

Increase Of $3,500,000 In State Expenditures Recommended Budget

PAY INCREASE FOR TEACHERS

15 Per Cent Pay Boost For Teachers And Employees; More Money For State Institutions

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15.—An increase of only $3,500,000 a year in the general fund budget for the next two years, of which $2,500,000 a year is proposed to be used to increase the State appropriation for schools to $18,500,000 a year, is recommended in the report of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and the Advisory Budget Commission, just transmitted to the General Assembly.

This amount of additional revenue can be raised, according to the Governor and Budget Commission, without levying any new taxes and will be sufficient to grant all school teachers and State employees an increase of 15 per cent in salaries. This increase in salaries is made necessary, according to the Budget report, by the sharp increases in the cost of living during the past two years resulting from the partial inflation of the dollar.

The general fund budget would thus be $29,517,351 for the fiscal year 1935-1936 and $30,056,650 for 1936-1937. In order to be assured of this much revenue for each year of the coming biennium, the retention of the present 3 per cent sales tax is recommended as well as the removal of most of the present exemptions. The continuation of the diversion of $1,000,000 a year from the highway fund to the general fund is also recommended, and the total availability each year predicated upon this diversion.

According to the Appropriation Bill prepared and submitted by the Advisory Budget Commission, it is proposed to spend $29,252,715 during the fiscal year 1935-1936, and $29,969,651 the last year of the biennium, from general fund sources, of course.

In addition to the general fund revenues, it is estimated that there will be available in the Agriculture Fund, derived from the State tax fertilizer and dedicated to the support of the State Department of Agriculture, a total of $572,248 for the fiscal year 1935-1936 and $623,703 for last year of the biennium, with obligations of $283,855 each year.

In the highway fund, an availability of $34,429,562 is forecast for the fiscal year 1935-1936 and of 28,326,710 for the fiscal year 1936-1937, as a result of the unappropriated balance of $12,266,062 expected to be on hand by July 1, 1935, and an expected carry-over of $6,023,210 from the 1935-1936 fiscal year over into the last year of the biennium.

The expenditures from the highway fund as proposed by the Budget Commission amount to $28,406,352 for the fiscal year 1935-1936, which will leave an unappropriated balance of $6,023,210 for the fiscal year of the biennium. The expenditure budget from the highway fund for the fiscal year 1936-1937 is estimated at $28,202,083, leaving an unexpended balance at the end of the last year of the biennium of $2,124,627.

Combining the general fund, agriculture fund and highway fund estimates into a single figure, the Budget Commission estimates that the total availability for the fiscal year 1935-1936 is $64,519,561, and for last year of the biennium $59,007,063. From these totals it proposes expenditures of $57,942,922 during the fiscal year 1935-1936 and $56,485,601 during the fiscal year 1936-1937, leaving an unappropriated balance of $6,576,639 for the first year of the biennium. The greater portion of these balances, of course, are highway fund balances.

In discussing his recommendations for increasing salaries and wages, the Budget Report says:

"The cost of salaries and wages was reduced by the 1931 General Assembly by 10 per cent and by the 1933 General Assembly by an amount sufficient to be at least 32 per cent for the institution and 38 per cent for the departments, including the first 10 per cent reduction. At the time this reduction was made the value of the dollar had increased greatly and was still increasing.

"Practically from the beginning of this biennium prices of commodities have been rising from various causes, such as Presidential plans to raise them through crop reduction programs, various codes, etc., and finally the devaluation of the gold content of money. Under present conditions...

COMMITTEES OF THE HOUSE ANNOUNCED

Cherry and Bryant Head Finance and Appropriations Committees

Raleigh, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Continuation of the three per cent sales tax with exemptions eliminated and larger appropriations to allow salary increases for all state employees were recommended to the General Assembly today and the session saw introduction of three bills to promote safety on the highway as well as one to increase the alcoholic content of beer in North Carolina.

The Senate got the three highway safety measures. Two would require driver's license for all motor vehicle operators in the state and a third would provide safeguards for children hauled in school buses.

In the House, a measure went forward to legalize the sale of beer of 4.5 per cent alcoholic content by weight as well as proposals to amend the election laws, outlaw slot machines, and permit persons convicted of capital felonies to be sentenced to prison instead of death.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—R. Gregg Cherry, of Gaston, and Victor F. Bryant, of Durham, today were named by Speaker Grady Johnson to head respectively the powerful committees on finance and appropriations in the House of Representatives for the 1935 General Assembly.

Representative Reginald L. Harris of Person, Speaker of the House in 1933, is chairman of the Committee on Education in the new set-up and C. W. Tatum, of Tyrrell, heads the Roads Committee. Judiciary No. 1 had R. B. Morphew, of Graham, as its leader, and Judiciary No. 2, W. A. Sullivan, of Buncombe.

Assignments were made public too late to permit accurate check-up this morning on the controversial sales tax issue from the committee membership standpoint.

Calf Without Tails

Jim Everett, who resides on the Elisha Edwards farm about four miles from this city on the Co-Mills road has a new addition to his live stock which he is exhibiting to his friends as one of his proud possessions.

On last Friday night a calf was born on the farm and upon examination it was revealed that this calf is absolutely without a tail. Otherwise the animal is perfectly formed and is said to be thriving.

BEGIN MOVE REDISTRRICT THIS COUNTY

Committee Named to Divide County into Commissioner Districts

The matter of division of Pitt County into commissioner districts in order to assure each section of the county representation on the Board of County Commissioners in the future, began to take form today with announcement by W. E. Hooks, Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee, of a committee to carry on the preliminary work preparatory to having the matter placed before the Legislature for action.

The plan was brought before the Democratic Convention in this city in June of last year, and following a favorable vote, Chairman Hooks was authorized to have a committee appointed to see to the passage of the legislation.

The committee named by Chairman Hooks follows:

Chairman, Dr. Paul Jones, Farmville, N. C.; John Harvey, Grifton, N. C.; Paul Moore, Ayden, N. C.; R. F. D. No. 2, W. J. Boyd, Ayden, N. C.; Roy T. Cox, Winterville, N. C.; D. J. Whitchard, Greenville, N. C.; J. C. Galloway, Grimesland, N. C.; R. F. D.; Mack G. Smith, Bell, Arthur, N. C.; C. L. Owens, Fountain, N. C.; W. H. Moore, Greenville, N. C.; R. F. D.; J. S. Fleming, Stokes, N. C.; J. J. Salterwhite, Pactivus, N. C.; and W. C. Whitehurst, Bethel, N. C.

It is understood that a meeting of the committee will be called immediately to begin its work of the proposed redistricting.

COUNTY WELL REPRESENTED IN THE HOUSE

Blount and Paylor Receive Important Committee Assignments

On the House side of the present General Assembly, Pitt County's two Representatives, elected for their first terms, found themselves named to six important committees each when the roster of House committee appointments was announced this morning.

The assignments were as follows: Representative M. O. Blount—Finance, Banks and Building; Public Welfare; Manufacturers and Labor; Penal Institutions; Agriculture.

Representative John Hill Paylor—Appropriations, Judiciary No. 1, Courts and Judicial Districts; Senatorial Districts; Elections and Election Laws; Public Welfare.

While all committees are important, the Finance and Appropriations Committees are usually considered the two most important of the General Assembly, and it is noted that Pitt County, despite the fact that her legislators are new arrivals at the capital, landed a berth on each of these important committees.

