ITALY CLAIMS MUTUAL PLANS ANTI-FASCIST

Mussolini Strikes Out Against Mutual Aid Agreement

DECLARES IT ANTI-ITALIAN

Reports from Fronts Carry Conflicting Views of Victories by Italian Forces

(By The Associated Press) Premier Mussolini carried his diplomatic war controversy deeper into the League of Nations council today by striking out against the five power mutual aid agreement and British Naval maneuvers in the Mediterranean.

One of his spokesmen asserted the Italian leader would protest the assistance pact of Great Britain, France, Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia as "an anti-Italian alliance."

He was further reported ready to criticize concentration of British warships near the scene of fighting in the Italian-Ethiopian war.

While these diplomatic campaigns took definite form a new committee was called to consider the proposed oil-coal-steel-iron embargo against the aggressor nation in the East African conflict. Its deliberations concerned principally the potential effectiveness of such measures in retaliation for the fascist invasion of the Ethiopian kingdom.

At Paris President Albert Lebrun labored to discover a successor to former Premier Pierre Laval whose cabinet stepped down after political criticism of vacillating foreign policies.

Reports from the war frontiers carried conflicting views of Italy's victories, vigorously denied by Ethiopian sources.

Two Shifts Work Filing Car Licenses In Safety Office

Work in Highway Division Speeded Up in Effort to Get 650,000 Drivers' Permits On File

Raleigh, Jan. 23.—In order to get the 650,000 drivers' licenses filed as soon as possible, a double shift of workers is now being employed in the highway safety division, Director Arthur Pulk said today.

The first shift of 15 girls goes to work at 7 a. m. and works until 3 p. m., while the second shift, also composed of 15 girls, comes to work at 3 p. m. and remains on duty until 11 p. m. In addition, the regular force of 14 girls under the supervision of C. E. Stanley, Jr., is on every day handling correspondence issuing new drivers' license, handling correspondence with regard to the suspension and revocation of licenses, and so forth.

The photographic copies of the 650,000 drivers' licenses which have been issued so far are being filed alphabetically, while the applications from which the licenses were photographed by the special equipment made for this purpose by Remington-Rand, have already been filed in numerical order in other files. When all the duplicate drivers' licenses have been filed, the division will have 1,300,000 separate records giving full and complete information concerning the drivers who have already been licensed in North Carolina.

Since there are thousands of persons named Smith, Jones, Johnson, Davis and so forth, all of the files containing these names are being subdivided both by surnames and given names, so that all of the Mary Smiths—several hundreds of them—are together, while all of the John Henry, James and William Smiths are grouped together. If this were not done, it would be necessary for one of the file clerks in the division to search through five or ten thousands Smiths in order to find the one wanted. But under the system being used in setting up these new files, it will be possible to locate any one of the 650,000 licenses on file in two or three minutes, it was explained. By using the three different shifts in this department, it is expected that all the files will be completed by February 1.

Battle Ensues In Council Meeting Regarding Policy

Geneva, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A sharp battle over communists and fascists foreign policies the flight of an American Republic to break diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia broke out in the council of the League of Nations today.

RIISING WATERS CAUSE DAMAGE

Road Closed at Roanoke Rapids as River Floods Banks

Raleigh, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Running higher than at any time since 1912 the Roanoke river at Weldon today was doing considerable minor damage as it approached a flood crest forecast at 48 feet.

The river was 42 feet deep this morning, 15 feet above its banks and its rise was expected to continue 12 to 24 hours longer. The water had already closed state highway 47 at Roanoke Rapids. The heavy flood will reach the lower section of the river next week.

Other eastern North Carolina streams were dropping in the middle reaches. The Neuse at Smithfield was down a foot, the Cape Fear at Fayetteville was down 7 feet since yesterday and the Tar was falling at Rocky Mount and rising at Tarboro and Greenville.

Fighting Reported By Both Sides In Ethiopian Conflict

Ethiopian Announcement Says Several Thousand Italians Killed In Bitter Skirmishes

(By Associated Press) Stimulated fighting in northern Ethiopia was reported in official communiques from both the Italian and Ethiopian governments today.

The Italian communique said only that a fascist division was engaged in brisk fighting but the Ethiopian announcement claimed "several thousand Italians have been killed."

There were indications that the fighting was somewhere west of Makale in the Tembien region.

Millard M'Keel, Jr. Elevated To Post At Shrine Meeting

New Bern, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Millard F. M'Keel, Jr., was elevated to the exalted position of potentate and his home town of Washington was selected for the spring meeting at the annual business session of Suda Shrine Temple here early this afternoon.

Other members of the official Divan moved up one office as is the custom and J. Edward Allen of Warrenton was elected outer guard to fill the gap at the bottom of the list.

Mr. McKell succeeds C. E. Wethington of Goldsboro.

Other offices elected today include: George W. Waters of Goldsboro, captain of the guards; Frank D. Dean of Wilson, orator; Claude S. Chamberlain of Kinston, director; and Dr. George E. Bell of Wilson, medical advisor.

Continuous Friction Develops Over AAA Substitute Bill

Republicans Refuse to Serve on Senate Subcommittee to Study Soil Conservation Plan as New Farm Bill

Washington, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Serious friction over the new administration's farm program developed in the Senate agriculture committee today when Republicans refused to serve on a sub-committee to study the soil conservation and Senator Smith (D-S. C.) reluctantly accepted the chairmanship.

Smith who is chairman of the full agriculture committee, but who deferred to Senator Barkhead (D-Ala.) to introduce the soil improvement subsidy measure in the Senate, told reporters after a closed meeting of the committee: "I'll support this bill when it conforms to the constitution."

Smith and Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, and Norris (R-Nev.) declined to serve on the sub-committee of five which was named to study the plan and report back to the full committee by Saturday.

Senator Smith plainly indicated how he stood on the bill. "Unfortunately they made me chairman of the sub-committee," he said. "When the sub-committee committee completes its work I'll give you my opinion. Everything is going to depend on what the sub-committee does."

It was learned the Senate committee discussed the constitutionality of the measure at length. Some argued it could be framed to conform to the constitution. Others, including Norris, contended otherwise.

DRIVERS HELP MANY CHARGED SAFETY DRIVE WITH ROBBERY

Motorists Throughout State Cooperating With Division

Raleigh, Jan. 23.—Motorists throughout the state are cooperating with the state highway patrol in reporting reckless and careless drivers observed on the highways, Captain Charles D. Farmer, commander of the patrol said today. Some two weeks ago Captain Farmer asked the cooperation of all drivers in the state interested in reducing accidents to report the license number of careless and reckless drivers on the highways, so that he might write them letters, telling them they had been observed driving recklessly and asking their cooperation on observing the law.

