GOVERNMENT WORKERS BUSY ON PROGRAM

Frank McNinch, of Power Commission Says Accomplishment Cannot be Expected for Several Years; New Public Works Funds Sought for Building Municipal Plants in Big Cities

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—(AP)—A cut of about 50 per cent in the electric bill of America was described today as the ultimate goal of the Roosevelt power program.

Frank R. McNinch, chairman of the Federal Power Commission, made this declaration emphasizing that accomplishments of the aim cannot be expected for several years.

After Secretary Ickes made known he is considering an effort to find new public works for proposed municipal plants in other cities besides New York, McNinch declared the rate to be excessive in some of the large cities.

Negotiations already have been started by Mayor LaGuardia looking toward a unit for the erection of a power plant in the metropolis.

Plans for Public Works financing of a municipal plant at Columbus have been approved. Other are being discussed. It built they would be a part of the "yardstick" system whereby administration leaders say the rate of private concerns would be measured and forced down where they were considered too high.

BIG AIRLINER WRECKS WITH SEVEN KILLED

Pride of Royal Dutch Air Line Burns After Being Struck by Lightning in Iraq

Bagdad, Iraq, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The giant American-built airplane "Utilizer," pride of the Royal Dutch airline, was found wrecked and burned today, its seven occupants killed.

The plane crashed during a desert thunderstorm yesterday, ten miles south of Rutba Wells, Iraq.

Scouting planes of the British Royal Air Force which had been searching for the liner since early yesterday, found the charred wreckage. The machine had been burned to cinders.

Fresh from triumphs in the England-Melbourne air derby, the liner, popularly known as the "Flying Hotel," was picking up new laurels in a speed flight from Amsterdam to Batavia, Java, when disaster overtook it.

The victims were three passengers and four members of the crew.

Although the exact cause of the tragedy was not known, officials here expressed belief it had been struck by lightning.

The last radio message from the doomed craft received yesterday said it was in difficulty during the storm near Rutba Wells and asked its position.

AYDEN WOMAN BADLY BURNED

Mrs. Marjorie Cox Suffers Painful Injuries When Dress Catches Fire

Mrs. Marjorie Dean Cox, wife of Gaston Cox, of the Ayden community, was probably seriously burned when her clothing caught fire from a red-hot stove in her home yesterday, according to reports reaching the city today.

Mrs. Cox was rushed to a Kinston hospital for medical aid, and while her injuries were considered serious, it was said she would recover.

Mrs. Cox's dress caught fire when she walked too close to the stove. She rushed for aid to her husband who was working in a barn a short distance from her home. He snatched the clothing from her body, probably saving her from death or more serious burns.

The campaign was proposed before the board of aldermen by Judge F. M. Wooten, who urged "that action be taken by the city government to make the public traffic conscious."

The mayor had the following to say regarding action of the committee last night.

"The committee has decided to award a prize of $100 for the best slogan submitted and adopted. It is the desire of the committee to stimulate the interest of the people of Pitt County in an earnest desire to make this campaign a success. Postoffice To Hold Open All Day Tomorrow

It was announced today that the local postoffice would remain open all day tomorrow to take care of the annual Christmas rush, always the busiest season of the year for postal employees.

T. T. Hollingsworth, postmaster, in making the announcement this morning, said all departments would be open to take care of the hundreds of people who have put off Christmas mailing until the last minute.

The postoffice always closes Saturday afternoon as result of a government ruling made several months ago, but because of an appeal from business interests and the tremendous volume of business handled this season of the year, the postmaster declared it his intention to remain open.

ALLIGOOD TO BE BURIED AT BUNYAN, N. C.

Victim of Train-Truck Crash to Be Laid To Rest at Former Home Tomorrow

Funeral services for Clyde E. Alligood, aged 26 of Greenville, who was killed when the truck in which he was riding was struck by a Norfolk-Southern passenger train near Grimesland yesterday morning, will be conducted from the Asbury church at Bunyan, below Washington tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The final rites which will be conducted at the grave in the churchyard, will be in charge of Dr. G. R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church of Greenville.

Alligood, employed as a salesman for the Taft Furniture Company of this city, died of injuries in the Tayloe hospital at Washington at 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon after the truck which he was driving was hit by the train enroute from Raleigh to Norfolk at 11:30.

His legs and arms were broken and his body badly crushed, it was said. He also sustained severe burns about the face and hands when the gasoline spilled from the tank and ignited.

The truck and body were said to have been carried about a 1,000 feet from the crossing before the train could be brought to a stop.

The truck was almost completely demolished by the impact. Flames, which spread over the cab and body when the gasoline ignited, were extinguished before the wooden section were entirely destroyed.

Conductor R. L. Snyder was in charge of the train with Jimmy Green serving as engineer.

Alligood was rushed to the hospital at Washington for medical aid by Charles Wright, of Washington, who arrived at the scene just after the accident occurred. Alligood was conscious when admitted to the hospital but no hope was held for his recovery.

He had been employed as salesman for the Taft Furniture Company here for the past several months and was returning from Washington where he delivered a load of furniture when the accident occurred.

