Campaign of Defamation Financed By Slush Fund Is Predicted By Farley

Addresses National Democratic Committee Meet

SAYS HE IS SURE FINAL OUTCOME

Declares Opponents Will Make This The Bitterest and Dirtiest Campaign

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Democratic party leaders gathered today to select their convention after hearing President Roosevelt declare that "the fight goes on" against the "forces of privilege and greed."

The chief executive opened his formal campaign at the Jackson Day dinner last night with these words. But he tempered them with a conciliatory note toward business men, asserting most of them sought "no special advantage."

In an implied plea for support of persons of all "political affiliations" he said the 1936 issue will be "retention of popular government."

He made only brief mention of AAA's death offering no substitute, pending further study. The majority and minority opinions of the court, he said, will "affect the lives of Americans for years to come."

The only important business on the committee program today was the selection of a time and place for the convention party officials forecast a quiet session despite the presence of Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, critic of the New Deal.

Committee members hope today to receive word that this and 2,000 other dinners from coast to coast and even beyond had wiped out the party deficit of about $400,000 and cleared the way for raising a powerful campaign fund.

Following the same lines as President Roosevelt did in his Jackson Day dinner speech last night, Farley appealed for support from Republicans and independents.

"It will be a campaign of defamation on the side our adversaries, a simple effort to break down the faith of the people in a president under whose leadership the Democratic administration has lifted our nation out of the depths of despair to the broadway of hope and set it in the high road to renewed prosperity," Farley said.

"Let me tell you now that our opponents will make this the bitterest and certain the dirtiest struggle that any of us here can remember."

"I have not the slightest doubt of its outcome, but I feel it my duty to warn you that you will have to combat misrepresentations, outlandish lies and every form of foul whispering you can imagine."

Moreover, you must remember the opponents to the Roosevelt administration will be financed with the largest slush fund on record, contributed for the most part by those who have neither public consciousness nor private scruples."

Farley said the only issue of the campaign was whether President Roosevelt "has done well or ill by his country." The answer, he added is on the pages of every newspaper in the land where the nation's business is reported.

Angier Police Force, Composed of Oris Pollard and C. F. Deans, to Be Tried Later For Murder

Lillington, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Judge N. A. Sinclair today continued a special term, to be called within 30 to 60 days, the case of Oris M. Pollard and C. F. Deans, former Angier policemen charged with murder in connection with the death of December 27 of G. F. Collins, a farmer near Angier.

The continuation was granted on motion of the defense attorneys when the case was called in superior court this afternoon.

The lawyers contended they only entered the case Monday night and had not had sufficient time to prepare for trial.

Collins died suddenly at his home after he was allegedly brutally beaten the night of Christmas eve by Pollard who had arrested the farmer on a charge of being intoxicated.

Production Credit Asso. Meets Sat'day

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Greenville Production Credit Association will be held in the Court House at Greenville on Saturday morning, at ten-thirty o'clock.

J. C. Galloway, secretary of the Association, stated that the public was invited to attend the meeting and learn of the purpose of the Association and the progress it has made during its two-year existence.

Anyone interested in securing crop production loans is urged to attend and get first hand information as to the credit service the Association offers farmers.

Mr. Ernest Graham, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Columbia, S. C., will be the principal speaker. The public is invited to be present.

ITALIANS IN DOLO REGION LOSE GROUND

Informed Sources Say Fascist Advance Is Repulsed

100,000 TROOPS IN ENGAGEMENT

Also Reported Heavy Rains Prompt Withdrawal of Italian Troops on Front

(By The Associated Press) Ethiopia's government informed Addis Ababa sources today, has reports from its Southern high command that a large scale Italian advance on the Dolo region has been repulsed after an engagement involving more than 100,000 troops.

Reported dispatches from Ras Desta Dempu, Emperor Haile Selassie's son-in-law who commands the southern armies, stated that 43,000 Italians and Somalis who attempted to invade the great African rift valley, west of Dolo, had been defeated, by 60,000 Ethiopians.

Ethiopia also announced officially that heavy rains in the mountainous Tembien regions of the northern battle front had prompted withdrawal of invading fascist troops.

The evacuation, described as "preemptive," augments previous reports that Italians had abandoned a post they had held since the capture of Makale.

An Italian communique from Marshal Pietro Badoglio, issued in Rome, said, however, that fascist artillery had broken up an Ethiopian advance on Italian positions north of Makale.

Travelers said the road between Makale and Addis Ababa had been washed out by rains.

Simultaneous Emperor Haile Selassie sent renewed instructions to field forces to continue guerrilla warfare and flag ceremonies.

Nineteen persons were killed in motor accidents in the 33 counties comprising the Eastern division of the State highway during December, the report issued today showed.

The number of fatal accidents for the period was eight less than those for the previous month, 27 persons having been killed on the highways in the division during November of last year.

Lieut. Lester Jones, in announcing the report, said that the decrease could partially be attributed to the bad weather experienced during much of December, especially the latter part.

Although the roads were covered with ice and snow part of the time, motoring was at a minimum and persons forced to take to the roads exhibited more care than usual.

The number of accidents reported during the period also showed a decrease from the previous month. During December patrolmen investigated 138 wrecks, while in November they reported 147 accidents.

Persons injured in mishaps decreased from 94 in November to 81 in December, a decline of 13.

Only 75 persons were arrested by patrolmen for driving while drunk in December, as compared with 107 during the previous month. Arrests during December on all charges totaled 597, a decline of 213 from the 810 arrests in November.

