

MANY EXPRESS APPROVAL OF NEW BUDGET

Sales Tax Opponents Hope to Show Other Sources of Sufficient Revenue

 By J. C. BASKERVILL
 Raleigh, Jan. 16.—General approval of the recommendations of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and the Advisory Budget Commission "in principle" as contained in the Budget transmitted to the general assembly Tuesday, was being expressed here today by members of both houses, despite the fact that one of the major recommendations was the retention of the sales tax and the removal of exemptions.

The fact that the Governor did not demand the reenactment of the sales tax, even though he did say that in his opinion the state could not yet get along without it, left a good impression in the minds of most of the members. But he did make it very clear that it was distinctly the job of the general assembly to provide dependable revenue for every dollar of state money appropriated and that every time it boosted the present general fund budget 10 per cent it would have to find approximately $2,000,000 in new revenue.

"On the whole, I am inclined to agree with the Governor that the sales tax must be retained if this general assembly is to make any increases whatever in teachers' salaries and the salaries of other state employees," Senator John Sprung Hill of Durham said, in commenting on the budget message. "I do not like the idea of removing the exemptions on basic foodstuffs, however, and shall have to study that part of the recommendations carefully. I was one of those who insisted on putting in these exemptions in 1933, so that the sales tax law would not bear too heavily upon the poorer classes of people. However, it may be that these exemptions have not helped as much as some of us think and that we might as well remove them. But there is no doubt that the Governor is right in saying that if we are going to increase appropriations we must find some dependable way of increasing the revenue also."

While a good many members of the house expressed their approval of most of the Budget recommendations, few were willing to be quoted with regard to their attitude towards them especially the reenactment of the sales tax and the removal of the exemptions, until they had had time to study the budget report further. Some are definitely inclined to the belief that the recommendation for an increase of only 15 per cent in the salaries of school teachers and state employees is not enough and that ways and means can be found to boost this increase to at least 20 per cent.

The only outspoken critic of the Governor's recommendations with regard to the sales tax found in the house was Dr. Ralph McDonald, representative from Forsyth county, already regarded as the leader of the anti-sales tax group in the house.

"The contention that the reenactment of the sales tax and the removal of the exemptions is ridiculous," Dr. McDonald said. "When the proper time comes, we are going to show that sufficient revenue can be raised to provide the budget required for the schools and other state activities, without recourse to the sales tax at all. It is also ridiculous to entitle the sales tax as 'An act to provide revenue for the public schools of the State' as it is now entitled in the proposed Revenue Bill. Two years ago it was called 'An act to balance the budget.' To me it is ironical to call the sales tax, the most undemocratic form of tax in the world. An act for the support of the public schools' when the schools are the most democratic of the state's activities."

But even though a good many members of both house and senate would like more than anything else to find a substitute for the sales tax and a means of raising the money needed without recourse to it, most of them agreed privately that they did not see any way to get the money needed to balance the budget without it.

"It looks very much as if we will have to enact some kind of a sales tax if we are going to be able to make any increases in teachers' salaries and in other appropriations," Dr. John T. Burrus, Senator from High Point, said. "But if any sales tax is necessary, I shall favor a luxury sales tax instead of the present general sales tax."

YEGGMEN UNSUCCESSFUL AT FARMVILLE GARAGE

Farmville, N. C., Jan. 16.—Yeggmens broke into the B and W Chevrolet Company here Sunday night and attempted to burn their way into a steel safe, but left before completing the crime. It is believed they abandoned their efforts at daylight.

Two negroes were arrested on suspicion and lodged in jail. Fingerprints were taken from the safe and a check is in progress to determine whether the prisoners were connected with the crime. The safe was hauled from the front of the building to the garage in the rear and a blow torch applied to the combination lock.

SEEK SAFER SCHOOL BUSES

Would Provide Older Drivers and Steel Bodies For All School Buses

Reflector Bureau.
 Sir Walter Hotel.
 Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 16.—A move to make school buses safer in North Carolina was made in the Senate Tuesday by Senator Folger of Mount Airy, who introduced a bill to require all-steel school bodies, with non-shatterable glass for all of the school buses in the State by December 31, 1936, and to require all school bus drivers to be at least 25 years of age.

This bill is regarded as being prompted as a result of the school bus accident near Mount Airy several days ago in which several school children were seriously injured. One so was so seriously hurt that it later died. Several of the children are still in a serious condition.

