Cold Wave Death Toll Continues To Grow Declares Fisch

CLOSE TO 200 PERSONS ARE BELIEVED DEAD

Storm Spends Fury Along Atlantic Seaboard; Mississippi Toll Mounts to 25; Red Cross Officials Fear Even Larger Loss of Life; Bitter Cold Prevails Up North

(By The Associated Press)

The cold wave appeared to be breaking for the time being today, but the death list mounted steadily as the storm spent its fury along the Atlantic seaboard and southern flood waters whirled destructively.

More than a score of the exposed perished in the Southern flood stricken which embraces parts of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Arkansas. Twenty-five of the fatalities occurred in Mississippi, four in Tennessee and one in Arkansas.

Red Cross officials feared an ever larger loss of life would be disclosed later. Estimates placed the homeless at 18,000.

Bitter cold still prevailed in the snow-bound East and New England but the weather saw indications for moderation. It had warmed up in the Middle West, although there were predictions that the storm was ready to begin again tomorrow.

Of the more than 175 deaths attributed directly or indirectly to the storm's fury, a dozen were reported in the nation's metropolis where 30,000 men were put to work to dig the city out of a snowfall of 17.5 inches. Three others died in up-State New York where bitter cold prevailed. Three others perished off the Delaware Capes in a gale that tore the barge Pattie Morissette from her tug.

The steamship Mohawk under charter of the Ward Line and the Norwegian freighter Talisman of the Wilhelmsen Line, collided off the New Jersey coast while a heavy wind was blowing in zero weather and 14 passengers and 30 members of the crew were not officially accounted for. The vessel carried 52 passengers and a crew of 110.

A recapitulation of the week's fatalities due to fire, flood, accidents and extreme weather, shows these figures by States:

Michigan 7, Indiana 8, Oklahoma 12, Washington 6, Oregon 1, Texas 11, Montana 3, Ohio 2, Massachusetts 16, Rhode Island 4, Maine 2, Montana 3, Ohio 2, Massachusetts 16, Rhode Island 4, Maine 2, Connecticut 1, New York 15, Iowa 13, Minnesota 5, Wisconsin 4, Nebraska 1, Kentucky 2, Illinois 17, West Virginia 1, and Pennsylvania 13.

EXPENSIVE FOOD TAXED IN PEIPING

Peiping.—(AP)—The old device of "farming out" taxes has been revived by the Peiping municipal government.

Recently the city fathers, in a wave of generosity, abolished taxes on live-stock, meat, cereals, cooking oils, fish, cotton and paper. They found they had a hole of $230,000 in the city's income.

A surtax on expensive dishes in restaurants was decided upon, but how to collect it was the problem until someone suggested that it be sold as a concession to the highest bidder.

A Mr. Wang got the prize by agreeing to turn in at least $130,200 annually. Now everybody's happy except the restaurant owners and Mr. Wang, who had to devise a dodge-proof collection system.

TOMBSTONE ACQUITTED OF BEING ANTI-FRANCE

Paris.—(AP)—A tombstone in a French graveyard has been acquitted of bearing seditious propaganda.

The widow of Henri Lammer, who fell in the street riots which shook Paris a year ago, ordered this inscription for her husband's grave: "Killed at the Place de la Concorde on February 6."

Considering such a memorial submission the custodian of the cemetery would not allow the tombstone to be erected.

How could it be so? The prefect of police had to order the removal of the tombstone. The prefect of police had to order the removal of the tombstone. The prefect of police had to order the removal of the tombstone.

GRAND JURY NEARS REPORT

Recommendations to Judge Barnhill Expected Late This Afternoon

The new Pitt county grand jury which began work last Monday morning with the opening of criminal court, was preparing to wind up its business this afternoon and prepare its report for submission to Judge M. V. Barnhill either late today or tomorrow.

The jury completed passing on presentments yesterday and immediately started looking over the various departments of county government.

With the county home and state prison camp to visit this morning, members of the jury expressed belief they would be able to reach the report stage probably late today. Court was scheduled to come to a close this afternoon, but may be continued until tomorrow on account of the heavy docket.

Just what kind of recommendations, if any, the grand jury had in mind for the report was not indicated. In his charge last Monday morning, Judge Barnhill told the jurors he had no special hobbies to ride and presented a summary of the criminal laws and the duties of a jury.

HADDOCK HELD WITHOUT BOND AFTER WRECK

Frank Spain in Precarious Condition After Head on Collision Yesterday

Frank Spain, of Grimesland, young man who was dangerously injured in a head-on automobile collision on the Washington highway near Greenwood Cemetery yesterday afternoon, was reported to be getting along as well as expected, although his condition was still grave.

Spain received a fractured skull and internal injuries when the car in which he was riding was struck by another machine driven by Charles Haddock, John Simpson Smith, colored, riding in the car with Haddock, also received a fractured skull and broken leg, and while seriously hurt, was expected to recover.

Haddock was being held under police surveillance in the hospital, and was to be placed in jail without privilege of bond following his release from the hospital, highway patrolmen said today. He is charged with driving drunk and reckless and careless driving.

The car in which Spain was riding was driven by Roy Lee Elks and was driven by Roy Lee Elks and both of Grimesland. They also were injured but in a minor way.

The Elks' car was bound in the direction of Grimesland and Haddock was coming toward Greenville when the accident occurred. Haddock allegedly left his side of the road and crashed into the other machine, and following an extended investigation, highway patrolmen ordered that he be held in jail without privilege of bond pending a change in the condition of both Spain and the colored man.

Haddock's injuries were described as painful, although not of a serious nature.

Both machines caught fire immediately after the crash, one being completely destroyed and the other being extinguished after considerable damage to the tires.

