FIVE SENT UP TO COURT IN GAMBLING CASE

Raid on Pitt Drug Store Staged by Officers Thursday Night

Five persons, two charged with operating a gambling house and three charged with gambling, were bound over to higher court by Mayor R. C. Flanagan in this morning's session of City Court. W. H. Norris and Key Norris, operators of Pitt Drug Company, were bound over under bonds of $200 each charged with the operation of a gambling house while Pinky Whitehurst, J. Harvey Briley and L. J. Katzer were bound over under bonds of $100 each on charges of gambling. Joe Webb, who gave his residence as Edenton when taken in the raid by officers Thursday night, did not appear for trial this morning. The raid on the drug store was staged by Chief of Police George Clark and Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst. When the officers appeared on the scene they found the game going on in a specially built room in the drug store for the purpose. They took the four players into custody along with $47.25 that appeared on the table. Chief Clark stated that according to the evidence the room was prepared for a gambling room something like a month ago. In addition to its equipment a buzzer had been installed in the ceiling of the room with a push button under the wrapping counter out in front to warn players of any approach to the room. Prior to the raid Chief Clark said it that the wires from the push button had been disconnected, and as a result of this, there was no way in which the players could be warned of the approach of the officers until they stepped into the room. Whitehurst, Briley, Katzer and Webb were engaged in the game at the time. There were three others in the room, but who were taking no part in the game, and no charges were preferred against them. Other cases heard by Mayor Flanagan this morning, including that of half a dozen negroes recently arrested in connection with the systematic robbery and sale of stoves from the Taft Furniture Company warehouse here. Johnnie Allen, David Waddell, Preston Hawkins, Annie Hawkins, Alex Duppre, and B. A. Chadwick, held in the case, were bound over under bonds of $200 each charged with breaking and entering and receiving stolen property knowing it to have been stolen. Stanley Haddock, negro, was bound over to higher court on a charge of breaking into the store of H. T. Smith on Dickinson Avenue.

MASS TROOPS ALONG BORDER

German Press Says Lithuania Doubling Strength of Armed Forces

Berlin, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The massing of Lithuanian troops at Tattow, near the German frontier, was widely reported to-day in the press of Germany which said the Lithuanian reserves had been called to the colors for a three months' period, doubling the army's peace-time strength. With a unanimity, indicating the guiding hand of Propaganda Minister Goebbels, the German press called the public's attention to Lithuania's activities. The papers described Lithuania's alleged action as "saber rattling" and a sign of a bad conscience. They said Lithuania's excuse for bringing troops to the border was that Prussian storm troops intend to cross the border and capture the mandated city of Kaialda (Memel). This excuse was described in the German press as old, but none the less ludicrous.

Short Session of Legislature Today

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The customary Saturday session of the North Carolina General Assembly lasted a total of 18 minutes today. The Senate met for seven minutes and passed three House bills on local matters. No new bills were introduced. The House met eleven minutes and passed five local bills. It also received a number of measures, including one by Mrs. Hutchins, of Yancey, to provide for a farm agent for Yancey.

An apparatus for measuring the amount of soil lost to farm lands by erosion has been installed at the government's soil erosion experiment station in Missouri.

WEEK TERM OF CIVIL COURT ENDED FRIDAY

Trial of Criminal Cases Will Get Under Way Here Monday Morning

A week term of civil court with Judge M. V. Barnhill presiding was completed here yesterday afternoon and the decks were cleared for the January criminal term to begin Monday morning. The criminal docket is composed of about a hundred cases including five or six under cases in the various degrees. With the majority of the civil cases set for the first days of this week being settled out of court, got into its first real hearing Wednesday morning with the Move vs. Move vs. Land Bank, and the case was not completed until the noon hour yesterday. After the case went to the jury at noon the court granted one divorce while waiting the verdict of the jury in the land suit. W. B. McLawhorn was granted complete divorce from Emma Clark McLawhorn. The case that consumed so much of the court's time was the result of the foreclosure of a mortgage by the North Carolina Land Bank and a series of sales following. According to the evidence, the Land Bank after foreclosing on the land of Henry Move made a contract with J. W. Holmes to sell him the land for the negro for a sum of $1,300. The Land Bank later sold the land to another negro, William Move, for the sum of $2,400 and William Move started proceedings to remove Henry Move from the land. Henry Move gave bond and continued possession of the land and started proceedings against the Land Bank to compel carrying out the contract for sale of the land at a price of $1,300. It was brought out at the hearing that after giving a check to the Land Bank Holmes had had the bank hold-up payment of the check until he could again discuss the matter with the Land Bank, and it was while this was pending that the Land Bank made the sale to William Move. In view of the failure in payment of this check, the jury held that the contract made by the bank with Holmes for Henry Move was null and void, and that the sale of the land by the bank to William Move was a legal sale and he was entitled to possession of the land.

House Member Names Self As Repeal Champion

The Reflector. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—"I'm the repeal member of this Legislature," says Representative Ed. Tompkins, of Mecklenburg, "and you can put it down now that Tompkins isn't up merely to pass a lot of silly, empty laws, but to repeal a lot of laws like some of those already on the statute books."

More Tickets To Birthday Ball Sold at Premium

The sale of tickets at a premium for the President's Birthday Ball to be held here on January 30 continues with the announcement that the German Club of this city has purchased one ticket at a price of $10 while J. J. White and R. L. Powell have purchased tickets for $5 each. While the regular price of dance tickets is $1.50 and spectators tickets are offered at 50 cents each, a number of citizens wishing to aid in the good cause for which the ball is to be held have donated sums up to $25 for their tickets and well over $200 has been raised in this way beside the sale of tickets at the regular price.