The bill would also require the use of governors on all school buses, limiting their speed to no more than 30 miles an hour. All of the newer school buses, however, are already equipped with these governors so that they cannot now be operated at a faster speed than 30 miles an hour, according to LeRoy Martin, executive secretary of the State School Commission.

The only trouble with this bill, according to those familiar with conditions, is the cost that would be involved. It would cost $2,400,000 to equip the more than 4,000 school buses now in service with all-steel bodies, according to an estimate obtained today from the State School Commission. It was also estimated that it would cost at least $2,400,000 a year to pay bus drivers if the bill passes requiring that all bus drivers be not less than 25 years of age. So this bill, if passed, would make it necessary for the State to spend almost $5,000,000 a year more on its school transportation system than at present.

It is maintained by School Commission officials that the present steel-reinforced bodies, which have been required on all school buses for the past three years, are just as safe as all-steel bodies, and that steel show they will stand just as much strain without crushing. If the Legislature will provide $2,400,000 more a year with which to employ adult school bus drivers, it will also be glad to employ them, but the present lack of funds prohibits it.

Social and Personal

Mrs. George B. W. Hadley and Miss Betsy Greene spent yesterday in LaGrange.

End of Century-Club Meets. Mrs. F. C. Harding was hostess to the members of the End of the Century Club at her home on Harding street Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. J. B. Spilman presided. After a short business meeting Mrs. J. L. Hassell introduced Mrs. J. H. Rose who presented in a most realistic form the characters of the modern drama "Craig's Wife." It was one of the most interesting programs of the year.

The hostess served a most delicious salad plate with coffee. The club adjourned to meet next on January 29. Special guests of Mrs. Harding were Mrs. J. H. Rose, Mrs. Worth Wicker and Mrs. Jennie Williams of Virginia Beach.

To Give Recital. The music pupils of Miss Eva Hodges will give a recital Friday night at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of Third Street School. The public is cordially invited.

Shower For Mrs. Tripp. Mrs. Coy Tripp, a recent bride, was honored at a pretty party on Tuesday evening when Mrs. S. M. Waters delightfully entertained at her home on Albemarle avenue.

The home was attractively decorated in red and white, carrying out the Valentine idea. A number of games were played and music was enjoyed.

Each guest was requested to write some advice to the bride.

Little Miss Margaret Waters, young daughter of the hostess, presided. Mrs. Tripp with an attractively decorated basket containing a miscellaneous shower of lovely gifts from the guests.

The hostess served tempting refreshments.

Presbyterian Prayer Service. Tonight's mid-week prayer meeting at 7:30 at the First Presbyterian Church will be in charge of the Senior Young People's Society. In preparation for the coming "Week of Prayer and Self-Denial for Foreign Missions," the young people in charge of the service will give a foreign mission dramatization entitled "Station W. Y. C. On the Air."

Miss Dupree Improves. Friends of Miss Anne Dixon Dupree will be glad to learn that she is some better, after having been confined to her home for several days.

Joins Party Of Friends. Miss Helen White left today for New York to join a party of friends. Misses Pat and Anna Holderness, Miss Madeline Jenkins of Tarboro, and Miss Margaret Davis of Farmville. The party will sail tomorrow from New York on the "Queen of Bermuda," cruising in southern waters, and making stops at Bermuda and Nassau.

Move To Greenville. The family of Marion W. Scarborough has moved here from Norfolk and are now making their home at 501 E. Eighth street. Mr. Scarborough has been here some time with Smith Electric Company.

Methodist Prayer Service. Mid-week prayer service will be held tonight at 7:30 at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church. The public is cordially invited to be present.

To Speak To P. T. A. Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, director of Pitt County Health Department, has been invited to address the Grimesland P. T. A. in the Grimesland High School tonight at 7:30. The subject of Dr. Ennett's talk will be "Health Work in the School."

German Club To Meet. Thursday morning at 11 o'clock there will be a meeting of the German Club at the home of Mrs. J. S. Ficklen. Installation of officers and unfinished business will be discussed and all members are urged to attend.

To Entertain College Girls. The members of the Jarvis Memorial Missionary Society will have an automobile ride for the college girls, followed by a tea at the home of Mrs. W. E. Hooker on Saturday afternoon from four to five-thirty.

