Budget Messa For Expenditure Of Over Eight Billions

Public Debt Will Reach 31 Billions by July 1 and 34 Billions in 1936

Washington, D. C., Jan. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt submitted to Congress today a budget calling for total expenditures of $8,520,413,609 for the fiscal year beginning July 1...

The message said the new deficit would be financed by using $739,885,188 out of the working balance in the Treasury and borrowing $3,788,623,782.

Its estimated expenditures for the present fiscal period to total $8,581,069,926 with receipts of $3,711,650,683, resulting in a deficit of $4,869,418,338 for the year ending in June and a public debt on that date of $31,000,000,000.

President Roosevelt said tax estimates were contingent upon continuation of the three cents postage rate on non-local first-class mail.

The document read separately to the Senate and House was wound up by his assistants.

"It is my belief the general recommendations and total figures presented in this budget will accomplish three major objects:

1. Normal function of the United States government can be carried on with economy and highest standard of efficiency.

2. The broad obligations of the government to use all proper effort to prevent destitution can be maintained by more practical methods than we are using at present.

3. The excellent credit of the government can be maintained for common good.

I believe that Congress will sustain these objectives."

On the all important topic of relief he said this:

"The estimated expenditures for recovery and relief during 1935 is placed at $4,110,000,000 with the exception of $472,000,000 for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. I recommend that $4,000,000,000 be appropriated by Congress in one sum subject to allotment by the executive principally for giving work to those unemployed on the relief rolls. The estimated expenditure covering this amount included in the budget.

CAVES GOOD PLACE FOR MAKING CHEESE

St. Paul, Jan. 7.—Discovery that the caves in the sandstone bluffs flanking the Mississippi River near St. Paul's downtown district are ideal for production of a Roquefort-type cheese of quality comparable to the famed blue-molded product from France, was disclosed today by executives of the Minnesota College of Agriculture.

Professor Willes B. Combs, chief of the university farm's dairy division, said 100,000 pounds of the Roquefort-type cheese, the flavor of which he said amazed epicures, were cured in 1934 in a small, experimental cave.

In the discovery, Professor Combs saw the foundation for establishment in St. Paul, within the near future, of "a $1,000,000 a year industry" by sale of several large dairy concerns now competing for the process secrets.

Production of the cheese on commercial scale, the professor said, would mean absorption of a tremendous amount of Minnesota's milk surplus; reduction, "to a negligible amount," of Roquefort cheese imports; and employment of many persons.

The cheese developed by the farm school, Professor Combs said, "sold for about 30 cents a pound, compared to $1.15 a pound for imported Roquefort made of ewe's milk and 50 to 60 cents a pound for the products made from cow's milk.

FAMOUS EXPLORER GETS A CALL-DOWN

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The youthful salesman of aerial joy rides didn't know the bearded sight-seer he approached was Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted Australian aviator and Polar explorer.

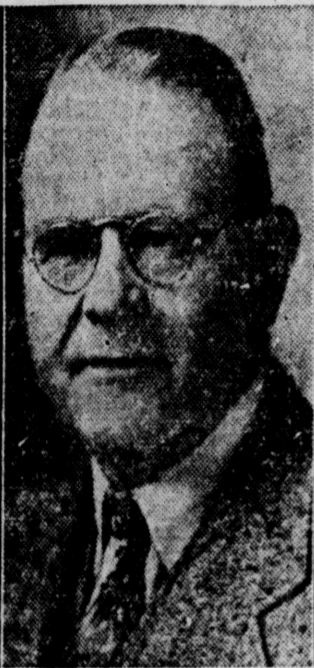

"Ticket for a plane ride, sir?" suggested the young man.

"No, fear," replied Sir Hubert, "I'm frightened of those things."

Disgustedly, the ticket seller surveyed the hero of innumerable aerial and submarine adventures.

"Ah, it's no use," he concluded. "You'll never be game to do up. You are a squib!"

MAN, 83, CAN GO VISITING FOUR GENERATIONS OF KIN

Barnardsville, N. C. — (AP) — Whenever J. W. Wallin is in the mood to go visiting the kinfolks, he can drive about the countryside a few miles and visit four younger generations of his family.