SENATE PUTS HOUSE ON SPOT OVER BONUS

Corey Stands by Veterans For Demand For Immediate Cash Payment

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 19.—The state senate put the house on the proverbial spot by amending the resolution, previously passed by the House, which would memorialize Congress for immediate cash payment of adjusted compensation certificates, popularly known as the soldiers' bonus.

The amendment, offered by Senators Carroll Weathers of Wake, and Julian Allbrook of Halifax, so tempered the language of the resolution as to make it a rather innocuous affair. The resolution in its original form asked for "immediate cash payment" but Senator Weathers' amendment added the words "when practicable" and Senator Allbrook further amended it to read "so as not to impair the credit of the United States."

Senator Arthur Corey of Pitt, demanded immediate passage of the bill in its original form. He is an ex-service man and chairman of the military committee of the senate which reported the bill favorably. In this stand he was supported by Senators Frink, Dunn, Gravelly, Steele and others. He was opposed by Senators Shute, Bell, Weathers, Johnson, Erskine, Smith and others.

Finally, much wrangling, the measure was passed, with its two amendments, with only two dissenting votes. They were cast by Senators Ray Shute, of Union, and Erskine Smith of Stanley, who expressed the opinion that the legislature should not attempt to "dictate" to the federal congress.

The fate of the measure is thus up to the house. Previously the house had passed it without a record vote, only one member in the rear of the chamber voicing a feeble "No." Perhaps, after all, the house members may have to put themselves on record.

FIRE DESTROYS OLD LANDMARK IN ATLANTA

Depot and Warehouse Built Before Civil War Wiped Out By Flames

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Flames believed to have started from an explosion early today burned the old Georgia Railroad Depot and Warehouse, one of the landmarks of Atlanta, to the ground with a loss estimated at more than $109,000. The fire spread through the old building rapidly and had enveloped it before fire-fighters arrived. Fire companies were called on from all parts of the city to fight the blaze. The old depot building was built before the War Between the States. The warehouse was added later.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

Washington By GEORGE DURNO PERMANENT: Frank C. Walker took a leave of absence from the job of being Executive Director of the National Emergency Council "way late last summer. But always loyal to FDR, Walker has put aside his private interests and is back doing business at the old stand—although without official portfolio.

Lads on the inside report that Richberg's predecessor has been sitting in on all of the important conferences over spending that four billion dollars for work relief. He is in something like unofficial charge of starting the big ball rolling in the right direction. Eventually the White House will ask new legislation to fit this program. A new and permanent government agency probably will be proposed. It will act as a central clearing house for all federal employment, thus eliminating overlapping endeavors of existing emergency setups. It will be so created that it will be able to function immediately in an emergency, such as the depression which started in 1930, merely by making larger appropriations available for public works.

Bankhead of Ala., new Democratic floor leader of the House, has been so since before the date of his election he has been unable to take any active part in Congressional affairs. SNOW STORMS SWEEP OUT OF NORTH WEST

Parts of Country in Worst Grip of Cold Weather of The Year

Chicago, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Winter was striking with renewed fury in the central west and northwest portions of the United States today. A blast of bitter cold was reported sweeping down from the far northwest where blizzards had piled snowdrifts high and threatens to move as far east as the Ohio Valley and upper Great Lakes region by tomorrow.

Make It Snappy Says Senator

The Reflector. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—"One loaf of bread! And make it snappy!" That is what Senator Arthur Corey of Pitt, will probably say to his baker is he gets very hungry.

During the Senate debate on the bonus resolution Senator Corey, staunch bonus advocate, told his colleagues that the ex-service men need the bonus, "and they need it now." said Senator Corey. "If I were starving to death I wouldn't phone my baker to send me a loaf of bread whenever he could get around to it. I'd tell him I wanted it right now."

New Cotton Bill. Washington, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Senator Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, author of the Bankhead cotton control act, announced today he would introduce a new bill with approval of the administration to continue compulsory control of cotton.

Washington, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Democratic leaders sought today to head off any revolt against the major features of the Roosevelt social security program. Meanwhile Capitol Hill saw signs of some Democrats joining some Republicans in fighting for a more liberal benefits for unemployed and the aged.

Administration leaders studied the declaration by President Roosevelt that he saw no reason why the states could not make the pension for those now old and needy higher than $300 a month. Though he said that sound financing required the federal government to limit its part of the contributions to $15 he indicated a belief that the states might if they desire chip in more than that sum.

While the Republicans as a group withheld any comment pending meetings to discuss a stand the President sought quick action by Congress. He said yesterday he hoped the legislation would go through quickly so the state legislatures, 44 of which are now meeting or soon will be in session, can go ahead with their share of the program.

DREAM TREASURE HUNT RUINS RICH HUNGARIAN. Budapest.—(A)—Discovery of the grave of Attila the Hun, with rich treasures believed to have been buried with him, is the goal of thirty years of excavations which have brought the financial ruin of a prosperous family.

Mrs. Ferenc Forgacs, widow of the man who began the digging on Prod Hill, near Hajduboszormeny, finally has been a large corridor which experts say may lead to the grave. She carried on the work for twenty years after the death of her husband, who spent most of his fortune on the work because he dreamed that the grave was in the hill. The same dreams came to the widow, she says.

TEXTILE MAN IS FOR CHILD LABOR LAW

Representative Cone Likely to Introduce Resolution For Ratification

The Reflector. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—Representative Ben Cone of Guilford County, a member of the Cone family of textile manufacturers, may introduce the resolution for the ratification of the child labor amendment to the National Constitution, it was learned here today. Since Mr. Cone and his family are among the largest employers in the textile industry in the State, it will be regarded as a significant if he introduce this resolution.

