DR. CONDON IDENTIFIES HAUPTMANN

Says Hauptmann Is Man To Whom He Paid Ransom

PRISONER GOES PALE

Tells Story of Night Visit to Lonely Cemetery to Pay Money to "John"

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. John R. "Jafsie" Condon glared at Bruno Richard Hauptmann in court today and said he was the "John" who negotiated for and received the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom. Condon also identified the letter he received in response to the newspaper advertisement which projected him into the Lindbergh case a month after the baby was stolen, and the subsequent note that directed him to act as the negotiator.

He related in detail his first meeting with the then mysterious "John" when the two talked for an hour in a park. He said "John" was Hauptmann and that he asked at their first rendezvous: "Will I burn if the baby is dead?" He also testified the man declared: "I am only the go-between."

He related how he pleaded with the man, calling on him to ponder what his mother would think of his action and offered to give him $50,000 because his seemed worn.

The notes Dr. Condon identified were the letter he inserted in response to an ad inserted and the subsequent notes giving directions, all of them bearing the 3-holed symbol for signature.

The first letter accepted him as the go-between and instructed him to insert an advertisement in the newspaper saying "the money is ready." Enclosed with it was a note to Colonel Lindbergh saying the kidnaper had accepted Dr. Condon as intermediary.

Dr. Condon examined the notes with meticulous care before identifying them.

Condon by The Associated Press) Flemington, N. J., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dr. John R. "Jafsie" Condon today identified Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the "John" to whom he paid the $50,000 futile ransom money for the slain baby, Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

Taking the witness stand in the Hauptmann trial for murder shortly after the opening of the day's court session, Dr. Condon declared: "John" is Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

He looked directly at his questioner, Attorney General David T. Wilentz and shook his finger as he made the assertion, and his voice was loud and consciously dramatic.

The point was reached early in his testimony, Wilentz quickly leading up to the night of April 2, 1932, when (Continued on Page Four)

KILLS SEVEN THEN HIMSELF

Ends Own Life After Killing His Wife, In-Laws and Neighbors

Mount Vernon, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP)—George Collet, who during last night shot to death seven persons, killed himself today rather than surrender to a posse.

Mount Vernon, Ky., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A sheriff's posse and state police attaches today took to the trail of a man accused of killing six persons and wounding two others near here last night.

Three of the dead were his in-laws, two were neighbors and the other was his wife. The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Will Helton, their daughter Stella Collet, George Collet's wife, a son Howard Helton and Mr. and Mrs. Julius Borges. The Heltons were found dead at Cooper Creek, Ky., this morning. The Borges live three miles away. Borges' body was found in his front yard and his wife was shot in bed.

May Be Witness In Lindbergh Case

John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boatbuilder who was convicted of obstructing justice on a "hoax" charge based on his statements that he had contacted the kidnappers in the Lindbergh case, may be a witness for the defense in the trial of Bruno Hauptmann. (Associated Press Photo)

ROAD TERMS DEALT OUT BY COUNTY COURT

Violators of the prohibition laws and drunken drivers were in the great majority in the list of defendants in yesterday's session of County Court here, and Judge Dink James dealt out road sentences and revoked a number of drivers' licenses. The cast against Mrs. Paul Hill, "Staff" Hill and Lucille Hill growing out of assault upon the young woman cashier at Paul Hill's restaurant, was continued until January 29th.

Cases disposed of yesterday were as follows:

Pete Pones, driving drunk, six months on the roads.

Artis Cannon driving drunk, $50 and costs and license revoked for six months.

Jenkins Smith, whiskey for sale, ninety days on the roads.

Hazel Jones, whiskey for sale, ninety days at County Home.

Corla Lee Artis, operating disorderly house, ninety days at the County Home.

Gladys Stephens, illegal possession of whiskey, ninety days at the County Home.

Louise Whichard, carrying a concealed weapon; judgment suspended upon good behavior.

Amos Hardy, Budd Little and Elijah Swiny, manufacturing liquor; Swiny and Hardy six months on the roads. Latter appealed to the Superior Court. Little's $50 costs to be deducted.

Sam Purvis, manufacturing liquor; judgment suspended upon good behavior.

Jack Modine, defrauding; judgment suspended on payment of the cost.

GREENVILLE BANK SETS NEW RECORD

Greenville Banking and Trust Company Passes All Previous Records

The thirty-fourth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company was held at the Sheppard Memorial Library Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

E. G. Flanagan, who has been president of the bank for twenty-two years, presided. Mr. Flanagan reviewed the progress of the bank from an institution with $10,000 capital in 1901 to an institution with $507,500 capital and surplus at the present time with resources of $5,000,000. He expressed gratification and pleasure at the earnings and progress of the bank.

W. H. Woolard, executive vice-president, told the stockholders that in addition to the condition reflected in the statement, the bank had substantial equity in real estate, bonds and reserves. Mr. Woolard stated that the bank was taking care of all justifiable loans and was in the market for good loans.

J. H. Waldrop, cashier of the bank, submitted an operating report showing deposits at the close of business December 31, 1934, $4,930,413.02 as compared to $2,835,945.88 at the close of 1932. Six per cent regular and 6 per cent special dividend was paid for the year 1934. Branches are operated at Snow Hill, Bethel and Belhaven, all of which have made an excellent showing and are growing rapidly.

The following directors were unanimously re-elected: A. W. Angus, M. O. Blount, C. S. Carr, J. S. Ficken, E. G. Flanagan, A. W. Moseley, J. R. Moxe, L. C. Skinner, J. A. Staton, N. O. Warren, J. J. White, W. H. Woolard, and J. H. Waldrop.