With one exception, the difference in age of each generation is exactly 20 years. Wallin is 83, his daughter, Mrs. Lewis Smith, is 63, his granddaughter, Mrs. H. G. Gregg, is 43, and his great grandson, Earnest Gregg, is 23.

TICKET SALE FOR BALL OFF TO GOOD START

E. G. Flanagan Buys First Ticket to President's Birthday Ball For $25

The ticket sale for the President's Birthday Ball to be held in this city on the evening of January 30 got off to an exceptionally fine start this morning when Col. E. G. Flanagan wrote a check for $25 for ticket No. 1. The sale was made by Ticket Chairman R. C. Stokes, Jr. and W. W. Lee, secretary-treasurer of the ball fund.

Seventy per cent of the funds derived from the birthday balls throughout the country this year will be retained in the various communities to aid infantile paralysis sufferers and 30 per cent will go to the national organization for research work in connection with finding ways and means to prevent the disease and it was a realization of the need of this great work that prompted Mr. Flanagan's generosity.

Preliminary plans indicate that the ball this year will even surpass that of last year and will probably be one of the most outstanding held in any city this side. It will be a county-wide affair and every town and community in the county is being invited to have a part in making it a success.

Tomorrow morning an invitation committee, headed by Mayor R. C. Flanagan, and including John G. Clark, K. W. Cobb and D. H. Conley, will visit the various communities in the county and personally extend the invitation.

The ticket sales will be under the direction of R. C. Stokes, Jr. and within the next two days he hopes to have in the hands of committees in every part of the county. The women's organizations and other interested persons in the various sections of the county will be requested to aid in the sale of the tickets.

Already one of the leading orchestras of the State has been employed for the dance here, and in addition to good dance music, the ball will include excellent entertainment in the way of a floor show, prize contests and other interesting features. Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College, has consented for the ball to be held in the large Campus Building at the college, assuring sufficient room for all dancers and spectators.

Committees have already been appointed to see to the decorating of the ball for the ball on the evening of January 30 when Pitt County citizens gather to celebrate the birthday of President Franklin D. Roosevelt it will be a gala affair.

Takes Office Despite Opposition

Biloxi, Miss., Jan. 7.—(AP)—By executing an early morning coup with armed deputies of the sheriff and citizens, Mayor-elect John A. Okeefe today took office and ousted his political foe Mayor Hart Chinn. Chinn had declared he would not give up the office because he considered the new mayor unqualified to hold the office.

Okeefe was elected to succeed Chinn with change of city administration today but his qualifications had been challenged, by Chinn who claimed that Okeefe had not paid his taxes within the limits prescribed by law. Okeefe was sworn in, in the eastern part of the city early to day and then accompanied by citizens and the sheriff's guard proceeded to the city hall and took charge of the office.

TAR FROM COW'S HORNS IMBEDDED IN GIRL'S BRAIN

Taunton, England.—(AP)—A piece of tar was found inside a girl's brain during an operation for head injuries.

Addressing a conference on the progress of surgery, Dr. Ronald H. Husbands told how the girl was found unconscious with a wound in the head, and it was thought she had been knocked down by a motor car.

A delicate operation was performed and a piece of tar found in the girl's brain. On regaining consciousness, she revealed that a cow had butted her.

The cow had tar on its horns.

Commissioners In Session Here Today

The Board of County Commissioners met here today for the first meeting of the new calendar year. In view of the fact that the new board took office the first of December and held several meetings during last month formulating plans of the new administration, indications were, when the session was called today, that only routine matters would be given hearing.

Buy First Ticket To President's Ball

Col. E. G. Flanagan, of this city, staunch Democrat, ardent supporter of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, former legislator of this county, and recognized as one of the county's leading citizens, today was accorded the honor of purchasing Ticket Number One to this year's annual President's Birthday Ball to be held here Wednesday, January 30th. While the price of the ticket was only $1.50, Mr. Flanagan, realizing the good cause to which the proceeds from the ball will be devoted, gave $25.00 for the ticket.

BLIND MULE ESCAPES FIRE AS OTHERS DIE IN BARN

Culpeper, Va. — (AP) — When lightning set fire to a barn here recently, the only animal to escape death in the flames was a blind mule.

Panic-stricken at the heat and the roar of the fire, it crashed down a door and leaped through to safety.

