Fifteen Killed In Train Wreck At Hamilton Ont

FAST TRAIN CRASHES INTO YULE SPECIAL

More Than Score Also Injured As Detroit to Toronto Express Collides With Excursion Carrying Holiday Crowd; Five Women Among Mangled Victims; Railway Officials Begin Investigation

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The splintered wreckage of a Christmas excursion train was searched today for dead victims as officials of the Canadian National railway opened an investigation of a collision last night which took at least 15 lives.

More than a score of persons were injured, some critically, when the Detroit to Toronto express tore into the rear of the stationary excursion train on a siding at Dundas, 7 miles from Hamilton.

Five women were among the mangled victims of the disaster whose bodies have been recovered but as yet are unidentified. Additional deaths were feared.

Officials of the railway said that the accident was caused by an open switch and promised an immediate investigation.

Laden with merry holiday travelers, the excursion train which had been switched onto a siding because of a "hot box," was crashed and many passengers, screaming in agony, were pinned for hours beneath the wreckage.

The alertness and quick thinking of Engineer Burrell of the speeding train bound for Detroit, No. 16, was credited by officials with having averted even a greater tragedy.

Seeing no hope of preventing the locomotive from piling into the rear of the train, Burrell ordered it cut loose from the coaches behind and prevented them from telescoping.

In contrast to the terrific crash which occurred when the giant engine crashed into the wooden coaches there was only a slight jolt when the express cars rolled up to the wreckage.

Hailed as a hero of the disaster was W. C. Price, of Toronto. Although badly injured, Price, a passenger removed six persons from the splintered coaches before collapsing.

Special trains, buses and ambulances were pressed into service to bring dead and injured to Hamilton.

GIVES BOND TO APPEAR AT HOMICIDE HEARING

Charlotte, Dec. 26.—Jeff Cooper, arrested by city police early Sunday morning in connection with the fatal shooting of William W. Roland, 32, at the latter's cafe at Pegram Street and Worthington Avenue, has been released on bond of $3,000. His brother, Jack Cooper, is being held without bond.

A hearing will be set later. The shooting occurred about 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning on the sidewalk in front of Roland's cafe. A quarrel between Roland and Jack Cooper developed, it was said, and they scuffled on the sidewalk. Jeff Cooper is said to have followed the pistol and during the scuffle Roland's pistol was discharged. The bullet entered Roland's back and came out near his thigh, severing an artery. It was said.

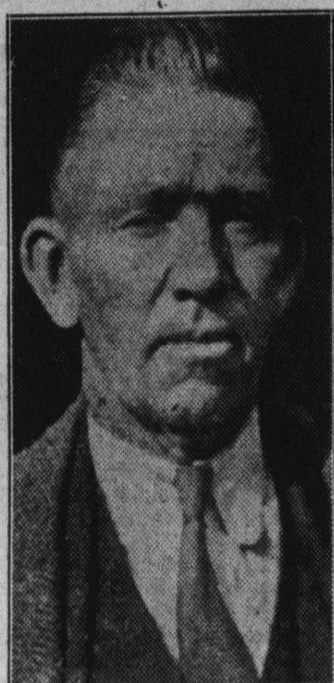

HOLD FUNERAL FOR VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Hazelwood, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Funeral services were held yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Arrington, near here, for Walter Brooks, 36, who Monday morning was instantly killed by an Asheville-bound freight train here.

The engineer of the train said he saw Brooks sitting on a tie on the right-of-way and that he blew the whistle several times. As Brooks made no attempt to move the engineer said he applied the brakes but because of the grade, was unable to stop the train until after it had struck the man.

Brooks' neck was broken and his skull fractured by the impact. The accident was at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

MERCHANTS REPORT BIG TRADE HERE

Phenomenal Business Marked Rush of Christmas Shoppers In Greenville

Greenville merchants turned their attention today to inventoring for the New Year after enjoying what was described as the "best Christmas business" in years, if not in history.

Of course, everybody didn't sell out, but the majority disposed of the bulk of the Yuletide gifts, trade Monday probably establishing a new record for that period.

Although gift shopping started several weeks ago, it did not hit its stride until the first of last week when St. Nick rode into the city on two mules instead of his reindeers, distributed gifts along the streets, and then walked up and down the streets from day to day listening to the whispers of little children, telling him what they wanted for Christmas.

