SENATE GROUP APPROVES ACT OF NEUTRALITY

Measures Extend Arms Embargo Until May, 1937

DIVERGENT VIEW BROUGHT IN LINE

Compromise Bill Completely Omits Two Major Provisions of Act

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—The Senate foreign relations committee today approved unanimously an abridged neutrality bill extending the arms embargo features until May, 1937 but exempting the American republic from its application when attacked by non-American nations.

The compromise which brought several divergent factions into line completely omitted two major provisions of the administration's act. One would have permitted the President to impose peacetime quotas on "materials of war" such as oil, cotton and steel, and one would have permitted the chief executive to require that trade proceed with belligerents at their hipper risks.

Attached to the bill as agreed upon by the committee, however, was an authority for the President to embargo credit to belligerents although allowing short term commercial credit.

Two Pitt Schools Return To Duties Despite Bad Roads

Grifton and Winterville Resume Classroom Work; Ayden Scheduled to Start Work Thursday

Although roads in Pitt continue in bad shape, two schools in the county system opened today and another is making plans to reopen tomorrow. D. H. Conley, superintendent, announced today.

The Grifton and Winterville units opened today and the Ayden school is preparing to resume work tomorrow. Others in the county will not open before Monday.

School buses of the schools operating are traveling over all roads that are passable. Parents were urged to either take their children to school or to the bus lines in cases where the trucks find it impossible to traverse the regular routes.

The Pitt county schools are already two weeks behind in their regular schedule, the time having been missed on account of bad roads and weather conditions.

The Winterville school is three weeks behind, having closed early for the Christmas holidays while a deep well was being dug on the grounds.

Only eight days of work have been completed for the fifth month, where the regular schedule calls for completion of the month February 14th.

William L. House, prominent farmer of the Frog Level community died yesterday afternoon at five o'clock in Pitt General hospital, from an attack of pneumonia of only two days duration.

William Lemuel House was born April 23, 1871 in Sampson County. He was a son of the late John Herring and Penelope Chestnut House. He lived near Greenville. While there he became a member of the Christian Church.

Surviving are his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Fannie McLawhorn, daughter of the late Jerry and Sadye McLawhorn of Grifton, two sons, Roland L. House, of Pottsville, and Jerry House, of Honolulu, Hawaii; three daughters, Mrs. Elmer McLawhorn, Mrs. Bruce McLawhorn and Mrs. Larry Stocks, of Pitt County; one brother, J. L. House, of Manor, Ga., and a sister Mrs. Will Lassiter, Live Oaks, Florida.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Today marks the 127th anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States. He was assassinated April 15, 1865.

Roosevelt Compared With Emancipator By Friends

Foes, However, Contrast President with Lincoln

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Lincoln's birthday brought much political cannonading as President Roosevelt and the great emancipator were compared by the New Deal's friends and contrasted by its foes.

By Secretary Ickes Mr. Roosevelt was described as "the man who bravely tilts his lance against special privilege and entrenched greed."

To Senator Hastings (R-Dela.) the President appeared as "this profligate son" who "rushed on in his wild career."

The skirmish within the Republican party livened with the news from Illinois that Senator Borah would compete in the primary there. Support of Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, said his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination would be announced formally tomorrow.

Coincidentally, Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, another whose name looms large in Republican councils, was described as favored for President by 19 of the 21 Republican county committees in New Jersey.

The Republicans devoted today, the 127th anniversary of Lincoln's birth, for the most part to attacks on the administration.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a lunch in Wilmington, Delaware Senator Hastings declared that at no time in the nation's history "not even when war threatened the nation did we ever find so much confusion, disorder and uncertainty as exists today."

FILM PLAYERS LOSE JEWELS

Jackie Coogan Held Up in Chicago Loop by Gunmen

Chicago, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable, film players, reported to police today that at the end of a 50-mile-an-hour chase through the Chicago Loop two gunmen curbed their car and robbed them of $500 and jewels they valued at $5,000.

Miss Grable said she made an unsuccessful attempt to save the five karat diamond engagement ring Coogan gave her December 9. One of the robbers saw her efforts to hide it on the floor of the car, she said, and threatened her.

Coogan related that he and Miss Grable had been dancing at the Congress Hotel and had started to drive back to his Sherman where they were staying during a stage engagement.

100 ARRESTED IN SERIES OF BERLIN RAIDS

Roman Catholics and Communists Held in Germany

HOLD CATHOLICS FOR COLLUSION

Official News Organ Says Priests' Robes No Safeguard From Punishment

Berlin, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Charges of collusion between Roman Catholics and communists were heard in Germany today as at least 100 Catholics and communists were under arrest after simultaneous raids by secret police.

