SNOWFALL IS BIGGEST IN MANY YEARS

Greenville Is Assured Of A "White Christmas"

HEAVIEST SINCE MARCH OF 1927

Weather Officials Estimate Snow of Sunday at 5.34 Inches Deep

Greenville was assured of a white Christmas, the first since 1918, snow having fallen throughout much of Sunday, and sleet also having fallen on the grounds more than a week.

The official weather bureau reported that five and three-quarters of the white precipitation fell, the heaviest fall since March, 1927, when approximately 18 inches fell.

The snow followed a biting, dry cold through Saturday, when the temperature dipped to 16 degrees. The lowest for the 24 hours ending at eight o'clock this morning 18 degrees, and the maximum 28. At eight o'clock the mercury stood at 21 degrees.

Children throughout the city evidenced their pleasure at the white holidays by getting out their sleds and playing in the snow. Throughout Sunday afternoon and Monday, hundreds of children took to the snow. And they were not alone in enjoying the fall, many grown people were seen out playing with the kids.

Generally, however, most people clung by their firesides and it was feared the heavy snow would have an ill effect on the final two shopping days before Christmas day.

Starting work at two o'clock this morning, the street and sanitation departments had much of the snow removed from the sidewalks in the business section by the noon hour.

Efforts were made to wash the snow from the streets with a big hose from the fire department, but this was not successful and the water froze. Workers of the street and sanitary department then went to work with shovels and trucks.

Mechlenburg Man Seeking To Stay Start Of Sentence

Dr. A. W. Whitley Appeals For More Time to Make Collections and Provide for Family

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Dec. 23.—Dr. A. W. Whitley of Mint Hill, Mecklenburg county, who has lost his fight for clemency and must serve his three to five years for receiving stolen goods in Cabarrus county, is making his epistolary appeal to the parole office for more time in which to make collection and fix up his family while he is away.

Dr. Whitley's tragic mix-up with the law grew out of collecting which allowed him to take stolen goods on account. The jury chose to believe the woman who stole the goods and sold them. She said the physician knew who she was and how she made her living. He accepted in all something near $200 in these stolen liens. His own account with her was $56. He traded that and more then bartered for his tenants. In the end he was thrown because he did too fine a job of collecting.

He seeks some stay of the sentence until he can gather some of the money now on his books. He says there is $100,000 of it, a tribute to his immense industry and his wide practice. The community in which he lives sent up citizens who declare that they will not feel so secure with the threat of pulmonary diseases such as pneumonia, coming as incidents to cold weather. The doctor has 12 children, all of them minors, may be one or two excepted. The parole office is verily upset about him, but finds no legal justification for interfering with the sentence which members of the jury would like to see mitigated.

Unless there is a new order the doctor will report near the first of the year and go on a long sentence which Judge Hoyle Sink is unwilling to see modified in the slightest way. Meanwhile the $100,000 seems to vanish.

WINTER HAND GRIPS NATION

As the nation shivered in one of the coldest waves of the year, this icy fresco was painted at Webster City, Iowa. The temperature was nine degrees below zero when a $50,000 fire swept through a half block of business buildings. Streams of water that cold-stricken firemen poured on the flames froze into a coating of ice over the ruins. (Associated Press Photo).

Colonel and Wife and Son Sail For England

REPORTS SAY THEY'LL STAY

New York Times Says More Kidnaping Threats Cause Family to Leave States

New York, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh and their son Jon have sailed for Europe, his friends and business associates disclosed today, giving rise to contradicted speculation on whether they will make their home in England.

The New York Times said in a copyright story that the famous aviator and his family would establish a permanent residence in England because of repeated kidnap threats against his son Jon. Business associates of Colonel Lindbergh in Pan-America Airways confirmed his departure for Europe, but said his connection with the line as research head was unchanged.

The Times said that the kidnap threats against Jon have increased in number and virulence recently. The only passenger on the ship, American Importer, the Times said the Lindberghs quit the United States for England because of their belief "the English have greater regard for law and order in their own land than the people of any other nation on earth."

At Englewood, N. J. home of Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Morrow, a close friend of the family insisted the family had gone away merely for a Christmas holiday trip.