He had been living here for the last three years, and was formerly a representative of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

He was the son of Mrs. F. A. Alligood and the late F. A. Alligood, and was born and reared at Bunyan. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Callie Boyd, of Acre Station and three children.

A month ago—November 17—three Pitt county men met death at the same crossing and at the same time. They were David Ricks, driving a truck of the Ricks Transfer Co., of Greenville, Wilbur Bowers, of Bethel and J. T. Dail, of Greenville, CCC employes Ricks had picked up to bring to Greenville on a furlough.

State Toy-Food Matinee To Be Given Tomorrow

State Theater had everything ready today for the toy and food matinee to be given for children of the city tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of helping carry cheer to the indigent population of the community during the holiday season.

All children attending the show will be required to bring some article of food or toy, but are requested by Mr. Walker not to present perishable article of food.

The food and toys will be turned over immediately after the show to the Salvation Army for distribution among the hundreds of poor people of the section who will know little of the joys of Christmas without aid of the public.

WATER POURS INTO HOLD OF THE ONTARIO

Crippled Ship Towed Into Boston Harbor, Threatens to Sink From Tons of Water Used By Firefighters; Fireboats and Engines Take Part In Effort to Halt Blaze

Boston, Mass., Dec. 21.—(AP)—The mountains of water poured into the holds of the coastwise freighter Ontario as firemen fought to quench flames that raged uncontrolled through the ship, threatened today, to send the steamer to the bottom of Boston harbor.

The Ontario returned to port here about 4 a. m., her hatches, ventilators and port bowling smoke.

Fire broke out last night when she was two miles off Sandwich, near the Massachusetts Bay entrance to the Cape Cod Canal, southbound, with a general cargo for Baltimore and Norfolk.

Her crew of forty worked ceaselessly to hold the flames in check, and fire boats and land engines added their efforts as tugs nosed her into her dock on Northern Avenue here.

The fire which began in No. 3 hold had mushroomed and spread through the lower deck. The ship's captain, John Hauer, was overcome three times, his officers said, as he led his crew into the thick of the smoke and flames as they raced for port.

Waiting land engines and fire boats poured tons of water into the rapidly listing ship and within the hour between 6 a. m. and 7 a. m. water rose from 24 to 38 inches.

Seeking damage for $15,000 in the death of her husband, Mrs. Bettie Joyner, administratrix of the estate of the late William Joyner, filed suit in Superior Court here today against the St. Paul Marine and Fire Insurance Company.

Mrs. Joyner, it was understood, is seeking full payment on an automobile insurance protection policy she alleged was carried by her husband at the time of his death.

Mr. Joyner was killed in an automobile accident, and it was understood the company refused to make settlement for the total amount of the policy.

Answer to the suit had not been filed, but probably will be in the hands of the clerk in the next several days.

Five Escape From Roads

Kinston, N. C., Dec. 21.—Officers today continued search for five negroes who escaped from a chain-gang in Lenoir County yesterday. They were Bill Faulks, Lattimore Ballard, Becton Cooper and Jesse Foster, serving sentences for larceny and Theodore Lawson, sentenced for assault. They leaped off a truck on which they were returning to the State prison camp near here. "Sonny" Smith, negro, booted with them but tripped over one of the others and fell. A guard was firing at the escapees, so Smith was afraid to rise, preferring recapture. One of the fugitives may be wounded.

All of the men were tried here. Ballard stole a policeman's automobile. Lawson struck two white women. He was serving the longest sentence, three years.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News.

Washington By GEORGE DURNO

Raincheck: Political advisers have been arguing with President Roosevelt against the idea of a "fireside" radio talk with the country in advance of the opening of Congress.

Reasons are varied but the conclusions are identical. They are urging that the annual message to Congress be the President's next big blast.

The radio talk tentatively had been set for Sunday night. As this is written, chances are that it will be passed up.

If the President waits, as expected it will be no indication he has backed down from his purposes in any respect. He is determined that TVA's cheap power experiment in the Tennessee Valley shall be extended to every section of the country if the private companies fail to reduce their rates to fit the TVA yardstick. He wasn't fooling a bit when he made his Tupelo, Miss., speech.

Federal Housing Administrator Moffett would like to have the President go on the air and give his home-building drive a little impetus but FDR hardly could devote a whole speech to that subject.

The idea of the fireside chats has been to make them infrequent and so important that everybody will stay home to listen in. Publicity-minded New Dealers don't want to detract from their appeal. Neither do they want to take the edge off

WHO'S TO BLAME?

Too often is the pedestrian indirectly the cause of a motor vehicle accident. Studies have been made which show that in 34 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents, pedestrians were wholly or partially at fault. The driver has a man-size job to perform in "setting his own house in order," but it is certainly worth-while to give some attention to the cause of 34 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents. The tendency, of course, is to put the blame on the other fellow if possible. Let's worry more about removing the cause for accidents rather than placing the blame for them.

