French Police Arrive Alleged Accomplices Of King's Assassin

Police Failure to Protect Visiting Monarch Brings Forth Storm of Criticism

Paris, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Albert Serraud, Minister of Interior Affairs, was reported to have resigned today. Earlier today there had been rumors that Serraud might quit the government because of criticism of the police protection given King Alexander of Yugoslavia at Marseille.

Paris, Oct. 11.—(AP)—French police stung by the assassination on French soil of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, arrested two alleged terrorists and shot it out with a third who escaped, and hunted two more accomplices today.

France prepared to bury its beloved statesman, Barthou, even as it guarded zealously the safety of the new King, 11-year-old Peter II. and his mother, the widowed Queen Marie. Madame LeBrun, wife of the president of France, offered herself as a pledge of Queen Marie's safety, for disguised with a heavy veil she rode through the streets of Paris in an automobile with her husband sitting in the place of honor that spectators might think she was the young queen, while Queen Marie was being smuggled from the Marseille train to the Yugoslavian legation where she joined her son.

A shake-up in the French cabinet appeared increasingly probable as public denunciation of police failures rose to a storm of protest.

Ferrell Company Opens Office Here

The J. W. Ferrell Company Company, of Petersburg, Va., has opened offices in Greenville, located in the State Bank and Trust Company building. From the Greenville offices the concern will handle all its business in Eastern Carolina and several of its employees will make headquarters in this city.

J. W. Ferrell, president of the company, was also president of the Atlantic Coast Realty Company which began its operations in Greenville, and handled probably a hundred million dollars worth of real estate in the South during its existence. Before moving to Petersburg Mr. Ferrell made his home in Greenville a number of years, and is well-known here and enjoys the confidence of the people of this section.

The Ferrell Company is interested in the sub-division of large farms into smaller farm units and selling at auction. Mr. Ferrell expressed the belief that now is the time for the farmers of this section to invest their money in small farms of their own. Since opening offices here, the firm last week conducted sales in Lenoir County described as most satisfactory and other sub-divisions and sales in this section will be announced in the near future.

WEED PRICES HIGHER HERE YESTERDAY

Over Eleven Million Dollars Paid Out This Season; Season Average $30.81

Tobacco prices on the Greenville market move upward again yesterday, the day's average price being $35.81 per hundred pounds. Official figures for the day's operation were 421,680 pounds sold for $150,985.22, an average of $35.81.

The season's sales to date are 36,420,716 pounds for $1,219,912.87, an average price of $30.81, or more than double that of last season.

With lighter sales now, all floors are being cleared by the early afternoon and growers are expressing satisfaction at the prices and the fine manner in which their sales are being handled on the local market.

Some of the growers selling on the market here are receiving an average of 75 cents a pound or more for their offerings. For two sales yesterday of more than a thousand pounds each the growers averaged $78.46 and $74.83 per hundred pounds.

October has in former seasons been the best month in which to sell tobacco, and warehousemen are urging the growers to get their tobacco on the market now.

HAUPTMANN TO FACE TRIAL IN NEW JERSEY

Will Make Fight in Supreme Court to Prevent Extradition From New York

New York, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The Bronx County extortion case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann was removed from the trial calendar today prior to his immediate arrest on an extradition warrant calling for removal to New Jersey to face a murder indictment by the Lindbergh kidnaping case. The case was removed from the trial calendar by Senior Bronx County Judge James M. Barrett at the request of District Attorney Samuel J. Foley who is acting at the request of New Jersey authorities.

The court also released the prisoner from the $100,000 bail requirement fixed when he was arraigned on the extortion indictment. As a technicality to clear the Bronx County record is cleared Hauptmann on his own recognizance. This, however, gave the prisoner no freedom as the extradition warrant was immediately served by Lieut. James J. Flynn of the New York police department. Hauptmann was placed in the custody of two New York detectives.

Hauptmann's counsel, Pames M. Fawcett, said he would go into the Bronx removal to New Jersey. Hauptmann as in the case of previous court appearances, stood still before the bench for the proceedings that lasted but about five minutes.

Counsel for Hauptmann announced that he was prepared to produce four or five witnesses to testify that Hauptmann was not in New Jersey on March 1, 1932, the night of the kidnaping.

The applicants are to be selected from relief families or families greatly in need of twenty-five dollars a month, which is returned to the family. Each boy receives thirty dollars a month together with his board and clothing, but twenty-five of this is deducted and returned to relatives or other designated by the applicant and the authorities at the Welfare Office.

Any boys meeting the above qualifications will apply at the Welfare Office not later than Saturday, October 13, to inquire into their eligibility and to make their application for entrance.

MEMBERSHIP IN RED CROSS ON INCREASE

Membership Enrollment Showed Gain Of Over 100,000 During Past Year

Chairman Watt Brown of the Pitt County Chapter of the American National Red Cross today announced that the membership enrollment in the national Red Cross for the year ending June 30, 1934, was 3,802,394 for the United States and its insular possessions. This enrollment shows an increase of 100,518 members over the previous year. Chairman Brown pointed out that during the five years of the depression the Red Cross membership has shown only a slight decrease. "This fine enrollment of men and women in the Red Cross is evidence that the county realizes the vital work the Red Cross has done and its increasing responsibilities of the past several years," he said.

An important activity of the national Red Cross and its 3,700 chapters, of which Pitt County is one has been the training recently of 75,000 Civil Works Administration workers in Red Cross First Aid methods, thereby materially cutting the rate of accidental deaths and injuries on the work projects of the CWA. This training was undertaken at the request of the Federal Government. Lieutenant Jones taught the class of forty men for our local chapter.

Although the Red Cross is no longer in the relief field, except for disaster relief operations, which is one of the primary obligations laid down by congressional charter and international treaty, it has however incorporated with emergency relief units of the government for the good of our citizens. It was pointed out that Red Cross had held the lines with its flour and cloth distribution until the government had had time to create its present huge relief set up throughout the nation.

