R. C. WILSON IS VICTIM OF AUTO WRECK

Second Greenville Man Dies From Injuries Received in Grainger's Accident

The automobile wreck on the Greenville-Kinston highway curve at Grainger's station last Wednesday night today had claimed a second victim.

Richard Clay Wilson, 49, of Greenville, died in the Parrot Memorial Hospital, Kinston, this morning at 11:30 o'clock of injuries which he received when the automobile driven by W. J. Hardee, also of this city, went out of control on the sharp curve and overturned. Hardee was believed to have been killed instantly.

Wilson was rushed to Kinston suffering from a fractured skull, and physicians at the time said he had little chance of recovering. He partly regained consciousness yesterday, however, and a more favorable report was issued by hospital attaches. His condition took a sudden turn for the worse last night and hope for his recovery was abandoned.

Funeral services will be held from the late home, 1012 Evans Street, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Burial will be made in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was a native of the Grifton community and had spent his entire life in Pitt County. He operated the Meekin Tucker farm, several miles from Greenville, and had been connected with the farming industry the greater part of his life.

He moved to Greenville about 20 years ago, and since that time had made his home here. He was a member of the Eighth Street Christian Church and the local Masonic lodge.

Surviving is the widow, who before marriage was Miss Myrtle House and two sons and two daughters. Surviving also are two brothers, J. D. Wilson, Greenville, and R. E. Wilson, Washington, N. C.; six sisters, Mrs. Maggie Hyman and Mrs. J. L. Blount of Greenville; Mrs. Clarence Cox New Bern; Mrs. N. Williams, Norfolk, Va.; and Mrs. Charlie Grubbs, Grifton.

NEW HEALTH OFFICER HERE

Dr. N. T. Ennett to Take Over Direction of Public Health Tomorrow

Dr. N. T. Ennett, of Mount Airy, who was elected director of the Pitt County Public Health Department several weeks ago, has arrived in Greenville to begin work tomorrow.

Dr. Ennett will succeed Dr. R. S. McGeachy, who resigned the latter part of August to assume the directorship of the Public Health Department in Halifax County.

Dr. Needham E. Ward, who has been acting health director since the resignation of Dr. McGeachy, will continue the practice of medicine with Dr. J. M. Barrett at their office on Third Street.

Dr. Ennett arrived here yesterday, and today will confer with members of the Public Health Department before taking over active direction of the office tomorrow.

Dr. Ennett comes to Greenville from Mount Airy where he has been located the past year. He is a native of Currier County, North Carolina, but has been active in public health work in three foreign countries as well as several places in America.

At the time of his selection for the post here, Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, member of the committee from the Board of Health to select a new health officer, stated that Dr. Ennett had served in the public health field in Paris, London and Rome.

In addition he organized the public school health program in Richmond, Va. several years ago, and remained there until it had been applied to every part of the State of Virginia.

Before entering this field, Dr. Ennett was an instructor in medicine at the Medical College of Virginia and an editor on the medical magazine of the State.

Dr. Ennett is married and will move his family here to make their home.

SEEKS TO HALT SETTLEMENT IN REYNOLDS TILT

Mrs. Annie Cannon Asks Court to Name Master to Take Testimony In Case

Winston-Salem, N. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Cannon, of Concord, mother of Ann Cannon Reynolds and co-guardian of her grandchild, Ann Cannon Reynolds, today asked the Forsyth County court to decline the attempted settlement of the Smith Reynolds trust fund and to appoint a master to take testimony and report on the validity of the Reno divorce between Smith Reynolds and her daughter.

Her reply bitterly indicts her brother-in-law, C. A. Cannon, president of the Cabarrus Bank as "unfriendly guardian" and says that for ten years a state of "armed neutrality" has existed between the two branches of the wealthy family.

FEAR BANDITS HOLDING BABY

Troops Search For Infant of Two American Missionaries Slain in China

Shanghai, Dec. 14.—(AP)—The fear that three-months-old American baby in the hands of Chinese brigands was expressed today.

Government troops were in pursuit of the bandits who near the city of Tsingtao in Awanai province province captured Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stams and their baby and several Chinese.

The bodies of the youthful Stams were found deserted on a battlefield fifteen miles from Tsingtao, but no trace of the baby had been discovered. Other missionaries in the southern province are reporting to be evacuating their stations.

