Babies Are Enrolled In Italy's "Blackshirts" LARGE CROWD TURNS OUT TO SEE PRESIDENT

ENROLLMENT BEGINS FROM CHILD BIRTH

Ill Duce Issues Far Reaching Order in Face of Tension Existing in Europe; Prepares to Meet Dangerous Situation

Rome, Nov. 17.—(P)—The prospects of Blackshirts in swaddling clothes greeted Italy today.

A new and far-reaching government order enrolled the man-child in the ranks of Premier Mussolini's Balilla organization from the time of birth.

The premonition of drum-beats and bugle calls thus injected into the rattle and shaking of Italy's new-born babies would be enrolled in the Blackshirts, pre-military organization, Ill Duce's newspaper, Popolo De Italia, said "tension on the continent is becoming grave. It is necessary to be strong to meet and dominate all events, the paper said.

"The situation in Europe about us is grave as was the case twenty years ago... disunion, menaces, struggles, a hegemony of blocks, alliances and armament races divide peoples... the horizon is not clear and the future is not certain. International tribunals debate, but cannot halt the march of victory. Europe is approaching the crucial year." It was announced with loud vision by Ill Duce that Italy has supported the program of collaboration of the great powers, but that situation is becoming grave in certain neuralgic zones of old Europe.

Officers Investigate Mystery of Gun and Ammunition Found At Fayetteville

Fayetteville, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—A fully loaded .45 calibre automatic pistol of army make was found yesterday on top of a lever box in a cell block of the Cumberland County jail, it was revealed this morning by Jailer Charlie Randall. By the side of the pistol was a paper bag containing ammunition for the gun. The box on which the weapon was found is located outside a cell in which five white men are waiting trial in Superior Court.

FIND PISTOL AT JAIL CELL

Constable Frank Gray and Jailer Randall, after discovering the weapon, removed the ammunition from the box, while attention of the prisoners was diverted, saved the hammer off so the pistol would not shoot and replaced it. Then they permitted the prisoners to leave their cells on the pretense of exercising them, but none of the prisoners made any effort to use the gun.

Officers are investigating and are appealing for greater restrictions on visitors to the county jail.

WAR LORDS' MESSAGES HAMPER CHINA'S WIRES

Nanking.—(AP)—The tendency of Chinese war lords to send out lengthy circular telegrams is one of the main reasons for the inefficiency of the Chinese telegraph system, Wang Ching-wei, premier of the Nanking government, said in a recent speech.

The premier said some militarists thing nothing of filing 2,000-word manifestos at government expense.

He added that interference by the generals was more of a problem in the early days of the republic than today, so he hopes eventually to see the system put on a sound business basis.

Four Killed In Plane Crash. Los Angeles, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Tommy Thomas, veteran Southern California pilot, and all the passengers in his biplane were killed today in a crash in the San Fernando Valley north of here. Four died in the crash.

The coroner's office here reported that the dead had been tentatively identified as: W. E. "Tommy" Thomas, Roy M. Kidd, mechanic, F. M. Mathews, Dorothy Benniam, telephone operator.

The biplane cruising in a high fog crashed into the hillsides beside the spillway of the municipal aqueduct, 20 miles from here.

The four persons had left Union Air Terminal at 6:30 a. m. to fly over the foothills of the Tehachai mountains near Saugus, where on Thursday night a T. W. W. mail plane, piloted by George Rice made a forced landing.

About an hour and a half later the motor of the plane was heard by a patrolman at the municipal bureau of power and light who was patrolling the aqueduct. The plane was above the low clouds and was

FIRE CAUSES $10,000 LOSS NEAR STOKES

L. R. Whichard Gin, Grist Mill and Lumber Plant Destroyed Yesterday

Fire of undetermined origin swept through L. R. Whichard's combination cotton gin, grist mill and lumber plant at Whitehart's station, about a mile from Stokes, late yesterday afternoon, entailing loss estimated at approximately $10,000. It was reported today that no insurance was carried on the property.

In addition to the plant, the flames also destroyed a considerable amount of lumber and several bales of cotton on the yards and threatened other property.

Originating in the gin press, the flames roared out of control in a few minutes, spreading to other departments so quickly it was impossible to save even cotton and lumber which had been placed on the yard nearby.

The fire started about 4:30 o'clock and in less than an hour, the entire plant lay in ruins.

Whichard's is a small community situated on the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad about a mile from Stokes. Although sparsely populated, hundreds of people from the surrounding countryside rushed to the scene of the fire to render any assistance they could, but the buildings housing the various departments were already doomed and all efforts to save the property proved futile.

Although the total amount of the loss had not been determined, it was said it would amount to $10,000, if not more.

BAKER HELD UNDER BOND

Local Man Charged With Driving Drunk After Running Into Another Machine

Ab Baker was held for County Court on a charge of operating an automobile while drunk and in a reckless manner following hearing in the regular Saturday morning session of police court here today.

He was released under bond of $200.

The charge grew out of a wreck on Chestnut Street yesterday afternoon in which a child of J. P. Moss was injured when Baker's machine hit the Moss car.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning that evidence revealed that Baker was taking up more of the street than the law allows and ran into the Moss machine.

The child was taken to a doctor's office for medical aid, but her injuries were described as of a minor nature.

MISS HOLMAN FAVORS SPLIT OF MILLIONS

Wife of Smith Reynolds Approves Proposal for Division of $25,000,000

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The proposed division of Smith Reynolds' $25,000,000 share of his father's tobacco fortune, giving $15,000,000 to his two children, has the approval of Libby Reynolds, the young sportsman's wife who would herself receive $750,000 under the plan. The proposed plan of settlement to the on-contested estate was filed in Forsyth County Superior Court yesterday by Reynolds' brother and sister.

Except for the $750,000, Libby Holman Reynolds would get the balance of the estate would be used for benevolent purposes. There was no sum offered for the equal division between the two children, but Bennett Pollock, counsel for Miss Holman, said the proposal was acceptable to her.

Under the proposal $6,000,000 would go to Christopher Smith Reynolds, the young son of Miss Holman, and $9,000,000 to Ann Cannon Reynolds, who was divorced.