Dagmar's Adventures in Santa Claus Land

BY SIGRID ARNE

Then up stepped a sturdy looking gnome who works at Santa's forge.

SYNOPSIS: Dagmar, a doll, and a tin soldier have returned to Santa's toyshop after being imprisoned by the mole king. They are accompanied by their friend, an earth-worm. They all are trying to stop the moles from ruining Santa's holly trees.

CHAPTER XI

The Gnome

When Dagmar and the tin soldier returned to the toyshop everyone was so excited they all gathered round the two dolls. Of course, Santa had to hear the whole story. And the fairies who make all the dolls were so delighted over the little royal mole baby they made a special crib for him and brought him warm milk and cookies. He didn't whimper one little whimper. He seemed to enjoy himself.

Santa's eyes fairly bulged when he heard what the dolls had done, and what had ruined his beautiful holly trees where all our Christmas wreaths grow.

Mrs. Santa held Dagmar and the tin soldier on her lap, and rocked them until they weren't tired any more. And the earth-worm sat very straight on a footstool near Santa's chair.

"Well," said Santa, when he heard the whole story. "We mustn't worry the queen mole about her baby. We must send her a messenger and tell her where the baby is. And we must ask the king mole what can be done about the holly trees. But whom can we send? I won't permit any dolls down there. It is too dangerous."

Then up stepped a sturdy looking gnome who works at Santa's forge. He is the one who fits all the wheels on the top autos and trains we receive on Christmas.

"If you'll pardon me," he said, whipping off his nut-brown cap. "I'd like to go. The moles aren't bad people. I knew them long ago when I lived in the root of an oak tree. We hunted food together.

"They're only angry because the holly roots are ruining their home. Maybe we can come to some agreement."

"Fine," said Santa, "and you're right about their home."

"I'll go right down then," said the gnome.

"Hurrah for him," shouted all the dolls. And they helped him button his little brown coat and pull on his brown mittens.

He started off and in a short time he was knocking on the door of the mole kingdom, and when the door opened he saw such a sad scene. All the moles were sitting around and weeping. The place was positively damp with tears. And the king mole was all hunched over and looking very worried.

The whole scene changed when the gnome told his story. The king mole had remembered him, and listened quietly.

When the gnome finished, the king mole stood up, pulled his fur cape about him, and said very majestically: "I shall see Santa myself. Let us go right away."

So the two started right off to the toyshop. When they arrived Santa and all the dolls were sitting quietly, awaiting them.

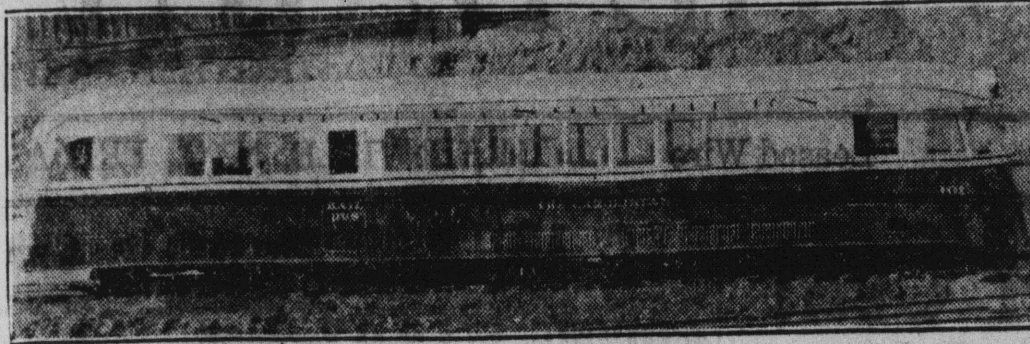

The first thing the mole king did was to dash for the doll crib where the mole baby lay happily nibbling fairy cookies. The little baby laughed and squealed to see his daddy, and the mole king looked relieved.

Norfolk-Souther Stream-Lined Bus Appears Here

Norfolk Southern Stream-Line Bus Appears Here
Above is a picture of the stream-lined rail-bus which the Norfolk Southern Railway plans to put on between Raleigh and Norfolk January 6.

The bus stopped for a short time in Greenville yesterday and will come back here in a few days for a demonstration, railroad officials said. With the bus yesterday were J. S. Cox, assistant superintendent of the railroad, and L. B. Wickersham, superintendent of motive power and an expert of the American Car and Foundry Company.

The rail bus, several of which will be put into service in the near future, is 57 feet long and seats 53 passengers. It also carries a twelve-foot mail and baggage compartment. It is built entirely of Cot-Ten steel and aluminum alloy, and is capable of a speed of 65 miles per hour. Some idea of the economic advantage of this type of equipment is gained in comparison of its weight with a steam coach of similar capacity. This car, with its own propulsion, weighs complete 38,000 pounds, while a steam coach without power will average 80,000 pounds.

In these cars the most luxurious seating equipment is employed. Full leather semi-circular, air-cushioned individual bus seats are used, the first railroad cars to employ the same.

