ITALIAN ARMY NEAR LIFELINE OF ETHIOPIA

Southern Forces Push Toward Country's Railroad

WEEK-END DRIVE NETS PROVINCES

Ethiopian Troops Reported Concentrating in the Mountains South of Makale

(By Associated Press) Italy's southern army under the command of General Graziani pushed menacingly today toward Ethiopia's "lifeline" — the railroad from Addis Ababa to Djibouti, French Somaliland seaport.

Dispatches to Rome said Graziani's forces occupied Sasa Banah in a week-end drive and held Daggah Bur with advanced patrols.

In occupying Sasa Baber the Italians have crossed more than half the desert region lying between Italian Somaliland and the provincial capital of Harar.

Graziani's campaign carried on without the fanfare of the Italian drive in the north has been much more successful in the north a much larger army has pushed only about 75 to 80 miles in the interior and without any resistance from Ethiopia.

However a determined stand against the northern army appeared in the making.

Addis Ababa reports said Ras Kassa was joining Ras Seyoum, governor of Tigre province, with a 100,000 warriors. Seyoum, at least reports, had more than 100,000 warriors of his own. The troops were concentrating beyond the Kindnemret range of mountains south of Makale.

Clashes Break Out Following Parade On Armistice Day

Nationalists and Leftist Engage in Brawls in Paris Near Tomb of Unknown Soldier

Paris, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Clashes between Nationalists and leftist war veterans broke out today near the tomb of the unknown soldier as the Armistice Day parade ended there. Heavy forces of police strove to restore order.

A column of 25,000 veterans, composed largely of leftist, marched to the tomb under the Arc De Triump and then dispersed along Champs Elysee where the nationalists, Fascists, and Croix De Feu veterans met there in a dozen brawls.

New Box Cars Arrive Railroad Yard Here

Another sign of prosperity was witnessed today when ten new railroad box cars rolled into the Norfolk Southern yards here, the first consignment of 500 new cars for the railroad.

The new box cars, made by a Richmond concern, are all-steel, newest type, 40 1-2 feet long with a load capacity of 92,000 pounds.

Several of the cars are on the tracks of the Norfolk Southern and the public is invited to inspect them.

WORLD'S LARGEST STRATOSPHERE BALLOON TAKES OFF

Undismayed by the failure a few months ago, the army and the National Geographic Society, jointly sponsored another attempt today at sending the world's largest stratosphere balloon into the heavens from Moonlight Valley, South Dakota. Scientific data and possibly a record altitude are the objectives of the flight. At the left is the flight commander, and Capt. A. W. Stevens (top), camp commander, are making adjustments. Moonlight Valley, as it appears from its rim of rock, is seen on the right. (Associated Press Photos).

President Also Announces Agreement Reached Between U. S. and Canada

Washington, Nov. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt revealed today that he and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada have reached a definite agreement which eliminates disarmament and unreasonable (trade) restrictions, thus work to the advantage of both countries.

Commemorating Armistice Day at the tomb of the unknown soldier, he pledged that American "will ever seek the ways of peace" but "must and will protect herself."

He cited discussion with the Canadian prime minister as an example of neighborliness. Details of their agreement were not given.

"Under no circumstances," the president said of American policy "will this policy of self protection go to length beyond self protection."

"Aggression on the part of the United States is an impossibility in so far as the present administration of your government is concerned. The defense against aggressives by others—adequate defense on land, on sea, and in air—is our accepted policy and the measure of that event is and will be solely the amount necessary to safeguard us against the armament of others. The more greatly they decrease their army, the more quickly and surely shall we decrease ours."

"The past and the present unite in the prayer that America will ever seek the ways of peace and by her example at home and abroad to speed the return of goodwill among men." Before speaking he and Mrs. Roosevelt laid a wreath on the tombs of unknown soldiers.

Making Survey for City Directory To Be Issued In City

Representative of Southern Directory Company in City to Make Plans For Publication

Possibility for a City directory of Greenville was today with the visit here of Charles W. Miller, representative of the Southern Directory company of Asheville, to make a survey of the city to determine if Greenville will support such a publication.

The city has not had a directory since 1926, and Miller said his survey indicated that the publication would be issued.

The directory will be complete with the names, addresses, businesses and other data of each individual in the city. It also will include a street and avenue guide, complete classified business directory and much information of miscellaneous character.

Miller will meet with the Greenville Chamber of Commerce tonight to discuss the possibility of issuing the directory. It is estimated that some definite decision will be reached by the end of the week as to whether the publication will be issued.

World's Largest Balloon On Stratosphere Flight

Explorer, II, Takes Off On Its Long-Awaited Flight For Scientific Exploration With Captain Orvil A. Anderson At Controls Today

Rapid City, S. D., Nov. 11.—(AP)—After reaching an unofficial world altitude computed by the ground crew at 74,000 feet, slightly over 14 miles, the two fliers of the Explorer, II, radioed at 1:05 p. m. (CST) today, "We are starting down now."