Immediately following the stockholders' meeting, the directors met and re-elected all officers and employees for the Greenville office and branches as follows:

- E. G. Flanagan, president. W. H. Woolard, executive vice-president. M. O. Blount, vice-president. J. H. Waldrop, cashier. A. J. Moore, assistant cashier. M. L. Cowell, assistant cashier. J. W. Overton, teller. J. H. Moxe, teller. M. L. Starkey, teller. Hazel W. Jordan, clerk. Mabel G. Blow, stenographer. J. B. Congleton, bookkeeper. Susie B. Clark, bookkeeper. Sam T. Moore, bookkeeper. James Moxe, transfer clerk. Dickinson Avenue Branch: B. F. Patrick, cashier; A. G. Wells, assistant cashier. Bethel Branch: S. C. Ives, cashier; R. L. Whitley, assistant cashier. Belhaven Branch: J. E. Edwards, cashier; Ruth B. Johnston, bookkeeper. Snow Hill Branch: V. N. Whitehurst, cashier; Mrs. V. N. Whitehurst, bookkeeper.

Allen Funeral Will Be Held On Thursday

Funeral services for Henry (Bud) Allen, who died Tuesday morning at his home near Greenville, will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. This change has been made because of the weather conditions. Services will be in charge of Rev. M. A. Woodard of Winterville Free Will Baptist Church. Burial will follow in the Tyson graveyard.

Mr. Allen was a large landowner and a prosperous farmer. He was reared in Pitt county and spent his childhood here. In 1900 he married Miss Elsie Tyson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Tyson. To this union were born the following children, who reside his wife, survive: Mrs. J. H. Clark, Mrs. Jesse Manning, Mrs. Otis Taylor, all of Pitt county; Miss Reba Allen and one son, Lyman Allen, of the home place; one brother, J. I. Allen, and several grandchildren.

Pall bearers will be: Louis Gabriel, Mr. Harrell, W. J. Parker, Frank Taylor, Tom Holland, Lon Rountree.

Old Church Bank in Cracow Cracow, Poland.—(AP)—The Bank of Worshippers, established by Rev. Peter Skarga in 1854, recently observed its 350th anniversary. It still is in the hands of Catholic congregations and helps worthy families by loaning money at lower interest than commercial banks.

STRIKERS DISPERSED BY TROOPS

J. C. LANIER APPOINTED KY. COLONEL

Governor of Kentucky Names Greenville Man as Aid de Camp

J. Con Lanier of this city, has been named a Kentucky Colonel according to news reaching this city from Lexington, Ky., where Mr. Lanier is now stationed in connection with his duties as Code Administrator of the Auction and Leaf Tobacco Warehouse industry.

The following item from the Lexington, Ky., Herald will be read with pleasure by Mr. Lanier's many friends in this city and section: "Colonel Lanier, Subj. 'It's Colonel Con Lanier now, J. C. Lanier, of Greenville, N. C., Code Administrator for the auction and leaf tobacco warehouse industry yesterday received the commission as colonel on the staff of Governor Ruby Laffoon."

"Mr. Lanier is making his headquarters in Lexington during the burley and dark tobacco sales season."

Charlie Finally Scores Austin, Texas.—(AP)—Charlie Covates, star center on the University of Texas football team, had completed nearly eight years of high school and college competition without seeing his name in the scoring column. In the Southern Methodist game Coates recovered a Texas fumble across the Mustang goal for Texas' only score, enabling his team to eke out a tie.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

Washington By GEORGE DURNO Push: Now that the preliminary tumult and shouting of a new Congress has died there should be little doubt in which direction we are headed.

We have passed into the third phase of what some people call "the Roosevelt Revolution."

Now now, it's going to be a question of "reform" not "recovery." The President has cast an all-important die in referring to a "new economic order" and a "new national policy." Week by week, you will be pleased or shocked, according to your hereditary politics—and probably started somewhat—as FDR brings the background of his canvas to life with bold strokes. The big push of the New Deal is on.

Shove: The beauty of the game from Mr. Roosevelt's standpoint is that almost everything is in his favor.

He has a top-heavy majority in both houses all of whom may not privately think along the same lines but who are afraid to vote other than "aye." Two years from now most of them will be up for reelection and they can't afford any false steps on the toes of public sentiment as now constituted.

Furthermore, the President is in a position to ram most of his program through merely by keeping Congress off balance. He is going to tell them specifically what he wants them by item. With few exceptions the legislators will be kept too busy this way to make fancy cookies out of the left-over dough—if any.

'DRIVE TO LIVE NOT TO KILL' SAFETY SLOGAN

W. A. B. Hearne Wins $10 Offered by City For The Best Safety Slogan

"Drive to Live—Not to Kill" is the safety slogan adopted by this city for posting along the highways entering the city and along the city streets, as a result of the decision of the judges in the recent slogan campaign here. The slogan adopted was submitted by W. A. B. Hearne, 710 West Fourth Street, and he will be awarded the $10 cash prize offered by the city for the best slogan.

The contest created considerable interest among the citizens and between a hundred and two hundred slogans were submitted. While there were a number of good slogans dealing with separate phases of the safety campaign the slogan adopted by the judges was considered to be the most in the present day of an ever increasing number of highway and street accidents.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan this morning stated that he sincerely hoped that our people generally would observe this slogan and all other rules of safety, realizing that they have a solemn duty to perform in helping to cut down accidents. "When it comes to dealing with accidents" the mayor said "an ounce of caution ahead of time is better than a carload of flowers afterwards."