Because of continued public support as evidenced by the increasing membership, the Red Cross is enabled to maintain every one of its services at maximum efficiency. It has expended this year to call for help from eighty-six foreign communities. More than 200,000 ex-servicemen have been aided. Increased support by the national organization for public health nursing services has been forthcoming because of the strain upon the health, especially of the mothers and children during the prolonged period of unemployment. Great stress has been placed upon the instruction courses, all of which we have had and are having in Pitt County at the present time. Home hygiene instruction and first aid and life-saving courses have reached a greater number of people than in any year before in history of the organization. More than seven million boys and girls are enrolled in the Junior Red Cross for service. Pitt County schools are enrolled almost 100 per cent, due to the magnificent work of the chapter's jurist chairman, Mrs. Selma Carson Moore. Her work has been recognized at National Headquarters of the Red Cross as outstanding in that field in North Carolina.

These services to the public must be continued at their present high peak. The Red Cross must stand ready at all times to answer calls for relief in catastrophes such as occurred September of last year in Beaufort and Morehead City and surrounding country when a tropical hurricane swept in from the sea and devastated much of the section. It must be ready to respond in any measure of governmental co-operation. An increased membership will provide this readiness. Pitt County Chapter has set its goal at 1,500 members this year, and during the annual roll call, Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, will ask every man and woman able to do so, to join in furthering the work of this national organization of which we are a part.

Mr. Brown said he would have an announcement of great importance concerning the membership campaign to make in a few days.

Harding To Be Kiwanis Speaker Friday Night

Hon. F. C. Harding will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club to be held in the Woman's Club building at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening. Mr. Harding has been given the privilege of selecting his own subject, and will, as usual, have something interesting for those present.

J. C. Galloway, vice-president, will be in charge of the meeting.

Ed. Batchelor, chairman of the program committee has announced that the annual "Teach-Night" program will be held on Friday, October 26.

The Polynesian, first newspaper of Honolulu, was started in 1840 and became the official government journal in 1844.

'I SAW HIM AT HOPEWELL'

One of the most important witnesses for the state of New Jersey in the forthcoming murder trial of Bruno Hauptmann, Lindbergh's case suspect, may be Millard Willick, Lambertville, N. J., house painter, shown here with his wife and children in front of their home. Jersey authorities said Willick "positively" identified Hauptmann as a man he had seen near the Lindberghs' cabin twice within a fortnight just before the kidnaping. (Associated Press Photo)

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

By GEORGE DUENO Washington, Oct. 11.—Toga: A political journeyman frosh back from California reports they are laying 5 to 1 that Upton Sinclair, the reformed Socialist, will be next Governor of the Sunshine State. Sinclair's EPIC platform—and Poverty in California—seems to be a good bet straight across the board. But as the report goes California business interests are having a worse case of jitters than the Detroit infield in the first game of the World Series.

Republican money is being poured into the state in an effort to re-elect Gov. Frank S. Morrison. G. O. P. leaders, local and national, have moved heaven and earth to get Raymond L. Haight, nominee of the Commonwealth Party, out of the race. Haight ran in the Republican primaries and lost to Merriam.

The young man refuses to budge and is setting his back up by a lot of independent Republican voters who think he's the boy to cut in on Sinclair.

What makes it harder is that Haight sponsors the Townsend Plan for old age pensions and challenges Sinclair to debate that issue. Perhaps the most effective weapon the Republicans are using against Sinclair is a campaign speech in which he said that if he was elected Governor and got his EPIC program working "half of the unemployed in the United States will come to California."

Anti-Sinclairites have visions of a trek across the county that would make the '49 gold rush and the pioneer dash into the Cherokee Strip look like morning strolls. Upton counters that one by opposing the pension idea flatly. And his propping of the admission charge to his meetings has built his audiences to new highs.

Senator H. Johnson meantime is sitting on the sidelines and complacently watching his life long enemies, the conservative Republicans, squirm. Johnson holds the Republican-Democratic-Progressive-Commonwealth nominations for re-select the public on renovating and election to the Senate and didn't even have to make a speech or issue a statement therefor.

It is an unusual experience for the pugacious Hiram. Ever since he was elected Governor in 1910, defeating the so-called Southern Pacific "ring" Johnson always had a battle on his hands.

Now, in the evening of his political career, he is establishing some sort of a record for soft pickings in a state that takes its politics seriously. This is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that Herbert Hoover, another Californian, cares very little for the senior Senator.

Perhaps H. J. is just getting set for that appointment to the Supreme Court bench which is just around the corner. His toga on George Creel's shoulders would give him no worry for those he left behind him.

Spots: Political observers are wondering how Jim Pa'ey was ever sid on the so-called Jones-O'Connor plan for giving closed-bank depositors a slightly additional break. After the March 1933 bank holiday conservators were appointed for the four banks. Then after preliminary readjustment, receivers were placed in charge. The receivers were patronage appointments. It looks as though RFC Chairman Jesse Jones and Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor had eliminated some spots for favored faithful.

F. H. A.: High-pressure work continues to be put into the Federal Housing Administration drive to modernizing homes on easy terms but one of the important cylinders continues to miss. Heroic efforts by Administrator Jim Moffett, and his impressive publicity corps seem to be running into a stone wall of passive resistance.

RELIEF STILL BAD WORD FOR NEW DEALERS

Price Says Proper Administration of Relief Fund Greatest Problem

By BRYON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) Relief still is the most troublesome word in the "new deal" vocabulary. The difficulties of administering relief distribution, the effect on the recovery agencies, and the continued undermining of the national budget all worry Washington.

A year ago, when winter set in, the government went about the task of relief without special concern. Mr. Roosevelt's policies were at the height of their popularity, and it seemed a rather simple thing just to find out what relief was needed, and administer it.

Since then officials have learned much. They found that the first real criticism of the "new deal" originated in the relief operations, and they want to avoid a repetition. If they were not so sure, on other counts, how the November election was going, they would be deeply agitated politically.

Points of Criticism There is no lack of realization that certain embarrassing complications attended the relief work, and the somewhat similar "productive labor" policy which succeeded it. Both have been criticized on these points, among others: "That assurance of government employment defeated initiative, and promoted pauperism."

That in some communities the wages paid seriously disrupted local private employment conditions. That the system inevitably involved a certain amount of local graft and favoritism, so that in some places those who were paying the taxes saw relief money going to families they knew to be undeserving of it.

That government production of goods and services tended to alarm private producers just when it was desirable to stimulate private industry.

That the general policy of putting millions on the Federal payroll was paternalistic, even socialistic. That the vast expenditures involved hampered business confidence by keeping the budget badly out of balance, and harassed the average taxpayer with doubts how the money to pay off the growing national debt ever could be raised.

