DOUMERGUE CABINET TOSSED INTO THE DISCARD

Flandin Agrees To Try To Form New Government

LAVAL TURNS DOWN OFFER AS PREMIER

French Public Watches Rapid Succession Of Events Nervously; President Lebrun Seeks to Maintain 'Political Truce' Standard; Doumergue Appeals to Public to Preserve Peace

Paris, Nov. 8.—(AP)—French politics tossed Premier Gaston Doumergue into the discard today and former Minister of Public Works Etienne Flandin agreed to form a new French government and serve as premier.

He accepted this task at the request of President Lebrun, who previously had offered the premiership to the chief neutral in French politics, Pierre Laval, the resigned foreign minister. Laval, however, refused the task.

The French public, fearful of a repetition of the riots which brought the Doumergue government into being, watched the rapidly-moving succession of events with nervousness.

Doumergue had based his rule on the side of a "political truce," and Lebrun has called upon Laval in an effort to salvage that type of government, but the refusal of Laval, the avowed enemy of payment of the French war debt to the United States was regarded as irrevocable.

Doumergue's resignation, forced as it was by the refusal of Edouard Herriot, minister without portfolio and leader of the Radical-Socialists, and five other ministers affiliated with him, to cooperate, left the statesman disillusioned and disheartened.

He immediately issued a brief appeal to the people in an effort to preserve the peace of the country.

Leaf sales still shrink. Latest Sale of The Season Recorded on The Local Market Yesterday

Sales of bright leaf tobacco continue to grow lighter on the local tobacco market by reason of the fact that the bulk of the crop has been disposed of.

The report of yesterday's sales made public this morning by K. W. Cobb, supervisor of sales, indicated the market yesterday sold 79,728 pounds of leaf for $52,913, at an average of $29.21 per hundred pounds.

The sale boosted season's sales to 48,398,204 pounds for which the growers have received $15,374,579.64 at an average of $31.77 per hundred pounds.

COTTON LOANS MADE LOCALLY

Speight & Haygood, Cotton Dealers, and All Banks, Make 12 Cent Loans

Speight & Haygood, Inc., local cotton dealers, reported today they are making government 12-cent loans daily to farmers of this community. These loans also are available from all banks of the city.

A. C. Haygood, a member of the local firm, said today: "The officials in Washington are to be commended for making it so easy for farmers to go to their own local cotton people, whom they know and get the money. All that is necessary is to put the cotton in a bonded warehouse, take the warehouse receipts to Speight & Haygood, Inc., and get the full 12 cents per pound loan."

"There is no worry; they do not have to 'join' any organization. Their cotton stays right where they put it until they are ready to sell, and it is not shipped away. The full 12 cents per pound is given them on the spot."

Mr. Haygood stated the reason so many farmers are taking the loan is because the government has made it easy for them to get it in full right here, the day they deliver the cotton, with no fuss or worry.

Approximately 260 varieties of food are canned in the United States.

DRUNKEN AUTO DRIVERS MARK COURT DOCKET

Several Defendants Fined $50 and Cost And Ordered Not to Drive in 6 Months

Sitting for the first time in three weeks, County Court with Judge Dink James on the bench disposed of around twenty cases yesterday and turned its attention today to the trial of as many more actions which accumulated during the long period of inactivity.

Court had two weeks off because of the two-week term of Superior Court, which finished work here the latter part of last week. Sessions usually are held on Tuesday but that set for this week was postponed until yesterday because of the election.

EDUCATORS AT CONFAB

President and Faculty Members of College Here Attend Greensboro Conference

Four representatives from East Carolina Teachers College, Pres. L. R. Meadows, Dr. H. J. McGinnis, Dr. A. D. Frank, and E. L. Henderson, are attending the fourteenth meeting of the North Carolina College Conference, which is being held today and tomorrow in Greensboro at the King Cotton Hotel.

Dr. Meadows is on the Committee on College Standards, and Dr. McGinnis on the Committee on Student Mortality. The central theme of the meeting is: "The Selection and Preparation of Teachers."

The principal evening address will be delivered by Dr. George F. Arps, Dean of the College of Education, of Ohio State University on the subject of "Science and the Social Order." The president's address will open the evening meeting and the response will be made by Guy B. Phillips, superintendent of Greensboro schools, who is president of the N. C. E. A. Dr. McGinnis is on the program of the section of registrars.

The dominant purpose of the organization is to further the cause of higher education in the State. The membership is composed of the presidents of the state colleges with one other representative from each, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and two others from the State Department of Education.

The officers are: President, Frazer Hood, of Davidson College; Vice-President, H. T. Hunter, of Western Carolina Teachers College; Secretary-Treasurer, N. W. Walker, of the University of North Carolina; W. H. Frazer, of Queens College; E. L. Cloyd, of State College; and Miss Miriam H. Blair, of the Woman's College.

At the time the bonus issue first got hot again, and well before the Legion met at Miami, this column pointed out that the administration probably would propose that interest on bonus loans be forgiven in an effort to stave off cash payment. Those veterans who "borrowed" fifty per cent of their service certificates' face values would not find much of the remaining fifty per cent left in 1945 if the interest on their "loans" continues to run.

Frank Belgrano, Jr., new National Commander of the Legion, was quick to take issue with Hines. He said the Miami convention's mandate to recommend immediate payment to recommend immediate payment to recommend immediate payment.

ARMISTICE DAY BIG CROWD AT PLANS READY

Legion Puts Finishing Touches on Program At Special Meeting Last Night

Plans for the two-day celebration of Armistice Day in Greenville were completed at a special meeting of Pitt County Post of the American Legion in the library of the high school last night.

The celebration this year will begin on Sunday and extend through Monday. R. L. McMillan, distinguished lawyer of Raleigh will deliver the principal address at exercises to be held in the campus building of East Carolina Teachers College Monday.

The exercises Sunday will be confined to a ten-minute service of commemoration in all churches of the city. Services will begin at 10:45 instead of 11 as customary so that the moment of silence at two minutes of eleven may be observed.

A squad of former soldiers under a leader will be present at each church and will have charge of the services for five minutes before 11 until five minutes after 11. There will be a roll call of the dead, reading of an appropriate poem, and sounding of taps by the bugler.