T. E. L. Class Meets. The T. E. L. Class of Immanuel Baptist Church held its first business and social meeting of the year with Mrs. Janie Lassiter. The devotional was led by Mrs. Pender. New resolutions were adopted and exchange of addresses were made in a most interesting game.

At the conclusion of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and a tempting ice course was served. Several visitors were present.

Memorial Baptist Church. The mid-week service of fellowship prayer and Bible study will be held tonight at 7:30 at Memorial Baptist Church. We consider the topic "What Do I Know About the Church?" This is the third in a series of similar studies to call upon the personal inquiry, "What Do I Know About Them?" Every member and friends are urged to be present. You will find a blessing in this devotional hour. Come.

Tyndall-White. A wedding of charm and beauty was solemnized this morning at nine o'clock in Memorial Baptist Church when Miss Dorothy White and Luby Earl Tyndall were united in marriage.

Long before the appointed hour the stately church, where generations of the bride's family have worshipped, was filled with relatives and admiring friends.

A bridal motif of green and white was used in the decorations. The choir loft was banked with ferns, palms and Easter lilies, with a double circle of cathedral candles. Tall standards and baskets of Easter lilies and double tiers of cathedral candles on the rostrum formed a beautiful setting for the wedding party.

Prior to the ceremony, Mrs. Herbert A. White, mother of the bride, wearing a gown of black crepe, with shoulder cluster of valley lilies, and Mrs. Samuel Tyndall, of Kinston, mother of the bridegroom, wearing black crepe and shouderette of sweetheart roses and valley lilies, entered the church.

Proceeding the ceremony, Mrs. J. B. James, wearing a gown of black crepe with trimmings of robin's egg blue, and corsage of briarcliff roses and valley lilies, presented a program of nuptial music, including "Prelude," "Sylvia," "All For You," and "Thy Beaming Eyes." Just before the entrance of the bridal party W. W. Lee and Charles James sang as a duet, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." As a recessional, Mrs. James played the Wedding March from the opera Lohengrin, and during the ceremony she softly played McDowell's "To A Wild Rose."

First to enter the church, down opposite aisles, two at the time, were the ushers, Jack Spain and Edward Ferguson, followed by Frank Patrick and Luther Moore.

Next to enter were Mrs. Julian J. White, sister-in-law of the bride, and Mrs. W. W. Lee, sister of the bride. They wore identical gowns of brown net, made on fitted lines with short trains, with trimmings of eggshell and pique. Their accessories were of brown and they carried arm bouquets of tallman roses tied with ribbons of contrasting shades.

Proceeding the bride and groom were the junior attendants, little Miss Josie Barnes White, in a model of brown velvet, with baby Irish lace trimmings, carrying an arm bouquet of Joanna Hill roses, and Master Bill Lee, Jr., wearing a morning suit of blue.

The bride entered with her brother, Julian J. White, who gave her in marriage. She wore a most becoming model of electric blue crepe, with collar of grey fur, off-the-face hat and other accessories of blue. She carried a bridal bouquet of gardenias and valley lilies.

The bridegroom, attended by his father, Samuel Tyndall, of Kinston, entered at the same time down the opposite aisle.

The Reverend A. W. Fleischmann spoke the vows, uniting them in marriage.

As the party left the church, Mrs. James played the Wedding March from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Mrs. Tyndall, member of one of Greenville's most prominent families, is the younger daughter of Mrs. Herbert A. White and the late Herbert A. White. She is vivacious and attractive and a popular member of the younger set. Since the announcement of her engagement she has been extensively entertained. She was educated in the city schools and National Park Seminary, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Tyndall, formerly of Kinston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tyndall, and a member of a well known family of that city. Since making his home in Greenville he has made a host of friends. He is associated with the Brown and White Motor Co.

For traveling Mrs. Tyndall wore a sport model of tan with accessories of brown.

After a wedding trip through Florida they will make their home with Mrs. Tyndall's mother on Greene street.

Reception. Last evening following the rehearsal for the Tyndall-White wedding, Mrs. Herbert A. White and Mr. Mrs. W. W. Lee entertained at a brilliant reception at the home of Mrs. White on Greene street.

The home throughout was transformed into a veritable fairyland, with profusions of flowers, Southern smilax, and myriads of burning tapers.

In the hall, living room and dining room a color note of pink and white was emphasized in snapdragons, carnations, roses and sweet peas, and in the gift room and library a white and green color note was carried out in smilax, white hyacinths and carnations.