When this report was made the two-man expedition into the thin air, composed of Capt. Orville Anderson and Capt. Albert W. Stevens in the "Explorer, II," had been up five hours and five minutes. The lofty level of 74,000 feet—34,000 feet out in the stratosphere was the balloonists' fondest goal.

If authorized by instruments it will mean a world altitude record far beyond that unofficial record of three Russian balloonists who last year soared to 72,776 feet.

ANTI-JAPAN TERROR FELT

Handbills Distributed In Shanghai Calling For War

Shanghai, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Anti-Japanese terrorism flared anew today when a group of Chinese threw bricks and bottles through a plate glass show window of a Japanese owned store just after 500 Japanese marines had disembarked here.

The Japanese landing party strength reached more than 2,000 with the arrival of the new forces, although Japanese officers asserted they were merely replacement for an equal number of bluejackets who will sail to Japan November 13.

The situation arising from the unprovoked slaying of a Japanese marine which Japanese authorities said was "serious" was considered to be increasingly threatening by the outbreak.

Hundreds of persons saw the Chinese break the window of the store on one of Shanghai's busy street corners, but the perpetrators escaped after scattering hand bills emanating with the characters:

"War on Japan to save China." The slain man was buried with full naval honors.

Despite reassuring proclamations by the Chinese authorities, the exodus of Chinese from nearby Chapei to the international settlement continued although on a greatly reduced scale. Japanese military action was feared.

The practical boys know that the Philadelphia Mayoralty was the key fight. The Democrats now control Pittsburgh and the state government. Had they carried Philadelphia and dominated the political machinery there, Mr. Roosevelt's chance of winning the Keystone State in 1936 might have been rosy. It would compensate for the threatened loss of New York. It would have polished the GOP once and for all. But the "river wards" stood firm against the Parleyites.

PAUL GRADY IS SPEAKER ON PROGRAM

Delivers Feature Address on Armistice Day Observance

BARBECUE MEAL, WELL ATTENDED

Pitt County Post No. 39 Holds Program At East Carolina Teachers College

Featured by an address by Hon. Paul D. Grady of Smithfield, president pro-tem of the 1935 state Senate and at present a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, an Armistice Day program was held at East Carolina Teachers college here by the Pitt County Post No. 39 of the American Legion.

The program got underway shortly before 11 o'clock and on that hour a moment's silence was observed "in memory of our departed comrades."

Following the moment of silence, Dr. Gilbert R. Combs, pastor of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church, delivered the invocation. This was followed by the reciting of the preamble of the American Legion's preamble.

Miss Bessie Brown, Miss Helen Sawyer, J. H. Rose and Louis Bullock rendered a quartet, and Miss Bessie Brown sang a solo.

Senator Grady was introduced by Dr. Leon R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers college.

In referring briefly to the deeds of valor of the American soldiers in the world war and paying tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice, the speaker declared that all this was history and that no history was worthwhile unless a lesson for a better future could be learned. From the lessons of the world war, he said, we should have learned the necessity for world peace and he urged his hearers as individuals to join hands with other individuals of this and other nations of the world in a united effort to perpetuate permanent peace.

All county offices were closed for the day and city departments were closed from 11 o'clock for the rest of the day. A number of business establishments closed for the day while others ceased activities for two hours beginning at 11 o'clock.

A complete silence fell over the city at 11 o'clock for a silent prayer. Flags were unfurled throughout the city, which took on a holiday air throughout the day.

No parade was held, but the High School band furnished music at the program at the college.

The Armistice Day program proper was scheduled to be climaxed with a barbecue dinner at the college. Members of the local post of the American Legion, all other ex-service men, as well as affiliated auxiliaries, city and county officials and others were invited to the barbecue dinner.

Royal Air Forces Search For Flier Missing On Trip

Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith Lost Three Days on Flight From England to Australia

Singapore Strait Settlement, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Another fleet of Royal air force bombers roared into the air today resting with renewed vigor the search for Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, missing three days on a projected England to Australia flight.

The pilots carried instructions to skim low over every island and the mainland of the Malay Peninsula as well as a wide strip of the Bay of Bengal.

C. James Melrose, who last saw the monoplane in which Kingsford-Smith co-pilot, Tom Pethybridge, were flying over the Bay of Bengal, early Friday, flew again to the spot where he saw the pilot ducking a raging monsoon.

CLINIC HERE DURING WEEK OF EDUCATION

Tuberculosis Clinics To Be Held Here Tuesday, Friday

A tuberculosis clinic will be held Tuesday and Friday of this week at the offices of the Pitt county health officer, and similar clinics will be held Wednesday in Farmville at the Town Hall, and Thursday in Ayden, at the office of Dr. G. G. Dixon.

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt health officer, made the announcement following a telephone conversation with Dr. P. P. McCain, superintendent of the State Sanatorium.