Catholics were particularly charged with conspiracy with communists in the Rhineland, the center of the police roundup.

The official organ of Adolf Hitler's blackshirt guards, Das Schwarze Korps, issued a sharp challenge to charges that the Catholic church in Germany was being persecuted.

In reality, the organ asserted, it was the old story as "old as the church itself" which the paper said always raised a cry of "persecution" whenever its political ambitions were thwarted.

The paper said "no Catholic priest had been arrested because of the spiritual welfare work but priests robes are not safeguarded against punishment for treasonable activities."

Severe sentences to members of organizations who allegedly offended Nazi laws in some way or other became known.

OFFICER ASKS MORE DETAILS

Minister Requests Information About Missionary

Addis Ababa, Feb. 12.—(AP)—United States Minister Resident Cornelius Van H. Engert requested fuller information from the Ethiopian government today concerning the detention of the American missionary, Rev. Harold Street in remote Gamo Province.

The minister indicated he was concerned over a possibility that rules calling for removal of missionaries from Ethiopian danger zones might be used as a tool for extortion.

The minister's wife in a letter to the Ethiopian government disclosing that her husband and the Rev. John Trewan, a Canadian member of the Sudan interior mission, had been held since January 27, blamed a native landlord for the arrest, charging blackmail.

Nonagenarian Takes Paper for 2 Years

The first person to take advantage of The Daily Reflector's special subscription offer for Dollar Day of two years for six dollars was H. J. Stokes of Greenville rural route No. 3, probably Pitt county's oldest citizen.

Mr. Stokes has been a continuous subscriber to The Reflector since its publication started more than 50 years ago. The aged Pitt man is in his 96th year, having recently celebrated his 95th birthday anniversary.

Because of his dimming eyesight, Mr. Stokes is unable to read the paper himself, but each day he has some member of the household read it to him.

One of Mr. Stokes' sons, who placed the subscription for his father, stated the man had no hesitancy in subscribing to his favorite paper for another two years.

Mr. Stokes is able to get around and shows much interest in the things about him. He has five living children, the youngest of which is 51 years of age.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker. WEST: President Roosevelt who prides himself on his political intuition, has set ideas on how his reelection campaign should be handled. They also dovetail with his deep conviction of the role his personally-led party should assume in national affairs.

In laying inner plans, FDR advises his associates to look up the political paces which report the reelection of Woodrow Wilson. The President feels that every Democratic nominee since 1916 overlooked its lessons. Candidates Cox, Davis and Smith, he thinks, blundered in voicing their hear-ye's to conservative eastern interests. As far back as 1920, when he ran for the vice-presidency, he named the

TESTIFIES AS TO DEATH WOMAN

Doctor Says Woman Could Not Have Fallen in Position

Carthage, N. C., Feb. 12.—(AP)—Belief that Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson could not have fallen into the position in which she was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in her garage last February, was expressed by Dr. W. W. Marr in testimony today to the jury trying the $560,000 suit over her will.

Dr. Marr was the physician first called when a negro butler discovered the death of the Statler heiress. Emmanuel Burch, the butler testified yesterday that the body was not moved before Dr. Marr's arrival.

Describing the position of the body as kneeling on the running board, the upper part slumped on the floor boards, Dr. Marr gave it his opinion that Mr. Davidson could not have fallen into the posture.

Buffalo and New York interests were charged with trying to "capitalize" on the situation of H. Bradley Davidson, Jr. after the death of his wife in a letter ready to the jury.

The letter ready by J. M. Broughton of counsel for foster relatives of Mrs. Davidson, who are seeking the will, was written by W. Barton Leach, Harvard law professor. Miss Isabelle Baer, friend of Mrs. Davidson after the latter's death.

"Brad, without fault on his part, the letter said, 'has been placed in a very tough spot and Buffalo and New York interests are trying to capitalize on it.'"

OUTLOOK FOR TOBACCO CROP IS FAVORABLE

Sales in State Total 543,232,940 Pounds Through January

AVERAGE PRICE $20.50 FOR YEAR

Tobacco Crop in This State Last Year Second Largest in N.C.'s History

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Tobacco sales by producers in North Carolina through January totalled 543,232,940 pounds, an increase of 38 per cent over last season, and brought $11,362,547.70.

"The outlook for flue cured tobacco in 1937 is rather favorable," the crop reporting service commented in its sales summary.