FRIEND OF FAMILY SAYS HOFFMAN CAUSE

Englewood, Dec. 23.—(AP)—A close friend of Colonel Lindbergh said today the famous flier had gone abroad to establish a residence in England and declared the act of Governor G. H. Hoffman in the Hauptmann case had influenced the Colonel in this decision. The friend said he had talked with Colonel Lindbergh recently and the aviator told him he felt he was able to cope with the crime in the United States and with the question of publicity.

He expressed himself, however, the friend, as greatly dissatisfied with the governor's activities in the Hauptmann case in the last few months.

Lindbergh had reached his decision to establish a residence abroad at the time of this conversation, the friend said.

Manning of Greenville; two brothers, B. F. Manning of Kinross, and Ivan Manning of Ayden; also five grandchildren.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

FANTASY. Dr. F. E. Townsend confesses privately that his scheme for financing $200 a month old age pensioners founders on the facts. He confided his doubts in a heart-to-heart talk with a Senator who sympathizes with the generous idea—he is 70-odd himself—but demands to be shown.

Taking the boon year of 1929, the Senator pointed out that 71 per cent of the wage earners received less than $2,500 a year, which was not princely pay in view of prevailing high prices. It barely provided necessities for large families.

Under the Townsend transaction tax he estimates that every worker in this class would have to contribute at least $300 a year, possibly more. Inflated prices would wipe

SUPPOSED HIDEOUT OF MILNE'S KIDNAPERS

Special squads of G-Men fished out this deserted, tumbledown farmhouse in the woodlands of Bucks county, Pennsylvania, after it yielded evidence that indicated it was used as a hideout by the kidnapers of Coleb Milne IV. The building is about three miles from the spot where the young New York actor and writer, trussed and drugged, was dumped beside the road, by four kidnapers who held him captive four days. FOURTEEN DIE IN BUS WRECK

Loaded Bus Plunges Through Open Draw Bridge

Hopewell, Va., Dec. 23.—(AP)—An inquest was ordered for Thursday into the death of 14 persons who lost their lives in the plunge of a bus through an open draw bridge into the Appomattox river yesterday.

A sixth body meanwhile was tentatively identified as Mrs. T. H. Fairfax of Superior, Wis. Eight other bodies removed from the bus after it was raised from 30 feet of water awaited identification.

Six of those who died in the river were identified as Virginians and North Carolinians.

Mayor D. L. Elder and Commonwealth attorney John Goodman agreed this morning that the inquest would be a mere "formality" in the full investigation as to why the Atlantic Greyhound bus smashed through a safety warning and into the draw which had been opened for a tug and barge.

"All we can do is to say there are dead, sign the death certificate and say it was an accident," Mayor Elder declared.

The identified were named as follows: Mrs. Anne W. Duncan, Pittboro, N. C.; L. G. A'ford, 38 Five Points N. C.; Mrs. J. W. Masson, Hopewell, Va.; John B. Belch, Hopewell, Mrs. Ruby Matthews of Richmond.

HENDERSON HAS READING OF ZERO

Snow Extends From Canadian Border and Spreads Over North-Central States

(By The Associated Press)

Temperatures dropped to new lows for the winter today as most of the Carolinas was blanketed in snow, while the forecast was for continued cold and possibly additional snow tonight.

The temperature reading at Henderson this morning was zero and at Greensboro it was only one degree above. Other readings include Asheville and Raleigh, 10 degrees. Charlotte 16, Wilmington 22.

Snow fall was heaviest east of a line roughly between Columbia and Raleigh. At both those cities it was four inches. For Columbia it was the heaviest in the past decade.

At Charlotte it was two inches and Asheville had only half an inch.

The weather bureau at Charlotte said there was little likelihood of a thaw before tomorrow afternoon at the earliest assuring a "White Christmas" for the section which received the snow.

BITTER COLD AND SNOW REPORTED OVER NATION Chicago, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Bitter cold and snow visited most of the nation today.

More than a score of deaths were attributed to the weather. Almost 100 persons were killed in week-end traffic accidents, many of which were charged against hazardous climatic conditions.