The health officer asked all applicants to apply through their own physicians. Such procedure has been the rule in previous tuberculosis clinics.

The clinician will have a fluoroscope, which will make it possible for him to rapidly examine a large number of persons.

The clinics will begin at 10:00 o'clock each day.

The clinics were erroneously reported Saturday as scheduled for the Sanatorium. However, the clinics will be held in this county Tuesday and Friday here, Wednesday at Farmville and Thursday at Ayden.

OBSERVE WEEK OF EDUCATION

City and County Units Of School Participate in Program

American Education week will be observed in the City and County schools this week, heads of the two systems announced today.

D. H. Conkey, county superintendent of Pitt schools, said programs would be held in each of the county units during the week and Education week would be the general theme of a number of programs for the schools.

J. H. Rose, head of the Greenville schools, said the program outlined by the offices of the State Public Instruction would be followed during the week.

This marks the 15th annual observance of the week in the state and the nation. It is the purpose of the annual observance to acquaint the public with the aims, achievements and needs of the schools. The observance is sponsored jointly by the National Education Association, the Federal Bureau of Education and the American Legion.

The general theme of the observance this year will be the "School and Democracy."

Hungary Asks More Children Budapest (AP)—Speaking at a celebration in honor of Hungarian mothers, Resent Horthy appealed to the nation not to become infected by "the moral epidemic of the one-child family." JAMES NELSON BEAT, ROBBED

Old Man Robbed Of About $335 By 3 Negroes

James Nelson, 65 or 70 years old white man who lives near the fairgrounds just outside the city, was robbed last night of about $335 after his assailants had beaten him.

Nelson said three negroes entered his home about midnight and when he was roused by them, they beat him down on the bed, robbed him of the money and fled.

Officers later arrested Roosevelt Cox and said the negro had about $110 of the stolen money in his possession. Chief George Clark said the money evidently had been split three ways between the trio. Officers had not been able to apprehend two of the three this afternoon.

Nelson lived in a house back in a field by himself. He said he was roused by someone in his house late last night and as he attempted to get to investigate three negroes beat and knocked him back on the bed.

Cotton Now in Bloom Grown in Pitt County

A full-grown cotton stalk bearing several blooms and small bolls which appeared to be ready to open within a few days was brought to the city today by Jesse Windom of Greenville, R. F. D. No. 4.

The cotton was grown on the old Wiley farm operated by Windom, and was the second stalk of cotton bearing blooms to be brought to The Reflector within the past few days.

strongest argument in the world to convince governments that a plebiscite should be held on the question of outlawing war.

The World Peace Federation is a non-political, non-profit, and highly patriotic organization and therefore absolutely favors adequate national defense in times where invasion into foreign countries is still possible.

We have chosen Armistice Day as the most fitting, the most appropriate time for the launching of our drive for 1,000,000 additional peace signatures.

One Armistice Day a year is enough. The memory of one devastating war—for which we are still paying and for which our children will still be paying many years from now—is sufficient.

We have within us the power to keep our children from celebrating two—or three—Armistice Days each year. We, the people of the world, can bring permanent peace to this world and leave that as our contribution to civilization.

way, GOP-ers may have reason to gloat. They figure that they have tripled their electoral college vote over what Herbert Hoover polled in 1932. That's a great gain, though not enough.

On the basis of present returns Republican chiefs feel they will carry thirteen states in 1936 for an electoral vote of 196. They may be slightly optimistic, but here's what they list on their side of the political ledger: All New England states New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, Ohio, Mr. Hoover got only 59 electoral votes.

There are five states with 88 electoral votes—or more than enough to give them the winning majority of 266—which the GOP plans to cultivate. They are Kansas, Missouri, Tennessee, California and Illinois. Prospects don't look bright in the possible exception of Kansas (if Alf Landon is nominated), but that's the territory where the Republicans must take may.

CONFEREES: The three Cabinet members most welcome at the White these days are Henry Morgenthau, Henry Wallace and Jim Farley. Without even telephoning Secretary McPherson they slip in and out the back doors at all hours of the day and night.

Their popularity gives a clue to President Roosevelt's immediate strategy. Mr. Morgenthau's demand for economy in spending is slowly commending itself to the President for the beneficial effect it may have on eastern conservatives. That means a slump in the prestige of Spenders Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes. With Mr. Wallace the President confers daily on ways and means to hold the West, especially if the Supreme Court should knock out the processing tax.

All reports to the contrary, the President is eminently satisfied with Jim's political work. He would like to retain him as national chairman for the 1936 campaign but fears it would draw hot attacks. But Jim will run the show anyway.

AAA: Smart boys recently thought they had caught President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace off guard about the future of the AAA. On the day before the corn-crop vote the President issued a formal statement declaring the AAA was to be permanent. In a magazine article written at the same time Mr. Wallace stated that the processing tax was only a temporary expedient, and he italicized the word "temporary."

