French Police Seek Other Members Of Band Of Assassins

Convinced Groups Awaited King Alexander in Marseille And Paris; Boy King And Mother Enroute Home

Paris, Oct. 12.—(AP)—French police believed today they have unearthed the trail of two more members of the band of terrorists responsible for the Marseille assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia. One led to the region of Lille and the other to Belgrade in the Swiss frontier.

The secret service worked tirelessly in a nation-wide man-hunt, as Peter II, the boy King of Yugoslavia, and his widowed mother, Queen Marie, sped toward Belgrade. Their special express train heavily guarded roared through Europe. No one was allowed to approach it at a station along the line.

Peter started home last night, passing through 500 guards mobilized to enter the train. A carload of special detectives were attached to the train, and at each end of the train were freight cars filled with police. High officials, including General Henri Petain, Minister of War, went along to represent France at the funeral of King Alexander.

Dispatches said the destroyer Dubrovnik bearing the King's body to Yugoslavia had been delayed by storms in the Mediterranean and might not reach the Adriatic port of Split until Sunday. It was due today.

On information that a foreigner left the Brussels to Paris express at St. Quentin and then started for the border police expressed belief it may have been a member of the assassin's band on the way to Paris to kill Alexander, but learned the job had been done at Marseille and decided to flee the country. They arrested the Lille section today. Authorities are convinced that the assassins were divided into two bands, one for Paris and the other for Marseille. Belgrade police shadowing a suspect following a tip from Geneva, said arrest was imminent.

SALES PASS 37 MILLION MARK TODAY

Present Season Average $30.89; Same period Last Season $12.65

Tobacco prices made another gain on the Greenville market yesterday when 516,776 pounds brought $188,713.18, or an average price of $36.52 per hundred pounds, a gain of nearly $1.00 per hundred over the previous day.

Official figures released today by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales showed that for the week ending yesterday the market sold for $1,529,095.61, averaging $36.16 per hundred. For the corresponding week last year the market sold 5,351,296 pounds for $785,215.61, an average of $14.67.

Sales for the present season to date were given as 36,937,492 pounds for $1,408,626.05, an average price of $30.89 per hundred compared with 21,775,702 pounds for $2,755,917.69, an average of $12.65 for the corresponding period last year.

During the week just ending some of the highest individual sales of the present season have been made, and each day the season's average price creeps a few cents per hundred higher. With October generally considered the best month in which to market tobacco, the war-torn growers are urging the growers to get their tobacco to market now. With smaller sales now the order of the day, the market is selling out completely every day and growers can bring their tobacco to market, get it sold and return home the same day without inconvenience.

SEEK LARGER STUDENT LOAN FUND HERE

Wright Memorial Fund to Aid Needy Students to Complete College Course

The larger the enrollment in the college, the greater the number of calls for financial aid from students. This fall, in spite of the fact that the FERA has helped meet this need, East Carolina Teachers College had had far more calls for help than it has been able to meet. There have been three hundred and fifty boys and girls who applied for self-help work who have to be refused aid because the jobs were filled. There are sixty-seven self-help students carrying on the routine jobs which are given students regularly each year. The allotment from the FERA fund provides self-help jobs for 108 students.

Federal aid is only temporary, and when that is withdrawn the number of needy students failing to get help will be greatly increased. A few of those who need help this fall will be able to borrow money from some source, or they can attend college this year, but most of them will not be able to do so.

It is the purpose of those who are directing the campaign for the Robert H. Wright Memorial Loan Fund to build up a fund that will enable needy and worthy students to secure financial help. The fund will be administered in such a way that the most worthy and responsible will be selected as beneficiaries of the loan. The record of every applicant will be very carefully investigated by a faculty committee, and no student will be allowed to borrow money from the fund who has not a good record. The terms of the loan and the agreement for repayment are very carefully stated. As the fund will be administered by the college authorities, there will be little overhead expense, so practically all the money will be put into the hands of needy students. The fund will be self-perpetuating and accumulative, as the interest will be added to the fund.

Contributions or subscriptions for this fund will later be solicited by members of a committee, or they can be mailed to E. L. Henlerson, chairman of the committee in charge of this fund.

THREE HURT IN CAR CRASH LAST NIGHT

Three Farmville Young Men Taken To Hospital Here For Treatment

Three young men, all from Farmville, suffered painful injuries last night when they failed to make the sharp turn on the Farmville highway about two miles from Greenville and their automobile left the road, jumped a ditch and crashed into a nearby tree, practically demolishing the machine. While investigating, officers could get but little information from the three injured men and the officers said the accident was apparently a result of high speed, causing failure to make the turn. The officers found a half gallon of whiskey and several empty bottles in the wrecked car.

The accident occurred around 11:30 o'clock, and passing motorists rushed to the three young men to the hospital here for medical attention.