"I have not decided yet whether I will introduce it or not," Cone said when he asked today if he was going to offer the resolution. "However, I see no objection to the child labor amendment and may offer the resolution for its ratification. In fact, I think in many ways the amendment would be a good thing since it would assure greater uniformity in child labor laws throughout the nation. I intend to vote for the resolution whether I introduce it or not."

The fear that some people have that the child labor amendment will prevent some under 18 years of age from working on the farms or in the home is entirely unfounded, Cone said.

"I cannot see that child labor is much of a problem either in North Carolina or in any other State any more, since industry has found that child labor for the most part is the most expensive labor it can use and that it is hence unprofitable," Cone said. "However, in order to have more uniform laws regulating it, the child labor amendment may help. In fact, the only objection I can find to it is the general objection of too much Federal control, with the Federal Government taking over more and more of the regulatory powers that heretofore have belonged to the States. But as long as the people are willing for the Federal Government to take over more and more of these powers, nothing can be done about it."

President Urges Congress to Quick Action on Social Security Program

Their Gang Broken

With Arthur "Doc" Barker (top) under arrest in Chicago and federal agents hot on the trail of Alvin Karpis (below), their notorious kidnaping gang has gone the way of all other infamous mobs tackled by the United States Bureau of Investigation. (Associated Press Photos)

The state took immediate steps for a counter attack. Attorney General David T. Wilentz asserted that on the eve of the ransom payment Hauptmann's balance in one bank was only $203.90 and that a year later the amount had swollen to $528.35. Basing the case further on the contention that the money banked had been changed from the ransom notes the prosecution established that in another account in Mount Vernon, N. Y., bank, Hauptmann's deposits were known for their number of silver coins. The prosecution drew into its theory of the Lindbergh case a picture of Hauptmann cautiously passing a ransom bill in minor purchases and banking all the change. The picture fitted into the composite picture it has tried to bring of Hauptmann throughout the trial, that of a calculating person plotting every step far in advance to carry out the kidnaping and working out a way to enjoy its proceeds.

LITTLE HOPE FOR COUNTIES TO GET HELP

Legislature Not Likely to do Anything Toward County Road Bonds

The Reflector. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—There is virtually no possibility of State Highway funds being allocated to the counties for the retirement of county road bonds, or for any other purpose. Such is the consensus of opinion gathered from legislators by this bureau.

Representative Tam Bowie, of Ashe, favors allocation of two cents a gallon of the present gas tax to the counties. He points out that this county has heavy outstanding obligations in the form of road bonds and thinks that the State, since it has taken over the highway system, should redeem such county roads. Representative U. S. Page, of Bladen, holds similar views.

Counties not having outstanding road bonds would have to share in the allocation, of course, and they would be free to use their share of the fund as they see fit. That say most legislators, would constitute diversion of highway funds, and they are against diversion. In such a stand, they say, they are backed by public sentiment in their home counties. Most counties having large outstanding bond indebtedness find their bonds selling at a figure far under their par value, it is claimed. Thus, if the Legislature allocated State Highway funds for the redemption of those bonds, the bondholders, and not the counties involved, would benefit most, because State funds placed behind those bonds would undoubtedly result in a rise in price of the bond issues involved.

If legislators' opinions are worth anything, they are worth this much: those counties with outstanding road bonds are going to have to do their own redeeming, if any.

Farmers Leg Is Broken By Falling Tree. David Hoots, of the Sheldermid section of the county, this afternoon suffered a broken leg and was rushed to this city for medical aid. State Senators Mere Boys Says Senator Steel. The Reflector. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—"Members of the this body were probably too young to fight in the World War," said Senator Thomas Steel, "and the remark while he was making a speech favoring the passage of a resolution to memorialize Congress for payment of the soldiers' bonus."

That, according to Senator Arthur Corey, of Pitt, means that many of them were Boy Scouts during the war. He had just made the remark that those who were too young to join the army and belonged to the Boy Scouts during the war should not be opposed to the bonus because they were not in the army or navy. Senator Steel, who hails from Statesville, was also in favor of the resolution, but he must have thought that not many of the Senators were old enough to have fought against Germany. Or maybe he only intended to flatter the Senate, hoping that it would favor any bills he may later introduce.

HAUPTMANN TRIAL IDLE OVER SUNDAY

Defense to Study Money Matters of Accused During Week-End Recess

(Copyright, By The Associated Press) Flemington, N. J., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's defense explored today a mass of money, drafting evidence from his financial accounts to oppose state testimony that he had a mysterious income of $49,960—only $40 less than the Lindbergh ransom figure. Wading through Hauptmann's bank and brokerage statements during the week-end recess of the trial granted by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard for this purpose, defense attorneys said they would show the Lindbergh ransom notes failed to appear in a single one of the accounts. Edward J. Reilly chief of defense took pains to bring out that before the kidnaping Hauptmann's accounts already showed sizable deposits, evidencing the frugal habits of the Bronx carpenter and his pale careworn wife.

The state took immediate steps for a counter attack. Attorney General David T. Wilentz asserted that on the eve of the ransom payment Hauptmann's balance in one bank was only $203.90 and that a year later the amount had swollen to $528.35. Branch Funeral Largely Attended

The funeral yesterday of Mrs. Horace Branch, 23, who was killed by a drunken driver as she walked beside the Cox Mill highway Thursday night, was largely attended at the church being inadequate to accommodate the large number of friends and relatives who gathered to pay their last respects to the deceased. The floral tribute was large. The services were conducted by Rev. W. H. Brunson, of Ayden.

Mrs. Branch was killed about 10 o'clock Thursday night as she walked along the side of the highway with her husband and a girl companion. As a car driven by Herman Evans approached from the rear it swerved across the road to the side where the pedestrians were and struck Mrs. Branch and her husband, killing Mrs. Branch and injuring her husband.