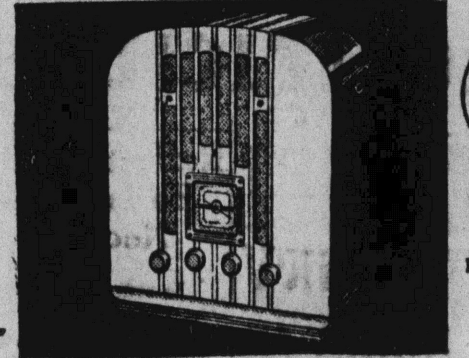

The cars are colored in olive green up to the window rails and cream from there to the roof molding. The roof is silvered with aluminum finish and the moulding is black, the lettering being in gold. The color scheme, together with the rakish stream-lined design from the rear, constitutes a striking and distinctive appeal seen for the first time in this type of rail equipment.

PITT SCHOOLS CLOSE TODAY

Christmas Exercises Held in all Schools Prior to Dismissal at 2 o'Clock

Pitt county schools closed today for celebration of the Christmas season and are scheduled to reopen for work January 3. It was stated by Donald Conley, director of public education.

Mr. Conley said Yuletide exercises were held in all the schools today with parents and members of the Parent-Teachers associations being invited to participate.

No mass exercises were held in any of the schools, but each room conducted its own program. The celebrations continued until 2 o'clock when schools were dismissed.

Mr. Conley said thousands of patrons were on hand in all sections of the county to help the teachers and children celebrate the coming of Old Saint Nick and described the exercises as the best in years.

Greenville school's closed Wednesday at noon after a program of carols in connection with the holiday season. The system will resume activity January 1.

The college closed the first of the week and the thousand or more students in addition to numbers of teachers went to other parts of the country to spend the holidays with relatives and friends.

School heads apparently were satisfied with the outcome of the Fall term and were looking forward with much interest to resumption of work the first of the year.

Letters To Santa Claus.
Dear Santa Claus:
Please bring me a dress, a coat, a pair of bedroom slippers, skates, and a doll. Bring me some candy, fruit and nuts. Please be good to me this time, and Santa don't forget the poor children.

Dear Santa Claus:
I am going to tell you what I want Christmas. I want a suit with knickers. I want a gun that will shoot shots. I want an airplane that you can sit in. And I want some freerackers too. I want you to be sure and bring it all. I have been sick with a cold. Mother would not let me go up there to see you last day. She went up there and told you to come here to see us. She just let me go to play with my friend this morning. I have been a good boy. That's all I know to write you. Best wishes for a merry Christmas. I am nine years old.

Dudley Homeplace To Be Offered At Auction Dec. 31

The Dudley homeplace will be offered for sale at auction Monday, December 31, it was announced today by Charles Cobb, local representative of the J. W. Ferrell Company, selling agents of Petersburg, Va., and Greenville.

The piece of property is situated on the Greenville-Bethel highway, contains seventy acres, and has been subdivided into lots and small tracts. There are a number of buildings on the property and cleared acreage sufficient for several complete farming units.

In addition to the farm tracts, the company will offer business, residential and manufacturing sites on the paved highway.

Considerable advertising matter in connection with the auction has been distributed throughout the community, and Cobb said he expected a large crowd to be on hand.

A steamer recently rescued three German canoeists who had been cast ashore on one of the Andaman Islands in the Bay of Bengal without guns, but with a kerosene can which they beat continuously to scare away tigers.

Stone from foreign nations, the various States, cities, fraternities, and other organizations were used to line the interior walls of the Washington Monument when it was constructed.

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES SYNOPSIS: Jerry Mordant just has returned to his flat from getting his cutter ready for a sail, to find the apartment full of friends.

Chapter 32 MOLLY'S STORY

"BY the way," said Jerry as he started out of the room, "what shall we do with Jimmy Fox?" "If you've no objection," I said, "I vote that we take him into the syndicate. He'll certainly get the sack from the hotel and we can't let him down after the way he behaved last night."

"I should think not," was the answer. "Besides, he'll be useful on the Seagull. He can wash up and look after George."

Leaving me to my ablutions, Jerry took himself off, and somewhat hampered by my damaged knuckles, I proceeded to make a hasty toilet. I was in the act of brushing my hair when the gong sounded, and as I came out into the hall, Molly emerged from the opposite bedroom. Swathed in a dressing-gown at least three sizes too large for her, she looked comically pretty.

"Good morning, Nick," she said cheerfully. "I hope you had a good night?" "Slept like a top," I replied. "And you?"

"She made a little grimace. 'The headache's gone, but I've still got a funny taste in my mouth.' 'Breakfast will cure that,' I assured her. 'How's the cheek?' 'It feels rather stiff and sore.' She tilted up her face. 'Am I a dreadful sight?'"

"I inspected her carefully. 'You look lovely,' I said. 'Like an angel on her way to the bathroom.' 'Angels don't have baths,' she objected. 'They—oh, here's Jerry!'"

"Hello, Molly!" He had come out of the study, followed by Jimmy, who in his crumpled livery, and with his tousled hair, still seemed to be only half awake. "This is a nice sort of trick to play on a chap!" he continued. "Getting yourself drugged and kidnapped when I wasn't there to rescue you."