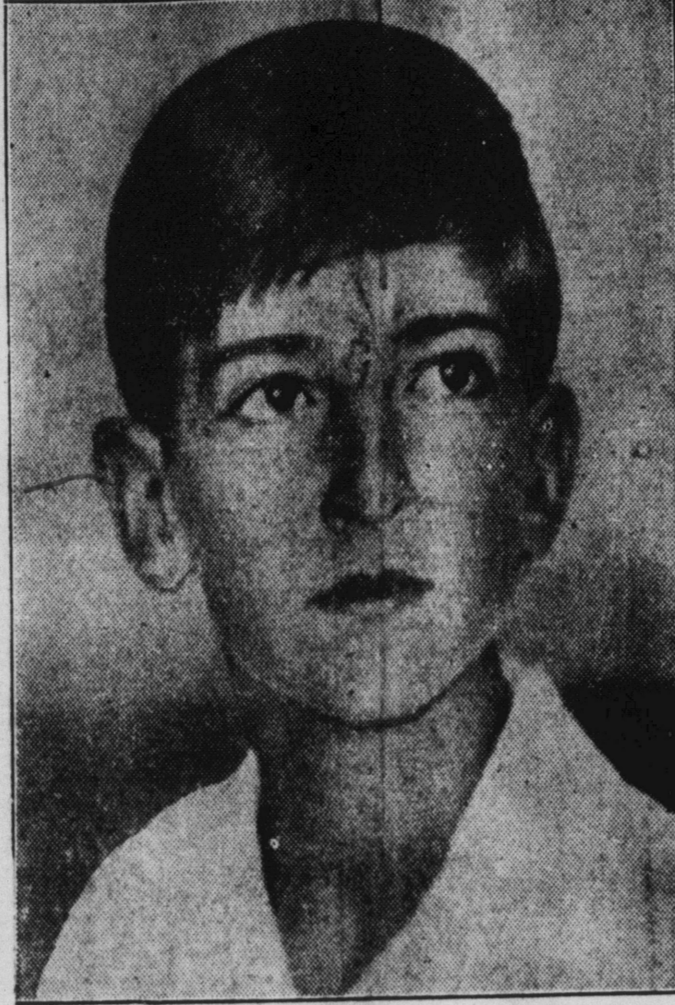

Henry H. Johnson, driver of the car, had an ear torn off, his nose cut almost off, several teeth knocked out and both jawbones broken. Billy Parker suffered a broken leg. Henry Skinner, the third occupant of the car, suffered painful injuries about the face and head.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News.

By GEORGE DURNO

Washington, Oct. 12.—Issues: Henry P. Fletcher is rapidly discovering that being Republican National Chairman this particular year isn't all beer and kiddies. From within his own party Fletcher has been urged to ease up on his charge that the New Deal is "bribing" large sections of voters to string along with the Democrats next fall.

Two distinct schools of thought are apparent in G. O. P. ranks. One thinks it good politics to hammer away at the administration for the way it has been pouring out AAA checks and unemployment relief just as the voters get ready to go to the polls. On the other hand, Fletcher has received letters from state and county leaders in various sections begging him to lay off. The latter group fears too many recipients of government largesse will get insulted over the allegation they have been bribed.

Fletcher thus finds himself between the devil and the deep blue sea. He has asked his party critics what alternate angle of attack he might better adopt. So far there has been a dearth of good suggestions.

Many of the G. O. P. high command think privately also that their "backs to the Constitution" war cry isn't getting them very far. There is a fair amount of opinion that the man-on-the-street isn't paying much attention to Republican charges that Mr. Roosevelt and his brain trust are stretching the Bill of Rights out of all proportion.

But Chairman Fletcher quite properly takes the attitude that the G. O. P. must stress this argument unless it is to follow a policy of wait and see, only.

Senate: In next month's elections certain of the Republican inner circle foresee perhaps a distinct threat at their chances for a comeback in the presidential year of 1936.

If the Democrats make good their claim of capturing a minimum of five new senatorial seats to add to their already large majority in the upper house, the White House would be no bed of roses for a Republican in 1936—assuming one could win.

There are 60 Democrats in the Senate at present as against 35 Republicans and 1 Farmer-Laborite. Former President Hoover found out only too well how thoroughly a hos-

SEVEN YEAR OLD BOY IS MURDERED

Body Found Cramped in Old Trunk And Hidden in Abandoned Shack

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A blue overalled seven-year-old grammar school boy, John Feeney, Jr., was found strangled to death today and cramped into an old trunk in a small ramshackle squatter's shack near the abandoned bed of Morris Canal.

The rope with which the little boy had been strangled apparently was picked up from the dumps surrounding the shack. It was lighter than ordinary sash cord and had been twisted tightly about the boy's neck several times. Physicians said the time of the death was approximately 9 o'clock last night. The rope with which the boy was strangled was still tight about his neck but there were no other more or other evidence of violence immediately apparent. The body was removed in the trunk to the morgue where it was to be further examined by the county physician.

The boy left Bayonne, which is just across the canal bed that forms the Jersey City-Bayonne city line, after returning from school yesterday afternoon. He was not seen afterwards.