TO DISCUSS RURAL BOY SCOUT PLAN

Interesting Citizens From Over County To Meet Here Friday Afternoon

J. E. Winslow, chairman of the Rural Scouting Committee of the Greenville district, Boy Scouts of the East Carolina Council and Superintendent D. H. Conley of the schools announce that Friday afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock in the high school library men interested in scouting and other boy-minded men of Pitt county will gather for this 3 hour session to hear short talks on ruralizing the scouting program. Mr. Winslow has as his topic "Scouting a big job for big men."

John J. Sigwald, scout executive of the East Carolina Council, and under whom Leon Keaton, the assistant executive serves, will tell of "Scouting's Objectives and Program" and later in the afternoon touch on the Lone Scout, Farm and Home Patrol, and Lone Scout Tribes of Boy Scouts.

Two outside speakers will be on the program. Ben Eagles has been personally invited by the local scouters to speak to the men assembled, as has K. R. Curtis of Wilson, who is a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts.

Assistant Executive Leon Keaton has a part of the program as has Dr. G. R. Combs, chairman of the Greenville district.

The supper to be served at 6 P. M., at the high school cafeteria those attending the training will be the guest of the Greenville District. A short sketch called "Origin of Scouting" will be portrayed by a number of scouts of Troop 30 of Greenville.

B. B. Sugg, who also has a part on the 3 hour program, has been out with the assistant executive, contacting a number of the men who are being urged to attend this Rural Institute at the Greenville Highschool Friday, and have asked the Reflector to extend an invitation through its columns to those who are interested in Scouting for the rural boy. There is no charge to those who attend the session and an interesting and instructive program is assured.

GUILFORD TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY EVENT

Guilford College, N. C., Jan. 9.—The one-hundred-and-first anniversary of the granting of the Guilford College charter will be celebrated by the college Sunday, January 13.

Dr. Frank Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, will speak. Others will take part in the program, including Rev. H. H. Huffman and Professor Samuel Haworth of the college faculty.

Thumbguard Vital Trial Evidence

The thumbguard worn by Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., the night the child was abducted from his home was considered one of its most important pieces of evidence by the prosecution in the trial of Bruno R. Hauptmann, accused murderer of the baby. The guard, shown above, was found by Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, near the Lindbergh home, and figured prominently in her testimony. (AP Photo)

TICKETS FOR BIRTHDAY BALL SELLING GOOD

$200 Already Raised From Contributions For First Tickets Offered

Advance ticket sales for the President's Birthday Ball to be held here Saturday the $200 mark today with only two sections of the county outside of Greenville, having been visited by members of the advance sale committee. Ticket sales committees were appointed in Bethel and Stokes yesterday and these two committees began their activities by placing four of the advance tickets at $5 each.

The sale got under way here Monday with E. G. Flanagan giving $25 for the first ticket offered and since that time near thirty Greenville citizens.

Three Shot In Strike Disturbance

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Three men were shot when police opened fire on 300 garage mechanics and strike sympathizers as they broke the large front window of McDonald-Giffilan Motor Company.

Claire Hogan, 29, St. Paul, was brought to general hospital with a gunshot wound in his leg. His wound was declared not serious. Police were placed to guard him.

The demonstration apparently was expected and several members of the police department had been assigned to the property to guard against eventualities. The disturbance was the first one since the strike of garage mechanics began January 3.

Others wounded were Burns Powers, shot in the leg and Everett Longford shot in the jaw and face.

Johnson Heads House And Grady The Senate Governor's Message Tomorrow Night

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The 1935 General Assembly convened here shortly after noon today and while the Senate held only a perfunctory session going through the motion of electing its officers nominated at last night's caucus the House launched into business with unusual vigor for an initial session.

During the hours session the House rules were suspended for passage of a joint resolution memorializing congress to enact legislation governing interstate operation of motor trucks in the interest of highway safety in this and other states.

The resolution was ordered sent to the Senate which had adjourned after a 20-minute session.

The House also received a bill from New Hanover Representative T. E. Cooper, for removal of the toll from the twin bridges across Northeast and Cape Fear rivers at Wilmington.

A protest against the seating of Representative C. R. Zickler of Alexander, was received and referred to the committee on privilege and elections.

The House met at 12:01 and adjourned an hour and 11 minutes later to meet at noon Thursday. The Senate opened its session at 12:07 and 20 minutes later adjourned to meet at noon Thursday.

Governor Ehringhaus will deliver his biennial message to a joint session of the assembly at 7:15 p. m., tomorrow.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Its leaders already determined in caucus of the majority Democratic party, members of the North Carolina General Assembly gathered at the capital today to formally elect their presiding officers and other attaches.

While a maze of problems, financial and social, confronted the biennial session, interest centered largely on more immediate problems, completion of the more important committees and the message of Governor Ehringhaus. Governor Ehringhaus, who is now at the half-way mark of his administration, is expected to deliver his biennial message to a joint session tomorrow night. That he will ask re-enactment of the administration sponsored retail sales tax, is considered a foregone conclusion.

The formality of its organization over the law-makers will be ready to receive the governor's recommendation. (Continued on Page Four)

Funeral For E. A. Parker Held Tuesday

Funeral services for E. A. Parker were conducted Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock from his late home on East Eighth street.

Mr. Parker was born in Cumberland county, later moving to Kinston where he was engaged in the photography business for fifteen years. About twenty years ago he moved to Greenville where he continued his business.

Surviving are his widow and two daughters, Miss Gretchen Parker of Greenville, Mrs. J. D. Bryson of Chase City, Va., and one son, R. A. Parker of Kinston. Also one grandson, R. A. Parker, Jr., of Kinston.