The highway just beyond the cemetery was blocked for a half hour or more as officers, assisted by motorists, attempted to clear away the wreckage and open the highway to traffic.

TRY TO BOOST 'SPUD' PRICES

House Committee Reports Favorably on Measure; Senate Has Short Session

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The House Committee on Agriculture today reported favorably to the joint resolution of Representative Bowie, Republican of Avery, asking Congress to enact legislation to increase the price of Irish and sweet potatoes.

The committee also endorsed the Norwood bill to exempt certain breeding animals from taxation.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 25.—(AP)—The Senate had a perfunctory session today receiving another bill to reduce automobile license fees and adjourned after considering only local bills tomorrow with the next meeting Monday night.

Senator Browning, of Haywood offered the license measure which would reduce the rate for private cars from 55 cents per hundredweight to 30, with other provisions being offered for other types of vehicles.

Senator Allbrook, of Halifax, offered a measure to prohibit the chairman of county political executive committees from asking for political office in a primary within a year after he resigns as chairman, as he has a hand in setting up election machinery.

Senator Bagley, of Currituck, sent up a bill changing the name of savings and loans associations to credit unions.

The Senate subcommittee to draft a bill to remove tolls from highway bridges in the State was announced as having completed its report.

AUTO DRIVER THORNE BACK LICENSE BILL FROM MEETING DECIDED UPON

Measure Ready to Become Effective Following Ratification By Assembly

By C. A. PAUL
Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 25.—A comprehensive driver's license bill, to become effective immediately after its ratification by the General Assembly, has already been decided upon by the joint sub-committee on roads.

Actual translation into legislative language of the bill is now being done by Charles Whedbee, legislative advisor to Governor E. B. Rouse. It will be submitted to the roads committee as a whole next Tuesday morning and is expected to be adopted by virtually a unanimous vote.

The bill as formulated by the sub-committee is free from faults or tricks, said Senator John Sprunt, Hill, chairman of the sub-committee. "It is a comprehensive measure designed to fully cope with the situation. It is my belief that it will prove highly acceptable to the legislature."

The bill which will be known as the "committee bill" when it reaches the floor of the General Assembly because it is a combination of features included in various bills introduced, will doubtless go in effect at once after passage, will probably be without cost to the car owner, and will provide for a period of grace in which drivers who can show that they have been driving for six months or more and have not been arrested for violation of existing regulations may obtain without examination a driver's license. After the expiration of such period, all applications will, of course, be required to pass an examination the rules to be laid down by the highway department, and the actual examination to be placed in the hands of the highway patrol. The highway patrol is almost certain to be increased at least 150, perhaps 200 men.

Senator Hill had himself introduced a driver's license bill which would set up a division of highway safety. His bill was endorsed by several other legislators and the Carolina Motor Club. It is almost certain that many of the State's provisions are incorporated in the committee bill, the terms of which will not be made entirely public until next Tuesday.

The conference will consider facilities for ships and airplanes, transportation of contraband, uniform classification of merchandise and facilities for tourism.

HERMAN EVANS FOUND 'GUILTY' IN AUTO DEATH

Cox Mill Young Man Sentenced to From 7 to 12 Years in State's Prison

Herman Evans, 26-year-old Cox Mill young man, charged with the "automobile death" of Mrs. Horace Branch, on the Greenville-Cox Mill Highway Thursday night of last week, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in criminal court this afternoon about 2:15 o'clock and was sentenced to from seven to twelve years in State's Prison by Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount, who is presiding over the one-week term.

The jury, which received the case as court recessed for lunch at 12:45, had its verdict ready when work was resumed this afternoon.

Judge Barnhill in charging the jury, reviewed the evidence, presented the law and told the jurors they could find the defendant guilty either of manslaughter or second degree murder.

The grand jury returned a true bill of murder Monday afternoon, but after the jury had been empaneled Wednesday afternoon Solicitor D. M. Clark announced he would not seek a first degree verdict, but would ask conviction either for second degree or manslaughter.

Argument was begun yesterday afternoon following completion of evidence by the defense.

The first arguments were made by Judge Albion Dunn for the defense and Louis Gaylord, who assisted Solicitor Clark in the prosecution.

When court resumed work this morning, J. B. James spoke for the defense and Solicitor Clark concluded with an eloquent appeal for the State.

Clark asked for conviction on the ground that witnesses had testified that Evans was drunk at the time his car, driven carelessly and recklessly, swerved across the road and struck Mrs. Branch.

Colonel Dunn and Mr. James attempted to prove that Evans was not under the influence of whiskey and that he was not driving carelessly or recklessly. They quoted testimony that Evans saw a colored man walking on the right side of the road almost in front of his car and swerved across the road in an effort to avoid hitting him. After striking Mrs. Branch his car ran into a ditch and turned over.

State witnesses had previously testified that Evans was drinking; in fact, so drunk that he did not know what he was doing when they arrived on the scene immediately after the fatal accident.

Was Owner Of $50,000 Ransom

German Carpenter From Witness Stand Attempts to Shift Blame For Kidnaping to Dead Isador Fisch; Says Fisch Brought Money to His Home Before Going to Europe to Die; Firmly Declares He Never Visited Lindbergh Home

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 25.—(AP)—A guttural but crisp "I did not!" was hurled today by Bruno Richard Hauptmann to every detail of the State's charge that he kidnaped, murdered and collected ransom for Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

"I never saw the Lindbergh baby alive or dead," he declared.

He denied each and every step of the case—the stealing of the child, his murder, the writing of the ransom notes, construction of the kidnap ladder, handling of the baby's sleeping clothes, or collection of the ransom from Dr. John (Jasie) Condon.