At the front door greeting guests on arrival were Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Skinner and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lipscomb.

Receiving at the living room door and presenting guests to the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Ficklen and Mr. and Mrs. J. Knott-Proctor. In the receiving line in the living room were Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. White, Miss Dorothy White, L. E. Tyndall, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. James, Charles James, Miss Mary Pitt Turley of Henderson, Mrs. Herbert Pettit of Wilson, Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Fleischmann, Frank Patrick, Edward Ferguson, Jr., Jack Spain and Luther Moore.

Receiving at the dining room door were Mr. and Mrs. S. T. White and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walzrop.

The dining room was unusually pretty. The table, covered with imported lace, was centered with a silver bowl of pink roses, white sweet peas and fern. Tall white tapers tied with misty bows of maline burned in low silver holders at the corners. Just above the centerpiece the light was entwined with maline and Southern smilax and showered with silver wedding bells.

Mrs. E. B. Ficklen and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, seated at the table, served the ices from large silver platters. Assisting in serving the ices and passing decorated cakes, mints and salted nuts were Misses Eloise Garrett, Mary Elizabeth Ferguson, Helen White, Margaret Hassell, Mabel Glenn Best, Helen Fleming and Margaret Bostic.

The buffet and mantel were banked with pink snapdragons and carnations, with tall white tapers tied with bows of maline placed at either side. On the serving table was the bride's cakes, surmounted by a miniature bride and groom, which was cut by members of the wedding party.

From the dining room to the rear hall, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Flanagan and Mr. and Mrs. Larry James directed to the bride's book where Mr. and Mrs. W. H. White, Mr. and Mrs. Will James and Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, Jr., registered the large number of guests.

In the gift room where the numerous and beautiful gifts were displayed, were Mrs. Georgia James, Mr. and Mrs. Dink James and Dr. and Mrs. John L. Winstead. Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Stokes, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. James Wooten and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Flanagan invited guests into the library where punch was served from an attractively appointed table by Miss Ada James, Mr. and Mrs. Iverson Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Harrington and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Whedbee.

Good-byes were said by Mrs. J. L. Fleming, Mrs. R. J. Cobb and Miss Ward Moore.

With Flu Around All Colds Now More Dangerous

Colds Lower Body Resistance and Often Pave the Way For Flu and Its Serious Complications.

EXTRA PRECAUTIONS URGED

With flu increasing in many sections of the country, health authorities urge everyone to take extra precautions against colds just now.

The safest course to follow is that outlined in Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds (fully explained in each Vicks package). Briefly, the plan is this:

To Help Prevent Many Colds
Watch yourself and children carefully for any sign of "catching cold." At that first nasal irritation, snuffle or sneeze—use Vicks Va-tro-nol—a few drops up each nostril. The timely use of Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds, and to throw off other colds in their early stages.

To Help End a Cold Sooner
If a cold has developed or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. At bedtime, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. It acts two ways at once to bring relief. By stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and by inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this long-continued double action soothes the membranes—loosens phlegm—eases the breathing—helps break congestion.

For Added Protection
Daily mouth and throat hygiene is helpful at all times—and especially during epidemics of colds or flu. As a precautionary measure, have the children—and grown-ups, too—rinse the mouth and gargle, both morning and evening, with VICKS VORATONE ANTISEPTIC. Voratone thoroughly cleanses the oral cavity and stimulates more healthful activity of the membranes—thus aiding in defense against infection which enters through the mouth.

With the introduction of a driver's license law and a measure looking toward safer school bus transportation for the children of this state, it is apparent that the present legislature is determined to take some definite action toward curbing the accidents on our highways that are taking an annually increasing toll of life. The lives of the people of our state are our first most valuable asset and it is well that the lawmakers are looking first to the preservation of these lives.

In his address to the General Assembly Governor Ehringhaus let it be known that he did not feel the sales tax in North Carolina was necessary if the legislators could find other ample sources of revenue. This should be a clue to the lawmakers to get busy and use diligence in seeking out these other sources. Some of them are apparent and there are yet other untouched sources in this state to furnish all the revenues needed without putting any more taxes back on the land. Ability to pay is the only equitable plan of taxation and it cannot be denied that the sales tax is far greater burden upon poverty than wealth.