A letter written by Stams shortly before his death disclosed he and his family were held for ransom of $20,000 Chinese silver dollars, about $7,000. Stams was a native of Paterson, N. J., while his wife, the daughter of missionaries, was born in China.

EXPECT HEAVY COTTON-LEAF VOTE IN PITT

Referendum on Tax Feature of 2 Measures Being Conducted Here Today

Pitt County growers, like those in other cotton and tobacco producing counties of the nation, went to the polls today to cast their ballot in the referendum on the tobacco and cotton production control acts passed by Congress sometime ago to regulate acreage and improve the price situation.

While cotton alone was being voted up in some counties, Pitt County was voting on both cotton and tobacco, and indications were that the ballot would be about 100 per cent in favor of the two pieces of legislation which have played such an important part in boosting prices and controlling production.

It was made known at the Farm Department this morning that farmers who were unable to vote today would be permitted to do so through the 20th of the month by applying at the farm office. Today was the first time this announcement was made, but it was received with interest in view of the fact that probably a number of growers were sick and found it impossible to reach the polls.

Attention today centered principally around continuing the tax on non-contract signers in both cotton and tobacco. The tax provides for 25 to 33 1-2 per cent on tobacco and similar protection is thrown about growers of cotton who signed the government contract to reduce acreage.

Voting was being conducted in every precinct of the county. The list of poll-holders was announced Tuesday following a series of group meetings in various sections of the county by the Farm Department with a view to informing the farmers concerning the provisions to be voted upon.

Ballooning was being conducted at the courthouse here this morning and farmers even during the early hours were making a bee-line for the polls wishing to get the matter of their hands so they could turn their attention to other things.

In view of the fact that the sign-up for tobacco in Pitt County represented about 98 per cent of the growers and the cotton about 90 per cent, E. F. Arnold, Director of the Farm Department expressed belief the ballot here would be large.

Mr. Arnold said that in his conferences with the growers he had heard very little criticism, if any, of the two control acts which farmers everywhere realize have been their salvation during the past year, enabling them to more out of the depths of depression to higher grounds of financial freedom.

ARREST TWO FOR SHOOTING FIREWORKS

Firecrackers Hurlled In Streets Resulted In Two Men Going To Court Here

Although the Board of Aldermen recently lifted the ban to permit the shooting of fireworks in the back yards of the various homes of the city, Chief of Police George Clark said today the order of the board not to shoot fireworks on the streets was being violated.

Two young men, described by the officer as magazine agents, were recently arrested for hurling large firecrackers from the window of a hotel on Dickinson Avenue. They failed to appear in court last Wednesday morning and were later placed under bond of $10 each to go to trial Saturday morning.

Chief Clark said the tossing of firecrackers into the streets jeopardized public life, if not directly from the explosives, then from the standpoint of drivers of automobiles. He declared a large firecracker hurled under a car might cause the driver to lose control and injure himself or numbers of persons on the streets in the business district.

He did not make known the names of the two young men ordered to appear before court, but pointed out that this should be a warning to others who continue violating the order of the Board of Aldermen and refuse to confine their shooting to their own back lots.

The aldermen a month ago or so ruled that firecrackers could not be sold or exploded in the city limits but following a plea in behalf of the youth of the city by Sheriff Sam Whitehurst, the city fathers relented and permitted sellers to come in, city and children to shoot firecrackers in their own back lots.

It was a generous move on the part of the aldermen after numbers of cities have refused to permit the handling of fireworks in the city limits, and Chief Clark urged that the ruling of the solons be respected.

SCOUTS PLAN 'TOY' DRIVE

Canvass of City To Be Made Saturday Morning To Collect Toys For Poor

Boy Scouts will call at every home in Greenville Saturday morning to collect broken toys. People who have toys to give to this fund are asked to have them ready in a package when the Scouts call.

These toys that the Scouts collect will be repaired by the city firemen and given to the Salvation Army for distribution to the families for Christmas.

This collection will represent one of the Boy Scouts community good turn for the holiday season. They are asking that every family of Greenville co-operate and put aside some broken or used toy so that it can be collected tomorrow and eventually make some child's Christmas morning happy.