"Since the story carrying this suggestion appeared in the newspapers of the state, we have been getting between 50 and 75 letters and telephone calls a day reporting the license numbers of motorists observed violating some of the motor vehicle laws," Captain Farmer said. Most of these give the date, the place and approximate time of day the violation was observed and the nature of the violation. We then write a letter to the owner of the car whose license number was reported to us, telling him that the driver of this car had been observed driving recklessly or carelessly on the date given and ask him to be more careful in the future and cooperate with us in bringing about safer driving and few accidents.

"We are not going to use any of the information given us by volunteer drivers for making arrests, but if a driver is reported two or three times, and he still persists in violating the law, we will then assign a patrolman to be on the lookout for these drivers and to arrest them if they are observed driving recklessly."

The identity of the drivers reporting violations are not revealed by Captain Farmer, although he asks that those reporting violations by letter sign their names to the letters.

"Drivers who report violations of the law by other drivers are not snooters or spies, but are merely doing their duty as citizens and assisting in the effort we are making to reduce the number of persons killed and injured in automobile accidents each week," Capt. Farmer said.

Examinations Begin At Greenville High

Mid-terms examinations began here today for students of the Greenville High school, and will continue through Saturday.

In previous years, the boys and girls of the local high have had a whole week in which to complete their mid-term exams, but due to the fact that the Christmas holidays were extended two extra days because of rough weather, they are having only three days in which to complete the work, and they are also having to go on Saturday of this week.

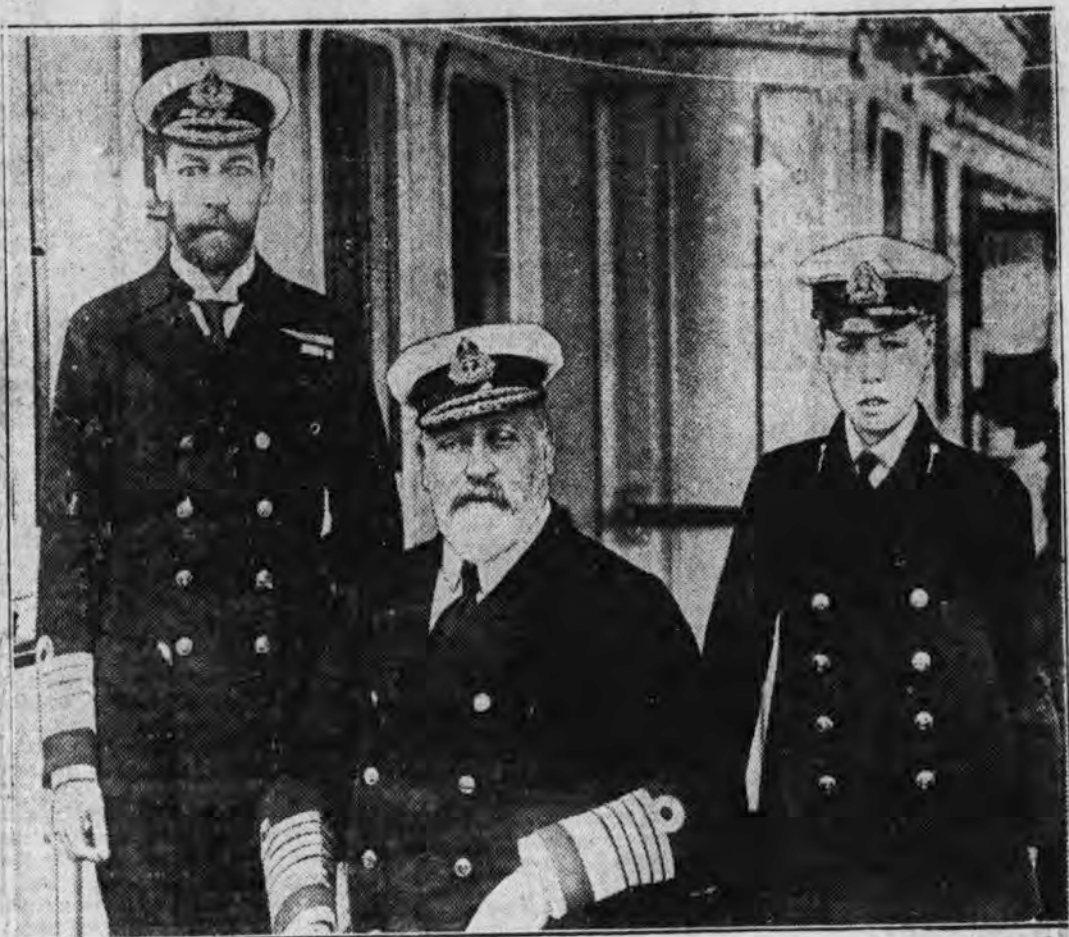

The students are taking part of their exams on Saturday to enable the local high to remain on the accredited list of state high schools, which requires all schools on the accredited list to remain in session a certain number of days out of each school year.

England's Eldest Sons (By Associated Press) Out of 15 English sovereigns since the reign of Queen Elizabeth, King Edward VII is one of four who have the longest reigns. The others were Edward VII, George IV and Charles II.

Warren (R-Nev.) declined to serve on the sub-committee of five which was named to study the plan and report back to the full committee by Saturday.

Senator Smith plainly indicated how he stood on the bill. "Unfortunately they made me chairman of the sub-committee," he said. "When the sub-committee committee completes its work I'll give you my opinion. Everything is going to depend on what the sub-committee does."

REPORT JONES GET NEW POST

Leaders Say Jesse Jones to be Named Treasury Chief

Washington, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Democrats in congress reported today they had heard from apparently "authentic" administrative sources that Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, may become secretary of the treasury.

It was said that Henry Morgenthau, present Secretary of the Treasury, may be made a confidential advisor to the President.

One congressman who keeps abreast of developments in government financial circles said he was reasonably sure the change consideration from President Roosevelt. Another added that it was "a hundred to one shot that it is under consideration."

WARREN DROPS POTATO PLAN

Says He Will Not Seek Funds For Enforcement

Washington, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Expressing belief the potato control act would be held invalid by the Supreme court if a test case were brought, Representative Lindsay C. Warren of Washington, N. C., says he will not ask for funds for its enforcement.

Instead, Warren is asking $1,000,000 for a survey for potato market and production so the industry may benefit in any new agricultural program approved by congress.

Warren's move apparently meant abandonment of plans to force the measure which Sec. Wallace once said would be a "near impossibility."

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington. By RAY TUCKER REFUSED: The American government's attempt to divulge surrounding negotiation of the Versailles Peace Treaty and the League of Nations Covenant has been blocked by objections of foreign governments—Great Britain, Italy, France, How the "big four"—Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Orlando—squabbled and bargained behind the doors as they remapped the globe may never be known.

The United States has already published six instalments of historic papers, including war orders, diplomatic cables, statesmen's memos. It is ready to take public another volume lifting the lid on grave events of 1918. There it must write "this" to the chapter, European cancellations flatly refuse permission to publish the inside history of 1918 deals that led to signing of the treaty and covenant.