Already the legislature has been asked to give its approval to a higher alcoholic content of beer and there is much talk of efforts to do away with prohibition and legalize whiskey in this state. Less than two years ago the people of this state in no uncertain terms voted against the return of liquor to this state. If the legislators feel that there has been sufficient change in sentiment since that time to warrant doing anything about it at this time, then there is only one course for them to take. Turn the matter again to the people and let them express their wishes. Prohibition in this state came about through a vote of the people and certainly that is the only means whereby the law should be changed.

Some committees dealing with relief legislation are disposed to assist that specific directions shall be given for expenditure of the $4,000,000 lump sum—not too minute directions, but sufficiently definite to avert another Supreme Court knockout.

Republicans and a sprinkling of Democrats object to any lump sum grant at all. The leaders have settled that. But they are so sure that it would be wise to put in a few boundary lines.

Montana Rides Again
 A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS.

SYNOPSIS: The Emerald crown of Our Lady has been stolen by the governor of the province, and Brother Paschal has gone to the quieto Mexican bandit, Mateo Rubric, for help in recovering it. But Rubric says that Montana, "El Kead" in Mexico, is the only man who could help him. Montana is about to marry the wealthy Ruth Lavery; he is also about to break his promise not to ride a wild mare on the Lavery ranch. Paschal and Rubric start north to see him.

Chapter Five
BRONCHO BUSTING

DOWN in the corral, Tombstone Joe walked backwards and looked over the mare. Now that he had snubbed her against the post, other men were blindfolding her, working on bridle and saddle. Ransome, the gray-headed ranch foreman, was in charge of this business. "What you think of her, Tombstone?" asked Ransome.

"Half dynamite and half wildcat," said Tombstone. "She's too pretty to be good."

Said the Montana Kid, from the fence: "You don't hitch on to a streak of lightning and ask if it good. You ask how far it'll take you."

Tombstone turned sharply around to rebuke the speaker. Then he saw that it was the Kid, and instead of answering he rubbed his jaw, slowly, as though he had been hit there on a day.

The Kid did not smile. His brown, handsome face remained perfectly calm, but as he stared at the mare the blue of his eyes burned paler and brighter continually. He pushed his hat back from his forehead and his spurs, but after the second jump he was pulling leather like a tenderfoot caught in a horse-storm.

This was a tornado. It rushed as though it would tear down the fence. It turned as though it would bore a hole through the ground. And Tombstone sailed out of the saddle sideways. He struck the corral soil, raised a dust, struck it again, and lay limp and still.

Three nooses settled over the neck of the mare and held her as she tried to get at the fallen rider and savage him. Some one crawled under the fence and dragged Tombstone to safety. Some one else emptied a canteen over the upturned face of Tombstone. After a while he breathed. Then he stood up. "She foxed me that time but I'll get her the next try," he said.

Ransome, the foreman, said to the Kid, "Well, what you think?"

"She's a sweetheart," said the Montana Kid.

He eased himself down from the fence. The side of the fence he was on was the inside.

They were snubbing the mare close up to the post again.

Ransome grabbed Montana's arm. "Look out," he said. "Don't you be a damn fool. Keep away from temptation."

THE Kid looked down at Ransome's hand. Ransome took it away.

Tombstone sailed out of the saddle. "We'll just have a look-see," said the Kid.

"You been and promised Miss Ruth!" said Ransome, huskily.

"Did I?" said the Kid, absently.

He walked around the front of the mare and looked into her eyes. She was quiet. The only thing she had learned was the burn of ropes, and she did not fight. Not outwardly. The devil was quiet in her, waiting.

Some one said, from the fence, "He could handle fire, but not that fire."

Another man said: "What's her name? What you gonna call her, Montana?"

"You better call her before you're dead," said another.

"Her name's Sally," said the Kid, gently. He smiled beautifully at the men on the fence. He included them all in the gentleness of his glance. They feared him so much that they almost hated him; but because they loved him, also, no man smiled back.

"Why call her Sally?" asked Ransome, the foreman.

"I knew a gal called Sally once," said the Kid.

"Did she look like this mare?" asked Ransome.

"She wore black silk stockings all around, like this one," said the Kid, gently.

Tombstone Joe was fitting himself carefully into the saddle. Montana said, "Watch her, Joe."

"Who the hell is giving me advice?" asked Tombstone.

Something hit the ground, either sideways, plopping up the fence. With the last flopping turf he disappeared as the body of a man in clothes were white with dust. His face was black with it.

