Textile Industry Cotton Purchases Is Recovery Sign

Wall Street Journal Labels Purchases Most Promising Basis For Recovery Seen Since 1932

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The Wall Street Journal said today that buying in the cotton textile industry is on the most promising basis for sustained recovery since 1932.

George A. Sloan, former president of the cotton textile industry was quoted as saying the mill inventory position has improved considerably in the past 60 days.

The improvement in the market is unquestionable greater, this than in 1933.

S. Robert Glassford, a director and former president of the association of cotton textile merchants of New York, declared supplies on hand all the way down the line from the mill to consumer, probably is as low in proportion to the population as at any time in a century.

Private Brokers Are Accused Of Break In Market

Private Brokers Charged With Blame for Break in Cotton Market During Last March

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Charges that private cotton brokers were responsible for a break in the market last March were in the records today of Senator McKellar's investigation of the financial and business structure of cotton cooperatives.

N. C. Williamson, president of the American Cotton Cooperative Association declared as a witness that "something is wrong with the cotton market when the value of a farmer's cotton can drop $9.00 a bale in 40 minutes. He referred to a sudden decline in the market last March 11, which found cotton $4.53 off at the close.

"Should speculation be allowed in basic commodities, at all?" Williamson asked McKellar. "A hundred million bales are sold in the market each year, when everyone knows not more than 12 or 13 million bales are grown."

Williamson advocated federal regulations requiring exchanges to specify grade and staple, asked how his could be accomplished said: "By letting the cooperatives market it all."

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER CAUTION: You have to go back to Woodrow Wilson days to understand the Roosevelt-Hull inside strategy against American participation in Europe's war-torn affairs. It was three years from 1914 before Mr. Wilson thought the nation was ready to take the plunge.

So it is with President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull. Though they can not afford to say so publicly, they secretly approve the League's maneuvers for peace. But popular sentiment is as divided as it was in Wilson's time. Trading interests want to profit from sales to belligerents. The people don't want to give Mr. Roosevelt discretionary power in naming trade breakers because it feared it would lead directly to American embolism.

Lately administration sounders of sentiment think they detect a new note in the chorus. They suspect the people want this country to cast its influence for peace more actively than it can under existing neutrality legislation, with the League if necessary. But Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull will let Congress answer the question when it adopts permanent neutrality legislation at the next session. Congress is expected to say: "Let's mind our own business."

Thousands Desert Homes As Quake Hits 17 States

Severe Earthquake Rolls Over Eastern States

CANADA GETS WORST SHOCKS

Apparently Centered In Canadian Territory Few Miles From Lake Ontario

New York, Nov. 1.—(AP)—The east's most serious earthquake in decades rolled across 17 states and 3 Canadian provinces today, but the damage was trifling.

Thousands of persons fled from their homes, and many of them in night clothes, as they feared a tremor such as brought havoc in Montana yesterday.

The quake apparently centered in Canada, a short distance from Lake Ontario. It caused the most excitement in up-state New York, where buildings were swayed. Swinging mirrors and clattering dishes were reported from the Bay of Fundy to Lake Michigan, from Canada to the District of Columbia.

The tremors there were two major ones scant minutes apart—completed a triangle of earthquakes on the continent.

Sub-Zero Weather Accompanies Quake

Helena, Mont., Nov. 1.—(AP)—Montana's capital city stunned by its second death-dealing earthquake, marshaled its forces of reconstruction today after a night filled with dread of further shocks and sub-zero cold.

Despite the cold, many feared to return to their residences, and spent the night with children from orphan homes in two special trains rushed into the city to provide emergency shelter.

Others huddled in automobiles and in relief shelters, outside the city where no shock-weakened buildings could fall.

City engineer Oscar Barron estimated the loss in yesterday's quake from $60,000 up, not so severe as at first feared.

He said the total loss during the 20-day period of current quakes amounted to about $,500,000.

Celebration Described as One of Most Orderly in Several Years Although Many Participate

George A. Clark, chief of police of Greenville, said today the Hallowe'en celebration here last night was one of the most orderly in a number of years.

He said that he did not receive a single complaint and no arrests were made due to the celebration. "Very good," was the way the police chief explained the behavior of the merry-makers.

The celebrators, chiefly children did little if any damage but this was not due because of the lack of large numbers. The activities were confined chiefly to minor pranks.

Chief Clark and others gave much of the credit for the well behavior at the schools, and expressed appreciation for the cooperation of the school teachers and officials afforded.

MAKALE FALLS TO ITALIANS IN CONFLICT ZONE

Meanwhile at Geneva Italy Offers To Quit Fighting

ITALIAN ENVOY BACK AT GENEVA

Representative States Peace Terms Must Be Acceptable To Italy

Addis Ababa (by exchange teletype) Nov. 1.—(AP)—An unofficial announcement said today the Italians captured Makale, their next major objective on the northern front at dawn.

Geneva, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Italy returned League of Nations battlefront today willing, according to spokesmen to quit the battle fronts of Ethiopia on condition acceptable to the Fascist nation.

"Italy does not refuse to negotiate peace," said this spokesman, "but we are not running after peace."

"Moreover any peace terms to be acceptable to Italy must recognize first our security needs and second our expansionist requirement.

"That means military security in the Ethiopian provinces, bordering on our colonies and the actual territory so desperately needed for the expansion of our people."

Premier Mussolini returned Baron Pompeo Aloisi, his personal representative, to Geneva to confer with other representatives of league members.

He was preceded to the city by Premier Pierre Laval of France and by Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary, and Anthony Eden, minister for League affairs of Great Britain.

These three met in the morning and it was reported they had agreed to ask the coordination of the league to fix as early a date as possible for enforcing of economic sanctions against Italy in an effort to end the war in East Africa.