Saved!
 By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NO, NO, Rip insisted, "you do not understand. You mustn't carry me back home. Willy Nilly, let me down. I feel all right now. Really I do. I was trying to find my way home when I heard moans and I discovered a man who had broken his leg. I rubbed a little warmth into him, and I think he will be all right if we can get back to him quickly enough."

"Couldn't you get your sled, Willy Nilly? I don't know how we'll be able to get him back to safety if you don't. He could never walk," Rip said.

Willy Nilly pulled a bone out of his pocket and gave it to Rip.

"I'll go for the sled at once," he said. "You go and tell the man that help is coming and Christopher will fly with you and then back to meet me so as to show me the way."

When Rip reached the man he feared that he had not been able to withstand the cold for he was so quiet. But as Rip barked furiously the man opened his eyes.

"You... wonderful dog," the man said in a low, tired voice. "You've come." Rip tried to show the man by shaking his head in the direction from which he had come that a sign would soon be here.

Soon Willy Nilly brought the sled. They got on the sled and Willy Nilly began to pull it home. Christopher flew ahead to tell the others, and after a hard struggle the rescued man was at last in Willy Nilly's little house.

They had some hot soup at once and Willy Nilly rubbed warmth back into the man's frost-bitten toes and hands, but the man seemed too weak to tell where he lived.

Tomboy—Feeling Better

Chapter 47
GOOD NEWS

"SOMETHING they wanted to keep out of the newspapers?" I interrupted. "That strikes me as singularly considerate of them, but a little belated."

"You mean?" said Mr. Cresswell.

"I mean that when I was in the middle of my particularly disgusting mess, nobody, least of all the government, was worried about what got into the news."

"I know how you feel," said Jerry. "Nevertheless, you'll agree that the less re-hashing that's done, the better for everybody. Anyway, they do want to keep this quiet."

"In order to do that it was necessary to obtain our agreement, and since you, as the principal party concerned, were laid up with a cracked shoulder, Mr. Cresswell and I had been invited to represent the three of us."

"Why didn't they ask me?" demanded Molly.

"It was a little awkward," explained Mr. Cresswell soothingly. "Since you are a naturalized American citizen the position was a distinctly delicate one. It was felt that you would have to be approached in a more indirect form."

Molly laughed. "That makes me feel frightfully important. Go ahead, Jerry. I won't interrupt again."

fully, "that without exactly meaning to, we've rendered a vastly important service to our King and country. As soon as Mr. Cresswell fired in that statement of ours to the police, the first thing they did was to raid Orloff's flat and offices."

"I don't know precisely what they found—Beckenham didn't tell us that—but, anyhow, it was quite enough to prove that for the last two years he'd been getting hold of all sorts of valuable information and passing it on to his pals at Moscow."

"I can tell you they aren't half pleased at having him out of the way, especially if it can be fixed up without any fuss or scandal. What seems to have put the crown on the whole business is this blessed formula of Molly's. Beckenham says that if the Soviet leaders had once laid their hands on that there'd probably have been another European war."

"HAVE they any objection to our selling it to Avon?" I asked.

"Not under certain conditions. They're in touch with him, of course, and I gather that the negotiations are getting along nicely."

"What about the rest of the gang—apart from Orloff?"

"There were only three others down at Hambridge; two of them were sailors off the ship, and the third, our waiter friend, seems to have been a sort of unofficial link between Peter and the Bolsheviks."

"They all got back safely on board, and the skipper pushed off for Russia, next morning. From our people's point of view it's the best way out. The one thing they want to avoid is any sort of publicity."

"And that nasty little reptile Dimitri? Is he going to get off scot free?"

"Not by a long chalk. They've roped him in for coming over here with a dud passport. He'll be had up before a magistrate next week and shipped off quietly to the States. I gather that the New York police will be quite pleased to see him."

"When are they going to do something for Nick?" demanded Molly. "Isn't it about time...?"

"I was coming to that," Jerry's eyes twinkled mischievously. "I suppose you've been too busy talking to each other to have a look at the morning paper?"

He reached out for a folded copy of the Daily Telegraph, which Dawson had brought in to me just before Molly's arrival. "Here you are," he added, opening it. "Peruse this, my children, and be thankful you have a sense of humor."

He dabbed his finger on an editorial at the top of the second column, and leaning over it with our heads close together, Molly and I read as follows:

"The announcement issued by the Home Office last night with regard to communications (except for the telephone). This company would be privately owned but subject to rigid federal supervision."

There's more behind this project than improved efficiency and economy. Insiders understand it has been warmly urged by high officials of the Army and Navy as a measure essential to the national defense. The set-up would provide for prompt transfer to the military authorities in the event of war. Full control of cables is rated especially important.

Also from the national defense angle, existing communications companies would further be required to sever all financial entanglements of any sort they now have in foreign countries.

There will be little resistance to the plan and it's expected that any necessary legislation can be passed with ease. The toughest problem will be to apportion the stock of the merged corporation in such a way as to satisfy security holders whose interests will be affected.

Buying: A New Yorker recently returned from the west reports that ing boom in bicycles. One western store has sold 2,000 of them and they are now being ordered in car-load lots.

Technique: The poor old New York Public Service Commission is getting old—shouldered all over the place. Not only did Floyd Carlisle pass it up in favor of a committee from the state legislature in proposing the Washington plan for his companies. That committee's chairman and counsel—Senator Dunning and John E. Mack—are now cozily discussing the proposition without even inviting Commission members to listen in.

It's worth noting that the state legislature has the power—if it chooses—to fix utility rates without consulting the Public Service Commission at all. Don't be surprised if this happens. You hear it said in Wall Street that utility interests hope it does. It's suggested that this technique might afford a partial escape from annoying federal attentions.