The snow extended from the Canadian border and spread its mantle of white across the northern and central tiers of states with tringes dropping south in Alabama, the Carolinas, Virginia and Georgia. The far west states, however, reported mostly clear weather and normal temperatures.

Alabama reported the heaviest snowfall since 1914 with a depth of one and one-half inches.

Washington, D. C. had its first snow of the season Sunday and the temperature hovered around 29 degrees. Widespread fog impeded airplane and motor traffic in Arizona.

SOLID FRONT OF ALL COUNTRIES BEING SOUGHT

Seek Precaution Against Italian Agression

ANTHONY EDEN TAKES CONTROL

First Duty May Be to Form Policy for Armed Resistance in Case of Attack

(By Associated Press)

Efforts toward development of a "solid military front" against possible Italian aggression in the Mediterranean were reported successful in Europe today.

From London came word that the British and French general staffs have concluded mutual support by the armies and navies of Great Britain and France in case of an Italian attack.

The negotiations were reported opened in Paris among Premier Laval of France, and Turkey and Greece with the same end in mind.

Premier Laval was said to have told Italian ambassadors that he would offer no peace terms to Premier Mussolini.

As for the active military angle the Italian government stated its forces in Northern Ethiopia had beaten off an attack of 5,000 Ethiopian warriors.

Anthony Eden, the "white knight of the League of Nations" assumed control of Britain's foreign policy today with a mandate to suppress the Italo-Ethiopian war by outside pressure.

Italy was both apprehensive and bitter over his appointment as British foreign minister.

Informed sources said Eden's first duty would be to formulate in detail the British policy for armed resistance in the event Italy attacked any League state because of sanctions seige.

The appointment, informed sources said, ended any doubt of Britain's intentions of turning to Geneva again after the fiasco of the Franco-British plan for peace, killed last week for enforcement of sanctions.

Significance was attached to the news from Paris that the French fleet has been ordered to leave Brest next month to cruise in East African waters. This would indicate that powerful units of the French navy would be carefully manned and equipped within easy reach of the Mediterranean.

Wrecks Reported Due to Highways Being Slippery

Two Williamstons People in Accident on Bethel Highway at Intersection Pictolous Road

While numerous wrecks were reported in and around Greenville over the week-end, and especially last night and today, due to the snow, they resulted only in minor injuries and only one major accident was reported.

Highway patrol headquarters here reported that Bruce Evans of near Chicod entered the Bethel highway from the Pictolous road and struck a car owned and driven by Abner Brown, injuring the driver and a passenger, Miss Iris Hooker, both of Williamston. The wreck occurred Sunday.

Miss Hooker's knee was bruised and she suffered shocks, while Brown's left ear was lacerated.

Evans has been charged with reckless driving. Patrolmen quoted him as saying that he was not familiar with the road he was traveling and did not know that it ran into the main highway, and when he did find the road came in to the main one, he was unable to stop on account of the slippery snow.

Local Banks Plan Holiday Schedule

The Bank of Greenville will follow their usual custom of observing Christmas Day and the day following and will be closed all day Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Officials of the organizations have announced that their respective institutions will open for two hours Tuesday night in order to accommodate their customers. The institutions will re-open tomorrow night at seven o'clock and remain open until nine o'clock.

After a paper wad barrage spoiled a municipal band concert, city and band officials drew up a ruling requiring Salina, Kas. youngsters to be accompanied by adults at concerts.

SANTA and the IRON QUEEN

BY SIGRID ARNE

SYNOPSIS: By the aid of a magic bee and a beetle, Santa is relieved of troubles he had with a clock, made by the Iron Queen, which cut the hours in half. The Queen has been held prisoner while she attempted to carve some singing spoons.

Chapter VIII

THE IRON QUEEN'S MUSIC

As the elves and the little witch danced in glee outside the toyshop all the dolls and soldiers and toy animals tumbled out to join them. Suddenly a soft dance melody began to accompany their dancing.

"Where can that music come from?" asked Santa.

Then the music stopped as quickly as it began, and the Iron Queen came walking out of her guard house.

"That was my music," she said smiling. "Come and see what I've done."