Roosevelt and Relief It was not surprising that, in his September 30 address to the nation, the President started out to talk about NRA, but soon found himself talking about relief.

Stated simply, the necessity for continuing many features of NRA, as seen by informed officials, lies in the fact that any relaxations which would contract private pay-rolls would expand the need for relief by just so much.

Washington had hoped to taper off the public works program this winter. Now another big public works appropriation seems in the cards. The season is that labor otherwise released from public works would gravitate to the relief rolls, considered the least desirable place for it, for social reasons.

In many other directions, this central problem tangles itself with nearly all of the really important things Mr. Roosevelt has been trying to do.

Balanced Budget Simmer The most embarrassing consequence is that hopes of a balanced budget are receding. The President did not actually promise such a balance by next July 1, but he went so far that great store has been set by his words. Here is his statement exactly, from his budget message of January 4: "We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery and from that time on seek a continuing reduction of the national debt."

Many people took it as a promise, and Mr. Roosevelt's friends do not relish at all the explanations which may have to be made.

They foresee that the relief item will be the most carefully scrutinized in the balance sheet, and that is why they are castig about so eagerly for a new relief program as nearly invulnerable as possible.

BLAME ITALY FOR SLAYING ALEXANDER I

Declare All Attempts On Life Of Yugoslavian Monarch Inspired by Italy

Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Anti-Italian riots broke out here today after a meeting at which speakers alleged that all attempts against King Alexander's life, including that made at Zagreb last March, had been financed and prepared in Italy. The speakers at the meeting drew deductions that it was probable the assassin Petrus Kaleb, was inspired by the same source.

Later crowds attempted to attack the Italian consulate, but police intervened and prevented it.

Paris, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Passports carried by two suspects arrested as accomplices of Petrus Kalemian, assassin of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, and Louis Barthou, showed their natives of Italian towns which were in Austrian territory before the war.

Paris, Oct. 11.—(AP)—French and Yugoslavian officials said today they were confident Premier Mussolini and Italy would ignore the momentous outburst of anti-Italian hostility in Yugoslavia and that danger was remote of international complications resulting from the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

It was admitted that Italian-Yugoslavian friction was feared but hope was expressed it might be averted. In government quarters it was said hot-heads in Yugoslavia might try to exploit the fact that two of Kalemian's alleged accomplices listed their birthplaces as now in Italy but at the time of their birth they were in Austria.

Kidnapped Woman Had High Temperature When Taken From Her Home Yesterday

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Fears that Mrs. Alice Stoll, young society matron, might die at her kidnapper's hands, was based, it was learned today, not only on the fact that she was beaten with an iron pipe, but that she had a temperature when abducted. She was suffering from a severe cold and required the attention of a physician. From members of the family of Berry Stoll, oil company vice-president, police learned during the night that the 26-year-old former Bryn Mawr student and Junior League member, was ill when a white-faced man kidnapped her late yesterday for $50,000 ransom.

Today Major Williams Scidt, night chief, disclosed the high temperature yesterday when the man got into the Stoll home by a ruse, subdued her maid, Annie Woclet, and forced Mrs. Stoll to leave with him in an automobile.

The Stoll family and William S. Speed, retired capitalist and father of the kidnapped woman, announced from the start that they were ready to pay the ransom, and today Mr. Stoll reiterated: "We are not so much interested now in the capture of the kidnapper as we are in the return of Alice. All we want is to get her back alive."

Meanwhile Federal agents were being concentrated in Louisville to aid in the search upon orders from Washington, and Governor Luffton offered all possible State aid. "It is amazingly easy," the governor said, in making this announcement.

WATERMELON SEED RECORD SET BY CHINESE STUDENT

Shanghai, (AP)—China is claiming a new world record holder in a Chinese student of this city. He ate seventy-two shelled watermelon seeds in one minute, cracking the husks with his teeth without breaking a single kernel.

What chewing gum and popcorn are to Americans watermelon seeds are to the Chinese. Moreover, there is an "art" in eating them. It is practiced with trained nut-crushing teeth and a sensitive tongue. The first bare and the second extracts the delectable kernel. A careful manner of blowing the discarded husks on the floor completes the operation.

Whether it is a formal banquet or a family dinner party, watermelon seeds are always present. Among sauce dishes and wine cups, each guest has a plate of seeds and almonds to nibble on between courses.

PICTURES HORRORS OF RED REVOLT

Center of Spanish Revolution Scene of Much Bloodshed and Horror

Madrid, Spain, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Scenes of horror in the isolated province of Asturias, now the center of the red revolt which has raged for a week, were described today in messages from a Spanish correspondent accompanying the government troops. The army encountered instances where civil guards had been slain by overpowering forces, the correspondent reported.

More than one thousand armed rebels attacked the civil guards at Campomanes and sixteen guards from Leon attempting to relieve the post were killed. The civil guards' quarters were literally torn to pieces by bullets. Campomanes was taken by the troops with many slain by flying bullets. The insurgents were equipped with light artillery. In one bombardment on Campomanes more than 150 rebels were killed. The newspaper reported. Vega and Del Rey have just been overcome after terrific bombardments. Troop advances from two directions on the red stronghold of Myers is planned.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Marian Gordon, reporter for the Morning Dispatch, has sent the world to bed. Cliff, her husband, is a doctor. She is a woman of letters. She is a woman of letters. She is a woman of letters.

SILVER'S RETURN

MARIAN turned back to the first page and found a second story on the London case. In surprise she read the contents, then sat back overwhelmed at what she had done to Cliff. In tricking him into a fight for life.

After reading his letter to Silver, she had realized he was on the verge of bankruptcy, but she had not realized how deeply he was involved. The newspaper account gave this in detail, and the inference was that his suicide had been an attempt to evade his creditors, rather than any thwarted love for his former wife.

Cliff would live. He would come back from the border of death, weak, broken, to face destitution of worse, a criminal charge with its accompanying penitentiary sentence. This was what she had done by interfering in someone's else business.

Eyes wide with apprehension, she sat staring at a bowl of tulips. Five tulips, yellow and purple, rose and red, and one a mottled cup of red and yellow. She didn't see them.

When Cliff had chosen his way out, preferring suicide to an exposé of his father-in-law's crooked method of conducting his business, and the subsequent crushing of Silver's life, she, a total stranger had made him believe Silver was really the woman he had idealized, made him believe he might come back, face the odds and win.

