Spanish Arsenal Seized By Rebels As Revolt Breaks Out On Several New Fronts In Madrid Territory

THREE TOWNS IN HANDS OF ANARCHISTS

Reports From Madrid Say Troops Are Bombing Ugo and Gijon; Rebels Reported Strongly Entrenched; Pitched Battles Staged in the Streets of Barcelona

Madrid, Oct. 8. (AP)—Oviedo seat of the huge government arsenal was taken by rebels today in a new outburst of revolt against the government, breaking out simultaneously at several points.

Reports from Barcelona said that towns on the outskirts of the city, Matroell, Sabedell and Balana were in the hands of anarchists. Troops were dispatched to the troubled center.

Reports reaching Madrid said that troops were bombarding Ugo and Gijon, in Asturias province, where the rebels were reported strongly entrenched.

Ships were bombarding Gijon, laying down a barrage before advancing troops. The reports said the rebels were equipped with machine guns and light artillery, and were fortified within the city. Casualties were reported to be heavy.

In the capital government forces pounced upon the anarchists' syndicalists committee, arresting its members.

Barcelona reported that the rebels were staging pitched battles within the city with the telephone exchange in danger of falling into the extremists' hands at any moment.

The new fire-up of a four-day revolt that has taken an estimated 500 lives and caused some 3,000 casualties came when the government announced that the backbone of the rebellion had been broken.

In Barce, Spain, government troops were thought to have been in complete control.

A squadron of bombing planes flew over the horde of rebels besieging Oviedo, which is in northern Spain, close to the Bay of Biscay, and dropped 500 bombs, reports said.

Troops were moving upon Oviedo from the mining regions of the province of the same name. They were expected to arrive in the mid-afternoon.

Bullets Spray Havana As Labor Strike Begins

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Rifle and machine gun bullets sprayed Havana streets today killing one person and wounding at least fifteen as labor unions ushered in a general strike.

The office of the newspaper Ahora was destroyed by fire and machine gun bullets were fired at another the Dalo De La Marina where one policeman was wounded. More than thirty-five bombs were exploded.

Dozens of street-cars were attacked by roving bands of terrorists. Violence became general shortly after the walkout called by the communist Federation of Labor and beginning at midnight. The violence spread to the interior.

One person was killed and seven wounded in the public park at Santa Clara. Despite repeated attacks on Havana train cars, employees stuck to their jobs in spite of the strike call. Taxi-cabs operated all night although many drivers were warned to leave the streets or suffer the consequences.

Some milk deliveries struck but others continued their early morning deliveries, and the capital city had an ample supply today.

A check-up revealed the following workers were at work wholly or partly: Railroad employees, truck and tram drivers, dock workers, bus men, sugar mill employees, and left wing students.

Although walkouts have been called by the unions at light, power, gas and water plants, the night crew continued on duty, but it was undetermined whether they would comply.

Some disorders were reported at Matanzas where one of the important water mains was damaged, but the strike in that area lacks general support.

Capital streets were practically deserted in the night except from an unusually large number of police sailors and soldiers on patrol duty.

All leaves of service men have been cancelled as the government inspected the situation hourly.

When yeggmens failed to break into the safe in the office of the C. O. Horn Coal Company, near the Coast Line freight depot, Saturday night, the safe was broken open by the police.

Using what is believed to have been a hammer, the yeggs battered the dial of the safe, which was said to have contained a considerable amount of money, and then gave up the attempt.

FAIL TO BREAK COAL CO. SAFE

Yeggmens Steal Truck From Home Coal Co., After Failure to Enter Safe

When yeggmens failed to break into the safe in the office of the C. O. Horn Coal Company, near the Coast Line freight depot, Saturday night, the safe was broken open by the police.

Using what is believed to have been a hammer, the yeggs battered the dial of the safe, which was said to have contained a considerable amount of money, and then gave up the attempt.

Going into the yard they took possession of one of the coal trucks and sped away in it.

No clue to the identity of the robbers had been obtained but police continued working on the case in the hope of obtaining some word regarding the truck.

They were taken into custody when police raided their home on Thirteenth street late Saturday afternoon and found five gallons of whiskey hidden in several parts of the building.

Along with the capture of the two persons and liquor, police said they also obtained evidence of sale.

Although the Burke home has been raided unsuccessfully several times in recent years, police said this was the first time they were able to find liquor on the premises.

The two were expected to be bound over to the next sitting of County court following preliminary hearing today.

Letters, notifying growers of the arrival of the certificates, were mailed out from the farm office Saturday and hundreds of farmers in all sections of the county were expected to appear at the office of Farm Director, E. F. Arnold within the next few days and obtain permission to go ahead with ginnings.

A considerable part of the crop has been picked in some sections of the county and receipt of the certificates was good news to growers who had halted their staple to gins to be ready when they were authorized to go ahead with ginnings.

The certificates are available to all growers who applied for allotments under the Bankhead act, except those who applied on the 33 to 34 percent base. The latter will be handled on a 10 percent allotment to come out at a later date, the farm head said.

Maude Burke and Son Luther, Arrested After Raid of Their Home Saturday

Maude Burke and son, Luther Burke, colored, were held in the city jail today on a charge of possession of whiskey for the purpose of sale.