The average price this season up to this month was $20.50 a hundred pounds, a drop of about 8 per cent under the 1935 season average to February 1.

January sales in the Old Belt aggregated 19,753,779 pounds, and in the Burley houses at Asheville 83,316 pounds were sold.

The 1935 North Carolina crop was shown to have been the second largest in the state's history, being exceeded only by the 1930 crop when 585,990,000 pounds were sold at an average of $12.90 per hundred. Total production in the state for 1935 was set at about 561,000,000 pounds, allowing 18,000,000 to be sold in other states in excess of what was brought from other states to the Tar Heel markets.

"The outlook for flue cured tobacco in 1937 is rather favorable," the record yield, obtained in the 1935 season and the surplus tobacco that resulted will replenish the short stock to a point that will make slight reductions in 1936 desirable.

Pitt Departments Are Transferred From Court House

Offices of County Health Department and Home Demonstration Now in Old Tucker Home

Offices of the Pitt County health department and of the home demonstration agent were being moved today to the old Tucker residence on Third street and work will be resumed as usual tomorrow.

The Pitt County Alcoholic control board will be located in the offices vacated by the health department.

Each of the departments has more room in the new quarters and directors declare they are well pleased with the new arrangements.

E. L. Harrell, supervisor of community sanitation, will be located in the health offices and will work out from that department. His services are being supplied by the WPA.

Both Miss Ethel Nice, the home demonstration agent, and Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, are located on the second floor of the Tucker home, which was recently purchased by the county.

SYNOPSIS: Frankie Derwent and Bobby Jones are driving up to London from the Bassington-French place in Hampshire. Bobby is disguised as Hubert, Frankie's chauffeur, this ruse being part of their attempt to catch the man who pushed a fellow they believe was the explorer, Alan Carstairs over a cliff in Wales—to his death.

Chapter 24 FREDERICK SPRAGGE

THEY drove to Brook Street. Frankie rang the bell and was admitted, Bobby remaining outside. Presently Frankie opened the door again and beckoned him in.

"There's one other thing I forgot to tell you," said Frankie. "On the 15th, the day you were poisoned, Bassington-French was at Staverley, but Nicholson was away—supposedly at a conference in London. And his car is a dark blue Talbot."

"And he has access to morphia," said Bobby.

"It's not exactly evidence, I suppose," said Bobby, "but it fits in nicely."

Frankie went to a side table and returned with a telephone directory. "What are you going to do?"

"I'm looking up the name Rivington."

She turned pages rapidly. "A. Rivington & Sons, builders. B. A. C. Rivington, dental surgeon. D. Rivington, Shoeter's Hill—I think not. Miss Florence Rivington. Col. H. Rivington, D.S.O.—that's more like it—Tite Street, Chelsea."

She continued her search. "There's M. R. Rivington, Onslow Square. And there's William Rivington at Hampstead. I think Onslow Square and Tite Street are the most likely ones. The Rivingtons, Bobby, have got to be seen without delay."

"I think you're right."

Frankie reflected for a minute or two. "I think," she said, "that you'll have to go. Do you see, you could be the junior partner of a solicitor's firm?"

"That seems a most gentlemanly rôle," said Bobby. "I was afraid you might think of something much worse than that."

She left the room and returned with a card.

"Mr. Frederick Spragge," she said, handing it to Bobby. "You are a young member of the firm of Spragge, Spragge, Jenkinson and Spragge of Bloomsbury Square."

"Did you invent that firm, Frankie?"

"Certainly not. They're Father's solicitors."

"What about clothes? Shall I ring up Badger to bring some along?"

Frankie looked doubtful. "I think, myself, that we'd better raid Father's wardrobe. His clothes won't fit you too badly."

A quarter of an hour later, Bobby, attired in a morning coat and striped trousers or exquisitely correct cut and possible fit, stood surveying himself in Lord Marchington's pier glass.

"SUPPOSING," said Bobby, pausing on the doorstep, "that Mr. M. R. Rivington of Onslow Square is himself a solicitor? That would be a blow."

"You'd better try the Tite Street colonel first," said Frankie. "He won't know anything about solicitors."

Accordingly Bobby took a taxi to Tite Street. Colonel Rivington was out. Mrs. Rivington, however, was at home. Bobby delivered over to the smart parlourmaid his card on which he had written "From Messrs. Spragge, Spragge, Jenkinson & Spragge. Very urgent."

The card and Lord Marchington's clothes preceded their effect upon the parlourmaid. He was shown into a beautifully and expensively furnished drawing-room, and presently Mrs. Rivington, beautifully and expensively dressed and made up, came into the room.