FISH AND GAME REQUESTS MAY BE ACCEPTED

Legislators Favorable To Recommendations Of Conservation Department

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Opinions were expressed here today by several members of the 1935 general assembly that recommendations of John D. Chalk, state fish and game commissioner, would prove highly acceptable.

Some members gave it as their opinion that the members of the legislature should refrain from the introduction of local bills designed to change the open season dates in their respective counties, whether designed to shorten or lengthen seasons until the assembly has been supplied with the program to be outlined by the department of conservation.

Local College To Get Larger Appropriation

East Carolina Teachers College here will get a larger appropriation each year for the next biennium than for the present one despite the fact that even then the appropriation will not be as large as requested or as felt by the school officials as needed to carry on the work of the institution.

The figures as set forth for the college in the budget estimate submitted to the Legislature are as follows:

Amount actually spent for the year 1933-1934, $74,342; requested for year, 1935-1936, $159,386; budget recommendation for 1935-1936, $89,180, or an increase of approximately $15,000 above expenditures for the year 1933-1934.

EXPERTS SAY HANDWRITING HAUPTMANN'S

Third Expert Identifies Hauptmann as Writer of Lindbergh Ransom Notes

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The dead Isador Fisch came inferentially into the murder trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann again today as a brother and two sisters arrived from Germany to combat institutions against him. Pincus, Hannah and Czerna Fisch and a nurse described as Missa Stegnitz arrived on the Ile de France with the New York detective Arthur Johnson. Hauptmann on trial for his life as the accused kidnaper and murderer of the baby, Charles Lindbergh, Jr., has claimed that Fisch gave him for safekeeping, the Lindbergh ransom money found in his Bronx garage.

While the witnesses arrived in New York, John F. Tyrrell, Milwaukee handwriting expert, was being cross-questioned as to the possibility that Hauptmann's handwriting might have been imitated in the Lindbergh ransom notes by another person. Tyrrell was the third expert to identify Hauptmann's handwriting as that in the notes. The defense brought Fisch into the trial with questions that pointed toward the possible thesis that Hauptmann's handwriting was forced to the fourteen Lindbergh ransom notes.

(Copyright By Associated Press) Flemington, N. J., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A third expert today identified the handwriting of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as that in the 14 ransom notes which followed the stealing and murder of the baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

John F. Tyrrell, of Milwaukee, called by the state in Hauptmann's trial for his life, added his opinion that the German carpenter was the writer of the notes as those already put into the record by Albert S. Osborn, Sr., and Elbridge W. Stein. One of the notes included in the identification is the first one which was left on the window sill of the Lindbergh nursery the night of March 1, 1932, when the baby was stolen from his crib, the state charging that he was carried down a breaking ladder to his death. On this note the state bases its major claim that Hauptmann was the writer.

SAAR RETURNS TO GERMANY

Nazis Begin Immediate Attack Upon Those Who Oppose Hitlerism

(Copyright by The Associated Press) Saar Bruecken, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The Saar governing commission announced today that the territory had voted overwhelmingly to reunite with Germany an dthe triumphant Nazis immediately began a drive against their foes. Sixteen Communists and several anti-Hitler people were arrested.

Police men warned an Associated Press correspondent to "get inside" asserting that the situation might become serious at any moment. Friendly women and children, crying for protection, filled the Socialists' headquarters. P. buses led from the territory by the hundreds.

The result of Sunday's plebiscite was made known by the League of Nations Commission after a night of tabulating that saw more than 90 per cent of the votes to the Nazis. Officials of the League, that have governed the wealthy, hitherto mining territory since the World War, announced the vote as follows: For return to Germany, 477,119; for return of the status quo, 46,413; for annexation to France, 2,124.

Of the 528,005 votes cast in the plebiscite Sunday, only 2,449 were disqualified.

EIGHT HURT IN SCHOOL BUS WRECK

North Wilkesboro, N. C., Jan. 15.—(AP)—A Wilkes County school bus collided with an automobile on the highway near here today, the bus turning over and injuring eight of the children. None were hurt seriously. They were taken to a hospital, but were dismissed after examination and treatment there.

THINK WAY OPEN WITHOUT THE SALES TAX

Would Raise Necessary Revenue From Income and Franchise Taxes

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 15.—In spite of the recommendations made by Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus and the Advisory Budget Commission for the retention of the 3 per cent sales tax and the removal of the exemptions as the best means of raising the minimum amount of revenue required to operate the state government for the next two years, there are several who do not agree that the sales tax needs to be retained at all.

One of these is Dr. Ralph McDonald, representative from Forsyth county, who is convinced that in spite of the present 6 per cent limitation on the state income tax, that it and the franchise tax laws can be changed so as to yield a great deal more revenue than they have been yielding.

"I am convinced that in spite of the 6 per cent constitutional limitation to the state income tax, that there are ways and means of greatly increasing the revenue from this law," Dr. McDonald said. "I am hoping to be able to show this general assembly how this can be done."

"I am also convinced that the state has by no means recaptured anything like as much as it should from the savings which accrue to foreign corporations and others from the heavy reduction made in property taxes by the 1933 general assembly. I think it should recapture a larger proportion of these savings."

Dr. McDonald said that conservative estimates showed that the 1933 general assembly failed to capture these savings which have accrued to large corporations by at least $6,000,000 a year or more—almost as much as the entire yearly yield of the 3 per cent sales tax.

Dr. McDonald is now understood to be working on a bill or series of bills designed both to increase the present yield from the state income tax and also to recapture a larger share of the ad valorem tax savings from the corporations in the hope that it will not be found necessary to retain the sales tax.

INTEREST IN BIRTHDAY BALL HERE GROWS

Appointment of Community Ticket Committees Completed This Morning

A growing interest in the second annual President's Birthday Ball to be held in the Campus Building at Teachers College here on January 30 has manifested itself within the past two days with the appointment of additional ticket committees in different sections of the county and the sale of additional tickets at the premium price of $5.

R. C. Stokes, Jr., chairman of the ticket sales committee, has reported the appointment of C. D. Ward as ticket chairman at Winterville and the sale of a $5 ticket to Roy T. Cox, of Winterville. Tom L. Turnage has been appointed ticket chairman of Ayden, and the sale is already under way in that city.

This morning Chairman Stokes visited Farmville where Jim Joyner accepted the ticket sales chairmanship. Immediately following the offering of tickets in that city, Sterling Gentes purchased a ticket for $5. No general solicitation was made there this morning, but Chairman Stokes stated he was sure that there were a number of citizens there who would gladly make the extra donations for their tickets in view of the good cause to which the proceeds from the ball would go.

Other ticket sales chairmen today included Bryant, Falkland, and Robert Fountain, Fountain.

The birthday ball this year promises to be one of the greatest social events ever held in this county. Already one of the State's best known orchestras has been secured to furnish music for the ball, and committees are busy at work making plans for other features of entertainment for the pleasure of the hundreds who are expected to attend.

PITT SENATOR ON SEVERAL COMMITTEES

Senator Corey Receives Appointment To Ten of Senate's Committees

Pitt County will not be lacking in representation in discussion of what goes on in the Senate of the present General Assembly, even that which takes place in the committees for Senator Arthur B. Corey, of this city, has drawn a place on ten of the committees according to appointments announced last night.