British Ignore Demonstrations Staged In Rome

Press Plays Down Reports British Shops Were Forced to Close for Fear of Attacks

London, Nov. 1.—(AP)—News of anti-British demonstrations in Rome failed to strike any answering sparks of anger today in London.

Although the demonstrations followed closely a British protest against Italian press attacks and alleged anti-British propaganda, the press here played down reports that British shops in Rome were forced to close for fear of attacks.

Nevertheless, with the hour approaching at Geneva for application of economic sanctions against Italy to halt its war on Ethiopia, the British listened as intently to Premier Mussolini's speech yesterday as council g sanctions as they did to Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's calm outline of his philosophy of peace.

Belated Opinions of Supreme Court Expected Tonight

Opinion on Capital Hill Is That The List Will Include Decisions Involving Liquor Law

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—(AP)—It was indicated early this afternoon that Supreme Court might hand down opinions late today.

Edward Murray, clerk, said the members of the court had not announced a decision as to when their opinions, due to have come down yesterday, would be given out. "It is likely they will be released tonight," he said however.

The court did not hand down the opinions when because of the death of W. J. Broden, an associate justice.

It was thought that Chief Justice Clegg in the case involving the distribution of the $10,000,000 of the late Smith... as those involving the constitutionality of the North Carolina 1935 liquor laws would be among the opinions... out whether today or next week.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock the court will sit for the induction of Judge W. A. Devin of Oxford, who was appointed an associate justice to fill the unexpired term of Justice Broden.

PREMIER SHOT BY ASSASSIN

Wang Ching-Wei, Pro Jap Leader, Wounded in Nanking

Nanking, China, Nov. 1.—(AP)—An assassin's bullet today wounded Premier Wang Ching-Wei, generally regarded as a pro-Japanese leader, and three other officials of the Chinese nationalist government, who were gathered to consider Japan's advance in North China.

The assassin, believed by authorities to be a Chinese, identified with the Cantonese faction which long has been critical of the premier's attitude, was killed—either by his own hand or that of others—as bodyguards returned the fire.

Wang Ching-Wei, 50, was struck by at least three bullets and was removed to the general hospital in a critical condition.

His principal aide, Tseng Chung-Min, vice-minister, also was near death. Chang Chi, former president of the judicial Yuan, and Kan Nai Kuang, chief of the political bureau of General Chiang Kai-Shek's headquarters, also were wounded.

The capital took on the aspect of an armed camp. Streets were filled with policemen carrying rifles. Speculation was rife to the effect that the shooting might be the first blow by proponents of resistance to Japan, who had become increasingly in evidence recently after application of new Japanese pressure on the north.

Judge W. A. Devin Of Oxford Named Associate Justice

Appointed by Governor Ehringhaus to Fill Vacancy Caused by Death of Willis J. Broden

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—Judge William A. Devin of Oxford was appointed an associate justice of the State Supreme court last night by Governor Ehringhaus to fill the vacancy caused by the death Tuesday of Judge Willis J. Broden of Durham.

In announcing the appointment, Governor Ehringhaus said, "he is eminently qualified for the post. There were many splendid men endorsed but—well the appointment speaks for itself."

Several names were suggested to the governor as a successor to Justice Broden. Included among them was that of Judge Walter L. Small of Elizabeth City, who had the endorsement of the Pitt County Bar association.

Judge Devin comes from the same judicial district as Justice Broden, thereby leaving the membership of the court evenly distributed over the state.

Commenting on his appointment, Judge Devin said, "I am deeply grateful for the honor the governor has tendered me and the gracious manner in which it was tendered."

A successor to Judge Devin on the superior court bench has not been filed.

Governor Studies List Eligible To Superior Court

Vacancy Left by Appointment of Judge Devin to Superior Court to Be Filled by Ehringhaus

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus today worked on the selection of a Superior court judge to succeed Judge William A. Devin of Oxford, as resident jurist of the Tenth Judicial District due to the elevation of Judge Devin to the Supreme bench.

"I will have to canvass the field and make some study before I can make the appointment," the governor said.

Capitol Hill gossip listed Victory Bryant, William B. Umstead and S. C. Brawley as men likely to be given consideration by the governor. Lieut. Gov. A. H. Graham, who is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, was also mentioned.

Sheriff Turned From High Office

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 1.—(AP)—A deputy sheriff was turned away from Governor Olin Johnston's office and troops hastily shut state highway doors today to prevent the service of a local order halting the governor's militia-made road board into the Supreme court.

He discussed one phase of this administration, the plight of the cotton farmer, saying that this was one of the greatest problems of the American people. The fact that the United States' farmers are now producing more cotton than the American people are consuming, means that his cotton will have to be sold at the same price as that of the foreign markets.

He showed that as a result we are now faced with the loss of our standing as the world's greatest cotton market. These statements were substantiated by statistics of recent cotton production and price trends.

Baldwin's Record Inspires Tories In British Campaign

By HAROLD P. BRAHAM

London, (AP)—Stanley Baldwin's leadership has rejuvenated Britain's national government and has considerably strengthened the hopes of its supporters for a victory in the November 14 plebiscite on its policies.

Baldwin, happy and exceptionally active as prime minister for the third time, thinks his government will win hands down in the general election.

He is carrying the fight to the various enemy camps, challenging labor, the opposition liberals and assorted other groups "to show the voters that any other country in the world has made more progress in the past three or four years than this country."

Labor calls him Tory boss. Labor leaders charge that the word "national" applied to the government is a fiction, saying it is a Tory government run entirely under the personal leadership of the leader and boss of the conservative party.