Documents involving foreign governments cannot be published without their consent. Europe's leaders apparently fear that the revelations would brew new troubles on their disturbed continent. And whatever chance Secretary Hull had of changing their mind has been destroyed by the New committee's broadcasting of confidential files.

Robbers Flee With Sum Estimated At $8,000 By Cashier

Bank of Aiken, S. C., Held Up and Robbed by Three Bandits Who Make Get Away In Automobile

Aiken, S. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Bank of Aiken was held up by three bandits today and robbed a sum estimated by W. O. Jones, the cashier, at around $8,000.

The trio escaped with one or two confederates who waited in an automobile. The car, a black (Ford V-8) coach sped out of Aiken on the road toward Greenville.

It was said that Henry Morgenthau, present Secretary of the Treasury, may be made a confidential advisor to the President.

MEETINGS SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Hog Feeding And Weighing Demonstrations Planned

Two hog feeding and weighing demonstrations will be held in the county January 31, under the direction of H. W. Taylor, assistant swine specialist of N. C. State college extension service. C. D. Griggs, assistant county agent, announced today.

Mr. Griggs has made arrangements for the demonstrations and has urged that as many farmers interested in raising hogs as possible attend the meeting.

At 10 o'clock a demonstration will be held on the farm of Marvin Taylor of Grifton and at 2:30 o'clock another is scheduled for the F. C. Martin farm at Bethel.

Norfolk Southern Will Inaugurate Delivery Service

Officials of Company Say Service To Be Started February First

Effective February 1st, or as near that date as possible, the Norfolk Southern Railroad will inaugurate the so-called collection and delivery of less carload freight, at the shipper's or consignee's place of business. It was announced today by officials of the railroad.

Where the railroad does not perform the collection or delivery service, on account of the shipper or consignee electing to perform this service, the railroad will make an allowance to the shipper or receiver, as the case may be, of five cents per hundred pounds, it was added.

Washington, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The American federation of labor executive council today commanded the John L. Lewis committee for industrial organization to "immediately dissolve" and "cease to function."

The council moved after finding "there is growing conviction that the Lewis committee actively constitutes a challenger to the supremacy of the American Federation of Labor."

LOW READINGS ARE REPORTED

Mercury Breaks Thermometers as Temperature Drops

Chicago, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Thousands of minute silver threads shivered down in their bulbs and froze today as all-time record low temperatures were shattered in many sections.

The worst frigid wave of many states swept down suddenly from the northwest on the wing of a gale and snapped out the lives of at least 25 persons in 10 states.

The frigidly closed schools and factories, halted automobile traffic, blocked or delayed rail transportation, broke innumerable plate glass windows, caused widespread hardships in numerous fires, hundreds of traffic activity and increased fear for birds and beast.

Low Temperatures Strike Greenville with Low Mark Hit

Mercury Drops From 35 Degrees Yesterday to Low of 14 During Night, Lowest This Year

Greenville experienced the coldest weather of the year last night as the mercury dropped to the 14 degree mark, the lowest of the winter except on one occasion when it dropped to 13 degrees.

Standing at 55 degrees during yesterday, the mercury dropped to 14 during the night and at 8 o'clock this morning it was standing at only 15 degrees. The drop of 41 degrees was unusual. On December 27 when the mercury reached a "ow of 13 degrees it never went above the 30 degree mark during the day.

The cold wave was accompanied by strong winds during the night, but no material damage was reported as a result. Further cold weather is predicted for tonight, the wave having come down from the Northwestern states, where sub-zero weather was common.

The official weather bureau here reported it had been advised the far river would go to 17 feet here Saturday morning.

Cotton Ginnings Announced Today By Census Bureau

Total of 10,249,688 Bales Ginned in Country Prior to January 15—568,914 in This State

Washington, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Cotton of last year's growth ginned prior to January 6 was reported today by the census bureau to have been 10,249,688 running bales, counting 381,007 round bales as half bales and including 16,284 bales of American-Egyptian.

Ginning to January 16 this year by states included North Carolina, 568,914.

TRAIN ARRIVES WITH BODY OF KING GEORGE, V

Body to Lie in State in Capital of Former Empire

KING EDWARD MAKES RESOLVE

Promises to Follow in the Way His Father Has Set; Crowning to Be Held in 1937

(Copyright By Associated Press) London, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The body of King George V. was returned to London this afternoon for the four days lying in state in the capital of his former empire.

The 10-car royal funeral train pulled into King's Cross station at 2:45 p. m. while thousands of Britains packed the adjacent streets.

An honor guard from the three services, army, navy and air forces—stood rigidly at attention on the purple carpet platform as Grenadier guardsmen carried the open coffin to the funeral coach.

The guardsmen placed it on a royal horse artillery caisson for the procession through the streets of central London to Westminster Hall.

There the great folk of the land were assembling for the lying in state ceremony.

The new king, Edward, VIII, who ascended the throne vacated by his father, already had declared: "I am resolved to follow in the way he has set before me."

Prime Minister Baldwin told the commoner that the new monarch "will be crowned with appropriate ceremonies next year."

Indicating that a full year will elapse before the coronation.

Atop the coffin rested the imperial crown, glittering in the splendor of its 3,000 diamonds and other precious stones.

Tax Collections Considered Good By Mayor Blount

Letters Are Mailed Delinquents, However, Mayor Tells Regional Municipal League Meeting

Tax collections for the city of Greenville are considered good by Mayor M. K. Blount, but letters have been sent to delinquents advising them that the tax lien will be foreclosed if immediate payment is not made.

Mayor Blount made known his views to a large number of officials of the various towns in this vicinity at a regional meeting of the North Carolina League of Municipalities in Kinston recently.

The Greenville mayor pointed out at the meeting that the allocation of a part of the highway fund for the maintenance of city streets was a great accomplishment on the part of the league.

John B. Lewis, mayor of Farmville, advocated continued efforts on the part of cities and towns to obtain an additional allocation of the gasoline tax for street maintenance.

Mayor J. B. Bure of Ayden declared that small towns experienced more difficulty in collecting taxes than larger ones.

The league voted, upon motion of Mayor Blount, to go on record favoring the exemption of cities and towns from the payment of the six cent tax that is paid on gasoline used by municipalities.

Greenville had the largest representative at the meeting, with the exception of Kinston where the meeting was held. Those attending from here besides Mayor Blount, were H. H. Duncan, L. B. Fleming, M. B. Massey, Vernon Parrish and Joseph Taft, Altman and J. O. Duval, clerk.

Former Pitt Man Dies At Home In New Bern

Word was received here today of the death of David Ashley Moore, 68, of New Bern, formerly of Pitt county.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock from the old home place near Bethel.