Many merchants probably had considerable goods left on their counters, but all of them experienced a remarkable reduction in volume, especially the five and ten cent stores which were crowded from morning until night.

Monday—the zero hour—found thousands of people on hand to make a last minute rush for things they neglected buying the first of the shopping season. Stores were crowded to overflowing all day and until late at night. Country people jostled townspeople and city residents bumped against rural residents all smiling and joking, hoping to get the best of the gifts left on the counters.

The millions of dollars cut loose by the tobacco market helped provide the most widespread giving in years and hardly anybody went through the season without receiving some show of liberality from others. Even the most indigent of the countryside came in for expressions of generosity as various charitable organizations bent every effort to see that they did not go giftless.

Many lines of Christmas gifts were sold out completely before the rush actually hit its stride. Christmas greeting cards especially were at a premium Monday, it being reported that every store in the city sold out in spite of phenomenally large supplies ranging in price from one to ten cents apiece.

It was the kind of trading merchants have been looking for over a period of many years, and they were busy today checking up to see how much stock they had left on hand to carry over into the new year.

The highway patrol reported a few minor accidents on the roads leading to the city, but none were serious enough to send anybody to the hospital.

Other towns of the county also reported a quiet but noisy Christmas, the noise resulting from the unprecedented shooting of pyrotechnics Christmas Eve night and yesterday.

Everybody—from the criminal element to the law-abiding—observed the day by looking over the things Kris Kringle brought them and partaking of the most generous meals the thousands of families of the county have seen in many a day, certainly since the lean days of the depression when everybody found it necessary to be parsimonious whether they liked it or not.

Former Legislator Dies.

Dover, Del., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Cornelius E. Hope, former member of the legislature and Dover's city council, died yesterday. He was 63. Hope also served at one time as city treasurer, as levy court commissioner of Kent county, and as assistant to former State Auditor Edward Baker.

Washington

By GEORGE DURNO Sponsors: Press of official business kept President Roosevelt from personally receiving O. B. Ames the other day when the chairman of the Texas Company called to present big business's recovery program as worked out at the White Sulphur Springs conference.

Ames made it clear he understood. He realized that the President's schedule was literally jammed with conferences with New Dealers who had ideas concerning the impending report to Congress. His own business appointments precluded remaining in Washington an additional 25 hours so he turned the White Sulphur formula over to Secretary Marvin McIntyre.

Sideline gained more than suspicion that the White House had been following disclosures before the Senate munitions inquiry and developments at White Sulphur and putting two and two together.

FEW ARRESTS ON YULETIDE

County and City Officers Report Violence At Minimum During Christmas

While other parts of the county were experiencing violence and death, Greenville and Pitt county passed through Christmas with a small number of arrests and no deaths, records from the various law enforcement agencies indicated today.

Police Chief George Clark said this morning that while his men were kept busy confining the shooting of fireworks to back lots, they chalked up only one arrest—that a colored man charged with assault upon another member of his race.

That prisoner was the only one to spend Christmas in the city jail, probably the first time the records of city law enforcement showed that the jail has not been comfortably filled with violators of the various phases of law.

In fact the paucity of prisoners caused the police head to call off the annual Christmas dinner which in past years brightened the occasion for the law-breakers.

The sheriff's office also reported arrests at a minimum with prisoners in the county jail being treated to "extras" as Old Saint Nick made his annual rounds of the community.

The highway patrol reported a few minor accidents on the roads leading to the city, but none were serious enough to send anybody to the hospital.

Other towns of the county also reported a quiet but noisy Christmas, the noise resulting from the unprecedented shooting of pyrotechnics Christmas Eve night and yesterday.

Everybody—from the criminal element to the law-abiding—observed the day by looking over the things Kris Kringle brought them and partaking of the most generous meals the thousands of families of the county have seen in many a day, certainly since the lean days of the depression when everybody found it necessary to be parsimonious whether they liked it or not.

Former Secretary of State Succumbs to Heart Attack at Statesville

Statesville, Dec. 26.—(AP)—James A. Hartness, 71, former Secretary of State, died early today at a sanatorium here following a heart attack.

The widow of the former state official, who was a practicing attorney here in recent years, was at his bedside.

Yesterday just before noon Hartness suffered the sudden heart attack and was taken to Long Sanatorium where death came last midnight. He had been in good health.