Three other mules, even though they could see, were not so fortunate. Unable to find their way to an opening, they perished.

PRICE SEES CONGRESS AS BIG MACHINE

Washington Observer Says Democratic Control Beyond Expectations

By BYRON PRICE Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington) Despite all forecasts, it remained for the opening days of the new congress to reveal the full measure of the democratic dominance on capital hill.

The sweeping power of the party chieftains was demonstrated swiftly and with emphasis in the expedition with which senate and house were organized, the readiness with which the majority accepted and adopted as its own the recommendations of President Roosevelt, and the manner in which the legislative machinery was set into motion to translate those recommendations into law.

A large party majority is not always a powerful majority. No one can foresee whether the present democratic majority in congress will remain powerful and effective throughout the coming session, or will break into helpless blocs.

The one certain thing, however, is that at this moment the democratic organization has a degree of control which even some of its most optimistic leaders never expected.

Follow F. D. R.'s Leadership

Several causes have contributed to this situation, giving the party a dominance even greater than that represented by the mere fact of its overwhelming majorities in senate and house.

The chief one, of course, is the continued willingness of the democratic legislators, with few exceptions, to accept the leadership of the President. His message did not suit all democrats; yet the dissent, either on the right or the left, has come from only a small percentage of the membership.

That was something which had worried some leaders. They were not at all sure Mr. Roosevelt could hold both wings of his party with sufficient solidarity to insure legislative results. They are not yet sure he will be able to do so as the session progresses, but they are in no doubt now about the present.

Some had been fearful, too, that in the grand scramble for the tremendously important post of democratic floor leader, a compromise might be made on a weak character who would have no real control.

Instead, the caucus selected Representative Bankhead of Alabama, recognized universally as one of the ablest and most forceful men in his party.

Powerful Legislative Machine There was the further possibility that both the house committees and procedure on the floor would get out of hand because of the defection of democratic irregulars.

All likelihood of that was eliminated when the committees were organized to increase the proportionate democratic representation on them, and the house rules amended to increase the number of petitioners required before any bill not approved by the organization can be brought out of committee.

Ripples of opposition to the senate leadership of Senator Robinson of Kansas were quieted almost completely. Reports that Vice President Garner had gone off the administration reservation died out after he returned to Washington. All round the session's opening presented the appearance of a great democratic jubilee and reunion.

This does not mean that, deep down, there are not difficulties and animosities beneath the surface of democratic unity.

It does mean that as of this writing, the democrats are starting a session at the throttle of the most powerful legislative machine ever seen by this generation, or perhaps by any other.

Betty Gow Takes Stand In Hauptmann Trial This Morning

Tells of Last Day of Lindbergh Baby's Life. Identifies Child's Clothing

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Nurse maid Betty Gow collapsed as she left the courtroom following three hours of testimony in the Bruno Richard Hauptmann murder trial.

She had just testified that the undershirt found on the body of the slain baby was made by her and put on him the last night she saw him alive and that the thumbguard work by the baby was found by her a month after the kidnaping a hundred yards from the Hopewell, N. J. home; that she told her sailor friend, Red Johnson, and probably others, that the Lindberghs would not return to Mrs. Lindbergh's home that Monday night preceding the fateful March 1 when the baby was taken from the crib; that Lindbergh, when apprised his baby was gone, had obtained a rifle, stood in the nursery, and cried: "Anne, they've stolen our baby!"

She indignantly denied insinuations hurled at her by Edward J. Raley, chief of Hauptmann's defense counsel, and defiantly cried, "I did not!" when Raley asked her if she herself dropped the thumbguard where she claimed to find it.

She denied knowing several persons referred to by Raley and denounced boating excursions to New Rochelle, N. Y., and City Island.

Before she left the stand, under the friendly questioning of Attorney-General David Wilentz, she described Red Johnson as a very nice young man and said she was very fond of him.

As State Trooper Joseph Wolfe succeeded her in the witness chair the little nursemaid made her way to a chair next to Mrs. Elsie Whitley, the Lindbergh cook. She complained of feeling faint. Someone brought her a glass of water. She started to leave the courtroom, but reached the door and began to sway. Two men in an adjoining room rushed to her aid and she slid into their arms. She was weeping.