The inside explanation is that the administration is preparing to preserve the AAA at all costs. It is their political ace-in-the-hole. Mr. Roosevelt was speaking of principles and Mr. Wallace was referring to methods. What the apparent collision means is that no matter what the Supreme Court does to the AAA it will live in some form or other—a sales tax, an export subsidy, a rejiggered processing tax.

The administration knows now that the AAA is its sole political mainstay for 1936. Legal and economic experts are spending all their time in framing something "just as good" in the event the Supreme Court outlaws the present system of taxes and benefit payments.

TOUGH: New Dealers are secretly bemoaning George Berry's propaganda for revival of NRA. It promises another capital-labor controversy at Washington just when the White House craves peace between these warring elements.

HIGH COURAGE
 by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth, who now calls herself Nikki Nikki, is hurrying to keep the Union Town fishermen from dumping the Farnsworth canneries, and themselves into the bargain. Anne has been cheated of her share in the canneries by Tom Farley and his gang, but she has been asked to help by John Newman, and she loves John and will do whatever he says. The Bark boys are telling her how one of the fishermen caught Farley's gang bootlegging salmon, but could not persuade Lee Farnsworth of the fact.

Chapter 33
SHOT IN THE DARK

"He couldn't convince Farnsworth, however, and when Hannula returned and told the crew, they decided it was time to take action. They told some of the fellows who've been losing money all summer and decided to go into action. They went to the canneries first. They missed him.

"John came in about that time, but they were beyond stopping. He tried to reason with them. Seems he's trying to protect the canneries, for some reason.

"Then he sent us after you, Nikki, he said that you owned the canneries."

"That I do?" questioned Anne, bewildered.

"Yes, that's exactly what he said, and he said to tell you that he was ready to prove it."

Anne shook her head. "He's mistaken, but maybe I can pretend long enough and convincingly enough to check them before they get into trouble."

"John said you must, that if they harm anyone they'll be the ones to suffer not the guilty ones."

The engine faltered, and Orvi went back to join George. Anne stepped outside into the wind. The rain had stopped but huge waves dashed over the bow, and sent her hurrying back to the cabin. She thought of other storms, of the one the night of Lucinda's death.

And then the waves grew less rough, the wind seemed to die away, they were coming into the cove. Anne stepped out again. She saw the flicker of many lights. They were in a maze of fishing boats, gillnetters, trawlers, and a cruiser was nosing the piling of an old wharf, the wharf that held the fish trap building.

Anne looked at the cruiser and closed her eyes in quick pain. The "Ahti." What was it doing there.

"Get into this!" Orvi threw a rubber coat about her. He went back to the pilot house, and they maneuvered their way through the boats to a spot near the "Ahti."

A barge was nearby, its surface gleaming with its catch of fish. They'd grown bold, this night of storm, with every other boat off the water during the closed hours. A cruiser was near it, nondescript, but familiar, the one which had cut across the Sorki net.

And the mob spirit was there. Voices rising in anger, then sinking to a low mutter more ominous than anger. Unthinking, unheeding, that single voiced monotone would follow the lead of the most reckless.

A searchlight from the "Ahti" flashed on, outlining the fish trap and buildings. Anne recognized them. It was on the beach near them that John had thrust her behind the thicket when he heard voices.

But what should she do? The platform of the trap wharf would make a stage. She would go there. The "Ahti" was in the way, but she could climb over that.

She started, reached the edge of the "Nikki," then paused. Someone called "Anne."

She turned back. Something whizzed past her face. Simultaneously she heard the report of a gun. She swung towards the "Ahti" and gasped in horror.

On the bow of the boat, waiting to step to the wharf ladder, stood Lee Farnsworth. Behind him black hillsides, before him the maze of boats. He looked about, an expression of ludicrous astonishment on his face.

Anne gave a half-articulate cry. That looked had changed to pain. The fat figure slumped, fell forward sprawling over the edge of the "Ahti."

STUNNED silence hung over the scene for a moment, then a cry rang out. "Get the man who fired that shot!"

Tom Farley's voice. It came from behind Anne. She felt a boat bump the one she was in, there came a peculiar thud she couldn't identify, then pandemonium broke loose.

Engines started, but riding lights flashed off as though they'd been doused by a universal wave, and in the darkness came a high sharp command.

for small industries which never installed the code, most employers are maintaining hours and wages. In fact, Messrs. Roosevelt and Richberg have publicly commended business and industry for their behavior.

The administration has a hard job in refereeing the contest, for there is no middle ground. Industry bitterly opposes any kind of restrictions, while the workers favor them. Mr. Berry, with his letter-writing, is putting President Roosevelt on a tough spot.

New York
 By JAMES McMULLIN

STRIPPED: Unusually well-posted New York sources predict that President Roosevelt will personally take over the active command of his reelection campaign next year. They figure that his hand will quietly supersede Jim Farley's at the political helm.