His term of Secretary of State of North Carolina began February, 1928, when Governor McLean named him to the state position to succeed the late W. N. Everett. He was elected clerk of Iredeed county Superior court in 1898 and every four years was re-elected to the office until he received Governor McLean's appointment.

Funeral services will be held at 3:30 p. m., Thursday here at the First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. C. E. Rayneal will conduct them.

FEDERAL CONTROL OF POWER LINES URGED UPON PRESIDENT

EXTEND TIME FOR 'SAFETY' SLOGANS HERE

Mayor Flanagan Announces Change of Date in Local Highway Movement

Mayor R. C. Flanagan, who is directing the highway safety campaign, started in this community several days ago, announced today the time limit for the filling of slogans had been changed from January 1 to January 5.

The change of date, the official said this morning, resulted from general holiday activities and the inability of the public to give as much time as it should to the important matter.

He said judges would be asked to meet January 7 to go over the slogans and select the winner. The sum of $100 will be awarded to the winner of the contest.

In announcing the slogan contest several days ago, Mr. Flanagan declared that everybody was eligible and expressed the hope that all citizens interested in the movement to reduce the highway death toll would take an active part.

Other surrounding cities and communities will be asked to join the drive to make the public "traffic conscious" and in that way cut the heavy loss of life reported from various sections of the state each month.

As a means of bringing the matter more fully before the public, the mayor said he would request all ministers to announce the safety drive from their pulpits next Sunday morning in the various sections of the state each of Sunday school superintendents.

Up to this morning, Mr. Flanagan said, only three slogans had been received at his office. He ascribed this to holiday activities which have taken the public mind off the safety movement, and immediately decided to extend the filing period several days so that everybody might have an opportunity of participating.

J. A. HARTNESS DIES SUDDENLY

Former Secretary of State Succumbs to Heart Attack at Statesville

Statesville, Dec. 26.—(AP)—James A. Hartness, 71, former Secretary of State, died early today at a sanatorium here following a heart attack.

The widow of the former state official, who was a practicing attorney here in recent years, was at his bedside.

Three Killed In Auto Accidents Christmas Day

Charlotte, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Three deaths were counted today as North Carolinians looked back on what was generally reported as the quietest and sanest Christmas celebration in years.

Osby Howard, 26, Cedar Fork farmer, was killed near Morrisville when the automobile in which he was riding overturned. Edward Brantley, 28-year-old farmer was killed when he was hit by an automobile near Wilson. Luther Waiser, of Lexington, furniture worker was fatally injured when his car overturned near Lexington.

Greenville Has Noisy Yuletide; Much Giving

Greenville had a noisy time Christmas from the standpoint of pyrotechnics but violence and death apparently were at a standstill and the day passed off with only a few minor arrests.

The shooting of fireworks Monday and Tuesday night was by far the most extensive and general probably in the history of the city and densens in all sections of town found it difficult to soar away on the wings of Morpheus until the early morning hours.

Police had a rather lively time confining this form of celebration to back lots, as ordered by the Board of Aldermen the first of the month, but they did so as a general thing, and only a few celebrants were bold enough to toss the explosives into the streets.

The sale of fireworks probably was the greatest on record, especially in view of the fact that there were more places selling them and the information that most of them sold out, or didn't lack much doing so.

The majority of the citizenship contented themselves with staying at home and enjoying festivities with the remainder of the family but some others went to other parts of the country to spend the holidays. Christmas dinners were the best in years, tables being loaded with turkey, cranberry sauce and other "fixins" and Santa Clause was liberally as a whole to the entire community.

Children found their stockings groaning under the weight of things left by Kris Kringle, and the grown-ups were remembered in a way that brought joy to most hearts.

The Salvation Army and other charitable organizations cared for the needs of the poor. A Christmas tree was given at the Universalist church Monday afternoon an scores of children who would have known little of the joy of the Yule season found themselves provided with toys and things to eat. Many of the toys came from the fire department where firemen had been busy for several days mending toys for the occasion.

Salvation Army workers also went from one part of the city to another to help needy people. Many of the program of Christmas music started Sunday night and will be continued probably to the first of the year.

Late News Flashes

Orders Acquittal Of One Man. Smithfield, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Judge Frank Daniels, presiding over the trial of nine persons charged with kidnaping three Johnston county girls, today ordered the acquittal of Armond Keen, one defendant, after the state completed its case and the defense decided to offer no testimony.