"Marian Gordon, what in the name of goodness is wrong with you?"

Anne, pushing a tea cart before her, had stopped to look down at the girl in the chair.

"Nothing," Marian answered. "Nothing . . . and you look like that." She stepped close, shook the other girl. "Snap out of it; tell me what's wrong."

"I don't dare tell anyone," murmured Marian, then "but I've got to tell someone. Anne, promise me if I tell you this you'll never breathe it to a living soul!"

"That's an insult," snapped Anne, "you know I don't talk, Ian. What is the matter?"

"There are only four persons in the world who know this now. Silver, Hondon, a man named Max Hamlin, Bowen and myself. Anne, Silver didn't send that message to Cliff. I did. I made it up and got it across the wire to Bowen before she could tear loose from Hamlin's hold and grab the telephone."

"WHEW!" breathed Anne and sat down in the nearest chair. Then sturdily, having recovered her breath, "You saved his life. What are you getting all het up about now?"

"But, Anne, what good is that life to him? He'll learn Silver doesn't care for him. He'll face the charges the newspapers mention and I know he won't tell the truth and clear himself. He'll come back broken in spirit, in hope, in belief in anything, and . . . for what?"

Anne didn't answer. She bent her sleek head over the silver urn, poured a cup of coffee and thrust it at Marian. "Drink that and see if you can swallow what I'm going to tell you at the same time."

"Ian, I've spent six years holding the hands of impulsive men who thought they wanted to die, while they tried their darndest not to do it. I'm willing to bet anything I own that if you were to tell Cliff everything right now, he'd still fight to live."

"As far as Silver's concerned he's lived with her long enough to know her. As soon as he gets over the maudlin stage he'll admit she's a natural born wash-out."

"About his financial condition."

Ailin gElms Face Ax In Foresters War On Disease

Washington. —(AP)—The broad shoulders and brawny arms of the CCC boys are being sought by the American Forestry Association on behalf of the American elm tree.

Elms in several States are suffering from the Dutch elm disease which is difficult to diagnose or treat. The only cure is a drastic one practiced on the famous old elm-lined avenues of New England. The sick tree is cut down. Otherwise, it is an even bet that neighboring elms will catch the disease.

Your friend Cliff is an ostrich. He stuck his head in a hole and didn't know the desert was full of friends. By the time yesterday's paper was on the street we had a run of visitors at the hospital that nearly put us out of business. Fraternity brothers, crew brothers, yacht club brothers, and they came bearing gifts. Blank checks with signatures signed, business offers. One brought a note that the yacht club had bid in on the island home and if it got it, Cliff had a permanent honorary residence at the club.

"We got all of these messages through to Cliff. So don't you worry about Cliff and his future. You've given him a chance to live, clean up the mess he left and when he does check out, he'll have left his life in order."

She refilled the cup. "When you get through drinking that, to bed with you."

Relieved, Marian took Anne's advice and when she again opened her eyes she lay staring at the twilight outside her window. "Should call the office," she thought, then heard the whirr of the telephone and Anne calling that Bowen was on the phone.

"Well, where in Hades have you been?" was Bowen's reception. "Listen, grab a cab and beat it to the airport."

"I won't go to Reno again," protested Marian sleepily.

"Wait 'til you're asked. Your friend Silver is due in from there, en route to Meredith. Get in on the reunion and give us a yarn for the early edition. And say, Ian, good work on your Reno story; you've got a raise coming—"

"Don't want it," said Marian feebly.

And "What?" came the incredulous reply.

FROM the mirrored cubicle where she was dressing, Marian heard the sound of the hall door buzzer, heard Anne answer and a moment later heard a voice that sent her heart beating double time.

"Lon's here," said Anne, unnecessarily, as she entered. "He apologized for waking you, and when told him you were already awake, dressing to go on an assignment, he nearly threw a fit, began waving a telegram . . . wait, I'll hook that, now you're all fixed; go see what he wants."

Marian, wondering at the telegram, went into the other room to find Lon, half laughing, half perplexed, a yellow slip in his hand.

"Little cheerio," he explained, "look, she's wired that she expects me to meet her at the airport. D'you suppose she thinks I'm in the taxi business?"

Marian looked at the length of the message and said: "At least she's helping the telegraph company." She took the slip and read:

Lon my dear, so sorry I missed you. Am flying to city to visit the ex at the hospital stop. Dread ordeal terribly stop must have some one I can depend upon to go with me stop feel you are that person stop cried all morning so disappointed didn't see you nerves wrecked don't fall me need you stop don't bring dog stop must see you alone stop will expect you at airport eight twenty this evening stop your Silver.

Marian had a desire to tear the slip to shreds. Instead she said coolly: "Well, what are you going to do?"

"Do?" he asked perplexed. "I don't know. I never ran into a woman like this before. What does one do with them?"

"I could mention several things," returned Marian, "cyanide, for one. What on earth did you do on your trip in from the cabin that made her believe you belonged to her?"

"I don't know," he answered honestly, "unless listening to her rant—"

"Lon, what did you talk about? Think hard, did she talk about love or marriage or anything like that?"

"She asked me if I had ever been married and I said that I hadn't, I'd never considered it until very, very recently. Then she wanted to know if the girl was in the East, and I said that she was in Nevada at that moment. She wanted to know what she looked like and I told her she had golden hair and that she was the most beautiful girl I'd ever seen and if I had my way about it I'd have proposed to her the moment I saw her but I felt I should let a few days go by without showing how I'd crashed."

Marian slid into the nearest chair and started to laugh. "That's what you get for calling my hair gold instead of red. She thought you meant her."

to chop down the ailing elms. They are estimated already to have prevented $4,000,000 little caterpillars from seeing the light of day. But in blighting the hopes and ambitions of the caterpillars, they were saving the country from gypsy moths whose destructive antics would have been aimed at other trees.

Leaves Turn Yellow

The first symptom of the elm disease is the appearance of a bunch of yellow leaves on the crown of an elm that should be all green. Soon more leaves turn yellow, and the jig is up for that tree. "There is no kill or cure." It's just kill. The malady lies in a sly fungus growth which wriggles around under the bark. It attacks, and in two or three years that tree puts out its

Began in Cleveland

The first point of attack in this country was Cleveland, where whole rows of elm were affected. These trees were cut in all directions, and the situation now seems under control there.