Mr. Moore is survived by his wife, nine daughters, Mrs. E. F. Mabry of Durham, Mrs. H. A. Wilkerson of Asheville, Mrs. L. E. Warrenton, Mrs. Earl Peterson, Misses Myrtle, Kathleen and Doris Moore of New Bern, and Mrs. S. E. Brier and Mrs. J. S. Nobles of Greenville, and three sisters, Mrs. Charles James of Whitehurst, Mrs. R. S. Burnette of Bethel, and Miss Ella Davenport of Jamesville.

Unable To Prevent War, King Strove For Victory

George V set an example of steadfastness as his empire waged war. Thrones toppled in the war's backwash, but not Britain's.

By MELVIN E. COLEMAN (Associated Press Staff Writer) Four short years after George V ascended the throne of a restless empire, war changed the national symphony. Imperial discords faded, the clanging symbols of factionalism which seemingly had heralded dissonance, were stilled and sonorous tones of "Rule Britannia," backed by war trumpets and drums, dominated as the whole empire united for king and country. The British regulars—"contemptibles" under the German staff appraisal—crossed the channel, the dominions started contingents overseas and English youth flocked to recruiting stations in answer to Kitchener's call for volunteers. Any able-bodied young man in "civies" was fair game for patriotic young women who urged him to "sign up" and stuck a white feather in his hat if he hesitated. The "defense of the realm" act, "dora" in popular parlance, substituted bank notes for gold coins, restricted business and pleasure and mobilized industry. Women went to work benches, learned to drive trucks and ambulances and nursed the wounded. Spy hunting and exposure of food hoarders were orders of the day. Palace Set Example. Even before the people settled down from the first patriotic hysteria to the "carry on" attitude that marked them through the bloody years, the palace was setting an example of steadfastness. Immediately following the tragedy at Sarajevo, King George had personally intervened with his cousins on the thrones of Germany and Russia, to prevent a conflict. When these overtures failed, he announced he would make every personal effort toward victory. Visits to camps, trenches, munitions factories and hospitals cheered fighters and workers. Regular processions to parliament indicated the stability of the government and announcements of economy measures in the royal household were potent hints to the populace. King George's personal purse was opened for contributions, not loans, to the treasury. His gift in 1918 alone was $500,000. He and Queen Mary gave $200,000 to a fund for disabled soldiers. Political Hatchets Buried. Political factions buried their differences. A coalition cabinet took over the government with David Lloyd George, fiery Welsh leader of the Liberals, as minister for munitions. Later his driving energy won him the post of prime minister and he evolved into one of the world's "big four" at Versailles. The king made several visits to the front. On one of these an outburst of cheering from the troops frightened the king's steed. He was unhorsed and went back to England on a stretcher. Germany's submarine warfare called for more rigid economies as '17—the crisis year—approached. Restaurant meals were curtailed; drinks, following the example of the palace which announced the giving up of wine and all other alcoholic beverages, became so scarce that the country virtually was "dry"; coal was saved until many towns were completely dark.

Monarchies Tumbled. In April America entered the war and King George attended church rites celebrating this addition to the allied nations. In 1918 he became the first British monarch to observe the Fourth of July, commemorating England's loss of the thirteen colonies. The final drives of the war, first by the Germans and then by the allies, expanded the casualty lists but ended the conflict, and sent thrones tumbling all over Europe. No suggestion of such a change was heard in the United Kingdom. Tomorrow—Post-War Problems.

Social and Personal

J. B. Kittrell returned today from Chicago.

L. Ames Brown of New York, is spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Taft are in High Point attending the Furniture Exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Wilder have moved from West Fourth street to the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Clark on Holly street.

Mrs. A. E. Smith of Waycross, Ga., is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Woodward.

E. P. VanDyke and G. E. Woolard are in High Point to attend the Furniture Exposition and to buy furniture for the Greenville and Williamston stores.

Mrs. D. M. Clark was hostess at a most enjoyable meeting of her bridge club on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Holly street.

Tables for club members and several other guests were placed in a sitting of gladioli and snapdragons. During the game the hostess, assisted by Mrs. David J. Whichard, Jr. and Mrs. T. H. Wilder, served delicious refreshments.

Scoring high for club members, Miss Ada James was awarded an attractive vase, and Mrs. W. L. Whedbee, a picture for high visitor's prize.

Captain Kidd Amateur Hour. The Tau Sigma Sigma fraternity of East Carolina Teachers College will sponsor "Captain Kidd's Amateur Hour" in the Austin Auditorium on Friday evening, January 24, at eight o'clock.

Leave for Chapel Hill. Mr. and Mrs. David J. Whichard, Jr. left this morning for Chapel Hill, where Mr. Whichard will attend the Press Institute.

Visitor at College. Miss Haven Smith, assistant dean of women of Duke University, will be the annual speaker of the Y. W. C. A., at the college on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

While here Miss Smith will be the guest of Miss Eunice McGee at Ragdale Hall.

Mrs. Dupree Entertains. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. C. L. Dupree very graciously entertained at two tables of bridge.

In the living room the tables were arranged in a colorful setting of flowers.

As the conclusion of play, Mrs. C. E. Rice who compiled high score, was awarded an attractive novelty. The consolation went to Mrs. L. M. Ernest.

The hostess served delicious refreshments, assisted by Mrs. Allen. Those enjoying Mr. Dupree's hospitality were Messdames C. B. Rice, L. M. Ernest, Clifton Stokes, Bernice Allen, Thomas Whichard, E. L. Willard, J. E. Dees, J. A. Joyner.

4-H Council. The 4-H Council consisting of all officers and leaders will meet in the Third Street School auditorium Saturday, January 25, at 1:30 p. m. Each member of the council should be present as there are several matters that you'll hate to miss. The meeting will be a short one.

Important Call Meeting. There will be an important meeting of Pitt County Alumni Association of the University of North Carolina at Sheppard Memorial Library, Friday, January 24, at 7:30 p. m.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dees. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dees had as dinner guests last evening, Mr. Mark, a member of the Major Bowes amateurs.

Frances and Bryce Sigmon, III. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Sigmon will be sorry to learn that their little daughter, Frances, Harlan, and their little son, Bryce Sigmon, Jr., are ill with bronchial pneumonia.

Troop 30 Boy Scouts. Dr. Ennett, merit badge counselor for public health, will speak to Troop 30 Boy Scouts on Friday evening in the Rotary Club.

Patrols will begin the basketball schedule.

"Mathematical Nuts To Be Cracked." "Mathematical Nuts to be Cracked," a clever playlet composed by Miss Xylia Cooper of Wallace, a member of the sophomore class, was presented by the Mathematics Club of East Carolina Teachers College last night at 8:45 in the Austin auditorium.

Every one of the 36 members of the club had some part in the production. The plan of the day was that of the old-fashioned Friday afternoon public spelling-bee with catchy problems in arithmetic given to the pupils to be solved instead of words to be spelled.