This pleases a good many conservatives, who would prefer to drop all the excess appendages over the side, such as J. Ramsay MacDonald, national laborite, and Sir John Simon and Walter Runciman, national liberals, and come out as a flat Tory administration.

There is a suspicion in some political quarters that the "national" tag may be discarded if the government wins the election, but there is no proof offered.

In fact, Baldwin publicly insists that there is now, and will continue to be, a real "national unity" among the three government groups, claiming the state of home and international affairs requires such cooperation for a long time to come.

Conservatives Held In Line
He emphasized this in the House's affairs debate in commons which preceded the call for the election, when he said:

"The burden of the prime minister in these critical times is no light one. This anxious position may last for many months."

Despite disregard by many Tories of the word "national" and regardless of several disputes within the party on various government policies, Baldwin has held the conservatives well in line and always has been assured of a preponderant majority in parliament.

Demands Power To Rearm
There were serious intra-party quarrels at first on the India governments bill but some changes of a minor character and much persuasion won over all but a few die-hards. On defense, many Tories for months attacked the government, with Winston Churchill leading and pointing to Germany's then officially unreported but unofficially known rearmament.

Baldwin later indirectly admitted the government was a little slow and launched a defense expansion program, using the German official statements as justifying increased expenditures.

Now he is saying: "I will not be responsible for the government if I am not given power to remedy deficiencies that have occurred in our defensive services since the war."

Baldwin has been getting a big kick out of running the government, although he was its ruler on broad policies while MacDonald was titular head.

He has been keeping a definite guiding hand on foreign policy, terming Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign minister, and Anthony Eden, minister for League of Nations subjects, a "team which could be changed if necessary."

CHECK COST SCHOOL BUS

State School Commission Works Out Expense on Each Bus

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—There will be no guess-work concerning how much it cost to operate the more than 4,000 school buses in the state this year. For Claude F. Gaddy, assistant secretary of the State School Commission in charge of transportation, and the School Commission, have devised a plan which will show to the penny just how much the operating cost of each bus will amount to this year. At the end of the school year the commission will for the first time be able to know definitely and accurately the exact cost of operating the huge fleet of school buses, as well as the cost of operating each bus.

The new plan requires each school bus driver to keep a daily record of the cost of operating his bus. In order to help the driver keep this record, an account book has been prepared and a copy given to each driver. At the top of the first page the driver will write in the number of the bus, make, license number, the date on which the bus started operating, and the speedometer reading. The page is divided into 20 lines—one for each school day in the month. There are eight pages, for the eight school months.

This record will prove valuable in making up an estimate of the budget requirements for school transportation in each county for subsequent years, also for the legislature, Gaddy pointed out.

A LOSS TO OUR CITY
News of the death early today of Mayor Roy C. Flanagan brought not only a shock to the citizens of Greenville but also the realization of a great loss to our community. Mr. Flanagan was not only a valuable public official, but was one of the community's outstanding and most popular citizens. Always with a view to making Greenville a better place in which to live, he has carried on the duties of his office as head of the city government in a manner that it is going to make his place a hard one to fill. We are not only grieved at his death but with it we realize that our city has suffered a great loss.

MUCH BETTER
Congratulations to the children of Greenville on their good behavior last night in observing Halloween. Judging from the large numbers about the city streets and the amount of noise they made we presume they had an enjoyable time but the boisterousness and property damage experienced heretofore in connection with such celebrations was lacking. Last night's observance shows clearly that the children of our city are willing to cooperate when matters are properly presented to them and the talks in the schools this week together with warnings issued by parents no doubt was responsible for last night's good behavior.

DUMS DUMS
(The Associated Press)
The dread dum dum bullet figures in war dispatches from Ethiopia.
It is a soft-nosed, half-covered steel-cased bullet that churns through a wound when it strikes and "mushrooms," making a gaping hole.
It gets its name from Dum Dum, near Calcutta, where ammunition for the Indian army is manufactured.
The adjoint of the International Peace Conference of 1899 decided against its use in warfare.
Modern machine gun bullets are made with whole metal jackets. To make dum dums of them their tips would have to be ground to expose the soft lead beneath.
Steel-jacketed bullets go through an object without changing shape leaving a clean wound.

HIGH COURAGE
by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: If Anne Farnsworth had been legally adopted by her parents, she would have inherited their large fortune. As it is, she is now with the family of her old nurse, Tecla Sorli, in Union Town, really to find out who she is and what curious plan had been in Luke Farnsworth's mind when he wrote a will which apparently has cut his foster daughter out of any share in his wealth.

Chapter 24
BREAKERS AHEAD
ANNE awakened early the next morning, but even then found the two older boys just leaving, and with them John Neuman.

"Nikki," he said, "will you run up to the house with me a moment?" Together they climbed the stairway, to stand at the top, wind whistling about them, tuning the fire behind them to a whispering orchestra, billowing clouds until they floated along the horizon like balloons.

"I forgot to tell you I'd stored your things in our basement, and sent the truck on to Portland. I imagined we'd have more room than Tecla, and I knew the house wasn't ready for them, yet."

"That was nice of you," Anne assured him, and waited. He hadn't called her up to tell her just this last night. I don't like to bother you so soon, but do you happen to know whether Luke Farnsworth reached a decision on the fish traps?"

Anne was able to answer this promptly. "As far as he was concerned, there was no decision to make. He didn't know until he reached Astoria, that there was a change in his method of running things."

"He talked to Uncle Lee, Tom Farley and Rob pretty straight. He said he'd always kept faith with the men who'd worked with him, and always would. Why, what has happened?"

"Crockier came down a few days ago. I believe he returned the morning before you came here."

Anne nodded, and a sharp pain cut through her at the memory of the day of his return, proving she was still able to suffer at mention of his name.