Nearly 4,000 farm home shelter-belts have been planted in Montana, the Dakotas and Wyoming in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture.

Dread Tsetse Fly Caught in Africa By Shadow Trap

Capetown. —(AP)—Sleeping sickness, terror of the African tropics, a disease which claims many thousands of human lives every year, and destroys vast herds of cattle, may be greatly reduced as a result of patient research work by the union government.

A trap for the tsetse fly, which carries the disease, has been perfected by R. H. T. Harris, government tsetse fly officer in Zululand. Adjoining the Zululand game reserve are farming settlements. In the early days the flies remained on the game in the reserve, but as these animals increased and spread over the border into the settlements, they carried the flies with them and farm cattle died in large numbers.

Asked Government Aid

Settlers appealed to the government, and asked for the destruction of the bush and the extermination of the game as the only cure. Provincial authorities, who were the custodians of the reserve, could not agree. Harris was called in.

He advised diminution rather than extermination, and suggested that the game should be given back to the reserve. This, he said, would restrict the fly to a defined area.

Then he divided the reserve into sections and started his work of extermination.

Harris said that, contrary to the belief that the tsetse fly hunted by scent, his investigations had shown that it hunts only by sight. It sees an object but is unable to tell whether it is a live animal or a trap, until it bites or is caught.

Caught By 'Shadow'

He noticed that the insects always flew to the shadowed part of an animal's belly so he made his traps with an opening below where the shadowed part would be. The flies settled there, crawled up and were caught.

At the top of the trap is another opening letting in the light and over this a cage of fine netting is placed. The fly is attracted by the light, crawls up the trap and is caught in the cage above. This light arrangement is the whole mechanism of the trap.

In the carrying out of his work, Harris has supervised the building of 150 miles of road through the jungle and across rivers into the heart of the Zululand game reserve.

Strong Sermon By Evangelist At Tent Revival

Evangelist R. L. Erickson quoted John 10:10 as his Scripture for last night's message: "The thief cometh not but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

The Abundant Life
Jesus tells there is a thief that will steal, kill and destroy. If people are not careful they will wake up when too late and find that this thief has stolen their opportunity of salvation.

The devil is as a roaring lion, the kind of lion that has cushion paws, that enables him to quietly approach the sinner's soul noiselessly, with a cunning sneaky approach that is unnoticed, until he has complete control of the situation, and has damned the souls of those who fear him not.

The devil is a gigantic schemer and deceiver. He is not like the picture we often see of a red man with horns and a forked tail, but beautiful and appealing to the human mind, at all times.

The devil is shrewd in bating his hook for the souls of men. He uses a hate that appeals to the thrill seeking, modern-minded youth of today, and is catching thousands daily.

No man expects to be lost, but all hope to be saved before they die, and refuse this wonderful abundant life until it is too late, and they are suddenly cut off, and that without remedy, and forever lost.

This revival in Greenville is a people saved, and has come here for no other purpose.

Evangelist Erickson after thirty-seven years of preaching the truth all over America, Canada and Europe, and even Mexico, has come to this city to help people find God.

Don't form an opinion until you have heard and seen for yourself. Come tonight. Tent located corner Third and Cotanche Streets.

These meetings are of a high order, and non-denominational. Preaching only the truth, for the benefit of the lost. Mr. Hamon, of Rocky Mount, a church member for forty years was saved in the Erickson revival three weeks ago.

Service tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The tent is warm.

FAIL TO DETERMINE CAUSE OR CLARK DEATH

New Bern, N. C., Oct. 11.—Ed. Clark, of Askin, whose body was found early Thursday morning on the Vanceboro highway, came to his death "from cause unknown," it has been decided. The decision was accepted by R. H. Kehoe, magistrate, who sat at the hearing with Coroner G. M. Henderson.

Also present for the inquest was Solicitor D. M. Clark, of Greenville, who said that based on the evidence he did not see how the jurors could have decided otherwise, though he suggested that in such cases an autopsy should be performed to determine cause of death.

Hyman Stubbs, of Askin, who was arrested by county officials Thursday night for further questioning in the affair, having been seen last with Clark, was not being sufficient evidence for probable cause.

Teaches History Extension Course At Winterville

An extension course in history is being taught in Winterville by E. C. Hollar, of the history department, at East Carolina Teachers College. The course being taught is modern European history numbered history 116 in the catalogue. The members of the class receive the same credit, according to Mr. Hollar, as they are trying to keep alive by not falling into the rut made by so many who teach. They are doing some studying for themselves while teaching. The class meets twice a week, on Monday and Thursday nights, for a period of an hour and a half.

Mr. Hollar is especially well equipped for this type of work, as he has had wide experience in extension work, both as teacher and as student. While teaching in Memphis, he taught extension classes tri-weekly. When he was a teacher in Missouri he was enrolled in extension work.

The class in Winterville is merely a resumption of extension work formerly done by the college. Eight years ago a similar extension class was conducted in Winterville. For several years, however, for various reasons, the college has done little extension work of this type. The teachers in service, have in recent years, had the opportunity of taking courses the University has been offering groups in this section.

SUNKEN SHIP SURVIVOR ARRIVES IN WILMINGTON
Wilmington, Oct. 10.—A survivor of the Norwegian freighted Knut Hamsun, which sank off the coast of Honduras June 10 during a storm. Gust Wells, 38-year-old German sailor, arrived here yesterday aboard the Norwegian vessel Annavor, from Havana.

Wells, who has more than twelve years' experience on coastwise vessels, signed aboard the Knut Hamsun at Newport News, Va., on May 1, 1934, for his first freight trip.

The following month the vessel went down and he was picked up and carried to Havana. He said he lost approximately $300 worth of personal effects when the vessel sank.

Very Much Improved After Taking Cardui
"I have suffered a great deal from cramping," writes Mrs. W. A. Sewell, Sr., of Waco, Texas. "I would chill and have to go to bed for about three days at a time. I would have a dull, tired, sleepy feeling. A friend told me to try Cardui, thinking it would help me—and it did. I am very much improved and do not spend the time in bed. I certainly can recommend Cardui to other sufferers."
Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

RUSSIAN TRAINMEN RAISE REAL THIRST WHEN SHIPPED EASTWARD TO SIBERIA
Moscow.—(AP)—More than $100,000 worth of wines and liquors were lost by breakage on Soviet Union dining car in the first six months of the year, according to reports by trainmen.