Judge Daniels overruled a motion of defense counsel for a directed acquittal for Arthur Krane of New York, another defendant, who is charged with the kidnaping of Camelia Price. The jurist also denied motion for a non-suit for the other defendants, Alex Beasley, Clinton Beasley, Nelle Beasley, Lila Beasley, Pearl Beasley, Margaret Lee Keen and Mrs. Sarah Beasley Krane.

John Merra, New York attorney, representing Krane, lodged the motion on his behalf while E. J. Welland of the Johnston County Bar, sought a non-suit for the other eight.

The nine are charged with abducting Josephine Smith, 14, Azolia Barber, 15, and Camelia Price, 17, and forcing them to enter a life of immorality in a New York apartment allegedly operated by the Kranes.

Indictments charging violation of the white slavery laws are pending in New York against the Kranes and Clinton Beasley.

The state closed its case suddenly this morning after Judge Daniels refused to allow J. E. Ward of the Johnston county jail to testify as to a letter Krane asked him to mail while the man was held in jail here. The defense had called more than 60 witnesses but decided not to offer any evidence.

Merra started argument to the jury at 11:30 and was still speaking early this afternoon.

It was not expected the case would reach the jury before tomorrow night.

Two Drowned At New Bern. New Bern, Dec. 26.—(AP)—James R. Bell, 24, of Bridgeton, and Andrew W. Overman, 21, of the Marine Corps, at home for Christmas vacation were drowned in Neuse river at 11:15 last night when their car, driven by Overman, crashed.

TECHNICIANS REPORT AFTER RECENT STUDY

Billion Dollar Twenty Year Program of Public Works in the Valley Sought; Recommend Building Of Dams For Flood And Navigation to Be Used For Power As Well; Government Control Said To Be Fundamental.

Washington, Dec. 26.—(AP)—A far-reaching proposal for federal control of the transmission of electricity supply of America was urged on President Roosevelt today in a report by his Mississippi Valley committee.

A group of scientists and technicians the President directed to study ways and resources in the valley urged unification of all electric lines as a means of creating a giant pool of cheap power and stability.

It also suggested a billion dollar twenty year program of public works in the valley and recommended that all dams be built to aid navigation and flood control and to be used to generate power as well.

Even the remotest hydro-electric development would be tied into a common nation-wide system under the plan.

Headed by Morris L. Cooke, Philadelphia consulting engineer, the committee emphasized the plan does not involve the regulation of public or private ownership or either a general distribution.

"Government control of transmission," it said, "is fundamental. This goal does not involve necessarily any great increase in the number of publicly owned lines, especially private companies co-operating in effecting unification."

Meanwhile there would be two other developments in the utilities field. From the Public Works Administration figures were those showing allotments totalling $47,000,000 have been made for municipal power plants and nearly $200,000,000 for federal power works. PWA officials made plain they would continue to assist cities and municipal projects facing legal battles.

SUCCUMBS TO WOUNDS INFLICTED BY NEGRO

Greensboro, Dec. 26.—Smith Garrett, Negro Monday night was charged with murder following the death of Arlin R. Lewis, Jr., 36 secretary-treasurer of Cok-Lewis Foundry Company, who was shot at 1008 South Cedar Street Saturday night.

Relatives of Lewis stated that he had gone to the South Cedar Street address, which is in a Negro settlement, in response to complaints which had been received relative to a furnace which the company had installed there. He was one of several persons on the porch at the time the Negro man fired into the crowd after two firecrackers were said to have been set off at him. Garrett said he thought some one was shooting at him.

CHECK ON HOBOES SHOWS MOST BEG TO ESCAPE WORK

Louisville, Ky.—(AP)—"Brother, can you spare a dime?" "The question, according to findings of the Louisville welfare and police departments is not whether you can, but whether you should. And the odds are about seven to five that you shouldn't."

Louisville's panhandlers are being subjected to tests to determine whether they are compelled by circumstances to beg or do so to avoid work.

The study this far has revealed that seven out of every 13 who beg are unworthy of cash assistance. The cases are investigated by trained social workers, following the arraignment of panhandlers in police court. Relief and corrective agencies extend help or fix pushment.

The chronic "bo" gets scant sympathy and is sent to the workhouse. Treatment is given drug and alcohol addicts, while relief is given those honestly in adverse circumstances.