POLICE HOLD MAN ON CHARGE OF SEDITION

Roland Gibson Arrested at Rutherfordton for Impersonating Conciliator

Rutherfordton, N. C., Oct. 8.—A man who said he was Roland Gibson, an investigator for the Textile Relations Board, was charged with sedition in a warrant issued here today by W. J. Mode, United States Commissioner.

The warrant also charged with him with falsely representing himself to be a conciliator of the Textile Relations Board, at Federal office.

Gibson insisted he was an investigator for the board—that he had come here from South Carolina textile centers where he had investigated charges of discrimination growing out of mills refusing to employ former strikers; that authorities said his actions were not those of an investigator or conciliator.

He was first arrested Sunday on impersonation and sedition charges obtained in a warrant sworn out by R. A. Watkins, president of the United Textile Workers' Union at Cliffside.

Similar charges were contained in the Federal warrant issued today. It had not been served pending arrival of a United States Marshal from Asheville. No date for a hearing had been set. Mode saying he was awaiting service of warrants and any move by the accused, Gibson has not asked for bond and he has made no arrangement for counsel.

RELEASE TAX CERTIFICATES

Cotton Growers Obtain Exemption Blanks Permitting Them to Gin Staple

Distribution of cotton tax exemption certificates got under way at the farm department here today and the ginning of cotton, which has been held up for several days because of failure of certificates to arrive, moved off smoothly in several communities.

Letters, notifying growers of the arrival of the certificates, were mailed out from the farm office Saturday and hundreds of farmers in all sections of the county were expected to appear at the office of Farm Director, E. F. Arnold within the next few days and obtain permission to go ahead with ginnings.

MUCH TOBACCO ON MART HERE

Over Million Pounds Of Bright Leaf Expected to be Sold in Greenville Today

With leaden skies giving way to sunshine Sunday, tobacco farmers pushed their offerings to market last night and early today and when sales got under way this morning there was over a million pounds of golden leaf on the various warehouse floors.

In spite of the fact that a goodly portion of the crop has already been sold, sales on the local market are expected to be heavy during the week because high prices paid by the market the last several weeks are attracting growers from a greater territory than ever before.

The Greenville price average has been higher than all other sale centers of the belt, and on several occasions the market established what is believed to have been world records for the amount of money paid out to growers.

The ending of the week found that the market had paid out over ten million dollars for slightly over thirty-three million pounds of tobacco. The market has been known to pay out a cool million dollars in two days this season, which is a record tobaccoists believe other markets will shoot at a long time before bettering.

The first of last week saw the money average near the $40 a hundred mark, and throughout the week the average did not fall below the $35 a hundred stage.

With good prices expected to prevail throughout the season, farmers are putting their best foot forward to market the remainder of their crop as hurriedly as possible. The price situation is the best since the memorable days of 1919 when a higher price peak was registered.

INDICTMENT FOR MURDER SOUGHT IN N. J.

Supreme Court Justice Trenchard Charges Jury to Return Murder Indictment if Facts Justify; New York Bronx Court Also Denies Motion For a Copy Of Grand Jury Minutes

Flemington, N. J., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard today solemnly charged a Huntington County grand jury to indict Bruno Richard Hauptmann for murder if the State presents sufficient evidence, that Charles Lindbergh, Jr., met his death accidentally or intentionally at the hands of the German carpenter at the Lindbergh Hopewell estate, March 1, 1932.

The jury of Crossie countryfolk convened at 10:30 a. m. in the century-old Huntington courthouse to decide whether Hauptmann is to be charged with murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Supreme Court Justice Trenchard was on the bench in the small rural courtroom to hear from twenty-three witnesses the evidence accumulated in the thirty-one months since the Lindbergh kidnapping took place.

Justice Trenchard told the jurors the purpose of convening the grand jury was to lay before its evidence that the State thinks "tend to show one Hauptmann murdered Charles Lindbergh, Jr., in this county March 1, 1932."

The State representation definitely states to the court that they will ask you to return an indictment of murder at the present time."

New York, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Bronx County Judge Harry Stackell today denied a motion by counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann for permission to examine the minutes of the grand jury that indicted Hauptmann on a charge of extortion in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.

The court also denied a request by the defense for a copy of the minutes. The denial came after 45 minutes of debate between James Fawcett, counsel for Hauptmann, and District Attorney Sampel J. Foley.

Fawcett during the argument made clear the fact that his motion was preliminary to a motion to quash the indictment on the grounds the facts did not sustain the charges.

For fully thirty minutes Fawcett cited cases dating back to the 19th century in United States law in which he said the court had ruled the grand jury minutes might be examined by the defense when the defendant had not presented his case before the district magistrate.

Foley told the court the purpose of the application was to determine the evidence that had accumulated against Hauptmann and said no court would consider dismissing the indictment.

LIGHT DOCKET FACES COURT

Around Dozen Cases Scheduled For Consideration of County Court Tuesday

County Court, which has been troubled considerably lately with abnormally heavy dockets, is scheduled to sit again tomorrow with what is believed will be one of the lightest dockets in sometime.