He met the one point he could not deny—possession of $14,600 of the $50,000 ransom money in his garage—in a shoe box in the dead Isador Fisch and it lay in the closet of his home from December, 1933, until August, 1934, before he discovered it contained money. He had been so identified by a theatre cashier.

"I never had been in that theater in my life," he said. He said the box given him by Fisch lay in the closet through which rain leaked and that it was accidentally broken open, a part of which he hit with a broom. It was then, he said, he discovered it contained money. "She was partial falling apart," he said.

"I guess it was found in bundles in there. Them bundles were mostly in mesh up, but must be wrapped in paper, not in thick paper, in thin wrapping paper, brown paper, and there was newspaper in the box, too. I guess they wasn't brown paper, and there was empty space. I took the money and threw the water out."

"All right, you took the money into the garage. What did you do with it in the garage?" asked Edward J. Reilly, his attorney.

"Put it in a basket and covered it up and then laid the basket up on the ceiling so nobody could see it. I put it on the upper shelf which reached the ceiling and put a nail and two strips in front of it and out another basket on top of the basket, which the money was in."

"Now, you knew, did you, that Fisch was dead when you found the money?"

"Yes, I knew it."

"Now, after drying it what did you do with it?"

"Well, when I took it down I took a few of them. I guess two of three, and put them into circulation."

His testimony drew a pecked courtroom and the air was stagnant.

In the afternoon Reilly took the client over the brokerage account which were used against him in the testimony of a government accountant who said Hauptmann and Mrs. Hauptmann's assets together increased more than $40,000 after the payment of the ransom.

Flemington, N. J., Jan. 25.—(Copyright by The Associated Press)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann denied definitely on the witness stand today that he kidnaped and murdered Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

He denied that he had ever been on the Lindbergh estate or even in Hopewell, N. J., and said that Isador Fisch, the dead German furrier, was the owner of the Lindbergh ransom money found in his Bronx garage.

The German carpenter, who had been identified by a government accountant as the man who had collected the ransom, said today that he never visited the Lindbergh home.

He met the one point he could not deny—possession of $14,600 of the $50,000 ransom money in his garage—in a shoe box in the dead Isador Fisch and it lay in the closet of his home from December, 1933, until August, 1934, before he discovered it contained money. Basketball Examination. The basketball examination to be held at East Carolina Teachers College tomorrow morning will begin at 10:30 o'clock in the Austin auditorium. It will open with a discussion of basketball.

The examination will be in two parts. The first, written, will be held in the Austin auditorium, and the second, practical, on the basketball court in the Campus building.

Official rating as referees will be given those who pass the requirements.

Miss Saar Somerville has charge of all arrangements and a committee composed of two members of the Duke University faculty, Misses Groat and Circle, and Miss Mary Langston of Goldsboro, will have charge of the discussion and examinations.

Luncheon For Mrs. Tyndall. A lovely affair of the week, yesterday when Miss Margaret Hassell was a charming hostess at luncheon, honoring Mrs. L. E. Tyndall who was recently married.

On arrival at one o'clock guests were welcomed by the hostess, her mother, Mrs. J. L. Hassell, and the honor guest, Mrs. Tyndall.

The home throughout was attractively decorated in cut flowers.

The table was especially pretty, with hand painted green china on a cloth of fillet and embroidered linen. The centerpiece was a beautiful silver bowl of pink roses and narcissi.

Seated at either end of the table, Mrs. R. R. Daughtridge and Miss Ada James served a delicious three-course luncheon.

Most of College Graduates Placed. Most of the four-year graduates of East Carolina Teachers College for the past year have been placed, according to the report of the Placement Bureau of the college for the calendar year 1934.

All with Primary A certificates, all but two with grammar grade A certificates and fifty-one of the sixty-seven holding high school A certificates are now holding teaching positions.

Nearly eighty per cent of the graduates of the two-year normal school course, held primary and grammar grade B certificates, either have teaching positions or are in college working for the A. B. degree and the A certificate.

Teachers holding class A certificates and the A. B. degree representing four years of college work are in demand more and more each year.

The number of others registered with the Placement Bureau who have been placed during the year is 35, distributed as follows: High school A, 23; grammar grade A, 14; primary B, 9; grammar grade B, 2; primary B, 16.

FRIDAY
7:45 p. m.—Mrs. Charles A. White will present her music pupils in a recital at Third Street School.

Sugg-Jones.
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lester Jones announce the marriage of their daughter Mildred Loreene to

Mr. Gosiah Thomas Sugg on November the twenty-fifth Nineteen hundred and thirty-four Emporia, Virginia At Home Snow Hill, North Carolina

American Legion Auxiliary To Meet.
The American Legion Auxiliary will meet at 3:30 Monday afternoon with Mrs. H. C. Sugg on East Fifth street. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. J. L. Horne, Mrs. Hubert Joyner, Mrs. J. H. Rose and Mrs. Frank Bendall.

Mrs. Norfleet McDowell, vice-president of the fifth area, will be present and speak to the members. A large attendance is urged. Members are requested to bring old hose, silk or knit underthings, wool or silk rags, as these are being collected and sent to Oteen. Patients who are able to do this work will dye and knit them into rugs, knitting bags and other articles. Their supply is very low at this time and the Auxiliary is urged to collect a shipment to be sent at an early date.

Here From Rocky Mount.
Dr. C. E. Minges of Rocky Mount, who recently underwent an operation in a hospital in that city, is very much improved and is spending some time with his brother, W. O. Minges.

Little Theatre Guild Meets.
"The Miracle Merchant" by H. H. Moproe, was presented last evening by the Little Theatre Guild to an audience made up of members and their friends. The actors admirably caught the spirit of light comedy implied by the lines and gave a very creditable performance.