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

VISION GOVERNS SAFE SPEED

Two cars collided at a street intersection last week. The property damage was large. Fortunately no one was killed. Houses occupied all four of the corner lots. Each car was unaware that the other car was approaching. When the two drivers sighted each other it was impossible for either to stop because of the speed at which they were going. This accident could have been averted if the approach speeds had been slower.

SATTERFIELD EXECUTED AT STATE PRISON

Slayer of Herbert Grice Goes To Death Calmly at 10:29 Today

Rufus Satterfield, 44 year old Wayne County farmer, who admitted the ambush slaying of Herbert Grice, husband of the woman Satterfield said he loved, was electrocuted at State's Prison this morning.

It took four shots of current to snap out his life, the electricity racing through his body for six minutes and fifteen seconds, the longest period ever recorded in an execution in North Carolina.

Satterfield made no statement after entering the death chamber, having earlier this morning told Warden H. H. Honeycutt he would have nothing to say.

"You hurt my nose," he exclaimed, as a guard adjusted the leather mask on his face. As he walked into the death chamber he had shaken hands with R. L. Bridges, who handles the switches, and bade him goodbye. The doomed man walked into the death chamber calmly at 10:39. The first shot was administered at 10:32, but it was a few seconds after 10:49 before he was pronounced dead by Dr. G. F. Coleman, prison physician.

The Rev. A. J. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Goldsboro, and the Rev. Forest Peezler, of the Tabernacle Baptist Church here were with Satterfield on Death Row just before he went to the chair. After the execution they said he made no new statement.

Satterfield is survived by his widow, who claimed the body, and two young daughters. He was a native of Wayne County.

As witnesses of the electrocution were signing in the warden's record book where it could be noted that today was the 148th electrocution in the chair and the 26th white man an errand man of the State Supreme Court handed to Warden Honeycutt an order setting the death date of William "Bunk" Deal, of Robeson County, as December 28.

Deal lost an appeal from a conviction of murder this week.

Witnesses of the execution included Policeman H. A. Lane, of Goldsboro; C. M. Columbus, Senors Paswor, Peter Graham, of Goldboro, and C. F. Wiggs, of Fremont.

COURT FIGHT PLANNED BY THE UTILITIES

Fifty-eight State Exchanges of Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company Affected By Ruling; Cut Not Applied In Uniform Manner To Various Exchanges

Raleigh, N. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—Telephone rate reductions which it is estimated will result in an aggregate annual saving of about $321,287 to some 78,000 subscribers at 59 North Carolina exchanges of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company today were ordered to become effective January 1.

It was indicated that the telephone company planned to fight the reduction in the courts as its legal counsel immediately took steps to ascertain to fight the ruling.

The cut was not applied in a uniform manner to each exchange varying greatly between some, but amounting up to 12 per cent of the annual exchange service revenue for 1933 which totals $2,689,466. The commission set forth it could legally support a 15 per cent reduction, but wished to safeguard the financial status of the utilities.

DR. MORRILL MEDICO HEAD

Falkland Physician Elected President Medical Society Here Last Night

Dr. Jenness Morrill of Falkland, was elected president at the monthly meeting of the Pitt County Medical Society held at the parish house here last night. He succeeds Dr. T. G. Basnett, Stokes, who served for the customary term of one year.

Other officers elected were Dr. Paul Jones, of Farmville, vice-president, and Dr. W. K. McDowell, Greenville, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. W. M. B. Brown was elected delegate to the annual convention of the State Medical Society and Dr. J. S. Liverman, of Winterville, alternate.

Preceding the election of officers, the physicians enjoyed annual ladies night program and attendance was described as one of the best of the year. Dr. J. E. Nobles, Dr. Cecil Garrenton, Dr. T. M. Watson, and Dr. Alfred Schultz were hosts of the Society. A delightful supper was served by ladies of the Episcopal Church.

Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, member of the health committee, named by Board of Health to select a health officer to succeed Dr. R. S. McGeachy, who resigned about three months ago presented Dr. N. T. Ennett, who will take charge of public health activities in this county tomorrow.

Dr. Ennett talked briefly of the importance of public health work and asked for the co-operation of the members of the society in pushing across his program.