Homicide squad detectives who took over the investigation immediately started a hunt for two men known to frequent the dumps in the vicinity of the tiny shack. The men were wanted for questioning. It was said by police, who described them as one, a red-headed man and the other an Italian youth. The detectives also went to Bayonne to round up all the children in the vicinity of the modest Feeney home on the chance that some of them might have seen John before he disappeared.

All of the dead and injured were riding on train No. 14, railroad officials said. The body of the dead woman was badly mutilated and workers required more than an hour to remove it from the wreckage.

John Hay Whitney Hurt in Airplane Crackup Yesterday

Upperville, Va., Oct. 12.—(AP)—John Hay Whitney today was suffering from cuts over his eye and on his head as the result of an airplane crack-up as he landed on his Liangollen estate late yesterday returning from New York for the national steepchase there today.

Whitney's injuries are not considered serious. Pilot Edward Woodham also suffered minor injuries. The plane engine went dead and in landing on the estate the tail of the plane struck a ditch. Witnesses described the plane as wrecked. Whitney's wife and mother witnessed the crack-up.

Stoll Family Pays Ransom; Await Victim's Return

Held by Kidnapers

All agencies of the law cooperated in a widespread search for Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, (above) wealthy Louisville, Ky., society matron, who was abducted after being slugged by a lone kidnaper. Her husband is an oil company official. (Associated Press Photo)

Family of Louisville Society Matron Give No Information Other Than Ransom Demands Met

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The ransom demanded for Mrs. Alice Steed Stoll has been paid and the family awaits the kidnappers' fulfillment of their promise. Berry V. Stoll, husband of the young society woman who was slugged and forced from her home late Wednesday, said today.

The ransom note had named the demand as $50,000, but Stoll's announcement did not mention the sum. This formal statement was: "We have carefully followed instructions and met all ransom requirements and are awaiting the fulfillment of promises. The parties may act freely without fear of interference."

BERRY V. STOLL. The statement that all the ransom requirements had been met was taken to mean definitely that the money had been paid and the fate of pretty Alice Stoll for the time being rested upon whether or not those who made the ransom demand would keep their promise. Whether Stoll meant the money was actually being given to the man who kidnapped Mrs. Stoll or was given to some person designated by him remained unexplained as there was no comment when the formal statement was given newspapermen in Stoll's behalf.

Reference by Stoll's announcement to "parties" was the first indication that more than one person had been connected with the kidnapping of the pretty former Bryn Mawr student and Junior League member, daughter of William S. Steed, retired capitalist.

The Stoll family obtained complete isolation yesterday in the residence of Berry Stoll on his 16-acre estate here after a day of futile waiting for a contact by the kidnappers. Through last night they waited for word. The place was standing in silence with extra telephone lines installed. This morning at 9:15 Berry Stoll, hatless, and apparently very much excited, drove out of the driveway in a roadster. Another man was with him. The car swung down Lime Hill road bordering the estate and headed south into Kentucky. The emissaries took the narrow, winding trail at high speed, not slowing up for turns or frequent hills. A few miles away Berry Stoll transferred to a faster car on the Brownsboro road and held south still running at a speed of the machine's capacity. From time to time he was reported by towns on his way south toward the Tennessee line.

Labor Inspector Says Conditions Here Are Good

John Paul Cooper, senior inspector of the State Department of Labor, has just completed a survey of inspections in Greenville and Pitt County. His work covered Child Labor Regulations, sanitation in warehouses and manufacturing establishments.

Mr. Cooper was highly pleased with the splendid conditions found in the various warehouses and manufacturing establishments. He found splendid conditions for the workers and for the accommodation of visitors in the various warehouses of Greenville and highly complimented the management on this phase of his work.

He called attention to the child labor regulation which forbids the employment of children under 12 years of age and over fourteen, while the school is in session, without holding work cards. No girl under fourteen is permitted to do street trading or work in any public place. All children up to sixteen years of age are required to hold employment certificates covering such work as carrying papers on fixed routes and clerking in stores or working in any manufacturing establishments.

Conditions found in Pitt County covering the various phases of the work under the State Labor Department compared favorably with conditions in other sections of the county.

"Daddy" Browning Died Early Today

New York, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Edward West "Daddy" Browning, wealthy real estate operator and husband of the former Frances "Peaches" Heenan, died today at Scarsdale, N. Y., his secretary announced.

After a cerebral hemorrhage last June Browning was confined to a hospital in New York City. For several weeks he was in a critical condition. He was discharged from the hospital about the middle of September and taken to the home of a friend in Birch Dall Drive, Scarsdale.

Browning, who was 63 years old, is reported to have written of himself, "He is a Favorite in the Social World," but other biographers were less delicate about his career. They said he was a "publicity seeker."

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: Cliff Haddon attended outside the day Silver Gordon, reporter for the Morning Dispatch, and Haddon, her managing editor, have given Cliff a reason for fighting back to life. They have told him Silver "understands" and is returning to Oakland to see him, because they suspect that something important lies under the surface. Silver is returning to take Marion's hand, long a friend, away from her, to see Cliff.

Chapter 18 THE RETURN

Marian continued her laughing. "But Silver is so accustomed to having every man who sees her fall in love with her that she thought you were no exception."