Up on the veranda the girl screamed, but no one turned to look towards her. She had not screamed because Tombstone was on the ground, sprawling. The cry came from her when she saw Montana leave the fence as a puma leaves a bough for a kill.

warm in its chair, consolidate its position, get acquainted with its duties, and thus prepare for bigger things.

It was all up to FDR. He thinks the Commission is ready to clean up crookedness in security dealings, and so he got the appropriations asked for in the budget.

CAIN: Those who should know say the veteran Representative, Robert L. Doughton, of North Carolina, has about made up his mind to run for Governor of his State next election. It will be with administration backing if he does.

When the term of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus expires Doughton will have served twenty-six consecutive years in the House of Representatives. Friends here say he wants to round out his long public career in the Governor's Mansion at Raleigh.

The North Carolina Congressman is chairman of the powerful Ways and Means Committee. There was a time during the last Congress when some of the New Dealers felt a younger man should be in the job. He was offered a government post, but declined.

Doughton's one big anathema last Congress was the two-cent check tax. He finally forced a compromise whereby it expired the first of this year.

At a recent press conference, President Roosevelt indicated he hoped Congress would stick the tax back on again. There were several murmurs from the front row.

"Why not?" asked FDR. "It's something you don't really feel."

"Yes," answered a lady reporter (who happens to be married), "but it certainly raises Cain with the balance on your check stubs."

SAVED: Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia—should he be dubbed "Schoolboy Holt"?—is not being forgotten by his Democratic colleagues.

While the young man sits patiently, drawing his pay and waiting for his 30th birthday to arrive next June so he can take the oath, he has received assurances there will be work waiting for him.

Four committee assignments have been saved for the Henry Clay of West Virginia.

NOTES: Principal nominations to office will be confirmed by the Senate. Several moves to clip wings of holding companies are incubating in Congress. The Tariff Commission asks for $900,000. House Appropriations Committee members would like to save that by abolishing the Commission as obsolete.

New York
By JAMES McMILLIN

STICKING: New York in general is agitated about the prospects for "monetary chaos" but the best-posted sources remain unruffled. They figure one of four things will happen—in the following order of probability.

1. The court will rule in favor of the government on the basis that the requirements of public policy take precedence over purely legal considerations. Those who rate this the likeliest solution believe the purpose of Huey's queries was to get assistance from the Department of Justice in framing such a decision. They add that Attorney-General Cummings and his aids were about as much help in this connection as a pair of skis in the Sahara Desert.

2. The Court may reserve decision for several months—meanwhile conveying gentle hints to the proper quarters as to what the government can do to strengthen its legal position.

3. The Court might decide against the government, and the latter apply immediately for a rehearing. The status quo would be maintained in the interim. Then Congress could enact a law increasing the membership of the Supreme Court and the President could fill the new posts with men who could be counted on to swing a reversal. This radical remedy is mentioned as a serious possibility in conservative circles.

4. Assuming an adverse decision is made—and stands—it doesn't have to mean a financial earthquake. The government could exercise its taxing power to neutralize the huge increase in the national debt, and end up with things just where they are now. Intelligent cooperation between Congress (under White House guidance), the Treasury and the Federal Reserve could keep the situation well in hand.

Financial observers agree the New Deal has gone so far on its monetary road to allow itself to be de-secured—and carries too many guns to be shoved aside by nine gentlemen in black. It's an odds-on bet that FDR and his advisers will find some way to stick to the course they have charted.

CONFIDENCE: The big banks have made a sharp but unpublished charge in their investment policy in the past month. They've lost their gun for liquidity as expressed in large holdings of short term government bonds. Instead they're going in for long-term federal stuff (five year maturity or longer) in a big way.

Partly this is due to the urge to best earnings. Instead of lending money at 1-1/2 per cent to others to reinvest at 3 per cent they've decided to forget the liquidity fetish and make the 3 per cent themselves. Partly also it's being done as a means of cooperation between the banks and Washington. Active demand for long-term brings Mr. Morgenthau's goal of still cheaper borrowing closer.

But above all this policy shift is a striking mark of confidence in the soundness of federal credit and the future of government bonds as Sherlock Holmes could find. Note also that the demand continues unabated despite the gold clause excitement.

COMPROMISE: Financial conservatives are strongly behind Senator Glass' proposal for a law which would bar the Secretary of the Treasury from a seat on the Federal Reserve Board.