"He said he was now in charge of things and he intended running them in the modern way. That whoever brought his haul to the wharf in first would make the sale, trap or fisherman."

"However, the men say they're forced to wait until the trap barges are cleared, even though the fishermen are there first."

"It doesn't matter so much now, as the canneries can use everything brought in, but with a good run I'm afraid there'll be trouble."

"But John," Anne seemed as unconcerned as he had been of calling her Nikki. "Knowing this so far in advance, can't they sell to other canneries?"

"That isn't so easy. We've more fishermen than necessary, about like every other line of business. Of course the number of boats is controlled by the government, but even at that, without proper distribution of boats serving designated canneries, some fishermen would have to suffer."

"Naturally none of the men working in harmony with other canneries is going to step out and give the old Farnsworth fishers their place."

Suddenly Anne remembered the letter from Judge Kellogg. He said there had been something in the will concerning the fish traps. Surely with Luke's views on the subject, it would have been an order to give the fishermen preference.

"John," she said, "tell them to rest easy. Don't you see, Rob thought he was going to control things for me and that was what gave him the authority he used on that trip. Since he has learned Uncle Lee is in charge, and Uncle Lee is working under written orders left by father, by Luke."

trapped to a coffee house built out over the water, sat on high stools at a long counter and drank cups of steaming black coffee, and munched on frosted cakes.
It was here the boys found them. Marching in like a triumphant procession they came, surrounded by friends.
"Get up here," Orvi announced, "she'll be the C F 54, but we'll call her 'NIKKI'."

Chapter 25
HOUSE RAINING
THE water rained on the stones the steam rolled out in billows. The others were stung a Finnish folksong and Tecla was beating folk with a bundle of cedar boughs sending their spicy fragrance through the air.

Rob Crocker had loved Anne Farnsworth. Now he loved Sharlee. Anne sat up straight. Rob Crocker had loved the Farnsworth Fisheries. She might as well face the truth. The quick pang of jealousy which had cut through her at the sight of the two changed to contempt.

Rob Crocker had seen Anne only in the reflection of the fisheries. Now that she was no longer connected with them and Lee was in control, he was turning to Sharlee, who stood in the spotlight Anne had commanded.

They drank cups of steaming hot coffee.

"Time for shower," Tecla announced. Anne, who had copied the others in drying her skin with the boughs until it was rosy pink, gasped as the ice cold drops cut down from overhead. She could hear the laugh of others from their cubicles, hear their call in Finnish over the low partitions, but it all seemed very unreal.

Tecla appeared at the door of her shower with a sheet. "The towel is for your hair," she explained, "wrap in this."

"But I'm wet—"
"Like velvet your skin when it dries of itself," Tecla promised, and with Anne feeling like a Roman senator, draped in the sheet, she preceded her to a little room lined with bunks.

Anne lay on one of these, smiled at Tecla's insistence she relax. She focused her gaze on the rough boards of the wall and pretended to obey.

She could feel the sting of Sharlee's triumph at having won her fiancée. She didn't love him, and yet her mouth curved into a piteous smile as she thought of a caricatured scene, Crocker, his arms around Sharlee, fisheries rather than around Sharlee.

THE aching muscles were easing. The gnawing hurt that the slight of Crocker had brought was dulled. Anne snuggled her head into the pillow. The blessed realization was coming to her that at least she didn't have to face others while she watched Sharlee and Rob; that she wouldn't have to watch them at all, here in this haven.

"Nice nap?"
Anne opened her eyes. The others, fully clothed, were standing beside her bunk laughing. A man's top knot, triumphant and gleaming with the strenuous brushing it had received, seemed to join in her amusement.

"Was I asleep?" she asked in surprise. They were still laughing when they left the bath-house, and all about her Anne heard soft chuckling sounds of amusement, peppered with Finnish words.

Like a crowd of school girls, they were tearing paper from the walls, patching holes and cracks, and when this was completed, painting waiaacoting. Out in the yard a delegation cleared the weeds from flower beds, rebuilt walks and strengthened the long stairway.
Down in the Sorli kitchen the women gathered, cooking great pans of fish pudding, pots of vegetables, squares of berry cobbler and boilers of coffee.

It was, they explained, a festival Anne caught the spirit of it and though she understood but little of what was said, she found the laughter and gaily infectious, and joined them.
John, seeing an inquiring look upon her face, joined her, interpreting their jokes and the folk songs they sang.

 to Europe at the rate of 700,000 bushels for the three weeks before Mr. Roosevelt spoke out, but they jumped to 4,000,000 bushels a week in the month after the proclamation. Pork shipments increased from a weekly average of 800,000 pounds to 1,070,000 pounds.
 Most of these shipments went to Great Britain, but some were destined for Italy. Though not a belligerent under the terms of the presidential proclamation, England was on the verge of war several times during the period of increased exports. Her stocking-up of raw materials proves that. But exporters were willing to take the chance.

POLITICAL: The acquittal of Abe Shushan broke a key link in the chain which the administration hopes to use in smashing the political ring the late Huey Long built up in Louisiana. It was a body blow to the government, but though nobody is advertising it, federal officials and agents recently decided at a Treasury conference to press pending indictments and ask for new ones against Long lieutenants.

The late Kingfish dominated the Shushan trial. His death helped the defendant by arousing sympathy. There was nobody to be cross-examined on testimony in which he figured. Shushan's lawyers also made dramatic capital of the fact that "outsiders" predominated on the government side—the judge, the prosecutor and three important witnesses.

Six other Long men now await trial and the outcome may have tremendous political significance outside Louisiana. A succession of acquittals could bolster GOP charges that Washington is not averse to using the legal arm of the government for political purposes.