BABY KILLED, GRANDMOTHER HURT IN WRECK

Truck Leaves Road Hits Woman and Child on Highway Near Williamston

Williamston, Nov. 16.—Peggy Harrison, 18-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison was fatally injured and her grandmother, Mrs. Ophelia Godard, was badly injured on the Jamesville Highway at noon Thursday when they were struck by a car driven by John Williams and belonging to Joe Laughton, of Bethel. The child, her skull fractured and several other parts of the body mangled and bruised, died just before reaching a doctor's office here. Mrs. Godard confined to her bed at her home in Williams Township, is expected to recover, attending doctors said today.

The tragedy, the tenth to occur on Martin County highways this year was reported to be the direct result of fast driving and the intoxicated condition of Laughton. It was reported that Williams, the driver, had not been drinking at the time.

Mrs. Godard was pushing the baby in the carriage along the left shoulder of the highway when she saw the car approaching in a reckless manner. She turned farther to the left and was several feet from the concrete when the fast-moving pick-up truck, its left wheels three feet from the concrete, plowed into her and the helpless child. The carriage was reduced to splinters hardly larger than pencils, and the child was found nearly 90 feet away. Mrs. Godard was knocked across the highway, the truck coming to a stop when it turned over 30 yards from the spot where the child was picked up. Said to have been traveling around 60 miles an hour, the truck could not negotiate the curve a short distance from the home of George Williams, and ran off the concrete about 60 yards below the two people and the carriage. Thirty yards away it turned to the left and crossed the highway, coming to a stop 30 steps farther on.

Just after it left the concrete, the truck plowed tracks 10 inches deep in a shoulder that would ordinarily withstand the weight of an automobile.

In jail here yesterday, Williams stated that he was at Gardner's Creek and asked Laughton the privilege of a ride, both agreeing that he (Williams) should do the driving. Williams claims that Laughton instructed him to "step on it" just before reaching the curve. Laughton is said to have pushed Williams' foot which was on the accelerator, to the floor boards.

The driver then claimed that he lost control of the car when he tried to push Laughton away. Laughton, so completely intoxicated at the time, is said to be able to tell (Continued on Page Six)

RETAIL CODE ASSESSMENT IS APPROVED

Local Retail Code Authority Announces Amount to be Paid During the Year

The code assessment for the Greenville Retail Code Authority has been approved by the National Retail Code Authority under the rules and regulations set forth by the National Industrial Recovery Board.

Chief Executive Rides In Parade to Capitol; Mrs. Roosevelt Places Wreath on Graves of Andrew Jackson and Wife

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 17.—Nashville turned out by the scores of thousands today to welcome President Roosevelt to Tennessee's capital. It was the largest crowd in the history of the city.

The Presidential train arrived at 7:54 a. m., but it was a half-hour later before the Chief Executive and party emerged from the Union Station and started through the crowded lines and gaily decorated streets for the historic State House that was built when Andrew Jackson was governor.

President Roosevelt rode from the track level to the street floor of the station in an elevator and as soon as he appeared at the entrance the crowd let loose a mighty roar of applause. Mr. Roosevelt doffed his hat, waved and flashed his famous smile.

Motorcycles spurred into the lead and the parade started.

Riding with the President were Mrs. Roosevelt, Governor Hill McAllister, of Tennessee, and Representative Joseph Bryns, of the Nashville Congressional District, a candidate for the speaker of the House at the next session.

When the President reached the capitol where all approaches were jammed with people, a twenty-one gun salute roared out. The President did not alight from his car at the capitol, but Mrs. Roosevelt walked down the steep slope from the drive to the tomb of President Jackson, Polk and laid a wreath before the grave of Polk and his wife.

She accommodated photographers by standing for several minutes beside the wreath.

Only three hours were allotted for the Nashville visit.

MAN SHOT BY GUARD, BURIED

Claude Forbes, Colored Convict, Buried At County Home During the Morning

A colored convict who was shot and killed by a guard when he made a bid for liberty from a convict force working in Chiswood township yesterday morning, was buried at the county home this morning.

Officials of the road force said members of the family of Claude Forbes, who died from a gunshot wound in the head while being rushed to the local hospital, failed to claim the body and the county immediately made arrangements for burial.

Forbes, who was convicted of a charge of breaking and entering at the last term of criminal court here and sentenced to 18 months on the roads, made a break for liberty as the convict force was working on a ditch bank.

The guard, E. S. Gurkins, fired one time over the fleeing negro's head in an effort to stop him, but when he failed to halt a second volley was fired a lone buckshot striking the negro in the head. He was rushed to the local hospital for medical aid but died a few minutes later.

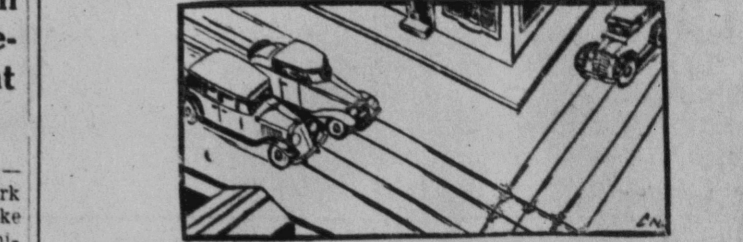

Forbes was a resident of pactolus township. Officers said he made an effort to break jail while awaiting trial here, but the attempt proved unsuccessful.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

A terrific price is paid each year because motor vehicles are permitted to cross blind intersections at a speed which makes it impossible for them to stop if a stop happens to be required. The large total of accidents resulting in heavy property damage—frequently injury and death—if proof positive that too many drivers lack understanding of the physical laws governing the hazard of approaching intersections at high speed.

NEW BOOKS

The particular stamps are from the regular postal issue of Poland for 1932-1933; being a 5-groszy dull violet and a 15-groszy red brown. Some more surcharges have just come from Poland. Included is the one-zloty black brown of 1928 bearing the portrait of President Moscicki. It has been overprinted "doplaty" for use as a postage due, and at the same time the value has been changed to 25 groszys. New values also have been created by changing the 30-groszy Vlt Stovoz red brown stamp of 1933 to 35; and the 1.20 zloty relief of Vienna indigo of the same year to one zloty.

Forecast additions to the adhesives of Russia indicate that several new sets soon will be forthcoming. One series is to pay tribute to Lenin under the general slogan of "10 Years Without Lenin."