The car proceeded a short distance and returned in a dash. Evidence presented at a coroner's inquest was to the effect that the driver of the car was in a drunken condition and he was ordered held without the privilege of bond.

KEEP UP THE GOOD WORK

Officers here have made a good start by raiding one gambling room and arresting the parties gambling as well as the proprietors of the store in which the room was being operated.

HOLDING THE BAG

Word comes from Raleigh that there will be little hope for the counties that built their own highways to get aid from the state to retire bonds because other counties without bonds would likewise have to share in the allocation and such a plan would be diversion of highway funds to which so many of us are opposed.

Regardless of the opinion of some of the legislators we feel that it is a debt that the state justly owes and so long as it permits the counties to struggle under the load of bonded indebtedness for roads that the state has taken away from them, the state should never again boast of its fine road system.

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: Today Montana, El Kead to the Mexican, is to marry Ruth Lavery, the daughter of a wealthy rancher, after several postponements for which he is to blame.

PARTING

"I've got the call that a man has to answer, Ruth," Montana said. She only stared at him. Her lips were parted a little. She looked older; she seemed to be squinting at a bright, distant light.

Richard Lavery did the speaking. He said: "This will be about all, my lad. My girl has put up with a good bit. You'll get up with Jack Lascar here and now, or else you'd better forget about Ruth."

Montana dismounted. The "wild" mare started to follow him up the steps, but shrank away from these strangers. Her master stood over Ruth.

"He's speaking for you, I suppose," said Montana. But she only kept on staring. One could not say whether there was more pain or fear in her eyes.

"It appears that I am speaking for her," said Lavery. "We know what we owe to you, but there's a future as well as a past to think of."

"Wait a minute," said Montana. "You can only talk for yourself. Say something, Ruth!"

"I can't," she answered. "If I try to talk—I'll only be weeping."

"People cry about things that are gone, finished. Am I finished as far as you're concerned?"

She shook her head. "I gave you a promise about the riding of the mare, and then I broke it. Does that make you feel that you can never trust me?"

"Do you trust yourself?" she asked. "This struck him very hard, apparently. He began to reason on her side: 'It's our wedding day—and I ride off—I'll always be riding off. Is that what you feel?'"

She was silent. "I know," concluded Montana. "I can see it. What's left in you is mostly fear."

"I want to be braver and bigger," said the girl, "but I can't help it. Why are you this way?"

"Because the devil got into me between breaths, I suppose," said Montana. "You won't believe how my heart's aching for you now. You seem to me everything that's right and beautiful. If I go away, the best half of the world will be behind me. But I can't stay and be the happy cat by the fire. Ruth, I'm going away. . . . No matter what happens today, there's no coming back for me."

He took her suddenly in his arms. The tears began to run down her face, but she said, very gently: "I'm not plying myself. It's for you! I think God pities you, too—and loves you."

SHE lifted her face and he kissed her. Then he turned to Lavery and shook hands. "I was hating you a minute ago—but you're right," he said.

"There'll be another chance for me to show you that I'll never forget you," said Lavery. "If you'll still listen to me, I'll still beg you—"

He checked himself. His unspoken words filled a beating moment of silence, and then Montana was walking jauntily down the steps and waving his hand.

"So long, everyone," he called. Afterwards, as he sat the saddle, he heard Ruth crying: "But he'll be killed! Father, he's going to be—"

The sudden beating of the hoofs of the red mare drowned out that complaint. As he came to the turn of the road, he felt an invisible hand tugging at his shoulder and therefore he turned into the saddle and rode out of view with his hat waving over his head.

Now he let the red mare race to get through the pass between the hills, pointing towards far-off Bentonville. After that he felt that he had slipped the hand of the past from his shoulder. He began to laugh like a child. He had not realized how he had dreaded double harness until he was started on the empty trail again!

It was ten-twenty by his watch when he headed into the main street of Bentonville. That was cutting the time a bit short, perhaps, but he did not want to burn up the strength of Sally with too hard a run. For, supposing that he met Lascar and survived the fight with him, he might need all the speed that was in the mare immediately.

Gun-tights were barred in Bentonville. A message had been sent to the sheriff, who was probably running a horse at a dead gallop to get back to the town in time to prevent this duel. And that same sheriff, solemnly and with careful words, had warned Montana that a single flash of a gun in his hand would be enough to land him in jail.

It was curious, in a way, that Jack Lascar should have called for a show-down—public show-down. Because there was nothing public about the character or the past of Jack. He loved twilight and twilight ways like a cat.

There was some mystery behind this challenge—or was it that the memory of that other defeat, that public shaming, had driven Jack Lascar into a frenzy at last, until death was better than a life in which men smiled behind his back?

A freckled-faced boy ran out from a yard and at the side of Montana: "Are you gonna do it, Montana?" he shrilled. "Are you gonna kill him? The sheriff'll chase you if you pull a gun in this town! Don't get yourself chased away from us, Montana. Everybody knows you licked Lascar once. Everybody knows you ain't afraid!"

"Things will be all right, thanks, brother," said the kid. The boy, panting, drew off to the side, shaking his head; and then settled down into a steady dog-trot to get to the appointed place of the meeting.

THEN Montana saw Hi Bailey's blacksmith shop in the distance, thin blue wisps of smoke leaking out through the big, open doors of the place. No horses were tethered in front of it, waiting their turn to be shod. Instead, the string was hitched on the near side of the place.

R. F. C.: It's expected there will be no difficulty in extending the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and giving it additional funds if necessary. Jesse Jones' work is showing up brilliantly.

This is one of the few agencies that recovers part of what it spends. Loans are repaid or curtailed in a large proportion of cases. Signs of better times are unmistakable in RFC operations—even in the railroad field.