"What a kid," Lon murmured. "How old do you think she is?" "About your age, I guess; well a little younger, she went to school with you, but if she was married when she was sixteen—"

"She wasn't," Marian reassured him, "and just to relieve your fear of having given a child the wrong impression, she's six years older than I am, which makes her thirty." "Thirty... listen lan, do you have to go off on some fool yarn?"

"I do, but she's the 'fool yarn.' I have to meet her and go to the hospital with her and you have to go along with us. No, we can't break the news of our engagement until she's through with her interview with Haddon. Your presence will keep her straight, if nothing else will," she concluded enigmatically. "Come on."

"But wait, lan, look,"—he drew a small box from his pocket—"that woman has caused me more trouble. I'd planned on waiting for the moon and everything, and... but here it is. I bought it after we got in and I couldn't sleep for wanting to put it on your finger so the whole world would know you were spoken for."

He slipped a ring with a single blazing stone on her finger, then with Anne merrily singing in the dressing room to prove she wasn't listening, tried to make up for the lack of the moon.

He succeeded so well that Marian didn't think of Silver, nor of the letter she had placed on the dressing table, intending to slip it into her pocket, until they were near the airport.

They had talked of many things, principally of their honeymoon. "I hope we'll be able to make that without little Cheerio popping up some place. Honeymoons, you know, are supposed to be spent all alone."

"With Hero." "You mean you want the pup too?" he asked in delighted surprise. "I do. You know I saw him before I saw you. He was sitting in your car outside the Emergency Hospital. I had the queerest feeling about him, as if, somehow, he should belong to me."

By the time they reached the air terminal, the ship had landed and Silver was busily engaged in posing for news photographers. Seeing Lon, however, she flew to him, smiled at Marian, then linked her arm in Lon's and said, "can we hurry on now?"

"We can," said Lon, and with Marian on his other arm ushered them to the car. "But I'm afraid I'll take cold," objected Silver as he helped Marian in first.

"Don't insult my car," countered Lon, adjusting the glass slides so no vagrant wind would blight her delicacy.

As they drove along Silver leaned forward and talked to Lon, ignoring Marian completely. Lon answered lightly, good naturedly. He said he was sorry he hadn't been able to wait for her in Reno; regretted she hadn't left her address so he might have advised her he was leaving; was sure her nerves were shattered by the air trip. And then they reached the hospital.

Not until they were ascending the steps of the big gray building where a hushed silence hovered like a pall, did Silver's attention leave her. Marian saw her look down the long, dimly lighted corridors where nurses slipped along on rubber soled shoes like wraiths from another world. She heard her catch her breath in a quick gasp, then saw the narrowing of the dark eyes.

Marian and Silver were left alone together as Lon stopped at the Superintendent's office for the written permission to visit Clifford Haddon. "Listen lan," began Silver, "you got me into this, now it's up to you to stand by and see me through."

Marian nodded assent, afraid to speak for the relief she felt would tinge her voice. She was not only to accompany Silver to his bedside, but was to be able to prompt Silver. "And Mr. Casad," Silver again linked her arm in his as he returned, "you will stay with me, won't you? It isn't as if everything were not over between Mr. Haddon and me, but I can't let him know that at a time like this, can I?"

"It wouldn't be sporting," Lon agreed. "I just wanted to be sure you understood," murmured Silver, then became silent. They had reached the door leading to Haddon's room. They stepped in. The flowers that had smothered the room with perfume which still lingered, had been removed for the night. The room was barren, a gray-green cell with white woodwork, a white clothed nurse, a white bedstead and a white, silent figure on the bed.

Marian looked at him with awe. This was the man whose life had been saved with a life. Tip-toeing, as though they would achieve the rubber-soled silence of the nurses, the three moved into the center of the room, then Lon stepped back to let the two girls go alone to the bedside.

Marian had a vision of Cliff Haddon as she had once seen him, tall, bronzed, clad in the brief blue and white of the Varsity crew, flushed with the victory of that crew and with the realization that the lovely girl at his side was his for the asking.

Mrs. White Entertains.
Outstanding among the attractive affairs of the season was last evening when Mrs. S. T. White in her usual gracious manner, entertained members of the Seashore Club and a number of other guests, honoring Mrs. Montgomery Barnes of Greenville, Tennessee, house guest of her sister, Mrs. J. B. James.

The home throughout was lovely, dahlia, aster and other fall flowers in various colors making an effective background for the bridge tables.

Mrs. F. M. Park, scoring high for ladies, was awarded silk hose. The high score prize for men, cigarettes, went to Ed Batchelor, and the floating prize for slams, a double deck of bridge cards, was won by Mrs. Park and William Wright. Mrs. Barnes was remembered with silk hose.

Later in the evening guests were invited into the dining room where a tempting buffet supper was served. A pink and green color note was emphasized in this room. The table was covered with an imported cloth and centered with a five-branched candelabra flanked by silver vases holding pink roses.

Seated at one end of the table, Mrs. Charles A. White served salad and from the opposite end of the table, Miss Helen White poured coffee.