The patrolmen procured 437 warrants during December and 211 citations. Of cases tried as a result of patrolmen's activities, 567 resulted in convictions, only 30 being adjudged not guilty. Sentences totaled 83 months.

Court fines totaled $5,638, costs, $4,192.53, while property recovered by the force amounted to $2,950 and revenue collected $27,722.81. The total amount collected during the month was $35,675.34.

Chances Special Session More Remote Than Ever

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Jan. 9.—Chances for a special session of the general assembly any time in the near future are regarded as being more remote than ever as a result of the Supreme Court decision holding the AAA unconstitutional, since the belief in many circles now is that the Supreme Court will sooner or later hold the social security laws, the Bankhead cotton control act, the Kerr tobacco control act and many other of the "New Deal" acts unconstitutional.

If it does do this, it will then be entirely unnecessary for the general assembly to pass any laws of a similar nature. So far most of the agitation for a special session has come principally from those who thought this state should enact cooperative laws so that it might share in the old age benefits and unemployment insurance set up by the last session of Congress.

There are some, however, who do not think the Supreme Court will throw the social security laws overboard, as it did the AAA act, since they hold that the payroll tax levies to raise the funds with which to put the unemployment insurance into effect, is really nothing more than an excise tax and that this form of tax has long been permitted by the Constitution and approved by the Supreme Court. It is agreed, that this tax is levied for the benefit of a certain class of people—the workers—and that the Supreme Court may balk at this phase of the law.

"I feel very hopeful, however, that the social security laws will not be set aside," Commissioner A. L. Fletcher of the State Department of Labor said today. "Even if they should be set aside by the Supreme Court, I feel confident that Congress would re-enact the laws in a different form, but with the same purposes and objectives, just as I feel certain it will find some way to preserve the benefits of the AAA act to the farmers. The people are going to demand it. They are not going to be willing to go back to the old tooth and claw principles of government advocated by the Republicans."

News Behind The News

Washington. By RAY TUCKER. SPLIT: Anti-Roosevelt Democrats—ex-Governors Smith, Ritchie and Ely—have too much political sense to think that their combined efforts can deny a renomination to the President. But undercover, but undercover, conspiracies are apparently forming to make the regular Democratic nomination not worth having.

Joe Ely hinted at the game when he announced that he would support Al if the latter became a candidate. Now Mr. Ely is noted for his Yankee caution of speech and his inside word is that he had N's blessing. Should Mr. Smith act like a willing Barkis when he addresses the Liberty League, the stage will be set to enter him in the first two presidential primaries—New Hampshire and Wisconsin. The "Happy Warrior" retains his popularity there.

Three other states—Rhode Island, Maryland and Georgia—may prove fertile duelling grounds for the insurgents. They might be persuaded to send uninstructed delegations to the convention. FDR would still bear the banner but under an intra-party attack his party would be badly demoralized. It would hearten the GOP and probably split off enough Smith fans to deprive Mr. Roosevelt of many seemingly safe states. It is (Continued on Page Two)

BRITISH SEEK AVERT FALL OF NAVAL PARLEY

Fears Are Felt For Collapse Of Conference

ANTHONY EDEN ENTERS ISSUES

New Foreign Secretary Attempts to Induce Japan Assume Conciliatory Mind

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—The London Naval conference postponed its scheduled Friday session until Monday after the Japanese in a private meeting with British delegates tonight had demanded that the question of fleet equality be taken up immediately.

London, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Great Britain threw its best diplomacy into the breach today in a final, desperate effort to save the international naval conference from wrecking on the rocks of disagreement.

Fearful that flat Japanese refusals to discuss anything but total tonnage limitation might cause an immediate collapse of the convention and end all naval limitations, Anthony Eden, Britain's new foreign secretary, stepped into the issue personally.

He decided to attempt to induce the Japanese to assume a more conciliatory attitude in a private meeting late today at the foreign office.

While the Japanese made no threats to walk out of the convention, it was known they were negotiating under the strictest instructions of the Tokyo government.

Authoritative sources contended there was a strong possibility that the Japanese would quit the parley or break up the negotiations by reiterating their position in such a manner as to make evident the futility of attempting to continue the conference.

Japanese spokesmen declared they were interpreted first and last in the total tonnage question—under which they demand equality and were not at all interested in other phases of naval limitation, which the conference sought to turn.

A final breakup of the conference might come tomorrow when the full, five power conference sessions are resumed, authoritative sources said, unless the British persuaded the Japanese to make an eleventh hour retreat from their demands for equality.

County Agent Goes Raleigh

Carries Assurance Pitt Farmers Will Back Any Move

E. F. Arnold, county agent, spent part of today in Raleigh conferring with Dean I. O. Schaub, state administrator for the smashed AAA, and other officials of the former agricultural adjustment act.

Before he left, Mr. Arnold said he was taking with him assurance that Pitt county farmers were behind any reasonable move to provide a substitute for the act, declared unconstitutional Monday by the United States Supreme Court in a six to three decision.

The county agent said Pitt farmers would back any move 100 per cent, adding that he had been swarmed with telephone calls and personal visits from agriculturists in the county promising their wholehearted cooperation in any action the administration saw fit to take.

Mr. Arnold expressed confidence some means would be found to continue at least part of activities carried on under AAA. He said, however, it was impossible to make any predictions now.

The county agent's office here is continuing to pay parity and rental checks on hand to be distributed to cotton and tobacco contract signers. Otherwise, activities in AAA work here was at a standstill.

