STORM-RIDDEN NATION COUNTS HUNDRED DEAD

HAUPTMANN AUTO BARRED FROM KIDNAP-MURDER CASE

TESTIMONY ON 'LADDER' IS ALLOWED

Arthur Koehler Resumes Stand to Give Further Evidence on Ladder Used in Kidnaping of Lindbergh Baby; State Prepares to Rest; Checkings and Comparison of Ladder Taken up Again

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 24.—(AP)—The state rested its murder case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann today. The defense moved for a directed acquittal and lost.

The end of the state evidence came just before the court noon recess, with Arthur Koehler, wood expert completing his testimony that part of the kidnap ladder came from Hauptmann's attic, that Hauptmann's own plane dressed the ladder and that the rest of the ladder came from the Bronx summer yard where Hauptmann purchased wood.

Hauptmann later took the stand to testify in his own defense.

The evidence of identification, evidence of handwriting and evidence of ransom money is not sufficient, Attorney David Wilentz answered.

"If the defense thinks that we are required to have somebody sitting in that room watching this man commit burglary, or if they feel it is the responsibility of the state to have somebody sitting at the bottom of this ladder to see this man climb it before we are entitled to conviction, it is my judgment, if Your Honor please, that they are in error about it."

The attorney general held that the venue need not be proved by direct or positive evidence, that it was sufficient that reasonable inference could be drawn by fact or circumstances.

"Why we have a wealth of that type of evidence," he said, "in the first place, here is this child safe in its bed, in its home in Hunterdon (Continued on page six)

HERMAN EVANS GOES ON TRIAL

Alleged 'Death Car Driver' Faces Charge of Manslaughter or 2nd Degree Murder

The State rested at the noon hour today in the trial of Herman Evans, 26-year-old Cox Mill man, charged with the "automobile death" of Mrs. Horace Branch 23, on the Cox Mill highway last Thursday night.

The defense immediately began presentation of testimony and when court recessed for lunch, one witness had been examined. It was indicated by the nature of the testimony that the defense will attempt to combat State charges that Evans was in a drunken condition when his car left the highway and struck Mrs. Branch, killing her instantly. Several persons were to testify for the defense during the afternoon.

About eight witnesses testified for the State during the morning hours. They included the husband of the dead woman and a woman companion who was walking along the highway with them at the time of the accident.

Several persons who allegedly arrived upon the scene shortly after the car struck the woman and turned over, testified that Evans was in a drunken condition. Among these were Deputy Herbert Harris and Preston Pierce who arrested the defendant. The testimony of Branch and his companion centered largely about details of the actual wreck.

Three Men Perish As Barge Wrecks At Sea

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Three men went to their deaths in a raging sea early today as the barge Pattie Morrisette floundered off the Delaware Capes, it was stated in a radio message received at the Norfolk division of headquarters of the coast guard. The message said the coast guard cutter Chaplain was standing by in order to save one of the men, but lost him. No further details were given.

HEAD OF RED CROSS DEAD

Judge John Barton Payne Succumbs to Pneumonia in Washington Hospital

Washington, D. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Just as his followers were coping with another flood, Judge John Barton Payne, head of the American Red Cross, died early today.

While Red Cross workers speeded relief to cities along the overflowing streams in Tennessee and Mississippi, the eighty-year-old chairman of the organization succumbed to pneumonia in the George Washington Hospital.

A former Cabinet member who served without remuneration as chairman of the Red Cross for the last fourteen years, Judge Payne directed some of the largest relief operations of all times.

GEEMAN WILLS OUTDATED SAXONY ORDERS REVISIONS

Dresden, Germany.—(AP)—The Saxony government has asked 18,000 testators to revise wills dated prior to January 1, 1924.

The order states that most of these documents contain provision which the World War, the inflation or the Nazi revolution has made impossible of fulfillment. They thus are likely to burden the courts with litigation.

The wills are on deposit with the Dresden record bureau. Citizens who are custodians of their own last testaments were also advised to check up and make sure that their legacies are in tune with the times.

JAP PLANES RAIN BOMBS OVER JEHOL

One Bomb Inflicts Heavy Damage as it Falls on Chinese General's Quarters

Tokyo, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Japanese planes were reported today in dispatches from Hsinking to the Renpo Japanese News Agency to be raining bombs along the Jehol-Chahar border, where the Great Wall divides China from Manchukuo.

One bomb was said to have fallen on the frontier headquarters of General Shung Chen-Yuan, military governor of Chahar, inflicting heavy damages.

General Shung's troops were reported in the dispatch to have suffered many casualties in returning the advance of the Japanese column with "numerous killed" in the battle yesterday morning.

The Japanese casualties were listed as one sergeant and two officers wounded.

Several Chinese villages were reported to have been bombed by the Japanese but the dispatches did not indicate on which side of the border they were situated.

Peiping, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Acute aggressiveness was felt by the populace of this ancient Chinese city today as rumors circulated that further Japanese military activities were in prospect along the Chahar-Jehol border.

It was thought in many quarters that large scale operations were impending as result of yesterday's reported attack on three border communities.

One of the towns which the Chinese report named as the center of the Japanese attack, Puhskiuo, is only 93 miles away.

The Japanese forces were understood to be less active today along the border but later reports said larger forces were being concentrated from Jehol toward the Chahar province.

LEGISLATIVE RAMBLINGS

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—It might not be a bad idea to permit committee men to interrupt legislative committee meetings by volunteering any information they may possess on the business at hand. Most newspapermen covering the legislative doings, and misdeeds, are reasonably well-informed about State matters. They have to be, or suffer the alternative of a blue slip in their pay envelope. As proof of the statement, without disparaging in any way the knowledge of certain legislators, let me point out that newsmen cover all angles of your State government, flitting from this to that and back over and upon their typewriters. Most legislators, on quite the other hand, are interested in the doings (Continued on page two)

ROBBERS DRAW ROAD TERMS

Four Defendants Given Long Terms After Conviction in Criminal Court Here

Four negro defendants appearing on separate charges of larceny and store-breaking were sentenced to prison and the roads in yesterday's session of criminal court.

John Henry Jones, 17-year-old negro youth of Farmville, who has given officers considerable trouble over a period of several years, was sentenced to five years in State's prison by Judge Barnhill, to be dissolved by the way deemed most fitting by officials of the prison.

The negro was jailed following a series of store robberies in Farmville in which a number of other negroes were charged with participating.

Jones was apprehended after he had let himself through a skylight with the aid of a rope and then turned in a number of robbers at the back door. The whole gang was rounded up by police shortly afterward.

Jones had been sent to a reformatory two or three times because of his age, but each time he returned to Farmville and the path of more crime.

