I did not kill Osborne
By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: Although Nicholas Seymour has been acquitted of the charge that he murdered his former school-fellow, Osborne, he is beginning to find that the general public does not agree with the verdict. His cousin, Sir Seymour, tells him his old plans to escape him, and then taunts Nicholas by suggesting that the latter leave England and offering to pay his expenses. Nicholas calls Seymour a pompous ass.

Chapter Seven

INSULT

SEYMOUR jumped up from his chair, pale and furious. "How dare you!" he spluttered. "How... I took a step toward him. "Shut up!" I said savagely. "Shut up and listen to me. I've nothing to be ashamed of, and I don't care a hang what anyone says or thinks. I shall live my life exactly as I choose. You can keep your money in your own dirty pocket, and as for changing my name or leaving the country, I shall certainly not do anything of the kind."

And with this exceedingly ungracious remark I turned round and walked out of the room.

Dusk had already fallen as I crossed the iron bridge spanning the railway and struck off along the deserted road which would bring me out at Chalk Farm.

It was a few minutes past nine o'clock, and the three hours that had elapsed since my leaving St. James's Street had at least afforded me plenty of time in which to recover my temper.

I had dined at a small Italian restaurant in the Euston Road. My only reason for turning in there had been the extreme unlikelihood that its clientele would include anyone with whom I was acquainted, and it there had not been much else to be said in its favor, in that particular respect it had justified my choice.

After my dinner I had sat on for some while smoking cigars, meditating upon my troubles and finishing the bottle of indifferent Chianti which the proprietor had succeeded in foisting on me.

Then, moved by a sudden impulse, I had decided that, tired as I was, I would stroll home to the studio through Regent's Park, and across Primrose Hill. It was a walk I had always been fond of, and a little fresh air and mild exercise would, I had felt, assist me in getting off to sleep.

I WAS almost sorry now that I had been so unpleasant to Seymour. As far as he was capable of any personal emotion I had no idea that he rather liked me. He had certainly been pleased with my success, and on one or two occasions, notably in the case of the Royal United Arts, he had endeavored, in his own rather patronizing fashion, to do me what he doubtless considered to be a valuable service.

I had been stupid to fly out at him in that ferocious fashion. It was absurd to expect people to behave differently from the way in which they had been created, and in endeavoring to rid himself of an embarrassing connection, my cousin had merely acted as any intelligent person who knew him would naturally have predicted.

What my mind was chiefly concerned with at the moment, however, were the two significant pieces of news which I had brought away from our interview. If Seymour's statements were correct, and there seemed to be no reason for doubting it, my future outlook could hardly be described as encouraging.

Considering that I had been found not guilty, it was incredible that the club committee should ask for my resignation unless a large proportion of the members disagreed with the verdict. The same argument would apply to the select tribunal who had turned down my designs for a national memorial, and in that event it could be safely assumed that the prevalent feeling towards me amongst the general public must be one of skeptical hostility.

For all Mr. Cresswell's assurances to the contrary there was evidently a widespread suspicion that in escaping the gallows I had cheated justice.

AS I trudged along in the gathering darkness I began to wonder how many, even amongst my more intimate friends, would be prepared to stick up boldly for my innocence.

The only one in whom I felt an entire and unhesitating confidence was Jerry Mordant. It was just my luck that he should be out of England at the time when I most needed him. A few days before my arrest

I strolled home through Regent's park.

Society, with a big S, chose to slam its doors in my face, I could derive such consolation as I needed by throwing myself all the more wholeheartedly into my work.

Who could tell? Perhaps one day I might even come to look back on my present troubles as a blessing in disguise.

Fortified by this sudden and optimistic reflection, I emerged into the light and bustle of the main road. My studio was at the end of a narrow cul-de-sac, turning off to the left, about two hundred yards up Haverstock Hill.

It was one of a pair, shut in behind a high wooden fence, and as the other had been empty ever since I had taken possession, the quietness and privacy of the situation could scarcely have been improved upon.

I had covered about half the distance and was just passing under a street lamp, when a hoarse voice from the roadway brought me to a standstill.

600, be excluded it is possible they might withdraw from the A. F. of L. Should they be admitted, certain smaller but highly specialized unions threaten to secede.

Jurisdiction. Unless there is a last-minute compromise you may soon see various trades striking, not against the bosses, but against each other.