WILL DEMAND RESIGNATION OF DANIELS

Washington, Jan. 7.—(AP)—The controversy over religion and education in Mexico gained new reverberations today with Representative Higgins, Democrat, Massachusetts asserting he would offer Congress a resolution demanding that the United States withdraw recognition of Mexico and remove Josephus Daniels from the diplomatic corps.

Higgins had written President Roosevelt asking that protest be sent to Mexico against the closing of Catholic schools and expulsion of priests. Ambassador Daniels, the legislator contended today, should be removed because he was cognizent for what happened yet made no protest.

Denying that he trod on controversial grounds Ambassador Daniels explained his was exactly the type of address he had made in the United States expressing appreciation of the attitude of Mexico in recognizing the great work of Horace Mann and quoted General Calles as favoring education of children.

He voiced surprise at interpretations placed on his remarks and reiterated his belief in the public schools, freedom of the press and religion.

After Daniels' statement was made last fall he said it explained his position fully and the incident was closed.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Betty Gow, nurse maid who ministered to the needs of kidnaped and slain Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., today identified in court the undershirt which she put upon the baby and which was found on his body.

"This is the exact little shirt I made for the baby that night," she said as Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, prosecuting Bruno Richard Hauptmann, handed her the tiny, colored garment. By "that night" she referred to the last night in which she or any member of the Lindbergh household saw the 20-month-old babe alive.

"Is that the shirt you placed upon the baby as part of its night clothing?" Wilentz asked her.

"Yes," she said.

"And was that shirt worn by the child that night when he was taken out of the house," he asked.

"It was," she replied.

The little shirt became "P-13" in the evidence.

Miss Gow spoke low with an accent and had to be asked to speak up. Frequently she moistened her lips before speaking. The nurse related the last day of the baby's life in a restrained and sometimes breathless manner. She identified the baby's thumbguard and the trace with which it was tied to the baby. This was important technical testimony by which the prosecution hopes to show that the baby was killed in Hurdston County at whose county-seat Hauptmann is now on trial for his life.

WASHINGTON By George Durno DIFFICULT: Donald Riechberg — boss of the National Emergency Council and chief coordinator of the New Deal—is in a tough spot. Chapter 45
RACE

It was only a short pull—forty yards at the utmost—but with the spray splashing over us at every stroke we were all four drenched to the skin by the time we got on board.

George, who was waiting for us on deck, heralded our approach by a chorus of staccato barks, his enthusiasm culminating in a frantic attempt to lick each of our faces in turn as we climbed up over the side.

"What about a hot drink and a mouthful of biscuit straight away?" suggested Jerry. "I could do with it for one, and Heaven knows when we shall get another chance."

"I'll put the Primus on," Jimmy wriggled out of his dripping mackintosh. "You'd better 'ave this back now, sir. You'll be wanting it if we're going out amongst that lot."

He disappeared briskly through the cabin door, and after a meditative glance seaward Jerry turned to us.

"Of course," he observed, "miracles do happen occasionally, but somehow or other I don't altogether like the look of this one. Seems just a little too good to be true."

"I've the same pleasant feeling myself," I admitted. "We're in for something—that's certain—and, what's more, it won't be long in coming. Now they know we've got the formula..."

"None too gay," I replied. "Still, my left arm's sound enough."

He nodded. "That's something, I can manage all right for the present, but if we have to clear out in a bit of a hurry, I shall want you to stand by for the tiller."

"What are you going to do?" I inquired. "Just get things ready. It will be another forty minutes at least before the bar's really safe, but there's no harm in making a few preparations. You two stay here, and for the love of Mike, keep your eyes open."

He left us abruptly, and, moving forward into the bows, started to haul in the slack of the anchor chain. Down below, through the open door of the cabin, I could hear Jimmy pumping up the Primus.

"I'd give a lot to know what's happened to our dear friend Orloff," I said. "Where do you suppose he was making for when he slipped off from the factory?"

"I've been trying to work it out," Molly sat down beside me on the wet cabin top. "I believe he meant to go back to the boat. He'd finished with us—at least, so he thought—but that was no use unless he could get rid of the others too."

"I don't know how he was going to do it. I expect he had some cunning and horrible plan to make it look as if we'd all been killed in the explosion. Anyhow, he certainly wouldn't waste time. He'd already sent one of his men to watch the farm, and..."