Zack Parker was sentenced to fifteen months on the roads on a (Continued on page two)

Late News Flashes

Assembly Faces 8 1/2 Ftg Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—Lines were drawn today for the major legislative battles over the sales tax, liquor and taxation of mutual burial associations as the two divisions of the General Assembly held perfunctory session.

This afternoon the joint finance committee heard the Fair Tax Association oppose retention of the 3 per cent general sales tax, the principal of which was approved by the committee yesterday. C. K. Durr, State director of the United Dry Forces, served notice his organization wished to be heard on its opposition to liquor bills as the House committee reached the Day referendum as a proposal for consideration was deferred.

OPPONENTS OF SALES TAX IN THE MINORITY

Conceding Defeat in Committee, Anti-Sales Taxers Will Carry Fight to Floor

By C. A. PAUL
Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—Conceding defeat in the Joint Finance Committee, the anti-sales tax group indicated today that they will not fight the sales tax section of the revenue bill until it reaches the floor of the Legislature itself. It is apparent to leaders in the fight to rid the bill of what is to them the "most odious" section that they are in the minority insofar as the finance committee is concerned.

Leaders of the anti-sales tax group virtually admitted that the sales tax section will be reported favorably by the Finance Committee substantially as written. This means that the present levy of 3 per cent will be maintained and that the present exemptions, consisting of flour, sugar and so on, will be removed.

One prominent member of the anti group estimated that his faction "can muster 70 votes in the lower House." He preferred that his name not be used but added: "Of course, we cannot hold to line the entire 70, because some of them will be satisfied with certain changes." Observers, not members of the Assembly, placed their estimates on anti-sales tax strength in the lower House at much lower figures. They ranged from 35 to 50. The total House membership is 120.

Most observers here are of the opinion that the sales tax will eventually be passed in its present revised form, which will remove the exemptions of certain staple foods.

The Joint Finance Committee is expected, as a result of the removal of the sales tax fight to the legislative floor, to speed up its action, temporarily halted in its rapid march through the revenue bill by objections of the anti group. Much of the committee's time this week will be taken up with the hearing of complaints and suggestions of various companies, groups and organizations. The opinion of competent observers here is that the Finance Committee will not waste any time in reporting the revenue bill after conclusion of the hearings, now scheduled to be completed on January 30.

Mayor Flanagan said a closer spirit of unity between the various cities was in evidence more than ever before at the two-day gathering, and expressed belief that good results would be obtained from the recommendations presented to the Assembly members. A hundred and two towns and cities were represented.

Several liquor control bills before Legislature

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—Several other bills proposing some definite form of liquor control in North Carolina in the place of the present State prohibition law are known to be in process of preparation here. It is understood that Senator John Sprunt Hill, of Durham, an ardent personal dry and active churchman, has prepared a liquor control bill which he is planning to introduce at some later date.

Senator Hill takes the position that the present State prohibition law is a force, that liquor is now being sold in North Carolina more openly than in many of the States where its sale is legalized and that a strong liquor control law will do more to bring about a reduction in drunkenness and drinking than the present law.

It is understood that Senator Hill's bill would authorize a State liquor control board to be appointed to set up State-operated liquor stores in the various cities and towns in the State. The profits from the sale of the liquor would go into the State treasury. The bill provides, however, that any county, city or town that does not want one of these liquor stores may protest its establishment and prevent its being opened. So the bill provides for a modified type of local option by any community that does not want a liquor store or does not want liquor sold in it, may prevent it. The bill does not provide the submission of the plan to a referendum in any special election.

It is also understood that a group of Senate and House members are now in process of writing a bill that would set up the Virginia liquor control plan in North Carolina. It would also authorize the appointment of a State liquor control board which would be empowered to open State liquor stores in counties, cities and towns that requested them or that do not object to having one or more of these stores. It is also understood that this bill would not submit the matter to a vote of the people.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan and four other city officials returned last night from Raleigh where they had been the past two days attending sessions of the North Carolina Municipal Association.

The meeting was held in an effort to carry out President Roosevelt's suggestion for keener co-ordination of the various town and city governments of the nation in order that they may better carry out the federal government emergency program.

Others attending the meeting from this city were Alderman H. H. Duncan, City Clerk J. O. Duvv, City Treasurer Chester Harris and Chief of Police George Clark.

Mayor Flanagan said several specific recommendations were made to members of the General Assembly who were entertained at a banquet by the association last night.

Acting as spokesman for the association, Judge Roy Deal, former Superior court jurist, presented the recommendations, principal among which seeks to exempt the various municipalities from the state gasoline tax.

Exemption from the gas tax, Mayor Flanagan said today, would mean a saving of around $800 annually to the city of Greenville alone, and would run into thousands of dollars for the entire state.

The association also recommended a supplementary fund of $1,000,000 for the maintenance of streets in the various cities, especially those affecting state and federal highways.

Meanwhile, there were at least 14 deaths in the flood waters of the South where rivers on a wild rampage helped swell the total of winter deaths.

Ten dead perished in northern Mississippi. Four additional deaths were reported from Tennessee. Relief workers worked at top speed to bring aid to the homeless, cold and hungry. Cold and hunger added to the problem of the victims.

From 400 to 1,000 persons were believed clinging to roofs and houses in the flood area around Sledge, Miss.

Overflowing creeks and rivers also also played havoc in western Virginia where two persons were killed. The State was blanketed by a heavy snow.

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 24.—(AP)—A drop in temperature to the lowest level of the winter early today was predicted by the United States Weather Bureau here.

S. C. Schuman, meteorologist, said the mercury likely would drop to 10 degrees here as the full force of the present cold wave is felt. The law here this morning was 16, one degree higher than the low for December 12, which was the coldest day here so far this winter.

Winter, which has been harrasing the eastern and western parts of the country the last several days swooped down over this section of the state last night with a sprinkling of snow and the mercury had hurled to the lowest point of the winter this morning.

B. T. Clark, local weather observer, said this morning that the mercury stood at 18 compared with a reading of 36 degrees yesterday morning at the same time. For the same date last year the reading was 68.

The cold snap followed several days of spring like temperatures and sent the citizenship scuttling for heavier garments and increased fuel supplies.

Snow fell here for an hour or more last night between seven and 9 o'clock, but the flakes melted as fast as they hit the pavement. A light layer remained on houses and trees this morning to remind the citizens of the second visit of the snowman this season.

The slight snowfall was accompanied by a strong wind. (Continued on Page Six)

WOULD MAKE AUTO OWNERS RESPONSIBLE

Bill Before Legislature Seeks to Make Drivers Financially Liable

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 24.—Automobile owners would be required to furnish evidence of their financial ability to pay the cost of any damages resulting from accidents in which their automobile figures under the terms of a bill introduced in the State Senate by Senators J. T. Burrus of Guilford and S. F. Teague of Goldsboro.