In addition to being named chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, Senator Corey was named a member of the following standing committees: Appropriations, Education, Public Roads, Judiciary No. 1, Courts and Judicial Districts, Banks and Currency, Trustee of the University, Agriculture, and Printing.

Already since the opening of the present session, Senator Corey has drawn attention by presenting the first drivers' license bill, and as co-presenter of the first bill in the Senate that would do away with the present absentee ballot in North Carolina. Included in other legislation that Senator Corey expects to sponsor and push in the present session, is a measure that would give the counties relief from their present bonded indebtedness for highways that are now a part of the State highway system.

DIVERSION OF HIGHWAY FUND TO DRAW FIRE

Would Use Highway Money to Aid Relief And Set Up Revolving Fund

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILL. Raleigh, Jan. 15.—The proposal to set aside $1,500,000 a year of highway maintenance funds to be used for work relief purposes in the state as well as the proposal to use $2,000,000 of the highway revenue to set up a permanent revolving fund, as recommended by the Budget Commission in its report, are regarded as sure to draw fire. The fact that the appropriations bill prepared by the Budget Commission recommends only $3,300,000 a year for new highway construction, or only slightly more than enough to match the Federal Aid grants, is expected to also rouse the ire of the highway advocates.

Those who wondered why Governor Ehringhaus failed to make any mention of relief in his message to the general assembly last week and why he made no recommendations concerning this topic, now find the answer in the report of the Governor and the Budget Commission. For of the $4,000,000 a year which they would set aside for state highway maintenance for the next two years, they recommend $500,000 of this amount be set aside for relief purposes, evidently to be used in providing the unemployed with work in maintaining state highways. And of the $6,000,000 a year which is recommended for county road maintenance, it is recommended that $1,000,000 a year be set aside for relief maintenance work on county highways.

Concerning this recommendation that a portion of the highway appropriations for maintenance be used for relief purposes the report of the Budget Advisory Commission says: "The Federal government has been spending a large sum of money in North Carolina for the relief of the unemployed and with a view of restoring prosperity to some extent. The state has contributed practically nothing for direct relief of unemployment. It now seems proper and necessary that the state should provide, within available means, some way of supplementing the Federal Relief program in this state.

"The revenues of the state have been such that it has been impossible to spend anything for this purpose. It is proposed in the budget of the State Highway and Public Works Commission to set up an additional $500,000 under maintenance of state highways, and an additional $1,000,000 under maintenance of county highways, to be used for relief purposes in connection with the maintenance of our roads. In so doing the benefits of the expenditures may be had on the highways of the state and at the same time we can aid those unemployed through a state program of work relief, supplementing the Federal activity."

Nothing is contained in either the report of the Budget Commission or in the Budget Appropriations bill outlining how this money for work relief shall be expended, or as to who will administer it. Most observers here today agreed that the general assembly will want to get the answers to all these questions before proceeding very far. Indications are that this question is going to be thoroughly threshed out before any action will be taken.

Much scrutiny is also going to be given the recommendation that $2,000,000 of the highway surplus or highway fund be taken for the purpose of creating a "permanent revolving fund." For it is agreed that this "revolving fund" would be nothing more than a $2,000,000 reserve fund to be held in the state treasury so the state might draw against it in cases of emergency, and thus save the interest it would otherwise have to pay. But the ones who maintain that all of the present highway funds are needed either for road maintenance or additional construction, do not feel that the motorists should be required to donate this $2,000,000 "revolving fund" to the state, in addition to the $1,000,000 a year which the Budget Commission thinks they should continue to contribute to the general fund by diverting that much a year to it.

SCOUTS STAGE PROGRAM FOR ROTARY CLUB

Last Night's Rotary Meeting Devoted to Scout Movement in This County

Boy Scouts have been progressing, Leon Keaton told the Rotarians at their meeting last night in their club building on Rotary Avenue. Besides the one going troop which he found when Scouting started anew recently, Mr. Keaton reported a new troop at the Christian Church, a new troop at the Third Street School sponsored by the Legionnaires, a rehabilitated troop of colored Scouts at the colored school, a Cub-Scout at the Episcopal Church. Also there are troops at Griffon, Arden and Bethel, he said. He referred to the meeting last week of the fifty-three men from rural Pitt County who met and discussed Scouting for rural Pitt County.

As for activities of a community service type, Mr. Keaton told of how the Scouts helped to keep excited children from under Santa Claus' truck as it drove down the street in the Greenville Christmas parade, who the Scouts collected toys from over the town to have the firemen men, the role of the Scouts in collecting food for the charitable agencies at Christmas time, and Buncle Day last Saturday.

"There are boys still without troops clamoring for a chance at Scouting which they all love and delight in. These boys are waiting for adult leadership to step out and supply leadership. There are men who need the role of leaders. We must bring these boys and men together. The men can get more out of it than the boys. Let's not only live out lives as examples for the boys, but also to help them avoid some of the rough spots and make it easier for some of them than it was for some of us," Dr. Keaton appealed in closing.

Executive J. J. Sigwald, who has charge of the East Carolina council in which Greenville district is located, next spoke briefly of the Scouting movement in Pitt County and the Council. He said Scout National officials looked upon Greenville as setting the pace for the Council.

He indicated that Rotary Clubs everywhere are actively supporting Scouting, 528 sponsored troops, 1,203 contributed funds, 87 organized 87 councils, 179 built buildings in Scout camps, 48 bought camps and equipped them, and 177 sent underprivileged boys to camps. Sigwald pointed out many similarities in Scouting and Rotary.

Then Executive Sigwald presented Certificates of Service to Dr. G. R. Combs, chairman of Greenville District; Fordy Harding, E. L. Henderson, Dr. K. B. Pace, B. B. Sugg, J. E. Winslow, K. T. Futrell, J. H. Ense, J. H. Waldrop, Joe Taft, and William Taft. These men are actively co-operating with the Scouting movement in official capacities. Those who were not present, and to whom certificates are yet to be awarded are: Norman Warren, Dr. J. Whitchard, C. W. Howard, Rev. W. A. Ryan, and Rev. A. W. Fleischmann.

Executive Sigwald concluded his remarks with an appeal for leaders from the men, disclaiming and intention of asking for money. The need is for leaders.

Dr. Combs, who presided over the program for the Scouts, closed the event with a strong feeling for the value of Scouting and assured his hearers he was more than glad to give his time.

Following him, Herbert ReBarker, president of the club, heartily endorsed the Scouting movement by saying he knew of no educational institution which contributed more to the character building of boys.

Prior to the speech-making, Leon Keaton presented a little skit acted by Greenville Scouts depicting the event in London of a Scout's good turn which brought Scouting to the attention of Publisher Bovee of Chicago, who then brought the idea to America from Baden Powell. The little playlet represented a scene on a foggy night in London. Bovee was seeking help for an elusive address. A street boy turned down his request for assistance. A Scout came up and showed the American the address and told the publisher of Scouting. The boy and his conversation cause Bovee to investigate and to become sold on Scouting and to bring it to America.

J. J. Sigwald, of Wilson, was a visiting Rotarian for last night's meeting. The attendance prize given by Wesley Harvey, was won by Wyatt Brown. Herbert ReBarker, president of the club, presided over the meeting.

Montana Rides Again

SYNOPSIS: Brother Pascual has come to the camp of Monty. Rubric is the leader. Monty is not the usual bandit; he steals only from those who can afford to lose. And Monty's personal is not the ordinary fear, for he has come to get Monty out of covering the general crowd of the Lords, stolen by the Governor from the church itself. Monty says Monty can do nothing, but that if "El Keed" were with him, it might be possible to capture the crown.