Ten persons formerly employed with AAA work have been indefinitely dismissed, leaving only a skeleton force at the offices. Instructions received here advised that no expense be incurred until further information was forthcoming.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE. Raleigh, Jan. 9.—The address by Governor J. C. B. Thruoghaus at the Jackson Day Dinner of the Guilford County Young Democrats last night in Greensboro, in which he praised President Roosevelt for standing his ground against the Republican critics of the "New Deal" and challenged them to be specific in their criticism and then challenged critics of the present state Democratic administration to be specific, is regarded here as the most vigorous answer the Governor has yet made to those who have been attacking him and his administration for many months now.

While no names were used, many regard the Governor's speech as an almost direct reply to the various allegations and implications which have been contained in speeches and statements by Dr. Ralph McDonald, anti-sales tax and anti-administration candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

RIGHT OF WAY GIVEN BONUS

Expect Passage By Huge Majority By Tomorrow Night

Washington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A new cash bonus payment bill rode onto the House floor amid the acclaim of supporters who predicted passage tomorrow by a huge majority vote.

A smooth legislative path apparently lay ahead. Once hostile house factions were in agreement behind the bill. It had the united support of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled Veterans.

While bonus advocates said they expected a flurry of amendments to be tossed at the legislation, they forecast passage with all essential details left unaltered.

The bill would declare the veterans adjustment service certificates to be "immediately payable." To those desiring not to cash them now, however, it would offer three per cent interest on them until Jan. 1, 1945.

A long five-hour general debate began when chairman O'Connor (D-N.Y.) of the Rules committee, called up the resolution, giving the bonus the right of way.

Decision Reached Call Murder Case Of Harnett Man

Pineview Man Charged With Killing Wife to Go On Trial in Superior Court Tomorrow

Lillington, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Agreement was reached today to call in Harnett Superior court tomorrow the case of Wendell White Mason, 52, of Pineview, who is charged with murdering his wife.

Solicitor C. C. Canaday, Nellie M. Salmon, counsel for Mason and Judge N. A. Sinclair, presiding, reinstated the case for trial, tomorrow after it was agreed to continue a special term in the trial of two Angier policemen charged with murder. The Mason case had been continued due to plan to try the officers today.

Mason is alleged to have shot his wife, Mrs. Beulah Groome Brodie Mason 34, last Thanksgiving Day. Mason contends robbers shot her.

"And in our state, too, we have followed the same ideals and made the same challenge," the Governor said. "And to the critics of the state administration I would repeat the President's words and say that if they wish to abandon what has been done, let them no longer hide their dissent under a cowardly cloak of generalities; let them define the issue. When Evans street in the business section was paved, originally the city paid the entire cost without aid from the property holders and now it seems that the property holders would be willing to come in for their part in improving this street. Elsewhere in the city property owners have had to pay for the paving. This resurfacing of Evans street is a small matter compared to the first cost of the paving and the property owners can well afford to share in the cost of the contemplated work. If the street is not resurfaced the original paving is soon going to give way and then the property holders will be faced with the cost of putting down new paving.

understood that Jim Farley is not unaware of these Brutus-like schemes.

CLEANUP: Housing Coordinator Peter Grimm has submitted a bullish report on housing construction. Mr. Grimm bases his hopes on two little noted developments. Distress calls from federal financing and loans have dropped sharply. Farm Credit districts are now receiving only 50 applications a day instead of 1,000 six months ago. Likewise urban dwellers are making less demand on the HOLC. Private money is flowing back into the real estate field at a tremendous rate by means of the FHA's guarantee of mortgages. There is a solid foundation under the structure.

As a result, Senator Wagner's proposed measure will deal entirely with low-cost housing which banks don't care to touch at present. It will provide federal funds for slum clearance. The chief task is to devise mechanism which will substitute local agencies for federal in inaugurating projects and managing them when they are completed. Except for this field, Mr. Grimm plans to pull Uncle Sam out of the housing business whenever private industry takes over.

PENS: The politicians have sent out calls for publicists to write speeches and coop up swanky statements for the 1936 campaign. The presidential contest will be a battle between "ghosts."

Chairman Henry Fletcher is looking around for a man to head the staff of writers he is organizing at CHQ. The Republican Congressional Committee has hired Edward McK. Lewis, who served as the American Legion's legislative representative at Washington for fifteen years. Jim Farley has taken on an able and veteran correspondent—ex-Hearstman Edward L. Riddan—to help out the overburdened Charley Michelson. And there are more to come.

The rivalry resulted in an amusing incident a few days ago. A certain journalist had half agreed to enlist as a New Deal propagandist for $6,000 a year. But the GOP-ers made him a better offer and he accepted. It's a tip-off on the topsy-turviness of political parties and philosophies these days.

QUIRK: Businessmen who resent government interference in their affairs may grow—and complain—about this one. It supports their charge that Uncle Sam sometimes keeps a "phony" set of books to prove he can do things better than anybody else.

Private builders squinted when they read in the Monthly Labor Review that construction costs a certain public projects had amounted to only $2.34 a square foot. It was an incredibly low average. With pencil and paper they figured out that this would permit a ceiling only five feet from the floor—a funny village. So they made a few inquiries.

They were told that the square foot cost estimates were based on the combined area of ceiling and floor. It was a clever method of reducing costs, provided the occupants could walk on the ceilings. Government statisticians have promised to leave out the ceilings as promenades in future statements.

NOTES: Nine out of ten men in Congress seem to expect the Guffey law to be knocked out. Demand for revision of the social security act is increasing as the tax begins to operate. Agreement on a bonus plan by veterans doesn't mean that the struggle is over—estimates of total outlay vary extravagantly. Hopkins agency plans to set up "public affairs forums" in various cities. New York City is rapidly growing as a subcapital—government agencies multiplying.