Miss Cooper herself was the teacher, and the stage audience was from members of the club.

Miss Annie Morris Whitley of Wilson, is president of the club, Miss Belle Kearney of Oxford, is vice-president and chairman of the program committee, and Miss Mary Lyon Showell of Oxford, is secretary and treasurer.

Misses Graham and Williams of the mathematics department, are the faculty advisers.

Hostess To Bridge Club. Last evening at her home on Evans street, Mrs. W. S. Tyson was hostess at a delightful meeting of her bridge club.

In addition to club members, Mrs. Tyson had as guests, Mrs. David Evans, Miss Fay Barnes and Miss Jane Hall.

Bowls of narcissi decorated the rooms where tables were placed. At the conclusion of the game Mrs. Marvin Blount was given a bowl of lilies of the valley for high score.

The hostess served a tempting salad course.

E.C.T.C. Girls To Play Raleigh. East Carolina Teachers College girls will play the Beauty Culture School basketball team of Raleigh tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

This is the second game this season for the Teachers and the second game played in Greenville.

The line-up for the Ramblers will probably be: Forwards, L. Martin, Blanton and Tyson; guards, Capt. Martin, Smithson and Pleasant. The line-up for the Beauty Culture School is not available.

To Go to Richmond. Smith Electric company, dealers in Greenville for Frigidaire corporation has received an invitation from R. P. Trant, Inc., distributors at Norfolk, to meet with officials of Frigidaire at the John Marshall Hotel, Richmond, on Feb. 3 for a preview of 1936 models and sales and advertising plans.

He will take with him his salesmen, so that they, too, may witness the presentation of 1936 plans.

Frank R. Pierce, manager of Frigidaire's household division, will head a party of Dayton, O., officials who will come to Richmond for the conference, Mr. Trant said.

"Frigidaire has interesting sales and advertising plans in the making for its 1936 selling activities," he said, "and is calling its field organization of nearly 20,000 men together in strategically located cities for presentation of the new models and plans."

Class in Story Telling. The members of the class in story-telling were the story-tellers for a story hour at the January meeting of the Primary Club of the college, which was held on Tuesday night.

Miss Mary Gorham had charge of the meeting. Miss Edna Darden told the story of "The Lost Boat." Miss Tressie Auman "The Pied Piper of Hamelin." Miss Myra Westbrook "Mrs. Grasshopper Gay" and Miss Julia Underwood read a story from "The School in the Hills."

A report on what was done with the dollars which members of the club dressed at their December meeting, was made. Two of the dolls were given to children in Miss Redwine's room and one to a child in Miss McGee's room. These children thought they were left by Santa Claus.

EX-PREMIER OF HUNGARY HAILS SCOUTING AS AID IN PROMOTING PEACE. The Boy Scout movement throughout the world is hailed as one of the greatest forces for world peace and understanding by Count Paul Teleki, former Prime Minister of Hungary and now Honorary Chief Scout of that country, who recently visited the United States in connection with the celebration of the Carnegie Centenary. During his stay he visited the national office of the Boy Scouts of America in New York, and its national training center, the Mortimer L. Schiff Scout Reservation at Mendenham, N. J.

Introduced to a group of national scout officials in New York, Count Teleki said, "Of course, we cannot promise the world that the sun will rise on a happier day tomorrow, but we are convinced in the long run that the Scout Movement and other movements of similar nature will help materially to gain world comity."

Count Teleki, an active leader of Scouting in his native land for many years, was the camp chief of the Fourth World Scout Jamboree held in Hungary in 1933, in which

HOFFMAN, TEN TIMES POLITICAL WINNER, CALLED 'GO-GETTER' IN HOME BAILIWICK

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, who startled the world when he broke the Lindbergh case "wide open" again by granting Bruno Richard Hauptmann an eleventh-hour reprieve, is known in home bailiwick as a "go-getter."

At 19 he entered the World war a buck private and came out two years later a captain. Never in his ten campaigns for public office has he lost a fight. Even when he ran for governor in 1934, the year of the big Democratic landslide, he won under the Republican banner with an 8,000 majority when every index pointed to defeat by 100,000.

Ever since he displayed six years ago his desire to become governor he has been ruthlessly hounded and ridiculed by his enemies, but steadily he grew stronger and stronger. "Hal" Hoffman knows a secret. "Treat people right," says he, "and they're your friends."

Answers All Mail. Right now, when public journals are saying nasty things about gubernatorial "interference" with the machinery of justice, Governor Hal Hoffman is making political hay.

Neither fan mail nor pan mail winds up in Hoffman's wastebasket. Every letter of the thousands received in his office is answered by the governor. Maybe he didn't dictate the answer, but this much is certain: he read the reply, and the signature at the bottom is his. Only a few hundred letters were received each day until the nocturnal visit, but now they have grown tremendously and come from all over the country.

'Hi-De-Ho' Campaign. The governor is a man of personal following—a following not confined to his home state. Broadway and Hollywood have come to his assistance many a time. For a year before he became candidate for governor, high-priced stars came in droves to perform at his "Saturday shindigs" in a local ballroom with no ticket-takers at the doors.

The performers, it was said, received nothing. "Hal" Hoffman, they boasted, was their friend. And when they appeared on New Jersey stages they often dropped subtle boosts for "Hal." His enemies called it the "hi-de-ho campaign."

A man of swift energy, he often stays up all night. Rarely does he appear at his desk—one or another later than 7:30 in the morning. Persons who know him well say he eats more church suppers than any man in New Jersey. He continually flits from one public gathering to another defending the sales tax he won after six months' fight, only to see it repealed.

Funster. During the past year he has spread out over the country, flying from one convention to another. He stands high in the circles of World war veterans, and in his out-of-date speeches he tut-tuts the Roosevelt administration. "Back to the constitution," is the gist of his national platform so far.

Once regarded as one of New Jersey's handsomest men, the governor has grown portly and shows signs of wear the past five years. He never exercises. When he wants to relax he just sits and smokes long cigars. His sense of humor is well known. One of his favorite tricks is to pull a black typewriter brush out of his desk and place it under his nose, let his hair fall over his forehead like Adolf Hitler's, and thrust a hand forward in Nazi salute.

Not long ago a stranger, wishing to get quick audience with the governor by pretending to be a personal friend, approached the governor himself without knowing it and asked: "Where's Harold?" "Which would you prefer," queried the governor, "chocolate or vanilla?" The governor has a Negro aide named Harold.

Golf Green Doctor. As a professional doctor of golf greens, John Monteith, Jr.'s arch enemy is fairway weeds. Monteith's special job is to develop better golfing greens and more efficient means of killing weeds. He has an office in the U. S. department of agriculture in Washington, but the U. S. golf association pays the expenses. If Monteith can develop a new kind of grass suitable for golf greens in three years he considers himself lucky. His most recent discovery was a chemical combination which will kill weeds but not harm grass. It is still in the experimental stage, he says. Color is impor-

Have plenty of strong, vigorous, well-grown plants for early setting. Nothing adds more to prospects for a good crop than uniform, thrifty plants at planting time.