Lewis, played by Bob Moyer, offers to supply his aunt, Mrs. Beauwhistle (Miss Alma Lee) with a miracle on short notice. It becomes his task to get rid of Jane (Miss Elizabeth Wilson) the Beauwhistle's house guest. He implies that the family butler is not quite sane and then arranges for circumstances to bear him out. Jane refuses to stay in a house with a "mad butler," played by Calvin Gorman, and so the miracle is performed.

At the next meeting the play reading committee, Mrs. C. C. Hilton, Mrs. J. B. Cummings, W. A. Ryan and Bob Moyer, will give a report. The Guild will then select a suitable vehicle for its next public performance to be given some time in March.

Grid Gate Receipts Soar; So Nebraska Sports Boom
By DWIGHT McCORMACK
Lincoln, Neb.—AP—Football, the bread-winner of college athletics, has made possible a substantial increase in minor sports in 1935 at the University of Nebraska.

On the heels of an announcement that the Cornhusker gridgers this year played to the largest crowd in the history of the sport at Nebraska, came the schedules for nine winter and spring sports.

They call for competition in indoor track, outdoor track, swimming, tennis, wrestling, baseball, boxing, golf, and gymnastics on a more extensive scale than has heretofore been the rule. An attractive basketball schedule already had been drawn up.

However, athletic officials will have no trouble finding a spot for the funds available, for there is a $110,000 debt outstanding on the $500,000 coliseum. The stadium, with a seating capacity of almost 30,000 is paid for, but additions and repairs always are needed. In spite of this, the Cornhusker sports program has broadened to give more students the benefit of collegiate competition.

No tax funds were used to build the coliseum and stadium, or are available to pay coaches, pay bond requirements or other expenses incurred in the athletic program. The entire bill is paid out of receipts from athletic events, and football carries almost the entire burden.

In announcing the 1935 football schedule, characterized here as the most-attractive in Cornhusker history, Coach D. X. Bible said:

"The attractive home schedule is made possible by the splendid support given the Cornhuskers by the fans in this region. The large attendance has placed a responsibility on the shoulders of the players and coaches to provide the best possible games and the highest standard of play."

The basketball squad of the University of Kentucky includes seven players who are more than six feet tall. LeRoy Edwards, sophomore center, who stands six feet and four inches, is the tallest. Edwards weighs 212 pounds and is considered one of the best pivot men ever to play for the Wildcats.

Tips on CONTRACT

Suicide Squeeze
By TOM O'NEIL
Most squeezes are executed by the play of all the cards of a long suit in one hand of the contracting partnership.

There are cases where an adversary, after due development of the play, is left with only one suit and squeezes his partner when forced into the hand. Henry Ench of Bridge House, New York, has sent me this hand, played by the clever Mrs. Edna Marlowe, in illustration.

The bidding was short and sweet, one spade by North and six no trump by South. Mrs. Marlowe reasoned that there was no reason to deny daily, in view of a vulnerable opening North in first position, her fit with North's suit and stoppers in the other suits.

Possibly had the bidding gone one club, one diamond with a heart, West before the six no trump was reached, the declarer's problem would have been easier.

West opened the top of his diamond doubleton and East's eight-spot was won by South's queen. Four rounds of spades were played, East discarding a heart (an ace club) and West signaling on the fourth spade with the seven of hearts.

The last spade was taken in the North hand and then the club jack was finessed. The lead of the king of clubs showed West void, with the clubs bunched East.

Now came the time to deduce what West's original holdings were and Mrs. Marlowe did a pretty piece of card reading which enabled her to make the hand.

West obviously had three spades and one club originally. The question remained how many diamonds he had. On the lead of the diamond ace East played the nine. It now was from a doubleton. If it had been from a singleton, East would have had only one card higher than the four-spot by the rule of eleven, and he already had played the eight.

West, therefore, of three spades, two diamonds, one club and seven hearts.

On South's lead to the king of diamonds West played another heart. Mrs. Marlowe finessed the queen of hearts. West took with the king and had nothing left to lead but hearts. This was the squeeze trick. Being won by South's ace, it squeezed East so that he had to unguard the protected queen of clubs or give up a high diamond.

Here was the squeeze situation:
NORTH: H-4
C-A 6
WEST: H-J 10 9
EAST: D-J
C-Q 10
SOUTH: H-A
D-6
C-7

It might be called a squeeze plus an end play and a suicide squeeze.

Christopher! Christopher!
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
WILLY NILLY sank into a chair after the little old man had left. He sighed great long sighs.

Then, when he was sure the man was well out of hearing, he called out: "Christopher! Christopher!"

"The other Puddle Muddlers came along to see what was the trouble, but Christopher was not to be seen anywhere.

"Christopher! Christopher!" called Willy Nilly. Willy Nilly kept on calling until it was dark and still Christopher did not answer.

Then, in the distance, he saw Christopher. He shouted with all the power he could: "Christopher! Give back that wig!"

Willy Nilly went into a rage. "Give back that wig!" But Christopher did not seem to hear. He ran in the opposite direction.

Willy Nilly went into a rage. "Give back that wig!" But Christopher did not seem to hear. He ran in the opposite direction.

"Come now, what you need is a good foot bath and supper in bed," quacked Mrs. Quacko Duck.

"But I'm not ill. I haven't a headache," said Willy Nilly.

"It will do you good anyway," Mrs. Quacko, and immediately had Rip help her with the tub.

Christopher had heard Willy Nilly, but was waiting to get out of sight. He was trying until it was dark to take back the wig. From behind trees he had seen and heard almost everything that had happened. Now, for the second time, he must not be caught!

Committeemen For New Signup Named At Series of Meetings This Week

In spite of the severe cold weather sweeping over this part of the state the last two days, the farm department has been pushing forward plans for the new signup of cotton planters this season.