"But when he found we'd escaped," I broke in, "why didn't he finish us off then? What chance should we have had against a crowd of armed toughs?"

She shook her head. "It's got to look like an accident, Nick. After all this isn't Russia. You can't shoot down four people and just leave their bodies lying about on the marsh. Why, even now, when he knows..."

Rip's Struggle
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BACK IN Puddle Muddle the little man, Willy Nilly, and his friends, Tip Nitch, the rooster, the ducks and Christopher Columbus Crow, were worried about Rip who had not come home since the blizzard had started.

Rip had been caught by the storm and now he had found a man whose leg was broken.

Rip ran as hard as he could toward Puddle Muddle, but the lightness of the deep snow made it hard going and every once in a while Rip fell into the drifts and was afraid that he, too, might break a leg.

The Puddle Muddlers were now running around in all directions and Christopher was flying overhead, following Willy Nilly.

"Caw, caw, caw," Christopher kept shouting, and suddenly he stopped.

"I thought I heard something then," cried Christopher Willy Nilly put his hands back of his pointed, sticking-out ears and listened.

"Bark, bark, bark," came the distant sound of Rip's voice.

'The Charros look at her—and forgot how their tequila tastes'

Hard-riding, quick-shooting patrons in Miguel Santos' cantina downed their fiery drinks like water when Rosita danced.
No wonder the Montana Kid—El Keed below the Rio Grande—remembered the girl with the red rose in her hair. But Rosita betrayed the man she loved, set the rurales yelping at his heels... and then could not forget him.
Her atonement—to follow him on a fantastic mission to a burning land from which, the Mexicans believed, no man ever returned.

Will Buff, night watchman; Rob Pickard and Dean Carpenter were abducted here and carried to Hickory where the pay of desperates held up a taxi driver and drove off in his automobile.

Buff said one of the pair was named Blackburn and officers began a search for Wade Blackburn and Talmadge Parsons, of Wilkes County, accused of holding up a taxi driver Saturday.

Clash With Strikers.
Rossville, Ga., Jan. 7.—(AP)—In two rushes national guardsmen patrolling Richmond hosiery mill where a strike is in progress, today rounded up 33 persons including 5 women, and placed them under military arrest. The guardsmen flanked the crowd estimated at 1,000, and took 33 into custody before they had time to beat a hasty retreat across the state line into Tennessee 100 feet away.

Col. L. C. Pope, commander of the troops, said the prisoners would be transported by truck to Atlanta this afternoon and placed in a detention camp.

SCOTCH WINNERS HAVE RIGHT TO RATE BOXERS

Glasgow, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Thanks to a decision handed down in court here, Scottish sports writers may go right on saying what they have always said about boxers.

A pugilist named William Phillips McCamley sued the Glasgow Evening News for plenty because, as I have said, "it imputed that I was an incompetent sparring partner."

The defense pleaded justification, among other things. The judge, a fight fan himself, concurred. He couldn't see, he said, that the article about McCamley went beyond fair comment.

EMPIRE PARKER FREED IN WAKE FOREST CASE

Wake Forest, N. C., Jan. 6.—Rock-jesse driving charges against George Parker, International League umpire, which resulted from a wreck here last month, were not pressed Saturday in Recorder's Court.

Parker was driving a car in which were Max Cary, former Brooklyn baseball manager, and "Jo-Jo" White, Detroit outfielder. The machine collided with one driven by W. O. Blackley and seriously injured Blackley's eight-year-old boy, Willis.

CHICAGO'S MALES DWINDLE AS WOMEN ACQUIRE JOBS

Chicago, —(AP)—The women, it seems, have the men on the run in Chicago.

According to the latest census figures compiled by the University of Chicago, the nation's second city now has a population of 3,258,528 of which 1,631,181 are males for a pre-dominance of only 3,844.

In 1910 there were 66,245 more men than women in Chicago. Four years ago the majority of men had dwindled to 44,888.

It is said the same situation prevails in other large cities. One reason advanced is the advent of the business girl in large numbers in industrial centers since the World War. In many instances this class of workers has replaced men and forced them to seek livings elsewhere.