This move is being made purely on the theory that best defense is a strong attack. There isn't a banker who expects Glass to get away with it. But they do hope it will force a compromise which will minimize the extension of government control of the Federal Reserve System.

METERS: Floyd Carlisle will hand New York legislators a prize headache before he gets through what to do with New York City's sub-metering system.

Many of New York's choicest properties from the electric consumption standpoint are sub-metered. The landlord buys juice at wholesale and resells it to his tenants at prevailing retail rates. Con Gas has long maintained it could give cheaper service if this system was abolished. Once it offered to give consumers the entire benefit of its added revenues in the form of cheaper rates of the middleman were squeezed out.

But no one yet has been able to figure how to apply the squeeze. Submitters represent a private arrangement between owner and tenant and are not in the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission. There's nothing in the law to prevent the landlords charging any price they like. Any attempt to alter this comfortable status will meet with a hailstorm of objections.

happen. Once in a blue moon the customer gets a break without asking for it.

SIDE LIGHTS: Soviet gold production is climbing. . . . Russia stands second only to South Africa now. . . . Talk about faith in the future. . . . The brokerage house of E. F. Hutton & Company is opening two branches in Arizona. . . . Looks like a good year for hog breeders. . . . The fall pig crop was the smallest in thirty-five years—48 per cent below 1933.

Members of Assembly Ready to Vote For Driver's License Measure

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 16.—Members of the 1935 North Carolina General Assembly want a drivers' license bill and they want it right now. Two more bills which would license automobile drivers are now in the senatorial hopper, and if John Sprunt Hill, Senator from Durham, has his way about it, proposed legislation along that line will be made effective immediately.

"I shall work," he said, "to the end that we have an early committee report on the bill introduced by myself and others. I hope to get the bill reported next week." He was referring to the model bill offered by the Carolina Motor Club and which was introduced by himself, Senators W. P. Horton of Chatham, Harris of New Hanover, J. Allen Dunn of Spencer, A. Hall Johnson of Buncombe, K. B. Nixon of Lincoln, Walter H. Powell of Whiteville, and U. L. Spence of Carthage.

"I see no reason for continuing the slaughter on our highways for another six months," said Senator Hill, "and shall ask that the bill, if passed, go into effect immediately upon its ratification." The motor club's bill would become effective November 1, with applications for license purely voluntary before that date.

Significant is the fact that the bill introduced by Hill and others is not a revenue-raising measure. That feature is in line with the Governor's recommendation for a drivers' license without a fee. Under the motor club bill all applicants for license would be given a free license if they apply before next November 1. After that date applicants would be charged an examination fee of two dollars. In that respect the bill differs from that introduced last week by Senator Corey, of Pitt County. Corey's licenses under the motor club's bill would run until suspended or revoked; annual renewal would not be required.

The Hill bill like the Corey measure would refuse a private license to those under 16 and to chauffeurs under 18. Both also prohibit the licensing or habitually reckless drivers, incompetents, and drivers who have been involved in accidents which have resulted in death or serious property damage.

Revocation of a license would result in the driver not being permitted to drive for at least one year. Suspension of licenses would be for not more than one year. Authority to suspend licenses is vested with the Highway Department, which would administer the act, and revocations would be left to the courts. A mandatory revocation of license is imposed on the courts when a person is convicted of driving while drunk, commission of a felony in which an automobile is used, hit-and-run driving, perjury, in making application for license, transportation of intoxicating liquors, or of three charges of reckless driving in any twelve months period. Forfeiture of bond would be classed as a conviction.

Senator Hill also expressed the opinion that, in final enactment of a drivers' license bill, the Legislature should impose upon the courts mandatory sentences. "Leaving it up to the courts," he said, "would merely result in chaos because local conditions would enter too much in administration of the act."

Senator A. E. White, of Lumberton, has introduced a bill along similar lines, but his bill would require every driver, regardless of how long he has been driving, to stand an examination before a license would be issued. He, too, would grant a temporary respite before putting his bill in effect; applicants for license would get their licenses free during next July, but after that date would be assessed a fee of one dollar. His bill would become effective July 1.

Senator Carroll Wathers, of Wake, also has a drivers' license bill which he plans to tinker at an early date. There are others, some of them still in formative state. The final bill which now seems assured or rapid passage, will probably be a composite of the various bill offered.