"And he may have all these singing spoons for gifts," said the Iron Queen.

"No," said Santa. "You must take them home. It takes a little touch of magic to play them, and you seem to have learned it. Maybe if you take them home your son will win the princess in the next kingdom."

"That's kind," said the Iron Queen. "I'm sure it will help because the princess likes music and dancing. Now I must leave you a gift. You may have the silver dragon."

"Goodie, goodie, goodie," shouted a pack of little elves who had been watching the scene with big, round eyes.

"What's so 'goodie'?" asked the elves laughing. "We will make you a surprise."

Tomorrow—Surprise for Santa

MOVE TO CURB FOREST BLAZES

Of 120 Outlook Posts Needed, 70 In Operation

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Dec. 23—Of approximately 120 forest fire observation posts required to assure the immediate discovery of a conflagration in any of the woodlands of North Carolina, more than half, or 70 look-out points, have been established, W. C. McCormick, assistant State forester in charge of fire control said today.

Sixty-three of these points are steel shafts with enclosed cabins at the top for the accommodation of an observer. These towers range from approximately 30 feet to around 100 feet in height depending upon location and the necessity for height for unobstructed vision. Four tall buildings are wooden towers, one municipal water tank and a lock-up; houses are also used for discovering forest fires.

All of these points of vantage are connected by telephone with residence wardens stationed at intervals around the towers. Some 600 miles of state-owned telephone lines have been constructed to connect the observers with the fire-fighters.

Each of the towers is being established as a center for fire fighting activities. At 35 of these observation posts, houses and store-rooms for wardens and the storage of trucks and equipment have been constructed. Specially trained crews of fire fighters trained in the technique of suppressing flames are also stationed at some of the towers.

The largest area of forest lands ever to have such service available is under protection of an organized fire fighting force. Fifty-five counties have appropriated funds under a voluntary cooperative plan with the Department of Conservation and Development. Approximately 15,000,000 of the more than 20,000,000 acres of forest land has organized forest fire protection at this time.

In addition to furnishing funds on a 50-50 basis with the counties for the general protection of forest lands, the state also cooperates with individual timber land owners who have large blocks of forested lands which they wish given more intensive protection. About 400,000 acres received such protection.

"CANADIAN CLUB" IS THE "BEST FRIEND" SORT OF GIFT

The man or woman who gives you HIRAM WALKER'S "Canadian Club" for Christmas can be classified as a good, dependable friend whose judgment can be relied on. "Canadian Club" Straight Whiskey is soft and light of body, with that distinctly clear, smooth flavor that has delighted the tastes of folks up and down the world. Bottled in Bond in Canada at the age of 6 years.

It's a HIGHBALL Whiskey

YOU DON'T HAVE TO HIDE "TEN HIGH" IN A COCKTAIL!

The real test of a fine whiskey is in a highball or straight. HIRAM WALKER'S Ten High Straight Whiskey is definitely a highball whiskey—a smooth, tasty straight whiskey which needs no "muffling" with friendly cocktail flavorings. Of course, that makes it so much the better as the chassis of a cocktail. And look at the price!

LOOK FOR THE TWINS

Twin seals designate the presence of the finest whiskey at the lowest price that any distiller can produce. HIRAM WALKER'S Twin Seal label means a whiskey double-smooth, doubly-delicious, but priced at half what other whiskeys in its class cost.

SOMETHING NEW ABOUT GIN

It's no easy matter to control the highly variable flavors of juniper berries, sweet orange peel, coriander seed and other things that play a part in gin distilling. That's why sometimes your cocktails just hit the spot while others, mixed to the same recipe with the same brand of gin, taste different. After years of trying, though, we found ways and means to control scientifically the flavor and smoothness of HIRAM WALKER'S Distilled London Dry Gin. It is distilled from grain and is always the same. Stick to it and to your favorite recipes—and your cocktails will always click.

At no time have we ever seen a more apparent desire on the part of our people to do some real good for the needy of the community
than at this Christmas season.
The response to published appeals for the needy families has been most generous and on every hand we find people who are getting real enjoyment out of extending aid to others.
Through the generosity of our people there are a lot of families going to be more comfortable and happier Christmas than they had anticipated and this should bring greater happiness to those who have had a hand
in helping them.