Chapter Four "EL KEED"

"A. H. Mateo, is this 'El Keed' the only man? This gringo you hate?"

"Ay, this man I hate is the only one. But I also love him, and he loves me. Hal, Pascual! Think that I had him under the muzzle of my gun. That his life was like this, in my hand to crush. And there lay Tonio, the traitor—Pascual, keep me from speaking about it."

"But I let them both go free because Tonio loves me, even while he is wearing another name and speaking another speech. And Montana I saw was the second man in the world. Rubric, then El Keed. There is no third."

"I could not kill him. I left the house. I took his hand. We spoke quietly. We were friends. For a little while, as I went away, my heart was so full with my friend that I could forget how I had lost Tonio through him."

"There are boys still without troops clamoring for a chance at Scouting which they all love and delight in. These boys are waiting for adult leadership to step out and supply leadership. There are men who need the role of leaders. We must bring these boys and men together. The men can get more out of it than the boys. Let's not only live out lives as examples for the boys, but also to help them avoid some of the rough spots and make it easier for some of them than it was for some of us," Dr. Keaton appealed in closing.

The blood-bay mare was being drawn to the post.

Brother Pascual knew very well that famous tale of how the Montana Kid, by means of a tattooed birthmark, had insinuated himself into the Lavery household in the place of the son whom Rubric, to repay the whip-stroke, had stolen twenty years before; but then some stroke of conscience had driven the Kid south into Mexico to find the real heir, whom he had seen there in his wanderings.

He knew how Montana had fought to take young "Tonio" away, and how Rubric, who had raised the boy to love him and hate the "gringos," had resisted desperately and then pursued the pair north towards the Rio Grande. Now Tonio was restored to his blood and his family; he had been sent off to Europe to put some distance between him and his terrible foster father, Rubric; and the Montana Kid—El Keed in Mexico—remained on the Lavery ranch about to marry the daughter of the family.

RUBRIC blew his nose with a great snoring sound.

"Now I am better," he said.

"This Montana who stole Tonio—began the friar.

"Be silent!" shouted Rubric, with the face of a madman.

"If he were with you, might you not steal back the emeralds, even from Fort Duraya and General Estrada? And if you went to El Keed, might he not remember how you once spared him? Might he not ride with you in spite of the danger?"

"He is to marry the sister of Tonio. How can I make him leave her?"

"Mateo, it is not for us to doubt. Let us go north towards the land of the gringos. Let us cross the river. When we have come to the place, God will surely show us the proper way. He will bring even Montana into our hands."

Rubric, at this, had stopped his pacing. His heart began to throb higher and higher.

"Pascual," he said, "who can tell,

Perhaps it is true. Perhaps it is the will of God, after all. It is true! I feel that the thing shall be. We shall ride together; we shall work together; and what will walls of stone be, what will soldiers be, when we two are side by side?"

"But he is a gringo—and ah, the pity of it!" said the friar.

"Ay," groaned Rubric, "the pity of it! But only his skin is American and his heart is pure Mexican!"

In the corral the blood-bay mare was being drawn to the snubbing post. And that great rider of outlaw horses, Tombstone Joe, was pulling the ropes. The cowpunchers sat like crows on the fence posts, eight feet from the ground.

The Montana Kid was among the crows from the veranda of the ranch house, he looked like any of the others except that his shoulders were a little wider and the big double cord of back muscle could be distinguished even at that distance, and—through the shirt.

Ruth Lavery stood by one of the porch pillars.

"We ought to go down," she said.

"There's no use having too much audience," said Richard Lavery. "That would make Montana want to ride the mare himself."

"He's promised not to," answered the girl. But fear changed the blue of her eyes as she spoke.

"Promises—well, promises are still only words, to Montana," said her father.

"Don't say that," she protested.

"Well, I won't say it, then," answered tall Richard Lavery. But he kept his thought in the grim lines of his face.

"You've never loved him?" said the girl, nervously.

"Honor and respect him I can," said Lavery, curtly. "He's more man than anyone I know."

At this she sighed, quietly, as one in whom a great emotion is constantly pent. And she broke out, suddenly, "You think he's only a tramp?"

"I don't think he's only a tramp," said Richard Lavery.

He looked down at a black band around the arm of his coat. His wife had died two months before.

"You think he's a tramp—and something more," said the girl, speaking quietly, mostly to herself.

"You sent Dick away to Europe—to get him away from Montana—to get him away from temptation. You've never trusted Montana."

"Now that your mother is gone," said Lavery, very zealously, "do you think that he'll be with us long?"

She lifted her head a little. She scanned, as if to find the answer there, the long lines of the valley, and the high plateaus, and the green pasture lands for miles and miles which all belonged to the Lavery estate.

"We'll be married Sunday," she said, briefly.

"He's put it off before," said the rancher, and there was no mercy in his hard voice. "He'll put it off again."

"He won't! This is the last time! He knows it!" Then she added, half-weary, half-sad and hurt.

"Doesn't he care about me?"

"Ay, he cares about you. And he cares about other things, too. Horses and guns—and his freedom."

SENATE RACE AGAIN FORCES TO THE FRONT

Many Express Belief Ehringhaus Would Have Excellent Chance to Win

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, By C. A. PAUL

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15.—Will Governor Ehringhaus be a candidate in 1936 for the United States Senatorial toga now worn by Josiah William Bailey?

That is one of the many questions perplexing State politicians today. The reassembling of legislators and the death of Attorney-General Dennis Brummitt brought the question again to the forefront of political topics.

The opinion expressed frequently here is that the Governor has an excellent appointment of Brummitt's successor. Not that the Governor will use his office merely to further any future political aspirations he may have, but he has the chance to kill two birds with the proverbial single stone; he might name as Brummitt's successor an entirely competent man and, at the same time, make a worthwhile political gesture.

Some legislators expressed the opinion Governor Ehringhaus might name as the State's new Attorney-General the popular Larry Moore of New Bern, former State legislator. Those who mentioned Moore as a possible appointee hinted that he might be a candidate for Senator Bailey's seat that comes up in 1936, and, they said, if the Governor contemplates running against Bailey, Moore's appointment would remove a formidable opponent from the 1936 primaries.

That Governor Ehringhaus' political star is rising, only a few will deny. He is immensely popular in the East, his home sector, and say observers from the West, the same thing is true out there. The secret behind his Western popularity, they say, is the Great Smokies Parkway, the highway which, say Ashevilleans, will be the making of that region as a mid-South recreational center. It must not be forgotten that Governor Ehringhaus himself played a large part in securing for the West that Parkway.

The sentiment against the Governor, according to opinions expressed here, has its peak, and some say its origin, in the Piedmont region. It was pointed out that the tax program of the past two years has hit hardest the Piedmont section, largely because of its industrial life. Too, said observers, the sales tax has its severest and most outspoken critics in that region because, it is said, industrial workers buy practically all their foodstuffs at stores where they must pay the tax, while farmers of the East and West raise more of their food and therefore supply their tables with a good proportion of foods upon which they have paid no sales tax.