EVANS STREET SHOULD BE RESURFACED

A number of months ago when Dickinson Avenue was being resurfaced a petition was circulated among property holders on Evans street between Third and Fifth streets to have those two blocks of the business section resurfaced also. Because certain of the property holders declined to sign the petition the matter was dropped. There is no getting away from the fact that the street needs resurfacing and another effort is going to be made to get the property owners along the street to sign-up to pay for their third of the street in front of their

NEVER MIND THE LADY
by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Allaire West has returned here and from the United States to the little South American town of Proprietary to tell Terry Willett that she loves him. He accepts the information in stony silence, believing that he must refuse her for her own good. The life of a wandering engineer being what it is. Then Allaire meets Bucky Corrigan, downstate, and learns from him that Terry has taken much punishment for her sake—even a lashing from the police.

Chapter 20
CARRIAGE DRIVE

ALLAIRE was sitting up straight, looking at him with shocked amazement. Bucky Corrigan's face seemed to be swaying back and forth through a blur. But there was something that quickened her pulse beat. Everything was so clear.

She sank back weakly for a moment and laughed shakily.

Corrigan looked at her doubtfully and decided she could use a good shot. He departed for the bar and emerged with a glass in each hand just as Terry Willett came striding through the lobby like a runaway express.

"Where is she, Bucky?" he demanded.

"Where's who?"

"That girl. She walked off some place. I can't let her go walking around this town after dark alone."

"Oh, that girl," drawled Corrigan. "Why, she went off down the street with a little bald-headed man who limps and has a cast in one eye—"

Willett's fingers gripped his arm. "Do you know where she is or don't you, you thick Mick? I can't waste time."

"She's out on the verandah," said Corrigan hastily, as both glasses nearly spilled under Willett's urge for information. "And I think I have made you out a hero."

Willett had already departed. Corrigan looked philosophical. He had one drink and then, deciding that there was no use wasting the other one, he raised it in brief salute and drank that one too.

Terry went out on the verandah and looked around. He saw her immediately, sitting in the shadows and resting her white chin in the palm of her hand.

"Oh," he said, relieved, "there you are."

Swiftly her eyes raised to his. "Yes, Terry, here I am. You missed me, perhaps?"

"I thought you'd be walking around here some place. If you were crazy enough to come down here, you'd be crazy enough to do anything."

She arose and linked her arm in his.

"You could protect me with a carriage drive," she said. "Under your supervision, of course."

"All right," he said. "If you use."

He escorted her to the street and hailed a carriage. The girl seemed glowing. Distance had been defeated, and now uncertainty. The question mark had vanished. In the carriage she put both her arms in his and spoke close in his ear.

"Terry," she whispered, "you can't fool me again. I'm here to stay."

Willett tried to say something.

"Quiet, darling. I know all about everything now. Not that I had to know about it to realize I loved you, but to realize you loved me. I'm so proud."

"Damn Corrigan," he muttered. "Nothing matters any more, does it, Terry?"

He sat up, every muscle tightening suddenly.

"Everything matters. It won't work, Allaire. I'm not going to drag you around after me. Your place is in the States, and the States don't offer any attractions to me. I don't care about anything up there. We'd both be lost. I've got this job to do and I told you I was going to do it, and after that I'm going to shove some place else. Where do you fit in with that picture?"

"As your wife, Terry."

Willett's face twisted. He leaned over and took both her hands in a fierce grip.

He was silent for a long while and the carriage creaked and swayed through a night whose darkness was thinned by the myriad lights of the town.

"All right, Allaire," he said soberly. "I just wanted you to look before you jumped. I wouldn't have you hurt, but if you're game enough to take a chance we may come through," he laughed shortly. "God knows I am. Only I still think you're too grand a girl to waste your life."

"And you're too grand to waste yours." She smiled at him, that lovely, soul-stirring smile.

The real reason they went to federal judges was because they were sure of favorable action than in state courts. But their own legal argument returns to plague them now that opponents of the Guffey Act want so urgently to prove that the coal business is not interstate. Their lawyers were aware of the weak spot and will do their best to cover it up. But John Lewis of the United Mine Workers and the Department of Justice know about it too.

Other industries vitally concerned that the Guffey Act should be thrown out—for fear similar controis might be applied to them—could of course claim that this aspect of the case is peculiar to the coal business. Yet other industries have also been known to get in-junctions against strikers from federal judges.

TEAMWORK: The Republican party in New York State is privately split into no less than five factions. First you have a group headed by State Chairman Mel Eaton and Ogden Mills (the latter behind the scenes). It comprises most of the old guard—but not all. It railroaded its own candidates into the jobs of speaker and floor leader of the assembly and all the other factions are sore at it.

Second is a group led by Charles D. Hillis and Congressman Jim Wadsworth. This bunch is old guard too. BUT they resent Ogden Mills' intrusion on the scene, they fear Hooverite contamination and especially they are furious because faction No. 1 refused the floor leadership to Jim Wadsworth's son.

Third is Congressman Ham Fish's personally conducted pro-Borah group—few in numbers but right on the job. Fourth are ex-chairman Kingsland Macy's rival crowd of Borah boosters who sail under the liberal banner. Last come Edwin Jaekle and his Erie County rebels, who may hold the assembly balance of power.

Each of these factions has its own objectives and their relationships to each other are as tangled as a ball of yarn after a kitten has been at it. This situation has more than local significance. The first four groups all have important national connections. If they can't team up in New York it doesn't augur well for a united Republican front when the election campaign reaches a critical stage.