Fun: An officer of a large utility corporation privately reports that his company receives ten times as many abusive letters from disgruntled security holders as it gets from complaining consumers.

He figures this is one reason why the response of security holders to the woe of their companies has been so disappointing. Instead of wanting to help us, a lot of them are delighted that the government is kicking us in the slats. They seem to take the slant that their investments have shrunk too much to give any hope of getting their money back—so they might as well have fun watching us squirm."

Challenge: Secretary Ickes' thinly veiled attempt to oust Robert Moses as chairman of New York's Triborough Bridge Authority may get him into a worse jam than he bargained for. Those who know the situation say that Moses has done a swell job and most of the progress made to date is due to his efforts. They insist it can't be anything but a pure case of spite on Ickes' part because Moses criticized the PWA and the New Deal in general in his campaign for Governor.

If Moses is forced to quit—or if funds for the bridge are held up because he doesn't—there'll be a howl for Ickes' head you could hear in the moon. And some of the leading howlers will be Democratic politicians whom Jim Farley can't afford to ignore if he wants to keep his grip on the state. They figure Moses is the best man to get action—and action means jobs for their constituents.

Ickes reminds some observers of a bantam rooster who went around looking for fights. He licked a lot of birds but finally made the mistake of challenging a buzz-saw.

Emphasis: Conservatives noted the President's emphasis when he said, "The federal government must, and shall quit, this business of rearmament." That's consoling but skeptics remark that the last time he was emphatic he insisted that the price level must and will be raised—whereupon it practically quit rising and the notion has apparently been forgotten.

A New Yorker observes: "I knew there was something odd about FDR's message and it finally dawned on me what it was. He forgot to taw! out, the bankers."

Government construction of rail-ways in Poland is increasing.

The lobster chews its food before putting it into its mouth; a set of external food choppers cuts up the food before it is passed into the mouth proper.

ONE PLACE TO GET MORE REVENUE

One of the major tasks facing the General Assembly that opened in Raleigh today is that of revenues to take care of the necessary public functions during the coming two years. One of the avenues that should be pursued by the legislators as a source of additional revenues should be a change in the constitution that at present limits the income tax rate to six per cent. Of course in order to bring about this change whereby the rate might be increased it will be necessary to amend the constitution, but the legislators should lose no time in calling a state-wide election to vote on such an amendment.

Elections cost money and an effort will be made to put this matter off until the regular election in 1936 but, as we see it, the cost of the election would be more than offset by getting this change in the tax laws into effect a year earlier.

DRIVE TO LIVE—NOT TO KILL

The safety slogan adopted by this city, "Drive To Live—Not To Kill," contains a world of good advice for motorists and if truly put into practice will go a long way toward cutting down the number of highway and street accidents. Not until every person who drives an automobile realizes that he or she is responsible for helping to keep the highways safe for travel will our accidents decrease. Selfishness has always caused a lot of trouble and that is likewise one of the chief troubles on our highways. The highway belongs to the other fellow just as much as it belongs to you, and we urge you to keep this in mind the next time you take your car out.

up a temperature of 103 merely by holding the passage in FDR's annual message that elicited applause. They burned when he defined the profit motive as a right, by work, for a man to earn a decent livelihood; when he attacked present day influence which great wealth exerts on government; when he promised abolition of the evils of holding companies.

Washington during the next few months will be fuller of corporation lawyers and lobbyists than the back room at an Elks' convention.

Even this all fits into the picture. Railroads and airlines do a land office business carrying the worried ones here, there and everywhere. So do the hotels, and to a varying degree downward all local business. Angles of this intricate New Deal group up everywhere. Have you noticed that the bellhops don't run for your bags any more and the clerk is apt to yawn in your face when you ask for a room? That signifies activity.

Shaping: Today is the day business men get a chance to air their minds before the NRA about the price provisions in their Code of Fair Competition.

Long before this open forum was called the present administrative board of NRA made up its mind that an elastic standard should be laid on industry insofar as pricing was concerned. In some industries it was desirable; in others impossible. Some needed stringent regulation and others would be happy with a looser set of rules.

Anyone properly affiliated may have ten minutes for facts, figures and oratory, sideline would be inclined to observe the breath might be wasted. Chief Coordinator Donald Richberg has been working on a bill to continue the NRA's life in considerably curtailed form. Shortly, President Roosevelt will send a special message to Congress on the subject. The Federal Trade Commission is set to take back an important chunk of business regulation.

Roller: The grand strategy committee is lining up the procession of new measures for passage through Congress. Vice President Garner and Speaker Byrns head the committee. Majority Leader Bankhead will join hands as soon as he recovers—although it's known that he's very ill. Chairman O'Connor of the Rules Committee will pull a strong card.

The big Democratic majority has the steam-roller in fine shape. If labor and industry were not sharpening their knives the prospects would be good for greased legislation. Bonusboosters must be beaten somehow—nobody knows just how, at this stage. Then comes inflationists later in the month.

Interruptions and delays from Huey Long and Townsend old-age back making paving material for the pavement. The great machine must have something to work on. Republican opposition is not enough to make it worthwhile to steam up the roller.

Huddle: Don't overlook the slim chances of four or five leading Ambassadors returning to the homeland for the Christmas holidays and then going into series of joint heads at the State Department.

Calling the roll, they were Robert W. Bingham, who represents out of London; William E. Dodd, at Berlin; Breckinridge Long at Rome; and William C. Bullitt, at Moscow.

If the talk that has leaked out of their meetings with Secretary of State Hull is true they have a tough row to hoe, but the understanding was there was talk on the fire about reviving the purpose and ambitions of the ill-fated London Economic Conference of June, 1933.