Last week's New York election results are interpreted as more of a blow to Farley than to FDR. He is charged with handling the campaign in such a way that the Republicans were able to make maximum political capital out of their Assembly victory despite the large Democratic plurality in the total vote. His pet scheme for building a strong Democratic organization upstate to take the state party leadership away from Tammany fell apart like a card house. Not only will the Democratic contingent in the next Assembly be a minority—it will be dominated by the anti-Farley wing of the party. Tammany and its allies came through to victory where newer Farley-sponsored groups made a pitifully feeble showing.

Jim's critics are hot on his trail. They are avidly spreading the word that he looked like a genius in 32 only because he was riding a tailwind and that he has now shown himself unfitted to cope with a real political emergency. It isn't expected that FDR will dislodge him from the chairmanship—that would be too obvious a confession of weakness—but it is prophesied that he will privately be lacking his former power to direct campaign policies.

FADING: The election was unusual in that it left all hands with something to gloat about. The GOP recaptured the New York Assembly all right but the Democrats rang up an impressive vote and sniped off several majorities upstate. Moreover some Democratic leaders had privately been hoping the Republicans would win—on the basis that their opponents will now have to share the onus of solving intricate state problems.

Similar Republicans are enormously cheered because they saved Philadelphia. The Democrats really did expect to win there with Edward Kelly—but at least they derive considerable consolation at the narrowness of their defeat. Astute observers remark that the Philadelphia result shows what money can do and that the GOP is now able to raise the money with which to do it.

The New York picture appears to be settling back to its former comfortable status in which the Republicans run the state and Tammany runs New York City and both are perfectly happy. Local New Deal and Fusion dreams are fading fast. But backstage GOP leaders aren't kidding themselves that this necessarily implies a national victory next year. They realize that eastern triumphs—while morally valuable—cannot safely be taken as a barometer of sentiment in other sections.

DIFFERENCE: Father Coughlin's new tactic of proclaiming Roosevelt and ruin unless the "right kind" of Congressmen is elected next year indicates that he is falling in line with the ideas of practical business men who are interested in politics.

More and more they are coming to the conclusion that there's no sense in wasting money trying to beat Roosevelt with nobody. They figure it is cheaper, easier and more efficient to handcuff him with an anti-New Deal House of Representatives. Even the Senate isn't worth too expensive an effort—since it would still be Democratic if all the Democrats whose terms expire next year were beaten.

You might think that Father Coughlin's definition of a good Congressman would differ widely from the specifications demanded by conservative industry and that these two forces would therefore be working on the same principles—but at cross-purposes. But those who should know say the difference will be more apparent than real. The Radio Priest still rails at international bankers and favors unorthodox monetary theories—but he's as opposed to regimentation as any Republican could wish.

WET: Coughlin's references to the National Union for Social Justice are taken as a face-saving gesture. Informed sources are confident there will be no serious effort to reconstruct a practical political organization along the lines originally projected.

Comment runs that unless the National Union could make a better showing in Congressional districts than it did in Congress itself there would be nothing for FDR to worry about. Coughlin rode high on such popular issues as the bonus and non-participation in the world court. But when he tried to force action on his bank bill his big stick turned out to be so much wet paper.

DUMB: You are likely to hear quite a lot about the "American Vanguard" in coming months. This is a veterans' organization organized primarily to beat Roosevelt. It can safely be predicted that its career will be picturesque at least.

Its commander—B. M. "Mike" Thomas—was also commander of the original bonus army. Informed sources say he has had connections at various times with William B. Peley of the Silver Shirts, Arthur Smith of the Khaki Shirts and the Order of 76—"patriotic" organizations of what is politely described as dubious standing.

It isn't clear just where the Vanguard is getting its funds—but informed sources are reasonably certain it is privately backed by well-to-do Republicans who are determined to smash the New Deal. Comment runs that this might boom on the Republican high command unless stopped in time. It is more than faintly possible that there will be a Congressional investigation in January to find out just who is backing organizations of this character and why—which might leave their backstage sponsors in an awkward spot. New York sharps don't rate it overly bright

Rev. Robert C. Grady Talks On Armistice

Speaking in the First Presbyterian Church yesterday, Rev. Robert C. Grady, minister, in his morning Armistice Sunday sermon declared that "the day is past when it was possible to defend a country by fighting for it 'inasmuch as modern weapons of warfare and an independent world, make it physically impossible for one side to be victor and the other vanquished. Today the patriot—and, above all, the Christian patriot—who desires to defend his country will refuse to fight' and concentrate his attack upon the war system itself. For the Christian, said Mr. Grady, the question is: 'is war a sin and, if so, is it a means I can indulge in and still be true to Jesus Christ?' Surely Christians who, on this question, are willing to take Jesus seriously and authoritatively for humanity's sake, ought to be as willing, for their peace convictions, to go to prison or die before the firing-squad as are others, for the opposite conviction, to lay down their lives on the battlefield."