The week before around twenty cases were handled in one day sitting. Several defendants found their way to the roads and others were released on payment of fines.

Principal among the case to be considered tomorrow are charges of violation of the prohibition law by several negroes seized by police during the past week. Two or three blind tigers, described as old offenders, fell into the toils of the law in a series of raids during the week, and while some will be released on payment of fines, others probably will find their way to the roads.

Evangelist R. L. Erickson, after quoting Scripture relative to the conversion of Jesus and Nicodemus during their nightly interview, gave a wonderful description of the spiritual conception of eternal life through a spiritual birth experience. Jesus told this great man of his day that he must be borne again if he desired eternal life, and Nicodemus answered: "How can these things be?" Mr. Erickson said the world today was asking that same question but failed to get the answer correctly.

Evangelist Erickson will explain many such outstanding Scriptures every night this week, and if you are anxious to hear the truth about salvation, religion and Christianity come.

HOLD MUTE IN CAR ACCIDENT

Amos Beaman Jailed Here After Stealing Automobile and Having Wreck

Amos Beaman, deaf and dumb colored man, was held in the county jail today on charges of assault with a deadly weapon, reckless and drunken driving and theft of a car, following an automobile crash on the Greenville-Bethel highway, about a mile from the city yesterday.

Newton Clemmons, colored, riding in the car struck by that driven by Beaman, suffered the loss of several teeth, broken jawbone and several cuts on the head when his machine was torn to pieces by the impact.

Beaman, said by police to have been drinking, allegedly stole a car belonging to Dave Turnage, colored, and had headed out the Bethel road on a projected joy ride when he found the road not large enough for him and struck Clemmons' car. Beaman escaped uninjured.

The crash occurred at Mumford's siding and attracted scores of motorists passing over the highway at that hour. Beaman was taken into custody shortly after the crash and brought to the county jail by Sheriff Whitehurst to await preliminary hearing.

HOLD NEGRO IN SLAYING

Dock Darby Charged With Shooting Dennis Speight Sunday Afternoon

Dock Darby, 24-year-old colored man, was held in the city jail today charged with the slaying of Dennis Speight, 50, also colored at Speight's home on Bonner's Lane, yesterday afternoon.

Darby, described by police, as half drunk, fired a 38 calibre bullet through Speight's back, striking the heart and producing instantaneous death.

Police said Darby went to the Speight home in a half drunken condition and sat on a bed. Speight remonstrated with the visitor, inviting him to sit in a chair instead of the bed.

Darby was said to have become angry because of Speight's interference walked to the front of the house, suddenly pulled the gun and shot Speight to death.

Darby was seized by another negro and held until police arrived. A coroner's jury was to consider the case sometime today after which the prisoner will likely be transferred to the county jail to await criminal court action.

N. C. BOYS TO FEATURE DUKE TECH AFFAIR

Durham, Oct. 8.—The duel at full-back between the two "Jumping Jacks" from neighboring Western North Carolina cities takes the spot of individual duels in the "1934 Battle of the South" between Duke and Georgia Tech in Duke stadium Saturday.

Jack Alexander of Duke, whose home is in Asheville, and Jack Phillips, who hails from Waynesville, are the two lads whose ground gaining battle should be one of the many interesting features of the game.

In every manner of football they are different. Phillips weighs 300 pounds and therefore is the bone-crushing type of a fullback. Alexander, weighing only 165, employs a completely different system of line-busting—he slithers through and then scoots for the goal line.

To match strides with the husky Phillips will be one of the biggest under-achievers in Alexander's football career. All-Southeastern conference fullback last year, the Georgia Tech captain and star has a record of being able to plow through any line, to pass on a par with any chucker in the country and the name of being one of the finest defensive backs in the game.

It was the great defensive play of Phillips that accounted for no little in Tech's victory over Duke last season. Phillips knocked down Duke's numerous passes time after time and stopped running plays when it appeared that the Blue Devil backs were headed for the promised land.

His passing led to Tech's touchdown over Duke. A series of short aerial thrusts netted the Jackets much of their ground in going to that lone touchdown of the game—the first time that the varsity had been behind in nine games last season.

Alexander has shown signs of great offensive ability this season. He has uncanny ability to find the holes through them and elude defensive backs.

Brains and Organization

When brains and organization cease to be important business factors, the St. Louis Cardinals will fall in the baseball business. But not until.

There are two real classics of baseball—the world series in the majors and the little world series in the minors. The St. Louis organization had teams in each, the Cardinals in the world series, and the Columbus team of the American Association in the other.

Last year, the Columbus team won the minor-league world title, despite the fact that it had been a perennial cellar dweller before the Cardinals took it over.

Two out of two is a pretty fair batting average against any kind of pitching!

Will Cardinals Move?

There has been much talk of moving the St. Louis franchise to Columbus and abolishing the American Association club. In St. Louis the Cardinals play in a park owned by the St. Louis Browns. Several years ago, the Cards had planned to build a park of their own, but since they have changed their mind, if they do any moving now, it will be out of St. Louis altogether.

In Columbus, on the other hand, the Cardinals do own the park and it is one of the best in the minors. Even if it were possible for the Cards to do as they pleased with the franchise, however, they would think twice before jumping into another small city. It is doubtful whether Columbus would be able to support them any better over a long stretch of time.