LION: While exploring on the Cocos Islands President Roosevelt made a disconcerting discovery. He got an eyeful of evidence that the British Company Act, on which he modeled his securities legislation, does not always protect the trusting investor.

As the President stepped ashore on the primitive strand, he noticed several holes in the ground. He also saw a group of men taking a siesta in the sunlight. When he made inquiries, he learned that they were supposed to be digging for buried treasure — Inca gold. Persistent questioning developed that a British company has sold thousands of dollars worth of stock to finance the expedition, promising golden returns to investors.

Although the diggers have dug up nothing but holes, the stock is going up. They seemed to think it was a great joke. There is no record of the President's comment.

DEFERRED: Noticed only by insiders, President Roosevelt recently delivered another "lecture" to the Supreme Court. Two days before the nine justices were scheduled to pass on the legality of the processing tax he announced that the AAA was legally grounded and would be transformed into a permanent agency.

The President's action caused considerable consternation behind the scenes. He went out of his way to assert the popularity and constitutionality of the corn-hog program at a press conference. Nobody had been "fixed" to ask a question on the subject, and Mr. Roosevelt did not wait for a query. He plunged into reading of his prepared statement without any preliminary announcement. He made the pronouncement on the day before farmers approved the hog-reduction program by an overwhelming vote.

Although there may be no connection between the two moves, three days later the court deferred until December any action on the processing tax. By this move the high tribunal deftly, even though not deliberately, edged away from political embroilment. It declined to pass judgment while the presidential pronouncement and the farmers' shouts of approval still echoed throughout the capital.

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN

DEBATABLE: Major George Berry urges business men to confer on a substitute for NRA on the premise that organized labor is going to demand some such legislation from Congress and will probably get it. Therefore he contends it is to industry's interest to help work out a program rather than allow some measure framed purely from the labor viewpoint to preempt the stage.

Shrewd New York observers are not convinced the premise is sound. They admit that the AFL (and Major Berry) are keen for legislative action along NRA lines. They figure that labor leaders—while putting up a valiant front on behalf of the Black-Connery 30-hour bill—have no idea it is going to pass and in fact privately prefer that it shouldn't as yet. But they do need legislative trophies to convince their followers they are on the job and resurrection of NRA principles in amended form would fill the bill nicely.

It is also conceded that industry doesn't know its own mind on this question. Most business big-timers are against the idea—but enough are for it to confuse the situation. But the crux of Mr. Berry's argument—that Congress will jump when the AFL snaps the whip—is rated highly debatable at best. So industrial chiefs will stay away from the conferences in droves.

DRESSED: It would also be a mistake to assume that the administration is solidly in favor of reviving NRA. Secretary of Commerce Roper is opposed. So is his Business Advisory and Planning Council—which hasn't been heard from lately but will be soon.

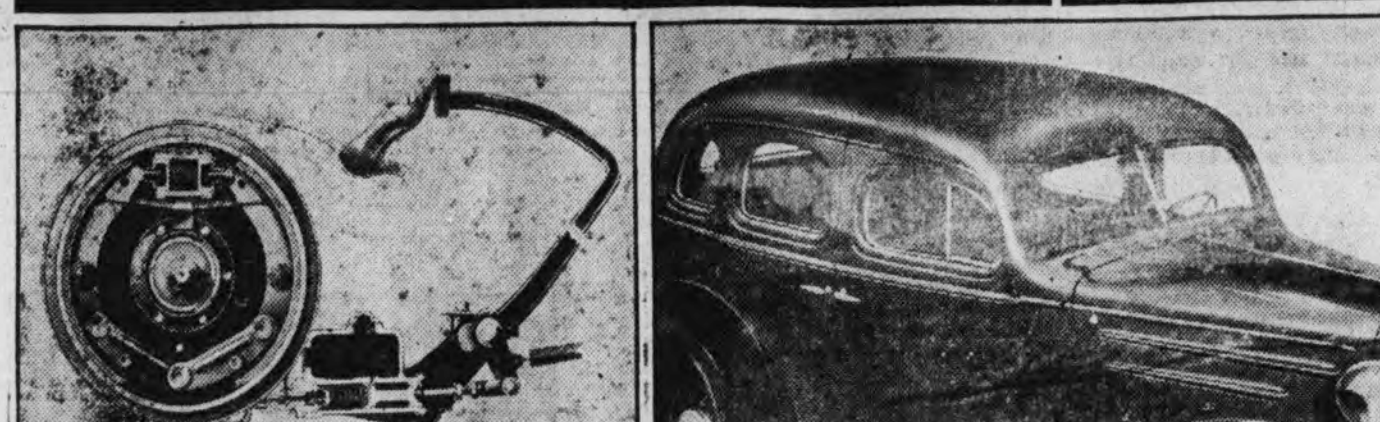

So are most of the administration's legal advisers—who foresee enough trouble ahead for the New Deal in the courts without gunning for more. These elements would like to see voluntary industrial cooperation tried out for a couple of years before any attempt is made to dope out new legislation.

It is also hinted in high places that FDR himself wants no such controversy on the calendar of the next Congress. In that case Major Berry may find himself all dressed up with bright ideas and nowhere to go.

HEATED: New York notes that the National Labor Relations Board is selecting the cases testing its constitutional authority with discretion. The three so far on the map involve respectively a bus company, a steamship line and a ferry company. The interstate commerce angle is conspicuously present in all three.

That makes it harder for learned judges to disallow the Board's contentions. And once its authority is judicially upheld it will be in a far stronger position for future battles in which its jurisdiction isn't so clear. The Board is evidently in no hurry to pick wholesale fights with recalcitrant employees. But it may be pitched into them by the Federation of Labor's intensive recruiting campaign. Certainly attempts to organize open shop industries will breed plenty of heated arguments.