To grow the right kind of plants means much care with your plant bed—carefully made and properly fertilized. The selection of the right sort of Plant Bed Fertilizer is of great importance, and may mean the difference between a fine crop and just an average crop.

V-C Prolife Plant Bed Fertilizer is formulated precisely in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee of Tobacco Specialists of the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the Tobacco Belt, plus our own knowledge and experience in the manufacture of the right sort of Plant Bed Goods. It is non-acid forming and contains the right amount of soluble magnesium recommended to prevent sand down. The Potash is from Sulphate of Potash and Sulphate of Potash Magnesia, and the complete mixture is free from Chlorine. We believe, and thousands of the best Tobacco Growers say, that V-C Plant Bed Fertilizers are made right.

London, (AP)—When the newly-proclaimed king of England was Prince of Wales he praised womanhood in a London speech, saying: "You will not get far without the help of the women. With it you can do most anything, for women have a gift of sympathy and self-sacrifice that carries all before it." Said a London newspaper: "It is a high compliment to woman, but there is still a higher one which a bachelor prince could pay."

Have plenty of strong, vigorous, well-grown plants for early setting. Nothing adds more to prospects for a good crop than uniform, thrifty plants at planting time.

To grow the right kind of plants means much care with your plant bed—carefully made and properly fertilized. The selection of the right sort of Plant Bed Fertilizer is of great importance, and may mean the difference between a fine crop and just an average crop.

V-C Prolife Plant Bed Fertilizer is formulated precisely in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee of Tobacco Specialists of the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the Tobacco Belt, plus our own knowledge and experience in the manufacture of the right sort of Plant Bed Goods. It is non-acid forming and contains the right amount of soluble magnesium recommended to prevent sand down. The Potash is from Sulphate of Potash and Sulphate of Potash Magnesia, and the complete mixture is free from Chlorine. We believe, and thousands of the best Tobacco Growers say, that V-C Plant Bed Fertilizers are made right.

LOVELY LEGS MEAN LOVELY EYES

"To have lovely eyes, one must have lovely legs," says Henry Waxman, New York color photographer. "If legs are beautiful, if torso is beautiful, if face is beautiful, then eyes are beautiful," he insists. Betty Lomax, Dallas, Tex., model, is waiting to have Waxman photograph her eyes—which the photographer considers "tops for brown eyes." (Associated Press Photo)

THE BOOMERANG CLUE BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: Much to the disappointment of Lady Frances Derwent, the youngest of the body which Bobby Jones and Dr. Thomas found at the bottom of a cliff indicated that the man simply had fallen over. He is identified by a Mrs. Cayman as Alexander Frichard, her brother, the verdict of the jury is that the whole thing is an accident, and Bobby's only puzzle is that Mrs. Cayman looks so little like the photograph he had seen in the dead man's pocket.

Chapter Seven SNUBBED

WHAT bloodthirsty instincts you have Frankie," Bobby said. "I know it's probably atavism (however do you pronounce it?—I've never been sure) Don't you think so? I'm sure I'm atavistic. My nickname at school was Monkey Face."

"Do monkeys like murder?" queried Bobby.

"You sound like a correspondence in a Sunday paper," said Frankie. "Our correspondents views on this subject are solicited."

"You know," said Bobby reverting to the original topic, "I don't agree with you about the female Cayman. Her photograph was 'ove-ly'."

"Touched up, that's all," interrupted Frankie.

"Well, then, it was so much touched up that you wouldn't have known them for the same person."

"You're blind," said Frankie. "The photographer had done all that the art of photography could do, but it was still a nasty bit of work."

"I absolutely disagree with you," said Bobby coldly. "Anyway where did you see it?"

"In the local 'Evening Echo.'"

"It probably reproduced badly."

"It seems to me you're absolutely batty," said Frankie crossly. "Over a pointed-up raddled busy—yes, I said hussy like the Cayman."

"Frankie," said Bobby, "I'm surprised at you in the Vicarage drive. Too semi holy ground, so to speak."

"Well, you shouldn't have been so ridiculous."

"There was a pause, then Frankie's sudden fit of temper abated."

"What is ridiculous," she said, "is to quarrel about the damned woman I came to suggest a round of golf. What about it?"

"O. K., Chief," said Bobby happily.

THEY set off amicably together, and their conversation was of such things as slicing and pulling and how to perfect a chip shot onto the green.

The recent tragedy passed quit out of mind until Bobby holding a long putt at the eleventh to halve the hole, suddenly gave an exclamation.

"What is it?"

"Nothing, I've just remembered something."

"What?"

"Well, these people, the Caymans—they came round and asked if the fellow had said anything before he died—and I told them he hadn't."

"Well?"

"And now I've just remembered that he did."

"Not one of your brightest mornings, in fact."

"Well, you see, it wasn't the sort of thing they meant. That's why, I suppose, I didn't think of it."

"What did he say?" asked Frankie curiously.

"He said: 'Why didn't they ask Evans?'"

"What a funny thing to say. Nothing else?"

"No. He just opened his eyes and said that—quite suddenly—and then died, poor chap."

"Oh, well," said Frankie, turning it over in her mind, "I don't see that you need worry. It wasn't important."

"No, of course, not. Still I wish I'd just mentioned it. You see, I said he'd said nothing at all."

"Well, it amounts to the same thing," said Frankie. "I mean it isn't like 'Toll Glays' I always loved her, or 'The Will is in the Walnut Bureau' or any of the proper romantic 'Last Words' there are in books."

"You don't think it's worth while writing about it to them?"

"I shouldn't bother. It couldn't be important."

"I expect you're right," said Bobby and turned his attention with renewed vigor to the game.

But the matter did not really disappear itself from his mind. It was a small point but it troubled him. He felt very faintly uncomfortable about it. Frankie's point of view was as he felt sure, the right and sensible one. The thing was of no importance—let it go.

But his conscience continued to reproach him faintly. He had said that the dead man had said nothing. That wasn't true. It was all very trivial and silly, but he couldn't feel quite comfortable about it.

FINALLY that evening on an impulse he sat down and wrote to Mr. Cayman.

Dear Mr. Cayman: I have just remembered that your brother-in-law did actually say something before he died. I think the exact words were "Why didn't they ask Evans?" I apologize for not mentioning this this morning, but I attached no importance to the words at the time and so, I suppose, they slipped my memory.