It is easy enough to decide to move from one city to another, but in the majors it is another thing to get permission to move. If the Cardinals wanted to shift to Columbus, for example, they would have to pay the American Association $5,000, and get the unanimous vote of all the clubs in the National League. To move into an American League city they would also have to get unanimous consent of the American League clubs.

What About Detroit

Of course the Cardinals would like to move to Detroit. The city has size, and it's a good enough baseball city to support two major league teams. But there is one person who would object—Frank Navin of the Detroit Tigers.

Presidents of major league ball clubs glory in sitting about in hotel rooms discussing the different theories of the game. One of the theories almost certain to be discussed at any such meeting is whether it is good for a large city to have major league baseball every day during the season. One faction claims that the National League team would keep baseball interest up while the American League team was on the road and vice-versa; the other contends that they would kill each other's crowds.

Most of the men are liberal with their votes on the proposition, so long as their city is not affected. But if it is, they change from liberal to conservative.

In other words, the Cardinals have about as much chance of changing their franchise as the Reds have of buying Dizzy Dean at the waiver price.

But there is no way of predicting what Branch Rickey can do. The intelligent business manager of the Cardinals have done several impossible things since getting hold of the organization.

Dr. Combs Speaks At College.
Dr. G. R. Combs used the theme "Building Bridges" in a most appropriate and inspiring talk before the Y. W. C. A. of East Carolina Teachers College at the second Sunday evening vesper services of the new college year.

He pointed out the perilous chasms, of which the world is full, some of which are comparatively easy to bridge and others that are difficult. Modern inventions and language he gave as the easiest bridges for bringing about cooperation and better understanding between nations and people. He brought out the spiritual qualities needed in the builders who were building for the future, showing that there are chasms more perilous than those that could be bridged by the physical. He kept the comparison between bridge-building and influence and character building very clear and vivid closing with the idea: "Unless one is a bridge builder, he will be a failure."

It is very inspiring and gratifying to see the number of students who are attending both the Sunday and Friday evening services of the Y. W. C. A. of East Carolina Teachers College.

Dr. Herbert ReBarker spoke last Friday, October 5, on the "Eternal warfare for life and how successful living may be achieved". He gave the following guide posts: Contentment is death; endeavor is life; labor is a necessity; and life comes through failure.

On the first Friday evening, Miss Morton, conducted the service, directing her talk mostly to the new students, for it was during freshman week. She presented the advantages and privileges they would receive from allying themselves with the Y. W. C. A. and gave a brief resume of the history and influence of the Association in this institution.

Miss Edith Marslander has been in charge of the music at all the services.

Here From California.
Dr. and Mrs. John D. Humber will arrive this evening from San Francisco, California, to be guests of Dr. Humber's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Humber.

Ward-Rogers.
Durham, Oct. 7.—Of interest throughout the state was the wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Rogers to Dr. Needham Edgar Ward, Jr., of Greenville, in the First Baptist Church of Durham, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Dr. Ira D. S. Knight, pastor of the bride, officiated.

The church altar was banked with palms, with standard baskets of white dahlias placed in artistic positions. Back of the decorations were tall candelabra bearing graduated cathedral candles. Southern smilax draped the altar and choir rails.

Mrs. W. T. Carpenter at the organ rendered a program of wedding music. "The Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was used as the processional and during the ceremony "Trauer" was played. The wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn, was used as the recessional. Aubrey Tilley, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, sang "I Love You Truly."

Receiving and seating the guests were Carney Bynum, of Wilson, and Dr. John M. Barrett of Greenville. Miss Rogers had as her maid of honor her sister, Miss Anne Rogers. She wore a gown of coachman green, mated with Queen Christina collar and slashed skirt. Her hat was an Arnes tricorn model of Scottish herring felt with veil. Her flowers were an arm bouquet of souvenir roses and gerbera.

The flower girl, little Miss Helen Babb, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Babb, preceded the bride, wearing a tailored yellow crepe frock, hand embroidered. She carried a miniature colonial bouquet of old fashioned flowers.

Dr. Ward had as his best man, J. R. Turnage.

Miss Rogers was escorted to the altar by her brother, Ekum A. Rogers, by whom she was given in marriage. She wore an ensemble of brown diagonal wool with sable-dyed squirrel trim collar and swag coat. Her hat was Russian toque of cognac brown French felt with gold ornament and brown net veil. All accessories harmonized. Her flowers were tallsmar roses and valley lilies, worn in shoulder corsage.

Mrs. Ward is the daughter of Mrs. John Thomas Rogers and the late Mr. Rogers of Raleigh. She attended Meredith College in Raleigh.

Dr. Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Needham Edgar Ward of Nashville. He received his education in the University of Texas, University of North Carolina and received his M.D. degree from Duke University. He spent a year as interne at Watts Hospital and the past year as resident surgeon there. At present Dr. Ward is head of the health department of Pitt county.

Immediately following the wedding, Mrs. Rogers entertained with a wedding breakfast at the home on Liberty Street.

After the breakfast, Dr. Ward and Mrs. Ward left for their wedding trip and later will be at home in Greenville.