PREFERENCE: The Securities Exchange Commission has been freely charged in print with allowing professional operators to pull all sorts of fancy stock jugs in the Old Deal tradition under its nose without making the slightest attempt to interfere. The criticism was getting under its skin. So there was general rejoicing in SEC circles when the crackdown on Mike Meehan was dramatically announced. One reason for it was to demonstrate that the boys are on the job.

Mike is big game too—not as big as he would have been in '29 but still a prideful exhibit for the SEC trophy room. There's been an ironic twist in the fact that the Commission's first attempt to discipline a New York Stock Exchange member is directed at a former crony and supporter of Al Smith. And yet—though the Commission is glad it has taken the plunge—it hadn't really planned to do so at this time. The move was precipitated by an unexpected quirk in its inner workings.

Insiders hear that John J. Burns—the Commission's general counsel—is keen to be named to the post left vacant by Joe Kennedy's resignation. New Yorkers hope his ambition isn't gratified. They have never cottoned to him—even though he was Kennedy's protégé and Kennedy rated at high. Baldwin Bane—also reported in the running—would be more to their taste, although he could hardly be accused of being Wall Street's pal. Chairman Jim Landis knows how New York feels about it, but hasn't indicated whether he agrees.

PERCENTAGE: The chief factor in whatever conservative "lack of confidence" remains is fear of broader tax measures still ahead. Financial circles refuse to take the President's assurance to the contrary seriously. Agitation is expected in the next Congress for levies along at least four lines.

1. If processing taxes are inval-

Feed Crops Gain, But Horses On Decrease

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 1.—Although the production of food crops and cattle is increasing in North Carolina, according to the agricultural census, the production of horses is falling behind.

Five years ago there were 86,377 horses and colts listed in the state. This year the number had dropped to 66,716.

But the decline in horse production is even greater than these figures indicate, said Prof. F. M. Haig, animal husbandman at State College, for many farmers have been buying work stock from other states.

Recent tabulations show that every year North Carolina farmers spend around $1,000,000 for work stock they could raise at home at practically no cash expense, it was stated.

By breeding a mare so that she will drop her colt in the spring, he added, the farmers will lose only a few days work from the mare at foaling time.

With the acreage that has been taken out of the production of cotton, tobacco and other basic crops under AAA programs, the farmers now have a good opportunity to raise more feed crops and to increase their pasture lands.

Most of the growers have already done this, Prof. Haig pointed out, and it would be good business policy for them to increase their production of horses and mules.

With the acreage that has been taken out of the production of cotton, tobacco and other basic crops under AAA programs, the farmers now have a good opportunity to raise more feed crops and to increase their pasture lands.

Most of the growers have already done this, Prof. Haig pointed out, and it would be good business policy for them to increase their production of horses and mules.

Recent tabulations show that every year North Carolina farmers spend around $1,000,000 for work stock they could raise at home at practically no cash expense, it was stated.

By breeding a mare so that she will drop her colt in the spring, he added, the farmers will lose only a few days work from the mare at foaling time.

Carolina-State Game Looks Like It Will Be An Aerial Battle

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 1.—Forward and lateral passes galore may fill Riddick Field in Raleigh Saturday afternoon when the two powerful eleven from Carolina and State clash before a crowd which probably will approach 20,000.

Both teams have flashed spectacular aerial attacks this season. Both have reported largely to this means in accounting for victories which have placed them at the top in both the Southern Conference and Big Five grid picture. And maybe the victory Saturday when one or the other will be cast out of the Conference and State races.

Don Jackson, a triple-threat prospectively All-American, is the key man in the Tar Heel aerial maneuvers. His tossing is rated among the best in the nation. He started his air attack against Tennessee when he completed 7 of 10 tries. So far this season his record is 21 completions of 38 tries, for an average of 13.5 yards per completion. He has passed to three touchdowns, caught a pass for one touchdown and scored three others via running.

Big Jim Hutchins, whose main forte is driving through the line, also does some of the passing. He has missed only one this year and averages 17 yards per completion. Dick Dashiell, Crowell Little and Art Ditt are among the reserve passers.

Eddie Entwistle was the passing ace for the Wolfpack against Manhattan, being largely responsible for the third touchdown against the powerful Jaspers. His tosses to Max Cars kept the northerners with

TWO BACKFIELD MEN TO SEE ACTION SATURDAY

Durward Stowe, left, quarterback is a 2nd year man of East Carolina Teachers College. He did a good job of calling signals against Oak Ridge last Saturday and greater things are expected of him this Saturday. He is good at defensive work and is an accurate passer on offense.

"Hoot" Gibson, halfback, is fast and elusive. He is a newcomer to the Teachers squad, but played with Louisburg college last year. Rated as one of the best in breaking up passes, he intercepted four O a k Ridge heaves last Saturday.

These two men are counted on by Coach Matthis to do great things in tomorrow's game here against the Chowan college eleven of Murfreesboro.

The little half-time "pick-up" was hardly enough to offset the experience and strength of their opponents, so the first game of football played by the St. Francis eleven resulted in defeat. However, Coach Yablak has just begun to build.

After running up a streak of 27 consecutive defeats, Knox College, of Galesburg, Ill., snapped out of it and now boasts a string of two straight victories. Knox and Principia 18-0 and then topped Augustana 6-0. These Knox boys are going places now that they have found themselves.

Albany College of Caldwell, Idaho, now has exclusive right to the record losing streak, for it suffered its 28th consecutive defeat. Previously Albany shared the mark of 27 with Knox and Hobart College, of New York. Knox and Hobart must start new losing streaks if they are to stay in the ranks of contenders for the dubious honor.