Elevator constructors to instance are a small union but about 98 per cent organized. They resent the idea they should be embraced by the Electrical Workers Union. The Plasterers—from whose ranks McDonough came, incidentally—don't want to be absorbed by the Bricklayers. The old question of jurisdiction in a building operation is as hot a potato as ever.

Leaders of the big three are forceful, driving men—William L. Hutchison, of the Carpenters, Daniel W. Tracy, of the Electrical Workers, and Harry C. Bates, of the Bricklayers. It will be hard to make them swallow anything short of victory.

And meanwhile, Green faces the fact that the building trades, together with the print crafts, constitute the real backbone of the A. F. of L.

won't work. Too many local complications, too many farmers who are their own producers and distributors, too many milk sheds wholly within states.

Milk magnates are more afraid of Dan Tobin than they are of NRA Tobin, head of the Truckmen's Union, is out for organizing milk drivers on a national scale.

A conflict between labor and agriculture develops in the milk code controversy. Milk workers have had a raise of 8 per cent while farmers selling milk have seen no such raise. They accuse labor of hogging the benefits of the AAA marketing and licensing system.

Milk is under a double-gear federal system. As a farm product it comes under AAA and as an industry it comes under NRA. The proposed NRA milk code relates only to labor and leaves the farmer holding the can.

Choice: Europe doesn't like the joker in our latest proposal for an international agreement controlling munitions of war. The joker is that Uncle Sam suggests manufacturers be licensed and regulated along with those who sell, import or export.

But from the American viewpoint its no joker. It's a very serious proposition because—

If the major world powers agree it would mean definite limitation of the number of guns any nation could manufacture and hold in reserve. It would bring about international disarmament far more effectively than all of the proposals made to date for limiting naval strength and land forces combined.

As suggested to the League of Nations steering committee at Geneva by American Minister Hugh Wilson, an international regulatory commission would be set up. Such a commission would have the right to send investigating committees into any country under diplomatic immunity and determine whether war materials were being secretly manufactured and stored.

All the thinly concealed military training activities of Europe would be of little avail if the men and boys thus trained weren't backed up by adequate reserve of powder and shell.

Word comes from deep inside the State Department that Minister Wilson has been instructed to adopt a take-it-or-leave-it attitude. If they leave it the inference is that Washington is pretty well fed up with efforts to negotiate world disarmament.

TOBACCO FARMER IS KILLED; ROBBED

Reldsville, N. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—The battered and slashed body of Belding Pulp, 55-year-old farmer and filling station operator, was found today in a wood near his home, and officers said he apparently had been robbed and slain.

Grant Hayden, who, witnesses at a corner's jury, said was seen to have entered the wood with Pulp near where the body was found, was held "for further investigation," but no specific charge was lodged against him.

The coroner's jury also ordered Emmet Hayden, his brother, held, but officers last night had been unable to locate him. Grant Hayden was taken to the county jail at Wentworth. He denied having seen Pulp recently or that he entered the wood with him.

Pulp just had sold a load of tobacco when he was killed. He was believed to have left his tobacco money at home, however, officers said, and only a watch was missing. He apparently was struck two heavy blows on the head, and his head, and his throat was cut. Other bruises were found on his body.

A new silver Elgin seventeen jewel watch, with a chain and a heart-shaped fob bearing the inscription "M. P. A. 751013," was also taken from the Butts residence.

Many Christmas customs of the past have been worked into the action. An attempt will be made to recapture the true old-time Christmas spirit. Music, songs and carols typical of the periods presented will be sung as occasion demands. The Choral Club will be joint producers with the Theatre Guild in presenting this Festival to the people of Greenville. Arrangements are being completed whereby there will be no admission charged.

Party For Miss Hadley

One of the most attractive of the many affairs honoring Miss Rose Hadley, bride-elect, was yesterday afternoon when Mrs. Selma Carson Moore and Mrs. W. J. Bundy graciously entertained at the Woman's Club.

The hall and spacious reception room of the club were elaborately decorated in autumn leaves, berries and yellow chrysanthemums with a yellow color note predominating.

On arrival guests were welcomed by Mrs. W. L. Best and Mrs. F. J. Forbes and directed to the bridge tables.

After cards were removed at the conclusion of the game, the hostesses assisted by Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, Miss Jane Hadley, Miss Frances Norman and Miss Sue Barrett, served a delicious salad course with coffee, followed by a sweet course, carrying out the Thanksgiving idea and yellow color note.

Twelve additional guests arrived for the refreshment hour.