MISSING GIRL'S PET HELPS HUNT

Dorothy Ann Distelhurst's schoolmates and her big gray German Police dog, Prince, joined officers in the search for her in a dense thicket near her home at Nashville, Tenn. N. C. Music Festival Association.
All those who are thinking of joining the North Carolina Music Festival Association should do so at the meeting Tuesday night, as plans are now under way for taking part in the pageant to be given next week at the Pitt County Fair.

Be present at this rehearsal to hear about plans to get started on the music.

Everyone serving on the membership committee is making an effort to increase the enrollment. So take advantage of this opportunity to join Tuesday night at 7:30 in the auditorium of Sheppard Memorial Library.

the WORLD of STAMPS
By QUINTON JAMES
The new King of the Belgians, Leopold III, is being pictured on a set of stamps from that country for the first time since he became ruler.

The set, consisting of a pair of semi-postals with a surcharge of 25 centimes for the benefit of the War Invalids' Club, are 75 centimes moss green and one franc cyclamen red.

Although similar to the previous issues of Belgium, the design of the border has been changed somewhat in addition to the insertion of a central portrait of King Leopold, faced to the left. The lower value is somewhat smaller in size than the 1-franc.

Printing of the issues was limited to 80,000 stamps, the two being the forerunner of a regular postage set of the like design. It will include a 25-centime violet, a 75-centime reddish brown, and later, 1.25 and 1.75 francs. It is planned to have the entire series of current stamps, domestic as well as colonial, replaced by early 1935.

This is not the first time that Leopold's portrait has been placed on a stamp. In a semi-postal printing in 1931 in connection with the Brussels Philatelic Exposition the crown prince was pictured in a field military uniform.

Italy's Valor Stamps
It develops that one of Italy's latest issues of commemorative stamps, the group celebrating the centenary of the first military medal of valor, contains altogether twenty adhesives. They are divided 11 postage, 7 airmail and 2 air express.

This group has boosted to well over the hundred mark the stamps which have been put out by Italy this year, indicating that the rate of issues may surpass the high mark of the past, particularly with the colonial stamps added.

Japanese Commemorative
Japan is commemorating the fifteenth world congress of the Red Cross, meeting in Tokyo, with four special stamps. They are to be on sale only during the congress.

Two designs are used. On the 1A 1-2-sen green and the 6-sen red is the conventional Red Cross symbol, while the 3-sen purple and the 10-sen blue have a reproduction of the Tokyo headquarters of the Red Cross.

New Books

By JOHN SELBY
Here, at last, is the Middle West between the board of a book—not the nostalgic Nebraska of Willa Cather, but the day by day, matter of fact Iowa of Ruth Suckow. Miss Suckow calls her book "The Folks" (Farrar & Rinehart).

The book is about the Fergusons, who have been brought up to believe that the virtues are workable rules for conduct, that virtue and hard work are rewarded, that respectability matters and that blood is thicker than water. Children, to the Fergusons are stars in the parental crown, who grow up to be successes and make happily the declining years of their father and mother.

The Fergusons' children do not quite fit the parental mould. The old set-up no longer obtains; one by one the youngsters do things that their parents must struggle to understand—or to ignore. Vaguely the parents become aware of a seething, writhing something beneath the crust of the world. But their own pattern is fulfilled; their own life draws toward its end, and it is much the same life they always have lived, after all.

It is this that distinguishes "The Folks." Novelists have been too ready to assume the vulnerability of the older school. The Fergusons and their neighbors are tougher than many of our smart young writers know. Most people will feel that "The Folks" is one of the fine novels of the year.

Thumbnail Reviews
"New Frontiers" by Henry A. Wallace (Reynal & Hitchcock): the secretary of agriculture joins the expositors of the "new deal" with a serious and logical discussion of means by which we may reach an "economic democracy."

"Mendelssohn, a Second Elijah," by Schima Kaufman (Crowell): a study effort to make the well-upholstered life of the composer interesting; the life is not as interesting as the effort.

"Then a Soldier," by Thomas Dent (John Day): still another writing Englishman tells all, in this case so frankly that he hides behind a pseudonym.

Just Imagine
"If I Were Dictator" by Julian Huxley (Harpers): the food-humor-ed biologist tells what he would do as England's Mussolini; the first step would be to abolish God, oddly enough.

"The Letters of Gamaliel Bradford," edited by Van Wyck Brooks (Houghton Mifflin): Bradford's less studied self as expressed in many delightful letters, and interpreted by a sympathetic scholar.

"R. E. Lee," by Douglas Southall Freeman (Scribners): an exhaustive but not exhausting biography of Lee by a man who has devoted twenty years to research of his subject; the first two of four volumes are ready now.

"One Stayed at Welcome," by Maud Hart and Delos Lovelace (John Day): the romantic side of pioneering in Minnesota, emphasizing the adventure rather than the hardships of the life; old-fashioned, but it has its points.

This in Empire Cy Rigger's unluck year. He had recuperated from a broken rib, the result of being hit by a bat which slipped from Pepper Martin's hands, and was starting to report for duty in the National League, when his automobile was struck by a truck. His left ankle was broken.