The city street department is to be congratulated upon the fine job it did this morning in clearing up the snow in the business section.
While it is the responsibility of the business houses to clean their own sidewalks,
the street department voluntarily took over the job about two o'clock this morning and by the time the shoppers reached the business section
most of the sidewalks were cleared and the city trucks were hauling the snow away.

The disclosure popped out at a conference between federal prosecutors and agents and their superiors at the capital. It was the epidemic of squabbles which led to the round robin exchange of views. The field reports reported that in almost every instance the defense advances the theory that, with so much money being thrown around, it didn't matter much if a few greenbacks stuck in somebody's fingers. Though argued subtly and suggestively, the defense contention has been "What
of it?"

Another explanation of not-guilty verdicts seems to be growing resentment against federal domination and interference. The local boy's counsel rarely fails to refer in biting tones to "outside" lawyers and "outside" investigators.

COSTLY: You have to be in pol-

for almost three years. It has hand-cities, corporations, individuals. It has placed hundreds of thousands on the payroll. It should have laid discharge the 1932 debt or to pay

Chapter 25
"IT CAME TAILS"

A FLIP OF THE COIN! The actions of Terry Willett's life had always been dictated by impulse, and what was impulse but a flip of the coin in the mind?

Reaction, which had been chasing him a long time, nearly caught him as he stood outside the West man station with the taxi waiting. Reaction! when a man rests on his oars a moment to get his bearings before he bends to them again.

Tommy Speede had leaned over his shoulder and sobbed: "I can't beat this game and you can't either. You'll see."

Speede! a weaking, a failure, going out soaked with kava and leaving a native wife and a half-breed brat. "Beautiful women, Terry. slim-waisted and laughing and fresh—" the cry to a life left behind.

"I can't beat this game and you can't either!"

Women! Strange beings, women! Seemed to get into a man's life made it more complete. Even his father had lived only half a life after Vic had traded his life for Terry's birth. And so Terry had stopped for a moment, wondered, and flipped a coin. Puff Harrington or the Paiva.

And when the taxi had dropped him at Union Station he'd simply shrugged.

"It came tails, boss. Satisfied?"

HE WAS in the Tyndall Construction and Engineering Company offices at noon the next day. It was a widespread, internationally-known company and occupied nearly a whole floor of a New York skyscraper. Famous works of engineering were perpetuated in plaster models and long framed pictures
scattered throughout the offices.

Terry Willett, being Terry Willett, asked to see Gregory Tyndall himself. He'd heard his father speak of him. And he wouldn't see anybody else. They finally sent in his name.

Surprisingly, Tyndall saw him right away. For all the power that emanated through the channels he controlled, his face with its youthful smile and intent blue eyes was kindly.

"So you're Terence Willett?" he smiled, shaking hands. "You and your father did some work for us down at Juarez. How is your father?
I knew him well a long time ago."

Willett told him in one short sentence how his father was. Tyndall didn't say anything for a moment.
Then he bent forward and switched a buzzer on the call-box and left orders not to disturb him. He snapped the buzzer back.

"Tell me about it, Terry."

"Fever."

"Fever." Tyndall shook his head slowly. "What an end for Laurie! He could have been tons here if he hadn't decided to free-lance and beat his way around the world."

"My father sat in this chair ahead of me and I was grounded for it from the time I could walk, but if Laurie hadn't stink had have beaten me out in spite of that. A great executive your father. I'm awfully sorry, son."

He looked at Willett intently. "Are you free-lancing too?"

"Yes," said Willett, "taking my jobs where I find them."

"How about taking a regular job
with me?"

"I've got a job. Under contract.
Revolution and — circumstances
knocked it in the head temporarily,
but I'm going back to see it through.
I'd like to borrow Corrigan."

"Corrigan? One of my engineers?"

"—oh, John Corrigan. So you need him."

"Like to have Bucky, but I don't want him to lose his job with you."

Tyndall repressed a smile.

"I don't think losing a job ever makes much difference to Corrigan.
What's on your mind, Terry?"