Games of bingo and auto races were provided for the entertainment of the guests, and a number of favors were presented to the ladies.

The gathering was described as the most delightful of the year, and the society members outdid themselves in making the evening pass off pleasantly for the guests.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

A leopard doesn't change his spots—least of all a sports leopard.

King Tut has discarded his boxing gloves to return to his first love—wrestling. Tut started out as Henry Tuttle, an amateur wrestler, but turned to boxing when he accidentally discovered he had quite a punch. And then, too, there was the promise of greater remuneration in the boxing game; there being very little demand for wrestling lightweights.

The terrific punch Tut boasted carried him far along the fistful highway, at that, for he scored knockouts in almost half his bouts. His one round knockout of Billy Petrolle, when the "Fargo Express" was plowing through opponents under full steam, is his greatest achievement.

As a lightweight and junior-welterweight, Tut fought and held his own with Bruce Flowers, Jackie Fields, Young Jack Thompson, Dock Small, Tod Morgan, My Sullivan and Mike Dundee.

Tut has packed on a bit of weight since his boxing days, now tipping the beam at 151 pounds. This is his natural weight, without any distasteful dieting or drying out.

King Tut's return to the mat recalls the attempt Paul Berlenbach made last winter to gain a foothold in the wrestling game. Berlenbach, who had pounded his way to the light-heavyweight title with one of the most devastating punches in the most devastating punches in the history of boxing, was like Tut, an amateur wrestler before he took to punching. Having reached the end of the trail as a fighter, he tried to cash in on his reputation, but found the wrestling fans were not interested in anything beyond his ability to entertain them on the mat.

The giant George Godfrey took a fling at wrestling when, as the "Black Menace" of the boxing ring he couldn't find enough work to keep his larger stocked with pok chops I have not complete record of his success or failure, but it is extremely doubtful that he caused sleepless nights for any of the numerous wrestling "champs." Anyway, his name seems to have disappeared from the cut-of-town wrestling summaries.

Arthur De Kuh was modestly started on his boxing career as the coming heavyweight champion. But the title disappeared as he acquired the habit of seeking a soft comfortable spot on the canvas. In time, the habit became so strong that he turned, quite naturally, to a career on the wrestling mat.

And then there was the very large wrestler, Tiny Roebuck, who tried a bit of fighting under Jimmy Brownson's wing, but not for long.

Just to prove that it works both ways, take the case of Hans Steinkamp. A top-notch wrestler when the urge to become heavyweight boxing champion possessed him, he donned a pair of boxing gloves and challenged the world. He tried a few bouts in a small club, then decided—he was a wrestler.

PIRATES WIN FIRST GAME OF CAGE YEAR

By Wm. WATSON MORGAN

The Teachers of E. C. T. C. got off to a good start last night by winning their first game of the season from the Kinston All-Stars by the score of 19 to 21.

Except for an occasional burst of speed and fight, the game was very slow. This was probably due to lack of practice.

Runt Bostic, like "Old Man River" continues to roll along. It wouldn't seem like an E. C. T. C. team unless Runt was bobbing in and out among the players. He wasn't up to his usual good game, but was able to lead his mates by chalking up six points.

Doc Mathis is going to have two very smooth performers in Jimmie Johnston, guard and Jones, center. Jimmie was in there scrapping all the time he was in the game. Jones star with the Mount Olive High School last year should develop into a brilliant performer before the season closes. The jump from high school to college ball has him handicapped now, but he should soon be clicking with the boys.

Many fans were disappointed when they learned that Pat Crawford did not accompany the team to Greenville. A large number came out more to see him than anything else. He was called to Charlotte.

For the All-Stars, Titus played the best game. He was high scorer of the night with ten points.

The line-up:

E. C. T. C.	Position	All-Stars
Bostic	Forward	Mock
Barrett	Forward	Titus
Jones	Center	Hart
Johnston	Guard	M. Hart
Ridenhour	Guard	Gaddy
Referee:	Brock (Furman)

Asheville, N. C., Dec. 14.—(AP)—The first arrest under a zoning ordinance passed last summer by the city council to segregate white persons and negroes in residential districts, were made today when three negroes were taken into custody.

Those arrested were Gillis Gilliam, Dorothy Lewis and Hattie Owens.

