under liquidation, foreign selling, lower Liverpool cables and nervousness over foreign financial conditions.
Prices rallied after the initial offerings had been absorbed and December sold up from 12.17 to 12.24 and May from 12.34 to 12.40, making net advances of about two to five points, but the liquidation and foreign selling continued and prices worked back to about yesterday's closing by the end of the first half hour.
An early advance carried December up to 12.26 and May to 12.43, or five to six points net higher. Demand for the trade tapered off on the upturn and prices sagged off again. December eased off to 12.15 and May to 12.32, making net declines of four to six points. The market was within two or three points of the lowest at midday.

Fractional declines appeared in Standard Oil, U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, New York Central and National Distillers. U. S. Alcohol, General Motors and Consolidated Gas were steady to slightly higher. Call money renewed at one per cent.

entertained on the eve of her wedding. They abandoned the attempt at the last minute fearing it was too dangerous, Waters said.
Federal officers took the men into custody shortly afterwards and the two were lodged in the Ohio county jail after questioning at the U. S. District Attorney's office.
Waters said a bottle of chloroform and several rags were found on the two men which they allegedly intended to use to whisk the girl out of West Virginia.

War Veteran Commits Suicide

Conway, S. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Leaving a note saying "I can't make it," B. I. Prierson, 39, of Conway, shot himself to death here this morning in a downtown office.
Prierson, former postmaster and overseas war veteran, was a salesman for a Florence fruit firm.
Passersby hearing a pistol shot ring out from the office, found Prierson sitting in a chair with a bullet hole through the head. A pistol was on the floor nearby.
He was still breathing when the door was forced but died before a doctor could arrive.
On the table was the note. Attached to the note was a message addressed to "Mr. Will" (W. M. Goldfish, local embalmer). It read, "Bury me cheap and do not take my body to the house."

Insull Case Begins

Chicago, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Samuel Insull's stock sales in his ill-fated corporation securities companies were termed a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat and defraud the public," by the government as it outlined the mail fraud case against the utilities executive today.
U. S. District Attorney Dwight Green in a calm statement detailing what government investigators uncovered in Insull's financing, charged that the company was set up simply as a "dumping ground for large quantities of stock acquired in market deals to boost the price of Insull's stock." Insull and the others put into the new company the common stock of another Insull company, Insull Utility Investments, then on this property Green charges.
"The defendant falsely represented to the public that the new corporation would commence business with assets of over $80,000,000." Green declared that more of the 16 defendants on trial with Insull floated a huge issue of "allotment certificates under the pretense they were letting their friends and customers in on an opportunity to make plenty of money."

Old Greek Coins Sawed In Two

OLD GREEK COINS, SAWED
By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)
Princeton, N. J.—(AP)—The first complete chemical analysis of the world's earliest bronze coins, ancient Greek money, is under way in the Princeton University chemistry laboratory.
Indirectly these ancient coins still carry some economic values. For one thing, with bronzes which have been buried for two thousand years and more, the chemical tests reveal without type of bronze is best resistant to the destructive effects of the elements over long periods.
The studies also are an aid to detection of modern forgeries of ancient coins. They furnish a basis for catching imitations of ancient pieces of art in bronze, silver and gold.
The tests were started five years ago by Earle R. Caley, assistant professor of chemistry. Although not the first analyses in this field, they are believed to be the most complete and careful tests of long series of accurately identified coins.
Coins Sawed In Two
They show that many of the statements in the literature of numismatics and archeology about the large measure erroneous and misleading.
For testing, the coins are cleaned and sawed in halves. One-half is analyzed chemically for the principal metals. Another is put under the microscope. There the metallic structure reveals whether the coin was cast or stamped and whether the blank from which it was made was hammered or rolled.

This second half is then analyzed for small traces of arsenic, sulphur and other elements whose presence puts a permanent identification in the records.
The Greeks probably never knew their coins had these small traces of impurities. The modern fakers do not know it either, and if they did would have difficulties in imitating the real metallic mixture.
Lead Goes Up
A series of bronze coins from Sicily has been analyzed from B. C. 400 to B. C. 146. They all contained copper, tin, lead, iron and arsenic. A few had some sulphur. The proportions of the principal metals varied from century to century. Copper always formed most of the coin. But in the beginning there was 12 per cent of tin and only 0.15 per cent of lead. At the end of the lead was 12 per cent and the tin six.
Under Alexander the Great the Macedonian bronze coins contained nickel in addition to those metals already named. Alexander's coins had about twice as much tin as those of Antigonous Gonatus, a successor. Alexander used only 0.06 per cent of lead. His successors ran lead up to four and nearly 5 per cent.
It has been claimed that lead was never found in large proportions in Greek coins. The differences in these coins from century to century and city to city not only identifies them independently, but gives some idea of the sources of the metals. The fluctuations were matters of source, art and manufacture, and not dishonesty. As a rule, the Greek coins maintained a high degree of intrinsic value.