ISOLATION: New York sharps figure that President Roosevelt has saved himself a lot of trouble with Congress by quietly abandoning one of the original planks in his neutrality platform.

He no longer asks discretionary powers in the application of embargoes under the proposed neutrality law. Both in his message and in the draft prepared for Congress it was made clear that embargoes are to apply to all belligerents equally unless Congress itself authorizes a distinction in treatment.

This brings up measurably closer to the isolationist viewpoint and away from the idea of cooperating with the League of Nations.

GAS: New York oil men expect a lively 1936. In the first place, the new Rodessa field has an allowable production quota of 600 barrels per day per well, while the East Texas field—not very far away—is allowed only 23 barrels. That's ample grounds for a hot row between the states.

Experts predict further that additional oil fields will be opened up this year—particularly in New Mexico. This would be no help to the industry's earnest effort to raise prices.

But the recent acceleration of gasoline demand is cause for cheer. Gas consumption for the last few months of 1935 was bigger than for the corresponding months in 1929—the previous peak—and the figure for the whole of 1935 may possibly have a slight edge on 1929. The improvement is ascribed partly to the wider use of such fuel-devouring vehicles as trucks, buses and airplanes and partly to the greater consumption resulting from higher average speed for passenger cars.

HEIRS: Politicians in both parties are busy writing anti-extravagance speeches these days. It's all the rage to take a spendthrift politics.

But cynical New Yorkers say anybody back home who is waiting hopefully for a scolding ory is due for disappointment. The public works program for one thing is certain to go through. It will start at $500,000,000—but probably won't stop there. FDR has seen to it that Congress will have a hand in picking the projects. Every state—and if possible every Congressional district—is to get a slice.

Comment runs that the old pork barrel may be dead—but it left heirs.

ISOLATION: New York sharps figure that President Roosevelt has saved himself a lot of trouble with Congress by quietly abandoning one of the original planks in his neutrality platform.

He no longer asks discretionary powers in the application of embargoes under the proposed neutrality law. Both in his message and in the draft prepared for Congress it was made clear that embargoes are to apply to all belligerents equally unless Congress itself authorizes a distinction in treatment.

This brings up measurably closer to the isolationist viewpoint and away from the idea of cooperating with the League of Nations.

GAS: New York oil men expect a lively 1936. In the first place, the new Rodessa field has an allowable production quota of 600 barrels per day per well, while the East Texas field—not very far away—is allowed only 23 barrels. That's ample grounds for a hot row between the states.

Experts predict further that additional oil fields will be opened up this year—particularly in New Mexico. This would be no help to the industry's earnest effort to raise prices.

But the recent acceleration of gasoline demand is cause for cheer. Gas consumption for the last few months of 1935 was bigger than for the corresponding months in 1929—the previous peak—and the figure for the whole of 1935 may possibly have a slight edge on 1929. The improvement is ascribed partly to the wider use of such fuel-devouring vehicles as trucks, buses and airplanes and partly to the greater consumption resulting from higher average speed for passenger cars.

HEIRS: Politicians in both parties are busy writing anti-extravagance speeches these days. It's all the rage to take a spendthrift politics.

But cynical New Yorkers say anybody back home who is waiting hopefully for a scolding ory is due for disappointment. The public works program for one thing is certain to go through. It will start at $500,000,000—but probably won't stop there. FDR has seen to it that Congress will have a hand in picking the projects. Every state—and if possible every Congressional district—is to get a slice.

Comment runs that the old pork barrel may be dead—but it left heirs.

Class Meeting Postponed. The meeting of the T. E. L. Class of Immanuel Baptist Sunday School has been postponed until further notice.

Junior Woman's Club. The Junior Woman's Club will meet on Friday afternoon at 3:30 in the Woman's Club building. Mrs. Archie Sugg and Mrs. James Brown will be hostesses.

Troop 30 Boy Scouts. Joe Taft, field commissioner, will speak to Troop 30, Boy Scouts Friday evening at the Rotary Club building.

Mr. and Mrs. Hester Honored. Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dupree, delightfully entertained at their home at a miscellaneous dinner, complimenting Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hester who were recently married.

Players enjoyed hearts dice at five tables. After several progresses, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Ernest were awarded attractive prizes for high scores while the consolation went to Mrs. Bernice Allen.

Mrs. Hester was asked to answer the door-bell when, to her astonishment, a wash-woman handed her a laundry basket filled with gifts from all present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hester expressed their appreciation in a very charming manner.

Mrs. J. E. Dees assisted the hostesses in serving tempting refreshments.

Sans Souci Book Club Meets. The Sans Souci Book Club held its first meeting of the new year Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. J. Forbes, the president of the club.

Amid a colorful setting of winter greens and red poinsettias Mrs. Forbes very graciously greeted her guests and requested to know from each her choice New Year's Resolution.

Routine business matters were disposed of. The books were passed and the program leader for the afternoon introduced the speaker, Mrs. J. Key Brown, who named as her subject, "Holland, Land of Windmills, Wooden Shoes and Bulls."

In her own words she said: "Instead of taking you into that Holland like our own work-a-day world, I prefer to take you into a land of enchantment; that other Holland more soothing to the senses and more restful to the eyes." Whereupon she painted a word picture of Holland that fairly breathed of beauty, peace and contentment.