This is the first of several bills that are expected to be introduced along that line. The Burrus-Teague bill would require automobile owners to furnish the Commissioner of Revenue with a bond or other satisfactory evidence of their financial liability before a license for operation of cars could be issued.

Commercial liability insurance is implied in the verbiage employed in the bill, although the bill itself carries no specific language to that effect.

Introduction of the bill followed close upon the heels of several drivers' license measures. It can be said with certainty that this 1935 legislature will provide drastic regulation for users of the highways.

Because of extreme reluctance on the part of insurance companies to accept applications for liability insurance from car owners and because rates on that type of insurance have steadily mounted it has been suggested that the state might be asked to set up its own liability insurance corporation, or as an alternative, a "master policy" similar to those taken out by employers for group insurance of employees.

In the event of the adoption of such action car owners would, of course, be compelled to take out liability insurance at the time of license issuance. The Burrus-Teague bill was referred to the committee on insurance where, of course, any proposed bill along the line of a state-owned or controlled liability insurance will be sent.

Institute Speaker

The work of newspaper correspondents in Paris will be described on Thursday night by R. P. Harris, associated editor of the Duke University News, at the North Carolina Newspaper Institute. Mr. Harris, a graduate of Duke returned to this country last fall after working with the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune for four years. He is a native of Fayetteville and has worked on several papers in North Carolina.

Spontaneous wants the proposed tax placed on divorced persons, the men to pay $50, the women $25. It is his idea that such a plan would be unconstitutional because of the difference in rate. It is the women who cause most divorces, ain't it?

Used-car dealers pleaded before the joint finance committee that used cars sales should not be subject to the sales tax. It was amusing to note that their representatives refused to concede the point, when asked by a committee member, that all the trouble is caused by dealers who give excessive trade-in allowances on used cars in making new car sales. Finally, after much questioning, the used-car men were allowed to go their way. Just before they went, however, Senate Finance Chairman Harris Newman told them they might, if they liked, file a brief with the committee. "Thanks," said one of them, "we'll find out what that is and do it."

of the Cox Mill community, alleged "death car driver," went on trial on a charge of manslaughter when criminal court resumed work this morning.

Evans is charged with killing Mrs. Horace Branch, 23, of the Cox Mill community, when he ran into her along the Cox Mill highway last Thursday night. He was said to have been drinking.

A jury was chosen from the regular panel late yesterday afternoon shortly before court was recessed for the day. Solicitor D. M. Clark announced at the time he would not ask for a verdict of first degree murder but would seek conviction for manslaughter or second degree murder. The grand jury returned a murder indictment.

The defense counsel is composed of Judge Albion Dupn and J. B. James while the State is being assisted by Louis Gaylor.

Two eye-witnesses to the killing, the husband of the dead woman and a girl companion, were the main witnesses for the State, repeating virtually the same testimony as given before a coroner's jury which ordered that the young man be held for the grand jury without the privilege of bond. Other persons arriving upon the scene were also used by the State in its effort to send the defendant to State's Prison.

Mrs. Branch's husband said immediately after the accident that the three were walking on the dirt shoulder on the left side of the highway when Evans' car approached from the rear, apparently driving on right side of the road, struck Mrs. Branch and carried her a short distance before plunging into a ditch and overturning. Other witnesses said to have appeared on the scene immediately after the accident testified to the drunken condition of Evans.

The case was expected to consume all day, probably reaching the jury room tomorrow.

It is understood that a considerable number of witnesses would be on the stand by the defense, including a number to testify to the good character of the defendant.

REALTY STEPS LIVELY HERE

Nearly Half Hundred Transfers of Property Reported Here Last Ten Days

The real estate situation which surged forward in an enthusiastic way the latter part of last year continued to hold its own in Pitt County.

It was indicated by records in the office of the Register of Deeds today that forty-six deeds were filed for registration during the last ten days, one of the largest batches in the past several weeks, although the totals have been near that figure for some time.

Larger sums of money are involved in some of the transactions this time than in previous weeks. The exchange of city and town property probably led the list with farm property bringing up a close second place.

The largest transaction was that from F. C. Harding and others to Gray Corey, 250 acres of land, for a consideration of $9,750.

The second most important transaction was from F. M. Wooten, trustee, to Alma A. Dudley, 315 acres for a consideration of $7,200.

The remainder of the transactions follow: Lottie Belcher, adms., to Emma Abrighton, one lot, $20.

W. J. Bullock and wife to J. Mack Dixon, 100 acres, $3,000. Luby D. Cox and wife to Clinton V. Cox, 92 acres, $10.

Susan E. McLawhorn to Lizzie McL. Jolly, 35 acres, $1,100. M. K. Nobles and wife to Annie R. Whitehurst, 65 acres, $1,000.

Mary B. Price, et als., to H. P. Rasberry, 150 acres, $1,300. J. E. Whitehurst, and wife to Leon S. Brown, 113.25 acres, $2,400.

James Brown and wife to A. B. Corey and wife, two lots, $10. James Brown to S. A. Whitehurst, one lot, $10.

R. Dawson Bissett to Jasper Weatherington, one lot, $100. R. L. and F. M. and Lucy Davis to Louise and Mary Phillips, three acres, $100.

Mrs. Appie E. Flanagan to Mrs. Mary T. Burnett, one lot, $1,666.66. F. J. Forbes and wife to Bruce F. Hadley, one-half interest, $1,000.

Home Building and Loan Association to Rachel M. Moore, one lot, $2,000.

W. J. Bundy, trustee, to Z. V. Bunting, one lot, $900. The Turnage Company, Inc., to

Mrs. Mary T. Burnett, lot, $400. N. C. J. S. Land Bank to Wilbur L. Worthington, 194.5 acres, $10. Elias Cannon, Jr., to Mrs. Joe Norris, eight acres, $40. Beatrice Cannon to Mrs. Joe Norris, 6 1/4 acres, $60. J. E. Green to H. A. Lawhorn, 37.5 acres, $2,500. James Brown to C. P. Edinger, two lots, $10. W. S. Belcher to A. B. Ward and wife, four lots, $100. Joe Norris and wife to J. W. Barfield, 43 acres, $765. W. A. Everett and wife to Abe Gray, three tracts, $4,500. Bruce F. Hadley to Blanche M. HOUSING BODY TO AID FARMS

Farmers to be Informed How They May Obtain Money For Needed Repairs

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 24.—The benefits of the Federal Housing Administration will be brought to the farmers and rural dwellers of North Carolina as a result of a movement launched here Wednesday when an agricultural advisory committee was selected to work with Richard Oulahan, of Asheville, associate director in charge of the Federal Housing Administration in North Carolina.

The purpose of the program outlined at the meeting here is to inform farmers as to how they may borrow money for needed repairs to farm dwellings and buildings and to point out the advantages of keeping their property in first class condition.