Smelling Smoke

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The little man, Willy Nilly, picked himself up and looked about him. Top Notch, the rooster, and Rip, the dog, were sprawling on the ground.

"You're not hurt, are you?" asked Willy Nilly anxiously.

"Oh, I don't think so," answered Rip, standing up and shaking himself to make sure that he was all right.

Top Notch was looking at himself in his mirror. "I believe I'm only suffering from the shock," he said.

"You're not much hurt, caw, caw," said Christopher who had flown down to see what had happened, "when you talk in as grand a manner as that."

"You wouldn't like to fall from a horse," complained Top Notch.

"There, there," said Willy Nilly, "let's not bother about arguing. What has happened to our horse, Quick-Dick?"

What, indeed? They looked to the left and right, but saw nothing resembling a horse.

This was a fine piece of business. The Puddle Muddlers were going to have the old fire horse, Quick-Dick, with them, and now on the way back home he had given such a leap that they had been sent sprawling from his back to the ground.

Just then Quick-Dick came trotting along.

"Oh, I am so sorry," he said, as he saw what had happened. "I forgot all of you were on my back. I forgot everything. I couldn't help it. I'll try never to let it happen again. Please, please forgive me."

"What happened?" asked Willy Nilly.

"I caught the smell of smoke—then I forgot everything else," explained Quick-Dick.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

OLD CLOTHES BEACH PARTY HEALTHY FROLIC FOR TOTS

If you live near the sea or a lake, a children's beach party will combine fun and healthy exercise.

Old clothes and sweaters are the order of the day. Pails and shovels, and prizes for the best sand castle built, or the most original piece of sand architecture, are all part of such a party.

If you plan a fire and supper on the beach, arrange games that won't last until midnight. Oasting marshmallows can top off the meal—and provides fun for the youngsters.

Amusing games to play are novelty races, such as racing backward, or "crab" race crawling sideways to a specific goal.

IF IT'S A COCKTAIL, SERVE IT VERY COLD

Liquid cocktails such as clam, vegetable juice or fruit juices should be served thoroughly chilled. Small crackers or tiny sandwiches may be served with them, but are not essential.

This type of cocktail can be served in the living room or as the first course at table.

TOP WINTER MEAL WITH CRISP SALAD

Something fresh and crisp with winter meals is always a delight—so why not salads?

Here are some suggestions: Fruit and nut salad, potato salad, lettuce and cucumber, lettuce and tomato, orange salad, pepper and fruit salad, tomato jelly, water cress, chicory, celery and cream cheese, and salads of fresh vegetables.

Ice Cream Cone Novelty

Ice cream cones can be used for holding individual salads or desserts to provide a festive air to the meal's end.

Indianapolis.—(AP)—Add dancing to the arts curriculum of a modern university—that's what Indiana University is doing.

A course in rhythmic dancing sponsored by the extension division of the university under auspices of the department of physical training is to be offered in Indianapolis beginning October 10, and continuing throughout the winter.

Officials in charge of the extension division explain the dancing class is part of a thorough course in dramatics, which also is to be made available to Indianapolis residents.

Marian Gordon by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS. Marian Gordon reports for the Morning Dispatch. She has suppressed two damaging revelations about Silver Handon so that Cliff Hamilton the husband Silver had discovered may have a chance for life.

Chapter 14 SACRIFICE MARIAN stood before the casino mirror, apparently trying to weave a soft strand of hair into the fold of its wave.

The other girl had no decision to make. It showed in the firm line of her lips, the steady gaze of violet-blue eyes.

She turned from the mirror. It was too late now to revoke that act. Simply because Silver had recognized Lon's charm was no reason for her to change.

They drove now to a queer little shack on a hill overlooking the lights of the town, sat on benches before a rough boarded table and listened to boys in cowboy garb sing songs of the range.

Hamlin seemed preoccupied, Marian subdued, only Lon remained cheerful. "By the way, Casad," Hamlin ventured at length.

Marian looked up quickly. Hamlin had been protecting her. He hadn't known but that Lon knew she was staying in town.

"Yes, and no," he returned. "She asked me to leave her at the Mountsides Hotel and said she had a little business to attend to and would have a friend take her to the train.

"No," countered Hamlin, "I don't think so. Silver is attractive. She demands the admiration of every man she meets, and no husband likes to share his wife's company too much."

"I don't know about that," Lon countered. "I've got too much curiosity, myself. She surely was cut up about the shooting."

"I thought you might drive her on down to Oakland," Hamlin continued. "Be easier on her, of course, than the train."

"SHE did suggest it," Lon admitted, "but I told her I was afraid I'd go to sleep at the wheel and ditch us. She offered to wait until I rested, but I didn't want anyone wangling in on that trip because I was taking her, so I told her I probably wouldn't leave before next morning."

"I don't blame you for not wanting to share Miss Gordon," said Hamlin, rising. "You'll be leaving before I'm out in the morning, I imagine, so I'll tell you good-bye here. It's been nice to meet you both, and somehow," he looked at them both with a quizzical look "somehow I feel we will all meet again."