In the awarding of prizes, Mrs. R. R. Daughtridge was given a double deck of bridge cards for high score; Mrs. W. E. Padgett a single deck of cards for slams; Mrs. J. B. James, dusting powder for low score, and Mrs. James Wooten an imported perfume bottle for visitors.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Bundy each presented Miss Hadley with silver in her selected pattern and gifts of lingerie.

Miss Janice McGowan, who will be married in December, was remembered with a pitcher in her selected crystal pattern, and Mrs. Needham Ward, a recent bride, with a Burgundy glass vase.

Large Number Attend Junior Choir.
The Junior Choir of Greenville, under the direction of Fred Allen, had a splendid rehearsal last Tuesday afternoon at the library. There were 150 young people present, and the rehearsals were continued for the music incidental to the Christmas Festival to be given in conjunction with the Choral Club and the Little Theatre Guild Dec. 21.

The attendance was so large that it will be necessary to divide the Junior Choir into two groups according to age. The hour for each group to meet will be announced before next Tuesday.

These young people are receiving splendid training in sacred music and it would be a distinct loss if the work should be discontinued. It rests with the adult chorus to raise the membership of the Choral Club so that this work may go on.

CONSTRUCTION OF LOCK IS NEARLY COMPLETED

Wilmington, Nov. 23—Construction of the lock at the site of the third lock and dam on the upper Cape Fear river is nearly completed and the lock will be tested within the next few days, Wilmington district engineers said yesterday.

Work on the project, which is located about 18 miles south of Fayetteville was started on February 8 by the firm of William Eisenburg and Sons of Camden, N. J. It was the lowest bidder.

When completed, the lock and dam together with improvement of the two, will provide a year around eight foot channel in the river from Wilmington to Fayetteville.

Three Methodist students of East Carolina Teachers College left today to attend the third annual state-wide Methodist Student Conference which is to be held in Edenton Street Church, Raleigh, this week-end.

Registration closed today at five o'clock. Immediately following will be a banquet and address. Horace P. Cotten of State College Y. M. C. A. is president of the organization and will preside over all sessions of the conference. Prof. H. E. Spence of the Duke University School of Religion, and Dr. Walter A. Lameth, pastor of the High Point Methodist Church, will be the principal speakers.

Those of the college class who are attending this conference are Misses Lou Pitts, president, Martha Teal, and Ruth Kiker.

Misses Ola Ross and Mamie E. Jenkins attended the Methodist Conference meeting in Washington yesterday and last night.

The Emerson Society gave a Thanksgiving program for the students of the college at the assembly period this morning. The main feature on the program was a delightful Thanksgiving story "Two Thanksgiving Day Gentlemen," by America's foremost story teller, O. Henry, told by Miss Linelle Clark of Grimesland. It was an interesting story of an old American gentleman's sacrifice for tradition.

M'IVER HEADS SCHOOL BODY

Minister Elected Head of High School Parent-Teachers Organization Here

Last night 95 parents and teachers met in the High School Library to elect officers and make plans for a permanent Parent-Teachers organization.

Mrs. C. A. Bower, acting as chairman of the nominating committee, nominated Rev. J. A. McIver as president, Mrs. B. B. Sugg as vice president and Mr. Vester Mulholland as secretary. All three were elected unanimously.

Mr. McIver presided over the meeting, and stated he thought that from this group of parents they should have several committees to assist and encourage the various activities in the High School. That these committees should encourage athletics, music, debating and the many things participated in by the students.

To add some life to the meeting it was suggested that a song be sung. It started as a group song, but wound up as a solo by Mr. Rose, he didn't like this so selected—"Good-Bye My Lover Good-Bye." With this song he succeeded in getting good response from the entire group.

An expression from any member present was called for. Mr. Lawrence Cannon responded in behalf of the teachers. He stated that "the primary interest of each High School Teacher was the welfare and success of each and every student." Mr. John Horne for the parents said that "the parents were willing and anxious to do their part."

Many nice gifts were donated by the merchants of the town. Each member present was given a card and asked to sign their names; these cards were shuffled and several members received a gift.

The meeting was brought to a close by a brief talk from Supt. Rose. He pointed out the importance of the parents being perfectly frank at all times. He also outlined plans by which the High School was to get new drapery, curtains etc. This is to be financed by selling advertisements.

DUKE-STATE LOOKING FOR CLOSE GAME

Durham, N. C., Nov. 23.—When Duke and N. C. State meet in Duke stadium on Thanksgiving Day, they will be renewing what is probably the closest ten-year football rivalry in the South.