Chinese Barities
Probably the most valuable of the Chinese stamp is the "small dollar" stamp of 1897. In that year because of a shortage of stamps it was necessary to convert 3-cent revenue stamps into higher denominations by an overprint. Only 40 of the stamp had been surcharged for $1 when it was found that the surcharge was too small. Collectors today are willing to pay as high as $800 apiece for one of these. The stamp is listed in the catalogue as 29a.

Miss McGowan Honored. Miss Janice McGowan, bride-elect of December, was complimented last evening when Miss Gretchen Willard was hostess at an attractive bridge party.

The home on Holly street was artistically decorated in fall flowers in brilliant colors.

At the conclusion of a number of spirited games, Mrs. Ed Wilkerson was given lingerie for high score, and Miss Dorothy Warlick a box of flower bulbs for low score. Miss McGowan was given china in her selected pattern.

As a surprise to the honor guest a little "chef" entered with a huge dishpan holding a kitchen shower for the guests. After much merriment caused by opening the packages and a number of dances by the "chef," Mrs. J. A. Watson assisted the hostess in serving a tempting salad course.

Carolina Playmakers Here Monday.

Professor Frederick H. Koch with his staff of fifteen actors, business managers and technicians, all of whom are Carolina Playmakers, will arrive Monday afternoon for their performance of three one-act plays Monday night at 8:30 at East Carolina Teachers College.

The report of the work of the Playmakers for the season 1933-34 shows the great amount of work done, the range of their activities and gives some idea of their success with the public. The 281 different players and technicians gave 65 performances in Chapel Hill, made two short tours within the state and one long tour to Louisville and St. Louis, where they gave five performances in the National Folk Festival.

There was an enrollment of one hundred and thirty-three in the creative courses in dramatic art. Fifty-two new plays written in the university playwriting course were given public, studio, or experimental production. Sixteen new stage settings were designed and built during the season. One hundred and fifty costumes were designed and made during the year.

Among those who will be here on Monday night who have contributed to their success are: Professor Harry Davis and his wife, business manager of the group and head of the costume department, respectively, as well as actors are among the group. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will also appear in "Quare Medicine." Mr. Davis as the doctor and Mrs. Davis as Molly Jernigan. Professor Samuel Selden of the University and technical director of the Playmakers, is not with the group on tour, but the scenery used in the productions of "The Voice of Italy" (still the Mussolini family paper), the organizer of a small group of young men into what he called a "fascio" which Literature Department.

Tuesday afternoon at her home on Pitt street, Mrs. P. G. Dennis was hostess to the Literature Department of the Woman's Club.

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. C. O'H. Horne, chairman, and after a short business session over which she presided, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore very ably presented a program, etched from life, the subject of which was "Mussolini—Dictator of Italy."

Mussolini is an actor and a dreamer, the two being necessary for any outstanding success in life. He was the son of a revolutionary blacksmith in a tiny village, a man who was a socialist and whom the son once saw dragged off to prison because of the wild speeches he had made in the village of a province that was notorious at that time as a stronghold of the anarchists. The elder Mussolini died young and the son, Benito, determined to follow in the footsteps of his father.

But there is another side to Mussolini's character—the side he inherited from his mother. She had been a school teacher, was pious, thoughtful and gentle in nature. These characteristics of his mother are growing more prominent in the son, as he grows older and today, at fifty Mussolini is more pensive, slower to come to conclusions and far more careful about taking drastic action.

As a boy, it was found that the young Benito had a wonderful memory, was bright and intelligent, but was disorderly in his conduct and unwilling to submit to discipline. At eleven he was dismissed from a Catholic school but he entered a normal school from which at eighteen he received a diploma permitting him to teach.

After teaching one year he gave it up and went to Switzerland which at that time full of Russian anarchists, many of whom were women. Benito became intimately associated with them and with Russian intuition they surmised, before he himself had suggested it, that the newcomer was to be in time a great revolutionist.

At twenty-one, being considered by the Swiss police a dangerous radical, he was deported back to Italy, and compulsory military service for the king. This period of military service was greatly to change the character of Mussolini. For the first time he was admitted to the joys of discipline. He dropped his women and his radicalism and became a model soldier.

After his release from the army he again tried school teaching but was a complete failure. Then, because he knew nothing else to do, he flung himself with the zeal of despair into radical agitation and got his first foothold on a steady job. When the publisher Cesare Battisti gave him a job as editorial writer in the sizzling "Italian Socialist" of Trent in Austria. Soon he was editor-in-chief and his editorials were so fiery he was thrown in jail by the Austrian police. Italy raised a howl and again he was deported back to Italy and his home province, a real hero in the eyes of the whole Socialist party.

Subsequently, he became editor-in-chief of his own paper, "Class War," the successor of a Socialist Congressman who died in office, editor in Milan of the kingdom's leading socialist paper, "Forward," in which he advocated ownership of private property and scorned representative government, the founder of "The Voice of Italy" (still the Mussolini family paper), the organizer of a small group of young men into what he called a "fascio" which was not necessarily a political organization, the advocate of Italy joining forces with the allies in the World War, a private and then a corporal in the army, a wounded soldier who talked in 1917 with the king, the organizer of his second Fasci (with fine distinctions between socialism and fascism)—this group by 1922 had grown to 250,000—the winner of the king's confidence and cooperation, the director of a march on Rome to take charge of the government and later, at the king's command, the former of a new cabinet, the dictator of Italy and the man who during the three definite periods of his dictatorship has not only accomplished a vast deal for his country but has compelled the world to his views, gained a world's respect and wonder that a former corporal in the army could take the seat of Caesar and rule magnificently by the ardor of his energy, the keenness of his mental faculties, the wisdom of his purpose and the force of his character. He is beyond question the dominating force of Italy, but he and the king work together harmoniously under the motto: "Justice for the people and power for the fatherland."

The mental picture of Mussolini which is generally formed by this outside public is by no means true to life. "As one enters the marvelous hall on which the master craftsman of four centuries have lavished their artistic genius, it appears at first to be quite empty. Soon a man stands up at a desk at the far end about twenty yards distant and approaches the center of the hall to greet his visitor. He is rather small and of stocky build. At first one is somewhat surprised to notice the slender and almost feminine hands. But that feeling changes the moment he grasps the hand of the guest. It is a manly and a firm shake. His deep, black eyes and the large domed forehead are in striking contrast. And here you have an illustration of the basic contradiction that underlies Mussolini's whole nature. Like every man of creative genius, he is a combination of masculine and feminine qualities, of the Act and the Dream.