$18,000 Mill Payroll Taken at Lancaster, S.C.

Lancaster, S. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Four highwaymen robbed three guards of an $18,000 Spring Mills payroll four miles from here today after shooting the tires off the guards' car. The four escaped but police and scores of citizens immediately began a search.

The payroll was being taken from Lancaster to Chester where there are other units of the mills at the time of the holdup. The bandits escaped in a sedan.

Officials of the Springs Mills here said the amount of the loot was approximately $18,000 but that a positive check could not be made immediately.

The three guards remained at the vicinity of the holdup with police and several hundred citizens as the search began.

Police immediately broadcast a warning over the state and officers in nearby communities were posted to guard the highways.

There is a plausible connection.

The day of Ames' visit to the White House the Munitions Committee had uncovered an interesting exchange of letters between John J. Raskob and R. R. M. Carpenter, two vice presidents of the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Company.

Personality: Mr. Roosevelt has rather definite split with most of the country's "Big Business Democrats."

In their place FDR is accepting aid and counsel from such erstwhile Republicans as secretary of Interior Jesse C. Jones, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace H. Hargreaves, Chief Coordinator Richberg and Senator Norris.

The President has seen more than the average run of industrialists in the past few weeks but most of his time has been given to his official lieutenants.

One of the business executives who managed a recent audience with FDR thinks the system is all wrong. With his own case in mind he is convinced the President could make better progress with his New Deal by devoting a lot of personal attention to the capitalists.

This particular industrialist called at the White House with many convictions that were distinctly anti-New Dealish. In the course of his conversation he succumbed to the fatal Roosevelt charm. He emerged with a new slant on the New Deal logic.

"Why doesn't Mr. Roosevelt give more time to men of industry and less to his Brain Trust theorists who seem to be running in circles?" ask this man. "Certainly there would be a better understanding."

Sunny: On the bright side of government-industrial relations stands the Moffett mortgage reform plan embodied in the Federal Housing Act.

President Roosevelt stands squarely behind Moffett. He will ask Congress to make Federal-insured mortgage securities as eligible as other government paper in Federal Reserve System banks.

The new system will reintroduce real estate investment and start back the flow of capital into sound mortgages.

Moffett's organization and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are recognized as the soundest part of the New Deal, and both command nonpartisan support.

Dissolved: Preffy speeches aside, that much advertised cooperation between government and business has melted away about as completely as last winter's snow.

The recommendations of the business leaders' conference at White Sulphur Springs nailed down the lid on hopes that industry and the New Deal could really work in double harness.

As predicted here the language of the recommendations was gentle as a kitten's purr compared to the stark resistance expressed in the original platform of the National As-

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: The "Seagull" just has dropped anchor off Hambridge, where its passengers have gone to try to trace a formula worth millions, which belongs to Molly O'Brien. Molly is aboard; so are Nicholas Trunch, Jerry Mordant, and Jimmy Fox, a boy protégé of Nick's. Aligned against the four are the forces of the unscrupulous Peter Orloff, John Osborne, who just stole the formula from Molly, worked at Hambridge for a month, and the "Seagull's" passengers hope to learn something from the people who boarded him there.

Chapter 35 FIRST STEPS

I HAD hauled in the jig, and was just moving aft to help tidy up, when I was arrested by a sudden exclamation from Jimmy.

"See that bloke over there, sir? Wonder where he's come from?" His eyes were fixed on the factory, and turning my head sharply I caught sight of the intruder. He was standing about thirty yards from the shore, a little way outside the barbed wire fence. From under one arm protruded a long double-barreled gun, and beside his feet crouched a big rough-coated dog.

He was a broad-shouldered, sturdily built man of between forty and fifty, dressed in dark clothes and wearing leather gaiters. I watched him for a moment and then made my way to where the other two were standing.

"That must be our friend Gowlland," I said. "Out after rabbits, I suppose."

Jerry grunted. "Don't know what he's after, but he seems to be precious interested in us. Shall I give him a hand?"

As he spoke I saw the dog lift its head, and a vicious snarl echoed across the water. It was answered promptly by a deep growl from George.

"No, let him alone for the present," I replied. "As you say yourself, we don't want to rush things."