This would involve international monetary stabilization and a lot of other things on which nations generally seem to see eye to eye about as clearly as you would with Ben Turpin.

"Well," demanded Jerry with a chuckle. "What do you think of it?"

"Splendid," I said. "I shall have it cut out and framed. It will look very fine hanging up in the studio." I bent over the paper again. "By the way, where is this precious announcement? I haven't seen it yet."

"Oh, it's there—on the front page. Just a short statement that the authorities are now satisfied that Gowland was the murderer, and that no one else had anything to do with it."

"Yes, that's all very fine and nice," Molly looked up indignantly, "but..."

"Wait," Jerry said impressively. "The vital part of our message has yet to be delivered." He turned to me. "I have a letter for you here, Nick. Beckenham thought it would be a pretty and appropriate touch if I were to hand it to you myself."

He produced a large square official-looking envelope from his pocket and passed it across. "You can read it, too, Molly," he added.

Tearing open the flap I drew out its contents, which consisted of a single sheet of typewritten paper, headed with the address of the Board of Works.

Dear Sir:

I am instructed to inform you that the design submitted by you for the projected Hyde Park Memorial has been definitely selected by the Committee on the terms set out in their original statement. The Committee regret to learn that you are temporarily indisposed. They hope, however, to have the pleasure of meeting you personally and discussing further details as soon as you have sufficiently recovered to arrange an appointment.

Your obedient servant,
 HENRY DAVIES,
 Secretary.

Molly gave a little cry and looked up with sparkling eyes. "Isn't that too lovely. I wonder what all the chattering fools who thought you were guilty will have to say now?"

I stared at the letter a trifle doubtfully. "It's a big compliment," I admitted, "but I should feel just a shade more enthusiastic if I were quite sure that I'd won it on my merits. It looks rather like a cheap get-out on the part of the Home Secretary."

Jerry laughed. "You needn't worry about that, old man. Beckenham told me that as a matter of fact the Committee had decided to accept your design the very day before you were arrested. They couldn't give it to you then, of course, and the whole question had to be reconsidered. That's why they've been such a terribly long time in making the award. You've no call to be uppish."

Sir William Avon has something to say, tomorrow.

all the principal trains around the year-end were running in three sections and crammed with buyers—bound mostly for New York and Chicago.

He adds that the buyers' conversations indicated that their activity is the real thing and that manufacturers will be treated to an upsurge of business for three months anyhow. A great many stores throughout the country contracted for heavy inventories before NRA went into effect to avoid higher prices. Now these goods are gone and retail demand continues so heavy that stocks must be replenished promptly. It's distinctly a seller's market for almost all kinds of consumer's goods.

There is evidence that women in all sections are stepping out and spending with a confidence they haven't shown in years. Sales of household appliances have been extraordinary. Among the only retail items which hang heavy are hosiery, cotton sheets and pillow cases. Makers and movers still have a surplus of these on hand.

A curious by-product of the rising tide of purchases is an amaze-

ing boom in bicycles. One western store has sold 2,000 of them and they are now being ordered in car-load lots.

Technique: The poor old New York Public Service Commission is getting old—shouldered all over the place. Not only did Floyd Carlisle pass it up in favor of a committee from the state legislature in proposing the Washington plan for his companies. That committee's chairman and counsel—Senator Dunning and John E. Mack—are now cozily discussing the proposition without even inviting Commission members to listen in.

It's worth noting that the state legislature has the power—if it chooses—to fix utility rates without consulting the Public Service Commission at all. Don't be surprised if this happens. You hear it said in Wall Street that utility interests hope it does. It's suggested that this technique might afford a partial escape from annoying federal attentions.

Fun: An officer of a large utility corporation privately reports that his company receives ten times as many abusive letters from disgruntled security holders as it gets from complaining consumers.

He figures this is one reason why the response of security holders to the woe of their companies has been so disappointing. Instead of wanting to help us, a lot of them are delighted that the government is kicking us in the slats. They seem to take the slant that their investments have shrunk too much to give any hope of getting their money back—so they might as well have fun watching us squirm."

Challenge: Secretary Ickes' thinly veiled attempt to oust Robert Moses as chairman of New York's Triborough Bridge Authority may get him into a worse jam than he bargained for. Those who know the situation say that Moses has done

SPECIAL WINTER BLEND CONOCO BRONZE GASOLINE

The lower the mercury drops, the more you'll like Special Winter-Blend Conoco Bronze Gasoline. EXTRA HIGH TEST! It gives an explosive mixture at 50° below zero. It starts at any temperature at which the starter will crank the motor. LESS CHOKING! After a short warm-up, you can pick up smoothly, without using the choke! SAVE MONEY! Save your battery. Get more mileage. Drive into your Conoco dealer's today and try a tankful. You are going to like it!

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY — Established 1875

—to get easier starting, greater motor protection and better gasoline mileage. Ask your Conoco dealer for the 10W or 20W grade of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. You will see at once how much easier your car starts and how much smoother it runs.

INSTANT STARTING LIGHTNING PICK-UP

TRY THIS BETTER WAY OF STARTING YOUR CAR IN EXTREMELY COLD WEATHER.

Automobile makers recommend this method of starting in cold weather, except for cars with automatic starters. Try it for a quick, easy start without danger of "flooding" by too much choking.

*If your motor does not start instantly on Special Winter-Blend Conoco Bronze Gasoline, it needs mechanical service.

1. Leave ignition OFF. Pull choke out all the way. Push down your clutch pedal and keep it down.
2. Open hand-throttle one-third. Leaving ignition OFF, step on starter for several motor revolutions.
3. Push choke back in. Turn ignition on. Step on starter. Motor should fire instantly.
4. Warm up motor gradually. Use choke sparingly, only enough to get smooth firing.