Mussolini lives alone in a large and beautiful Roman town house rented from a Roman prince. Mrs. Mussolini spends most of her time in the northern part of Italy and spends the summers on the farm in the province where they were born. Week-ends the dictator usually pays her a brief visit. They have five children, two girls and three boys, also one grandchild. Mussolini lives simply when he entertains he does so at hotels. Contemptuous of society, he invites few socialites. He never smokes, seldom drinks. His chief home hobby is his violin. He talks simply and sincerely to visitors in the privacy of his office, but when talking in public does much posing as that of an actor. But always when he appears in public he is cheered by thousands.

Several drastic reforms are on the Fascist calendar for the year now to begin. One contemplates familiarizing every male Italian between the ages of 8 and 33 with the use of arms and another will see the new cooperative system of government set up. The Duce will inaugurate this much discussed system on November 10th. It is expected eventually to eliminate parliamentary machinery. Consolidation and many think an enlargement of Italy's African colonies is another achievement for the year. Four visits from noted statesmen of Europe are scheduled for the month of November and another is in the offing. What the results of these visits will be no one knows, of one thing however, there can be no doubt the man who is dictator of Italy sits tight in his chair and one by one, everyone of importance comes to see him.

At the close of this very interesting program Mrs. Dennis assisted by Mrs. Horne, served to each member and guest present a very tempting tea plate.—Reported.

WIRE DRAGGING REVEALS MANY DANGEROUS SHOALS

San Francisco, Calif.—(AP)—More than a score of uncharted shoals, many of which constituted a danger to shipping, have been found and plotted by the United States Coast and Geodetic survey through the use of wire drags now employed for the first time on the Pacific coast.

Drags up to 10,000 feet in length are towed between two launches. At intervals of about 500 feet there are supporting buoys. Pinnacled rocks and other obstructions to shipping to a depth of 90 feet are recorded by the action of the wires.

Surprise Birthday Dinner

Mrs. Bettie Barber, widow of Mr. Joe Barber, was given a surprise birthday dinner in honor of her 73rd birthday Sunday, Nov. 4th, at her old home place, where Mr. and Mrs. Carol Stox and family now live. Immediately after church her niece and nephews and their families and invited guests were over and took along their lunch, and with several special friends really spent a pleasant day.

Dinner was spread on a table in the yard, the center attraction being a large white birthday cake, with pink candles and the name "Bettie B. 73" being written on top by a special friend. After dinner was spread, consisting of most everything good to eat, sandwiches, beef, chicken, barbecue, cake and pickles, in fact, if anyone went away hungry, it was up to him. Chairs were placed for the older ones and a good friend, Mr. Ed Smith, gave thanks. After much fun dinner was ended, by that time the sun was shining beautifully. Many pictures were taken and the remainder of the day spent talking with friends. Several young people called after dinner.

Firemen Offer Aid In Burning Off Lots Here

Persons who have lots they wish burned off have been rendered the services of the local fire department in an effort to avert damage resulting from such fires going out of control.

George Gardner, chief of the local department, said today residents could obtain the services of the firemen by informing the departments when and where they wish the burning to be done.

He said lots of people were afraid to burn off dried vegetation because of fear the fire would damage other property, while others took chances and sustained loss when the flames went out of control.

The fire department was called out last night to extinguish a slight blaze in the basement of the Flanagan Buggy Company, when splinters placed too near the boiler caught fire. The sprinkler system started fire and the blaze was put out before the fire department arrived. The loss was described as slight.

THE EUROPEAN WHIRLIGIG

mobilization orders have been added to it. The regimental assignments for all Sturm Abteilungen, Schutz Staffeln, "voluntary work service" and policemen have been completed. Their rifles and other equipment have been distributed to the regional armories. The Reichswehr will be the officers corps. Insiders estimate the present active strength of Hitler's fully equipped trained army at about a million.

A big international financier and arms manufacturer expresses the following opinion: "Germany will not wage war unless she can count on the help or neutrality of Poland and Yugoslavia. The raw products and finished munition which have been stocked up will not last more than a month of intensive fighting. Germany's sole purpose in arming at the moment is to make France afraid of striking into a hornet's nest with a preventive war and to impress Poland and Yugoslavia with the fact that Germany is the coming strong man in Europe. My guess is that that will be true by the law of European ups and downs. How often I can't say. I feel sure that there will be no war for the present. If Hitler is still in power in spring there will be real danger."

Recently and efficiently the Nazi "People's Court" has been functioning in Berlin. Without benefit of publicity, some 60 "traitors to the National Socialist's ideal" are reported to have been sentenced and executed. Jail sentences up to 15 years have been passed on many more. Most of those tried were Reds.

Austria: Although the negotiations between the Nazis and the Austrian government have reached no tangible settlement, the feeling is growing generally that some arrangement must be made. The present Vienna government is divided within itself and conditions are going from bad to worse. Poverty is acute even among the higher officials that a job is almost a matter of life and death. The fight between the clericals and the Fascist Heimwehr is growing in intensity, and the clericals put a thin veil over their threat to enlist the combined forces of Nazis and Reds against Prince Starhemberg's green-shirted Fascists. Hitler will have a chance to stir up plenty of trouble again when he gets around to it after the Carr plebiscite.

France: A panicky nervousness is making itself felt in Paris and is resulting in general international tension. Dr. Schacht, has, as usual, done his bit. Following a speech in which he accused France of hindering German exports and ability to pay, the entire French press replied that Germany had exported only 40 per cent of her allowed quota during the third quarter of the current year. On the other hand Germany's imports of raw material had been steadily rising. The country's industrial machinery had obviously been set to work on munitions to the neglect of export commodities.

This blast was helped by the rumor that the French government had instructed the commander of the troops concentrated at the Saar frontier to hold himself ready to go to the assistance of the League Commissioners in the Saar in case of a Nazi push. This scare atmosphere has reflected on French foreign policy, there is a strong current in Paris in favor of immediately signing a military treaty with Russia, even at the cost of Poland, and of clearing decks for action. Foreign Minister Laval had the situation well in hand. His resignation sharpens the problem.