She painted Holland as a country ablaze with masses of flowers, where tulips, hyacinths, narcissi, and daffodils nod gracefully in the breeze; a country famous for its artists; so famous in fact, that Andrew Mellon includes many of the paintings of the Dutch artist in his twenty-five million dollar art collection he has recently given to the American people for a National Gallery in Washington; a country of windmills, woden shoes, unusual and colorful doorways; and finally, a country where may be heard from every tower and spire the sweet, clear peace-giving silver notes of its many carillons. Her paper was one of a series of travel programs which the club will enjoy this year.

A lively discussion of current events followed, after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. S. Forbes served a delicious salad course and coffee.

Mrs. R. L. Coleman was a charming guest for the afternoon. —Reported.

Amelia Earhart In Person. "Aviation Adventures" is the subject on which Amelia Earhart will when she herself will face her audience in the Campus Building of East Carolina Teachers College on next Wednesday night, January 15, at 8:30 o'clock.

Whenever Miss Earhart appears on the screen in a news reel, crowds are eager to get a fleeting glimpse of her and a few words from her. Her adventures and achievements have been front page news ever since she started across the Atlantic the first time in 1928, and her two books are thrillers, but to those who have followed her career, nothing can equal the chance to see her and hear her tell her own story.

At one time she and her managers considered having her tell illustrated by pictures that have been taken at various times, but they found people wanted her to be the central figure.

On that occasion the diminutive Lord Halsbury struggled desperately with his wand and broke it only after several furious attempts.

Lord Halsbury took precautions. Before the trial, he had his wand sawed in half.

Her captain told canal officials here that he would return to Genoa by the way of the Straits of Magellan with his cargo of crude oil.

Constitution Is Issue In Wake Of AAA Ruling

Republicans Seek To Unite on Some Farm Plan

LONG SESSION IS PREDICTED

Various Circumstances Combine to Indicate Extended and Acrimonious Term

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Several important probabilities are presented by the tumbling events which have greeted the infant 1936 at Washington: The AAA decision brings home to the Democrats, much more forcibly than anything heretofore, the necessity for deciding whether to favor a constitutional amendment to enlarge federal powers.

It likewise forecasts for Republican leaders and candidates a season of severe ordeals as the various party groups seek to unite on some substitute plan for farm relief.

The President's annual message makes relations between the White House and organized business still more difficult—a fact which is sure to be reflected in some degree during the session of congress.

The new budget, encountering immediately the prospect of soldier bonus payment and invalidation of the processing tax, has been thrown into a state of confusion which puts even the details of government finances into the center of the political campaign.

Combined, these various circumstances indicate a long and acrimonious congressional session, in place of the short, harmonious one hoped for by the administration. They complicate almost beyond description a political situation which already was tangled and uncertain.

Neither Party Will Rest

The trouble and turmoil arising from the supreme court's rejection of AAA is not the heritage of the Democratic administration solely.

When NRA died, those who had been sacrificing to keep it alive rejoiced, and it passed into history. The case of AAA is far different. Its pulling power was not sacrifice grams and letters from tobacco farmers enlisting his aid and support in securing the enactment of new legislation which will achieve the results of the AAA laws in the control of crop production. Governor Ehringhaus also intimated he was confident that President Roosevelt and Congress will work out something which will accomplish much the same purpose of the AAA.

Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. Graham likewise declined to make any comment for publication concerning the AAA opinion, on the grounds that the President had not yet issued any statement, and that he desired more time to study both the majority and dissenting opinions. He intimated, however, that he considered a body blow to the farmers and to agriculture throughout the nation and that it would be likely to halt farm recovery and throw agricultural prices and conditions back where they were three years ago. He also intimated he was confident that the President, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the various AAA officials and their associates in Washington would manage to work out some kind of plan which would preserve the benefits of the AAA, even though a new type of procedure might have to be developed.

Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell was the only major state official who could be heard here today who was willing to make a direct statement on the AAA knock-out.

"The program which the U. S. Supreme Court has just held invalid through its opinion on the AAA act, has done more to pull the United States out of the depression and get its started back toward normal times than any other agency set up under the Roosevelt administration," Commissioner Maxwell said.

"Congress and the Nation must find some other way to arrive at the same objectives and preserve the benefits which accrued to the farmers and to the entire country from the AAA, and I feel confident that the President and Congress will find some way to do this. If such a way is not found, I see nothing to keep farm prices from slumping again—back to 5 cents tobacco and 4 cent cotton—with Hoover carts instead of automobiles. The outlook is anything but bright for the farmers if a way is not found to enact a new law that will be constitutional and achieve the same results."

All of the state officials questioned agreed privately that this decision will undoubtedly help Roosevelt politically by assuring him more united support from all agricultural classes.

The bureau of biological survey of the federal department of agriculture has 14 wildlife refuges in Florida.

Should the Democrats advocate an amendment, it is assumed that the federal government broader powers over industry as well as agriculture.

That might mean a break far more real than the present one between Mr. Roosevelt and organized business. It might determine the whole character of the campaign.

Although it was easy, listening to the President's annual message, to conclude that he had turned to the "left" finally, irrevocably and without restraint, some of the wisest political philosophers found room for doubt.

They recalled that in politics, as in war, there are two kinds of strategy. One general prefers to stand on a given line and fight, another relies on the art of maneuver. Up to now, Mr. Roosevelt has been a recognized master of maneuver, seeming to turn left today, and right tomorrow.

Besides, neither the annual message nor the budget message contained proposals for new legislation repugnant to business. The security markets held firm, perhaps on the theory that "sticks and stones will break my bones, but words will never harm me."