"Job on the Paiva River. It's a stinker and I need help."

"Corrigan will be glad to help you and anybody else you want—"

"That's all right, Corrigan and I will see it through. I'll return him to you maybe a little dented, but a few more dents won't hurt Bucky any."

He got up.

"Don't rush off, Terry."

Willett laughed.

"Funny. The governor said the same thing. Don't rush off. What else is there to do? I've had enough of this country already."

Tyndall arose and came around the corner of the desk. "Terry, I nominate some one who will satisfy Borah. Practically no one was disposed to consider the Idaho Senator seriously as a candidate—but nearly everyone agreed that his active approval of the nominee is an essential to success. The New Yorkers rates Vandenberg's chances highly—says he is the first choice of few but the second choice of a large number of leaders from all over the country.

RADICAL: New York banking circles are all agither about the Philadelphia Federal Reserve situation. They get wind of a prospective change in personnel that would be very depressing from the right wing standpoint.

The present governor of the Philadelphia Reserve Bank is G. W.
Norris (not to be confused with the Nebraska Senator). Mr. Norris is a conservative and on two or three occasions has been tactless enough to criticize New Deal policies in public or semi-public speeches. Insiders understand he has been tipped off that his services will no longer be required after March 1st.

Reports from reliable sources indicate that his probable successor will be Dr. Luther Harr—at present Pennsylvania state banking superintendent. Dr. Harr has decidedly unorthodox views about money and credit and is privately characterized in high financial quarters as a "dangerous radical." Some bankers go so far as to remark that they might as well name Father Coughlin and be done with it.

YOUTH: Appointment of 35-year old Edward Stettinius Jr., as chairman of the finance committee for U. S. Steel is an important step in the quiet campaign to revitalize the company. Stettinius thus becomes heir to the throne in one of the nation's biggest corporations.

For years U. S. Steel has been criticized by keen observers as "agging behind the times. Heavy stockholders have been trying to change that. They have quickly altered executive personnel and shifted plant activities to step up efficiency and put the organization on its toes. This has been accomplished with a maximum of diplomacy and a minimum of internal friction. Myron Taylor and Stettinius

The cause of the exciting Hopkins Ickes blowup lastsummer was the former's insistence that only money paid to relievers on the site of the job should count. He reduced that amount to $1,400 a year and lower.
He made no allowance for indirect benefits resulting from payments to workers engaged in a manufacturing, transporting and selling building materials, etc. That ruling crippled Ickes' PWA program. The two fought it out at Hyde Park and Hopkins won. Mr. Ickes almost resigned in disgust.

Now it develops that on August 29—before the Hopkins-Ickes bout
—the President waived this requirement in the case of Dr. Tugwell's projects for elimination of grade crossings. It was done secretly. It was based on the theory that public funds paid out to "labor behind the lines" furnished employment and purchasing power. Mr. Ickes appreciates the compliment—he has argued that all along—but Rex takes the bow.

BATTLE: Although House doors
have not yet swung open—senate chambermen are still giving the chamber its annual scrubbing—the Democrats are involved in a fierce,
off-stage clash over the leadership.
The White House may have to intervene before the session is a month off.

The three principals — Speaker
Byrnes, Majority Leader Bankhead, Rules Chairman O'Connor — deplore

the prospect but can't keep party partisans from quarreling. Although ill, Mr. Bankhead has been persuaded to take active charge by tale-bearers who whisper that enemies may try to oust him otherwise. It is doubtful if he can stand the strain and Mr. O'Connor may have to boss the gang without enjoying any real power. That situation opens the door to revolt and Republican circuses at the party's expense.

FAVORED: Rex Tugwell's rivals
for presidential favor have always suspected that he stood high at the White House. But they discovered only recently—and then by accident—how stratospheric his altitude

If you like American things like Christmas Eg-

The tendency of the industry has

More Licenses Revoked In Dry Counties Than Wet

Greensboro and High Point Jointly Had Thirty-three

PATROL IS AFTER DRUNK DRIVERS

Officers Feel Publication of Names Doing Much to Curb Intoxicated Motorists

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, Dec. 23.—Highway patrol raids upon the drunken drivers of North Carolina produced for the close of last week nearly 450 revocations of drivers' licenses and shifted the losers of driving permits without lessening the drunks themselves.