"Tell you what, Casad, I'll be leaving for California soon. I'm going up to my shack on the Russian River to work out a play I have in mind." He handed her a card with his address on it. "Drive up some week end. Bring Miss Gordon with you."

When he had left Lon and Marian sat on a divan speaking of the evening and of Hamlin. "Among those 20,000 or so people who crowded every bit of available space in the large auditorium at the Department of Commerce to hear his message of farewell, there were many unprepared for the scene they witnessed."

They had rather expected to see at least brief flashes of the swash-buckling, hard-hitting man who had so often thundered from the same platform at intervals during the preceding fifteen months. It was even whispered around before the General delivered his speech that something more than a mere "swan" song of a retiring official was in the offing.

Loyalty For Successors Nothing of the sort materialized. Instead of bitterness or belligerency those gathered were treated PEANUT GROWERS TO GET BENEFITS Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Farm administration officials predicted today that as a result of the recently announced peanut adjustment program, market prices for the 1934 crop would be above $9 a ton for Spanish peanuts, $6 for Virginias and $5 for runners. Producers who sign and carry out agreements to adjust their 1935 peanut acreage will receive in addition $8 a ton on their 1934 harvest. The benefit payments will not be made on peanut "hogged down" or left in the ground. Growers in signing contracts will agree to plant in 1935 a peanut acreage of not more than 90 per cent of the 1933 planted acreage, or 90 per cent of the 1934 planted acreage, or the average acreage planted in 1933 and 1934. Under the program, it is planned to encourage use of peanuts as stock feed and in manufacture of peanut oil in order to adjust the supply for cleaning and shelling.

Indian Herbs Will Blacken The Teeth

By F. B. COLTON
 Washington—(AP)—Two plants that scientists hope will help solve the problem of stopping tooth decay have been sent to the Smithsonian Institution from the wilds of South America.

The juice of the plants is used by the Indians of Colombia and Peru as a tooth preservative. It is reported by scientific scouts who sent in the specimens.

There is only one drawback to the use of these plants from the American standpoint—they stain the teeth black. South American Indians consider black teeth a beauty asset, but it would probably take the greatest advertising campaign on record to persuade Americans to blacken their teeth for the sake of preserving them.

Find Black-Toothed Skulls
 As at least partial evidence that the juices of these plants do preserve teeth, one of the scientists reports finding skulls in ancient graves with blackened teeth that are in good condition.

One of the plants, which is new to science, has been sent in by W. Andrew Archer, botanical explorer for the department of agriculture. It is called the "quera" or "queda". The Citara Indians use it, chewing the young shoots to extract the juice.

The use of this plant reports Archer, "is an integral part of the life of these Indians, just as the use of a toothbrush and dental paste is part of the American hygiene."

Children Taught To Chew
 The children are taught to chew the plant until a complete blackening of the teeth occurs, but after that time it is used only occasionally to restore worn spots.

Whether this black film actually prevents caries (decay) is, of course, a matter to be demonstrated under proper scientific conditions.

The Citara Indians told Archer of another plant that also is supposed to preserve the teeth, but he was unable to obtain specimens of it.

Another plant supposed to be a tooth preserver, was sent in by Guillermo King, Peruvian botanical collector. It is used by many tribes of northern South America, and is known as "yana mucu."

GRINNELL COLLEGE CO-EDS MAY SMOKE IN PUBLIC
 Grinnell, Iowa.—(AP)—Grinnell College co-eds may now puff cigarettes to their heart's content in public.

The league board of the women's student governing body lifted the ban on public smoking at the opening of school this fall. Smoking in college buildings or on the campus, however, is still forbidden.

Chops To Be High During This Winter

By CARL C. CRANMER
 Washington.—(AP)—The high cost of pork chops this winter and next year may be due to what agricultural economists call the "hog-corn price ratio."

Prices of pork chops have risen about 35 per cent since April, one of the largest percentage increases of any food for which average prices are obtained by the consumers' council of the AAA.

The "hog-corn price ratio" works like a seesaw.

When the value of 114 bushels of corn is equal to the value of 100 pounds of live hog, nothing happens. But when relatively high corn prices due to a short crop or heavy feed demands make 114 bushels of corn worth materially more than 100 pounds of hog the effect is like a fat girl on one end of a teeter board and an undersized boy on the other.

How It Happens
 Farmers sell their corn, feed their hogs sparingly and market them light, breed fewer sows for the next year, hog slaughter goes down—and corn prices go bump!

Then low corn prices make 100 pounds of hog worth more than 114 bushels of corn. Farmers begin feeding their hogs heavier and breeding more sows for fattening, and soon it is time for hog prices to get a bump.

The chief difference in this corn-hog cycle is that there is a "lag" of a year or a year and one-half after the period of relatively high corn prices before the slump in hog slaughter.

Just now agriculture department charts show corn prices have been in black under the 114-bushel deadline for some time, which means that corn prices are relatively higher than hog prices. Therefore reduced hog slaughter is anticipated.

Third Giant Tree Falls
 Yosemite, Calif.—(AP)—The third giant sequoia tree of the Mariposa grove which has fallen since discovery of the group in 1857 tumbled recently. It was 29 1/2 feet in diameter at its base, 268 feet high and was estimated to be about 1,800 years old.