Others pointed to the Governor's social program which he outlined in his address to the Legislature last week as a program which, if not designed for that purpose, will appeal to the rank and file. His approval of the Federal child labor amendment, endorsement of unemployment insurance, and his proposal for a State-owned textbook rental system, and particularly free books were hailed as overtures to the average voter, and particularly to those in the Piedmont region. The sanction of the child labor amendment and adoption of a textbook rental plan are beyond question, moves which will meet with much favor among cotton mill workers. Observers point out that the administration is apparently in the saddle and, as a result, will probably as a consequence be able to put across legislation which it most desires.

Therefore, say those who are informed in the matter of State politics, Governor Ehringhaus is in an excellent position to guide his rising star. Whether or not he will be able to get it over, Senator Bailey's Washington office is a matter for the electorate to decide.

not be quoted at this time, said he was opposed to the passage of those so-called local laws pertaining to hunting under the customary procedure of suspending the rules. He believes that conservation of fish and game, as a natural resource is of such state wide importance as to justify the withdrawal of senatorial courtesy, and that all such bills should go to the committee on conservation just as statewide bills do.

It was pointed out that if one county has a much longer open season than that of surrounding counties there is nothing to prevent hunting from those counties from converging upon that county for hunting purposes. That, of course, would cause the game supply in the long-season counties to be depleted at an alarming rate.

Commissioner Chalk pointed out that under present laws a county can have its open season shortened by a very simple process. "If enough citizens, twenty-five or so, of a particular county," he said, "petition the department for a shorter season we will hold an open hearing on the proposal. If evidence presented at such a hearing is such as to believe that sentiment in the county favors a shortening of the open season we of course do exactly that." Observers here were of the opinion that that plan is much better than the local bill plan because it demonstrates a spirit of cooperation with the department and would tend to keep out "wildcat" bills.

state for such vaudeville or road shows as may play this section.

Special stage lighting effects have been provided to give added beauty to the interior of the theatre. The building includes a ladies' lounge, men's room, foyer, and ample entrance lobby as well as numerous exits for regular or emergency use. The interior walls have been specially treated to render the production of talking pictures more real. Mr. Walker stated the sound equipment is the latest R. C. A. manufacture. The building which will seat around 900 persons, is of colonial architecture.

Manager Walker stated this morning that the new theatre will begin operations Monday with four shows. There will be three complete changes of programs each week, he said.

the general assembly is not bound in any way to follow them. But experience in the past four or five general assemblies has been that in spite of many and varied efforts to depart from the program laid down by the Governor and the Budget Commission it usually winds up by enacting appropriations and revenue law very similar to the one originally recommended.

Indications are that the Governor and his advisors will be very glad if this general assembly can find more money than has been outlined by the Budget Commission. But if it cannot, the belief is general that it will probably follow the recommendations as submitted in the report of the Budget Commission, of course, with the result that Monthly Supper Club.

On January 14 at 6:30 p. m., the Monthly Supper Club held its regular meeting in the Eighth Street Christian Church. The recreational committee served a very delightful supper as they always do. This committee is to be congratulated upon the splendid supper which they are serving the club. During the business session there were reports from the different committees. Of special interest was Miss Nannie Rowlett's report, chairman of the Every Member Canvass. After the business was transacted, there was a short devotional led by Daniel Garden. Miss Elsie Windham gave a talk on the "Modern Enemies of Youth." She mentioned the five most prominent ones: Indolence, purposelessness, cynicism, false evolution and indifferent selfishness. There are many enemies which youth has to cope with but they seem to originate from the "big five."

The meeting was adjourned with a prayer by Mrs. W. A. Ryan.

Number Students at A. C. C.

Wilson, Jan. 15.—Pitt county is well represented at Atlantic Christian College during the fall semester which ends on the 26th of this month. A total of 19 students are enrolled from this county at the present time.

Approximately 75 per cent of the student body comes from Eastern North Carolina. Twenty-four counties and five states are represented in the student enrollment this term.

Pitt's representatives are as follows: Inez Allen, Greenville; R. F. D. Dare Barnhill, Stokes; Edna Barnhill, Stokes; Hallis Cherry, Stokes; Robert Dixon, Farmville; F. D. Lydia Kilpatrick, Grifton.

Cardui Brought Improvement.

Because she was subject to pains, nervousness, irregularity, and began to feel so weak, Mrs. Retta McDonald, of Stearns, Ky., began to take Cardui. She writes: "Cardui is fine. I could see an improvement right off. I took about eight bottles. I am lots better. I am over the weakness and my head and back do not bother me now."

Resistance to monthly pains is naturally increased, bringing relief, as strength of the whole system is built up. Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.—(Adv.)

Mr. and Mrs. Jones Entertain. Bethel, Jan. 14.—One of the most delightful parties of the season was given by Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jones of Bethel, honoring their grandchildren.

The table was spread with a beautiful imported lace cover and the floral decorations were very beautiful. Red candles in candelabra burned in the center. The supper consisted of turkey, barbecue, potato salad, pickles, saltens, hot rolls, peaches, etc. Orange Crush being served to the children and Coca Colas to the seniors.

Those enjoying Mr. and Mrs. Jones' hospitality were: Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Teel, Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Langley, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brown, Misses Evelyn Langley, Elizabeth and Evelyn Brown, Masters J. R. Teel, Will Dorsey Brown, John David Langley, Ronald Langley, Misses Melba and Ruth Brown, Kay Frances Langley, Mary Lillie Teel, Laura Teel, Gladys and Joyce Teel.

Songs were sung sweetly by the children, music being supplied by the Misses Elizabeth Brown, Evelyn Langley and Bert Brown.

Other guests called during the evening, a special caller being Linwood Briley who was just in time to pass the chocolate mints and enjoy the music. Guests left at ten o'clock, hoping that Mr. and Mrs. Jones would give another party soon.

Announcement was made today of the association of Charles W. Flye of this city, with A. A. Ellwanger in the operation of Williams Funeral Home.

Mr. Ellwanger has been connected with the funeral home for a number of years and for some time has been in charge of same.

Mr. Flye came to this city about three years ago from Rocky Mount where he had been with the Standard Oil Company for a number of years. After being with the Standard Oil Company here for some time, he became distributor here for Atlantic Refining Company. He recently sold out his interest in the oil company distributorship to become associated with Mr. Ellwanger in the funeral home. Since coming to Greenville Mr. Flye has taken an active interest in the civic life of the community and has a wide circle of friends who will be glad to learn of his new connection.

Pitt county real estate has been more active for the past few days with forty transfers being recorded in the office of Register of Deeds J. C. Gaskins according to reports issued today. The considerations ranged from $1.00 to $8,000.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—In days following the World War when the Republicans were attempting to wrest political control of the government from the Democrats, they pounced on the nation's foreign policy as one of their principal forms of strategy.

Let by the late Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, a fight was launched against the League of Nations which not only prevented America's entry, but also worked havoc with the Democratic party.

Students of politics in Massachusetts apparently haven't forgotten the lessons taught them by their former distinguished Senator.

Again Massachusetts members of Congress are concentrating their fire on the nation's foreign policy. Two members of the House from Boston—the home city of Lodge—have opened up on three different fronts.

Tinkham Started It The bearded veteran, George Holden Tinkham, fired his first salvo prior to the convening of the present Congress by accusing the Roosevelt administration of entering the League of Nations by the back door.

By participating in the International Labor Organization, under the auspices of the League, Tinkham charged that in effect the United States had entered the League. Incidentally, the President proposes in his budget for the coming fiscal year that $174,630 be set aside for this participation.