CRAP: To ordinary mortals it might be crushing to have Madam Secretary Perkins denounce their brain child as "economically and socially unsound."

Not so with Dr. Frank E. Townsend, sponsor of the Old Age Revolving Pension Plan which would put $200 a month spending money in the pockets of all citizens over 60 years of age.

The good Doctor accepts the knocks as a boost. He probably could not be expected to admit that his plan may run afoul of the same difficulties as socialism, thus defined by a whimsical philosopher:

"Socialism means an equitable division of all the money in the Treasury every Saturday night. The only trouble is that some smart fellow would start a crap game and have it all by Monday morning."

New York By JAMES McMULLIN BANKS: Chairman Leo Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is quietly playing his part in edging the banks toward a unified national system.

He recently summoned the banking superintendents of several states—including New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts—for a cozy chat. He suggested they urge action by their respective state legislatures which would lighten the FDIC's control over its members—and even offered copies of bills designed for that purpose.

He especially wanted two things. One was to have state banking departments accept examinations by Federal Deposit Insurance auditors as official instead of making their own audits. The other was to confer responsibility for closed state banks instead of having this done by state authority.

The object of Mr. Crowley's maneuvers is to extend federal jurisdiction over state institutions with a minimum of argument.

The state banks have plenty of valiant champions in Congress and a frontal attack on their independence would precipitate a bitter wrangle. The stunt is to use sapping tactics in the hope that the opposition won't notice until it's too late.

But Crowley didn't make much headway with the superintendents. The idea of voluntarily curtailing their own authority didn't appeal to them.

SEASONED: The Security and Exchange Commission's simplified registration requirements for established corporations are certain to stimulate financing. More than that, astute observers say they will tremendously strengthen successful companies against the type of hugh-boys competition which threw business off balance in the boom days.

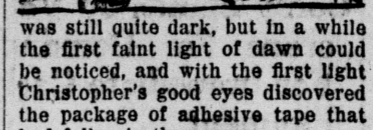

Insiders remark that corporations which have stood the test of time are gradually emerging more firmly entrenched than ever. They will no longer have to face unlimited and

Christopher's Good Eyes

Christopher flew all the way back to the village, but then he decided that he must have dropped the package while he was planning the prank he was going to play. He had to move quietly around outside the old man's house, for he did not want to be discovered. It was still quite dark, but in a while the first faint light of dawn could be noticed, and with the first light Christopher's good eyes discovered the package of adhesive tape that had fallen in the snow.

He tucked it under his wing and flew back to Puddle Muddle. He cawed softly outside Willy Nilly's window.

"Christopher?" asked Willy Nilly. "Is that you?"

"Yes, Willy Nilly," answered Christopher. "I did not want to awaken you. I'm a bit late in getting back with your package, and I'm certainly ever so sorry."

"You know it got dark so quickly, and then before I knew it, it was light again, and here I am, and I am so sorry, and I hope you had a good night's sleep. That will mean that you feel fresh and fit to get at your ears. Perhaps I could help you?"

"No, you really couldn't help me, thanks," said Willy Nilly. "As a matter of fact I didn't sleep very well. I was waiting for you."

"Oh dear," interrupted Christopher. "I am so sorry. That's my fault for being so slow. Well, have a nap now and then you'll feel fine. You have a long day ahead of you."

Christopher hurried off, and after he had gone Willy Nilly wrinkled his forehead and said to himself: "It seems to me Christopher Columbus Crow was acting a bit strange."

West Edgcombe Defeats Locals

By WM. WATSON MORGAN Yes, once again. No, they did not win, once more they lost. Last night West Edgcombe defeated the Greens 16 to 14.

The local team had another peep at the Promised Land, but that seems to be as near as they can get. Maybe—please note, I said maybe—some time in the near future the boys will get tired of just looking and will decide that a slice of the melon is much better than just standing by and looking on. They should be coming through with another victory real soon.

Out of six games played this season, four of these have been decided by one and two points. Brother, that isn't so good on the constitution and disposition of the coach. Someone or maybe several "someones" will be getting the results of this wrath if such games keep going on.

I have often heard that experience counts; if that is so, then the boys should be playing better ball the rest of the season and again next year. Several members of the team are playing their first basketball and really do give promise of developing into first class players. Just a little more experience, confidence and drive and local fans will see a very good club in action.

In last night's game Tom Parrish having his first experience as a varsity player showed up well and really gave promise of developing into a good player. Pleide, Swartz, Laurens and Simpson along with Joe Hatem should also develop into top-notch performers.

Due to exams, the team will not play on Tuesday night, but will swing into action against next Friday against Kinstou. Miss Mial will present, for the first time this year, her girl's team. They will meet the Kinstou girls.

Leipzig Jobless Get Smokes Leipzig, Germany.—(AP)—To provide this city's jobless with cigars and cigarettes, the local Nazi winter relief committee has asked for "one some-stick out of each package." Smokers are told that this sacrifice "won't hurt you and, moreover, you'll be making a poorer fellow citizen happier."

Belgium Uncovers Smuggling Brussels.—(AP)—Narcotics hidden in potted plants led to the arrest of eight men in Mons and the uncovering of an international smuggling ring operating in Belgium, Holland, France, and England. Two pounds of narcotics in a beflowered pot sold to peddlers for $1.80.

MERCIES: The Saar vote is bad news for American holders of $3,000,000 in Saar municipal, banking and corporation bonds. These bonds have a good record up to now but henceforth they will be subject to Germany's tender mercies. The moratorium on payments abroad will probably be extended to include them.