Phillip C. Cooke, solicitor of police court, said the negroes were released without bond. Their case has been called for Tuesday. It is probable he said, that the case will turn into a test of the constitutionality of the ordinance.

Mrs. William Alfred Forbes announces the marriage of her daughter Carrie Elizabeth to Mr. Richard Wright Gorman on the fourteenth of December nineteen hundred and thirty-four Greenville, North Carolina

At Home
Greenville, North Carolina
No announcements were sent in Winterville and Greenville.

Coming as a surprise to their many friends here and throughout the state, was the marriage of Miss Carrie Elizabeth Forbes and Richard Wright Gorman, which was solemnized this morning at nine o'clock at the home of Reverend and Mrs. A. W. Fleischmann on Greene Street. Mr. Fleischmann, pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, united them in marriage, using the impressive ring ceremony. Only members of the immediate families attended the ceremony.

The bride was lovely, wearing a most becoming suit of brown waffle crepe tweed, sable trimmed, with eggshell blouse and matching accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Gorman left for a wedding trip to New York and other northern cities. On their return they will make their home with Mr. Gorman's mother on West Fourth Street.

Mrs. Gorman, a very pretty, charming and popular young woman, is the daughter of Mrs. William Alfred Forbes and the late William Alfred Forbes of Winterville. She was educated at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, Greensboro, and the School of Technology in St. Louis, Missouri.

Mr. Gorman, the son of Mrs. John Nichols Gorman of this city, and the late John Nichols Gorman, is a member of well known North Carolina and Virginia families. He was educated in the Richmond city schools and business college.

He is a prominent tobaccoist and for a number of years has been actively engaged in the warehouse business in this city.

End of the Century Club Meets.

Deal, were welcomed into the club. The books were distributed by Mrs. Charles Laughinghouse and each member bought Tuberculosis Seals.

The club enjoyed a delightful Christmas program.

Miss Charlton read a lovely story "A Christmas Guest."

Nativity Scene At College.

Nativity scenes in clay figures in the entrance halls of both the Austin building of the college and the Training School are beautiful reminders of the real Christmas spirit.

The scene is on a small scale and placed on a table with small Christmas trees framing it in.

The contribution was made by the practice teaching group in Primary Education which is taught by Miss Doris Coates. The students designed the scenes, modeled the figures from native clay, and arranged the setting from simple materials, using nothing that was not easy to find. It is a demonstration of what any teacher can do in any community.

Following the debate was a one-act play entitled "The Mayor and the Manicure," a delightful comedy, the following students participated: William Brooks, Geraldine Harris, Morris Bland, Marion Tyson; Edith Forrest, Helen Flanagan, Earl Dunn and Richard Harris. This work was under the direction of Mr. Muhlenland of the English department.

President McIver stated that it was the duty of the parents to back the high school boys and girls and their teachers in all the various school activities, and he announced the names of the following committee chairmen: Social, Mrs. Ralph Garrett; Athletic, Berry Bostic; Program, Mrs. Leon Tyson; Latin Contest, Mrs. Judson Blount; French Contest, Mrs. Harry Jones; Music, Mrs. Ray Tyson; Problems, Mrs. B. B. Sugg.

High School Parents Club.

The December meeting of the High School Club was held last night at 6:30 in the high school library with 160 fathers, mothers and teachers present. The club gathered around a log fire, enjoyed a delightful supper served by the class members of the home economics department, heard a debate by seven freshmen of the civics classes, enjoyed a one-act play put on by some juniors in the English department, and transacted routine business.

It was perhaps the most enthusiastic and enjoyable meeting of parents and teachers ever held in the city of Greenville. Rev. J. A. McIver, president of the club, presided, and to him is due most of the credit for the success of the meeting. The meal was served without cost, due to the fact that Miss York, head of the home economics department, assisted by Miss Rogers and the members of the home economics classes, prepared, cooked, and served the food which Mr. McIver had secured from the various firms and individuals in Greenville.

The debaters in the freshman classes who participated in the debate were as follows: Chairman, Mary Jane McIver; Jane Rowlett, Baxter Clark, Marjorie Sugg, Elizabeth Gates, Joe Station and Ralph Blank. The debate was a no-decision affair, and in conclusion, Mr. McIver presented each participant with a pound box of chocolate candy which had been donated for the occasion.

