WHAT ABOUT OUR ROAD MONEY?

During the last session of the North Carolina General Assembly there was an effort put forth to have the State Highway Commission to refunds to various counties in the state funds that the counties had advanced to build roads that were taken over by the state system.

With nearly a year passing since the enactment of the law what we are wondering is if anything else is going to be done about it or is the governor going to let the matter die in the hands of an inactive commission, or without appointing any commission at all.

TROUBLE: Even Old Guardsmen who belittle Senator Borah's septuagenarian passion for the presidency shiver over its practical consequences in the home-town precincts.

What's happening is that the sulkers are becoming soldiers. Like Borah they used to sit in their tents on primary and election days. He is sharpening their resentment by agreeing with them. No matter what happens to his candidacy, he is mobilizing and arming the rebels.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Allaire West, proud, unattainable, has at last succumbed to her love for Terry Willett. She even has begged him not to return to his South American job, but to stay in New York with her.

Chapter 35 BREAKUP

"Oh, darling—" said Allaire. Her voice seemed to catch. "Oh, darling," she began again. "Don't you think I've thought of this? I'll marry you—if you want me to, only—"

"What?" said Fox. "Only what?" "Only, George darling, I don't think I'll ever get over that fighting engineer terror. I've tried to, heaven knows I have. But," there was a far-away look in her eyes, "somehow the note still rings."

He thought of that thin gold cigarette case with the vanity mirror set in platinum on the cover, and the detectives demanding to see the girl behind the door in Willett's hotel room. Maybe that ringing note would be stifled if Allaire knew about that.

Her pride had lowered its colors once, but this—Fox was suddenly convinced that if she knew about this, she would get over the memory of that striding son of the engineering camps. And she deserved to know. Her future and his were at stake. She couldn't go on like this.

He was silent so long that the girl looked at him anxiously. "Don't hate me, George. I couldn't stand it."

"Good Lord, Allaire, why should I hate you because you can't forget Terry Willett? But—"

"That's the second time you've said 'but.'"

"Did I?" said Fox. Well, I forgot what I was going to say. He smiled grimly. "It couldn't have been important."

They decided to drive back to Westlands and Allaire went to change from her riding clothes. Fox waited for her on the veranda.

Quite a few of the Show crowd adjourned to Westlands that afternoon, a tide of people eddying around tables on terrace and lawn, swirling through the house; backgammon and bridge going full blast, buffet tea and hors d'oeuvres served both on the lawn and in the taproom, cocktail being shaken up in a dozen places.

Fox was absorbed by a bevy of girls and departed with a half-hearted grin. Allaire looked after him a moment and then went into Ray's private study. Ray was conferring with Blythe, the majordomo of the household, on plans for the evening. He dismissed the butler as she came in.

"Come on, baby," he said, "get tidied up. You may have a tremendous board to preside over tonight."

"Ray," she said idly, "what would you say if I told you I was going away?"

"Going away? Where?" "South America."

He stared, astounded. "What the devil do you want to go there for? I thought George was taking up his duties in London. Has he been shifted back?"

"No, he's still London-bound."

"Then what—" He stopped and regarded her suspiciously. "Don't tell me you've called it no dice with him too?"

"We both called it no dice. Only decent thing to do."

"And when did this South American idea pop up?"

SHE shrugged. "It's been in my mind for a long time, only I couldn't quite bring myself to it before. But I've felt like a person with one arm ever since he left, oh, sort of lonely and uncertain and there's no use trying to kid myself any longer. I should have gone after him a long time ago, but nothing is going to stop me now."

"You're talking about Willett, of course?"

under this legislation.

Its sponsors minimize these results. They point out that Congress can act whenever temporary amendment or modification is necessary. Inside reason for these mandatory prohibitions lies in happenings since Congress went away four months ago—senatorial suspicion that Secretary Hull has played too closely with the League and the Hoare-Laval proposal to give half of Ethiopia to Italy.

ORIENT: While in Japan a few weeks ago a certain Senator had a seven-hour, heart-to-heart talk with a score of statesmen, educators, journalists and economists of that country. They discussed American-Japanese relations with the utmost frankness. No holds were barred.

The Senator has returned to his desk with a new understanding of problems affecting these two great powers. He learned: (1) From the emperor down to the peasants, the Japanese people oppose the invasion of China but the military are riding high; (2) The people will eventually—perhaps within a year—arise in protest against excessive taxes and force the war-makers out of office; (3) Japanese do not want war with the United States but they have been told that this country is preparing to fight; (4) Even our CCC camps have been represented as training centers for an army of oriental conquest.