The entire European press was guessing at Laval's future policy. The circumstances of his appointment as Foreign Minister obligated him to the Barthou program and, according to reports from Paris, Laval had shown no desire to change any of the points in the program of German encirclement. For the time being he was holding himself on Barthou's directives.

The French Foreign Office was not particularly disturbed by the anti-Italian campaign which has again broken loose in the Jugoslavia news papers and threatened

I did not kill Osborne
By VICTOR BRIDGES

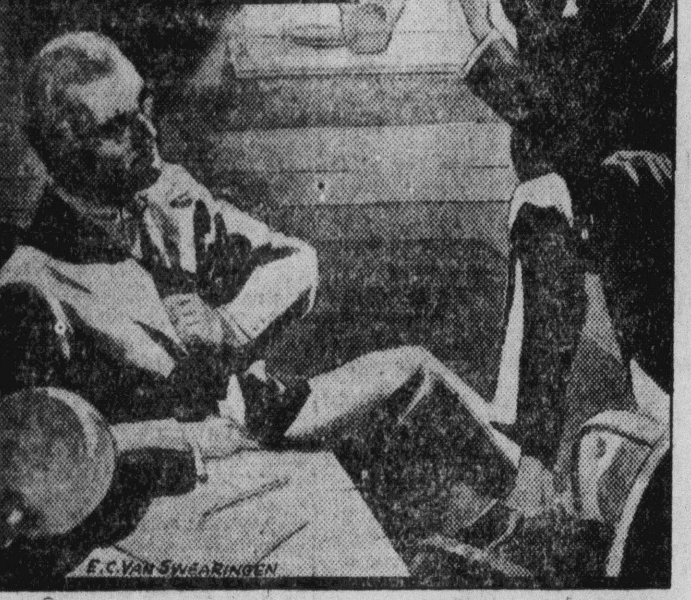

SYNOPSIS: Nicholas Trench just has been acquitted of murder. He did not kill Osborne, but the trial brought out no evidence as to who did the deed. You Nicholas has been invited by his family solicitor, Mr. Cresswell, to spend the night at his house. Nicholas' only pleasant memory of the trial is the face of a girl who attended every session.

Chapter Two
SEYMOUR'S LETTER

I SHOOK my head. "It's frightfully kind of you," I broke in. "You've been an absolute brick all through, and I can never begin to thank you sufficiently for a quarter of what you've done." I paused. "All the same," I added, "if you won't think me ungrateful I'd rather be alone for the next few hours. I—I want to get things straight in my own mind."

"Why, of course," Mr. Cresswell seated himself beside me. "You do exactly as you please, my boy. If you feel you would be better by yourself, well and good. Don't try to think too much, however. Look on it all as a wretched mistake that's finished and done with, and tomorrow or the next day, when you are quite yourself again, you must come along to lunch with me and we'll have a good long talk."

I stared at him for a moment in silence. "Do you believe that people will agree with the verdict?" I asked.

"Do you believe people will agree with the verdict?" I asked.

"Certainly I do; at least ninety-nine out of a hundred. There are always a few fools about who like to flatter themselves that they know better than the jury, but you can take it from me that every sensible man who has followed the case will be absolutely convinced of your innocence. That reminds me"—he put his hand in his breast pocket—"I've got a note for you here from your cousin."

"What—Seymour?" I inquired.

He nodded. "It was sent round to my office this morning with a covering letter. He expressed a wish that it should be handed to you before you left the court."

I SLIT open the envelope with a certain curiosity. Even in the midst of my own troubles I had found time to wonder more than once what sort of emotions the arrest and trial of his nearest relative had aroused in the mind of my distinguished kinsman. The note had been addressed from 3, St. James's Mansions, and was dated the previous evening.

My Dear Nicholas,
Since you have been cleared of the appalling charge at present hanging over you, I hope to be the first to offer you my congratulations and to express the profound relief which the news of your acquittal will bring to your family and friends.

I am extremely anxious that, before you take any steps at all with regard to your future, you should give me the opportunity of offering you my advice and assistance. I shall be at home tomorrow evening from five to seven-thirty, and I trust and hope that you will come straight here directly you are at liberty to do so.

Your affectionate cousin,
Seymour Trench

I folded up the missive and replaced it in its envelope.

"What has he got to say about it all?" I asked.

"Have you seen him or talked to him?"

Mr. Cresswell hesitated. "We had an interview at my office. He wanted to know whether any money would be required in order to provide for your defence, but I assured him that, as far as that side of the matter was concerned, there was no occasion to worry. I need hardly add that he was extremely agitated and—and distressed."

"Yes," I said. "I imagine that it must have upset him—quite a lot." My companion cleared his throat. "To a man of Sir Seymour's temperament and position," he observed "the shock was naturally a severe one. At the same time I see no reason for doubting that his concern was principally on your account. I am sure he will be prepared to do everything in his power to help and encourage you at this—this difficult juncture."

"Well, we shall see," I remarked. I put the letter in my pocket and rose to my feet.

"GOOD-BYE, Mr. Cresswell," I said. "I'm unutterably grateful to you for all your kindness, but I feel too stupid and dazed to express

"I'll go and discover!"

So Top Notch fluttered up to his seat and he found a bag of grain.

"I couldn't have had better luck thought Top Notch. 'If that bag had been left out like this it must have been forgotten, or else they do want it."

"Well, I'll appreciate it."

As he started to open the wider so he could eat more easily the contents of the bag fell down the floor of the car.

Well, that would be best of all. There was room for Top Notch down there and he could pick up his meal without any danger of being seen.

He was having a beautiful time when he heard a voice saying: "I thought I left a paper bag on the rumble seat."

Top Notch hid down in a corner and hoped he would not be noticed.

"I guess I must have left that bag of grain somewhere else," the farmer continued, and Top Notch, hiding down in the corner of the car, was relieved. "Well, it's of no great matter anyway, I didn't have such a lot in the bag."

"But enough," thought Top Notch happily, "to give me a good meal when I have time to finish."

But the farmer was speaking again and now Top Notch's heart seemed to stop beating.

"Well, it may rain, so I guess I'll put down the rumble seat," he said. And the farmer banged down the part of the car that kept the rumble seat covered while Top Notch was comblingly wondering what he should do.