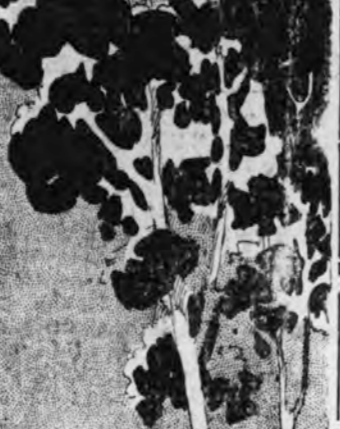

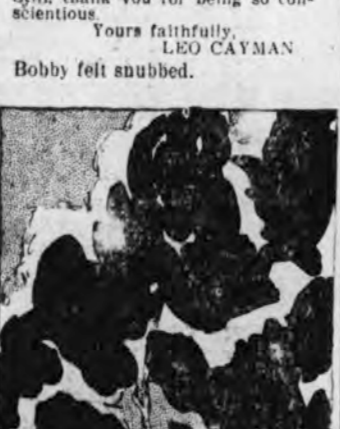

Yours truly, ROBERT JONES

On the next day but one he received a reply.

Dear Mr. Jones: Your letter of 6th instant to hand. Many thanks for repeating my poor brother-in-law's last words so punctiliously in spite of their trivial character. What my wife hoped was that her brother might have left her some last message. Still, thank you for being so conscientious.

Yours faithfully, LEO CAYMAN

Bobby felt snubbed.

"It wasn't important," said Frankie.

On the following day Bobby received a letter of quite a different nature.

It's all fixed, old boy. I've had a letter in an illiterate scrawl which reflected no credit on the extensive public school which had educated him. Actually got five cars yesterday for fifteen pounds the lot.

At the moment they won't exactly go, but we can tinker them up sufficiently. I think. Push it all, a car's a car after all. So long as it takes the purchaser home without breaking down, that's all he expects. I thought of opening up Monday week and am relying on you. So don't let me down, will you, old boy?

I must say old Aunt Carrie was a sport. I once broke the window of an old boy next door to her who'd been rule to her about her cats, and she never got over it. Sent me a five every Christmas, and now this.

We're bound to succeed. The thing's a dead cert. I mean, a car's a car after all. You can pick up up for nothing. Put a lick of paint on, and that's all the ordinary fool notices. The thing will go with a bang. Now don't forget. Monday week. I'm relying on you.

Yours ever, BADGER

Bobby informed his father that he would be going up to London Monday week to take a job. The description of the job did not rouse the Vicar to anything like enthusiasm. He had, it may be pointed out, come across Badger Headon in the past. He merely treated Bobby to a long lecture on the advisability of not making himself liable for anything. Since he was not an authority on business matters his advice was technically vague, but its meaning was unmistakable.

Bobby is surprised, tomorrow, by the offer of a new job.

lean president-makers as a result of an exchange of views within the last month. They represent the ideas of eastern, middle and far western leaders who make a business of ascertaining how public sentiment is running. The round up also results from a process of elimination. The GOP chiefs figure that Frank Knox of Chicago has "blown," to use their language, and that Senator Borah will back out of the race gracefully—as usual.

The topnotch Republicans have no preference between the Kansas and Michigan candidates. When they choose will depend on how the two wear with the public between now and June. But they want an all-western ticket to refute Democratic charges that interests nominate the party. That's why they prefer Mr. Steiwer for second place rather than a Jimmie Wadsworth, Walter Edge or any other man who lives within 1000 miles of downtown Manhattan.

RAID: A flood of political literature pouring into party headquarters these days bears out Jim Farley's prediction that the 1936 presidential contest will be a "dirty campaign." The material is distributed anonymously on cheaply printed paper. It seems to represent the efforts of individuals or groups to vent their spleen.

One dodger revives the exploded charge that President Roosevelt headed a corporation to "speculate" in German marks in post-war days. The corporation's counsel, a Hoover man, testified in 1932 that every investor drew out a profit from transferring declining marks into German securities. Another circular lists the President's "foreign advisers." It includes such distinguished names as Justices Brandeis and Cardozo of the Supreme Court.

A paper published at Atlanta is apparently designed to inflame southern white voters against the administration. One photo shows a colored man sitting at a desk and the caption describes him as "Confidential Secretary to President Roosevelt." The only mistake is that the photographed figure happens to be Louis Howe's messenger boy.

POPULAR: Republican Steerers in the House scratched their heads to find a place where Rep. Verner Main of Michigan would have no chance to smash the party's economic furniture. So they assigned the first avowed Townsendite to be sent to Congress from east of the Rockies to three committees that will keep him busy—Census, Mines, and Mining and Flood Control.

Behind the scenes bosses on both sides of the aisle are handling the Townsend bloc with the utmost tenderness. Legislative timekeepers have allotted the $200, a monthers as many hours as they have counted off for members who argue that the doctor's program would bring on a dark day of economic judgment. Even his critics pay tribute to his sincerity, although they weep over his mathematics.

There's a reason for not antagonizing the Townsendites. Two subjects predominate in Congressional mailbags at this session—the Townsend plan and neutrality. But the demands for generous pensions outnumber anti-war pleas by three-to-one. The next most popular topic is the bonus. The letter-writers seem to have the "gimme's."

COINCIDENCE: Although Treasury spokesmen can't afford to advertise their anger, they're growing sensitive to whispers that they are using the income tax as a political bludgeon. To refute gossip that they withheld new tax assessments against Johnnie Raskob and Pierre DuPont until the eye of the American Liberty League dinner in order to embarrass the anti-New Dealers, they quote the record.

The Income Tax Bureau's first demand for additional taxes on 1929 returns was levied on December 8, 1932—not, the Morgenthauers point out, six years after the two thought they had paid off Uncle Sam for that year. There have been intermittent petitions and amended answers ever since. In March, 1933, the government imposed a further levy on Dr. duPont based on losses sustained from sales of stock to Mr. Raskob.

Last November the bureau asked the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals—a judicial body—for additional time to file an amended answer to Mr. duPont. Chairman Black extended the time until December 15, and the government petitioned for another extension. Chairman Black then named January 6 as the last day for federal action. Neither he nor the revenue men knew then that the League planned to stage its coming-out party on January 25. It appears to be just another political coincidence—or collusion.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN WORSE: Several New York bank presidents criticized the justice of federal deposit insurance premiums the deposit insurance law declared unconstitutional. Insiders now get word that Congressional leaders are all set to meet that challenge by introducing an amendment or two to the act. One such amendment would jack up the premium rate on smaller deposits (including the insured portion of large deposits). Another would broaden the law to cover all deposits in full.

Either of these alternatives would be much worse than the present system from the bankers' viewpoint. Chances are they will lay off legal assaults on the act rather than risk such a counterattack.

PUSH: The bond market has shown exceptional strength since the first of the year. Financial vintners say they have never seen anything like it. They credit the Securities Exchange Commission with an unintentional assist.

There is always a large increase in surplus funds available for investment after January 1 and July 1 because of interest and dividend payments and maturities. In the old days this cash used to flow largely into the new securities market. But now few corporate issues come out around those dates.