Exercises will be held at the college Monday morning at 11 o'clock. In addition to the oration by Mr. MacMillan, music for the occasion will be under the direction of Miss Kuykendall, head of the department of music of East Carolina Teachers College.

After the speaking, a barbecue dinner will be served in the basement of the campus building of the college. Gold Star Mothers and members of the Legion Auxiliary will be special guests of the Legion in addition to the local chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy.

Members of the County Board of Commissioners, Mayor R. C. Flanagan and the Board of Aldermen of Greenville, are to be honored guests also.

The highlight of the afternoon program Monday will be a football game at East Carolina Teachers College.

All employers are urged by the Legion to give former service men Monday off for observance of the end of the World War.

ROBSON HELD IN KIDNAPING

Night Club Operator Arrested in Arizona In June Robels Abduction

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 8.—(AP)—The sensational June Robles kidnaping case took a possible step toward solution today with an arrest as startling as the disappearance of the 6-year old girl last April.

A night club operator, Oscar Robson, was held under $50,000 bail under a charge of mailing a $15,000 ransom demand to the girl's father. Robson, father of a schoolmate of little June Robles, had been questioned at length at the time of the kidnaping but his arrest in the federal building here yesterday by Department of Justice agents came without warning.

Action Taken Here This Morning to Get Program Under Way Immediately

At the victory breakfast held this morning in the Boy Scout drive several of the workers reported they had not completed their solicitation and the drive was extended through today and tomorrow to permit the workers to complete the task of procuring funds.

Preliminary reports this morning, however, showed the drive had gone "over the top" and action was taken immediately to perfect the organization in order that work here in the Scout movement could get under way immediately.

DR. PARROTT PASSES AWAY

State Health Officer Dies at Raleigh After Recurrence of Heart Trouble

Kinston, Nov. 8.—(AP)—The body of Dr. James M. Parrott, executive secretary of the State Board of Health and State Health Officer, arrived here today from Raleigh where he died last night.

Funeral services for the state official will be held at his life-long home here, but definite arrangements had not been made early today.

Dr. Parrott had been seriously ill for about two weeks with a recurrence of a heart attack which he suffered last summer.

He was 60 years old. For many years he had been one of the most widely-known physicians in North Carolina and at one time served as president of the North Carolina Medical Society. He was founder of the Parrott Memorial hospital here.

COTTON GINNING SHOWS DECLINE

Washington, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to November 1 was reported by the Census bureau today to have totaled 7,920,231 running bales, counting 148,420 running bales as half bales, and excluding linters.

To that date a year ago 10,355,031 bales, including 430,163 round bales; were ginned and two years ago 3,247,045 bales including 366,527 round bales were ginned.

Prior to November 1 North Carolina had ginned 338,272 bales as compared with 573,174 bales on that date last year.

Late News Flashes

Orders Removal of Robinson. Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 8.—(AP)—Federal Judge Harry Anderson today ordered the removal of Thomas Robinson, Sr., to Louisville to face an indictment accusing him of connection of the kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll about a month ago.

Robinson is the father of Thomas Robinson, Jr., 27, accused as the actual kidnaper. On October 29, U. S. Commissioner Julian Campbell, following a two day hearing, declined to order the 61-year-old engineer taken to Kentucky on the grounds there were no probable cause to believe him guilty nor anything to reasonably believe a suspicion of his guilt. The government then appealed to Federal District Court.

Parisians are Rowdy. Paris, Nov. 8.—(AP)—Shouting thousands of persons smashed through police lines in front of the opera tonight, many in the throng crying: "Down with the deputies."

Authorities who feared disorders would ensue following the smashing today of Premier Gaston Doumergue and his cabinet, had drawn in in troop formation.

The massed police made an effort to overawe the crowd, but the throng broke through the ranks of the gendarmes. Thousands of persons swarmed through the boulevards and the squares in front of the opera. Mobile guards on horseback, their carbines swung across their shoulders, were ordered into action.

They trotted into the square and lined up against the buildings facing the boulevard. (Continued on page 6)

LEAF CARDS MOVE QUICKLY

Farm Director Reports Farmers Are Filing Completed Allotment Cards Fast

B. F. Arnold, director of the local farm department, said today that farmers were turning in their completed allotment cards rapidly now and indications were that all cards would be filed for final check by Thanksgiving or immediately thereafter.

The farm director said that when sixty per cent of the total number of cards held by farmers in this county had been filed here they would be forwarded to Washington for final okay. Adjustments for this number of cards will be sent to farmers as soon as the government completes its check. Mr. Arnold said.

Farmers who do not get their cards in the first sixty per cent allotment will have to wait until the remaining forty per cent have been filed before receiving their adjustment payments, the farm director said.

Payments of 12 1-2 per cent will be made to growers if they sell up to 21 per cent and if they do not sell over 70 per cent of their allotment as provided in the original contract. Those who took advantage of the ten per cent increase and sold eighty per cent of their crop will receive eight per cent. In other words their adjusted payments will be cut four and one half per cent.

Mr. Arnold urged growers to forward their allotment cards to his office as soon as they are completed and in that way place themselves in position to receive their checks among those mailed out in the sixty per cent batch.

PARTY GAINS MORE SEATS IN THE HOUSE

Republicans Cheered By the Defeat of Ritchie in Maryland; Roosevelt, Silent But Happy, Turns to Conference With LaFollette Brothers at White House

Washington, Nov. 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt returned today to exercise the tremendous power in carrying out the New Deal, saw his party victory far more emphatically in cleanup returns.

Late counts for congressmen gave the Democrats four more seats in the House and the latest reports read as follows:

Democrats, 317; Republicans, 102; Progressives, 7; Farmer-Laborites, 3; in doubt, 6.

Almost complete returns for the senate showed:

Democrats, 69; Republicans, 25; Progressives, 1; Farmer-Labor, 1.

The senate line-up was based on the assumption that the Democrats and Republicans would split two seats in New Mexico as latest returns indicated they would.

Late returns showed this roster for governors:

Democrats, 39; Republicans, 9; Progressives, 1; Farmer-Labor, 1.

The Republicans drew some consolation from the defeat of the Maryland governor, Albert Ritchie, by Harry W. Nice, after a six-week fight. Ritchie was not warm in his support of the New Deal, but local issues played a large part in the campaign.