SALE OF VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY

Under and by virtue of the authority conferred upon us in a Deed of Trust executed by L. M. Edwards and wife, Myrtle Edwards, on the 5th day of Jan., 1923, and recorded in Book T-14, page 224, we will on Saturday, the 9th day of November, 1935 12 o'clock noon at the Courthouse door in Pitt County, Greenville, N. their backs to the wall several times.

The Carolina receivers are led by Dick Buck, a promising All-American. However, this star may not be able to play, due to an injury, and in his place will be Bill Moore, star of the Georgia Tech game. Moore showed an ability of snagging the tosses like Buck does. He caught one for the Tar Heels' second touchdown, scoring after pulling three Tech men along with him for six yards.

State will have Robinson and Berlinski to call on should their pass attack fail. This pair of brilliant sophomores have been the main cogs in the Wolfpack machine in all but one game this season. In that one they were forced to the sidelines early in the game with injuries. And State lost that game. Other State stars among the backs include Joe Ryneska, Howard Barde, and Charlie Gadd.

Hundred Floats In Big Duke-Vol Parade Saturday

Durham, N. C., Nov. 1.—As football teams of Duke and Tennessee finished their work for the battle, preparations were also completed for the staging here this week-end of the biggest pre-game celebration in the history of the state.

It will be a Madri Gras-like week-end for Durham. Downtown business houses, streets and the campus will be lavishly decorated for the big engagement which is both Duke's annual Home-coming day and "Duke-Durham" day.

The main feature of the week-end will be the mammoth parade Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Chamber of Commerce officials, sponsoring the parade, report the entry of 100 floats, the cost of which is estimated at between $10,000 and $15,000. It will be three miles long. Floats have been entered from both this state and other states, and from other cities in North Carolina.

According to the plans, the parade will be divided into six divisions with a band for each division. On the march through the streets of Durham a Duke co-ed, on horseback, will lead each division.

For beauty and color, the parade promises to vie with that staged anywhere in the country. There will be a special float for "Miss Durham" and a special float for the Duke co-eds who will sponsor the game that afternoon.

In addition to these floats of beauty, there will be many novel and unique ones. The Durham Fire department will enter one of their old pieces of fire-fighting equipment — a horse-drawn steamer, which will be fired to full blast, in a most unique way.

'Kibitzing' Against The Law. Emporia, Kansas.—(AP)—There's a law against kibitzing a poker player in Emporia. The city commission passed an ordinance after it was found those arrested in raids on gambling houses were all "just looking on and kibitzing the players." Now its against the law to be an onlooker at a gambling game.

SPORT SLANTS

Thank goodness for the many amusing sidelights which crop up in the course of the football season. At least they offer a pleasant respite from the columns and columns of technical football detail foisted on the gentle followers of the gridiron sport by experts.

It is interesting to note that football's "namesake" club goes on adding new and important names to its roster. On its rolls are names like William Shakespeare, a flashy halfback at Notre Dame; Henry W. Longfellow, very appropriately playing end for Northwestern, and Rutherford B. Hayes (named for the 19th president of the United States), who played such a slashing game for Kansas against Notre Dame early in the season.

The University of Chicago is counting heavily on Woodrow Wilson, a sophomore from Escalona, Mich., to fill in at tackle and compete for attention with other "namesakes."

Full Dinner Pail

The students of Penn State College rose in a body and demanded three meals a day for their football players. How, they argued, could their gridders be expected to compete on even terms with varsity eleven which enjoyed three full meals while the Nityan Lions were limited by the athletic association to one?

Football players at Penn State were dined once a day at the expense of the athletic association. For the other meals the boys had to shift for themselves. The fuss created by the outraged followers of the Lions forced the A. A. to yield to the extent of providing two meals to the gridders—the boys will have to manage about breakfast as best they can.

The consignment of rabbit feet some well wisher of Fordham sent Jim Coffey, the graduate manager of athletics, shortly before the ill-fated meeting with Purdue was promptly discarded after the game by the players and coaches. Purdue's footballers, totally ignorant of the jinx which was supposedly cast over them, romped over Fordham, rabbit feet and all, to score a one-sided victory.

Half-Time 'Pick Up'

St. Francis College, of Brooklyn, inaugurated football this fall under the guiding hand of Indian Yablak, former Colgate star. Between the halves Coach Yablak feeds his men lumps of sugar soaked in pre-war apple brandy, one lump to a man.

NASH COUNTY TAKES LEAD

Eastern County Pushes Forward Rural Electrification

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Nov. 1.—If the other counties in the state were as interested in rural electrification as is Nash county, it would not be many months until all the counties would have lines serving a majority of the rural residents who want electricity, it was learned today from the offices of the North Carolina Rural Electrification Authority, of which Dudley Bagley is chairman. Neither would these other counties have to wait until the power companies decide which lines they can or cannot build.

Within the past few days the Nash County Rural Electrification Committee, composed of K. H. McIntyre of Red Oak, chairman; T. H. McCroy of Spring Hope, secretary and G. R. Strickland of Middlesex, have been before the authority here seeking assistance in getting a certificate of convenience and necessity from the State Utilities Commission for the construction of some 30 miles more of rural electric lines by a private contractor. These lines will be fed from the municipal electric plant in Rocky Mount. It is understood that this contractor is able to finance the building of these lines without any assistance from the Rural Electrification Authority in Washington and will start construction just as soon as the certificate of necessity and convenience is obtained from the Utilities Commission.

The interest and activity in rural electrification is also stirring Edgecombe county into action. For the rural residents in Edgecombe, have ing found out the extent to which electric lines are being pushed into the rural sections of Nash county, are demanding that similar lines be built in their county.