London Anticipating 'Little' Season

London.—(AP)—London, smug in the fact that it has been selected as the site of the wedding of Prince George and Princess Marina, is anticipating a "little season" of record brilliance.

Even before it had been decided that the royal pair would exchange vows in Westminster Abbey on November 29, the hotel and entertainment world began laying plans for the round of festivities that will make up the royal wedding week.

Caterers, dressmakers, tailors, florists and jewers got busy in a way that was reminiscent of the royal courts in spring.

Princess Marina, the bride-to-be, is a brunette whose straight, slim figure makes her appear taller than her five feet, eight inches.

Her father has had a none too certain income and her education has included such tasks as managing a household, making beds and cooking. But she is fluent in six languages, including English.

"Life has held few iced cakes for her," an intimate said, "except those she has made for herself."

The groom-to-be is a skilled pianist, but as a music-lover presents the curious paradox of one who finds interest in classical music, but has also a strong liking for jazz. It is said that several orchestra leaders, at his request, search America for new tunes to bring to him.

The only one of King George's sons not a royal duke, Prince George may receive a dukedom as a wedding gift. Of one thing he is certain: his allowance of $50,000 as a bachelor will jump automatically when he's married to $125,000 a year.

MELON DEVELOPED FOR NORTH RIFENS IN 70-DAY SEASON
 Minneapolis.—(AP)—A northern variety of watermelon purported to be as sweet as those grown in the South but with traits especially adaptable to the short growing season in the northwest has been developed at the University of Minnesota fruit breeding farm.

This specie of melon had its start when a university farm professor went to Russia a few years ago to do swine work for the Soviet government. Buying an unusually sweet melon at a Russian market, the professor mailed the seed back to Prof. A. W. Alderman, in charge of the farm.

From those seeds experiments resulted in a melon with a growing season of only seventy days.

"These melons," said Professor Alderman, "are the northern sweets, one of the sweetest and most productive melons we've had for many years. They've been grown as far north as Winnipeg and introduced in forty States. Even out in arid Arizona the growers feel that because of its short ripening season it is just what they need."

After the college all-stars of 1933 had held his Chicago Bears, national professional football champions, to a scoreless tie, owner and coach George Halas refused to talk to his players, except to deliver orders, until they opened their regular season by defeating the Green Bay Packers—twenty-three days later.

A college education is not particularly a handicap. A Harvard grad and ex-captain of baseball, Eddie McGrath, is suing the Cubs for $20,000 because they didn't take him in.

CONVICTS SHOOT WAY TO FREEDOM

Walter Legenza (left above) and Robert Mals (right), both under sentence of death, wounded three officers as they shot their way out of the city jail at Richmond, Va., an hour after the mother of one had visited them. The jail is shown below as a crowd gathered after the shooting. The two were members of a notorious tri-state gang and were found guilty of killing a federal reserve bank truck driver in a holdup. TREASURED RELIC OF RAILWAY PAST INCLUDE 'ATLANTIC'

Baltimore, Md.—(AP)—Old railway locomotives and famous trains have a last roundhouse at Halthrope, near here. Gay coats of paint and bright gilt lettering help many of them to retain the glory of past days.

The old Atlantic, which pulled the first train ever to enter Washington and was welcomed by President Andrew Jackson, is among the collection. Built in 1832, this locomotive served sixty-one years and pulled the first trainload of troops to Washington in the Civil War.

E. L. Bangs, supervisor of the roundhouse, says that President Theodore Roosevelt once piloted the Atlantic several miles. When he stepped down from the cab, Roosevelt exclaimed, "Bully!"

The Baltimore & Ohio began collecting these old engines for the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893. Eleven of them are now on exhibition at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, where some of them—too old to travel that far unaided—had to be transported.

Babby Street, ex-boss of the Cards, sat in the boxes right back of the St. Louis dugout.

Paul Dean today hurled St. Louis to a 4-3 victory over Detroit in the sixth game of the world's series. The race now stands 3-all for the championship. The game was Dean's second of the series.

Latest engagement rings in London are set with rainbow stones which match the Cupid brooches pinned to the beret.

Almost every player on the White Sox team did sad farewells to Chicago friends when the team wound up its home stay this season. Only a few expect to come back next year. The threatened shake-up of the team may be just that noisy for the 1935 campaign.

FARMER'S DEVICE GUARDS CHICKENS '100 PER CENT' Scottsbluff, N. D.—(AP)—M. L. Schrack, farmer near here, has an anti-chicken thief system he says "affords 100 per cent protection." A bell arrangement links his hen coop with a bedroom in his home. When the bell rings, the farmer dashes out with a shotgun to defend his poultry.

One man was sentenced to the reformatory and another to the state penitentiary after Schrack, warned by his device, had captured them in his chicken house.

FROM time to time we tell you facts about Chesterfield Cigarettes. We say that Chesterfields are different from other cigarettes—that the tobaccos are different, the paper is different, and the way they are made is different. Everything that modern Science knows about or that money can buy is used in making Chesterfield a milder, better-tasting cigarette—a cigarette that Satisfies.

Strictly on their merits the cigarette that's MILDER the cigarette that TASTES BETTER