The minister spoke in part as follows, on the theme of "The Christian's Conviction About War." Beginning with the thought that "unless the modern Church does recapture the spirit of the early Christian martyrs and take an uncompromising stand against the war system, it is doomed to failure and, as well, to merit the scorn, contempt and neglect of hard-thinking and courageous-thinking men and women who have a right to expect from the Church the leadership in warning, inspiration and attack upon this thing called war"—he proceeded to point out some difficulties which confront the individual Christian as the individual attempts to mold his convictions about war and peace. "For one thing," said the minister, "we must differentiate sharply between war and the use of force for although war does involve force, it involved a great many other things besides which the Christian must condemn as sinful. For another thing, we must rid ourselves of the false analogy that the use of armies and navies is a valid use of police powers for," as Mr. Grady pointed out in one instance, "the police exist in order to preserve life and property while the military functions by the destruction of both."

Reviewing the "stock" arguments that preparedness-advocates usually present—arguments dealing with "the fighting instinct of human nature," qualities of heroism produced in wartime, war's inevitability and others—Mr. Grady parried with the thought that when Christians "justify war they do justify courage, self-sacrifice, high devotion; but they also endorse and encourage violence, immortality, lying, subterfuge, organized killing and every known item in the category of human vice and stupidity! The problem is whether you and I can do this in the name of Jesus Christ!"

The speaker held that upon at least two considerations the Christian—no matter what the other man does—must renounce war outright and have nothing to do with it. "War as an institution has reached a place in modern affairs where it is absolutely beyond reform or humanization, for one thing. For another thing, it is diametrically at variance with the Way of life that Jesus chose." Quoting texts either for or against war does not get to the bottom of the matter, Mr. Grady held. It must be seen, rather, that as Jesus confronted the terrific alternative of either being true to the will of God or of using the world's method of meetings armed force with armed force. "And so he resisted evil with evil, for He had insight enough to know that the path of long-suffering, sacrificial love was the only path that would ever bring the world to its senses, though it led Him to His cross—in that decision," concluded Mr. Grady, "lies the principle of action for the Christian war resister."

In his evening sermon on "The Christian's Contribution to World Peace," Mr. Grady listed several definite means people could use to further peace plans, such as affiliation with national and international peace groups, purchase of Peace Bonds now rather than War Bonds when it's too late, financial contributions to such causes as World Peaceways, investigation of Congressional votes on vital issues affecting war and peace, political organizations along precinct lines, and subscriptions to authentic peace journals, among other things.

HOW A WOMAN'S NERVOUSNESS WAS HELPED BY CARDUI

"Shortly before the birth of my youngest child I was very nervous and run-down in every way," writes Mrs. Farnell Tisdale, of South Bloomingville, Ohio. I have built back my weight and today I am strong and healthy mother."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)

Coan Says State To Get Its Share Of WPA Funds

No Reduction Made In Allotments, Administrator Says

ALLOCATION IS ONLY CHANGE

WPA Program Set Up On a Five Months Basis Instead of 12 Months Period

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh Nov. 11.—Those who are getting all hot and bothered at the recent reports from Washington to the effect that the WPA allotment for North Carolina has been reduced again are getting all worked up over nothing, since there has been no actual reduction in the original allotment of $8,600,000 announced some weeks ago, Works Progress Administrator George W. Coan, Jr., said today.

He also pointed out that the reason the expected allotment of about $11,000,000 was reduced to only $8,600,000 was because of the decision in Washington set up the WPA program on a five months basis instead of a 12 months basis, as had originally been planned. "The only thing that has happened recently is that out of the $8,600,000 we are counting on, approximately $600,000 has been transferred to the Resettlement Administration, leaving the WPA only about $8,000,000. But it will be all spent here in the state, so that it really does not make any difference whether it is spent by the WPA or the Resettlement Administration.

While Coan admitted he had no idea what Administrator Hopkins intended to do after the present 5 months program has been completed, he did express the belief that the President and Hopkins will decide some method of providing work for those who still need it and who have not yet been able to find work with private industry.

"I am confident that by April, when the present program is expected to be completed, the unemployment load will be much lighter than it is now and that we can take care of those who still need employment with a much smaller program," Coan said. "But what that program will be, no one knows yet. In the meantime, our job is to put our quota of 34,000 persons to work right now and keep them at work until April—and that is what we are doing now. We already have approximately 20,000 people at work on WPA projects and I am still confident that within another two weeks and probably by no later than November 20, we will have our full quota of 34,000 people at work. And we will be able to keep that many at work until April 1."

Until the last week or so, there has been considerable difficulty in getting those notified to report for WPA work and in many cases only a small portion of those offered jobs have showed up for them. One reason for this is believed to be the fact that a good many relief projects are still in progress, since direct relief has not yet been stopped by the ERA in the state. But as soon as the ERA is closed up and all relief cases cut off, the WPA will not have any trouble in getting sufficient labor to carry on its projects, Coan believes.