But Pravda, official newspaper of the communist party, did some figuring and suggested that the amount of liquor lost corresponded suspiciously closely to the consuming power of the train crews.

Breakage was especially noticeable on the Trans-Siberian express. One bump which the restaurant car sustained in a coupling operation at Irkutsk cost the government forty bottles of beer, five quarts of vodka, five bottles of cordials, five more of red wine and one container of brandy.

The conductor, engineer and headwaiter all signed the report. But it failed to persuade Pravda that the tiresome twelve-day trip from Moscow to Vladivostok had not moved the trainmen to relieve the monotony by an occasional nip at government expense.

NO SYMPATHY HERE FOR NON-SIGNERS

While individual non-contracting tobacco growers in another part of the state are organizing to fight the government tax placed upon non-cooperating growers, a delegation from Eastern North Carolina is visiting Washington to not only voice its approval of the crop control plan with its penalizing tax on signers but to petition the government to undertake at this time a new sign-up campaign that would extend the present contracts for another five years after they expire next year.

The contracting growers
in this tobacco belt this fall
have had it proven to them that through the government crop control plan they have come back from a position of almost financial despair to one of financial independence and certainly they are right in urging that the plan be continued for another five years after the present contracts expire with the harvesting of next year's crops. Then too, they have little or no sympathy for that small minority of growers who would not sign to reduce their crops hoping to make the proverbial killing in a financial way at the expense of the growers who did cut their crops. So far as getting any help from the Eastern Carolina farmers in the way of support in a movement for removal of the taxes, the non-cooperating grower would do well to get by with the tax at its present level, for we honestly believe that it does our cooperating growers good to see that the non-signers have to pay the tax and a higher one if possible for their refusal to cooperate in a movement that has done so much good for the entire tobacco growing section.

It is our sincere hope that the new sign-up movement will get under way at an early date and carried to a successful completion, for it has been proved to the satisfaction of all in this section that the curtailed crop means more money for the growers and we cannot hope to keep the production down without government supervision and control.

agencies are said to be unauthorized by law. One was set up by executive order.

By JAMES McMULLIN
Hot: The New Deal is about to be thrown for its first major flop. It will soon become painfully evident to all concerned that Federal regulation of oil production is a total loss. Backstage R-publican leaders are cheered on the theory that one specific horrible example is worth a ton of campaign arguments.
Administrator Ickes is predestined
to play the goat but informed
New Yorkers say the fault is by no means entirely his. If he had been able to get the enforcement legislation he wanted out of the last Congress all might have been different. As it is Ickes is embroiled in an argument with the Department of Justice on one side and with the Texas Railroad Commission on the other. The complete absence of teamwork among these agencies is peaches and cream to the hot oil boys. Out of hundreds of quota violations reported exactly none has been seriously prosecuted.

There's more hot oil out of East Texas now than at any time since production allotments were set and it's tipping the whole oil industry into the ditch.
New York experts estimate current illegal output from East Texas field at 100,000 barrels a day. This amounts to about 20 per cent of East Texas production and about 6 per cent of all the oil produced east of the Rockies. It has undermined the price structure to the point where something has to crack and apparently there's no way of stopping it.

Plunge: The Texas Commission is hamstrung because it's an elected body and the independents who are running hot oil are politically powerfully. Moreover it would have to stage prosecutions right in the territory and everybody there who has a nickle owns oil royalties. It would be harder than pulling hen's teeth

to find a jury that would convict.
So far the big companies have stuck to their knitting and their quotas but they're getting fed up with the pressure of illegal competition. Concerns that have to buy a large proportion of their crude to meet refinery requirements are especially hard hit. There's only one way that they can squelch the hot oil nuisance—by slashing prices.

This is what Ickes has particularly tried to avoid and so far the big fellows have played ball with him. But some of these days one of them will lose patience and take the plunge. The others will have to follow suit. The instant that happens federal prestige as a regulator of industry is knocked into a cocked hat.

Break-up: The gold bloc conference in Brussels on October 20 will have something on its mind besides money and tariffs. Insiders learn that France will use the occasion to inform its poor relations it can no longer support them in the style to which they have become accustomed. The French financial situation at home is too sour to permit further loans to needy allies.

This will be ghastly news to Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Belgium and Yugoslavia. The last two are likely to go boom almost right away. It means the break-up of the gold bloc as an economic unit and a policy of every man for himself among its members.

New York sharps remark that France's loss will be England's gain

if the British believe an extension of Sterlingaria - Britians personally conducted economic bloc - is worth the investment of a few bum loans.
This situation will bear watching.

Hedge: Recent sales of rubber by Holland and wheat by France for future delivery—far larger than usual transactions of that type—show how the wind blows. Smart financiel circles in both countries are trying to hedge against being trapped in their own embargo-depreciated currencies by setting up future credits for themselves in dollars or pounds.

Well-posted sources have it that the French hedging has been done by people very close to the government.

Sugar: Uncle Sam's benevolent attempt to give Cuba a helping hand by lowering the tariff on sugar has trewed a keg of trouble. American sugar interests are involved in heated rows with England and Cuba.

Our refiners have worked out an ingenious system under the law whereby they pay a duty of 90 cents a hundred pounds on raw sugar and later get back a refund from the government of $2.00 a hundred pounds. This is too lovely for words and enables them to lay their product down in London at a cent a pound and still make money.

This doesn't appeal to British refiners and the biggest of these—Tate and Lyle—has warned all its distributors to lay off American sugar.
It's in a position to make its pressure effective and the result is that our sugar export market to England is almost cut off.

On the Cuban side the argument is about minimum prices. The Cubans want these prices to apply

even to contracts made before they went into effect. American purchasers can't see any sense to that and the Cuban government forbids the shipment of their sugar until they do. It looks like a prolonged and destructive stalemate.

Sidelights: Wall Street margin clerks are to go to school for an hour to learn what the new margin regulations are all about. . .
You hear it said that a year would be more to the point. . . Last week's rise in the price of Stock Exchange seats reflects growing optimism in brokerage circles. . . One broker is harsh enough to predict that trading will reach two million shares a day within a month. . . The Stock Exchange is proud of the fact that its margin requirements on small accounts are stiffer than the Federal Reserve's.