(Baltimore Sun)
The proposal that laws be adopted in Massachusetts to limit automatically the speed of automobiles moves from the stage of speculation into that of active discussion of practicability. In that State, the Commissioner of Public Works has recommended to the Legislature that it adopt a law requiring every motor car registered in the State to be equipped with a speed governor set at fifty miles an hour.

Such a law would be opposed by the automobile industry, no doubt, because of the cost and the mechanical difficulties that are said to interfere with the installation of a device that would control speed on a level road and at the same time not interfere with the need of power under other conditions. But manufacturers, even if such difficulties could be overcome without materially increasing the cost of cars, would object because of the sales appeal of high speed. But with the motor vehicle fatality roll constantly increasing, support is quite likely to be forthcoming for radical experiments unless other means are found to check the evil.

Far-sighted persons interested in motoring—manufacturers and drivers—should have in mind the dangers of a flare-up of angry opinion. The death toll for the present year is approaching 30,000, with a list of approximately 750,000 injured, to say nothing of the enormous property loss due to accidents on the highway. Public opinion will not permanently put up with so tragic a loss of life. Should it be convinced that speed is chiefly responsible for the slaughter, insistent demand will arise for resort to whatever method of control is necessary to protect human life.

The hope is that the Committee will put all the principals back on the witness stand and let the public decide what's what.

I did not kill Osborne
By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: Nicholas French has learned a good deal about the mysterious disappearance of a valuable formula belonging to Molly O'Brien, from Sir William Avon, Nick, with Jerry Mondav and Molly, plans to visit a deserted factory where John Osborne, who first stole the formula, manufactured a piece of the metal it describes. They will go on Jerry's little cutter. While they are discussing the matter Jerry catches sight of a waiter lurking about the door, and accuses him of spying.

Chapter 25
JIMMY FOX

"Right you are," said Jerry. "You get ahead with it. Molly and I will go back to the flat, and you can join us there. Then we'll take George for a walk and have tea in the Park."
"I don't think I shall ever want to eat again," protested Molly. "You gave me such a huge lunch."
"You must have tea," said Jerry firmly. "I've booked a table at Ciro's tonight, and one can't dance on an empty tummy."
We waited for a minute while Molly powdered her nose and put on a hat, and then, making our way to the end of the corridor, walked down the broad deserted staircase. As we arrived at the bottom I saw Jimmy on the opposite side of the lounge. I gave him an encouraging nod, and leaving the others to make their exit, walked over to an untenanted corner.
HE HAD evidently thought out his preparations, for, disappearing promptly through an adjoining door, he emerged a moment later carrying a neatly tied brown paper parcel.
"These are them, sir," he whispered, coming across to where I was waiting. "They ain't up to much—just a few bits I done at odd times—it won't be 'at kind if you'll 'ave a look through them."

"Get out before I break your neck!" said Jerry.

I strolled after him and locked the door.
"Quite an exciting little episode!" I observed as I came back. "Just shows how careful one ought to be."
Jerry shook his head. "Avon was right," he growled. "We are mutts, and we deserve to be kicked—all the lot of us."
"What do you mean?" asked Molly. "Do you think he's one of Osborne's people?"
"Not a doubt of it. An ordinary hotel waiter would never have the nerve to do a thing of that sort." He took a couple of paces towards the window, and then wheeled round. "Some Russian who's probably posing as a refugee. The whole of Europe stinks with them."
"I wish we knew how much he'd overheard," I remarked regretfully. "If he was listening the whole time..."
"I don't think he was," broke in Jerry. "I believe he went off for a bit and then sneaked back. Anyhow, I saw the door move; that's what attracted my attention."
"WELL, whatever the damage is, it's done now," I pointed out. "Seems to me our best plan is to keep quiet. Molly's going to be here for another couple of days, and if we complain to the manager it will probably get all round the hotel. We don't want to have everybody talking and gossiping about her."
"There's something in that," admitted Jerry. "All the same, I'd like to know who this skunk is, and where they got him from."
"I can probably find out," I said with a sudden inspiration. "You remember that kid I spoke to on my way up?"
He nodded.
"He's a sort of protégé of mine. Used to attend a drawing-class in Battersea. I've promised to look over some work of his when I go down, and I'll ask him if he can ferret out anything about our pal's record."
"He'll tell all the other page-boys."
"Not he," I retorted. "Jimmy's a bright lad, and if I'm not mistaken he's by way of being rather attached to me. We can trust him absolutely."