President Roosevelt, silent but happy over the most overwhelming off-year victory since the Federalists were ground to pieces by the Republicans 132 years ago, had a luncheon engagement with young Bob LaFollette, who won on the Progressive ticket in Wisconsin, while his brother, Philip, was capturing the governorship.

CLUB TO ELECT OFFICERS HERE

Kiwanians to Also Hear Legion Commander and Mrs. Charles White

Annual election of officers will headline the regular meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Woman's club tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock it was stated today by D. C. Moore, Jr., club secretary.

Judge Dink Moore, of County Court, was elected president about two months ago to fill the unexpired term of Dr. R. S. McGeechy who moved to Halifax county and had to give up his club duties here.

Much importance is always attached to election of officers and full attendance was urged by the secretary. In addition to the business part of the program, J. H. Rose, superintendent of city schools and commander of Pitt County Post of the American Legion, will be on hand to explain the Armistice Day program outlined at a special meeting of the Legion here last night.

Mrs. Charles White, president of the Greenville Choral Club, will make a brief talk to the clubmen, outlining the work of the choral club and the ambitious program it has undertaken this year. Mrs. White is well known to the club by reason of her appearance as a soloist from time to time, and members of the club were looking forward to her talk with pleasure.

News Behind The News.

WASHINGTON (By George Durno) SIGNALS: Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, U. S. Veterans' Administrator, is a cautious man where issues with political considerations are involved. You can safely bet he was speaking by the book when he hinted that elimination of all interest charges on bonus might be a good compromise on the American Legion's immediate bonus payment "recommendation."

Although he was careful to say President Roosevelt had expressed no opinion, the General's comments on interest cancellation were made in the White House lobby a few seconds after he had left FDR's office.

MAKE APPEAL FOR RED CROSS

Local Committee Prepares For Roll Call Campaign Here at Early Date

A lot of anxious people are gathered at the edge of the river. A last they have found it—the body. Little Johnny Hall, the druggist's son, played ball with the gang this morning. Now he will play no more. Last night he slept by his brother; tonight he must sleep alone. Ignorance killed him.

A gust of wind springs up and dies away. Nobody notices it until—look there!—it didn't turn over that sailboat out in the Sound! See, that's her crew striking out for shore, those three little black dots, bobbing up and down in the water. Not far to go—they'll make it all right. But they didn't. Ignorance killed them.

The merry crowd of youngsters separated at the cross roads. Good night, Jimmy! "Good night, Dick that was a grand swim." "Good night, Steve. See you in the morning." Say, by the way, where's where's Zeb? "I thought he was coming back with you." "And I thought he was riding with you!" "Huh, I'll bet he's plenty mad right now tramping down the road after us. Let's go back and get him." "Okay, he probably isn't far from the beach yet." They were right. Zeb wasn't far from the beach. Ignorance had killed him, too.

Think back a moment to little Johnny Hall, the druggist's son. Johnny dove from above the river. Did he know of the sudden logs below the surface? A broken neck bears mute witness to his ignorance. Or again, a sailboat in the Sound. A wooden boat may fill and yet float and most metal boats have sealed air chambers which prevent them from sinking. There are the capsized craft lay safely, yet her crew turned their backs upon it. Unmindful of that one chance for life, they neglected yet another; they did not remove their clothing. Anyone who has ever tried to swim fully clothed will recognize their folly.

Zeb, swimming at the beach at night, swam with no definite companion. Possibly he went far out alone, weakened and sank; possibly he was the victim of the deadly stomach cramp which strangles a person up in the water so that he cannot call for help. Perhaps he dove and stunned himself upon a sunken object. At any rate no one missed him until it was too late.

In a large proportion of drownings, the body is recovered in from 5 to 50 minutes after submersion. Within that time there is hope of restoring life if the victim can be made to breathe. Yet in hundreds of instances rescuers and spectators alike have stood helplessly by, waiting for the doctor to arrive and all the while the victim's heart beat slowly, slowly—until it stopped. One person with an understanding of the simple principles of artificial respiration might have saved a life; but he was not there.

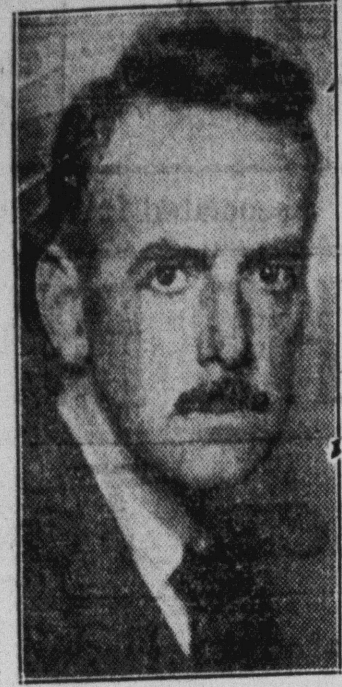

Not least among the popular methods of meeting death by drowning is the hero act. Bill, a weak swimmer, becomes frightened and calls for help. Does John look to see if there is a boat, a buoy, a board, anything in short that will float and which may be thrown, toward or rowed to the drowning man? No! Racing through the water at top speed—and thus exhausting precious strength—John in half-way there. Gallant John, as the papers will say, went without a thought for himself. He certainly did it. It is probably more truthful to say that he went without a thought. He did not think that Bill, his friend, would seize the proffered hand, and the unproffered neck; he did not think it quite so hard to support two people in the water; he did not think a drowning strangle hold could be so strong; he did not think.

Incidentally the superstition that the drowning will rise three times to the surface before settling to the bottom is just that—superstition. They may rise as many as five times or not at all.

These and many others are the lessons taught at the Red Cross National Aquatic School at Brevard North Carolina and the students who have learned these lessons go back into their communities and as Life Saving Examiners teach them to others. Last summer three Pitt County youths were sent to this school by the Red Cross. Miss Evelyn Hart and Eric Tucker of Greenville and Bill Morton of Farmville.

Beyond question, every able bodied man, woman and child would profit by taking the ten hour courses in life saving which will be offered in both Greenville and Farmville next summer free, by the Pitt County Red Cross Chapter. To approach a drowning person in the water, to avoid the strangle hold, if caught unawares, to break it, to tow the victim back to shore and to restore breath to his inert body—there is in this nothing mysterious or terribly difficult. These things will be taught to great numbers in this county next summer and this service, one of the several in the chapter's program is made possible by the annual roll call conducted each year from Armistice Day until Thanksgiving. When you are approached by a Red Cross worker next week remember it will be saved in the water next summer because of this training to be given, and enroll yourself in the local chapter with a dollar.