Not content with that, on the first days of the session the Massachusetts Representative, who is a Republican member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, introduced a concurrent resolution demanding withdrawal of American recognition of Soviet Russia.

It is the sense of the Senate and House that his resolution demand, "that the diplomatic recognition by the United States of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics should be withdrawn."

Higgins Strikes, To From within the administration's own ranks another member of the House from Massachusetts has expressed dissatisfaction with the nation's foreign policy.

John P. Higgins hardly had more than been sworn in as a Representative before he struck out with a concurrent resolution demanding that the President "immediately relieve Ambassador Josephus Daniels, and for the future withdraw diplomatic recognition of Mexico."

Higgins, serving his first term, was gently spanked by Secretary Hull of the State Department.

Hull suggested that of course Higgins knew other nations were entitled to regulate their own internal problems and that the procedure he suggested "would almost certainly provoke such resentment as to defeat the purpose which you wish to achieve."

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, D. C.—In days following the World War when the Republicans were attempting to wrest political control of the government from the Democrats, they pounced on the nation's foreign policy as one of their principal forms of strategy.

Let by the late Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, a fight was launched against the League of Nations which not only prevented America's entry, but also worked havoc with the Democratic party.

Students of politics in Massachusetts apparently haven't forgotten the lessons taught them by their former distinguished Senator.

Again Massachusetts members of Congress are concentrating their fire on the nation's foreign policy. Two members of the House from Boston—the home city of Lodge—have opened up on three different fronts.

Tinkham Started It The bearded veteran, George Holden Tinkham, fired his first salvo prior to the convening of the present Congress by accusing the Roosevelt administration of entering the League of Nations by the back door.

By participating in the International Labor Organization, under the auspices of the League, Tinkham charged that in effect the United States had entered the League. Incidentally, the President proposes in his budget for the coming fiscal year that $174,630 be set aside for this participation.

Not content with that, on the first days of the session the Massachusetts Representative, who is a Republican member of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, introduced a concurrent resolution demanding withdrawal of American recognition of Soviet Russia.

It is the sense of the Senate and House that his resolution demand, "that the diplomatic recognition by the United States of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics should be withdrawn."

Higgins Strikes, To From within the administration's own ranks another member of the House from Massachusetts has expressed dissatisfaction with the nation's foreign policy.

John P. Higgins hardly had more than been sworn in as a Representative before he struck out with a concurrent resolution demanding that the President "immediately relieve Ambassador Josephus Daniels, and for the future withdraw diplomatic recognition of Mexico."

Higgins, serving his first term, was gently spanked by Secretary Hull of the State Department.

Hull suggested that of course Higgins knew other nations were entitled to regulate their own internal problems and that the procedure he suggested "would almost certainly provoke such resentment as to defeat the purpose which you wish to achieve."

Luncheon For Miss White. A lovely affair honoring Miss Dorothy White who will be married tomorrow morning, was yesterday when Mrs. W. L. Whedbee was a charming luncheon hostess. Japanese quince, first breath of spring, and other early spring flowers made a beautiful background for the assembled guests.

Guests were seated at small tables. Places were marked with shoulderettes of sweet peas and fern, and the place for Miss White by a corsage of roses and valley lilies.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Ferguson assisted the hostess in serving a tempting two-course luncheon.

Mrs. Whedbee presented Miss White with silver in her selected pattern; Mrs. Howard Moyer, a recent bride, a silver tea ball, and Miss Mary Pitt Turley of Henderson, sport handkerchiefs.

Tyndall-White. The marriage of Miss Dorothy White, daughter of Mrs. Herbert A. White and the late Herbert A. White, and L. E. Tyndall will be solemnized at nine o'clock tomorrow morning in the Memorial Baptist Church.

The Reverend A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of the church, will unite them in marriage. No invitations were sent in the city. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

Following the rehearsal this evening Mrs. White and Mrs. W. W. Lee will entertain at a brilliant reception for Miss White and Mr. Tyndall at the home of Mrs. White on Greene street.

Leaves For Roanoke Rapids. Miss Elizabeth Deal left yesterday for Roanoke Rapids where she has accepted a position in the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction of Halifax county. She has been working in the division offices of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., in Greenville, S. C.

To Meet Tomorrow. Members of the Marathon Round Table Group are reminded that their first meeting since the holidays will be held in the class room of Miss Laura Rose, Austin Building, tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock.

Choral Club Meets Tonight. Every member of the Choral Club is urged to be present tonight at rehearsal in the library. Work will continue on the cantata "The Highwayman" by Mark Andrews. This cantata is to be presented in the spring, and each member is urged to come tonight and get started on the music.

A. A. U. W. Meets. "Craig's Wife," by George Kelly was the play enjoyed by the A. A. U. W. drama-study group at Ragsdale Hall last night.

Mrs. J. H. Rose, who read the play, presented in very real form the character of Walter Craig, the man who was important in the life of his wife chiefly because he supplied the house and furnishings on which she lavished all her care, and that of Mrs. Craig (Craig's wife) who would permit no living in the house to interfere with the perfection of its decoration and arrangement. She even, according to the maid, wished to have dusted the leaves of a small tree near the dining room window.

However, Mrs. Craig's real nature is finally made clear to her husband and he saves his sanity by leaving her to enjoy the house by herself.

Miss Lucile Turner, chairman of the group, introduced the reader.

At the next meeting, on February 4, Miss Emma Hooper will read another of the Pulitzer Prize plays.

Young Men's Club To Meet. The next meeting of the Young Men's Club will be held in the Rotary gymnasium tomorrow night at 7:30. Many young men are interested in the development of this club and a good crowd is expected to be on hand. Charles A. Stratford, director, expects to organize a basketball, wrestling and boxing team at once, and he urges all young men between the ages of 18 and 25 to be present. Those one or two years under this age will be admitted as spectators with the aim in view of connecting them with the other branches yet to be organized.

West Greenville P. T. A. To Meet. The West Greenville Parent-Teacher Association will meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 in the school auditorium. Mrs. Earl's music class will convey a short musical program and Miss Mary York of the High School Economics Department will be with us. Every member is urged to attend. A cordial invitation is extended to all our friends.

Announcement was made today of the association of Charles W. Flye of this city, with A. A. Ellwanger in the operation of Williams Funeral Home.

Mr. Ellwanger has been connected with the funeral home for a number of years and for some time has been in charge of same.

Mr. Flye came to this city about three years ago from Rocky Mount where he had been with the Standard Oil Company for a number of years. After being with the Standard Oil Company here for some time, he became distributor here for Atlantic Refining Company. He recently sold out his interest in the oil company distributorship to become associated with Mr. Ellwanger in the funeral home. Since coming to Greenville Mr. Flye has taken an active interest in the civic life of the community and has a wide circle of friends who will be glad to learn of his new connection.

Pitt County is well represented in the General Assembly in the way of important committee assignments. The naming of Pitt's three members to some of the most important committees is a recognition of their ability to be of assistance in the handling of the affairs of the state.

We are still hoping that when the legislature starts shuffling the highway money about it will make provision to take care of those counties that built the highways and now have outstanding bonds against them. Neither the highways nor the highway money rightfully belongs to the state so long as counties owe for these roads, so we hope this fact will be borne in mind by the legislators before they begin to dish the money out for other uses.