A survey has already been made by Dr. Jane S. McKimmon, in charge of the home demonstration division and by Miss Helen Estabrook, home management specialist, showing that in ten counties surveyed 29,000 farm homes were found in immediate need of repairs and additions. But the farmers and especially the farm women want accurate advice as to what materials to use and how to do the work with labor available on the farm.

It was decided to start demonstration projects immediately in two counties, Craven and Cleveland, where the survey has already been made. The farmers in these counties will be visited and told how the Federal Housing Administration can help them get the money with which to make needed repairs, or put up new buildings.

Between 3 and 4 per cent of the human race is left-handed.

SALE OF LAND Under and by virtue of power vested in me by that certain Deed of Trust executed to me by J. R. Tucker and wife, Sarah A. Tucker, et al., dated January 1, 1923, and appearing of record in the Pitt County Registry in Book T-14, page 203, I shall offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, on Monday, 21 January, 1935 at 12 o'clock noon at the Courthouse Door in the Town charge of larceny. He was charged with stealing articles of goods from a negro store here. Charlie Sessoms and Ivey Barnes, of the Farmville community, each found their way to long terms on the roads after they were found guilty and convicted on a charge of car stealing. Barnes drew two years and Sessoms eight months.

One of the defendants allegedly wanted to go home to see his sick mother, and with the aid of the other, obtained possession of an automobile and left for another part of the State. They were later caught and returned to Farmville to face trial and subsequent confinement in jail here.

Social Calendar

THURSDAY
7:30 p. m.—The young people's choir of Memorial Baptist Church will meet.

FRIDAY
10:30 a. m.—The Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church will hold prayer service for missions at the home of Mrs. R. C. Deal.

3:30 p. m.—Mrs. Carey Campbell will speak to members of the Senior and Junior Women's Club in the club building.

7:45 p. m.—Mrs. Charles A. White will present her music pupils in a recital at Third Street School.

Little Theatre Guild.
The Little Theatre Guild will meet tonight at Sheppard Memorial Library to enjoy an informal showing of "The Miracle Merchant," a comedy of English life by H. H. Monroe.

Mr. Monroe who wrote under the pen name of "Saki" is the author of many clever short stories, but the sketch on the program for this evening is the only one he put into dramatic form. The playlet deals with the ever ingenious Lewis and his efforts to supply his aunt with a miracle on short notice.

Anyone interested in the work of the local Little Theatre Guild which made its formal bow to Greenville with the Christmas Festival, is invited to attend the meeting this evening.

Appearing on the miniature stage as Mrs. Beauwhistle, Lewis Jane and Sturridge, the builder, will be Miss Alma Lee, Bob Moyer, Miss Elizabeth Wilson and Calvin Gorman, respectively.

Mrs. Rose announced that the next public production of that organization would be a full length comedy given some time in March. It is also hoped that a children's play can be included in the spring schedule.

This work in community drama is being carried on as one of the projects of the FERA under the supervision of Miss Mary Dimberger.

Soviet Hospitals Guard Health In Eastern Siberia
Khabarovsk, U. S. S. R.—(AP)—Extensive plans have been outlined by the Soviet Union for protection of the health of soldiers and the civil population in this fast-growing section north of Manchoukuo.

The territory has assumed especial importance to the Moscow government because of the problems arising since the creation of Manchoukuo as an independent state under the aegis of Japan.

Khabarovsk headquarters for the Red Army of the Far East, will be the chief medical center. A big medical institute, including a school, quarters for students and professors, and extensive bacteriological laboratories will be built here at a cost of $2,000,000. In addition an enormous hospital is to be erected by the city.

Blagoveshensk also is to have a medical school and a pharmaceutical school will be erected at Vladivostok. Hospitals providing one thousand beds in all are to go up in Suchan, Spassk, Petropavlovsk, Nikolayevsk, Bikino and Birobidjan.

In addition to doctors, the new schools will train nurses, midwives and specialists in sanitation to serve the new settlements under pioneering conditions.

NEW BOOKS

By JOHN SELBY
Pearl S. Buck's trilogy, which concludes this week with "A House Divided," is a little like symphony. It began allegro maestoso with "The Good Earth," it continued with "Sons," which might correspond to the slow movement because in spite of a certain amount of action it was distinctly not on the same plane as its predecessor. The third volume is again allegro—and one might add, inconclusive. I do not end on a major chord, but on an unresolved dissonance.

The trilogy covers fifty years, from the old China to the disturbed and insecure China of today. Yuan, son of Wang the Tiger, is the chief character, and "A House Divided," is the tale of Yuan's effort to apply the knowledge of the western world to the problems of China. Mrs. Buck makes no effort to tell where China is going. She does indicate, symbolically, that her future depends upon such young people as Yuan, however.

Mothers!
In treating children's colds, don't take chances—use VAPORUS.
PROVED BY 2 GENERATIONS

ANNOUNCEMENT
Dr. K. B. Pace, Dr. S. M. Crisp and Dr. W. K. McDowell announce the formation of a partnership for the practice of General Medicine, with offices at 403-422 State Bank Building. Office hours: 9 to 12 and 2 to 5, except Sunday. Phone 169.

Thumbnail Reviews
"Where Nothing Ever Happens," by Lee Shippey (Houghton Mifflin): authentic small town people and atmosphere, combined with a murder that might have been committed by anybody in the village.
"Passenger of Peking," by J. Van Dyke (Doubleday, Doran): hot and heavy love, the conventional East-West contrast, the polished financier, the gorgeous woman, the urbane Chinese merchant, the white man's crack-up, the liquor and gossip run-around.
"The Saint in New York," by Leslie Carter's (Crime Club): Simon Templar, alias the Saint, turns New York and gangster upside down with diverting results.
"The Angel Who Couldn't Sing," by Sophia Clough (Doubleday, Doran): Christopher and Christeen against the background of the 90s and the first years of the present century; a kind of "Cavalcade" in novel form, in which the reader can skip the first ten pages of high-frown prologue without missing very much.
"Labor, Industry and Government," by Matthew Wolf (Appleton-Century): the vice-president of the American Federation of Labor charts labor's course with relation to familiar landmarks such as the New Deal.
Picaresque
"Mr. Finchley's Holiday," by Victor Canning (Reynal & Hitchcock): the timid Mr. Finchley falls asleep in the tonneau of a stranger and with extremely odd results; one of the best recent English novels about what can happen to mouse-like little Englishmen taken out of their orbits.
"Land of Promise," by Leo Lania (Macmillan): another novel about the Jew in Germany; this one is really a novel, however, and would stand just as well if it were laid in an entirely different setting.
"Lines to a Lady," by Reita Lambert (Doubleday, Doran): a blithe and rather human novel which details a young playwright's adventures and a girl who admired his poems, a married woman and a popular actress; early hammock reading.
"Odds on Bluefeather," by Laurence W. Meynell (Lippincott): the two men upon whom the world's peace depends are held on an island by Bluefeather, four minions of Bluefeather and a very beautiful woman; you go on from there.