E. F. Arnold, director of the department, said today a series of meetings which started Wednesday and ended today, had been carried into every township of the county for the purpose of electing committeemen and informing growers what they are expected to do this season.

Six meetings were held in various parts of the county on Wednesday, four yesterday and three were planned for today. Meetings today were scheduled for Black Jack, Greenville and Beaver Dam.

As soon as the township committeemen are chosen, Mr. Arnold said a general meeting of committeemen would be held in this city for the purpose of naming a general county committee.

The purpose of the campaign this year, the farm director said, is to give growers who did not sign the Government reduction contract last year a chance to get in on the movement this year. Growers who signed last year will also be given an opportunity to make adjustments in their former contracts.

Mr. Arnold has made brief talks in connection with the new signup at each place visited this week, and has attempted to inject enthusiasm into the committeemen for the work ahead.

Pitt County has rallied almost 100 per cent behind the government curtailment program in both cotton and tobacco, and this year is expected to see even those who held back last year in the ranks of reduction faction this year.

Britain Plans Creape Airmail To Link Empire

London.—(AP)—Six million flying miles of the British empire will be linked by a three-cent per half ounce first class airmail in 1937, says the British air ministry.

This would give Great Britain supremacy over one-third of the world's air routes.

Sir Philip Sassoon, undersecretary for air, says all first class mail will be dispatched by air after 1937. Shipping circles are silent as to whether existing governmental mail subsidies will be reduced when the entire transport of first class mail by air is put into operation.

Many Months Of Planning
Inhabitants of remote Malaya, South and East Africa, at present 22 days by sea and 9 days by air from London, will have their airmail service shortened by four days. The 12-day London-Australia service will be halved.

This momentous empire service was conceived before C.W.A. Scott's record-breaking England-Australia flight in the Melbourne Air Derby. The scheme has been given careful consideration, and negotiations have been underway with the dominions for many months. The air ministry postoffice and imperial airways have cooperated closely.

An integral part of the plan is a comprehensive program for ground organization of air routes on a basis which will enable services to cater for passengers as well as mail traffic, and operate by night as well as by day.

As in the past, new types of planes for these commercial services will be test flown by factory pilots and by royal air force test pilots. Imperial Airways will pass only on innovations in comfort, interior fittings and decorations.

Subsidies May Go Up
There is every sign of increased air subsidies. The 1934 subsidy was $2,800,000.

Despite the contemplated shortening of time schedules over empire routes when the new postage rate goes into effect, Britain's commercial air services will concentrate on tons per mile and not on miles per hour. The air ministry intimates that planes will carry a payload of from 3.5 to five tons.

The air ministry believes that when speed is carried beyond a certain point, it becomes a secondary consideration with air travellers. Especially if the greater part of the 24 hours is spent in actual flight, passengers demand an increasing degree of comfort.

GLUTTONS FOR PUNISHMENT

What would you say of a man who stands on a street corner in a busy city and suddenly dashes backwards into the street, in front of an oncoming auto, without looking, and is only saved from serious injuries by the alertness of the driver? What would you say if this very same man, standing on the very same corner, not a week later, should repeat this act and dash in front of the very same auto and again only be saved from injury by the skill of the driver?

You would say this is too foolish to believe—but it happened right in Washington, within the knowledge of the Pathfinder. Was the man drunk? No. Was he blind? No. Was he deaf? No. Was he crippled or otherwise helpless? No. Was he a maniac? No. Was he an ignorant foreigner? No. Was he springing into the street to save a baby or an old lady? No. Was it dark and stormy? No, it was in broad daylight and the weather was perfect. Was there any reason or excuse for his being in such a hurry to risk his own life and the lives of others? No.

No, this man was just a of death, the automom-average person who has grown up with those engines gines of death, the automobiles, and is so used to seeing them rush about at railroad speed that he has lost that sense of self-preservation which the philosophers say is the very first and foremost of human attributes—the most necessary thing in the world. Children of course are much worse. It is astonishing to see how mothers and fathers will stand it to see their children playing in the street entirely careless of the danger that is present every moment. In fact some of the most "modern" children delight in defying the autoists; they think it is smart to cavort in front of a passing auto or dodge behind it when it is backing. Of course these little savages don't realize that they are taking their life in their hands, and there is no way to make them realize this. They were born when the autos were already an established institution and they take them as a matter of course, the same as they do dogs and cats. They have none of that wholesome fear of danger which the older people have—and in many cases "learn the lesson" after it is too late. The toll of life and limb which the automobile is levying is enough to carry on a good-sized war. The public will have to be roused up until they insist that remedies be found. Most of the killings are the result of senseless and needless speeding, but even when autoists use every possible care there are still going to be an increasing number of accidents. The auto manufacturers are the chief offenders for they have aroused the mania for speed. — (The Pathfinder).

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

on amendments designed to keep a few things in legislative hands, inside word is that the House will stand pat in conference. Thus, eventually the Senate will have to capitulate or take the blame for killing the legislation. The House will be sagged like a kidnap victim and well under the control of its leaders.

BONUS: House Democrats who ordinarily would be shouting to high heaven against the steam-roller tactics aren't saying a word. The answer is they have been promised a vote on the bonus. Exact date of this vote cleverly is put off as emergency "must" legislation comes down from the White House, but eventually it will be had.

The bonus will go through the House with a whoop—although administration leaders on the floor are going to try to compromise the issue when the time comes. Mr. Roosevelt is dead set against general cash payment now.

Those who have been sounding out sentiment in the Senate on the bonus find no genuine enthusiasm about it. Senator Pat Harrison and others are understood to have advised their House colleagues to tone the bill down and if possible provide payment only for needy veterans.