For instance, Greensboro and High Point produced jointly 33 of these drivers. High Point led with 19 and Greensboro had 14. Charlotte was in High Point's class. There were 227 of these drunks, transporters and hit-and-runners the actual number of inebriated drivers being 219. In the figures given out Sunday morning there were 226 whose licenses have been revoked. There were five hitters and runners, three liquor violators, one stealing an automobile and offense of allowing a drunk to drive somebody else's car.

Of the first 227 revocations announced 192 were in dry counties and 35 in wet. The wets were worse the latter portion of the week. They furnished 42 of these revocations, but interstate drunks were charged up to the wets. Several offenders were residents of other states. But they can't travel on North Carolina roads if they are identified.

It is notable that Greensboro, High Point and Charlotte do not pad the record this time. The per capita drinks will be small. Henderson, a wet city, got often into the revocations, but in no such improving array as the dry towns did the first of the week. Salisbury once wettest municipality in the United States, lost licenses on these returns. Shelby, soberest city in the state a few years ago, celebrated in old time style and lost some licenses. The western counties, irrespective of their boundaries, furnished the drinking drivers. Mt. Airy, who isn't far from Virginia, had more than its share. But Mt. Airy may have been drinking its own brandy, a concoction said by drinkers to be as good as anybody's in Virginia.

Two things stand out in these figures. The highway patrol is running in these drunken drivers. Patrol statistics on highway deaths do not disclose any startling proportions of drinking in these mishaps, but many accidents may be the indirect result of liquor. Certainly, with the roads full of drunken pilots there would be many times more danger of fatal accidents.

The first big attack of the patrol was on useless killings. It is too early to set up claims, but the doubled patrol and the many times multiplied activity of that organization must show in the reduced killings, the patrol feels. And every time a driver loses his license he advertises the fact. The readers take heed.

The patrol reports now almost exclusively drunken drivers, but there is just as vehement a campaign against careless and reckless drivers as against the drunks. Undoubtedly these reckless persons cause more killings than liquor does and they are very much harder to convict. The statutes do not define careless and reckless persons very pat. But liquor has the faculty of making testimony against itself.

The reckless driver gets another chance after his first offense and therefore has a double advantage over the drinking man. Still the patrol will have considerable discretion in making arrests. Two practicing physicians, one woman and a lawyer or two have lost their licenses. The professional man deprived of his car for a year finds making a living a very difficult thing.

The publication of the names of these men whose licenses have been revoked, the officers feel, is doing more good than the courts can do to make the highway travel less fatal.

Football Talent Will Report Here Coming Thursday

Thursday of this week the cream of North Carolina high school football talent will report to the two camps—Greenville in the East, and Appalachian State in the west—for drills in preparation for the Inaugural Tobacco Bowl game, to be held in Winston-Salem on New Year's Day.

Twenty-eight towns and cities will be represented in the total of around fifty-five boys. These boys and cities seem as much enthused over the game as are the participants, if not more so.

The officials have announced that the boys will not be subjected to any scrimmages, but will only undergo signal and routine drills. The boys from the west will have indoor practice sessions providing the weather is too bad for them to take the field. In that case the boys will be provided with gym suits and gym shoes and will take their workouts in the huge new Appalachian State gymnasium.

Kidd Brewer and his coaching staff, assisted by Coach Tom Cash of Mount Airy, Joby Hawn and Red Smith, Winston-Salem, and Bob Allen, of Charlotte, will put the boys through their paces.

The east under the direction of Doc Mathis, Eastern Carolina's head coach, will take their workouts outdoors if the weather permits. Mathis will also have a staff of the East's leading high school coaches assisting him with the work.

The boys are to have their first workout Thursday afternoon with two a day for the game, leaving for Winston-Salem on the morning of New Year's Day.