Annual income twenty pounds, annual expenditure twenty pounds, aught ad six, result misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is weathered, the God of day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—and in short you are for ever floored. As I am!" Take it from Mr. Micawber, or from any one of thousands who know it for the truth, there's no friend like cash! And there's no way to be so certain of cash as to spend within your budget. Begin today! Say to yourself--so much will go for food, so much for rent, so much for fuel, so much for charity. Stick within your budget and you'll find it bountiful enough to leave you something over! One of the very best ways to budget as you go is to read the advertisements in this newspaper. Daily, as in a parade, the god values of the good stores march before you. Roast beef or chops for Sunday dinner, a special style in men's shirts, new drapes for the living room... the advertisements will help you choose them all, and often at a saving.

function actively, look for a movement to elect a new floor leader. And if there should be a new floor leader, never forget the sacred rule of seniority—or senility, as a famous editor termed it—which make Byrns Speaker and Bankhead Leader.

INSURED: Rep. John J. O'Connor of N. Y., chairman of the powerful Rules Committee, is heir apparent whenever there is a change in the top jobs of the House. O'Connor ran for both Speaker and Leader, but he really was supporting Bankhead all the time. Bankhead was Chairman of Rules last session and when he moved up O'Connor inherited the Chairmanship by right of seniority.

Next in line behind O'Connor on the Rules Committee is Rep. Adolph J. Sabath, the veteran from Chicago. Sabath also was a candidate for Leader at this year's organization, but not seriously. At the time it was whispered Speaker Byrns would have liked to see Rep. William W. Arnold of Ill. elected but for obvious reasons he dared not make known any preference.

Younger members of the House resent this seniority business. But the old-timers don't. They all are waiting in line for the lightning to strike them, and it isn't so hard to sell a newcomer the idea he would be smart if he took his insured position in the parade.

Following the program a wicker roast was enjoyed.

It was decided that the first dance of the year to be given by the club would be February 21 at the Woman's Club building.

Dr. Meadows Speaks To Students.

"We are at the fork of the road in education," said President L. R. Meadows in his talk to the students at their assembly hour yesterday. "One path will lead to a delightful spot," he stated, "we have the opportunity to go upward higher than ever before." He called to mind the report that the legislature would take action at this session.

He pointed out the fact that teachers' salaries had been cut 40 per cent and commodities have gone up 27 per cent in the past two years. When one considers that the negro cocks, he said, get more than a teacher with an A. B. degree, can he wonder that so many people leave the teaching profession?

Talks to parents Making Liars

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

"All children are liars." That is a not uncommon dictum, but all it really shows is that the grown-ups who say it do not know what they are talking about.

The child is not living in that world which adults inhabit. His mind is far more liquid than is the grown-up's, for the latter has been bound, limited and rendered inflexible by the surrounding objective actualities.

The young still live in the world of creative thought, and by their thinking make things.

When a child has, once reached the point where it finds a feared consequence can be evaded by saying that which is not so, there is an entirely different state of affairs. That the adults about the child are usually to blame is obvious. Fear is not born—it is instilled.

Unfortunately the world about one breeds some fears; companions' others; and unthinking adults most. Parents and nurses should be superhuman. An irritated look, a hasty, unthought word may produce in the child the fear that causes the lie.

Also, we must remember that we ourselves do not surround our children with an atmosphere of complete truth. Mothers are "out" to inconvenient callers. Fathers are "ired" when they would rather read "the play." That these evasions of the truth are merely conventions intended to deceive no one is not always easy to teach a child. To him there are as yet no subtle distinctions, and he sees no difference between a deliberate mis-statement of fact and the social lie.

One thing is certain—all children are not liars, but they are, almost without question, the world's shrewdest detectives, and parents must guard tongue and act in their presence. The liar is made, not born.

BRITISH 'MOTHER PLANE' TAKES MAIL SHIPS ALOFT

Rochester, England. (AP)—A giant "mother" seaplane, capable of carrying a smaller plane on its back and releasing it in mid-air, is under construction here. It will be tested in June.

It is planned to attach a heavily-loaded, single-motored mail plane to the upper wing and fuselage of the monster. The mailer "ship," which would be unable to lift its heavy cargo of gas and mail, will be released by a special device, after which the "mother" will return to the harbor.

Postal authorities hope by this method to increase the cruising range of the smaller craft by more than one thousand miles.

ASSEMBLY TO SHOW SPEED NEXT WEEK

Coming Week is Expected to Witness Unprecedented Progress

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Jan. 19.—More progress has already been made by the present session of the general assembly during the ten days it has been here than the 1933 session made during the first 30 to 40 days, most observers here agree.

Indications are that this rate of progress will be continued and that this coming week will witness even greater progress, especially in the consideration of the two major bills, the revenue and appropriations bills.

The two biggest jobs before the assembly are of course, the formulation of the appropriations and finance bills. No legislative session can end until both of these bills have been enacted. The appropriations bill must be formulated and enacted first, in order that the finance committee and the assembly itself may know how much revenue they will have to provide with which to meet the appropriations.

I see no reason why we will not be able to make even faster progress on the appropriations bill next week," Chairman Victor S. Bryant of the house appropriations committee said today. "We are going to start our public hearings for the state departments and institutions Tuesday afternoon and we believe we can complete all these hearings by Wednesday, January 30. We have also set February 8 as the final limit after which no further hearings of any sort will be granted. As a result, we believe we should be able to report the appropriations bill from the committee to the house by not later than February 15."

There is a possibility, of course, that the joint appropriations committee may not be able to agree on an appropriations bill by the middle of February and that it may require longer to reach an agreement. But present indications are that the committee is not going to have a very difficult time in bringing out a bill. It is also expected that the bill will call for several million dollars more in appropriations than the budget bill prepared and recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Senator Lee L. Grady, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, also sees no reason why the two committees cannot keep up their present rapid pace and bring in a bill by not later than the middle of February.