With a gruff word of command, the stranger shouldered his gun and, turning on his heel, began to walk slowly away. Something peculiar in his gait struck me at once, but before I could remark on it, Molly had caught me by the sleeve.

"Nick," she whispered, "he's drunk."

"He can't be at this hour of the morning," I objected.

"But he is. I can see it from here. Look at the way he's lurching about!"

"Well, he's banged to him anyhow!" broke in Jerry cheerfully. "Let's go below and have some grub."

"HOW about it, Nick?" I hoisted myself from the bunk where I had been lying smoking, and looked at my watch. The time was close on eleven o'clock.

"I'm all in favor of getting to work," I said. "We've lots to do and the sooner we make a move the better."

"Where shall we begin?" inquired Molly.

"Well, as a first step, I think the wisest thing would be if Jerry and I had a look round."

"I'd rather you didn't—not until we see how the land lies. I don't suppose there's anything to worry about, but it would be just as well to do a little bit of preliminary scouting."

"You think—she paused—"you think they may have followed us down here?"

"It's not impossible," I replied. "Orloff must have heard something about our plans or he wouldn't have asked you those questions."

"Seems a shame to leave you behind," struck in Jerry, "but if you wouldn't mind stopping on board just for this morning..."

"Why, of course not," she smiled. "You needn't be so tactful, Jerry. I promised to obey orders."

"My idea is this," I explained. "We'll go ashore together and take George with us as if we were giving him a run. While Jerry's playing about and throwing sticks for him, I'll amuse myself by having a little walk. I suppose there's a path of some sort that leads up to the farm."

"There's a path all right," replied Jerry. "It joins the road at the back of the factory." He leaned forward and knocked out his pipe. "What's the idea, Nick?"

"Nothing definite. Just going to have a smell round, that's all. I want to get hold of Mrs. Gowlland when that husband of hers is out of the way."

"Why not take along the jig and ask for some milk? Give you a chance to see what she's like."

"That's a bright idea!"

The Gowllands turn out rather curious people, tomorrow.

Belt: Internal revenue investigators are busy as a wasp at a picnic checking old income tax returns of a number of prominent corporations and individuals. In some cases they're using a microscope.

New Yorkers subject to these visitations claim the Treasury has more on its mind than collection of over looked shekels. They charge that disproportionate attention is paid to firms and people who have expressed opposition to the New Deal.

There is evidence that companies which show improved earnings in the past year and still lament that FDR is running business are getting a special combing. Conservatives call this hitting below the belt—but there isn't a thing they can do about it.

Huey: Informed New Yorkers learn that the Internal Revenue Department is itching up on Kingfish Long. A recent income tax indictment in New Orleans comes within two steps of Huey's trail.

Insiders say the Treasury's case against the Senator has been built up slowly but with painstaking thoroughness. It looks as if the Kingfish will soon be a chance to yell that he's being persecuted.

Whether the taxpayers will agree, when the facts are read is another matter.

Any citizen who doesn't like a Treasury tax ruling has the right to come before the non-partisan and highly respected U. S. Board of Tax Appeals. Normal cases are heard before one judge—big ones get three. Chances are that Huey will draw a trio—and lots of headlines.

Rules: The Securities and Exchange Commission's regulations for permanent registration of listed corporations come up to New York expectations. It's generally agreed the investigators will get all the information he needs for his protection. At the same time the mass of irrelevant historical data required by the Securities Act for new issues is cut out. This will quiet the universal squawk that registration costs too much. If Congress can be persuaded that the same rules should apply to new financing everything will be ship.

There are a few special devices to be plugged. Investment trusts and unlisted securities aren't covered by regulations—and they need more daylight than any other class if the investor is really to get a fair break. But comment runs that even Hercules wasn't asked to perform two miracles at the same time.

NEARLY SCORE MARRIED HERE

Seventeen Couples Obtain License to Wed Monday, 7 Behind Last Year

Seventeen couples fell victims to the darts of Dan Cupid Christmas Eve, greatly boosting the youngsters' average for Pitt county, records in the office of the register of deeds revealed this morning.

The young love god's fatalities were considerably behind the previous year until Monday when his darts found their mark with unerring accuracy and records today showed he was only seven behind the record of the previous holiday season.

Twenty-four couples marched to the altar in a steady stream here Christmas of last year, and it appeared as if the record this year would exceed the total, but before Christmas interest in matrimony lulled and Christmas Eve found Mr. Cupid much further behind than he relished.