It is what Mr. Roosevelt does, more than what he says, which will hold the interest of the country in the present situation; and the determining question may easily be what he does about a constitutional amendment.

CLYDE R. HOEY PRAISES F. D. R.

Predicts Reelection and More Prosperity

By Staff Correspondent Shelby, Jan. 9.—President Franklin D. Roosevelt will be reelected and before he completes his second term there will be more general prosperity among all the people than the country has ever witnessed, Clyde R. Hoey, one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, declared in his address to the Young Democrats of Cleveland county at their Jackson Day Dinner here last night.

"Recovery is not complete, but it is well on its way and when another year has rolled around, the task will be near accomplishment," Hoey said. "So it is fitting that we do honor on this occasion to President Roosevelt and pledge him our individual loyalty for his masterful leadership of this nation in its perilous hours. We assure him of our sympathetic interest and that we shall stand squarely behind him for his reelection to the presidency. For when a fair appraisal of his administration is made, it will be found by incontrovertible proof that President Roosevelt found a nation stranded on March 4, 1933 and that in less than three years under his courageous leadership, we find a people revitalized and business, industry and agriculture restored and stabilized, with the working people placed on a more equitable and favorable basis than ever before as to hours and wages. I predict that President Roosevelt will be reelected and that before he completes his second term there will be more general prosperity among all the people than this country has ever witnessed in all its glorious history."

Mr. Hoey did not refer directly to the recent action by the Supreme Court in holding the AAA action unconstitutional, but he intimated that he did not consider this as much of a blow to the Roosevelt administration as some think, also that a way would be found to preserve and continue the benefits have been extended to the farmers and agriculture thru' the AAA. He did refer very pointedly, however, to the widely different attitudes toward the constitution by the Republican and Democratic parties, and the Republican point of view, when he said:

"The Republican party lives in the past. It looks upon the by-gone years as the golden era. Its hopes are in the grave and it is always seeking to go back to something—normalcy, the flesh-pots of Egypt, garlic and graft—and sometimes in search of the Constitution. It is generally solicitous for the welfare of the Constitution when special privilege is about to be dethroned."

"The Democratic party, on the other hand, believes in the Constitution and reverse its sacred guarantees of both human and property rights and would keep its mandates inviolate, but regards that great document as the Magna Charta of our liberties and as a living thing, to be interpreted in a broad and liberal spirit, aiding in the solution of the problems of this day. This does not mean that any of its provisions shall be disregarded or any of its precepts ignored, but that great accomplishments shall be inaugurated and worked out in harmony with its limitations, so that a mighty nation through its government may serve agriculture, industry and business to the end that recovery may be complete and so great humanitarian measures in behalf of old people and the workers of the country may make for the permanent prosperity of all the people."

"It is fitting that the Young Democrats are taking the lead in the observance of this day dedicated to the contemplation of Democratic principles fought for by Andrew Jackson. For the Democratic party appeals to the youth of the land. It cherishes the ideals which they hold dear. It is a party of progress, of hope, of daring, of courage and of faith. It looks to the future. It believes in the application of the principles of justice, fair play and equality in the affairs of the government. It recognizes no caste or class; it dethrones claims upon or special privileges from the government. It believes in a government deriving its just powers from the consent of the governed and exercising these powers in furtherance of the common good.

"Young people find a natural environment in the Democratic party. I believe in giving them full recognition and in placing upon them much of the responsibility of party government and activity. The young people of America have made a great record for sanity and patriotism during a period when the young people of many other nations have joined in movements to overthrow their governments. The Democratic party is the party of youth and hope."

HIGH QUINT TO MEET KINSTON

First Major Opposition to be Engaged Here Friday

Tomorrow night the local basketball team will meet their first major opposition of this season. It will be played with Kinston on the local court. The Greenville team has four minor games behind them and they have won three of them. These four games have allowed the players to get the feel of the basketball court and the crowd before they enter their hard schedule. All the tension seems to have gotten out of them and by tomorrow night they shall have confidence in themselves. With this confidence plus the ability they have shown, they should give Kinston a tough battle that basketball fans will enjoy seeing.

It was mentioned in this newspaper a short while ago that Coach Reynolds may have arranged a tough schedule, this schedule having 22 games and two tournaments, among these games being one with the Duke Fresh, Rocky Mount High and Wilmington High. Coach May has also added to this list two games with Raleigh High.

If these boys are good enough to play these other teams, they should be good enough to give Kinston a good licking tomorrow night.

LESSONS IN LAW-MAKING

11. CONGRESS AND COURTS.

Perhaps never before in the history of the nation have the relations of congress and the federal courts been so interlocked as they have since advent of the "new deal" administration.

The control of congress over the federal judiciary is more complete than the average person realizes. The Supreme Court itself is, to a large extent, under the surveillance of congress, and the very existence of the lower federal courts is the result of direct action of congress.

The constitution provided for the creation of the Supreme Court and the law establishing it was passed by congress in 1789. The constitution also stipulated that "as the congress may from time to time ordain and establish" lesser federal courts could be created.

The last important change in statutory regulation of the Supreme Court was the judiciary act of 1925 which limits that tribunal's jurisdiction and confines its judgments to constitutional questions and matters of national importance.

Congress is without authority to abolish the Supreme Court, but it may regulate the number of justices and its most powerful weapon is the Senate's right to confirm nominations to the court.

Congress has the authority to remove federal judges by impeachment. The House of Representatives votes the articles of impeachment and the offending judge is haled before the bar of the Senate for trial. This happened eight times. Four judges were removed, one resigned, and four were acquitted.