PARISIAN CHIC DECREES FUR CAPS AS LATEST OF LATE WINTER MODES

The whitest of ermine skins make this regal cape which Maggy Rouff designs for winter evening wear. It is accompanied by a pillow muff finished with the black tipped tails. The gown worn with it is of black velvet with a diamond clip caught in the front of the décolleté.

Speed Record Sought by Turner
By DON JOSEPH
New York.—(AP)—Late next summer or early next fall Colonel Roscoe Turner, speed fiend, expects to attain a velocity of 400 miles an hour in an airplane now being designed at the University of Minnesota. The flight will be made somewhere on the West coast near Hollywood.

If attained, this speed would surpass that of the present world's land plane record, held by a Frenchman by more than 85 miles an hour. The record for seaplanes, set by an Italian, is 440.67 miles an hour. Turner says the difference is explained by the fact that an indefinite area in which to make their take-off run and that their landing always can be made on a smooth surface.

Experiments in design for the new plane are being conducted by Professors Howard Barlow and John D. Akerman, aeronautical engineers. Their model already is prepared for wind tunnel tests at the university. Its construction is being kept secret, they announced recently.

New Streamlining
Turner, who will pilot the plane, says the chief characteristic of the craft will be the application of new concepts of streamlining.
"A body that is streamlined at 150 miles an hour is no longer streamlined when it has reached the speed of 400 miles an hour," he explains.

"This plane will even involve modifications of the 'rain drop' style of streamlining, since it will be going through the air faster than a rain drop or anything for that matter, can fall."
He says that as the speed of the plane increases the airflow around it changes, and that the proper shape must be adapted to this fact. Both the wings and the fuselage of the plane will be modified, but Turner cannot say what the final form will be.

Speed Involves Detail
He maintains that the changes necessary to speed up planes today involve greater adaptations in detail than in general structure.
The engineering work for his new plane will be completed at the University of Minnesota, but the actual construction will be done, at his home in Hollywood, where the test flights also will be held.
The plane will be equipped to make flights of from 800 to 1,000 miles, which, he says, would permit him to fly from New York to Chicago in about one hour and 45 minutes.

SCHOOL LOBBY MOVES TO GET EXTRA MONEY

Power Sought in Legislature to Levy Supplemental Tax Without Public Vote

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 24.—A return of the power to county and city boards of education to fix supplementary budgets at whatever figure they may decide, with the provision that county or city governing bodies must levy whatever tax is required for these budgets, as was the case prior to 1933, is one of the major objectives of the school lobby, it was learned from reliable sources here today.

For despite the fact that the school textbook lobbies have so far been unusually quiet, as far as surface indications are concerned, it is known that under the surface they are working night and day trying to build up sentiment in favor of the repeal of those sections of the 1933 school law requiring a vote of the people to secure supplemental taxes for school purposes and to enact the old school law sections that gave this power to the school boards and the county or city commissioners.

Present indications are that the school forces would much rather see this change made in the school law than get the State appropriation for schools boosted to $20,000,000 or even $25,000,000 a year. For with the old law in effect which formerly required boards of county commissioners of city or town governing bodies to levy a tax for whatever amount was approved by the local board of education, the school forces could easily augment the State appropriation for schools by $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 a year. This would enable them to boost their school funds to almost any total regardless of the amount the State appropriates. It would also remove these supplemental funds from any control of regulation by the State School Commission which of course is another thing very much desired.

One of the features of the 1933 law concerning which the city and county school superintendents have complained more than anything else has been the provision that all supplemental budgets had to be approved by the School Commission. But if the provisions in the present school law are removed, so that a vote property in the counties, cities and towns, each city and county superintendent and school boards will again be left free to set up supplemental school budgets, in excess of what is received from the State, in whatever amount they think the traffic will stand. For instance, if a superintendent in any city, town or county can persuade his board that a ninth month is needed and that his system needs ten or twenty more teachers and that the salaries of all of them should be supplemented and the school board includes the amount of money needed for all this in the school budget, then it will be mandatory for the governing body of the unit to levy a special property tax to raise the amount of money called for in the budget and without submitting it to a vote of the people.

This was the law in effect prior to 1933 and against which the people, through the 1933 General Assembly, revolted. For it had resulted in a steady increase in local taxes for schools in spite of steadily increasing State aid. As a result, the 1933 General Assembly abolished all districts and all local property taxes for schools, set up the State-supported eight months school system in its place. But it did leave the provision that any county, city and town that wanted to might levy a supplemental property tax for the schools provided the budget was approved by the State School Commission and then submitted to a vote of the people. For the past year and a half the school forces have been singularly successful in getting the people to approve any additional taxes for schools. This is believed to be the reason they now want the law changed so that they can compel the levying of supplemental taxes without submitting to a vote of the people.

It is expected that this session of the Legislature may ease up somewhat on the restrictions governing the voting of supplements by local school units that may want to supplement the State allotment, but it is not believed it will go as far as some of the school forces want it to and throw the doors wide open again for the levying of property taxes for schools.

Montana Rider
 A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS.
 SYNOPSIS: Mateo Rubio, the public Mexican Robin Hood, and Brother Pascual, the gigantic friar, have ridden the Montana Kid south into Mexico so that he will help Mateo steal back the general's crown of Our Lady, stolen originally from the church in Duraya by the governor. The Kid and the United States became Mateo's schemes put him outside the law. But the real reason he is now at Miguel Santos' inn in Duraya is Rosita, who wears a flower in the black of her hair.
 Chapter 12
 AT THE INN

BEYOND a certain point of time, no one knew the past of Santos. There was a horrible rumor to the effect that not time, but torment, had worked the evil pattern in the face of Miguel Santos. It was even said, though this was a thing that no one really believed, that he had lost his leg in escaping from the Valley of the Dead.

But men did not escape from the Valley of the Dead. It was against chance and against thought that anything human could escape from that well-guarded pit of destruction far in the south, where men and women were made into animals and sold for labor on the tobacco plantations.

Women lived there for two years or three. A strong man had been known to endure for as much as seven or eight years. But that was the limit.

Yet if Miguel Santos had not escaped from the Valley of the Dead, then surely he had been through some frightful experience early in his life. He might be fifty now. But twenty years ago, when he first appeared in Duraya, he had appeared almost exactly as old as he was now.

He had enough money to open the inn; he had enough money to persuade a pretty girl to marry him. Rosita was born, and her mother died shortly after because, it was said, she could not endure the ugly torment which was printed forever in the face of Miguel.