VETO: Veteran observers are now predicting the Senate will rewrite any bonus bill the House sends over—assuming it comes to a final vote. Then there will be a bat's roval in conference and it is safe to assume the gas rule will be off in the House.

As a final weapon Mr. Roosevelt has the veto power and will not hesitate to use it. The Chief Executive, in fact, is opposed even to the proposal that interest on bonus loans to date be cancelled, which is one of the suggested compromises.

It isn't so certain now that two-thirds of the Senate could be mustered to override a veto.

SCOOPED: The saddest blow of all fell on a newspaper reporter recently named in Washington on the day Anna Roosevelt Dall and John Foster were married.

This newsmen had come to the Capital and got a job because his sweetheart had come here earlier and was doing part-time work for the President's daughter. About a month ago they were married.

When the flesh came in that the "Beetlers" had been married, the reporter called up his own bride and said: "Well, dear, your boss got married in New York today."

"Yes," she replied sweetly. "I was told last night they were going to be."

The startled words that poured back to her over the phone were of a village that had no honeymoon aspects as the news hound realized the scoop he had missed.

PRESIDENT: Chairman Summers of the House Judiciary committee is trying to cure a defect in the presidential electoral system by a bill advancing the presidential election from November to October. Under the 27th amendment and laws adjusted thereto only 41 days elapse between election and the casting of the electoral vote, which Summers feels is too short a time in which to settle election contests.

Under the new system the only lame duck is a President not re-elected. He would serve from November till January 20, and would send up a message to the new Congress which would go into the waste

Montana River Again
A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: Montana has been lured to Duraya in Mexico by the Mexican Robin Hood, Mateo Rubio, and Brother Pascual, the friar. They want him to help steal the emerald crown of Our Lady which the governor of the province has himself stolen from the church in Duraya. Montana has agreed to help; Rubio has gone to a friend's house on the edge of town, and Montana has gone to the best inn, where Rosita, beautiful daughter of the landlord, has shown him a room. The scoured and battered landlord has come to talk with Montana.

Chapter 13
THE KEY

"IF WE are to talk, sit down," said Miguel.

"I never sit down till I'm welcome," said Montana. "I give you first my name and then my errand. My name is José; my errand is to steal from the governor the emerald crown of Our Lady which he took from the church. I have promised Bishop Emiliano to put the crown back in his hands."

These words brought a gasp from the girl; she retreated a little so that she could get a fuller view of the face of the speaker, but the proprietor of the inn was totally unmoved.

He finally said: "Well, then sit down."

Montana bowed a little to Miguel, a little more to the girl, and took a chair at the round table in the corner of the room. Miguel sat opposite him, his wooden leg squeaking on the floor.

The girl leaned her elbows on the back of a chair and kept turning her head from one speaker to the other.

"If the governor learns about you, he burns you alive; if the Rurales learn about you, would they have old scores against you, José?" asked Miguel.

"I never saw one of the Rurales that I would like to sit face to face with," answered Montana, smiling. He watched the eyes of the other and almost was sure that he saw a slight glimmer of answering light in response to this confession.

"Why do you come to me except to get help?" asked Miguel.

"Every man who hates the governor is sure to wish to help me."

"Who tells you that I hate the governor?"

"Every man who loves the bishop hates the governor."

"I've never whispered in my sleep or spoken aloud that I hate the governor," declared Miguel, in his usual rasping voice.

"WHAT a man has lost on earth he is apt to hope for in heaven," suggested Montana. He saw the blow tell, but only in the slightest lifting of the brows of his companion.

"Besides," went on Montana, "your inn is just at the door of his fort. How many times has he sat his horse outside your place and called for drinks for himself and his men?"

The mouth of Miguel twisted aside.

"And how many times has he paid for them?" demanded Montana. "Besides, after what has happened to you, you cannot love any of the people of authority."

"What has happened to me?" asked Miguel.

"You have been in the Valley of the Dead. You have been one of the dead in the Valley."

Miguel said nothing. He only shifted his glance sharply aside, towards the girl.

"Even if everything you say should be true—and I admit nothing," said Miguel, "how could a one-legged wren like me help you to break open the fort of Duraya?"

"Yes, tell us that!" breathed the girl.

"You are the key to the fortress," said Montana, turning suddenly to Rosita.

"It" she cried.

"How many of the jolly officers, how many of the corporals and the sergeants, would give their souls for a smile from you, Rosita?" asked Montana.

She shrugged her shoulders. "But a girl like you," went on Montana, "will put a smile in every man's glass and let him go away with that alone. You save yourself for one of the brave and the great. A man with a carriage and six horses, gold on his uniform, and a sword at his side, and a house where Rosita can be a lady."

She turned her back on him and walked to the window, and stood with her face close to the black shimmering of the glass, though she could hardly be able to see much except her own thoughts by this light. Miguel, as he looked after her, almost smiled.

"YOU are the key to the castle and the fort, Rosita," said Montana. "Tell me how you will use the key. It is no army that wants to get in. Only two men. Only myself and my friend. Tell me what to do, and you will be paid."

He took out a money-belt and poured gold pieces out of it. "This is gringo money," he said.

And he stacked little bright, five-dollar gold pieces on the table—ten down to meet foreign competition would bring a crisis at home. The informed opinion is that if this happens by 1938 or '40 the administration will face a major political reckoning. So the New Deal has the terrific job of fortifying the American position in such a way as to compel a rise in the word wage level instead.

Insiders say the current excitement of the 30-hour week is a trifle premature. Labor started pushing for the eight-hour day back in the 1880's—but it didn't gain national recognition until 1918. This doesn't imply the 30-hour week is 30 years a long pull ahead.

Meanwhile it gives labor leaders a conspicuous target to shoot at and lots of publicity. That comes in handy when you need to convince restless followers that you're on the job.