"While we do not know yet for sure just how much money the Finance committee will be able to provide for the revenue bill, we do know in a general way with the result that we will not be able to increase appropriations beyond a certain point," Senator Grady said. "We all know, of course, that we cannot afford to appropriate more money than we can provide revenue for."

The joint finance committees have already reached the franchise tax section of the revenue bill and are expected to take up that section when the committee holds its next meeting Tuesday afternoon. So far the finance committees have covered more than half of the revenue bill, and it is hoped to get started on the sales tax sections by the middle of this week.

"I see no reason why we should not be able to get through part of Section E, which is the sales tax section of the bill, during the coming week," Chairman Grady Cherry of the house finance committee said today. "We will of course run into more different ideas in the consideration of this section probably than any other. However, I believe we should be able to reach an agreement even on the sales tax section by the end of this next week."

Although the finance committees will probably complete their work on the revenue bill before the ap-

HOEY VISIT STARTS TALK OF CAMPAIGN

Reported He Has Just About Decided to be Candidate For Governor

By J. C. BASKERVILL

The Reflector. Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 19.—The visit of Clyde Hoey, of Shely, here this week, during which he mingled and talked with members of the General Assembly, is causing considerable speculation as to the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor in June primary in 1936. It has also brought out several additional prospective candidates for the Governorship.

Reports are current that Mr. Hoey told several members of the General Assembly that he has just about decided to be a candidate for Governor in 1936, regardless of whether Congressman Robert L. Doughton also becomes a candidate. It is also expected that Governor A. H. Graham will be a candidate for the nomination.

It is also generally understood that Dr. John T. Burrus, of High Point, Senator from Guilford County, is seriously considering becoming a candidate for Governor, if he is not already actually running.

Cale K. Burgess, who was campaign manager for the United Dry Forces in the repeal campaign, is also reported to have admitted to several members that he intends to seek the gubernatorial nomination in 1936 running on a bone-dry platform.

So far as is known here, Colonel T. LeRoy Kirkpatrick, of Charlotte, and former Judge Tob L. Johnson of Asheville, still have their hats in the ring at potential candidates.

Many here are still convinced that Congressman Doughton will also be a candidate for Governor in 1936.

Principal attention continues to center on Messrs. Hoey, Doughton and Graham, however, since most of the older observers are convinced that these are three strongest potential candidates. There is also strong belief in many quarters that Hoey will not be a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination if Doughton decides to run and if Hoey gets his hat into the ring first that the Congressman will not become a candidate. For most observers here are inclined to believe that neither the Congressman from Allegheny nor the former Congressman from Cleveland County have any great desire to oppose each other. There are too many things each might say about each other. It might also result in the nomination of Lieutenant-Governor Graham instead of either of them.

Those who think that either Hoey or Doughton will be able to walk off and leave "Sandy" Graham at the stump a second time, according to many observers here. For while there is no hullabaloo about Graham, there is no doubt that he knows his way about politically and that he already has a very strong following. This following is expected to be even stronger by the time the present General Assembly is over, since he is becoming increasingly popular with the members of both houses.

For a while it was thought here that Hoey was not so much interested in becoming a candidate for Governor in 1936 as he was in running for the U. S. Senate in 1938 against Senator Robert R. (Our Bob) Reynolds, and that he was merely allowing the talk of his possible candidacy to continue to keep his name before the people. But there are some here who now believe that Hoey is actually going to run for Governor, that Doughton will decide to serve another term in Congress instead of becoming a candidate for Governor and that former Governor-Senator Cameron Morrison will attempt a political come-back act in 1938 and try to wrest the senatorial nomination away from Reynolds, just as Reynolds took it away from him in 1932. It is also believed that if Hoey runs for Governor in 1936, he will have the whole-hearted support of Morrison and that he will seek the support of the all dry Democrats.

Most of the more conservative opinion here, however, is to the effect that neither Hoey, Doughton, nor any of the many other prospective candidates will announce formally until after the present session of the General Assembly is over and probably not until after the present session of Congress has recessed, since a lot can happen between now and June, 1936.

Will those interested get in touch with the home agent at an early date? The time for either trip would depend upon when the cherry blossoms at Washington or the azaleas at Charleston are at their best.

Leaders' School. The first leaders' school for 1935 will be held in the home demonstration office next Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. All leaders in Home Management and House Furnishings are urged to be present. Miss Helen Esbrock will give demonstrations in the making of "Home Supplies." LEGISLATURE ACCOMPLISHES MUCH SO FAR

Work of Money Committees Thirty Days Ahead of Last Session

Reflector Bureau
Sir Walter Hotel
Raleigh, Jan. 19.—As the second legislative week ends observers here point out that this 1935 General Assembly is really getting down to business. "Thirty days ahead of last year" is the often expressed opinion. Properly speaking, this is the eleventh legislative day; the assembly did not convene until the middle of last week.

Rapid strides have been made by the finance committee in its task of formulating a revenue bill. Already the committee is more than halfway through the tentative bill. Work will be started on Tuesday on franchise taxes. The inheritance and privilege sections have, for the most part, been framed. A few sections have been kept open for further discussion.

Committees in both houses have been fully organized and the joint appropriations committee has started on its work, having already designated dates on which it will hear recommendations or complaints from various state departments, bureaus and divisions. It has fixed Feb. 8 as the last day on which it will hear complaints. That means that the appropriations bill should be ready weeks before it has been in the past few sessions.

In line with recommendations of the administration, several bills which would establish a driver's license policy have been introduced. These vary in some particulars, chiefly as to methods of administration and as to cost to the motorist. Monday a joint sub-committee of the committees on roads will be appointed to deal with that particular phase of highway administration. The sub-committee will probably solve a committee bill, after considering the various proposals embodied in the introduced bills, for presentation to the legislature.