Father-Son Banquet at Stokes High School

The Agricultural students of Stokes High school were hosts to their dads at a Father and Son Banquet held in the Agricultural class room at the high school building on the 19th of December, 1934. Covers were laid for eighty, and the girls of the senior class served a meal of two courses. Lester Williams, president served as toastmaster.

Senator A. B. Corey was the chief speaker of the evening. In speaking of the Processing Tax he said that it was helping the farmers a great deal.

Each member of the Agriculture class gave a short report on the work that he had completed during his work in agriculture.

Others who made short talks were: Mr. D. H. Conley, Mr. R. T. Cox, Mr. C. D. Ward and Mr. H. S. Capps.

This very successful banquet was sponsored by the local chapter of the Future Farmers of America, a National Organization of students taking Agriculture.

The list of guests follows: Mr. D. H. Conley, County Superintendent of Schools; Mr. R. T. Cox, Member County Board of Commissioners; Mr. C. D. Ward, Principal of Winterville School; Mr. H. S. Capps, Principal of Stokes School; Mr. J. B. Congleton and Mr. Haywood Hardy, Local School Committee men.

Ends Sore Throat Two Ways!

There is now a doctor's prescription that does these two remarkable things:

- 1. In 15 minutes and with only one swallow, it relieves throat soreness and irritation. Also stops coughs. 2. Does a lot more besides. Acts internally to quickly drive fever and cold out of the system. Hence so much better.

This wonderful medicine is now sold under the name THOXINE. It is safe, pleasant—effective for adults and children alike. Take no chances with sore throat and coughs when you can get Thoxine—real prescription medicine—for only 35c. Results guaranteed or you get your money back. Pitt Drug Co.—(Adv.)

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington, D. C.—The Vice-President is back in town.

Under ordinary circumstances such an announcement would mean the Vice-President of the United States is in the capital a few days prior to the convening of Congress.

Politicians and those who make it their business to observe politics in an inventory. They have arrived at these conclusions:

First, the Vice-President is John Nance Garner.

Second, "Cactus Jack" (the House of Representatives gave him that name and he's proud of it) never leaves Uvalde, Texas, until the local station master informs him by telephone of the last possible train to reach Washington in time for him to do his part in convening Congress.

Speakership Fight Crucial. Mr. Garner arrived in Washington at a time (it was 8:30 of a cold, foggy morning) when the fight for the Speakership of the House in the next Congress was entering the crucial stage. He smilingly denied at the Union Station, however, that he was concerned over the matter.

Later in the day he went further. In the early afternoon, after he had gone to the Union Station again, this time to greet President Roosevelt upon his return from Warm Springs; and, after he had accompanied the President on an inspection tour of the newly-enlarged executive offices at the White House, he told newspapermen:

"My understanding is, the administration is not taking any stand (on the Speakership race). I think that is good policy. I have not seen any exhibition of interference with that policy since 'His Nibs' has been here."

Friend of Candidate. Garner's close personal friendship for one of the candidates for Speaker—Sam Rayburn, of Texas (incidentally his own campaign manager for the Democratic Presidential nomination at Chicago in 1932—in view of his statement "on the steps of the White House" is puzzling not only to bona fide politicians here, those who set themselves up as political observers, but also of the dozen or so aspirants for the Speakership.

The baffling thing was the absence in Garner's statement at the White House, they say, of any expression of "Cactus Jack's" own personal opinion. That statement, in their estimation, was the "VP" speaking—probably for the administration.

Their deduction, therefore, is this: The administration may desire (and will insofar as possible) remain neutral in the Speakership fight. But will Jack Garner?

CAPTURE BOYS, FAIL TO GET MISSING $200. Goldsboro, Jan. 9.—A pocketbook containing nearly $200 was snatched from Mrs. Ina Smith, of Simmons street, by a small negro boy named Dennis, on Center Street about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The boy was caught; but said that he had given the pocketbook to another negro boy, Rex Smith. Smith was also caught, but denied receiving the purse, and the money has not yet been recovered.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Miss Missouri Smith, were walking along the walkway in the center of Center street in the heart of the business district, when Mrs. Smith heard someone singing behind her. Looking back she saw the 10-year-old negro and walked on, thinking no more about it. Suddenly the boy grabbed the pocketbook and jerked it loose from the handle, which was left in Mrs. Smith's hand, and darted between automobiles across the street into an alleyway.

A number of people joined in the chase and caught him, and later police got the other boy.

He smilingly denied at the Union Station, however, that he was concerned over the matter.

Later in the day he went further. In the early afternoon, after he had gone to the Union Station again, this time to greet President Roosevelt upon his return from Warm Springs; and, after he had accompanied the President on an inspection tour of the newly-enlarged executive offices at the White House, he told newspapermen:

"My understanding is, the administration is not taking any stand (on the Speakership race). I think that is good policy. I have not seen any exhibition of interference with that policy since 'His Nibs' has been here."

Friend of Candidate. Garner's close personal friendship for one of the candidates for Speaker—Sam Rayburn, of Texas (incidentally his own campaign manager for the Democratic Presidential nomination at Chicago in 1932—in view of his statement "on the steps of the White House" is puzzling not only to bona fide politicians here, those who set themselves up as political observers, but also of the dozen or so aspirants for the Speakership.

The baffling thing was the absence in Garner's statement at the White House, they say, of any expression of "Cactus Jack's" own personal opinion. That statement, in their estimation, was the "VP" speaking—probably for the administration.