DEADLOCK: There's plenty brewing behind the scene in the motor industry as the zero hour for code extension—February 1st—approaches. The Federation of Labor hasn't yet said so publicly, but it's preparing to cancel its agreement to deal with the Auto Labor Board. The possibility of a strike to enforce majority rule looks behind this move. The Board's alleged favoritism for the industrial viewpoint has ruined its usefulness.

On the other side note Donald Richberg's stiff-necked statement that the industry should take steps to eliminate seasonal unemployment—and Chrysler announcement of a new production policy to that end. The industry is anxious to avoid the role of guinea pig for the "annual wage" experiment and Richberg's advice to experiment on the gas is taken seriously.

The auto makers are determined that their new code—if any—shall protect them by representation and contain the merit clause. The Federation of Labor is equally determined to the contrary. Both sides are ready for a showdown. It looks as if a bitter deadlock will be tossed in FDR's lap.

TEMPORARY: The American Liberty League's "warning" to Congress against permanent NRA legislation is another phase of industry's campaign to check labor. Clay Williams and most of his NRA Board agree with the League and insiders understand that Richberg is lending strong moral support on the principle of meeting business' wishes as far as possible.

Beneath the high-sounding verbiage about a time limit on emergency legislation is the idea that that labor's New Deal gains can be more easily nullified when "prosperity" returns if they are kept on a temporary basis. Labor knows this too—hence its strenuous fight for permanent enactment of Section 7a in a stronger form.

FDR wants to reassure business but don't make any bets that he'll hamstring labor to make a Liberty League holiday.

BONUS: New York learns that the administration has scored a quiet but notable triumph on the bonus. The hope is that the method of payment will not be specified by Congress but left to FDR. This means borrowing or perhaps special taxes—NOT the printing press money desired by the Patman crowd. Conservatives are duly grateful.

SYMBOL: No January since 1930 has shown steel operations at such a high level. The best part of the expansion is the improvement it reflects in other industries. Experts sourced, without cost, and be administered by health officers, also free of charge, but such procedure is now purely voluntary. Senator Griffin's bill, which has practically unanimous backing of health authorities, would make it compulsory, just as smallpox and typhoid immunization is not mandatory before children can enter schools.

"I can't tell when Senator Newman is joking and when he is serious," complained Senator Sprunt Hill to the Senate. "He smiles all the time, and that makes it difficult to distinguish his earnestness from his joking."

Senator Hill made the remark when Senator Newman answered one of his questions regarding the payment of county taxes with county bonds.

Late today Senator Newman had not made up his mind as to whether he might wear a sign, bearing on one side the word "earnest" and on the other "joking" during Senate sessions so that members might know his mood.

The present provision in the sales tax law that the maximum sales tax collectable on any purchase shall not exceed $10 will probably be removed from the present revenue bill by the joint Senate and House Finance Committee members of both committees intimated here today. The thought of most of the committee members seems to be that if the sales tax is to be levied on cheap foods and everything else sold at retail, that it should also be levied on all retail sales in excess of $333 as well as up to that point.

Under the present law, if a woman buys a $1,000 fur coat or a $1,000 diamond ring, she pays only 9 sales tax or at rate of 1 per cent instead of 3 per cent. Or if a man buys a $2,000 automobile, he pays only $10 sales tax, which is a rate of only one-half of one per cent. In fact, it is generally understood that the $10 limitation was put in the present sales tax law largely through the efforts of the automobile dealers in the State who contended that if the tax was made a straight 3 per cent tax it would drive business to dealers in other States where no sales tax is charged.

If the $10 sales tax limitation is removed, however, as is now likely, it is expected that a provision will be included to require that whenever an automobile owner applies for a license he must show a certificate showing that the sales tax has been paid, and if he does not possess such certificate, he will be required to pay the sales tax before he can obtain a license. This plan, it is believed, will prevent persons living in this State from buying automobiles in other State to avoid payment of the sales tax, since they will have to pay the sales tax anyway before they can obtain a license.

ASSAULT ON SALES TAX INEFFECTIVE

Foes of Legislation Make Little Progress in Joint Finance Hearing

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By C. A. PAUL

Raleigh, N. C., Jan. 25.—A vigorous attack was launched against the sales tax by representatives of the Fair Tax Association and its friends in a hearing before the joint finance committee, but it was apparent that few members of the committee were impressed enough to change their attitude on the tax. It was also noted that the Fair Tax group presented no substitute for the sales tax, although several of their speakers, speaking apparently for themselves, suggested the legalization of whiskey as a source of revenue.

The association, headed by J. Paul Leonard, introduced an array of speakers from various walks of life and from a widely scattered area. J. C. Williams, merchant of Wilmington, made apparently the best impression, in a serious way, upon the gathering. Dignified of mien and appearance, he cited facts and figures to show why, in his opinion, the tax should not be continued. He was asked several questions by members of the committee. Other speakers, including J. H. Early, of Winston-Salem; R. M. Spear, of Reidsville; S. A. Hallum, of Rockingham; D. E. Turner, president of the association, and Roy Lawrence, president of the State Federation of Labor, made appeals to the committee to abolish the tax.

In the main, the arguments used against the tax were the stock arguments which have been used against it since it was first proposed and adopted.

Many observers think that the $10 maximum, now the highest tax which may be levied on the sales of any item regardless of its selling price, will be lifted. Indication of such sentiment in the committee itself was shown at House Finance Chairman Gregg Cherry asked several merchants what they thought of that feature. All protested the tax relief, but insisted that the $10 limit should be lifted if the tax is retained.