IT DEMANDS YOUR ATTENTION

Fortunately no one was seriously hurt but the statement of the highway patrolman who investigated the school bus accident near Stokes yesterday is enough to make the parents of every child who rides to and from school on a bus shudder. The cause of the accident, the patrolman said, was the overcrowded condition of the bus blocking the view of the driver and making it impossible for him to see how to drive.

Just such a condition in the transporting of the children to and from school has probably been the underlying cause in many accidents in other sections of the state and it is to be hoped that the parents in this county will raise such a howl that something will be done about it before some of our children have their lives snuffed out in one of these school bus accidents. Of course an effort is being made to transport the children to school as cheaply as possible, but when economy reaches the point that it endangers their lives by crowding so many of them into one bus that the driver cannot drive, then it is time for us to spend more money on transportation of the children or put a stop to it.

The lives of our children are worth too much to gamble with.

function of the Trade Commission and not the Department of Agriculture. Copeland is in a much more strategic position this session to push his bill than he was in 1934. Last year Senator Hubert D. Stephens of Miss. was Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee. Proponents of the food and drug bill suspected him of sitting on it and burying it in committee.

But Stephens was beaten in last fall's elections. That aide Copeland chairman of the Committee. This year the M. D. Senator will have his own way about piloting the bill.

PROTECTED: With the convening of the 74th Congress the lobbyists have descended on Washington like the locusts of Egypt. Always numerous, looking of the New Deal's alphabet soup has provided them such vegetables to buzz around among as they never saw before.

Some of the administration insiders are disturbed by the situation. They say there ought to be a law. Unfortunately others have said the same thing ever since the Federal City was established on the banks of the Potomac in 1800.

It is a fair bet that the New Deal will have to struggle along with the lobbyists and all the other boll weevils who fatten on each administration in succession.

Back in 1913, during consideration of the Underwood-Simmons tariff act, Woodrow Wilson tossed a momentary bombshell into the ranks of the representatives of the so-called predatory interests. He started a lobby investigation which ran many days—but no report was ever made.

Several years ago the late Senator Thad Caraway of Ark. got many headlines from his lobby investigation—but no legislation.

It has been proposed time and again that the lobbyists be forced to register publicly their connections. Even should an order prevail it would not stop them from using their influence, real or imaginary, on the members of our august Congress.

WDSU: When there's another trump left in an opponent's hand, count on Huey Long to take it out.

The Louisiana Kingfish, in common with all other members of Congress, can demand radio time from either of the two big broadcasting companies. They are afraid to say no because there is always the chance of unfavorable radio legislation. They meet the issue by putting the would-be orators on around midnight and limiting them to fifteen-minute speeches, advance copies of which must be turned in for perusal.

This irked the Louisiana Kingfish. So he had his automatic State Legislature slap a tax on corporations at the rate of 50 cents per $1,000. Revenue thus derived is to be earmarked for Louisiana State University—and L. S. U. is duty-bound to buy Station WDSU of New Orleans with the proceeds.

Thus Emperor Long will have a radio station over which he will be able to talk unchecked and uncensored.

SMELLY: A minor scandal is brewing on Capital Hill. During the recess, somebody has been going south with Congressional typewriters and other property in the House Office Building.

One Congressman who came back and found two of his typewriters A. W. O. L. talked around with his colleagues a bit and discovered there was a mild epidemic of thievery.

A quiet investigation is under way which probably will blossom out shortly with an unhealthy odor.

Taxes: Headquarters of Veterans of Foreign Wars are advancing the ne plus ultra argument in furtherance of their fight for immediate cash payment of the bonus.

In effect it runs as follows: "Payment of the cash bonus will insure peace. It will make the fat boys pay through the nose in taxes and take away their desire for future wars."

VFW and the White House must have gotten together on the proposition laid down by President Roosevelt that Congress would have to accopy any new bonus act with compensating taxation.

CHAOS: Big-time oil men were greatly disturbed by the Supreme Court decision that Federal control under the Recovery Act is illegal. They had no abiding affection for Mr. Ickes or his methods, but the alternatives that now confront them are even less pleasing. The outlook is either for legislation declaring the oil industry a public utility and subjecting it to far more rigid control than before or for a price war that might breed extreme chaos.

The situation is squarely up to the Texas Railroad Commission at present. The only serious hot oil problem is in East Texas. If State authorities can keep it under control the price structure will be saved and Federal authorities may be persuaded that the drastic legislation they have in mind, isn't needed.

The Commission is awake to the emergency and is evidently doing its best. But its enforcement record is none too glowing and illegal production has already jumped a mile since the court ruling. The big fellows would be glad to lend a hand, but there's little they can do.

The small independent—whose interest lies in maximum output—are harder to pin down than a flea on an elephant's back. If their present pace isn't checked prices are likely to hit the sub-cellar before the Federal Government can organize a rescue expedition.

WARNING: Conservatives in other lines aren't whooping it up for the all decision as you might expect. They cherish no illusions that it knocks the principal of Federal regulation by NRA on the head.

Instead, they rate it chiefly as a warning to Congress and the White House to frame future New Deal laws in more precise language—a warning they believe will be heeded. This adds to the tenacity of the forthcoming argument between industry and labor over the rephrasing of Section 7A. It's a safe bet that its convenient vagueness will be changed to a clear-cut definition of what collective bargaining implies. It will make a whale of a difference whether the essence of that definition upholds major rule or proportional representation.

TURN: You hear plenty of acid comment in Wall Street about Floyd Carlisle's mounting enthusiasm for lower electric rates. Comment runs that his halo would be more becoming if it weren't tilted over one eye.

However, Carlisle's willingness to accept write-offs in computing a new rate base and to discuss an immediate rate cut indicate much more of a surrender to the New Deal yardstick than New York expected. The flag of truce is even more convincing in the case of Niagara-Hudson—Carlisle's other utility groat. Inducement rates for large domestic consumers are as startling an innovation for that outfit as legal cocktails would be in Kansas.

Keen observers believe Carlisle's retreat on rates marks the real turning point in the relations between the government and the power companies. Don't forget that he was the principal founder of the Edison Electric Institute and still swings a lot of weight behind the scenes—probably more than Tom McCarter despite the latter's official position and blustery manner.

BANKS: Officials of large New York banks found this year's stockholders' meetings as peaceful as a South Sea lagoon compared to the lively sessions of 1934. Comparatively few stockholders showed up and those that did showed no inclination to ask embarrassing questions. The fact that most banks increased their earnings in 1934 contributed to the mellow atmosphere.

Leading bankers here and officers of the American Bankers Association are sincere in promoting friendly relations with Washington. They are having their troubles keeping some of the country cousins—who still don't like the New Deal and want to tell the world about it—from busting into print with criticisms which might blast the prevailing harmony to shreds.

TOUCHY: New York is nervous about Senator Wheeler. He isn't expected to get anywhere with his plan to whittle big corporations into little ones with a graduated tax on capital at this session of Congress. But conservatives are afraid he's planting seeds in the popular mind which are likely to sprout later into potent political pressure. Some stalwarts favor giving him all the silver legislation he wants if it will only keep him quiet on this touchy topic.

EASY: A leading New York firm is borrowing eight million dollars at 1 1/2 per cent from a bank, adding it to two million spare cash and buying government bonds with the proceeds. The object is to hold them till June—when new financing on a cheaper basis is likely to drive bond prices up. Even if prices remain static, there's an easy and painless profit in the difference in interest. This is a sweet illustration of the effect of cheap money.