However, the boost of business noted Monday put the winged god of love in position to shatter last year's record. He was within 16 licenses of the mark today and indications were he would overshoot his goal with several days intervening between now and the first of the year.

Records showed today that 752 licenses were issued last year and the total today stood at 736.

One of the most interesting things in connection with the rush to the altar the day before Christmas was the fact that the majority of the couples were white. Heretofore members of the colored race have grabbed honors from the standpoint of numbers and it seemed as if they meant to carry through to the first of the year without any letup.

Eleven of the couples obtaining licenses to wed Monday were white and the remaining six colored. The change brought joy to the heart of the register's office who watch the marriage license book with as much interest as brokers keep tab on the stock list.

Those obtaining licenses to wed Monday were:

David Smith and Miss Barbara Smith, both of Greenville.

Louis Whitehurst, Carolina township, to Miss Minnie Alexander of Bethel.

Luther Stanley to Miss Dessie Gaskins, both of Chicof township.

Jasper Ross to Miss Nettie Evans, both of Chicof.

Lake B. McLawhorn to Miss Kathryn Price, both of Swift Creek.

J. H. Hart, Oxford, to Miss Mary Stowe, Washington.

Noah Ragan, Cumberland county, to Miss Ruth McGowan, Pitt county.

Lawrence Brown to Miss Nina Vincent, Greenville.

J. A. Elks to Miss Perocilla Spain, both of Chicof township.

Alton Speight, Greenville, to Miss Olive Yelverton, Wayne county.

Oscar Lanier to Miss Queen Conley, Lenoir county.

Colored
C. J. Short to Lena Thigpen, of Bethel.

Tommie Roberson to Mabel Knight of Bethel.

David Little to Lizzie Sheppard, Pactolus.

John Coffield, to Narcissus Slade, both of Martin county.

Earl Atkinson to Eva Roberson, Greenville.

Cleveland Smith to Bessie Brown, Farmville.

BOUDOIR WEDDING FEAST FOR DAFFY AND BRIDE

Most newlyweds like an elegant wedding supper with many toothsome courses and a full hall of gay epicureans—but not "Daffy" Dean and his bride. HITLER TRAINS LABORERS AND SOLDIERS

Berlin—(AP)—From its weakest links Hitlerism is training, what it calls its "soldiers" of the voluntary labor service.

They are taken from the street to twenty-five. They are taken from the street corner and idleness—where many of them were placed—by a Nazi decree making them relinquish their jobs to older men—from mean positions, the dole and the farm. They are put to work shoveling and drilling.

Their place in the Nazi scheme is still mental, compared to the more exalted positions of the black and brown-uniformed political armies, the standing army, and Hitler Youth. But they are of great potential prominence for they are being trained in body, mind, and discipline.

Get Some Pin Money

They live in nearly 1,000 camps in all parts of the Reich. They build roads, drain swamps, carry out forest projects and do the heavy work connected with Nazi gatherings, like putting up stands and platforms.

For this they get their keep and a few cents a day for spending money. They get, too, strong bodies, health, clear eyes—navidom looks upon them as his handsomest contingent—and good-sized doses of Nazi ideology.

Labor service leaders emphasize that the organization is classless and wholly non-military in purpose. Nearly all of them, however, are from the working class, and their close-order formation would do credit to almost any regular army.

Chorus Chants For Hitler

They handle their spades and picks with great precision upon command to "slope spades." They march in perfect unison. They "squads right" and "squads left" are flawless.

At the national socialist party gathering in Nuremberg, 52,000 of them goose-stepped smartly toward Hitler while singing a yeoman's song. Der Fuehrer returned their salute with "Hail, labor service!"

A workers' speaking chorus the intoned:

"Here we stand. We are ready. We carry Germany into the future!"

"Comrades, where come you?" the chorus demanded for their fellows, and the reply was sonorous: "From Pommerania, Silesia, the Rhine, Bavaria, Prussia."

'Escape Artist' Jailed Again

Leland Harvey, whose exploits while serving sentences totaling 110 years in prison won for him the title of "escape artist extraordinary," has been arrested again. He was taken at Macon, Ga., upon request of Atlanta officials who wanted to check up on his recent activities. Here he is shown in jail in Atlanta where he denied any wrongdoing since being pardoned.