It is significant that none of the measures yet offered call for an increase in the highway patrol. All however, infer that it will be increased.

MORTGAGE SALE

Christopher's Shopping

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"Caw, caw, caw, I wonder, I wonder, I wonder," said Christopher to himself as he flew along.

"I have been leading too quiet a life lately. Yes, that's the truth. I'm not living up to my reputation of being clever and a bit wicked at the same time. I'm becoming like a solemn old owl who only looks wise without doing anything besides his selfish marketing."

"As I've always said, what is life without a touch of mischief? I've been too good."
"But I've made a discovery now and I have an idea. I'll have to wait until the night is here, but it will be fun waiting. It will be amusing to see if it turns out as I hope it will."
"Caw, caw, caw, won't it be fun?" Christopher's cawing laugh could be heard all over the snowy countryside.

"I'll get Willy Nilly's adhesive tape and that will take up a little time. Then I will take it back to him, and that will take up a little more time. Then I'll see how my plan works out."

Christopher Columbus Crow flew along to the village. He walked in a very dignified and grand manner up the steps that led into the store. Then he waited until someone came along to open the door and in he walked at the same time.

He flew up to the counter, pulled the money and the piece of paper from under his wing, and cocking his head on one side held out a foot to show that he was ready for his package.

"I'll just wait on this other customer, and I'll be right with you, Crow," said the storekeeper.

"Caw, caw, take your time," said Christopher pleasantly.

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WELL, how are things over in Puddle Muddle, Crow?" asked the storekeeper as he took Christopher's money.

"Very fine, caw, caw," said Christopher.

"I'm sure I don't understand what you're saying," the storekeeper laughed. "But I'm certain you're saying that everything is all right."

"Caw, caw, that's what I'm saying," returned Christopher.

The storekeeper wrapped up the adhesive tape and handed it to Christopher. The crow tucked it under his wing and hopped down from the counter.

"For special customers such as you," said the storekeeper pleasantly, "I'll open the door."

Christopher walked out in a most magnificent manner, bowed his head as he said a cawing good-bye, and started to fly back home.

He cawed as he flew along for he liked the sound of his voice in the clear, cool air. It was beginning to grow dark.

"Nights don't waste time in coming around at this season," said Christopher to himself. "Now I'll just have a look to see what I'll do and how I'll go about my prank."

As Christopher looked all about him he made up his mind just how he would act and just what he would do.

"I only hope it turns out as I think it will," he thought.

But as he flew in this direction and that, and then stopped to have a good look at the scene where his action was soon to take place, he forgot about the package of adhesive tape. It fell into the soft snow without a sound. And, in Puddle Muddle, Willy Nilly was waiting.

are a guide to value

Experts can roughly estimate the value of a product by looking at it. More accurately, by handling and examining it. Its appearance, its texture, the "feel" and the balance of it all mean something to their trained eyes and fingers.

But no one person can be an expert on steel, brass, wood leather, foodstuffs, fabrics, and all of the materials that make up a list of personal purchases. And even experts are fooled, sometimes, by concealed flaws and imperfections.

There is a surer index of value than the senses of sight and touch . . . knowledge of the maker's name and for what it stands. Here is the most certain method, except that of actual use, for judging the value of any manufactured goods. Here is the only guarantee against careless workmanship, or the use of shoddy materials.

This is one important reason why it pays to read advertisements and to buy advertised goods. The product that is advertised is worthy of your confidence.

Merchandise must be good or it could not be consistently advertised. Buy advertised goods.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady unchanged to five lower under liquidation and continued nervousness over the gold clause situation. After easing off to 12.33 for March and 12.21 for October, or about for to eight points net lower, prices steadied before the end of the first half hour when March was selling at 12.37 and December 12.31 while October sold off from 12.26 to 12.18, making declines of six to 11 points. At mid-day March was selling around 12.34 and October 12.21 or four to eight points net lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Brief suspension of speculation as to the gold clause permitted Wall Street to partially regain its composure today. Price recovered as there was a moderate check on the sudden rise of the dollar and exchanges seemed to abandon the idea of the return of the old dollar of 23.22 grains of fine gold. French francs reacted a little but did not get even close to yesterday's low levels and later firmed. The bond market was quiet. Grains receded a little. Forenoon gains in some stocks were paired in the late trading. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.