"I must apologize for troubling you, Mrs. Rivington," said Bobby. "But the matter is rather urgent and we must avoid the delay of letters."

Mrs. Rivington was clearly a woman of more looks than brains, who accepted things as they were presented to her.

"Oh, do sit down," she said. "I got the telephone message just now from your office saying that you were on your way here."

Bobby mentally applauded Frankie for this last-minute flash of brilliance. He sat down and endeavored to look local.

"It is about our client, Mr. Alan Carstairs," he said.

can do except to terminate the treaties "in accordance with the terms thereof." But these agreements provide that they can be broken only after a year's notice has been given. During that period there would be no legal method for barring war supplies to those who had the money to buy them.

BIDS: The invitation of an indicted politician to a White House reception was one of those awkward accidents which happen in the very first of families. But the presence of a certain out-of-towner

"Oh, yes?"

"He may have mentioned that we were acting for him."

"Did he now? I believe he did," said Mrs. Rivington, opening very large blue eyes. She was clearly of a suggestive type. "But of course I know about you. You acted for Dolly Maltravers, didn't you, when she shot that dreadful dressmaker man? I suppose you know all the details?"

"We know a lot that never comes into court," he said, smiling.

"Oh, I suppose you must," Mrs. Rivington looked at him enviously. "Tell me, did she really—that woman was she dressed as a mean said?"

"The story was contradicted in court," said Bobby solemnly. He slightly dropped the corner of his eyelid.

"Oh, I see," breathed Mrs. Rivington, enraptured.

"About Mr. Carstairs," said Bobby, feeling that he had now established friendly relations and could get on with his job. "He left England very suddenly, as perhaps you know?"

Mrs. Rivington shook her head. "Has he left England? I didn't know. We haven't seen him for some time."

"Did he tell you how long he expected to be over here?"

"He said he might be here for a week or two, or it might be six months or a year."

"Where was he staying?"

"At the Savoy."

"And you saw him last—when?"

"Oh, about three weeks or a month ago, I can't remember."

"You took him down to Staverley one day?"

"Of course! I believe that's the last time we saw him. He rang up to know when he could see us. He'd just arrived in London, and Hubert was very put out because we were going up to Scotland the next day, and we were going down to Staverley to lunch and that night dining out with some dreadful people that we couldn't get out of, and he wanted to see Carstairs because he liked him so much, and so I said, 'My dear, let's take him down to the Bassington-Frenches with us. They won't mind. And we did. And, of course, they didn't.' She came breathlessly to a pause."

"Did he tell you his reasons for being in England?" asked Bobby.

"No. Did he have any? Oh, yes, I know. We thought it was something to do with that millionaire man, that friend of his, who had such a tragic death. Some doctor told him he had cancer, and he killed himself. A very wicked thing for a doctor to do, don't you think so? And they're quite wrong. Our doctor said the other day that my little girl had measles, and it turned out to be a sort of heat rash. I told Hubert I should change him."

IGNORING Mrs. Rivington's treatment of doctors as though they were library books, Bobby returned to the point.

"Did Mr. Carstairs know the Bassington-Frenches?"

"Oh, no. But I think he liked them. Though he was very queer and moody on the way back. I suppose something that had been said must have upset him. He's a Canadian, you know, and I often think Canadians are so touchy."

"You don't know what it was that upset him?"

"I haven't the least idea. The silliest things do it sometimes, don't they?"

"Did he take any walks in the neighborhood?" asked Bobby.

"Oh, no. What a very odd idea!" She stared at him.

Bobby tried again. "Was there a party? Did he meet any of the neighbors?"

"No, it was just ourselves and them. But it's odd your saying that—"

"Yes," said Bobby eagerly, as she paused.

"Because he asked a most frightful lot of questions about some people who lived near there."

"Do you remember the name?"

"No, I don't. It wasn't anyone very interesting—some doctor or other."

"Dr. Nicholson?"

"I believe that was the name. He wanted to know all about him and his wife and when they came there—all sorts of things. It seemed so odd when he didn't know them, and he wasn't a bit of a curious man as a rule. But, of course, perhaps he was only making conversation and couldn't think of anything to say. One does do things like that sometimes."

the Washington front. Then there came an official-looking missive. It was an invitation to sup with the President on the night he entertained his friends on the high bench. The recipient was dazed and flattered but he can't make out why he was so honored. Almost the only person he knows in Washington is his lawyer. In both cases the President was entirely ignorant of the invitation. These things are handled by secretaries and supernumeraries. Friends are often permitted to suggest names. But there will be closer check hereafter.