Missing Quick-Dick

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"Who has gone?" asked Willy Nilly. "You mean the gipsies have left?"

"Yes, they've left, but he has gone, too—Quick-Dick. He's missing and I ran as hard as I could in the direction in which the gipsies went and from the top of a hill I was quite sure I could see that they had two horses. They only had one when they came, you know." Rip said.

"You scold me because I just took an ear-ring that was lost, and they take a horse!" cawed Christopher.

"It's not right to take anything that doesn't belong to you," said Willy Nilly. "Everyone is entitled to his own possessions. But they've taken Quick-Dick! What shall we do? How can we get him back? I'm responsible for that horse, too."

"I'll fly over the countryside and find them," suggested Christopher.

"But even if you find them how can you bring back the horse?"

Christopher thought for a moment. Then he cocked his head on one side and said:

"I've an idea—a wonderful idea. If you do as I ask I'm sure I'll bring back Quick-Dick."

"What do you want?" asked Willy Nilly.

"A pair of scissors," answered Christopher.

"If I give you some scissors and you find Quick-Dick and the gipsies, will you return that ear-ring?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Oh, you make it so hard for me," sighed the crow, but he agreed. He had such wonderful plans now. He would show how clever he was.

Tomorrow—"Clever Christopher"

Talks to Parents

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

Colleges are full of boys and girls who, given their freedom and released from parental control for the first time, are sowing their wild oats. The worst of these are generally the ones who have been most strictly and narrowly reared.

All their lives they have been taught there is only one right way of behavior, one narrow and fixed code of morals, one straight and narrow path of righteousness.

The parents, having fixed these precepts in their children's minds, ship them off to college, congratulating themselves on having done their duty. Their children at least are protected against current laxity of standards, they think.

But the contacts which are inevitable in college soon show these young exponents of virtue that there are other ways of life besides their own. Having worn blinders and so developed neither resistance nor discrimination, they have no defense against temptation, and no standards of comparison.

At first they may be laughed at for priggishness. Few young persons can endure mockery. Then they may find themselves cut off from the pleasures and amusements (generally harmless enough) of those about them. Eventually, out of sheer bravado, many of them may join the least desirable group and try by speed to make up for the time they have lost.

There can be no "only way" of life, and the child who is brought up to think there is is bound to have a rude awakening when he goes out into the world. Tolerance, breadth of vision, are the only possible weapons to put into a child's hands.

Let him see and decide for himself, on his merits, which path he will choose.

NEW BOOKS

By JOHN SELBY
Newspaper people seem able to write about most things with reasonable veracity and conviction, excepting only the newspaper game itself. Stanley Walker is the exception.

A year or so ago Mr. Walker (who is city editor of the New York Herald Tribune and one of the best known practitioners of journalism) turned out a book called "Night Club Era" and amused a large number of people. Now he is the father of "City Editor" (Stokes), and likely to repeat his success.

Mr. Walker has filled his book with personalities, starting with some city editors of the past—nice, midding, and not so nice. But he has a good deal more than merely chatter about "characters" in "City Editor." One of the most important has to do with his own ideas of newspapers and the business of publishing them.

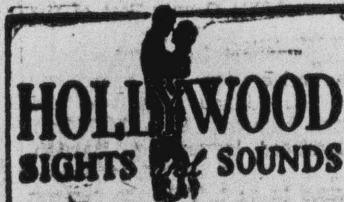

Any person so inclined can draw from the book an excellent, first hand picture of the newspaper game as it is played today, illuminated hither and yon by Mr. Walker's always willing irony and spiced as well by some suggestions that might improve both papers and their leaders. It is too bad to plaster "City Editor" with such an outworn adjective as "stimulating," yet

HUEY, FACING LIBEL TRIAL, WANTS STATE TO SECEDE

Whether or not the fact that he had been ordered to face trial for libel on remarks he hurled at Gen. Samuel T. Ansell had anything to do with it, Senator Huey Long (left) wants Louisiana to secede from the union. "It's the only way for us to get out of the depression," the "Kingfish" said. Of the libel trial, which was ordered by the United States Supreme court, Senator Long would say nothing. But General Ansell (right), whom Long called a "scoundrel and a thief" in a senate speech, expressed pleasure over the court ruling. He is shown after he heard the news. (Associated Press Photo) devastating frankness. "Calico Shoes," by James T. Farrell (Vanguard), more of the stories in which Mr. Farrell explains, without benefit of asterisks how the people live in Chicago's dark spots; Aunt Hepzibah won't like it. "Legacy of Death," by R. A. J. Walling (Morrow); one of the mystery cult's standard priests delivers one of his standard products; it will go to an equally standard audience, probably.

Hollywood—The professional parting looms for two of Hollywood's outstanding "rebels"—Marlene Dietrich and her mentor, Joseph von Sternberg—will leave no nearer solution the recurring question concerning the rights of the "artist" to a voice in his pictures. After they make "Caprice Espagnole" together, von Sternberg says, the German star will no longer be under his directorial wing, and their jing teaming will be definitely ended. Their seventh film together both feel, will have completed their series of experiments in a form of cinema not limited to conventionalities of the screen. After this, other directors for Marlene, other stars for Josef, are prescribed.

Together, Dietrich and von Sternberg twice made an issue of the question of artistic rights. In both instances the issue was lost in compromise.

Never Get To Court
Once the director and his star challenged their studio's right to force them to make a picture, "Blonde Venus," according to studio formula. Law-suits pending, they came back to work and made it. Both sides, studio and embattled "artists," claimed victory. But the courts didn't pass on the question. Then Marlene went on a "one star strike" against "Song of Songs." Paramount again sued her for damages. Von Sternberg at the time was in Europe, applauding from overseas. But Marlene, saying she didn't care to wait the year or more it would take to bring the matter to trial, capitulated.

So the old question never was settled "once and for all," as von Sternberg hoped it would be. The nearest approach to a judicial decision on the question remains Jetta Goundal's triumph in court over Cecil B. de Mille, the artist's right to "temperament" being vindicated. But jobs for Jetta were scarce after that.)