GOVERNOR'S SPEECH SEEN AS ANSWER TO CRITICS

"Do they criticize the saving in interest charges which these policies have made possible or think they could have been secured unless the state budget had been balanced? Do they not know that these savings alone will pay a large part of the cost of the state government for years to come?"

"Would they decline to meet the maturities of our debt obligations and interest charges, honestly incurred and every dollar honestly expended before this administration came into power, in building highways and state institutions?"

"Would they tear down the policies which have made the State Prison self-supporting for the first time since Aycock's day?"

"Would they force back on the counties and the property owners the cost of maintaining the eight months school term and restore this burden to those from whom this administration has removed it?"

"Are they willing to cripple industrial enterprises and destroy the smaller corporations by trebling the franchise tax burden, already one of the highest in the nation?"

The speech is regarded here as a militant appeal to Democrats to support the state as well as the national Democratic administration.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Realizing gave the stock market a spotty appearance today although a few groups improved.

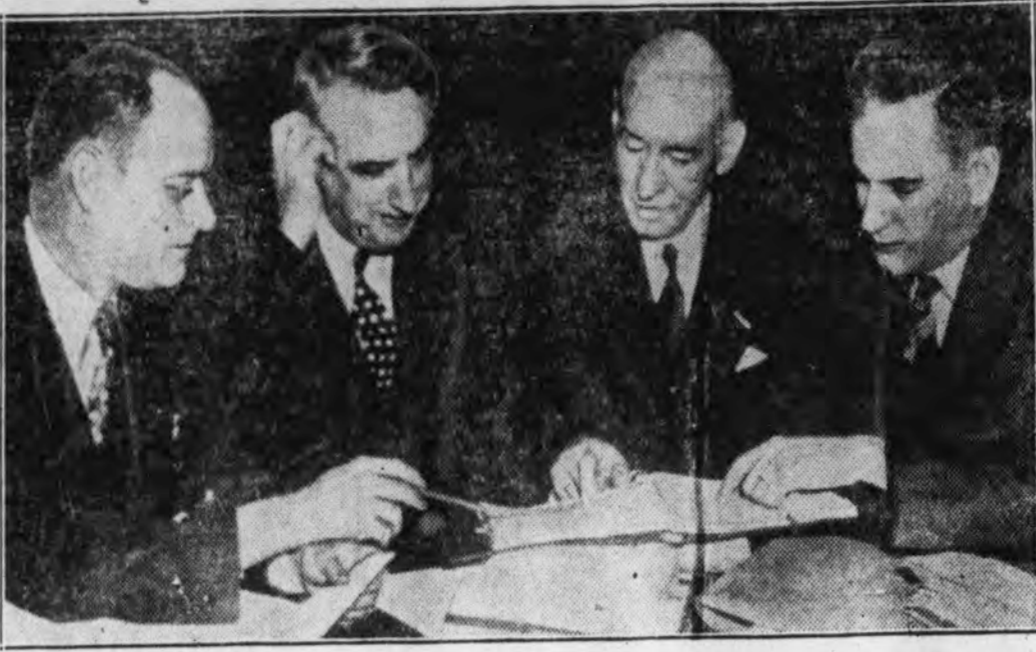

Lead, non-ferrous metals, manufacturing and gold mining, oil and farm shares all displayed a firm tone, as did a number of specialties. Utilities and some of the blue chips' industrials met considerable profit taking. The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 2,650,000 shares.

New York Cotton

New York, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady two to 11 decline on lower Liverpool cables. Trading was active at the start under liquidation and foreign selling and prices worked off further after the call with active months showing net losses of 12 to 13 points. After the first rush of liquidation had subsided, prices steadied slightly and the market at the end of the first hour showed decline of 3 to 4 points.

March broke to 11.00 while October sold off to 9.91 with active

BONUS BILL APPROVED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Payment of a cash bonus to 3,000,000 war veterans was approved by the powerful House Ways and Means committee and leaders immediately sat down around the conference table to plan for a speedy vote on the floor. Left to right: Rep. Cooper of Tennessee, Rep. Vinson of Kentucky, a co-author of the bill in the house; Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines of the veterans' administration, and Rep. McCormack of Massachusetts, the other co-author. (Associated Press Photo)

Speaking of ODD JOBS-

Bubble Scooper.

Edward Smith doesn't blow bubbles, but he scoops them out of a fountain every day. He works at the central fountain in Rockefeller Center, New York City. Every hour, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., rain or shine, he dips out the soap-like foam with a wire sieve attached to a long pole. Perhaps the great golden statue of Prometheus is as perplexed by his aimless dipping as is the usual visitor. Smith says the reason he dips the bubbles is that they are thought to detract from the beauty of the pool. The cause of the bubbles is something of a mystery, but engineers finally have decided they come from a mixture of automobile exhaust gas and churning water. Smith was in the construction business before he became a bubble scooper. He says the most common question asked him is: "How are they biting today?"

HEIRESS SUES FOR STERILIZATION

Declaring that her mother duped her into a sterilization operation to retain control of a $10,000,000 trust fund, Ann Cooper Hewitt (top left), 21-year-old San Francisco heiress, is suing her parent, Mrs. Mayvon Hewitt McCarter (top right), for $500,000 damages. The income from Miss Hewitt's trust fund would go back, under the will, to Mrs. McCarter should the heiress die childless. Dr. Tilton E. Tillman (bottom left) and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd (bottom right) said they performed the operation upon Mrs. McCarter's orders after the daughter had been found "feeble-minded." Miss Hewitt said she thought she was undergoing an appendectomy.