Now he was a prisoner—a prisoner in a dreadful automobile. When would the farmer open the rumble again? Maybe not for days and days. He couldn't stand being closed up all that time. But the darkness was making him feel a little sleepy.

"I'll just have a bite or two more and then I'll take a nap," thought Top Notch. "When I awaken I'll have a good clear head for thought."

So Top Notch slept a little, but he was restless and soon he could not sleep any more.

"I'll have to cry for help," he thought sadly. "It's the only way."

He crowed so loud that the sound filled the space under the rumble top like thunder and Top Notch thought the whole world could hear him. But he was mistaken, as he soon found out.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, help, help, cackle, help, I'm a prisoner," cried Top Notch, the rooster, but as he was a prisoner in the corner of the floor of a closed rumble seat his voice did not carry very far.

He waited and waited and then he called again. But no one came. Top Notch was becoming more and more miserable. There was some more grain on the floor but he had lost his appetite. He felt as though he would not be able to stand it very much longer.

"And to think," thought Top Notch, "that I, such a fine rooster, may end my days in the back of an automobile. It's a shame, a cruel, terrible shame." And Top Notch crowed again and again.

At last he thought he heard someone near the car. Someone had heard him and was coming to rescue him!

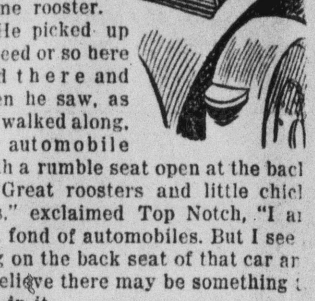

Oh, what a wonderful thing to be rescued after being a prisoner in this terrible place!

Top Notch could hardly wait to see the light and to be free. But why was it taking so long to open the rumble and let him out? Surely someone had heard him! Of course, he thought. But maybe he had better shout again.

Top Notch's Hunger
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I think," cackled Top Notch himself, "that I will take a walk to the farms nearby and pick up a bit to eat here and there."

He picked up a seed or so here and there and then he saw, as he walked along, an automobile with a rumble seat open at the back.

"Great roosters and little chickens," exclaimed Top Notch, "I am not fond of automobiles. But I see bag on the back seat of that car. I believe there may be something to eat in it."

"I'll go and discover!"

So Top Notch fluttered up to his seat and he found a bag of grain.

"I couldn't have had better luck thought Top Notch. 'If that bag had been left out like this it must have been forgotten, or else they do want it."

"But enough," thought Top Notch happily, "to give me a good meal when I have time to finish."

But the farmer was speaking again and now Top Notch's heart seemed to stop beating.

"Well, it may rain, so I guess I'll put down the rumble seat," he said. And the farmer banged down the part of the car that kept the rumble seat covered while Top Notch was comblingly wondering what he should do.

Now he was a prisoner—a prisoner in a dreadful automobile. When would the farmer open the rumble again? Maybe not for days and days. He couldn't stand being closed up all that time. But the darkness was making him feel a little sleepy.

"I'll just have a bite or two more and then I'll take a nap," thought Top Notch. "When I awaken I'll have a good clear head for thought."

So Top Notch slept a little, but he was restless and soon he could not sleep any more.

"I'll have to cry for help," he thought sadly. "It's the only way."

He crowed so loud that the sound filled the space under the rumble top like thunder and Top Notch thought the whole world could hear him. But he was mistaken, as he soon found out.

"Cock-a-doodle-do, help, help, cackle, help, I'm a prisoner," cried Top Notch, the rooster, but as he was a prisoner in the corner of the floor of a closed rumble seat his voice did not carry very far.

He waited and waited and then he called again. But no one came. Top Notch was becoming more and more miserable. There was some more grain on the floor but he had lost his appetite. He felt as though he would not be able to stand it very much longer.

"And to think," thought Top Notch, "that I, such a fine rooster, may end my days in the back of an automobile. It's a shame, a cruel, terrible shame." And Top Notch crowed again and again.

At last he thought he heard someone near the car. Someone had heard him and was coming to rescue him!

Oh, what a wonderful thing to be rescued after being a prisoner in this terrible place!

Teachers And W and M Battle To 0 to 0 Tie

By WM. WATSON MORGAN

Football teams of E. C. T. C. and the Norfolk division of William and Mary battled to a 0-0 decision yesterday in a game featured by the punting of Jones of the E. C. T. C. Pirates and Valentine of the Braves.

The fireworks started right from the first kick-off. The Braves kicked to the Pirates and one of their men touched the ball and it was recovered by a William and Mary man on the 30-yard line. A pass was completed for a nice gain into the Teachers' territory but a penalty set the Braves back for 15 yards.

This rally was halted when the Teachers intercepted a pass on their own 29-yard line. After an exchange of punts E. C. T. C. found themselves on their own 9-yard line. On the first play they were thrown for a 6-yard loss. Right here, from his own 2-yard line Jones, just as cool as the proverbial cucumber, got off a beautiful spiral which traveled for 75 yards.

From this place Johnson, for the Braves, went around his own right end for 22 yards, as the quarter ended. Soon after the second quarter opened the Teachers started what looked like a touchdown parade. Hassell went over his own center for 21-yard gain. Hassell then passed to Ferebee for 19 yards; after a line play netted two yards and a pass failed the ball went over on the 17-yard line.

From his own 17-yard line, Johnson of the Braves, took the ball cut through his own left tackle and traveled for 39 yards before he was stopped. This long run might be accounted for by Referee Fleagle's whistle. After Johnson had traveled 12 yards he ran into one of his own men, stopped momentarily, then kept digging. After he had made that pause the referee blew his whistle but he never did bring the ball back to the place where the whistle should have stopped the play. On this run the Braves were penalized for 15 yards for clipping from behind.

In the fourth quarter the Teachers started on what looked like another march for the goal line. On the William and Mary 37-yard line Hassell passed to Ridenhour; he received the ball on the 20-yard line and traveled to the 12 before he was stopped. After one play failed to gain they took time out and were penalized five yards for excessive time out. This rally was stopped when one of their passes was intercepted by a Brave backfield man.