Guests included members of the Seashore Club, Mrs. Barnes, the honor guest, Mrs. J. B. James, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Park, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cummings and Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. White.

Come. Your presence is important.

The Southern Magazine, published in the interest of the United Daughters of the Confederacy and Southern States, devoted to the truth of Southern history, literature, art, music and poetry—past and present, is now in Sheppard Memorial Library.

This periodical is given to Sheppard Memorial Library by the local chapter of U. D. C. It is a very interesting magazine, published monthly. Each issue is dedicated to some southern state. A recent number featuring Florida is unusually good.

Service By Miss Oakley.

The Pentecostal Holiness Church, corner 13th and Reade streets, will honor Miss Mavis Lee Oakley with a special service Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Miss Oakley will say good-bye to Greenville October 22. She will cross the continent and sail from Vancouver, B. C., November 3. She is going to China as a missionary from the Pentecostal Holiness Church.

All friends and schoolmates are invited to this special service. Come and bid her God's speed.

Greenville has never produced a finer, more consecrated Christian. She is well known here and over the state as well. She graduated from high school and completed a normal course at East Carolina Teachers College. She taught in public schools for four years, taught five years in the Holiness Bible and Missionary Institute, Greenville, S. C.

She became a Christian in early life and at once went to work doing good. She was a faithful worker in the Methodist Church, having taught a Sunday school class and did mission work. In later years she joined the Pentecostal Holiness Church and has been an enthusiastic worker ever since.

Through this revival God is speaking to the mothers, fathers, boys and girls of this city to forsake sin for salvation. If God speaks to you obey at once.

Come tonight at 7:30 o'clock and hear an old-fashioned Gospel message. A very special message Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Miss Oakley will join three other missionaries of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Danville, Va., Rev. and Mrs. Clyde H. Herndon of Western North Carolina, and Miss Laura Hlyton of Virginia. Miss Hlyton is returning after a furlough to the States.

The father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oakley, are justly proud of this great missionary.

astical worker ever since. For several years she has felt that her work was to carry the Gospel to China's dark shores, and she has labored faithfully to that end. Soon the desire of her heart will be realized and she will find herself in the midst of China's millions. The "Little Church on the Corner" will feel honored to have her represent them "on the other side" in God's great harvest field.

Come tonight at 7:30 o'clock and hear an old-fashioned Gospel message. A very special message Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Miss Oakley will join three other missionaries of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Danville, Va., Rev. and Mrs. Clyde H. Herndon of Western North Carolina, and Miss Laura Hlyton of Virginia. Miss Hlyton is returning after a furlough to the States.

The father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oakley, are justly proud of this great missionary.

—Rev. J. W. Berry, Pastor, Pentecostal Holiness Church.

Romance At Czar's Court in Background Fatal Royal Visit

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN (Associated Press Staff Writer)

A youthful romance at the court of the czar of Russia was in the background of the political problem which took Alexander of Yugoslavia to France on the visit of state which gave opportunity for assassins to mow down him and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister.

Opposed Franco-Soviet Move
A ruler in fact as well as in name, he had put his government on record as opposed to the new Franco-Soviet rapprochement. Yugoslavian delegates worked against admission of the Soviet Union to the League of Nations. The Belgrade government refused to follow the example of Rumania and Czecho-Slovakia, its allies in the Little Entente, in extending recognition to the Soviet Union.

This course, coupled with Alexander's recent overtures to Bulgaria seemed to Paris to prestage a possible weakening of the bonds between the republic and the Little Entente. It aroused French anxiety similar to that which arose earlier in the year when Poland entered a non-aggression pact with Adolf Hitler's third Reich.

Italy-French Accord Affected
And recent indications of a resurgence of anti-Italian feeling in Alexander's domain also threatened the foundations of an Italian-French understanding which Barthou hoped to conclude soon with Benito Mussolini at Rome.

Alexander's distrust of the Russian government, extending with the Paris government, had its genesis in both personal and family feeling. When he was a boy he was sent to St. Petersburg, then seat of the brilliant Russian court, to serve as a page and to absorb Slavic royal traditions.

It was he, in fact, who appealed to the czar for help for "fellow Slavs" when Austria's ultimatum in 1914 set the world flame with war.

He had an advocate at court in Grand Duchess Tatiana, daughter of the czar. They had become deeply attached while the then Serbian prince had been serving as a page.

Ended in Ekaterinberg Cellar
The romance ended in the cellar at Ekaterinberg, Siberia, where Bolsheviks killed Tatiana and all her family in 1918.

Three years later Alexander married Princess Marie of Roumania, but always his kinship has been a haven for refugees from Russia. And always his government has suppressed sternly any evidences of communism in Yugoslavia.

Also at Belgrade there has been Alexander's widowed sister, Princess Helene. Her husband was Prince Ivan Constantinovich, son of Grand Duke Constantine of imperial Russia. Prince Ivan also died in that tragic year of 1918.

BERNIE BIEMAN MAY TRY TRICKS ON GOPHER TEAM
Minneapolis.—(AP)—Stealth and conspiracy may enter into Minnesota's football strategy this fall as Coach Bernie Bierman grows tired of the compliments paid his team.