"Sorry, Jerry." She dropped him a penitent curtsy. "It was horribly careless of me, wasn't it? If it hadn't been for Nick and Jimmy..." she stopped. "Oh, that reminds me—I haven't thanked you yet, Jimmy."

"She crossed over to where he was standing and bending down, kissed him on the cheek. 'I think you're the bravest boy I ever met, and I really am most frightfully grateful.' 'That's all right, miss,' Jimmy, who had turned a rich crimson, shifted awkwardly from one foot to the other. 'I—didn't do nothing. It was Mr. Trench who sloshed 'im—not me, miss.' We all laughed.

pamphlet on the silver problem which is now being given wide circulation. Another—more open—is Father Coughlin the radio priest.

Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, spokesman for the Committee for the Nation and generally accepted as leader of the inflation bloc, had a huddle with Father Coughlin recently. Then both of them called on Ford.

In addition to discussion of a program for the coming Congress it is understood the three men also talked over ways and means of getting definite leadership for the silver bloc—with Thomas most favorably mentioned for the job.

Three other Senators aspire to the post. They are Pittman of Nevada, Wheeler of Montana, and McCarran of Nevada. Each of these have personal axes to grind. Ford and Coughlin may combine to put Thomas in the saddle by pulling important wires which they happen to control.

Secure: December 31 is the deadline under last session's act revising the air mail laws, for aviation operating companies and holding corporations to unscramble themselves. TWA, Eastern Air, Western Air and United Airlines already have done so.

Pan American, which connects the United States with South and Central America and the West Indies is worried not a bit. Approximately 27 per cent of its stock is held by Aviation Corporation, North American Aviation, National Aviation and United Aircraft, but the stock will remain with those holding companies.

As you probably guessed, there is a loophole in the law. The term "air mail" is defined as meaning postage at the rate of 6 cents an ounce or fraction thereof. Pan American's minimum rate is 10 cents and runs up to 60 cents.

The Post office department got into plenty of hot water cancelling domestic air mail contracts but it didn't make the mistake of upsetting Pan American's foreign ventures. German, Dutch and French competition was waiting to gobble the business up and the War and Navy Departments would have been very unhappy.

New York By JAMES McMILLIN Test: Few public officials in recent years have been on as unhappy a spot as that now occupied by Milo Maltbie—Chairman of the New York Public Service Commission.

Before New York City enacted its new taxes on sales and utility receipts Mr. Maltbie rashly announced that such levies would make increases in utility rates inevitable. Now that the taxes are law Consolidated Gas—which supplies the city with most of its gas and electricity—has taken him at his word and applied for new rates sufficiently high to make sure it's the consumer who will pay and pay and pay.

You see where that leaves Mr. Maltbie. If he turns down the Con Gas application he has to eat his own words—always a painful process and unusually so under pressure. If he grants it he will be the perfect target for the concentrated batteries of rate revisionists in the federal, state and city governments. His status in the Commission is such that he can't pass the buck to his fellow members.

What annoys utility critics most is the Con Gas demand that the higher rates should be applicable immediately pending a test in court. They call that sublime gall. When the company protests a rate reduction the consumer gets no breaks until after the courts have ruled.

The echoes of this issue will be heard far beyond New York State. Consolidated Gas is the first important utility to switch from passive resistance to rate reductions to an aggressive counter-attack. In doing so it is fulfilling the suppressed desires of the whole power industry. The worn has turned publicly and future trends of national power policies hinge on whether the turn is successful. The strategy of making the contest appear purely a city affair won't work.

Mr. Maltbie's fate has national significance too. Insiders point out what a sweet chance it is for the federal government to take the play away from State commissioners which are not sufficiently in sympathy with New Deal aims—or which lack legal authority to enforce lower rates. This local scrap may easily lead to a rapid extension of federal utility supervision.

The test is vital from both angles. Those who like fireworks will rejoice in the show.

Retreat: Meanwhile utility leaders hostile to the New Deal have begun the distasteful trek to Campessa—meaning the White House. Several of them—including the fiery Tom Carter who heads the Edison Institute—have made the pilgrimage in the past two weeks. As a result there's new hope for peace between FDR and the power companies—on the President's terms. Those who should know say he has laid down two unequivocal conditions as the prelude to an understanding. One is that the Edison Institute must quit sniping at the Tennessee Valley Authority and especially must abandon its plans to upset the power phases of the New Deal in the courts. The other is that the utilities themselves must do something about lower rates—and if this squeezes the stockholders of overcapitalized companies it's just too bad.

The threat of government competition has proved a mighty potent weapon. The Edison Institute isn't saying anything yet. But the informed are betting that—like the King of France—having marched gallantly up the hill it will now turn around and march right down again. They also believe this retreating will be the better part of to be responsible for an unsigned valor.

Just two more shopping days before Christmas.

Don't forget that your own Christmas will be a happier one if you will lend your aid to making somebody else happy. There are many needy families in our community who will have little or nothing for Christmas unless someone else provides it.