"I am as confident as I can be that North Carolina is not being discriminated against and that this state is going to receive all the WPA money it actually needs to take care of the relief cases and unemployed, especially through the winter months," Coan said. "But it is true that the relief needs are not as great in the southern states and especially in North Carolina as they are in many of the other states. It is also true that the projects for all the states are being approved on the basis of need as reflected in the relief loads in the various states. Consequently there is nothing surprising about the fact that the allotments for the states which show less need are being reduced while those with very heavy relief loads are being increased."

Some think it rather peculiar that while the relief load in the state is in excess of 50,000 cases, that the WPA quota has been fixed at only 34,000 cases or persons. But Coan pointed out the difference between 34,000 and 50,000 is expected to be absorbed by the Resettlement Administration, the Soil Erosion Service, reforestation work, the CCC camps and the transient camps. As a result, there is every indication to believe that sufficient work will be provided for all those who really need it, and certainly for all who want it.

FUNDS COMING FOR N. C. COAST

Expenditure of $800,000 to Coastline Expected Soon

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 11.—Expenditure of some $800,000 in federal relief funds for sand fixation along a strip of North Carolina coast extending for almost 200 miles, which is indicated may be started shortly, is a project of vast importance to the entire section and to the State.

This proposal which was made to the WPA some months ago, but which lay dormant until a recent trip to Washington by R. Bruce Elderidge, director of the Department of Conservation and Development, Herbert M. Bonner, secretary to Congressman Linsey Warren, and J. B. Moore, head of the transient division of the WPA, needs surmount only one final step—the approval of the comptroller general—before being assured.

The program involves the setting of some 1,500 transient laborers to work on measures designed to arrest the movement of barrier dunes that narrow strip of barrier dunes on the North Carolina coast. These workers would be housed in about eight camps scattered from Currituck County to Cape Lookout in Carteret County, each unit consisting of about 200 men.

Because of the steady erosion caused by the winds and tides, engineers have voiced the fear that this narrow strip of "banks" may be eliminated unless steps are taken to halt the shifting of the sands and to anchor the runways with a cloak of vegetation. Should the "banks" be worn away, experts are concerned with the consequences to the mainland of the State which would be derived of the protection of this outer fringe of land.

The shifting sands have been a source of extensive destruction to the fisheries of the State, it is pointed out, particularly to the shellfish grounds. Huge quantities of sand poured over sound oyster grounds, especially by storms, have destroyed as much as 70 percent of oyster beds adjacent to the "banks" according to observers.

Another service to be obtained through the control of shifting sands, conservation officials say, is the protection of migratory waterfowl feeding grounds. Stabilization of inlets is still another anticipated result of the fixation of drifting. The matter of preserving inlets as a protection to the commercial fisheries has long been a problem of considerable import to the coastal region.

Following the fixation of the shifting sand on the "banks" conservation officials hope to begin a large-scale program of reforestation to return this area to timber production from which it was withdrawn following clean cutting generations ago and the subsequent destruction of remaining forest growth by heavy grazing.

their craft collapsed. "It will take about three hours to get down," Capt. Stevens said by radio. "We are going to try to come down very slowly."

The balloon was then over the vicinity of Valentine, Neb. It had traveled about 150 miles southeast of the point from which they took off at sun rise.

Rapid City, S. D.—Nov. 11.—(AP)—Explorer II, the world's largest balloon took off at 7 a. m. (Mountain Standard Time), today on its long-awaited journey into the stratosphere for scientific exploitation.

Culminating a six-weeks' wait for perfect weather the craft rose successfully from the rock-walled natural bowl, 11 miles southwest of here about two hours, behind the scheduled ascent.

Rising approximately 600 feet a minute the bag quickly cleared the 300-foot rock wall and then moved over the hill a trifle south and east.

Capt. Orvil A. Anderson, pilot, dumped several bags of ballast when it appeared the balloon might come too near the trees on the rim of the bowl, but the bag successfully cleared the obstacles.

Capt. Anderson, who was accompanied by Capt. Albert W. Stevens, commander and scientific observer, expected to land about 3:45 p. m. mountain standard time.

It will be preceded one day by the annual session of the Baptist Pastor's Conference of the state, which holds its first session in the same church, meeting Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and adjourning Tuesday noon to make ready for the convention proper.

ANOTHER CAROLINA TRUMP IN ROSE BOWL BID

One minute after the game started, Don Jackson (arrow), Carolina triple-threat star, started out on this 55-yard run that netted the first touchdown over Virginia Military Institute. These two black-shirted tacklers, right on him, were unable to halt Jackson as he led the Tar Heels to a 55 to 0 victory at Chapel Hill. Remaining the South's only unbeaten and united major eleven, North Carolina advanced another step towards a possible Rose Bowl invitation. (Associated Press Photo)

May Publish Names Those Having License Revoked

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 11.—The names of all automobile drivers whose licenses are either suspended or revoked may be turned over each day to the newspapers and press services, it was intimated today in the Department of Revenue.