21 OUT OF 23 ST. LOUIS CARDINALS SMOKE CAMELS!

by FRANK FRISCH

They sure made it hot for us this year, but the Cardinals came through in great style clear to the end when we needed every ounce of energy to win. We needed it—and we had it. There's the story in a nutshell. It seems as though the team line up just as well on their smoking habits as they do on the ball field. Here's our line-up on smoking: 21 out of 23 of the Cardinals prefer Camels.

PLAYER-MANAGER—Frankie Frisch
of the World Champion Cardinals.

The World Series is over. The Cardinals are on the top. Their astounding achievement will go down in history—
a sensational charge from 7 games behind to win the pennant...and then the series!
They are champions—and popular champions. Frankie Frisch, Carleton, Rothrock, Orsatti, Leo Durocher, Bill
Walker, Medwick—all America knows

this Cardinal team by heart and applauds its stirring victory.
"What do the World Champions smoke?" A natural question. And above you get Frank Frisch's answer.
The preference is overwhelmingly for Camels.

The Cardinals' virtually unanimous preference for Camels is worthy of every smoker's attention. Be guided by their experience. Enjoy Camel's "energizing effect" which science has studied and confirmed. Camels are milder—made from a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TO-BACCOS. They never get on your nerves!

"DUCKY" MEDWICK (Left)
"A Camel takes away the tired feeling as soon as I leave the field, turns on my 'pep' again."

"RIP" COLLINS
(Right) says: "A Camel has a way
of 'turning on'
my energy. And when I'm tired I notice they help
me to snap back
quickly."

"PEPPER" MARTIN (Right)
"I like Camels because when I light one I can actually feel all tiredness slip away."

THE DEANS!

PAUL DEAN says: "Smoking a Camel gives me the feeling of having more energy. Camels never give me jumpy nerves or leave a 'cigarette' aftertaste!"

"DIZZY" DEAN: "A Camel sure brings back your energy after a hard game, or any time when you're tired, and Camels never frazzle the nerves."

DURHAM TO CELEBRATE SATURDAY

Durham, N. C., Oct. 11.—History is being written here this week as Duke and Durham prepare for the "1934 Battle of the South" between Duke's Blue Devils and Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado in Duke stadium Saturday.

Plans have been made for the biggest pre-game celebration in the history of football in North Carolina. Student enthusiasm is at present at a new high in the history of Duke University. Advance sales of tickets have reached the biggest high on record. The most largely attended alumni home-coming day in history is expected by the alumni office.

And there will be more history written the day of the game. Athletic officials expect Duke stadium to be filled to its 35,000 capacity for the first time Saturday. The football game promises to be one of the greatest ever played in the South with Duke anxious to get revenge for that 6-0 defeat in Atlanta last year which stopped them on the threshold of football glory.

Pep meetings have been held on the Duke campus all week as students, anxious, too, to see the Blue Devils avenge that heart-breaking defeat of last year, show the team that they are solidly behind them and will be at the game en masse to urge them on.

The heights of student pep will be reached Friday night when the greatest of all meetings will be held. Freshmen are planning to stage a "run up Georgia Tech."

A full program has been prepared by the alumni office for the many former students who will return from all parts of the country, featured by a barbecue luncheon on the west campus before the game.

With the co-operation of Durham alumni of Duke, the Embassy Club, a group of local young men who are rapidly taking an important place in Durham affairs, is making preparations to welcome and look out for the visitors in Durham that day.

According to the plans, each incoming train will be met by members of the Embassy Club, and the Durham High School and Duke bands. They will also be ready to give information to all visitors.

The pre-game celebrations will get under way in full swing Saturday morning. A baseball game, offering the outstanding stars of the major leagues, will be played at 10 o'clock that morning.

At 11 o'clock the greatest football parade in the history of North Carolina will be staged with practically every business house and organization in Durham entering floats. The parade will make the length of Main Street, and circle the two Duke campuses. The winning float will be on parade at half-time of the football game.

The girls to Duke stadium will swing around at 12:30 o'clock in order to take care of the early-comers and there are expected to be thousands to get to their places at that time. The kick-off will be at 2:30 o'clock.

John Mertine, head cheer-leader, has made plans for some colorful doings on the part of Duke students, both during the game and at the half. The 70-piece Duke band, under the direction of Jelly Leftwich has arranged several special stunts to be displayed at the half of the game. Tech's big band will also be on the field at half-time displaying the wares that makes it one of the outstanding college bands in the country.

The day will be completed with a big dance, sponsored jointly by the Duke alumni of Durham and the Embassy Club which will be held in the Banner Warehouse here. It will be the "Duke-Tech dance."

Chief Little Bison, a playground assistant employed by the SERVA at the age of seven-fifty, conducts a child's story-telling hour three afternoons a week and teaches Indian handicraft and handiwork at the Yosemite, California, playgrounds.

Because ground squirrels of California can carry bubonic plague, squirrel-free zones are maintained around ports there to prevent the squirrels from infecting city rats and starting a serious outbreak.

Swiss Defense Bolstered At Alpine Passes

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
Geneva. —(AP)—Switzerland, determined to secure respect for her neutrality, has decided to strengthen the defenses of her frontier. The press recently has reprinted old rumors that in the event of a Franco-German conflict Germany might try to cross Switzerland from Basel to Geneva, march along the shore of Lake Lemman and attempt to reach Lyons through the Jura Mountain pass at Ecleguarde, the first French town on the railroad line from Geneva to Paris.

German spokesmen have labeled this report "ridiculous." Government Shows Hand Several writers have urged the strengthening of the points of access to Swiss soil, whether they be from German, France or Italy, and particularly those points which are not protected by the Alps.

The government itself has taken steps further to fortify the mountain passes, and bolster the frontiers all around.

This was revealed in public address by Rudolf Minger, chief of the federal military department.

Speaking of a national marksmanship competition at Fribourg he said that "insurgency of the international situation" necessitates a longer period of instruction for army recruits, especially infantry. He continued:

"Switzerland is favored because we have mountains on three sides while the fourth frontier is blocked by the Rhine. But we must be able to occupy each frontier with a strong force."

Asks For Public Support
Minger called upon parliament and people to back a defense construction program to be presented this fall. At a Basel meeting he accused the communists of seeking to say the strength of the Swiss army, adding:

"The economic crisis, however terrible, is insignificant compared to what would happen if our country became a theater of war."

"Our neighbors must be convinced that an invasion across Swiss soil would be destined to fail. If nations have this conviction, our neutrality will be respected."