Their deduction, therefore, is this: The administration may desire (and will insofar as possible) remain neutral in the Speakership fight. But will Jack Garner?

CAPTURE BOYS, FAIL TO GET MISSING $200. Goldsboro, Jan. 9.—A pocketbook containing nearly $200 was snatched from Mrs. Ina Smith, of Simmons street, by a small negro boy named Dennis, on Center Street about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The boy was caught; but said that he had given the pocketbook to another negro boy, Rex Smith. Smith was also caught, but denied receiving the purse, and the money has not yet been recovered.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Miss Missouri Smith, were walking along the walkway in the center of Center street in the heart of the business district, when Mrs. Smith heard someone singing behind her. Looking back she saw the 10-year-old negro and walked on, thinking no more about it. Suddenly the boy grabbed the pocketbook and jerked it loose from the handle, which was left in Mrs. Smith's hand, and darted between automobiles across the street into an alleyway.

A number of people joined in the chase and caught him, and later police got the other boy.

Bridge Literature. By E. Hall Downes, is a treatise on coups, end plays and squeezes, with particular attention to squeezes. It is a lucid explanation of the way to determine whether the possibility of a squeeze, coup or end play exists and how to develop the play. There is a "tapal" formula for the squeeze, meaning threats, assumption, prate rules for every playing situation are set forth in Ely Culbertson's red book of plays and Constipation Poisons. Constipation allows poisons to form in the bowels and makes you feel sick. At the first feeling of constipation, take Theodor's Black-Draught for prompt, refreshing relief. It has helped thousands of men and women.

Mrs. A. J. Davenport, of Paducah, Ky., writes that "Black-Draught acts well and seems to carry off impurities. It always helps me."

Black-Draught is made of purely vegetable ingredients—leaves and roots of plants highly regarded for their dependable medicinal action. THEODOR'S BLACK-DRAUGHT.—(Adv.)

Sometimes the squeeze is earmarked from the course of play of a few tricks. For instance in the following hand:

Speaker Tradition Of Feminine Aide To Be Carried On. By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington, D. C.—Women secretaries to high officials in Washington will be able to add a new one to their ranks with Joe Byrns of Tennessee, Speaker of the new Congress.

Mrs. Margaret Robertson, secretary to the lanky, genial Tennesseean for thirteen years, will carry on the long-standing tradition on Capitol Hill that the Speaker's secretary be a woman.

From the time that Nick Longworth brought with him to the handsomely appointed suite of offices on the second floor of the Capitol, provided for the Speaker, a woman secretary, one of that sex has held the job.

Longworth's secretary was Miss Mildred Reeves. She remained with him from the time he became Speaker in 1925 until his death in 1931.

Wife As Secretary. When Jack Garner succeeded to the Speakership he brought with him his wife as secretary. Mrs. Garner had served in this position during most of her husband's career in Congress and followed him in similar capacity when he moved to the other side of the Capitol as Vice-President.

The late Speaker Rainey followed Garner's example and brought along his wife as secretary when he was elected presiding officer of the House. Mrs. Rainey, like Mrs. Garner, had been her husband's secretary for years before.

And now comes Mrs. Robertson, a wife and mother, and said to be an authority on politics and the ways of Congress, to carry on.

With Mrs. Robertson as the Speaker's secretary, that makes it just such positions during this Congress. The secretary to Snell, of New York, Republican leader of the House, is a woman—Mrs. E. A. Gridley, wife of a Washington newspaperman.

Mrs. Garner still is listed as secretary to the Vice-President and McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader of the Senate, has a woman as secretary, too.

Position of Responsibility. Secretaries to the titular leaders in Congress—especially the one to the Speaker—have highly responsible positions.

The Speaker still is a representative in Congress and the needs of his district must be attended to just the same as before.

That's where the secretary comes in.

WORK STARTS SOON ON PENDER COURTHOUSE. Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 9.—R. C. Dellinger, manager of the district re-employment office here, said yesterday on receipt of a report from A. B. Brown, manager of the Burgaw employment bureau, that the demolishing of the Pender County courthouse to make way for construction of a new building will be started at once.

Federal Emergency Relief Administration labor will be used for the job, which will require about a month, it was said.

Construction of the new courthouse, made possible through a $15,000 PWA loan and grant, is expected to be started shortly after the area is cleared. An additional $10,000 is needed in order to meet the price of the lowest bidder, a Charlotte concern, the re-employment official said. This is expected to be obtained. No official notice of award has been received here.

NOT MACHINES PUT UP TO CITY MANAGER. Goldsboro, N. C., Jan. 9.—City Manager Z. G. Hollowell was instructed by the Goldsboro Board of Aldermen on Monday evening to enforce the law governing slot and vending machines and punch boards and was given full power to proceed as he saw fit.

Instructions by the aldermen followed the hearing of lengthy protests from delegations representing six civic and fraternal organizations against the "flagrant violation of the law" in the operation of the machines. The delegation represented the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, Junior Order, Knights of Pythias, Brotherhood Relief Club and the Wayne Lodge of Masons.

EXEMPTION FOR ORANGE IN BEER LAWS IS ASKED. Chapel Hill, Jan. 9.—Several hundred signatures have been secured for a petition here asking the General Assembly to exempt Orange county from the alcoholic contents provision of all State laws relating to beer or other malt beverages. The petition states specifically that the request does not refer to any laws relating to hard liquors. The petition declares that the exemption is needed by dealers in malt beverages in order that they may successfully compete with "bootleggers" who are flooding the county with beverages of higher alcoholic contents than that provided by law.

How Calotabs Help Nature To Throw Off a Bad Cold. Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fifth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminators, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of the germ-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which are needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package. (Adv.)