The Teachers presented one of the hardest tacklers in the person of Jimmie Johnson. I have ever seen. When he hit a man there was no question about his stopping right then and there. One could hear the impact, when he would tackle, all over the field. If he always plays ball like he did yesterday he is good enough to play on any man's football team. It was one of the highlights of the game to see him tackle a player. Bone-crusher is a mild term to use when speaking of his tackles. Jolly was another player that stood out in the line play of the team. In the backfield Hassell and Ferebee played splendid ball.

The Teachers had their Johnson, but so did William and Mary. The Braves outstanding ball carrier was a fellow by the name of Johnson. He was ably supported by Valentine in the backfield. In the line they presented some real stars in Simmons, Kyle and Forehand.

The pass defense of both teams was very good. E. C. T. C. tried 18 passes and completed only three for a gain of 44 yards. Three of their passes were intercepted. The Braves passed five times and completed two for a sum total of three yards. Two of the five were intercepted. The Teachers punted 11 times for an average of 38.1-2 yards while the Braves punted 12 times for an average of 34 yards. All of these averages are figured from the line of scrimmage. The Pirates made nine first downs to seven for William and Mary.

The Teachers were penalized 30 yards while the Braves drew 55 yards in penalties.

The lineup:
E. C. T. C. Position Wm. & Mary
Lindsey Kyle
Johnson Davis
Carpenter Richardson
Jolly Miller

SPORT SLANTS
By ALAN GOULD

No doubt the biggest reason for the Naval Academy's return to football power this season is the impetus given by the graduate coaching staff, headed by Lieutenant Tom Hamilton.

This is by no means any disparagement of Hamilton's non-graduate predecessors, including Edgar (Rip) Miller, the popular Notre Dame alumnus and one-time team captain of the "Four Horsemen." Miller has remained to do a splendid job of line coaching under Hamilton, but football at Annapolis is now directly in charge of Navy men and the return to an old policy is being welcomed.

For the better part of the last twenty years, Navy has put its football fortunes in the hands of professional non-graduate coaches.

This year, however, Annapolis has again followed the example of its service rival with the result that Hamilton's assumption of coaching control is simultaneous with a sharp rise in Navy's hopes of turning the tables on Army for the first time in many a moon. Sea-going men are already talking about what this brilliant Navy team is going to do to the Cadets at Franklin Field on December 1, and while such enthusiasm may be a trifle premature, it is a fact that Annapolis is once more on the upgrade.

The advantages of the graduate coaching system at either West Point or Annapolis are obvious. Conditions cannot be compared, in the first place, with those connected with football at colleges or universities. The entire scheme of things, the discipline and the mode of life differ from what the average college undergraduate is accustomed to.

Teams On A Par
West Point has consistently recognized this in appointing graduates as head football coaches. If Army has seen fit to call in civilian assistance, it has generally been from the ranks of ex-Cadets, such as Harry Ellinger and Earl Blaik, who left West Point this year to take charge of football at Dartmouth. Now there is an All-Army staff under Lieutenant Garrison Davidson, who is continuing to get the good results obtainable by his predecessors, Captain Bigg Jones and Major Ralph Sasse. Much has been made of West Point's wealth of material and its eligibility privileges, but on the average there is little or nothing to choose between the athletic talent available at either the Military or Naval Academy. Given the same coaching skill and a system calculated to get the best out of the talent available, there is every reason to figure the Army and Navy meeting on even terms on the gridiron annually. By calling back some of its old heroes, such as Tom Hamilton and Babe Brown, to direct the athletic ship, Annapolis has already stamped "full steam ahead" and it's safe to suggest that the Midshipmen will experience no feeling of inferiority or uncertainty from now on, w.h. lose or draw.

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE

Not for the republicans alone has the election posed the familiar question: "Where do we go from here?"

The returns promise, in the end, to complicate that problem for the democrats, rather than clarify it. It is a popular fallacy that in politics all the headaches go to the vanquished.

Despite the election, the same discordant and probably irreconcilable elements continue to exist within the democratic party. The debate between right and left goes on. To make matters worse, the adherents of both sides, having won the campaign in their respective localities, feel more fully justified than ever in keeping up the fight.

What has happened is that the country has just passed through not one campaign, but 435 campaigns.

In some sections the dominant party chose to be conservative, in some liberal, in some radical. That could be done handily in 1934, when no national platform had to be adopted.

The rub is that it will be much more difficult to do in the presidential year 1936.

Different Appeal For 1936
The emergency character of the Roosevelt program up to now made it easier to keep party policy in flux.

Those democrats who looked with doubt on the things which were being done consoled themselves with the thought that it all was temporary, that in due course the experiments could be abandoned, and the country brought back to an even keel.

Now, however, the situation is changing. It is obvious to everyone, for instance, that spending cannot go on much longer on the present scale. With respect to general policy Mr. Roosevelt is entering a period when permanent legislation is to be considered, when the administration will be called upon more and more definitely to take a position on a continuing rather than a temporary national program. It seems inevitable that in 1936 the party will be appealing for votes not as it did this year on the basis of acts which grew out of expediency during a crisis, but on the out-and-out question of the soundness or unsoundness of its reform legislation.

What Of The Independents?
The question which way the party will turn involves many practical complications.

There is, for example, the problem of the republican and other independents, who have been Roosevelt supporters. Should an effort be made to keep them in the democratic family?

Some of them are not feeling so amiable as they look back on the event of the campaign. In Wisconsin, Minnesota and New Mexico the democratic party made war on non-democratic senators who had recently supported the "new deal" and had hoped to be treated like friends when they came up for re-election.

It would appear that if the support of these independent elements is to be kept, important concessions now are in order. And any concession in that direction would, in turn be almost certain to re-arouse the suspicions of the right-wingers who recently have been exchanging peace overtures with the White House.

Of course, this is not a new question. The distinctly new fact about it, however, is that a presidential election now is in the offing and no solution in sight.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Re-statement of the Nye committee's investigation of the munitions industry is billed as being the headliner on capital hill prior to the opening of the main show on January 3, but there's another attraction which will rival it in general interest.

That will be when the ways and means committee of the house and the finance committee of the senate tackle the problem of tax legislation for the next congress.

Pat Harrison of Mississippi heads the group in the senate and Sam Hill of Washington that in the house.

There will be little of the spectacular about the Hill-Harrison show. In all probability it will be behind closed doors and little known of until the show is over. That's how tax bills usually are written.