"I'll take them home with me," I said, "and I'll let you know what I think about them tomorrow... Look here, Jimmy," I added. "You can keep a quiet tongue in your head, can't you?"
He nodded.
"I want you to help me," I went on. "There's a waiter here who calls himself Kilner—Jacob Kilner. A little while ago, when I was upstairs with that lady and gentleman who have just gone out, we found him listening outside the door. As it happens we were talking about some thing very private. I'm not going to make a fuss, or anything of that sort, but if it's possible I'd like to find out who he is and where they got him from."
His eyes brightened. "I can do that for you, sir," he said eagerly. "Some of the chaps here are sure to know."
"I'll be most grateful if you will, Jimmy," I said, "but you must be precious careful how you set to work. I don't want Kilner to guess that I'm making inquiries about him."
"I won't give it away, sir. You can trust me, honest." He hesitated, and then flushed. "Why, I'd do anything to help you, sir," he stammered.
The statement was so obviously sincere that a fresh idea suddenly struck me.
"Well, there's another way in which you might be useful, Jimmy," I said. "That young lady I was talking about, who is sleeping in Number eighty-six, is a rather particular friend of mine. Her name's Miss O'Brien. Quite by accident she's got mixed up with a rotten crowd of foreigners, who are trying to frighten her and cheat her. Now I don't suppose that anyone will interfere with her here, but all the same, these people are an ugly lot, and I'd feel happier if I knew that there was somebody in the hotel who would let me know at once in case anything went wrong. It would only be a question of ringing me up on the phone."

age houses as the financiers and guiding geniuses of a publicity campaign to undermine the New Deal. MacGuire, whom Butler made the villain of his act, is expected to be pressed about his activities in getting a "sound money" resolution through the 1933 American Legion convention at Chicago.
Prominent Legionnaires who were present at Chicago wondered why it was put to a vote but figured it was the Resolutions Committee's business.
Possibilities: Administration officials are strongly reaching the conclusion they have been under-estimating extreme left-wing sentiment throughout the country.
President Roosevelt sensed widespread but unorganized, discontent back in 1932 and gave it a voice. He was elected sweepingly and reaffirmed last month. What worries the New Deal ear-to-the-ground department is just how radical that element is—and how strong it could be if coalesced under new leadership.
In varying degrees, and each working largely alone, there are six men now gathering in followings from the disgruntled. There are many more than six, of course, but these seem to stand out at the moment: Father Coughlin, the radio priest; Senator Huey Long, with his redistributions of wealth, etc.; Floyd Olson Farm-Labor Governor of Minnesota, who wants general price-fixing and control of business; Dr. Townsend and his sales-tax plan for giving the elderly $200 a month to spend; Upton Sinclair and his EPIC plan, and Senator Bob LaFollette, head of the new Progressive Party.

At the moment it would be hard to conceive of them all under one tent.
LaFollette and President Roosevelt embraced each other in the last two elections—but Senator Bob's program veers much further left than FDR's. LaFollette and Olson would have no great trouble joining hands.

Critics of Father Coughlin call him the Mad Monk but they can't overlook his overwhelming fan mail. The Father's voices the sentiment of the inflationists in terms most easily understood.
No one is more criticized or ridiculed in print than Kingfish Long—but he gets his way and he has important support. Sinclair was beaten but Utopian plan still looks great to countless malcontents. The Townsend old-age plan is giving many Congressmen the willies, what with the deluge of mail they are getting in support of it.
Not a happy picture for the New Dealers. What would happen if they stubbed their collective toe, even momentarily?

Position: Those representing Big Business in Washington say private ly that next Monday's White Sulphur Springs assembly of business and industrial leaders has two underlying motives.
One is a realization that if things don't start picking up soon in many industries the unemployed and ultra liberals may saddle the employers with legislation they very much don't want.
The other is a desire to outwardly at least reverse the attitude of big business toward the administration. Heretofore they have been criticizing and balking—and getting nowhere. Now the play will be cooperate—and possibly work industry into apoplexy where it may claim aggrievedly it is being denied legitimate consideration while thus cooperating.