A GOOD WAY TO SPEND RELIEF MONEY

Another victim was added yesterday to the large list of those persons who have lost their lives at the highway-railroad crossing just below Grimesland emphasizing the need of eliminating this and other dangerous crossings.

It has been suggested to the federal administration that the federal money to be spent during the coming year go for the elimination of railroad crossings and certainly such a suggestion should have careful consideration. Neither the states nor the railroads are in financial position at this time to eliminate the grade crossings but if this work is done through federal expenditures in the end both the people of the states and the railroads will pay for same in the way of federal taxes.

There are at this time in this country some 237,000 grade crossings of which only 31,000 are specially protected. If the federal government would accept crossing elimination as a part of its relief program, thousands of jobs would be created, those industries that manufacture the necessary materials for such work would be stimulated and best of all travel would be made safer for the people in the sections where the crossings are eliminated saving thousands of lives annually.

Howl: Tariff trade agreements are under negotiation with Switzerland and the Netherlands, including Netherlands East and West Indies. Concessions in imports of fuel oil and gasoline are looked for in the case of Netherlands West Indies. Practically all tariff agreements aim to increase American farm exports while granting concessions on imports of manufactured products. Secretary Wallace seems to be as potent as Secretary Hull in framing new agreements.

Protected manufacturers are beginning to take notice. An official of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce says: "Protected industries are lying back after filing protests against tariff cuts affecting them. The howl will come when an agreement is made with some important manufacturing nation like Belgium. The deal with Belgium is about to go through."

Division: Silverites and inflationists are planning to take the administration around a few curves when Congress meets—unless the White House beats them to the punch and does some vountary inflating in the few days remaining. A good scrap is in prospect because New Deal financial geniuses have just about decided there is no immediate need for additional currency tinkering. The international situation is such we would not benefit, they report, and the people are in a spending mood which makes it easy to run up the public debt to permit more pump-priming. Mr. Roosevelt's big danger is that the inflationists might get together on a common program. The dozen different ideas now being banded about by a dozen different factions create fine insurance. Union: Hidden hands are maneuvering to consolidate the inflationary forces. One of them, believe it or not, is Henry Ford. The silver ring is said on reputable authority

One Conflict In Carolina - Duke Grid Schedules

Chapel Hill, Dec. 20—Sustained efforts by Carolina and Duke athletic officials to eliminate conflicts in football dates have born their fruit. The 1935 schedules of the neighboring institutions, made public this morning, show only one conflict.

This will be on Carolina's opening six, September 29, when the Tar Heels will entertain Wake Forest while the Blue Devils are playing host to South Carolina. The two athletic directors, R. A. Fetzner of Carolina and Wallace Wade of Duke, were successful in eliminating two other conflicts. Carolina gave up its proposed home game with Maryland to allow Duke a clear date for its clash with Clemson October 12. This move gave Maryland an opportunity to play to the Baltimore division of the University. Carolina is bringing Davidson to Chapel Hill instead of Duke on the other hand changed its game with Auburn to Friday to avoid a conflict with the Georgia Tech-Carolina game on October 26.

Two new opponents, Maryland and V. M. I., appear on Carolina's 1935 card. They replace Georgia and Kentucky. This move gives Carolina five instead of three Southern Conference games. It is taken by folks here to mean that the Tar Heels will bid for honors, within their own ranks before looking abroad for inter-sectional recognition. The complete card, which was held up with Carolina and Duke authorities pushed their efforts to eliminate conflicts, is as follows: Sept. 29—Wake Forest here. Oct. 6—Tennessee here. Oct. 12—Maryland at Baltimore.

Sundown Stories

Presented by MARY GRAHAM BONNER. But just as Top Notch had cried for help he moved in such a way that he was no longer caught in the doll's house. He hurried out and walked with great dignity through Santa's work shop.

In a moment or so Willy Nilly came running in. "Did you call for help, Top Notch?" asked Willy Nilly. Top Notch paid no attention to the question. "Very handsome toys here, eh, Willy Nilly?" he asked. "I've been admiring them. Such a great, great many, too. Well, I suppose there must be a great many toys as there are a great many children, cock-a-doodle-do."

From the way in which Willy Nilly looked at him Top Notch felt that Willy Nilly knew that something had happened. So Top Notch went on talking in his cackling voice: "For the rooster life of me I must say I admire Santa's work."

"I hear Santa now!" exclaimed Willy Nilly. They rushed outside to greet him, and now all the Puddle Muddlers came around to help Santa as he tied up presents, as he made bundles of small toys and piled oranges high.

As Santa worked he kept talking: "Elaine said she wanted a doll with blue eyes and golden hair, and a little ring for herself."

"Betty said she wanted a doll's bed and a toy bear."

"Billy said he wanted a pair of skates and a hockey stick."

"Peter wrote me that he wanted a pair of skis. Well, they're all here. It seems as though I'd never get through in time, but I know I will. Santa must never be late!"

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOLD

In professional golf, it seems that money is the root of the latest evil. Money matters have commanded almost as much space in the news as the actual golf competition.