On this night, when he heard the song which ended with the name of Rosita, Miguel Santos instantly left the rear gaming-room and hurried forward, walking with a certain swing which kept the wooden leg in effective motion for long striding. Moving with a peculiar hitch and sway, he could get about almost as well as a normal man of his years.

When he came into the front room he had a mere glimpse of Rosita disappearing through the front door. "The little bird heard some one whistle," said a tall young caballero at one of the tables. Then he laughed, his breath knocking a ragged hole in the smoky air.

Miguel Santos went straight on and through the door into the street. There he saw the mare, the girl, the man. The rider had dismounted. A dim hint of light sparkled over the little silver spangles of his outfit; the same light gleamed on the red sash of the mare's flank.

The eye of Miguel was far sharper than a hawk's when he looked into certain matters. Now he was able to see the wide shoulders, the lofty carriage, the faintly gleaming smile of the man. And he felt the stranger's importance as though the voice of a crier had struck suddenly upon his ear.

"Will you smoke?" the girl was saying. "Who would light a match in a dark street?" answered the stranger.

Something in the words, something in the voice, clung to the memory of Miguel. He came closer. "Do you know this man?" he asked of Rosita.

"Somewhere I have known him," said the girl. Miguel Santos came so close that he could smell the reek of the sweating horse.

"Who are you?" he asked. THEY went into the little patio of the inn. On one side of the court was the barn and stables to accommodate the horses and mules of travelers. The larger wing was the hotel-saloon.

They crossed the inclosure with nothing but starlight to show the way so Rosita took the hand of Montana and led him. In that manner he was able to pass a broken-down cart, a pile of nameless junk, the curbstones and wooden top of a well.

Anything might happen here. Out of the dark litter men might start; starlight would hardly show the knives with which all Mexicans know how to work. Once he snatched his hand from the soft fingers of the girl when something moved on the ground.

It was only a grunting pig that got out of the way with a voice half session of Congress. When the demands for inflation became too persistent and a nose-count on Capital Hill showed legislation was bound to be passed, FDR graciously consented to let Congress invest him with "authority" to inflate. He still has that authority, but he hasn't used it. There are no immediate signs he will, but it left the inflationists happy for nearly a year.

Permissive rather than mandatory legislation is FDR's big fat ace in the hole.

DEEP: All hands in the administration are burrowing to break up the national mortgage jam. One of the chief reasons is that the Federal deep and half whining. And the girl laughed while Montana slipped back inside his clothes the gun he had drawn.

He left his mare at the foot of an open stairs that angled up the wall. Sally rubbed her muzzle against his shoulder. He could see the dim glass of her eyes. She blew out a long breath on him, and stamped, as though to make clear that she did not wish to be left alone in this strange place. But the girl was already a few steps up the stairs, and Montana followed.

At the top landing she pushed open a door. He followed her right into a thick darkness. He could hear her breathing, close to him. If this were a trap, the shutting of the door would wall him away forever from the world that had known him. He looked back for an instant into his past and saw the faces of men, savage or laughing, and the broad, comfortable facade of the Lavery home, and Ruth Lavery last of all, but even out of the darkness of this moment he had no regret.

Then a match was scratched. The blue spurt of the flame showed him only the face and the slender hands of the girl, at first. They were the hands of an aristocrat; the touch of them had been so soft that it was plain she had worked most of her life with her smile and her eyes, rather than with her fingers.

The flame burned yellow. He saw a room with two windows, lace curtains across them tied back with yellow ribbons. There was an old four-poster bed. The floor sagged a good bit under the century-old weight of it. A little porcelain stove glittered yellow and white in a corner.

THE girl was lifting the chimney of a lamp on the table. The flame ran across the wick. A white spot of light sprang out on the ceiling as she pressed the chimney down. The whole room was warmly involved in radiance that let him see all of the girl for the first time.

She was blowing out the match, knocking a thin shower of sparks off the charred wood with her breath. Her eyes were down; she was being looked at.

Well, she was worth seeing. She had no place in a room like this. She looked no more at home, here, than a great opera singer doing a one-night stand in the sticks.

"Sit down, señor," said the girl. "My father will come at once. There—you hear him on the stairs?"

Montana heard the bump and pause of sound as the wooden leg labored up the way. The girl put her head to one side and sighed. She seemed to be pitying the effort of her father, and yet she kept smiling, as though she had learned one lesson so thoroughly that she would never be able to forget it.

"Rosita, you're a dancer, eh?" said he. "Who has told you that?" she asked him.

"Just because there's a song about you. That old song, Rosita."

"Song?" she echoed, tilting her head. He sang to her his second song. Although he suppressed the strength of his voice, the resonance vibrated intimately through the room. The meaning of the words ran somewhat like this:

"You have seen the stream leap, And the trout spring in the current, And the water-ouzel wing through the spray, But I have seen Rosita dancing, Dancing, dancing, dancing, dancing."

"You have seen the wind blow out of heaven And the leaves whirling round in the wind-wool, But you have never laughed with joy, Seeing Rosita, Rosita dancing, Dancing, dancing, dancing, dancing."

As the first words came from his lips, she began to sway her head a little with the rhythm of the music; until the lights quivered along her throat and the rose in her hair nodded a trifle as though in agreement.

The grating knob of the door, as it turned, ended the song and the slight flexion of her accompaniment. Miguel Santos came into the room. He was dressed in white cotton trousers and a clean white apron, but nothing could make him look the part of a bartender.

Inside the door he paused for a moment and stared at the stranger. Lines not only seamed the face of Miguel, but also crossed-checked it. The closer Montana looked at him, the older he seemed.

Tomorrow, Montana confesses his purpose to Santos.

Housing Administration promises to march in one spot indefinitely unless seven billion more dollars worth of frozen mortgages are made liquid.

No trouble is expected in getting Congress to give the Home Owners' Loan Corporation another billion dollars and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation permission to invest in existing mortgage-lending institutions or help organize new ones on a 10-year basis.

There was considerable sentiment in Congress, in fact, before administration plans were revealed to make another big appropriation for HOLC without being asked. The corporation has in one file about

Willy Nilly Works

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
 FIRST of all Willy Nilly got a pair of scissors and cut his hair. Then he gathered up the hair and put it on a large sheet of paper on the table.

"Now," he said to the little old man, "if you will sit in this chair by the table I'll show you what I'll do."

The man sat down, wondering what was going to happen next. And now Willy Nilly unwrapped the package that held the adhesive tape.

He held his hair very still while he spread his own hair over the man's enormous bald spot. And now carefully, very carefully, he fastened the hair to the man's head by means of the adhesive tape.

"Now," said Willy Nilly, "look at yourself."

"I look as though I'd been badly injured," said the man as he gazed at himself in the mirror that Willy Nilly held before him.