Free Lancing One Solution
Still, von Sternberg has virtually a free hand in making his pictures now. They're expensive pictures, but as he pointed out recently none has yet failed to return its cost and more.

As for the rest of Hollywood—that part of it that wants "artistic freedom"—they're finding it in the free lance ranks, where they sign by the picture instead of by the year.

William Powell, on this basis, is signed for ten films ahead, each of which he wants to do. Other stars, even though under contract, like Ann Harding, are achieving the end by reserving "free time" in which they can make films of their own selection, while having a voice also in choice of the pictures made at the home studio.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep... Vigor... Vitality
Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.
If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of passing backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up at night, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.
If kidneys don't empty 8 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS... a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.
But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS... the old reliable... that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Third Street P. T. A. Meets.
The Parent-Teacher Association of the Third Street School met on Monday evening with a splendid attendance. Mrs. Ray Tyson, president, presided over a short business meeting.

J. H. Rose welcomed the patrons and friends of the school and invited them to visit the schools of the city during this National Education Week and see what is really being done.

Mrs. Robeson made a talk on music appreciation in the first grade and her pupils did a number of rhythmic dances. The fifth grade directed by Mrs. Corey, sang several songs in two parts which were a delightful part of the entertainment.

The main speaker of the evening was Dr. G. R. Combs, who gave us a most inspiring talk on the responsibility of the home, the school and the church in developing human character.

Parents were invited to visit in their respective rooms, meet the teachers and see some of the work done by their children. Puncta was served in the main corridor.

This was our first attempt at holding our meetings in the evening, when fathers as well as mothers, can attend, and we feel that it was a big success.

Mrs. Tyson's committees for the year are as follows:

Ways and Means—Mrs. C. C. Hilton, Mrs. Harry Jones Mrs. Sprull Spain, Mrs. R. E. Corbett.

Social—Mrs. W. D. Turner, Mrs. Curtis Perkins, Mrs. Frank Park, Mrs. A. B. Corey.

Much progress has been made during the few weeks of instruction, and members of the organization feel well repaid for the time spent and hope that music lovers from Ayden and the surrounding communities will come in great numbers and enjoy the program. It is to be a real community sing in which all in attendance are to take part. ## Airlines in U. S. Top World in Mileage, Mail and Passengers

By CARL C. CRANMER
Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—America leads the world in commercial aviation.

This fact, dramatized when American transport planes finished second and third to a racing plane in the London-Australia air derby, is supported by figures collected by the department of commerce.

Out of a total of 213,000 miles of commercial air lines in the world, 50,000 miles are flown under the United States flag.

There are only about 1,500 miles of lighted airways outside the U. S., 19,000 miles inside.

Leads in Mileage.
Comparative information obtained from the principal aeronautical nations of the world on scheduled miles flown, number of passengers carried, pounds of mail and express carried, shows the United States leading in all except express carried in 1933.

Some phases of commercial aviation, however, are as carefully guarded by nations as are military and naval secrets. The number of pilots and planes in civil air service are facts withheld by some countries.

Comparative technical advancement is something else about which a cloak of secrecy is wrapped, but American aviation interests have taken note of recent buying of American planes, engines and also equipment by European air lines as one of the surest signs that this country is well in the van.

Buy American Planes.
The Netherlands, Switzerland and Sweden have purchased American planes for their air services, and made arrangements to buy or build more. Some of them already were using American engines and equipment.

In 1933 the United States was operating 50,000 miles of commercial air line; France, Germany and Russia about 23,000 miles each; Great Britain, 14,600 miles; The Netherlands, 11,000 miles; Italy 10,500 and Japan 2,200, according to department of commerce estimates.

The far-flung Pan American Airways system of 25,000 miles in South America and Central America and Alaska is the greatest in the world. The same system operates about 800 more miles with the Chinese government in China, not included in the United States mileage.

The 1933 figures do not include approximately 4,500 miles added to German mileage when a fortnightly seaplane service was started last summer to Latin America. Trips of the Graf Zeppelin supplement this service in summer. In competition is the French joint boat-plane weekly service.

Methodist Men To Meet Tonight

The men of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and all the other men who attend that church or its Sunday School, are having a fellowship dinner, brief program and social hour at the community building of the Third Street School tonight at 7 o'clock.

The male quartet of the Free Will Baptist Church will sing several numbers and Dr. Gilbert R. Combs will show a fine collection of stereoscopic pictures illustrative of the life in the Kentucky mountains as program features of the meeting. Many of these pictures have been taken by Dr. Combs himself and others are very rare and interesting scenes, showing the rugged life of people of our Southern highlands. The Free Will Baptist Church has a fine male quartet that will give some good music.

This meeting is solely for fellowship and a good time in mixing and getting better acquainted. Nothing is being promoted except the spirit of good comradeship among the men. It is sincerely hoped that every man of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church and Sunday School will attend.

Marian Gordon
by JEANNE BOWMAN

SYNOPSIS: The crooked contractor McSwain holds Lon Casad in his power, and furthermore, has stolen from Lon's wife, Marian, the evidence necessary to prove the McSwain machinations. Lon has at last been made to see his danger; Marian has determined that the only man who can furnish the additional evidence necessary to convict McSwain is Max Hamlin, and has slipped away from McSwain's apt to meet Hamlin.

Chapter 42
DISTURBED RENDEZ-VOUS

THE Steele apartment was dark. Marian hadn't expected that. After a moment she called the manager.

"Of course, you can go in, Miss Marian," he said. "I know Mrs. Steele would want you to."

That was even better, Marian decided, and as soon as they had finished gossiping about tenants she had known when she lived there she hurried to the telephone and called the Oakmere.

"Mr. Hamlin?" Marian felt a sense of relief from her nervous tension in the calm, easy tone of his voice.

"I'll be right over," he assured her.

While Marian waited for him, she went into the little mirrored cubicle, and assumed the privileges of an old friend.

She brushed her hair vigorously, then patted it into smooth waves, powdered her nose, dabbed at her lips, straightened the frock she wore, looked down in surprise to find the lilac angora she had worn the night she flew to Reno. She had grabbed at the first warm dress in her wardrobe, scarcely realizing what she chose. And then she heard the buzzer.