Critical because the experts seem to be getting too fond of the Gophers, Coach Bierman exposed a sly trick he confessed to playing on practice visitors while he was at Tulane.

"We used to trick them down at Tulane," he said. "Maybe that's why we won so many games. We would not look too good. We'd dress the team up in ragged jerseys and old pants—nothing flashy—and let them go out and run around the field."

"The boys who came out to see us before a game would go back and write that those fellows could never beat anybody."

NO TRUCE WITH CRIME

To the following editorial from today's News and Observer we add our hearty approval. It has always been and still is our opinion that the law should not compromise with the criminals. Kidnaping is one of the meanest of crimes and the only way to combat is the use always of an iron hand with sure and just punishment for those who engage in such crime. Any compromise with criminals is but encouraging them to perpetrate other crimes.

The Observer is right when it says:

It is easy to understand the plea of Berry V. Stoll, wealthy Kentucky man whose wife has been kidnapped, to police to "let me get her back without interference." He is ready to pay the ransom and wants no police to interfere with speedy payment of the ransom and safe return of his wife. If the Stoll case was the only kidnapping that America would have to face, the police might be justified in playing hands-off. Unfortunately, however, this will probably not be the last case and for the police to agree not to interfere would be to set a precedent which would encourage kidnapers to "snatch" other victims with the hope of the same immunity.

If the time should ever come when kidnapers could count on a hands-off policy by the police and the quick and safe collection of their ransoms, then kidnaping would become good business indeed for the criminal. In some Canadian provinces, officials realizing that the crime of kidnaping depends upon safe and easy collection of demanded ransoms, the payment of a ransom for the return of a kidnapped person is itself made a crime. This may be going too far. It is difficult to conceive of an American jury convicting a person for ransoming a wife or child. At the same time, in every case the police must remember that their business is to protect society and not merely aid the individuals injured by a particular crime.

There is no evidence that any kidnapped person has been better treated or more quickly returned because the police played hands off. An unfortunate precedent was given such a hands-off policy at the demand of Colonel Lindbergh in that famous case and, as everyone knows no good purpose was served by it. There have been other such requests since. The police, however, can safely follow only one course in their war on crime and that is to demonstrate clearly that every kidnapper can count on relentless warfare from the police whose job it is to show the criminal that kidnaping in America is neither safe nor profitable. It is better that one kidnapped person suffer than that the safety and freedom of many other persons be endangered by giving the criminal hope that a soft-hearted police would adopt such a soft-hearted and soft-headed policy toward kidnapers.

Nevertheless, the New Dealers aren't fooling themselves. They foresee sustained editorial opposition from a large cross-section of the American press.

Snappy Postmaster General Jim Mervin has a letter-writing system that is making him thousands of friends all over the country. Whenever the Democratic political boss goes on tour, he has his two personal stenographers, Margaret Duffey and Mary Cahill, meet him at some key point. There, he dictates letters of thanks to everyone even remotely connected with his reception along the line. With about 600 such letters each in their notebooks Miss Duffey and Miss Cahill hop into a plane and fly back to Washington. The notes of appreciation are transcribed and in the hands of the many recipients before Gen. Jim even gets back himself.

Tough: Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins has had many novel requests for relief but a new one was pulled on him the other day by a White House reporter.

"You don't happen to have an extra badge for the Laurel race track, do you?" queried the news man.

Upon being assured Hopkins didn't have any, let alone an extra one, the reporter sadly asked: "Well, then, have you got any news?"

Notes: Plans are being drawn for a gigantic central filing depot for government papers, with a pneumatic tube system to shoot papers to any department. The archives building is to house historic documents for research and public inspection. Secretary Morgenthau is taking over stricter regulation of the office of Comptroller of the Currency and they say Comptroller J. F. T. O'Connor's unhappiness grows. Secretary Ickes tells the news lads what he thinks of liberty of the press—with reservations. The blue eagle of NRA is rapidly fading—it isn't popular now to mention the bird.

By JAMES McMULLIN

New York, Oct. 12—Free: New York business Columboes are cheered because the New Deal haven't reported by their masthead scouts off the starboard—or conservative—bow seems to be getting nearer and more real. They are losing their fear that it will turn out to be another mirage. They like the way the NRA is shaping up better and better. When Donald Richberg spoke of the need to restore free competition they were inclined to discount it as the "usual soft soap"—but they get word of inside developments since which indicate that he meant it. The big news grapevined by the best financial sources cover three major points.

1.—The administration has quietly but definitely scrapped its effort to regain the 1926 price level.
2.—No further monetary experiment are in prospect unless other remedies fail completely.
3.—The main objective now is to speed up distribution of goods as the quickest way to rebuild employment and purchasing power. To that end industry will be allowed free play for its initiative—only restriction being a ban on lower wages and longer hours.