LINDY BABY CLOTHES IN COURT

One of the most dramatic moments in Bruno Hauptmann's trial at Flemington, N. J., came when Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh identified these clothes as those worn by her first son at the time of his abduction. The clothes were offered as an exhibit by the state. American Woman To Help Hun Saar Plebiscite

Cambridge, Mass. — (AP) — An American woman, daughter of a professor-emeritus of Harvard law school, will help direct the Saar plebiscite on January 13 when 800,000 inhabitants of the third largest central district in Europe choose their future form of government.

She is Miss Sarah Wambaugh, an accomplished scholar and authority on plebiscites. She has been in Europe since April working as technical advisor and alternate member of the committee which is charged to see that a fair vote is conducted on this troublesome Franco-German question.

Ranked as the foremost authority in the world on plebiscites, Miss Wambaugh has directed organization of the Saar committee and has advised it during the period of registration of voters. From the start she had her hands full, with 100,000 protests registered against prospective voters.

Her duties have been so numerous and hectic, her father, Professor Eugene Wambaugh, says that he has scarcely heard a word from her. One letter mentioned "long office hours."

Miss Wambaugh's training for her present job began when she entered Radcliffe College in Cambridge in 1898. She majored in government and being graduated with the bachelor of arts degree, became an assistant in the government and history departments of the college for three years.

She received her master degree in international law and political science at Radcliffe in 1917, then studied at the University of London and at Oxford. Later she was appointed a member of the administrative commissions and minorities section of the League of Nations' secretariat. She taught history at Wellesley College in 1921.

Her first tour as the result of her interest in international problems and plebiscites was made in 1922 when she visited sections of Europe, including the Saar, where plebiscites had been held or were planned. During that year and the two following she attended the League of Nations assemblies at Geneva as representative of American magazines.

Miss Wambaugh's first experience in the actual operation and organization of a plebiscite was in 1925 and 1926 as advisor to Peru in the Tacna-Arica plebiscite.

In 1927 she was invited to lecture before the Academie De Droit Internationale at The Hague, the only woman in the world so honored.

Miss Wambaugh's works include an extensive survey on plebiscites, and an earlier book on plebiscites used by the 1919 peace conference.

She is described as the possessor of "a very charming personality" and a "tremendous mind-brilliant." She has always been interested in government.

She was born in Cincinnati March 6, 1882, a great-granddaughter of Thomas Kiker, second governor of Ohio. Her family is of Scotch-Irish descent.

Explorer Reports Dread Texas Cave Largest of Kind

Bradley, Tex.—(AP)—New explorations of the "Devil's Sinkhole," whose forbidding aspect frightened away all but the most venturesome for decades, have shown it to be shaped like a vast hour-glass and the biggest cave of its kind yet discovered.

Only the great Padriac cave of southern France, says Dr. Frank E. Nicholson, who has explored every major cavern in the United States and many in foreign countries, rivals the Devil's Sinkhole as a vertical cave.

The entrance to the Sinkhole is 80 feet in diameter. From the surface the walls slope together, then at a depth of about 200 feet open wide onto an underground mountain peak. This peak within a cave is about 600 feet high. Dr. Nicholson and his exploring party found, and a mile in circumference at the base.

Miles of caverns and corridors adorned with stalactites and stalagmites, rounded columns, marble-like mantles and snow-encrusted thrones have been charted by the party.

Water in the many lakes and ponds, some of which are 50 feet deep and clear as crystal, maintains a constant temperature of 38 degrees. Flower-like rock formations cover the bottoms of the pools.

As in the case of Carlsbad cavern, countless bats make their home in the cave.

"Watchdog of the Treasury" is the nickname applied to the member of Congress who makes the greatest effort to prevent excessive appropriations.

The negro population of this community shouldered their part of the burden in the recent Tuberculosis Christmas Seals drive with the result that C. M. Epps, chairman of the drive among his race, has turned over to the treasurer $135.43 derived from the sale of the seals.

In addition to his work in connection with the seal campaign, Professor Epps likewise raised a sum of $25 to be turned over to Dr. N. C. Newbold for the State Interracial Commission, making a total of more than $160 raised among the negro population here during December.

In making his report, Professor Epps expressed appreciation of the co-operation he had received from the negro churches and organizations and especially from the various departments of his schools.