The way the pros have been juggling the matter of prize money and its distribution is in no way going to help to build up or make rich golf tournaments more popular. On the contrary, instead of promising real competition among the best pro golfers there is the tendency to make these meetings mere exhibitions.

Witness the way the pros have established their monetary policy. A few years ago Gene Sarazen and Johnny Farrell agreed to pool their winnings for a certain period, dividing the profits. That was the beginning.

The little band of American pro stars who invaded Australia this fall decided to share the winnings. The result was that when Leo Diegal won the rich Melbourne Centenary pro championship, he pocketed only the same share he would have had he finished well down the list provided, of course, one of his group won the event.

It may be the accepted practice among pro golfers, but it seems hardly the proper basis for competitive sports and any arrangement that might cast even the slightest doubt on the possibility of any entrant not trying his utmost to win is not a healthy one. Each and every man should be in there doing his best without the slightest hint of agreements or arrangements.

Gentleman's Game

To go on to the recently contested Miami Biltmore Open. The donor of the rich prize chose to add an extra $2,500 to the original $10,000 offered in the past and to split the field into two divisions—the first section to be comprised of these big names in the pro ranks while the second group to be made up of golfers who devoted most of their time to instructing and paid little attention to tournament prize play.

It seemed like a good enough plan and promised double interest in the tournament. The Bombers, as the first division was named, did not take kindly to this arrangement. And particularly did they question the way the prizes in their own group were to be divided. It was one thing for someone to put up the money—that was a grand idea, but when that party took the liberty of trying to say how the money was to be handed out—that was something else again. It was a bit more than the club swingers could countenance.

So they called a meeting and scaled the prizes to their own liking. Everything might have gone along smoothly had not one enterprising sports writer voiced the desire to publish the decision of the meeting. That brought forth a storm of protest. It was no one's business how they decided the split, some argued. The argument became so heated that "Wild Bill" Melhorn became wilder than ever and took a few swings at the enterprising writer. The results of the meeting were published along with all that took place and the reaction was hardly favorable to the pro cause.

Just a Show!

If the boys are smart enough to look ahead a bit they cannot help but see what this is going to do to their very pleasant source of income. Golf tournaments are certain to become nothing more than exhibitions, and as much as the paying public wants to see highly advertised stars in action, they do not care for the very sound of the word exhibition. It's competition they want.

The present trend can lead them into the condition which now exists in pro tennis. Pro tennis players tour the country, teaming up night after night in what amounts to nothing more than exhibitions, with the result that their act becomes tiresome after one swing around the circuit, and new big names must be added to stimulate interest. Such a scheme of things may make profits for a limited time, but eventually will kill the goose which lays the golden egg.

The U. S. Government printing office is by far the largest book and job printing plant in the world.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—The man who really sits under the gun at the Senate's investigation of the munitions industry is a soft-spoken, scholarly young man who formed his hatred for war at first hand.

His name is Stephen Raushenbush, chief investigator for the committee, and he provided the seven Senators on the committee with the material which they fire at the witnesses.

Raushenbush, tall, with closely-cropped black mustache and black bushy hair, rarely is mentioned in the voluminous reports of the investigation in the newspapers. Yet he is one of the most conspicuous figures at the inquiry.

He puffs incessantly at a large black briar pipe. Occasionally he will take a hand in the questioning of a witness himself. When he does it is with directness and telling effect. He has had open clashes with witnesses.

Raushenbush hardly had been graduated with honors at Amherst College in 1917 (he wears a Phi Beta Kappa key) when he enlisted in the army ambulance corps attached to the French armies. He was among the first 10,000 volunteers to reach France.

More Scholarly Pursuits His experience since the war has been varied. In 1920 he took a fling at the consular service in Maracabo, Venezuela, but soon gave that up to do exploration work for an American oil company in the Cordilleras.

An Open Letter to the Motoring Public

The Petroleum Administrative Board—after the receipt of complaints on the part of certain of our competitors and after receiving the recommendation of the Planning and Coordination Committee—has issued an ultimatum.

It has demanded that we discontinue our practice of offering our new product... Aerotype ESSO... under a cash refund guarantee.

The Petroleum Administrative Board has taken the position... the opinion of legal counsel to the contrary notwithstanding... that the cash refund feature of our guarantee constitutes a violation of Rules 3 and 17 of Article 5 of the Petroleum Code.

We do not propose to argue the validity of the Petroleum Administrative Board's claim. The issue involved does not warrant it.

We believe that the public will understand our position in not taking issue with the Petroleum Administrative Board... despite our feeling that there is no violation of the Code in our cash refund offer.

WHY WE MADE THE CASH REFUND OFFER

As a matter of company policy, we have been definitely opposed to the common practice of making unsupported claims regarding product.

At the same time we were convinced of the superiority of Aerotype ESSO over any other motor car fuel marketed today.

Therefore, we felt that through the medium of our cash refund guarantee we could offer this new product to the public without making extravagant claims concerning its merits by giving all motorists an opportunity to determine for themselves its superiorities.