DUKE READY FOR BATTLE SATURDAY

Durham, N. C., Oct. 12.—The football team's work completed, the students hepped up to a new high in enthusiasm, advance sale of tickets indicating a capacity crowd and a record-breaking number of returning alumni, downtown Durham awaiting the gong for its prominent part in the proceedings, all was in readiness tonight for the "1884 Battle of the South" between the gridiron warriors of Duke University and the Georgia School of Technology Saturday afternoon in Duke stadium.

Once in a lifetime such a football contest is served up to the grid public of North Carolina. The game heads the list of contests in the South this week and occupies a prominent place in the national spotlight as those who remember Duke's only defeat of 1933 by Tech in Atlanta watch to see if the Blue Devils get their revenge.

Football officials, judging by the record-breaking advance sale of tickets, expected a capacity crowd of 35,000 to file into Duke stadium tomorrow afternoon. The gates will open at 12:30 o'clock and the kickoff will be at 2:30.

It will probably be the most colorful gridiron contest ever played in the South. A mammoth parade will start off the fan-are Saturday morning at 11 o'clock. Twenty-five floats have been entered by Durham business houses and organizations and they will be led by four bands—the Duke 70-piece organization, the Georgia Tech band of the same size, the Durham High School group, and the American Legion drum and bugle corps.

Starting at one end of Main Street, the parade will continue the length of it circling the east and west campuses of Duke University. The sponsors of Saturday's game will occupy a prominent part in the proceedings. The winning float will be paraded at half-time tomorrow.

The judges of the parade will be the mayors of Raleigh and Chapel Hill—George A. Isley and J. M. Foushee, respectively, and the president of the Durham Chamber of Commerce, M. A. Briggs.

An all-star baseball game between outstanding players of the major leagues, including some of the stars of the World Series, will be staged on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock and many are planning to come early in order to attend that contest.

A full program has been prepared for the Homecoming alumni of Duke University who are expected to return in record-breaking numbers tomorrow. The program is featured by a barbecue luncheon on the campus just before the football game.

The battle on the gridiron should be one of the best played in the South this season. The Yellow Jackets are equipped with the best aerial game in the South and will throw this full force against the Blue Devils as well as a smooth and effective running attack.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION

Our Specialty—the Subdividing of Large Farms Into Small Farm Units
Below is a letter from a satisfied client, relative to a sale made last week.

L. HARVEY & SON COMPANY

KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA

LEO H. HARVEY
President

October 4, 1934

Mr. J. W. Ferrell, President,
J. W. Ferrell Company,
Greenville, N. C.

My dear Mr. Ferrell:

We want to express to you the appreciation of our entire organization for the splendid manner in which you conducted two auction sales for us yesterday. These two properties brought approximately $29,000 which is about $5,000 more than we had expected them to bring and, naturally, we are delighted with this showing.

The manner in which the properties were subdivided by your organization, and particularly the manner in which the tobacco and cotton allotments were made by you, we feel are very largely responsible for the success of the sale and wish to congratulate you upon the manner in which these things were done.

It will be our pleasure to give consideration to other auction sales in the very near future.

Very truly yours,

(Signed): LEO H. HARVEY,
President.

LHH LMC

Our canvass of the bright tobacco belt convinces us that there is a large demand for one, two and three horse farms on reasonable terms. The large farm owners have an opportunity now to have their properties subdivided and sold.

If you are the owner of a large farm, we will be glad to send one of our representatives to discuss the proposition with you.

ADDRESS:

J. W. FERRELL COMPANY

vention of the American Federation of Labor here today. In recommending concurrence in the resolution the committee reported it declared it is impractical to appoint an individual to NRA whose public record shows him opposed to trade unions and to collective bargaining as set forth in sections 7 and 7b of the NRA. It is difficult if not impossible for an individual who denies his right to organize, the resolution stated. The recommendation of the resolutions committee was adopted by the convention without a dissenting vote and without a word of discussion.

Hutson To Act.

Washington, Oct. 12.—(AP)—J. B. Hutson, AAA tobacco chief, said today the advisory committee from the flue cured tobacco states would be called to meet at Raleigh within a week or ten days to discuss a substitute for a long time production control program for the present two year's agreement. The advisory committee is composed of three North Carolina growers and one each from Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia, the other flue cured states.

Miss Outlaws Again.

Fulton, Mo., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The trail of three men, one believed to be Charles "Pretty Boy" Floyd, was lost at Kingdom City at the intersection of highways 40 and 54 by Audrian county officers today. Kingdom City is about 12 miles south of the cornfield where the outlaw and his two companions were reported "surrounded." Officers of Missouri State Highway Patrol county and city police rushed into the area.

Roads were blocked. Floyd who this week was definitely linked with the slaying of four officers in Kansas June 17, 1933, was reported in Iowa yesterday headed south to retreats in Missouri and Oklahoma.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—While attacks on the Bankhead cotton curtailment law are less severe than they have been, opinion here is that the act still is in for some stormy weather.

Assurances by the Federal Government that steps will be taken to remove inequalities affecting the small cotton producers particularly have eased the situation somewhat, but it remains to be seen whether the government will be able to satisfy all.