There will be, however, probably as much speculation and as much written about the deliberations of these two groups as about anything going on in Washington during the next two months.

Still the 'Representative'
Postmaster General Farley and his aides in dispensing patronage to "deserving democrats" have real reason to give thanks to Senator Norris of Nebraska for his persistence in fighting to do away with "lame duck" sessions of congress.

It has saved them the worry and bother of trying to take care of political appointments made by

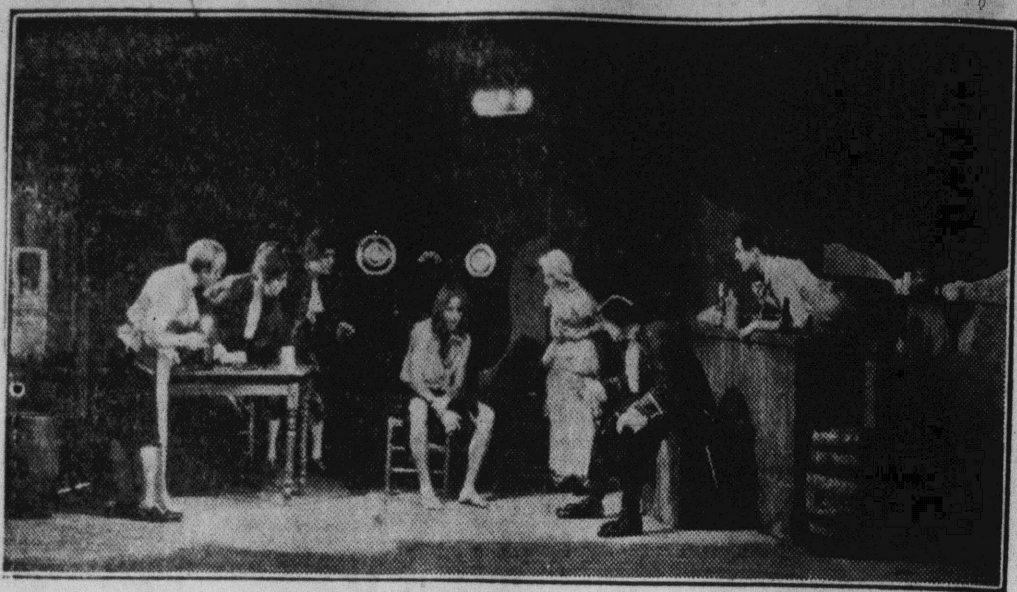

'Perfect' Trade Agreement

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Cotton opened fairly steady unchanged to three lower under December liquidation and southern selling which offset steeper Liverpool cables.

Offerings were absorbed by a moderate demand from the trade and buying attributed to Wall Street and local sources and the market held fairly steady after the call. March eased from 12.42 to 12.39 but was ruling around 12.41 at the end of the first half hour and the general list was about unchanged to two points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The long suffering utilities were the most depressing influence in today's brief session of the stock market. With American Telephone and Consolidated Gas dropping to new lows, other equities were hesitant. There were a few firm exceptions. The close was irregular. Transfers were 45,000 shares.

'Merrie England' Hails Prosperity In Spending Orgy

By ALBERT W. WILSON
London.—(AP)—"Merrie England" has become a reality again and London is being hailed by travelers as the gayest city in the world. Luxury spending has increased by leaps and bounds. Hotels and restaurants are crowded. Every one of thirty-five theaters in the West End is running shows and good plays can't find a home.

Marketable Crops

Bigger Next Year In New AAA Plan
By CARL C. CRANMER
Washington, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Bigger crops for market, with little change in benefit payments going to farmers, probably will be the general trend of agricultural adjustment in 1935.

his acceptance of the post here has been received with interest by members of the Board of Health as well as the medical profession.

SEEK TO GET TOURIST FUND

The committee will meet shortly to consider plans for giving nationwide publicity to the tourist assets and attractions of this area. Millions of dollars are spent annually by the American people upon pilgrimages to historical shrines of far less significance than those which Eastern North Carolina boasts. As pointed out by Walter Denmark, president of the North Carolina Commercial Secretaries Association and an active member of the committee, we do not want the tourists to use our splendid highways merely for passage through our state, we want them to be our guests, visit our historical shrines and scenic spots; avail themselves of our splendid hunting and fishing grounds; visit our famous tobacco auctions and scores of points of interest yet comparatively unknown outside our own area.

Tentative plans will be submitted for the committee's consideration involving general publicity designed not only to prolong the stay of south bound tourists in the area but to also increase the volume of our winter residents. Cooperation with the movement to properly designate and mark points of outstanding historical interest will also be submitted to the committee.

little or nothing about the accident. A colored man, witness to the accident, could not be reached for a description of the wild drive, but the markings clearly place the responsibility upon the shoulders of the operator who escaped uninjured.

FINAL RITES FOR VICTIMS OF WRECK HELD

Traveling from Washington to Greenville on a truck operated by R. E. Ricks Transfer Co., of Greenville, the three young men were struck by the train as the cab of their machine pulled onto the tracks. The truck, driven by Ricks, immediately caught fire when the gas tank exploded, trapping the occupants and burning them almost beyond recognition.

Movies Go High Hat

Movie first nights are just as stagy as the theater openings—nearly everybody dresses. Precisely the fashion Hollywood was trying to put over before the crash. Herbert Smith, manager of Keith-Prowse, an organization which has had a monopoly on good theater tickets in London for many years, said: "It has been two or three years since there has been so much business in London."

Taxis Jam Piccadilly

C. B. Cochran's "Streamline" broke all money-making records in Manchester. Police have given the right-of-way to taxicabs in the after-theater traffic jams in Piccadilly Circus and Shaftesbury Avenue. Money is flowing in London and there are many American helping in the movement.

To Absorb Turkey Grease

To absorb some of the grease of sausages and turkeys place a piece of brown paper over them. This can best be done during the final, rather slow cooking in an oven, but cannot be taken to see that the paper doesn't catch on fire.

Dessert Salads

Dessert salads are proving quite popular. They are simply rather a heavy salad such as fruit with cheese dressing, frozen fruit or vegetable or relatin mixtures. No dessert is than required and coffee is usually served with this salad course.