She waited at the door for Hamlin to come up, saw him step from the elevator and walk down the hall towards her and for the first time realized what a handsome man he was.

Some of the wonder of it was in her eyes as she greeted him. She had been so blinded by her love of Lon, in Reno, that she had scarcely seen Hamlin.

"It's nice to see you again," he said in greeting, gripping her hand in a firm clasp, "even if you did have to wait until you were in trouble to call on me."

"That wasn't nice of me, was it," agreed Marian, "I really would like to have seen you before but—"

"I know," he said, "your husband sensed the admiration I had for you, and didn't want to put me to a test."

Marian's cheeks flushed scarlet. "I—I really didn't know. . . I think you're being kind."

"Don't feel badly about it, I don't. But you see, Miss Marian, or Mrs. Casad, I should say, one rarely meets a girl nowadays with such a fine sense of honor."

"That's just it," Marian interposed eagerly, "I've lost that sense of honor. I intend to be thoroughly dishonorable, and I want you to help me. I have to convince Cliff Hondon that it was my lie that saved his life, and not Silver."

"And I suppose you're doing that just to throw a little glory on yourself," he suggested whimsically.

"No, oh no," and then realizing he was laughing kindly, she added, "It's for someone else. It seems to be for many people, but to be honest it is for my husband."

"Has Silver carried out his threat to win him away from you?" he asked, interested.

"Did you know about that?" she asked in surprise.

"Oh yes, she confided in me. Told me he was the only man she could ever love. I told her that was because he was probably the only man she'd ever wanted and couldn't have."

"But it isn't that," Marian insisted, "I wouldn't fight to try to hold a man's love. It's more serious, oh so much more serious."

"Mr. Hamlin, did you realize there was one page of the letter that I believe you slipped into my pocket, that we didn't read, that evening?"

"No I didn't, what did it contain?"

"Evidence that would have put Silver's father, Mr. McSwain, in the penitentiary."

"You say, 'would have.' Did you lose the letter?"

"It was stolen from me, and the only way I can replace the evidence is through Cliff Hondon and until he knows he doesn't owe his life to Silver, he won't talk."

"That should be easy to do, I mean convince Mr. Hondon that he is wrong. Can we call him here?"

Senator Key Pittman's announcement that he intended to introduce a bonus bill was a final tip-off to the White House on how tough the fight is going to be.

Pittman's plan of issuing bonds to make the payments, retiring the bonds with profits derived from coming silver, figures further to win support from the "white money" inflationists.

Last time, Pittman voted against the bonus. When such an administration stalwart goes over to the other side—even though impelled by the heat of a political campaign—FDR can see storm signals plainly. Which accounts for the "feeler" put out by General Hines.

COLOSSUS: Donald Richberg professes to be neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet but Washington observers are wondering whether he hasn't considerable vision regarding.

When Richberg was made overlord of NRA in the recent reorganization he told friends he was betting the guillotine would catch up with him just as it did with General Johnson.

But now the President truly has put the amiable Don on the spot. If he carries through as executive director of the National Emergency Council under that job's vastly increased powers and comes out with a whole skin, he will be hailed as a miracle man indeed.

Under FDR's latest executive order the whole cabinet becomes part of the Emergency Council. As the Council's guiding head it becomes Richberg's duty to mull over all cabinet reports and recommendations, summarize them and indicate the proper conclusions from the evidence therein.

Oldtimers who have seen many government officials come and go, say it is only a question of time before Richberg runs afoul of some pet project of a cabinet officer with possibly disastrous results.

Not having the same interest in it as the cabinet officer he will view it with detachment and lack of bias and calmly put the kibosh on it. Then will come the fireworks, predict the sideliners.

When a cabinet member takes a sore toe to the White House and says either he or the man who stepped on the toe must go, it puts the President in a tough spot. Chief Executives have a horror of losing members of their official family. Witness the reluctance of FDR to accept the resignation of Treasury Secretary Woodin. Witness Ray Moley's removal from the State Department when Secretary Hull made it a showdown.

Mr. Roosevelt has given ample evidence of his confidence in the ability and judgment of Richberg. He has promoted the former lawyer step by step until he bestrides the cabinet like a Colossus.

But most cabinet officers don't like to be bestridden. There is tough going ahead for Richberg.

LIMIT: Census Director William L. Austin got credit for making one of the frankest patronage statements on record when he announced that the 25,000 field employes necessary to take the impending agricultural census would be hired on a basis of congressional recommendations.

But even this fat piece of pie failed to satisfy the appetites of some of the hungry patronage seekers.

Austin further announced that the 2,000 additional employes necessary here in Washington must be taken from civil service rolls and be further qualified with past census experience. The Civil Service Commission has been flooded with requests from politicians to get executive orders giving their constituents civil service status. The answer has been, No.

TOUGH: Everything is quite judicial at the Post Office hearings to determine what shall be done about ocean mail contracts but the steamship men can't help noting that the judge, jury and prosecutor all seem to come from the same stable.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Harlee Branch presides. He is assisted by Solicitor Karl A. Crowley. The prosecutor is Calvin W. Cassell, a Post Office Department attorney who works under Crowley.

NOTES: A strong drive for the 30-hour week law is organizing but insiders in labor circles say it will be a long, long road to Tipperary. Wise guys predict that FDR will take the wind out of inflation sails before Congress meets. . . Some of the big power plants were ordered by FDR over objections of Chief Ickes of Public Works. Ickes is now struggling with the problem of power rates in competing systems. . . Statistical analysts in both parties will try to figure out the weight and extent of women's votes in this election.

NEW YORK (By James McMullin)

PRESSURE: Insiders remark that the Treasury is sure hungry for cash these days. The Internal Revenue boys are turning the heat on everyone who might possibly owe the government a dime with a ferocity they have never shown before.

In the past, if you had an argument with Uncle Sam about the legitimacy of some tax item, a revenue field agent would call to talk things over. He would listen politely to your version of the complicated item. Then he would tell you what he was going to recommend and invite you—if he didn't see things your way—to present your rebuttal to the same authority at the same time. It was all very amiable and easy going.

But it doesn't work that way any more. Nowadays field agents are ferreting out every possible tax claim and demanding at least a partial settlement regardless of the merits of the case. If you balk you are threatened with an immediate assessment—which these agents now have authority to levy on their own responsibility.