"That will keep your head covered in the house and though your wig was white and my hair is black it doesn't make such a great deal of difference. I have a feeling that your wig will show up. Surely you have just mislaid it."

"And do come to me again if there is anything I can do to help," Willy Nilly continued, getting up so as to give the man the feeling that he had already been helped and that it was time for him to go.

"I'll come to you if I don't find my wig. I still suspect your crew. I think he flew in the window while I was asleep."

"Let's say no more about it," smiled Willy Nilly, "until you see whether it shows up." And the man departed.

$5,200,000,000 in applications for mortgage refinancing. Of its original $3,000,000,000 appropriation approximately $1,800,000,000 has been loaned out but its commitments with out a taking another application would run it well above the three-billion mark.

RETIRED: Federal Housing Administration is getting nowhere fast with its drive to start up all building new homes largely because the nation's existing mortgage structure is so hairy.

As a result reports have been current that James Moffett was going to retire as Administrator on February 1. The informed however, doubt that President Roosevelt would have sent his nomination to the Senate for confirmation last week if he planned to remain in office only two weeks.

Best informed is that Moffett wants to get out in June.

HIATUS: Existence of a mortgage jam cannot be cleared entirely by FHA's failure to progress, though Moffett made one administrative error which is still in process of being unraveled. Against the advice of bankers and mortgage men generally he announced last fall he would have his new-home drive under way by Nov. 1. They assured him it would take at least six months to organize. At the time, the home-renovation-and-repair drive was in full swing. Although it did not show expected benefits in volume of direct loans the accompanying ballyhoo materially increased the business of affected private industries through direct sales.

To make good on his Nov. 1 promise the Administrator called in from the field all the men directing the renovation-repair drive and sent them to school to learn the intricacies of Title 2 of the Housing Act under which new homes may be financed. He replaced them with green men from Washington. The result was that while both crews were learning their new duties a hitch developed in which the whole works came to a standstill. The field men called back are now familiar with Title 2 but most of them are still sitting here—and the renovation-repair drive never did recover.

New York
 By JAMES McMULLIN

FLYWHEEL: Announcement that Secretary Roper's Business Planning and Advisory Council will sit in at the Ministry of administration bills which affect business confirms our prediction that this group would be the enduring cooperative link between government and industry. Its selection carries an implied rebuke to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers for their top-sided depiction of cooperation.

The council has far more sympathies to New Deal aims and problems than any other business organization. It turns up well with Roper and has shown a high degree of social consciousness. Now it gets its reward by having its advice solicited in shaping the administration program. What's more, its views will get respectful attention.

This doesn't mean it will dominate legislation. But it will provide the New Deal engine with a flywheel of "enlightened conservatism." Impartial observers agree the results should be beneficial all around.

RAILS: Our British neighbors have the railroad problem teamed and some New Yorkers suggest we would do well to take a leaf from their book.

Shortly after the war there were 135 railroads in the United Kingdom—most of them rapidly going broke. The situation paralleled our current difficulties and it looked as if government ownership were the only answer.

But the British government didn't want to take them over and pushed through an alternative. Sir Josiah Stamp engineered a plan whereby the 135 small fry were merged into four major systems. Where disputes about financial details couldn't be settled amicably the government stepped in and forcibly imposed its own solution.

After the mergers were completed the roads were granted a rate rise and given full control over all bus lines. Severe restrictions have recently been placed on truck competition. As a result all four of the British roads have earned money for their common stock right through the depression.

You might ask why we don't do the same thing here, instead of fooling around with complicated remedies. There's an excellent reason. The gains would have to be made at the expense of labor. The British ruthlessly threw thousands out of work—an example FDR obviously cannot imitate.

Coordinator Eastman's efforts to untangle our railroad snarl have consistently stymied on the question of eliminating jobs. Insiders say that's the reason he's accomplished so little toward relieving the beleaguered roads.

BUILD-UP: The name of E. Burd Grubb—president of the New York Curb Exchange—has cropped up frequently in the New York newspapers of late. Few Curb officials in the past have rated so much publicity. And now he's about to become a member of the Stock Exchange and a partner in the old established firm of Coggeshall and Hicks.

Those who should know say that a skilful campaign is on to build him up as a rival to Richard Whitney.

The anti-Whitney faction in the Stock Exchange has at last discovered that you can't beat a horse with no horse. Past rebellions have petered out for that reason. Now the stunt is to promote Grubb with out making it look like open warfare on Whitney.

In many respects Grubb is an excellent candidate. He made a good record on the Curb. He comes fresh to the Stock Exchange without the handicap of association with any internal clique which might tend to narrow his support. His promoters remain obscurely in the background and are trying to have him sell himself as a symbol of the new deal desired by many Exchange members. If he doesn't register well he can always be dropped before it's too late.

RETIRED: Directors of regional Federal Reserve banks are likely to resign in carload lots when the Reserve Board's ruling about a maximum six-year term for directors goes through. Owen Young will be the most distinguished casualty hereabouts. The Board will have more to say about the new directors than has been its custom. Most of those who quit will do so without regret. A banker comments: "They'll be glad to get out from under these New Deal heresies. What good is a regional director anyhow when the whole thing is being run from Washington?"

Twenty-five separate families of Smith are represented in the student body at North Carolina State College and at the Browns and Johnsons are tied for second place with seventeen each.

Ask for Aerotype ESSO.. and watch your car go!

OVER A MILLION USERS NOW VOUCH FOR ITS ABILITY TO OUTPERFORM

- How would you like to have a motor car fuel that assures—
- .. "faster firing" and quicker starting than you have ever had before
- .. peak performance without the customary "warm-up" even in sub-zero cold
- .. greater power than that of any other motor car fuel you've ever tried
- .. "anti-knock" so high it prevents even the slightest "ping" under any pull
- .. acceleration and get-away that dwarf the swiftest you've heretofore enjoyed
- .. smoothness of operation impervious to every challenge of the road
- .. in short, a motor car fuel that for comfort, luxury and motoring ease surpasses all others?

GUARANTEED AND MADE GOOD!
 Aerotype ESSO was GUARANTEED on a Cash Refund Basis to outperform any other motor car fuel. Of the 1,528,752 motorists who purchased almost $3,000,000 worth of Aerotype ESSO while this GUARANTEE was in force only 113 (or less than 1 out of every 10,000) asked for a refund—the amount refunded being $31.80. *Cash Refund Guarantee discontinued December 21, 1934, on unrequested ruling of Petroleum Administrative Board.

"THE LAST ADVERTISEMENT WAS PRINTED YESTERDAY"

What Would the World Be Like If It Were TRUE?

THE last advertisement was printed yesterday. You have cut it out and put it away to show your grandchildren. With it, a way of living as you knew it, has passed forever.