The committees on elections will probably follow suit before taking action on the numerous bills which have been offered relating to repeal or strict amendment of the absentee ballot law. Most of these measures call for outright repeal, either for the state as a whole or for particular counties and one calls for use of absentee ballot only in case of war.

Retention on the part of those who would change the state's dry law is noted, only one "whiskey control" bill having been offered thus far. It was introduced in the lower house by Representative Nero Day, of Onslow. Mr. Day would submit three proposals to the people, any one of which they might accept. Under his bill the first option is the present Turlington act, absolutely outlawing the sale of liquors; the second is a quart-very-fifteen days option; and the third option a provision of licensing sellers of whiskey and similar beverages.

Under the quart option, those desiring to buy whiskey would be issued permit cards. Delivery of the whiskey could be made by mail or express, or the commissioner of revenue unopened open deposits for liquor-dispensing in towns having a population of 15,000 or more upon petition from the governing authorities of the town. No one would be permitted to buy more than two quarts a month, nor would anyone be permitted to transport any but unbroken packages.

The third option, an open sales plan, would license whiskey dealers assessing a license fee of $100 annually for the state and the same amount for the town in which the store was located. Governing authorities of any city or town could exclude whiskey dealers from their town or city. Under either of the second or third plans a first conviction for drunken driving would call for a mandatory sentence of not less than two months on the roads, with a second offense calling for a like sentence of not less than six months.

It is the opinion of most observers here than only under a referendum clause can any proposed change in the Turlington act pass this legislature.

The only amendment to the present beer law offered thus far is the proposal, by Representative A. B. Palmer, of Cabarrus, to raise the legal contents of beer from 3.2 to 4.5 by weight. General opinion here is that such a bill has an excellent chance of adoption.

That the 1935 crop of legislators is in a business like humor is clear.

KIWANIS CLUB HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

Adopt Resolution Urging Allocation of Highway Funds to Cities of State

Meeting in regular bi-weekly session last night, the Kiwanis Club adopted resolutions memorializing the Legislature to enact legislation that would allocate to the cities of the State a portion of the highway funds to be used for the up-keep of the city streets which are a part of the highway system. The matter had been presented to the clubs at a previous meeting by Mayor R. C. Flanagan who pointed out that 70 per cent or more of the gasoline tax is paid by city residents and that the cities should be entitled to a fair portion of these funds for use within the city limits.

New members received by the club last night were C. W. Bynum and Frederick M. Stokes, and the address of introduction was delivered by Dr. R. C. Deal.

The guest speaker of the club was Prof. H. H. McDougal of the Department of Music in the Greenville Schools. He spoke of the advantages of a musical education to pupils especially in the work of orchestras and bands. Professor McDougal outlined the work being done at present in the building up of the High School band and the organization of an ensemble in the future grades from which will come future material for High School organizations.

One phase of the work of his department was stressed which made a particular appeal to the Kiwanians—the organization of a Community Band to be recruited from boys who do not go away to college and would like to continue their bond work. He stated that there were many such boys now available in Greenville and asked the co-operation of members of civic organizations in such efforts as would be made to provide the community with such a musical organization as he contemplated. After his address Professor McDougal rendered two instrumental solos which would be thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the club.

Attention of the members was called to the celebration next week as the twentieth anniversary of Kiwanis International and also to the annual Ladies Night program of the club to be held next meeting on February 1.

President Dink James announced the committees for the new year. Guests of the club last night included A. Vernon Sheffield, of the Norfolk Kiwanis Club, and A. A. Henderson, of East Carolina Teachers College.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Improvement in steel issues, together with further demand, scattered preferred equities, gave the stock market a fairly cheerful tone in today's brief session. Dealing was quiet and many so-called leaders were narrow.

The close was steady. Transfers approximated 370 shares. A decided lift to sentiment was given by the latest estimates of steel mill operations at Youngstown where operations for next week were placed at 64 per cent capacity, a jump of four points over the previous week and the sharpest January upturn on record for that district.

Grains were a little better and firmness of rail loans helped the bond list, although prime investments and U. S. Government Securities held their own without any great difficulty. Foreign exchanges were quiet.

Three Gun Battles

New York, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Three gun battles, in each which police took part, left three dead and one critically wounded today. Patrolman James M. J. Killian was fatally wounded in the hold-up of a leather goods store on Fifth Avenue at 45th Street last night. The four hold-up men were captured.

A few hours later Albert Musgriff, taxi driver, was shot to death in Brooklyn when two policemen and three gunmen who had followed him to drive them away from a hold-up, exchanged shots. The trio surrendered. City elevated station two brothers resisted attempts of police to arrest them as vagrants after they were found asleep in the station. The brothers started shooting and police returning the fire, and one of the brothers was fatally wounded.

About one-fourth of the people in the United States are employed in agriculture; in Italy about one-half; Germany about one-third; and in France and Ireland, about two-fifths.

A head of lettuce may be kept fresh for several days by placing it in a deep bowl with the stem in fresh water and covering with a plate. The water should be changed frequently. Leaves may be removed as they are needed.

Castors added to the kitchen table and the wood box often save time and effort, especially when the floor is mopped or during the canning season.

"No," says Lachman. "It's a fact that Dante's 'Inferno' exhibits are popular in all the carnival spots from Coney Island to the capitals of Europe."

There is a fountain of youth in movie lighting. Someone remarked to Edmund Lowe that in recent pictures he has looked "even younger" than you did ten years ago. Lowe keeps in shape, his weight has varied little from year to year, and he is not bowed down with years by any means. But he himself says lighting has much to do with it.