Wilson county has also made excellent progress in rural electrification and will soon have its first rural line completed.

Nash county, however, is believed to be the first and only county in the state in which the people are refusing to wait either on the power companies or on Government aid to build lines and where they are going ahead without any assistance and constructing lines, by persuading private contractors to undertake the job.

Duke Chinese Grad Leads Youth Move

Durham, Nov. 1.—An outstanding part in the youth and religious movement in China is being played by a Chinese graduate of Duke University, Dr. W. Y. Chen, acting president of the Fukien Christian University during the past year and professor of psychology. Dr. Chen received his doctorate from Duke in 1930.

The youth and religion movement in China was inaugurated at a national convention of the Y. M. C. A. in China, in January, 1934. The purpose of the movement is to help bring to clear focus and expression the central teachings of Christianity to youth.

Four outstanding Chinese Christian leaders were invited to form a deputation for carrying the movement forward, and Dr. Chen was chosen leader for the group. Until the end of this year the deputation will visit ten of China's largest cities in the interest of the program.

Soybean Considered One Of Best Crops

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 1.—The soybean is considered one of the best all around legume crops that can be grown on North Carolina farms.

It can be grown on numerous types of soil and under widely varying conditions, points out C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department at State College, and its uses are many fold.

Grown as a soil builder, this legume not only adds nitrogen and other plant food to the fields, Williams added, but it also fills the soil with organic matter which helps it absorb moisture and prevent erosion.

Or the plants may be cut for hay and fed to livestock with excellent results, as attested by Earl Hostetler and other animal husbandmen at the college.

The soybeans may also be fed to cattle and hogs, but the whole bean tends to produce an oily meat. Consequently, it is recommended that the beans be ground into meal from which the oil has been removed. Soybean hay and meal have been found to increase the milk production of dairy cattle, and are also rated high in putting weight on all kinds of livestock.

The oil from soybeans is being put to numerous commercial uses, and the farmers can usually get a good price for it at the oil mills. Another source of income to growers is in the sale of surplus seed to other growers who need it.

Growers who raised soybeans this year will find it advantageous to save their best seed for planting next year and for selling to their neighbors, Williams stated.

Proper Laundering For Knitted Goods Restores Freshness

College Station, Raleigh, Nov. 1.—Suits, sweaters and other knitted garments brought out of mothproof storage can usually be restored to their former freshness by proper laundering.

Miss Julia McIver, assistant clothing specialist at State College, recommends the following treatment for such garments:

Wash them in mild soap suds. Use a lukewarm temperature for the suds and the rinsing waters. Do not rub soap into the garments. Squeeze the suds through the cloth rather than douse the garment up and down. Don't wring the garment; squeeze out the suds.

In the last rinse water, dissolve about an ounce of gum arabic in two quarters of boiling water, then allow it to cool. Rinse the garment in this solution, pat out the excess moisture between towels, then gently pull the garment into the desired shape.

One way to block or shape knitted garments is to turn them inside out and slip inside them pieces of cardboard cut in the form of a perfectly fitting garment. The cardboard parts for the body and for the sleeves should be cut separately. Lay the garment on towels on a flat surface until it is fairly dry, then cover it with a damp cloth and press until the pressing cloth is about dry. Leave the garment on the flat surface until it is dry, then remove the cardboard forms.

This treatment not only makes the clothes look cleaner and fresher, Miss McIver pointed out, but it also removes the smell of moth balls or any other substance used to keep moths away.

No 'Nook-Nipping' Allowed. Topeka, Kas.—(AP)—'Nook-nipping' even of soda water, is illegal in Wichita, and Attorney General Clarence V. Beck says it "might be a good thing" as a state law to preserve Kansas' dry status. The Wichita ordinance prohibits the sale of soft drinks in back rooms, basements or in booths not open to public view, to eliminate the old custom of "spiking."

PATROL RADIO SURVEY MADE

Transmitter Probably Will Be Stationed in Martin County

A survey for determining a suitable location for a highway patrol radio station in this section is underway in Martin county at the state prison camp, Lieut. Lester Jones of the patrol said today.

A transmitter has been set up at the prison farm and actual tests will get underway immediately, the lieutenant said.

Radio engineers will seek to determine the most suitable location for broadcasting. It was explained that the soil must be adaptable to transmission.

Each automobile and motorcycle of the patrol will be equipped with a receiving set and three men will be stationed at the point of transmission. The force will include one engineer and two assistants. Patrol headquarters will keep in touch with the broadcasting station through telephones and other means.

Provision for the patrol radio was provided for by the 1935 legislature and engineers have been working on details of the set-up several months. The station to be set up in this section will be among the first in the state. If the location now being tested should prove unsatisfactory, another place possibly within a 20-mile radius of the prison farm, will be sought.

Radio Engineer Rosenkrans of the state radio engineering staff is being assisted in the survey by Engineer Calvert of R. C. A. from New York.

Highway Patrolmen Receive Equipment

Twenty-five new leather coats for winter weather were received today at Eastern division of the State Highway Patrol force here and will be distributed to the 25 new men of the patrol.

The old patrolmen already have their winter apparel.

In announcing the arrival of the heavy garments, Lieut. Lester Jones, in charge of the troop, said it appeared it would not be long before the weather would demand the use of them.

OLD SOCKS AND WOOLENS BRING MONEY AS RUGS

Graham, Texas—(AP)—Old socks and discarded woollens, transformed into hooked rugs, solved financial problems for two young farm housewives here. Fair prizes brought sums in addition to sales.

Mrs. H. G. Millean of Loving received a dining room suite in exchange for her hooked "orientals," while Mrs. John R. Seth of South Bern, has a big start on an endowment for her 5-year-old son's future college expenses.