The Senator found almost no resentment against our laws barring Japanese from becoming citizens. The sorest point—and one which the militarists have used effectively—was holding of American naval maneuvers within a few hundred miles of Japan's coastline last summer.

PRUNED: Financial insiders get word that FDR will have a good game try at proving that a balanced budget is in sight, that the currency is sound and that federal credit is impregnable. If he can convince the voters on these points the GOP's choicest thunder will fall flat.

On the budget side it's estimated that the Treasury should collect five and a half billion dollars from all sources for the fiscal year 1937. This includes payroll levies for social security. If recovery continues revenues may even reach six billion without additional taxes (unless a substitute for processing taxes is needed).

Experts figure that expenditures can probably be held close to six billion—half a billion for public works and three hundred million for the CCC. A little careful pruning would do it—and Messrs. Roosevelt and Morgenthau are evidently in earnest about playing the shears. Sinking fund requirements will add about half a billion more. The net result shapes to a 1937 deficit of a billion or less—which is practically a surplus compared to the last two years.

RESPONSE: Morris Cooke's challenge to private utilities to set up a hundred test areas for extension of rural service has a double motive. He's a genuine zealot about rural electrification and feels private enterprise can do the job quicker and more efficiently than the government. If they refuse he is then in a stronger position to justify federal expenditures for the purpose.

Hottest opposition to Cooke's program hasn't come from big holding company groups—but from municipally owned plants in small towns. They just can't visualize returns adequate to justify the investment he asks them to make.

Some of the big groups will respond to his challenge—but most of them will ignore it. One major holding company (not registered with the SEC) has already quadrupled its last year's appropriations for rural development.

GUNS: New York learns that a few lawmakers will take advantage of the flurry over Lindbergh's trip to England to offer sweeping resolutions to investigate crime. No reflective improvement in present methods is in sight.

"SO RED THE ROSE" BOASTS DIXIE CAST

Sons and daughters of Dixie dominated the cast of Paramount's romance, "So Red the Rose," a dramatization of Stark Young's novel of the Old South, which comes to the Pitt Theatre on Monday, Tuesday.

The star of the picture, Margaret Sullivan, was born in Virginia, and is a direct descendant of Robert E. Lee. Randolph Scott, Miss Sullivan's new leading man, was also born in Virginia and is a graduate of the University of North Carolina. Let's Go Jump Off A Roof. Catholic is a rarity. Proof of this is most conclusively given in a study of world suicides by Louis I. Dublin and Bessie Benzel, the former the statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and neither one a Catholic. This book, entitled "To Be or Not To Be," shows that the rate of suicides per 100,000 population is, in Protestant European countries, from 15 to 27, while in Catholic Italy it is only 9.8, and in Catholic Spain a mere 3.5. Ireland shows the lowest average of all, and it is enlightening to note that in the Protestant north the number of suicides per 100,000 population is twice as great as in the Catholic south. The Catholic Church has more and stricter laws than any other Christian group; yet unquestionably its people, as a whole, try with all sincerity to live up to these laws at the sacrifice of comfort, riches, and so-called earthly happiness. It is no fun to crawl from bed early on a cold, wet Sunday morning and trudge long blocks to Mass. It is no fun to hang on tenaciously to an oft-times miserable life, when self-destruction is so easy. Nevertheless, whether you want company for sleeping all Sunday morning, or a companion for jumping off a roof—well, don't as a Catholic! "Let's go jump off a roof! The bubbles of youth have burst. The years ahead promise trouble, worry, suffering. There is no God, no soul, no hereafter. So let's go jump off a roof!" "Let's go jump off a roof! There IS a God, but He is good—too good to make a Hell! This life is but a vale of tears and Heaven lies beyond. So come on then, I'm with you. Let's go jump off a roof!" "Let's go jump off a roof? Not I, my friend. Not I! My life is God's and He alone may take it. He put me here to know Him, love Him, serve Him; and I will serve by living on and bearing confidently whatever crosses He may send. Suicide? At best it is a coward's act. At worst the jump would take me far below the city street. Oh no,—I'll NOT jump off a roof!" God? What man who thinks can doubt He is Hell? What follower of Christ can question His Own words about that place reserved for the accursed? "Thou shalt not kill!" our God has said, and the Catholic Church has ever taught that the same Christian who takes his life breaks God's own law and so commits a damning sin. Suicide! It's all about us, yet 'midst the troubles of this age of ours, the self-destroying

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS REPORT

New Officers Installed at Meeting Last Night

J. C. Galloway was installed as president of the Greenville Kiwanis club at the regular meeting of the organization held last night, at which time annual reports were made and other officers were inducted into office.