This is because the Commission requires a certified earnings statement from a new issue registrant as of some date within the 90 days preceding the application. For most companies this would mean preparing an expensive special report in order to bring out a first-of-the-year offering. So they tend to wait until their regular year-end (or midyear) report is ready and use that. Such reports aren't usually finished until February or August respectively. Then another delay of 20 days is imposed by the law before the securities can be sold.

The result is to bring peaks of new corporate financing around March and September. January and July money is therefore driven into the regular bond market instead of into new issues—pushing prices up. But they are likely to recede again when new securities are offered in large volume.

REASONABLE: The sudden appointment of William O. Douglas to fill the vacancy on the Securities Exchange Commission left Wall Street gasping. The profic winds of rumor had passed him by completely. The first reaction was: "Good grief! Another professor!"

But second thoughts were more encouraging. Douglas has the "normal" endorsement of both Chairman Jim Landis and ex-champion

Joe Kennedy. Word is that Douglas will string with Landis and give the "reasonable" element in the commission a majority. It has been evenly divided between "reasonable" and "radicals" ever since Kennedy quit.

HOLE: The AAA decision snarled FDR's budget in other ways besides the refunding of processing taxes. The budget included an estimate of $547,000,000 of revenue for the fiscal year 1937 from taxes incident to the Guffey act, the railroad pension act and the social security act.

New Yorkers figure there isn't a chance in the world that these levies will be collected. If the taxes are paid at all it will be to the courts under an escrow arrangement pending the Supreme Court's final ruling on the legality of the measures. The Treasury won't even get a smell of them for a long time to come—which will leave quite a hole in the estimates.

RULE: New York opinion is that Senator Nye's committee hasn't gotten very far in trying to show that Wilson's policy forced the United States into war.

Legal sharps foresee great difficulty in framing a neutrality law that would prevent a President from handling foreign affairs practically at his own discretion. So much goes on under the surface and so many factors enter into the making of policy that no strict law can cover them all. Besides, the conduct of foreign relations belongs to the President.

Evidently a deeper study is convincing lawmakers that they should lay down the unvarying rule, "Treat all belligerents alike," and let it go at that. Certainly the opposition to abandonment of commerce is growing.

SETBACKS: Financial circles get word that British propagandists are active again in Washington. Sir Arthur Willert, former Washington correspondent of the London Times has revisited his old haunts and been a guest at the White House. He did the smooth work for Balfour at the Washington naval conference. The Archbishop of York, who was to make a few propaganda speeches, changed his mind after being savagely attacked.

Comment runs that the setbacks to British propaganda usually operate in exact proportion to the activity of the workers. Something always happens to queer their ingenious efforts.

Many Agree with McDonald More Initiative Needed

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Jan. 23—There is general agreement here with the statement made by Dr. Ralph W. McDonald in a speech in Hickory Monday night to the effect that more local initiative and local interest are needed to restore the public schools to their proper position in North Carolina, and especially the strong intimation by McDonald that he believes the various local units must supplement the amount appropriated to the schools by the state with funds raised from local taxation.

But there is strong disagreement with his statement to the effect that the sales tax fordes were the ones who in 1933 were responsible for the battering down of the school appropriation. For the record, as contained in the Journal of the 1933 session of the general assembly, shows that if the anti-sales tax forces, under the leadership of Rep. Tam C. Bowle of Ashe county, had had their way, the school appropriation would have been only $10,000,000 a year instead of $16,000,000 a year.

In fact, the record shows that the house actually passed the appropriation bill containing the $10,000,000 a year appropriation for schools and refused to accept this small appropriation for schools. It is also recalled by all those who were members of the 1933 general assembly or who observed it, that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus did not advocate the sales tax until it became apparent that it would not be possible to provide more than $10,000,000 a year for the public schools without it. Observers also recall that the then famous "Cherry bloc" did not secede from the "Bowle bloc" which until that time dominated the house, until it became evident that a sales tax of some sort would be necessary to provide even $10,000,000 a year for the schools. These are not mere opinions. They are facts of record which may be verified from the Journal of the 1933 senate and house.

So Mr. McDonald is just mistaken when he says that the administration forces battered the school appropriation down to only $16,000,000 in 1933. For the facts show that it would have been $6,000,000 less than it was if the administration forces, under the leadership of Governor Ehringhaus had not insisted upon a minimum of $16,000,000 a year for the schools. It is generally known here that at one time Rep. A. D. McLean was convinced that $14,000,000 a year was the maximum which could be provided, even with a sales tax, and was ready to compromise at that figure. But the anti-sales taxers, led by Bowle and Van Watson, leader of the Fountain faction in the house and by others of the same group who are now backing McDonald for Governor, were determined not to go over $10,000,000 a year for the schools. Some of these also opposed any state-supported term in excess of six months.

As to the contention of Dr. McDonald that the 1933 general assembly deprived the schools of $8,000,000 a year they had formerly been getting from local taxes, few here agree. For most observers agree that even if the general assembly had permitted the counties, cities and towns to continue to levy supplemental taxes for schools, they could not and would not have collected them, since the property owners either could not or would not pay them. It is also pointed out that the only way the 1933 general assembly could be persuaded to adopt the state-supported eight months school term plan, was with the assurance that all local taxes for school maintenance would be removed. The reason many of the representatives from the smaller cities and counties voted for this plan was because they knew that if they were left up to local support, their four or five months of school, but there is real satisfaction in McDonald's urging the local subdivisions to take more interest in the schools, especially in the support of the schools and that he apparently realizes that if the schools are going to get any appreciable increase in school funds from now on, this income must come from local supplemental taxes instead of from state funds. For it is generally agreed that most of the subdivision are now able to increase their taxes somewhat and thus assume part of the expense of maintaining the schools again, now that the state has been carrying the entire load for three years. The general conviction has prevailed here for some time that these subdivisions which want more teachers, a ninth month, a twelfth grade and other things not now provided by the state, must provide these things from local funds.

GAME SET FOR FRIDAY NIGHT

Greenville Highs To Meet Tarboro Quint At Local Gym

The basketball quint of the Greenville High will clash with the team of the Tarboro High tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the local high school gymnasium.

Coach Reynolds May said today that he had put the boys through some strenuous training tactics so far this season and feels that the game with Tarboro will be won with no trouble at all.

The locals have lost only two games this season, and have combatted with some very efficient material since the season started in basketball. Those composing the varsity this year are all letter men of last year's loop and seem to be making great headway in securing basketball honors for the locals. It was rumored today, that Harry Rountree, who suffered injuries from a sprained ankle received in the Washington game two weeks ago will see action tomorrow night which will probably aid the local group in many ways.

The most outstanding game of the season will be that with the boys from Duke University, whom the locals are scheduled to face on Wednesday night of next week.