Tonight you will want to see a movie. You pull up to one--saw it last week. At another--but no, you don't like So-and-So's acting. Let's go home. It's too much gas and time to waste on a show. Next month half the theaters will close. Poor attendance.

Tomorrow you will want some groceries. You will go to the nearest grocery store and buy some. Rib roast, perhaps, and lima beans. You won't hear until tomorrow night at the bridge table that the store just next door was having a "special" on rib roast and lima beans. Pretty soon your husband will wonder why the food bills are so high. The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Next month is Aunt Jane's birthday. Well, if you think I'm going to spend half a day tramping from store to store looking for a gift that I used to find by turning a page--can't afford gifts anyway. We're spending money like water and living like poor folks...

Old car's wearing out. Can't afford a new one... Chevies and V-8's are both $1600... demand's fallen off... they've had to up prices to meet plant expenses. Most of the others have closed down... don't know how the government will feed all the new unemployed.

Fellow in Milwaukee is inventing an air conditioner to sell for $50. No one will hear of it. You will never see it. What is air conditioning anyway? The last advertisement was printed yesterday.

Advertising has brought us many things. Finer cars, better homes, silly fads and wonderful inventions that have made life easier--and longer. Advertising is no unmixed blessing. But it has helped give America a standard of living unmatched in any other place and time. That standard of living should persist as long as people have wants to fill and money to spend and eyes to read with.

It will persist only so long as the presses keep rolling.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Futures opened steady, two points lower to three points higher. Trading continued quiet until towards midday.

January sold at 12.43 at the opening, or two points net lower, then rallied to 12.48 at the end of the first half-hour. March was selling around 12.49 and July 12.54, or about one point lower to one point higher.

Trading continued quiet until toward midday, when prices sagged under scattered selling.

At midday active months generally showed net losses of two to four points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Securities markets were snow-bound as well as purge-bound today and trading as a whole was smuch of the same pattern as in the preceding session.

Many of the board rooms were virtually deserted as wintry weather delayed the arrival of customers.

Stocks generally pointed moderately lower, although there was no added pressure of the majority.

Grains were almost as dull as stocks with definite trends absent. Bonds were quite a bit mixed.

European gold securities were again down in terms of the dollar. The late tone was steady.

Transfers were 420,000 shares.

Hauptmann Auto Barred From Kidnap-Murder Case

(Continued from Page One) county; the windows closed, the shutter drawn; we have proof positive that the window was opened, and we have the murderer's trail from that window and the window sill right up to the baby's crib.

We have the ladder, the ladder marks on the wall. We have got the evidence of the very wood in the stone wall where the ladder broke or slipped, left its splinters in the way."

He declared that the state could have proved its case even if it had not found the ladder near the scene of the crime. He reviewed the evidence, the ransom notes alleged to be in Hauptmann's handwriting, the payment of the $50,000 ransom by Dr. Condon.

"We proved he was there at Hopewell," he said. "We proved he was there the day before. There was positive proof he was at Lindy Lane the day of the kidnaping."

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 24.—Bruno Hauptmann's automobile was barred from the evidence in his murder trial today, but testimony that the Lindbergh kidnap ladder could be fitted inside it was allowed.

The court ruled that a photograph of the automobile could be used in the testimony.

The testimony that the ladder could be fitted in the car "with inches to spare," was given by Arthur J. Koehler, government woods expert, who yesterday declared he traced one-ninth of the ladder to Hauptmann's attic and the rest of it to the Bronx lumber yard from which Hauptmann had purchased the wood.

The fit of the ladder in the car was supporting testimony to that given early in the trial by Amandus Hochmuth, aged Lindbergh neighbor who said he saw Hauptmann in a dirty green automobile with a ladder near the Lindbergh home on the day Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr. was kidnaped.

The state charges the child was killed as it fell with its abductor from the ladder at the nursery window on March 1, 1932, and accuses Hauptmann of its murder.

The state prepared to rest its case today in the trial as Koehler resumed the stand to give further testimony connecting the kidnap ladder with the lumber taken from the defendant's home.

The scholarly-appearing, calm-voiced woods detective took up again his story of checkings and comparisons of the wood used in the ladder and the plank taken from the attic of Bruno Hauptmann's home.

The Senate reached a bill to require that even babies between the ages of six to twelve months be inoculated against diphtheria and passed a bill to place a charter of $15 on charitable and religious organizations in the State.

The House passed two local bills. It received measures to raise salaries of teachers, highway and prison employees 30 per cent; allow purchase of auto license tags until January 30 annually without penalty.

Late News Flashes

Three associations have previously paid no State franchise tax, but the joint finance committee yesterday voted a $200 annual levy on them.

President Sends New Message To Congress

Washington, Jan. 24.—(AP)—A personal courier's attack against the president's relief fund was sent to Congress today by President Roosevelt as new evidence flared over the lump sum method of appropriations.

Senator Couzens, outspoken Michigan Republican, said: "If ever the man is found who drafted the work relief bill, he ought to be hung—not in effigy, but physically."

His statement was made in the Senate committee hearing on another matter while Mr. Roosevelt's agent traveled to the capitol through a heavy snow with a new presidential message.

Transmitting voluminous reports on the orderly development of public projects, and expressing the hope the government eventually will spend $500,000,000 annually for the purpose, Mr. Roosevelt had this to say about efforts to itemize the big work relief bill:

"It is only because of the current emergency of unemployment and because of the physical impossibility of surveying, weighing and testing each and every project that segregation of the items is impossible at the moment."

Miss message arrived as the House opened its second day's debate on the lump sum named in the bill, with a vote hoped for by nightfall.

As the first speaker, Snell of New York, the Republican leader, said his party cohorts were "willing to appropriate the sum that is necessary for the relief of the unemployed, but we oppose a further yielding of the powers of Congress to the executive branch."

Painted by a strong north wind that made the mercury hit the to-bogran in a way that caused old inhabitants, with the memory of last winter's terrific February assault still lingering in their minds, to wag their heads ominously and prepare for the worst.

Scores of automobile owners found their radiators frozen this morning and water pipes in a number of homes were hopelessly jammed with ice.

SOS calls were sent out to automobile mechanics and plumbers at an early hour and much of the damage had been repaired late today although it will be several days probably before the community finds itself completely relieved of the cold damage.

Coal dealers who were positively groggy from the long siege of spring like weather the past several days smiled benignly last night as the snowman began piling up flakes in protected places, anticipating a rapid increase of business with the dawn of another day. They were not disappointed either for this morning hundreds of "rush" calls for fuel reached the various distributors and trucks and horse-drawn vehicles were kept busy the most of the day replenishing bins which had been permitted to become virtually depleted during the warm weather.

The sun is constantly growing hotter and bigger in spite of the fact that it is radiating away its mass at the rate of 250,000,000 tons a minute, according to Dr. Nikola Tesla.