We made no reservations. We left it entirely to the public to pass judgment upon the product after giving it a thorough and impartial trial.

HALF A MILLION BOUGHT... ONLY 36 ASKED FOR REFUNDS

It is significant to note that during the first 10 days following the introduction of Aerotype ESSO, some 500,000 motorists purchased approximately $1,000,000 worth of this new premium motor fuel.

Of these half million purchasers, only 36 have asked for a refund.

And the total sum refunded amounted to $8.84!

We do not feel that this insignificant amount creates an issue of sufficient consequence to warrant a controversy with the Petroleum Administrative Board.

On the other hand, we believe that public acceptance of Aerotype ESSO and the ability of this fuel to make good on every score have been established beyond every reasonable doubt, as evidenced by the fact that less than a hundredth of 1% of the users requested a refund.

Hence, [the guarantee of cash refund is discontinued as of Friday, December 21st, 1934!]

We want to take this opportunity to thank the thousands of motorists who have purchased Aerotype ESSO to date for the fair and impartial judgment which they have passed upon it.

New York, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, unchanged to one point higher with steeper Liverpool cables offset by liquidation.

The chief trading feature was the evening up of January which was really in the form of switching to later deliveries.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 21.—(AP)—The stock market showed some signs of improvement today, although moderate irregularity persisted in scattered share groups that have recently been under pressure.

Selling in a few of the utilities appeared to have eased up with indications that these depressed issues had discounted much of the adverse news pertaining to them.

Several industrials and specialties moved up. Trading was notably lacking and the volume of transactions were considerable under those of yesterday.

Most of the grains were inclined to ease. Bonds were slightly mixed in quiet dealings. Foreign exchanges generally revealed only minor variations. Prices stiffened in the late trading.

Transfers were 1,330,000 shares.

To Denounce Washington Treaty. Paris, Dec. 21.—(AP)—Francis Pietri, minister of the navy, told the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies today that France will soon denounce the Washington naval treaty of 1922 but is willing to discuss further the question of international naval limitations.

"We agreed," said the cabinet minister, "in declaring publicly that France consents the Washington treaty is ended in 1936 but that she is always ready for limitations of armaments."

The committee met jointly to hear Pietri's statement.

The minister told them "The treaty of Washington is intolerable for France."

Discuss France's Position. London, Dec. 21.—(AP)—British and American authorities were disagreeably surprised today by reports from Paris that France intended to denounce the Washington treaty of 1922.

Both Britain and the United States had been given assurance sometime ago that France would take no such action regardless of Japan's move.

Tobacco Act Wins Favor.

Consider Tar Development

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—(AP)—Water projects that would cost in excess of $92,000,000 are listed for North Carolina in the summary of potential navigation, flood control and river development prepared for army engineers for submission to Congress by Secretary Dern. It was emphasized the projects were not necessarily recommended by army engineers, but were only studied and statements made for the probable cost and returns.

Fourth North Carolina river basins, the Neuse, Tar, Yadkin and Cape Fear, were listed for co-ordinated development in power and flood control.

Two projects in that State in the Roanoke River basin also were listed. Army engineers estimated the cost of the development of the Neuse basin would be $15,184,034 which would be $2,249,093 for land. The summary of the Neuse projects envisioned an eight foot canal from New Bern to Hatteras to cost $3,690,800.

Power developments in the Neuse basin would cost $9,250,141, with an additional $2,143,094 needed to be spent for land and damages. The army engineers envisioned a ten foot canal on Tar river from Washington to Tarboro with an intermediate power development to produce 9,000 kilowatts of current. The total cost of such a development was estimated at $10,596,936 with land costing $1,330,000.

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, D. C.—When Senator Norris of Nebraska, saw his "lame duck" amendment become a part of the Constitution, he dismissed the subject promptly and turned to other things.

He had succeeded in having Congress meet within 41 days after a general election—for the first time in history.

Apparently, however, Senator Norris' job is not yet completed. At least that's what one of the foremost constitutional lawyers in Congress thinks.

He is Representative Sumners, of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. And Sumners has prepared a bill for introduction in the coming Congress to provide it.

Elections in October? It's all very complicated—Sumner's proof. For example, his bill reads like this:

"A bill to change the time of the appointment of presidential electors: That Section 131 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. C., title 3, sec 1) is amended to read as follows: Section 131. The electors of President and Vice-President shall be appointed, in each State, on the Tuesday after the first Monday in October, in every fourth year succeeding every election... etc., et al."

All of which merely means that Sumners is attempting to change the date of general elections from November to October.

He has worked out an elaborate chart—a sort of movable calendar—starting with the next Presidential election year and going as far into the future as 1972-73.

This chart—scaled almost to the hour—traces over a period of 36 years the time that Presidential electors will be appointed, to the number of days between their appointment and meeting to the number of days between their meeting and the dispatching of a messenger to Congress, to the number of days from that time the messenger arrives in Washington and to the hour that Congress canvasses the election returns and formally notifies the country who is the next President and Vice-President.