LESS FIGHT BETWEEN EAST AND WEST NOW

Sectional Fight Does Not Loom in Present Legislature, Say Observers

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 15.—Will Eastern North Carolina fight it out with the West in the 1935 General Assembly now in session here? That is an almost age-old question in North State politics. Apparently no one really knows the answer. But, opinions voiced here, the question will not be so acute as it has been in certain former sessions.

In the first place, the Mecklenburg delegation, Senator J. A. Bell and House member Paul Ervin, William Scholl and Ed. Tonissen, have served notice on their fellow-legislators that, so far as they are concerned, the General Assembly can rest assured that the State of Mecklenburg will not exist at this session, that they have not come to Raleigh to demonstrate that Mecklenburg is superior and aloof. Instead, they say, they have come in a spirit of co-operation. They want to do that which will result in the greatest good for the State as a whole. Mecklenburg may, in their minds, still rank as the Olympus of North Carolina; it may indeed be their opinion that all other sections of the State are far inferior to Mecklenburg and Mecklenburg; but if they think so, they're at least going to be silent on the subject.

Two legislators, both from the Piedmont section, gave it as their opinion that the East does not deliberately attempt to outdo the West. Nor does their alleged control of the State reins of government, they say, have its origin in the allegation that the East gets the lion's share in the matter of distribution of legislative seats. "Rather," said one Senator, "is it because the East has fewer stone-throwers. Those folks down there just naturally pull together. When they want something they line up and demand it, and nobody in the East throws a rock at the other. But in the West and in the Piedmont we have a surplus of stone-throwers, fellows who just can't seem to resist the temptation to throw a monkey-wrench in any machinery their fellows set up, no matter if it harms their section of the State. What the West and the Piedmont need is not more seats in the Assembly, but more co-operation and fewer rock-throwers."

The House member nodded agreement, but neither wanted your reporter to use their names. "It might," they said, "cause us some embarrassment. Some members of the Legislature might mistake our aim and get the notion that we are about to prod that old sore spot, redistribution."

That isn't all. Rumor has it that even Tam Bowie, veteran of many a battle, will not attempt to bring the East-West controversy to the floor of the General Assembly. Rumor, however, is as far as that opinion goes. No one, and least of all Tam himself, will forecast definitely and finally that he will be quiet.

Legislators from the far western reaches of the State smile and say nothing when asked what, if anything, they propose doing about the matter of redistribution of legislative seats. "We may say nothing at all about it," say some of them. Others reply with a grievance: "What can we do about it?" "You'll have to ask the East, it's running the show."

Likewise, members from the East are reticent. When asked what they think about the redistribution problem, they smile. "What problem?" Which probably reveals the philosophy of the East and explains, to some degree, why the West has alleged that the East runs the show.

That less animosity than formerly existed in the General Assembly now prevails is, however, apparent, say those who have seen many sessions roll by. Perhaps it is a beginning of the end of the war, sometimes relentless, which has been carried on, session after session, between the members from the West and the members of the East. That a cessation of hostilities would result in better State government here is little, if any, doubt.

All-Star Quint To Play Kingston

The Greenville all star basketball team, recently organized in this city, will play its first game of the season Wednesday night when it meets the all-star team of Kingston at Kingston.

The local team is composed of former players on college team, and include such sars as Troy Burnett, "Runt" Bostic, Jack Barrett, Tommy Hicks, "Doc" Mathis, Charlie King, and Jimmy Wilson.

A game will be played at home in the near future, so watch this paper for the date. The team is most anxious to book games both home and away, and any team having an open date, please write to any of the above players here so that a date may be arranged.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The stock market suffered another attack of gold fever as the metal issues pointed sharply downward with leading European currencies exhibiting renewed weakness in terms of the dollar.

The little activity revived the fear psychology which yesterday appeared to be subsiding. Guesses on the forthcoming gold decision were numerous and varied.

Industrial stocks showed some resistance but sagged in sympathy with the mining group, and at the same time trading was restricted. Grains turned heavy after being steady earlier and cotton dropped.

Stock offerings increased in the latter dealings.

Transfers approximated 1,500,000.

man who plucked the child from his crib. He has already been identified by Dr. John P. "Jafsie" Condon as the man who received the $50,000 futile ransom money paid by Col. Lindbergh.

Tyrrell said he had examined the ransom notes and specimens of Hauptmann's writing.

"As a result of your examination and comparison did you reach an opinion?" Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan questioned the witness.

"I did."

"What is your opinion as to the writing on the ransom notes and Hauptmann's writing?"

"The writing is identical," replied the witness with no mention of Hauptmann's name. "They were all written by the same person."

As had been done by other state experts, Tyrrell followed with an administrator's notice.

Having qualified as administrator of the estate of Henry (Bud) Allen, deceased late of the County of Pitt, North Carolina, this is to notify all persons having claims against the estate of said deceased to exhibit them to the undersigned at his office in Greenville, on or before the fourteenth day of January, 1935, or this notice will be pleaded in bar of recovery. All persons indebted to said estate will please make immediate payment. The said payments to be made to Hannah Hannah, Jr.

This the fourteenth day of January, 1935.

explanation of details supporting his opinion. He cited the disguised handwriting which he said he found in the notes, the similarity of the "D's" in "Dear Sir" and other points to tie the notes to the same writer and then as one of many points to tie the notes to the specimen of the admitted writing of Hauptmann he pointed to the word "you" written often as if "joo."

FAMOUS FLIERS SAY "get a Lift with a Camel!"

COL. ROSCOE TURNER, holder of the transcontinental record west-to-east and east-to-west: "A speed flier uses up energy just as his motor uses 'gas.' A Camel gives one a 'refill' on energy. I smoke all I want. Camels never upset my nerves."

SIR CHARLES KINGSFORD, famous flier who holds the record from Australia to California—7300 miles in 51 hours—says: "Once you've had a real chance to appreciate the mild, mellow flavor of Camels, no other type of smoke seems to satisfy. I always want a Camel, especially when I'm fatigued. And Camels are my 'supercharger'—they lift up my vim—give me new energy and go."

From Newark Airport to Miami and return in 15 hours and 16 minutes! That's the record held by Chief Pilot E. H. Parker, of the Eastern Air Lines. But let him tell you about transport flying and how Camels help him through the strain. In his own words: "The steady grind of transport flying takes stamina—vitality—nerves that never waver. Passengers... mail... express must arrive on time, and it's the pilot's duty to see that they do! There are plenty of times when I get tired. Then I smoke a Camel. For I have noticed that Camels help in easing the strain. I can go on with more alertness and vigor. I smoke Camels a lot. They never affect my nerves."

SPORTSWOMAN PILOT, Mrs. T. W. Kenyon, champion air woman: "After a strenuous flight, a Camel restores my energy. And each Camel renews the enjoyment of the last!"

WILEY POST, famous flier who holds the "round-the-world" record, says: "Camels are made from more expensive tobaccos. You can certainly tell that in their mildness and good taste."

CAMEL PAYS MILLIONS MORE. "Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES!

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The cotton market opened barely steady, but advanced to four points decline with higher Liverpool cables offset by lower sterling exchange and nervousness over the pending gold decision.

March sold at 1251 right after the call and July at 1257, or two 13 quiet later in the morning. March our points net higher, but liquidation continued and prices eased slightly before the end of the first half-hour. The market remained old off to 1236 and July to 1242, making net declines of ten to thirteen points and losses of 39 to 40 points as compared with the high prices touched early this month.