The lists of all these drivers whose licenses are suspended or revoked will, of course, be public records and hence open to all who want to see them, including the newspapers. But the department has been asked by at least one news service to issue a daily release containing the name, address and violation of every persons whose driving permit is either suspended or revoked.

So far, the driving permit of only one driver has been revoked—this one for drunken driving. But from now on the number is expected to increase daily.

The new drivers' license law makes it mandatory for the department to suspend the license of any person convicted of drunken driving for one year. If during that period this person is caught driving a car, he will be subject to a jail sentence up to six months and a fine not to exceed $500, while his license will be automatically revoked for another year.

Whether "pitiless publicity" will be turned upon those who lose their drivers' licenses will depend largely upon the decision of Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell, although newshawks will have the privilege of examining the records and publishing the names they find.

Both Arthur Pulk, director of the Highway Safety Division and Captain Charles D. Farmer, commander of the State Highway Patrol, are in favor of giving the fullest publicity to those whose licenses are suspended or revoked, especially in cases of drunken driving and other types of reckless driving. They believe it will serve as a powerful deterrent to drunken and reckless driving.

Carolina during the year. The Baptist is the largest denomination in the state having 2,400 churches and nearly half a million communicants, with another half-million constituency, these being well distributed over every one of North Carolina's 100 counties.

It has been 15 years since this organization met in Asheville. Last years session was held at New Bern at this same time, M. A. Hugins, Raleigh, reports the State Mission account is out of the red and that every conventional agency is living within its income. It looks as though this will be the best convention since the year 1920.

Important speakers will be on the program among whom are Dr. Charles E. Maddry, secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, Richmond, Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Atlanta; Dr. Mallard A. Jenkins, Abilene, Tex., and Dr. T. L. Holcombe, executive secretary of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Zeno Ward, Shelby Pastor, is president of the convention.

Plans are under way to establish a summer art colony at Asheville, N. C.

Frazier-Lemke Act Is Branded Invalid By Federal Jurist

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage act as amended at the last congress to meet objections raised by the supreme court or the United States in declaring the original law unconstitutional, was itself branded unconstitutional in an opinion handed down in the Federal court of the southeast district of Virginia here today by Judge John Paul.

The decision was delivered in a case in which John Clayton, Mary Elizabeth Sherman and James Strother Sherman adjudicated in bankruptcy sought to retain their apple orchard property in Frederick county, Va., under provision of the act.

The case was brought by creditors of the Shermans including Senator Harry Flood Byrd, acting as guardian for the estate of the late Hal Flood, Virginia congressman; farmers and Merchants National Bank and Trust Company of Winchester, Va., and Matthew W. Cooper of Winchester.

NEW INDUSTRY IN THIS STATE

Cheese Important Commodity In North Carolina Now

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 11.—The cheese industry is becoming increasingly important in North Carolina and the milk and cream which farmers are selling to the various cheese factories is helping to materially increase their cash income, it was pointed out here today by A. H. Kerr, chief of the dairying division of the State Department of Agriculture, in connection with the observance of National Cheese Week, beginning today and extending through November 16.

During the past year the farmers of the state received $43,250 from the sale of milk to cheese factories, Kerr pointed out. There are five cheese factories in the state and these have been paying the farmers a premium of eight cents above the butterfat market prices for their whole milk. Most of these cheese plants and creameries are located in Wilkes, Ashe and Watauga counties, in the center of the principal livestock section of the state.

"North Carolina could produce a much larger portion of the cheese consumed in the state, however, if the farmers would only become more interested in dairying and milk production," Kerr said. "But so far, most of the farmers who have dairy herds are more interested in marketing the milk their herds produce direct to the public rather than to cheese plants. The farmers who do sell their whole milk to cheese plants, however, sell it in large quantities and do not have to bother with bottling it and with making house-to-house deliveries every day or 14 days a day and hence do not have such a heavy overhead as the dairymen."

The farmers of the state are gradually coming to realize the importance of milk as a cash crop the year round and are hence paying more attention to it, Kerr said. The ready market for whole milk offered by the cheese industry is making

JAPANESE AND RUSSIANS CLASH ON BORDER

A bloody border clash, in which Soviet guards and a number of Japanese-Manchoukouan soldiers met death, threatens to give rise to serious international complications. From Moscow came a bitter protest to the Tokyo government. These two Russian soldiers patrolling the border in a pneumatic boat are typical of the guards who exchanged shots with the Japanese. The map below shows the location of the fight which took place along the Siberian-Manchoukouan line near the frontier town of Godekovo. (Associated Press Photos) serially adding to the interest in livestock and dairying and especially the development of better dairy herds, he believed.

During the first four months of 1935, Iowa was first in livestock income, followed by Illinois, Wisconsin and California.