Berry Bostic took over the duties of vice president and the following new directors began service: Robert M. Taylor, J. Frank Harrington, Rev. J. A. McIver, Charles W. Parsons and Frederick M. Stokes. Directors whose terms last another year are J. Howard Moyer, Ralph C. Deal and Joe M. Taft. David C. Moore will continue to serve as secretary-treasurer and Judge Dink James took over the duties of immediate past president.

Following the installation of officers, Secretary Moore rendered his report of the club's activities during the past year. Attention was called to many phases of work carried on and the outstanding programs held during the period.

It was also reported that the membership during the year had shown several changes, but the total remained about the same as at the beginning of the year.

The club supported various community drives in 1935 and worked with other civic organizations for the advancement and welfare of the city and county.

Delegations attended the International convention at San Antonio, Texas, the Divisional meeting at Wrightsville Beach, the District convention at Charleston, S. C., and officers-elect attended the Divisional training school at Kinston in December.

The club made donations to several community programs last year, including trees given to the city for planting on Fifth street alongside the swimming pool. It also aided the Little Theater Guild and the Greenville Choral Club. A quantity of Christmas toys were turned over to the Kings Daughters for distribution to children. Other miscellaneous contributions were made during the year by the organization.

A baseball club was sponsored by the club last spring which played a number of games with high schools throughout the county.

The club observed its annual Ladies' night in February. Teachers night in October and was host to the Seventh division clubs in April.

The installation ceremonies last night were presided over by Ralph C. Deal, a past president of the club. The attendance prize, given by Fred Stokes, was won by Frank Harrington. Club singing was led by Prof. H. A. McDougle.

President Galloway and Vice President Bostic made short talks and asked for full cooperation on the part of the membership in the New Year. After the regular meeting, directors held a short session.

CREDIT ASSO. MEETING SET

A large crowd of farmers is expected to attend the annual meeting of the Greenville Production Credit Association, serving the counties of Pitt and Greene, which will be held at Greenville in the Pitt County Court House January 11 at ten o'clock, according to J. C. Galloway, secretary.

At this meeting the annual reports of the officers will be made and two directors will be elected. One of the speakers will be Mr. Ernest Graham, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia.

Not only are all members invited and expected to be present at the meeting, Mr. Galloway said, but a most cordial invitation is also extended to all non-members who are interested in securing short-term credit for production purposes.

"Our Association is anxious that every farmer in our territory shall have the opportunity of knowing of the credit service which we have to offer," said Mr. Galloway, "and we also are anxious that they shall attend this annual meeting to see how the business of the association is conducted."

"We will have to complete reports of our year's work at the meeting and our members will be acquainted with all the details of our operation. It is the policy of our association to keep our members thoroughly posted."

"We feel proud of the record which we have made in the two years in which we have operated. Our business the second year showed a very substantial growth over the first year and we are anticipating another substantial increase next year as more and more farmers learn of the service we have to offer."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Rally stocks spurred one to two or more response in today's brief market session but mixed price movement spotted the rest of the list.

The President's message to congress was received calmly and brokers said it was a question as to inflation.

The rally of the car put the tape three minutes behind floor dealings and transfers approximately 1,600,000 shares. The close was irregular.

LESSONS IN LAW-MAKING

J. Cash for Uncle Sam. Uncle Sam provides funds for carrying on the work of the government in general appropriation bills which, by custom, originate in the house of representatives.

The heads of the various departments and agencies of the government prepare estimates on expenditures for the year and submit these estimates to the director of the bureau of the budget. He then prepares a budget for each of the government establishments.

The budget is submitted to the president and, after it is in a form which he approves he transmits it to congress.

Weeks before, various sub-committees of the house appropriations committee hold open hearings and hear the heads of the various departments and agencies submit estimates of their needs and reasons therefor.

The budget is for the guidance of congress and it is not obligatory upon either the house or senate to follow its suggestions. Frequently the budget estimates are increased or decreased by congress.

The appropriations committee of the house drafts bills providing necessary funds for operation of the government and they are acted upon by the house. The senate likewise has an appropriations committee which considers all the appropriation bills and may amend them in any way it sees fit.

The government operates all its business on a fiscal year starting on July 1 and ending on June 30, and the appropriations generally are for the fiscal year.