France Under Heavy Fire as French Business Falls

The Bonfire

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The Puddle Muddlers looked at Quick-Dick in amazement. He was not only mischievous. He was dangerous.

"You couldn't do that!" growled Honey Bear. "A fire is a terrible thing. I don't care how quick you are. You never can tell what will happen."

"Would you want anyone to suffer? Would you want to run the risk of our dear Willy Nilly losing his home?"

"Oh, anything can happen in a fire. They're terrible, terrible things."

"That's so, I know," said Quick-Dick. "I suppose it was talking about fires, and the old days, that made me feel the thrill of them. Oh yes, I know they are very, very bad."

"Nothing in the world is so dangerous," barked Rip. "Never talk about fires if the talking makes you feel that way."

"Oh, don't ask me to give up my chief and favorite subject of talk!" begged Quick-Dick.

"Well, we'll have to ask you to do so if it excites you so."

"I promise you I'll be good," said Quick-Dick. The Puddle Muddlers had to smile to themselves to think that some one was promising them to be good!

Just then Willy Nilly came around to see that everything was all right, and that Quick-Dick was happy in his new home. The horse told Willy Nilly what bad ideas he had had.

"I know what I'll do," said Willy Nilly. "I'll make a bonfire out of some old trash I have. I'll ring a bell and you can run up and down the roads of Puddle Muddle."

"Poor Willy Nilly! Would he ever find time for his chores?"

Tomorrow—'Pretending'

ciated to compete with the dollar and the pound, daily are presented in the press and from the rostrum.

Answering inflationists, Louis Germain-Martin, finance minister, retorts that to follow the American and British examples would not cure French ills; he asks businessmen for a "truce on pessimism."

Despite this campaign, both the government and the Bank of France insist that a large majority of the people is behind them in their determination to weather the economic storm without tampering with the franc.

Autumn Crisis Foreseen
The revolutionists argue that a severe crisis is due this autumn and that the government should take steps now to soften the shock.

They point to increasing failures of provincial banks, a steadily high bankruptcy rate, diminishing foreign trade and savings bank deposits, a falling off of tourist income with increasing unemployment and general pessimism of the business community—the whole accompanied by failure of prices to come down—as proof that the only way out of the dilemma is to devalue the franc.

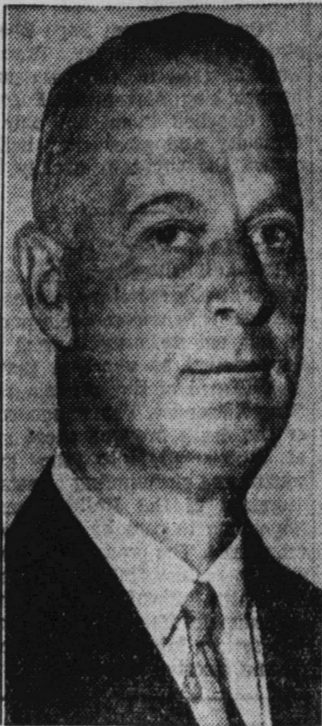

They maintain that the government, which appointed three commissions to hasten the lowering of prices, has failed and hence the only way left to aid business is to devalue the currency.

Price Reports Suppressed
One commission was named for meat and milk, a second for wheat and a third for vegetables. Reports turned in on meat, milk and vegetables have been withheld while wheat prices have been fixed at $1.95 a bushel for the 1934 crop—more than double the world price.

This autumn's crisis, they declare, may be aggravated by treasury re-financing operations and the almost eternal problem of budget balancing.

Lacking sufficient tax income, the treasury has been keeping the government running on borrowed money, sometimes operating from day to day.

that the treasury will find itself hard-put to get the money to re-pay these bonds.

Ask Cash On Line
Holders of $,000,000,000 francs' worth of bonds were given an opportunity to exchange them for the July issue, but only 2,000,000,000 francs' worth were turned in.

The remaining holders, those who favor devaluation say, apparently want cash in October.

Both sides of the argument agree, however, that much will depend on whether Premier Doumergue is able to maintain the "true government" which he set up last February after "Bloody Tuesday's" riots unsettled business and started a gold flow from the Bank of France.

Should political unrest break out anew, both sides fear that the already grave financial and economic situations will be further complicated.

Nazi Convicts Labor To Drain Ems Delta Land

By JOHN A. BOLMAN
Papenburg, Germany. —(AP)—Germany is using convict labor on a $20,000,000 scheme of land reclamation in magnitude approaching the draining of the Pontine marshes by Mussolini.

The moor and fenland area in question is situated on the lower reaches of the river Ems in northwestern Germany. It is about 125,000 acres in extent, compared with 187,500 acres of the Italian project.

The idea originated with Hanns Kerrl, Prussian Minister of Justice, whose department has just issued details of the scheme.

Farm and Forest Plan
On the reclaimed land, 2,300 farmer families will be settled, and part of it will be reserved for forestation purposes.

Germany's prisons will supply the labor. The plan is to establish 21 labor camps, each accommodating 1,000 convicts.

Much is expected from the rich peat players in the area, from which it is said, enough electricity can be generated to supply the whole area for eight or ten years. The peat deposits hereabouts are ten feet thick.

Forested Labor Needed
The whole work is calculated to occupy at least twelve years.

A question why the Nazi government's "voluntary labor" organization is not employed for this big scheme was answered in the ministerial statement by the explanation that an undertaking of such magnitude could be carried out only by forced labor under strict and permanent control.

SECRET INSURANCE POOL FOR OCTOBER AIR RACE
London. —(AP)—A secret pool for insuring entrants in the London-Melbourne air race has been formed by leading American and British insurance brokers.

The scheme was evolved by Frank Jones, well-known in aviation circles, who found that competitors could not insure their lives and aircraft for the race except at prohibitive rates.

"Taking them individually," said Jones. "I also found it impossible to insure them, and therefore hit upon a scheme which involved forming an insurance pool on the whole race."

"To do this it was necessary to call upon the leading British and American insurance brokers to cooperate with me, and I also had to rely upon a great majority of the competitors themselves joining the pool. I received enthusiastic support from all concerned."

The premium rate is being kept secret and competitors will not know it until shortly before the start.

A survey of several widely scattered Kansas counties showed about half would assess higher, and the remainder lower, taxes against residents this year.