An assessment is no fun. You either pay it within sixty days or you're liable to a stiff fine and a jail sentence with no back talk allowed as to whether the tax was legally levied. He best you can possibly do is pay up and sue for recovery later—and Uncle Sam can make that process both painful and costly.

These strong-arm tactics are getting results. Corporations and wealthy individuals have kicked in literally millions of dollars in the past few months on disputed items—many of which have been argued for years. Somehow, New York doesn't care for the new system. You even hear it referred to as blackmail. But the smartest lawyers in Wall Street haven't been able to dope any way to escape the pressure.

GRAVY: Well posted insiders have suddenly developed an intense interest in real estate. Dozens of plans are afoot to "help out" the government by financing mortgages, promoting construction, or forming pools to acquire potentially valuable property.

Promoters of these plans are trying to keep them in the dark. They all aim to get into action before the competition gets too keen. One of the most ambitious schemes calls for the formation of a real estate trust company which would lend money on a tremendous scale on mortgages only. It would start with a large capital investment and finance itself further by the public sale of debentures which would be secured by the mortgaged property in general. There's precedent for the idea. The Credit Lyonnais has worked it successfully in France for years.

Three factors contribute to all this enthusiasm. First is the conviction in informed circles that real estate has at last touched the bottom—which makes any property for investment purposes. There are a surprising number of these even in New York. Second is the prospect of inflation—which would enhance the value even of poorer properties. Third is the firm belief that the government's hot fire under housing will cook a lot of rich gravy for those who are smart enough to scoop it up.

BONDS: The Pecora investigation never paid any attention to bond dealings on the Stock Exchange and the Securities and Exchange Commission has virtually ignored them also. Of course, the stocks are more spectacular and are traded in much larger volume but Wall Street insiders say the Commission wouldn't be wasting its time if it looked into the methods of "the bond crowd."

The bond business on the Exchange is concentrated in the hands of a very few houses who run what amounts to a closed shop. Other brokers charge that this group makes handsome trading profits by a quiet doctoring of prices against which the outsider has no defense. The fluctuations are usually minor and no one gets hurt very much but critics insist the bond specialists are playing a sure thing for themselves if ever there was one.

STUBBORN: Foreign governments and corporations are becoming a severe pain in the Securities and Exchange Commission's neck. They continue to thumb their noses at registration requirements and defy the Commission to do anything about it.

The Commission's only comeback is to delist their securities—which would push prices off the deep end. And what a howl that would bring from American investors who could claim that the agency set up for their protection had ruined them! But if the Commission lets the foreigners get away with it, its prestige is shot. Wall Street is sure Mr. Kennedy and his associates would be glad to hear from anyone who has the answer.

KICKBACK: Richard Whitney's publicity questionnaire isn't going over so well among Exchange members. In some quarters it has revived hostility to the Whitney regime where it had almost faded out since the last Exchange election.

One critic remarks: "First he high-hats the public and now he tries to curry favor with obvious propaganda. It was bad enough to let the horse of public confidence run away. On top of that he's locked the door now so it can't get back."

What Belgrano did not say was how hard the recommendation would be pressed.

CIVIL COURT HERE NOV. 19

One Week Special Term to be Presided Over by Judge G. V. Cowper

A special term of Pitt County Superior Court for the trial of civil cases will be held in this county the week of November 19th. It was made known today from the office of Clerk of Superior Court J. Frank Harrington.

Two special terms of court were ordered by a previous legislature the first of which was held last year. The special sitting, it was said, today will play an important part in clearing up the congestion of civil cases which have been increasing faster than they could be tried over a period of the last two years.

Judge G. V. Cowper, of Kinston, will preside, and Judge R. Hunt Parker, who has appeared here during the last several terms, will hold court elsewhere in the district.

The calendar for the forthcoming term was completed by the bar the first of the week and copies were being distributed among its members today.

The calendar, containing between thirty and forty cases, follows:

Believe In God
And Be Saved, Is Plea of Revivalist

Evangelist R. L. Erickson, after quoting a portion of the 3rd chapter of Galatians, preached one of the best, most powerful messages that the people of this city have ever heard.

Mr. Erickson took as a subject: "Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law." The evangelist told the goodly number who came last night to the big tent, corner Third and Cotanche streets, that many have yet to discover the real meaning of "The curse of the law." Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law? God told Israel what he wanted them to, and not to do. God gave this law to the twelve tribes of Israel and told them to keep it, and that if they would keep it, he would bless everything they did and possessed.

But if they refused to obey He would curse them, with all plagues, diseases and suffering the Bible speaks of.