The situation is this: Under the Bankhead law cotton production is limited to 10,465,000 bales. Ninety per cent of this total production is classified as the regular allotment while the remaining 10 per cent is held in reserve to adjust inequities as they rise.

Under the pressure of complaints, especially from the small producers, orders have gone out to the State committees to redouble efforts to complete the individual allotments of the 90 per cent that the reserve may be utilized as quickly as possible.

Clamor For Modification

Most of the discontent seems to lie in the cotton producing States east of the Mississippi River where production has exceeded allotments. Faced with the possibility of having to pay a tax of 5 1-2 cents a pound on all cotton above the quota if they hope to market it, the clamor for either abandonment of the law or drastic modification has been loud and insistent.

On the other hand the Texas legislature, in the forecast cotton-producing State, turned thumbs down on a proposed resolution demanding immediate abandonment of the machinery of the Bankhead act.

The principal argument advanced was that Texas cotton farmers are getting today about twice as much for their cotton as they did last year.

Help For Small Producer

The important question at the moment is: Will the 10 per cent reserve allotment be sufficient to pacify those who are complaining of inequities? Agricultural officials have expressed the opinion it will take care of most of them. Others are frankly skeptical, believing the reserve allotment will be exhausted before the situation can be remedied.

There's a unanimity of opinion that the small producer should be taken care of as quickly and as generously as possible. It is pointed out that he is a victim of a situation which has developed through no fault of his own and which he could not have prevented.

The future of the Bankhead law may hinge on just how successfully the government is able to remedy the situation with which the small producer is now confronted.

Washington, D. C.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's decision that the work of the civilian conservation corps "must go on," came as no surprise to Washington observers.

The President's pet project of the "new deal," laughed at by many at first, denounced as visionary by others, gradually has come to be regarded as one of the most outstanding accomplishments of the administration.

AAA, FERA and all the other alphabetical groups of the "new deal" have at one time or another come in for scathing criticism, but CCC has been singularly spared. Aside from the charges of "graft" in the purchase of toilet kits for members of the corps in the early stages of organization, no serious criticism has been made.

The reason is easily understandable. CCC, a new and hitherto untried experiment on a national scale, has proved a godsend. It apparently has solved admittedly one of the gravest and most important problems to face the country during the period of depression.

850,000 Enrolled
A casual glance at the report submitted to the President by Robert Fechner, director, covering the first eighteen months of CCC operation offers convincing proof for its existence.

During that period Fechner estimates that some 850,000 young men, war veterans and Indians had been enrolled in CCC camps over the country. The authorized strength of the corps at the present is 370,000, but the personnel is changing constantly. Fechner estimates that approximately 10,000 of the men are leaving the camps each month to re-enter industry, business and the farm.

The cost of the experiment to the government for the year and a half of operation has been $445,000,000. Of this amount $138,000,000 has been paid in wages, of which $113,000,000 found its way to the families or dependent members of the corps.

Skeptics Convinced

If President Roosevelt is determined to make the CCC in some form or another permanent, and apparently he is, probably will encounter little difficulty in obtaining approval of Congress.

Those who were skeptical at the start as well as those who openly ridiculed the idea in Congress have remained to become convinced of its effectiveness. In all probability the President can write his own ticket as far as Senators and Representatives are concerned.

Not even those who, like Senator Huey Long, of Louisiana, derisively termed the CCC a "bunch of sapling planters," are apt to stand in the way.

principal address, prayer by Rev. E. Gibson Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Asheville; musical numbers by the college music faculty, glee club and orchestra; recognition of visitors and descendants of the founders of the college, and benediction by Dr. E. J. Coltrane, president of Brevard College.

Founders' Day at Mars Hill is celebrated annually on October 12 the birthday of Edward Carter (1814-1905), who with others conceived the idea of a college at what is now Mars Hill and who gave the land on which it now stands. At present Mars Hill is the oldest college in North Carolina west of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

With W. A. G. Brown, prominent in the history of education in Western North Carolina and Tennessee, as the first president, the school opened in 1856 as the French Broad Baptist Institute. In 1859 it was chartered by the General Assembly of North Carolina as a college and given the name of Mars Hill College.

The history of the college has been marked by heroism and sacrifice from the initial efforts of the founders to the present. During the seventy-eight years of its existence men and women, mostly of limited means, have given generously to the building and maintenance of the college.

COLLEGE EDITOR HURT IN MOTOR ACCIDENT

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 12.—E. S. Knight, State College student, was injured in an automobile accident last night at 6:30 o'clock at the Union Depot intersection of Martin and Dawson Streets.

Knight, resident of Goldsboro and editor of The Technician, campus newspaper, was riding in a roadster driven by Brock Sisell, of Winston-Salem, managing editor of the paper. Sisell's car was struck by a Swift & Company truck driven by E. C. Newsum as the roadster was making a right turn on the traffic light change.

Sisell was uninjured, but Knight was thrown through the windshield, cutting his face and hands badly. He was taken to Rex Hospital where the exact extent of his injuries had not been determined late last night.

Police had preferred no charges last night pending an investigation of the accident.