It is now apparent that the sales tax section of the revenue bill will be amended by the Finance Committee substantially as written, which means that the tax will continue to be imposed in the present manner and at the same rate, 3 per cent, but with the exemption on staple foods such as sugar, flour and so on removed. That such action is to be expected became clearly apparent when the anti-tax group abandoned its efforts to abolish or amend the section in the committee room.

The actual fight on the tax will, of course, take place on the floor of the Legislature, although most observers believe that the fight will be short. It is not believed that the anti forces can muster enough votes to long delay passage of the bill.

"Merchandise is worth only what it will bring," reiterated J. C. Williams, "and most merchants find it will not bring the sales tax in addition to selling price. Therefore merchants are forced, in many thousands of cases, to absorb the tax. This they cannot continue to do and at the same time remain in business."

"The first active interest I ever took in politics was when the sales tax was first proposed," said J. H. Early, in an impassioned plea against the tax, "and I'm going to continue that interest until this odious tax is removed because it is wrong in principle. Commissioner Maxwell and other revenue experts ought to know where to get money without taxing those least able to pay."

"By far the worst result of the tax," said A. C. Hall, of Lenoir, "is that it has driven a tremendous amount of business out of the State. I'm not a drinking man, but it would be a good idea to legalize whiskey and tax it." (Applause.)

"I didn't come down to say anything, but just to increase the crowd," said T. E. Idol, of Reidsville, U. S. Commissioner and Justice of the Peace, "but I will say that if you abolish the sales tax you won't have to raise the teachers' salaries, because I understand they want a raise so they can pay the tax." He also suggested legalizing whiskey.

HAUPTMANN DENIES KIDNAPING LINDBERGH BABY

ter was grave and tense for his second day before the jury.

A great throng taxed the courtroom to hear him. He shot furtive and nervous glances around but appeared pre-occupied with his own thoughts.

"He is vulnerable," Attorney General David Wilentz remarked aside. Wait until we get to him."

Hauptmann's own chief defense attorney, Edward J. Rilly, of Brooklyn, was confident his client was making a good witness.

"Were you ever in Hopewell in your life?" Rilly asked.

"I was not," he added in a guttural way. He was very serious.

"On the night of March 1, 1932, were you on Colonel Charles Lindbergh's estate?"

"I was not."

"On the night of March 1, 1932, did you enter the nursery of Colonel Lindbergh?"

"I did not."

"And take from the crib Baby Charles Lindbergh, Jr.?"

"I did not."

"On the night of March 1, 1932, did you leave on the window-sill for Colonel Lindbergh a ransom note?"

"I was not there at all."

"You never saw him?"

"I did not."

Rilly called to his attention the ransom note left in the Lindbergh nursery as asked him:

"You never saw it except in the courtroom?"

"No."

"Did you write it?"

"I did not."

"Did you leave it in the Lindbergh nursery?"

"I did not."

Telling of Fisch calling at his home in December, 1933, the night before Fisch sailed for Europe never to return, but to die of tuberculosis, he quoted Fisch as saying as he handed a shoe box to him:

"I leave it—I leave it—something—if you don't mind. Keep care of it and put it in a tight place."

Hauptmann testified:

"I didn't ask what was in it. He only said that is paper in it. I thought maybe they are bills."

He said he put the box on the top shelf in the broom closet in the kitchen and did not disturb it until August, 1934.

"And what caused you to disturb it?"

"I was looking for a broom and when I took the broom I must have hit the box with the handle and looked up that way and I saw that it is money. I damaged the box."

"And you saw money?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, had there been any moisture or wet or anything in that closet?"

Hauptmann explained there were pipes running through the closet. Asked what he did with the box, he replied:

Mercury solidifies at 37.93 degrees Fahrenheit; alcohol is used as a registering agent in thermometers used to record very low temperatures.

The destructive wild boar is classified as France's No. 1 public enemy. The boar is fair game all the year round in that country.

Of the 33 football players who were awarded letters at Notre Dame for the 1934 season, eight will be graduated in June. They are Hamlet, Melnikovich, Vano, Canale, Schiralli, Schrenker, Weidner, and Robinson.

Magellan's men required 1,084 days to encircle the globe; Post and Gatty covered the trip in 82-3 days.

HARD FREEZE IN CITY TODAY

Mercury Dropped to 14 Degrees Here This Morning 4 Lower Than Yesterday

The "hardest freeze" of the winter visited Greenville last night and this morning the mercury had dropped to 14 degrees, B. T. Clark, director of the local government weather bureau said.

The reading was four degrees lower than for the same hour yesterday morning when a stiff wind coming out of the north caused the citizen-ship to seek heavier clothing and put in rush orders for depleted fuel bins.

The weather was described by the observer "as the coldest of the winter" five degrees colder than the snap reported in December when the mercury hurtled to 19 degrees.

The cold was accompanied by a light snowfall Wednesday night which left a light layer on rooftops yesterday only to disappear a few hours later.

Citizens awoke to find leaden clouds overhanging the city this morning, but were comforted by a report from the United States Weather department of more comfortable temperatures Saturday accompanied by the sunshine.

Coming on the heels of a long seige of virtual springtime weather Wednesday the cold wave caught the city unprepared and yesterday morning bursted water pipes and radiators gave plumbers and automobile mechanics plenty to do throughout the day.

The "hard" freeze of last night greatly increased the seriousness of the situation for housewives who awake this morning to find water pipes hopelessly jammed with ice and in many instances bursted. The same was true with automobile owners. The freeze-up was probably more severe than yesterday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Most financial markets were willful but wary today and price trends were mildly mixed.

Dullness continued to rule the stock boom, although power and light corporation issues, together with scattered specialties, moved to higher levels.

There was little news that could be considered stimulating. Commodities offered no assistance to equities. Bonds were quiet and a trifle spotty. The late stock tone was steady. Transfers were 500,000 shares.