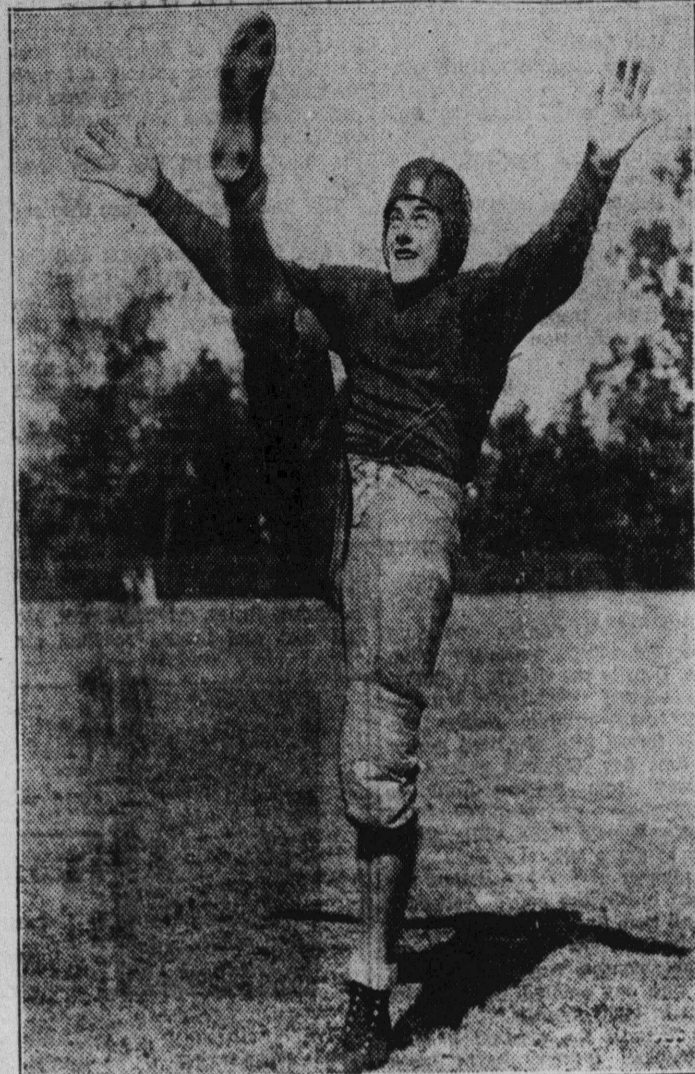

Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law but Christians do not know it or believe it. Happiness of all kinds, and good health belongs to every child of God, because Christ has redeemed them from the curse of the law. Are you sick today? Christian friend? Believe God, have faith, and be healed. God has the remedy; do you want it?

If man would understand that Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, which includes everything sin ever brought into this world by the conduct of the first Adam, man would be free from all sickness, and enjoy the happiness of Heaven before going there.

Mr. Erickson told his hearers that he had T-B in 1906. His chest caved in and he lost his left lung, and God healed him by prayer and faith. That any physician after examination would say that he had had consumption but was a well man today.

Are people today suffering from the effects of sin? Let the Great Physician free you from the curse of the law. Prayer is needed for Greenville and this revival. Will the Christians pray until victory comes?

A THREAT TO NORTH CAROLINA

When North Carolina clashes with Davidson Saturday, the Tarheels will face one of Dixie's backfield stars, Capt. Johnny Mackorell, quarterback for the Wildcats. Mackorell, who was listed on the All-North Carolina and All-South Atlantic eleven in 1933, has performed in superb style this season. In games thus far, including contests with Army and Duke, he has averaged five yards a try from scrimmage, has kicked regularly for 40 yards and his accurate passes have been one of Davidson's major offensive threats. ## COTTON CROP STILL GAINS

Government Report November 1 Shows Slight Increase Over October

Washington, Nov. 6.—(AP)—A cotton crop of 9,634,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight each was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture as being indicated by condition November 1.

Indications a month ago were for a crop of 9,443,000 bales, while two months ago, a crop of 9,252,000 bales was indicated.

Production last year was 13,047,262 bales. Two years ago 13,003,000 bales were produced, and in 1931 the production totaled 17,000,095 bales.

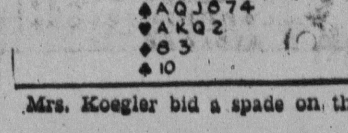

The indicated yield of lint acreage this year is 169.3 pounds compared with 165.9 pounds a month ago, 208.5 pounds picked in 1933 and 169.9 pounds, the average yield of the years 1932-1933.

Tips on CONTRACT

(By Tom O'Neil)
REAL AND PSEUDO SQUEEZES
Players who are able to make contracts or overtricks by pseudo squeezes in the real squeeze the adversaries are forced to discard on a long suit of the declarer in such a way that they cannot protect high cards in other suits. In the pseudo squeeze, a long suit sometimes is run in the hope that the defense will drop some cards of a concealed secondary suit of which the declarer has the top.

In the real squeeze all necessary losses must be taken before the squeezing process and there must be set up in at least one of the hands of contracting partnership a card that threatens to take a trick unless the defense holds on to a higher card. Opposite the suit used for squeezing purposes must be a sure card of entry plus a lower card of the same suit that threatens to take a trick. The one-card menace can be either in the same hand with the squeeze suit or in the same hand with the two-card menace. The hand with the one-card menace must be over the hand to be squeezed. When both adversaries are to be squeezed there must be a one-card menace over each one.

Real squeezes usually resolve themselves into the three-card ending, the squeeze being effective on the lead to the eleventh trick. All of which is prefatory to a couple of pseudo squeezes operated by the talented Mrs. Elmerita Koegler at a Canadian fishing camp, when to her delight inclement weather resulted in a bridge game instead of the usual canoe trip. Here was one:

Mrs. Koegler bid a spade on the

BIG BATTLE PROMISED BY DUKE - DEAKS

Durham, Nov. 8.—Featuring a clash of two powerful forward walls which will tell the story of what the backfields will do, Duke and Wake Forest promise quite a battle when they line up for their annual Big Five engagement in Duke stadium Saturday afternoon.

The husky and strong Deacon line will give the Blue Devils forwards quite an assignment Saturday. Outweighed even more than they were last week by Auburn, the Duke line will have to depend on the same method they took to finally push over the Plainsmen—their everlasting fight.

Everything that goes to make a good football game will be offered by the Deacons and the Blue Devils. Both teams have hard-running backs and hard charging linemen. It is true that Duke's record for the season is more impressive than that of the Deacons, but Wake Forest appears to have a way of evening up things when they are facing a team with a higher ranking.

If the Duke line can function, Duke followers will look to the running of Corky Cornelius, Jack Alexander and Clarence Parker to finish the margin of victory. It is a hard job to stop all three of these boys when they start the Duke offense to rolling.

Wake Forest, too, has ball-carrying treats. The Duke forwards will have to keep a close watch on Edams and Kitchen, a pair of great sophomore backs, if they expect to go up to the big game with North Carolina next week undefeated in the Big Five.

It is an announced intention of the Deacons to beat Duke. They set their caps for that very thing after the Blue Devils defeated them last year and it is highly probable that they were thinking about the Duke game when they were preparing for their game last week.

majority of defendants appearing before the court yesterday were white. Usually the docket is glutted with colored defendants but for some unaccountable reason the whites forced into the lead during the first day. Charges ranged all the way from driving drunk to selling whiskey and numbers of the defendants paid fines while others went to the roads.

day in the hope of reducing this menace on the highways of the district. Numbers of defendants previously had been getting off with payments of fine and ninety days suspension of licenses but yesterday in the face of the increased violations the court doubled the time from behind the wheel.

The following cases were disposed of:
Floyd McLawhorn, drunk and disorderly, $15 to be applied to cost.
Louis Whichard and Wilbur Dixon colored, possession of whiskey for sale, $25 each and cost deducted.
Edward Lawrence, driving drunk, $50 and cost; license revoked eight months.