New Tow
By JAMES McMULLIN
The most effective liaison between the government and industry is being developed by Secretary Roper's Business Advisory and Planning Council. This group has been in the background lately but it's due to regain the headlines in the next month or so.

Although Robert L. Lund, Chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers—and Henry I. Harriman—president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—are both members, the Council's guiding policy will be to steer clear of anything that remotely resembles an entangling alliance with either of these organizations. Most of the Councilors privately feel that both have dug themselves into a hole with their lop-sided interpretations of "cooperation" and are especially anxious not to have FDR class them in the same category. You won't find the Council issuing any seven point questionnaires or twelve point conservative plans addressed to the White House.

The Council is definitely righting itself. But it's trying to approach the questions of government business relations with a sympathetic attitude toward New Deal objectives and particularly with a realistic appreciation of social trends and problems which other groups have ignored or glossed over.

The Council is already teaming nicely with Richberg and Roper. You can lay it on the line that its recommendations will be more liberal than those from other business sources—and by that token will cut a lot more ice where it counts.

Front: The more completely the Council can disassociate itself from the big shebang at White Sulphur Springs next Monday—where a hundred business leaders will decide what FDR ought to do—the better its members will like it. They have a hunch the boys will boil over and put themselves on record in a way which may prove embarrassing later.
The main object of this conference is to dope out a "united front" porgram which the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers Association will jointly support as representing the essential demands of industry. Probably it won't be quite so stark in its opposition to the New Deal as the original Manufacturers Association platform. The Chamber influence should tone it down. But anyone who expects the gathering to give ground on labor, budget or relief questions would look for opals in oranges. The front will be united in its conservatism on these points.

Forest work nominally gives employment to 1,500,000 people, and in addition, sale and transportation of forest products supplies jobs to 500,000.

Dagmar's Adventures in Santa Claus Land

BY SIGRID ARNE

The king mole gasped and grabbed for them.

SYNOPSIS: Dagmar, the doll, the big hall where the moles sat in conference, they slipped up close to the hall of the mole king underground. They are trying to find a clue to the blight which has made all of Santa's holly wreath trees drop their red berries just before Christmas.

CHAPTER V

In the Hall of the Mole King the minute the two dolls were in will Santa do? Give me that pebble. Wordlessly, the tin soldier handed her the magic pebble. She rubbed it twice as the earth-worm had told her, and flash! There she stood perfectly visible to the moles. The big gray mole on the high chair pushed back his spectacles and rubbed his eyes. Several scrambled under their chairs in fright. "Don't you dare kill our holly trees!" exploded Dagmar. She was very angry.

"Well, where did you come from?" said the gray mole who was the leader of this underground kingdom.

"What do you mean by killing off our holly trees?" demanded Dagmar.

"The tree roots are growing right down into our apartments and spoiling our homes," said the king mole. "The ceilings are falling in."

"Well, why didn't you move?" said the doll.

"We'll do nothing of the sort!" said the king mole.

"Why—why—why—" and Dagmar was so sorry she couldn't say another word.

Just then, flash! the tin soldier became visible, standing right next to Dagmar. He, too, had rubbed the magic pebble twice.

"Look here," he said. "I'll bring all my troops here, and lock you up if you keep killing the trees."

"Ho, ho, will you?" said the king mole. "Men, take them prisoners."

In a minute hundreds of moles were rushing toward the dolls from all over the large hall. They were surrounded, and couldn't get back to the door. But the dolls rubbed the magic pebble and disappeared so the moles couldn't find them. The moles looked so surprised that Dagmar giggled.

"Let's tease them," whispered Dagmar to the soldier. "Let's rub the stone again. So the two ran right up on the king's throne, rubbed the stone and there they were again."

The king mole gasped, and grabbed for them.

Now the dolls intended to turn invisible again so they couldn't be caught, but the tin soldier in his hurry dropped the pebble and the king mole caught them.

"Here," he thundered, "lock these two in our deepest room."

So the dolls were taken prisoners and marched down and down more steps through the earth, and locked up in a little room where only one tiny candle was burning.