Take a peek at these figures, scores of past games between the two teams:

- 1924—Duke 0, State 14.
- 1925—Duke 0, State 13.
- 1926—Duke 19, State 26.
- 1927—Duke 17, State 23.
- 1928—Duke 14, State 12.
- 1929—Duke 19, State 0.
- 1930—Duke 18, State 0.
- 1931—Duke 0, State 14.
- 1932—Duke 0, State 6.
- 1933—Duke 7, State 0.

In that series have been some of the most thrilling and spectacular games of football ever played in the South. In 1924 and 1928, State won, but write-ups of the games reveal that the Wolves had a lot harder time doing it than the score indicates. The 1926, 1927, 1928, 1929, 1931, 1932, and 1933 games have taken as a whole, been the seven best games played in North Carolina between two teams over a period of ten years. The Wolves, led by Jack McDowall, got that 26-19 win in Raleigh after a free-scoring and brilliant game, Duke playing in the air, State depending on the running of McDowall.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The stock market picked up strength and volume today as sentiment for business recovery continued to improve.

After a dull and slightly irregular beginning the stocks turned quite active in the second hour. With most groups including the rails and utilities participating in the upturn the ticker tape dropped a minute or so behind the floor transactions and advances ranged from fractions to around two points.

Although the spurt was brief prices generally held to their top levels.

With the exception of U. S. Government securities which were quiet and slightly mixed bonds were without any particular trend. Grain and cotton followed a slim groove. Foreign exchange was also narrow.

Following an active flurry during the second hour the list fell off but the advance was resumed in the final hour.

Late News Flashes

The minister's request passing the war budget of 5,689,000,000 francs, about $374,336,200, they adding their approval of an emergency appropriation of 800,000,000 francs, or $52,640,000. This later appropriation is to be spent for new fighting equipment.

The voting came after the Chamber finance committee had pledged itself to vote whatever the country needed for defense.

Japan Arming.
Tokyo, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Japan met "the international situation" today as the oriental empire granted its army and navy the most money ever allotted its military machine.

More than 1,000,000,000 yen, about $290,000,000, will go to the national defense in one year. This is 46 per cent of the total budget of 2,210,000,000 yen, about $640,900,000, and a nine per cent increase over the current appropriations.

A weary cabinet which had been in session for 14 hours approved the figures this morning, ending the long and heated battle of the budget. It was a victory for the army and navy who had fought with propaganda for months for larger and better equipped forces.

The minister of war threatened to resign if his demands were not met. He and the minister of the navy told the cabinet "The international situation must be considered."

Special Court Term For Wayne

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 23.—(AP)—Judge R. Hunt Parker, of Roanoke Rapids, to day was assigned to preside at a two weeks' mixed term of court to start in Wayne County Monday morning with eight murder cases scheduled to be heard. Judge Parker will serve in lieu of Judge M. C. Barnhill, who is ill at his home in Rocky Mount.

The trial of Mrs. Ruby Grice and her brother, Donald Sasser, for complicity with Rufus Satterfield in the alleged ambush murder of Mrs. Grice's husband, Herbert Grice, is set for the term of Wayne Superior court.

Would Strengthen Liquor Act

Washington, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, today adopted resolutions asking the legislature to strengthen the Turlington Act, the state bone dry law and urged law enforcement.

"We petition the legislature of North Carolina to strengthen rather than repeal or weaken the Turlington Act and we urge the importance of law enforcement," the resolution said.

The resolutions also urged ministers to lead in the fight against the liquor traffic and condemn the use of liquor by church members.

W. K. Greene, of Duke University was named associate conference law leader and F. S. Aldridge was elected secretary. Named to the conference board of officers and the committee were A. M. Noble and A. W. Byrd.

Statistic and reports presented showed the salaries of ministers in the conference increased from $319,000 in 1933 to $334,000 in 1934 and the benevolence from $64,000 to $84,709.

Freak Ears Corn Displayed Here

L. H. Highsmith, colored, farmer of Bethel, R. F. D. 2, has joined the ranks of producers of freak agricultural products.

Highsmith today brought to the office of the Daily Reflector two ears of corn which will easily take their place in the ranks of the freaks. One of the ears contains white and red grains and was produced from a single grain of corn.

The other contained eight ears in one, the main ear being about normal size with seven Lilliputian ears clustered around it.

The corn was placed on display in the front office of the Reflector for inspection of those who like to look over the collection of freaks brought to this office from time to time by growers in all sections of the county.