LIFE IN 1935

No matter in what section of United States John Smith resided in 1935, disasters great or small struck close to home. Planes crashed, killing a great humorist, a great pilot, a prominent senator. Ships went aground. Dust left a black path of destruction. Hurricanes lashed the coast. Earthquakes shook wide areas. And at every turn within the country's borders, auto crashes sent the death toll skyrocketing.

Sixth in a series of 12 articles
By HERBERT YAURAES
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Nature and man-made machines combined to make 1935 a year of disasters and violent deaths.

John Smith, wherever in America he lived, felt the fury of the elements—dust blizzards, earthquakes, hurricanes, floods and pounding seas.

He saw air crashes claim Will Rogers, Wiley Post, Senator Bronson Cutting—and perhaps Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith—car crashes claim Queen Astrid of the Belg-

ans, Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, Prince Alexis Mdivani.

Through late winter and spring, dry winds swept topsail from millions of midwestern acres, carrying it sometimes thousands of miles.

Start Erosion Fight
As weeks went by without rain, the dirt-laden winds blackened the atmosphere, poured dust into houses, paralyzed traffic, aggravated disease, resulted in untold crop damages.

But midwestern Farmer John Smith, digging away the dirt that had drifted over his fences, almost to the eaves of his barn, was undismayed. He stayed where he was, planned to combat erosion, lest a "great American desert" develop.

Later the earth again got John Smith's attention, this time by heaving. From Wisconsin and Illinois to the Atlantic and from Canada to Maryland, the east was heaved—but ever so slightly—early in 1935. At the same time, in Montana, was passing thru a much more severe shock. Another in a series of hundreds that began October 12, killed seven, and caused damage estimated at more than $3,000,000.

Disaster Grounded
Thrilling and spectacular was the wrecking of the steamship Dixie off the Florida coast, September 2. For two days hurricane-lashed waters prevented rescue work. The last of the 231 passengers was transferred September 5. No lives were lost.

The same hurricane devastated part of the Florida Keys, killed more than 400.

Other hurricanes roared across southern and eastern seas from August to October. Total storm deaths—more than 1,600; property damage—millions.

Mohawk Wrecked
One of the rescues thrilled John Smith, September 30, the cruising Rotterdam, with 450 passengers, went aground east of Kingston, Jamaica. Everybody rescued. On January 6, the steamship Havana crashed into a reef off the Bahamas. Everybody rescued; one died in lifeboats.

Eighteen days later came the year's major disaster—in American waters. At night, in low weather off the New Jersey coast, the liner Mohawk and the freighter Tallman collided. The Mohawk sank as ships and coast guard boats rushed to rescue. "Nice work," thought John Smith, as first reports indicated everybody saved; final check—45 lost.

Again the navy lost an airship. This year it was the Macon, wrecked off the California coast, February 12. Warships rescued all but two of the 83 aboard.

Fatal August
As no other month, August drove home the message of sudden death. On the first day, Prince Alexis Mdivani, Barbara Hulton's ex-husband, speeding over Spanish roads crashed, died. On the fifteenth, Will Rogers, actor-humorist, and Wiley Post, famed pilot, on an aerial vacation tour across Alaska, crashed, died. On the twenty-ninth, Queen Astrid, of the Belgians, motoring with the king in Switzerland, crashed, died. On the thirty-first Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, motoring with friends near Santa Fe, New Mexico, crashed, died.

Senator Bronson Cutting's death brought into the spotlight the crash of a transport plane in Missouri, May 6, fatal to five.

As the weeks slipped by, each adding to the total of highway accident, John Smith slowly became aware of a widespread, everyone agreed, had to be done—and chief emphasis was directed at John Smith, driver.

"Let's drink a Toast to Christmas... with MY OWN PRIVATE BLEND"

"Us old timers can't help feeling that good friends, good food and a 'nip' of mellow whiskey naturally go together at Christmas. That's why I've poured this glass of my Private Blend: I want you to try it. There are a lot of good whiskeys but I don't know another with 60 years of one man's experience behind it... not at the price anyway. The price? That's my Christmas present to you. But there's nothing low-priced about the taste of my own Private Blend. All I am doing is making a good-tasting whiskey you can afford. So it looks like a 'Merry Christmas' for me... and you, too, I hope."