DEMAND: There was nothing accidental about the arrangement which permits Harold Ickes to follow Eugene Talmadge on the speech-making program before the Noon-day Club at Springfield, Ill. and it's a safe bet that home-town admirers of Abraham Lincoln will listen to more sizzling speeches than are usually delivered at this traditional celebration.

Mr. Ickes would speak last under the rules which govern precedence. A Cabinet member outranks a mere Governor except in the latter's own state, where the latter would take a bow. But Mr. Ickes stipulated that he would not perform unless he could go on after the Georgian suspected by New Dealers of having formed an alliance with American Liberty Leaguers. Mr. Ickes prepared a polite, formal address but he left Washington ready to throw it away and do some impromptu battling for "the boss."

The Cabinet member was prompted to demand the clean-up position by persons close to the White House and the Democratic National Committee.

MAIDS: A casual remark by J. P. Morgan dropped the neglected problem of domestic help into the middle of the front pages. But the news behind the news may not please the banker, who was arguing for higher taxes on the middle class.

Government economists are bold enough to differ from the financier. He set up a new "leisure class" when he said it consisted of all who could afford a maid and estimated the number at 30,000,000 families. They report that their researches disclose another sort of "leisure class."

It's made up of women who have entered full-time or part-time domestic service because they have lost out in factories, offices and stores.

They have taken work as house servants for as little as $2 a week, and sometimes for room-and-board.

AGREES: Anti-New Deal inner circles are getting more and more annoyed with Mr. Roosevelt. Every time they get their heavy artillery unlimbered and ready for action, their target nonchalantly strolls across to their side of the field and they have to start all over.

Three times lately this has happened. They were set to blast the President to the skies for seeking to evade the Supreme Court's AAA decision. Thereupon he urged Congress to repeal the abhead cotton, Kerr-Smith tobacco and potato control acts—and that was that. They were ready to hammer him for interfering with the judiciary (though some law restricting the Supreme Court's authority or increasing its membership.) So he refuses to do anything of the kind. The ringing salvos they planned to fire at the triplet burden of spending, taxation and debt lose much of their punch when he cuts off a billion dollars in unexpended appropriations, headlines the huge national deficit himself and declines to sponsor new taxes.

As one New Yorker laments: "How the heck can you argue with a man who insists—at least by implication—on agreeing with everything you say?"

SWALLOW: Congress may rave about monetary inflation and the White House may throw out stern hints about returning to a pay-as-you-go policy by levying new taxes to meet new appropriations. But financial insiders will lay you 10 to 1 that most of the cash the government needs for the bonus, relief and other items will be raised by good old orthodox Treasury borrowing.

The one thing New Yorkers admit Mr. Roosevelt has been consistent about for the past two years is his refusal to indulge in further experiments with the dollar. They can't see him climbing out on the inflation limb at this late date—unless farm pressure gets much hotter than it has so far—and the "rubber money" advocates in Congress aren't strong enough to put it over against his wishes. As for taxes, the processing levies will probably be replaced as a gesture. Otherwise the subject is far too painful for serious discussion in an election year.

In 60 years British Columbia grew from 36,000 population to a province of 700,000 residents. More than 43,000,000 acres of Nebraska farm and ranch land have been mapped by government soil scientists.

Greenville Scouts Guests of Theatre
The Greenville Scouts and Scoutmasters celebrated the 26th anniversary of Scouting at the Pitt Theatre Tuesday afternoon as guests of T. Y. Walker, manager.

Boys from all of the white troops met in front of the high school and attended the meeting in the Pitt county town Monday. President O'Neal of the Federation told them that "the reason the farmers in the middle west get more than you farmers here in the south is because they are organized and you fellows haven't got enough sense to organize—or at least, not yet."

O'Neal made an open bid for the farmers of the south to join with the farmers of the middle and north west, declaring that when the farmers of the south and of the corn belt unite and work together "we can get something for the farmers."

"And if we don't organize, we won't get a d—d thing," O'Neal said. "But when the farmers are organized, the Congressmen vote accordingly."

If the American Farm Bureau Federation can succeed in organizing the farmers in North Carolina and other Southern states as it has in organizing the farmers in the middle west and thus bring about the cooperation of the farmers of the south and middle west, it would undoubtedly insure the reelection of President Roosevelt, most observers here agree.

Fair and Rainey operate a green house in Decatur, Ala.

marched in formation, led by the high school band with Mr. McDougle director, by the court house and to the theatre.

In addition to the regular picture "Rose of the Ranch" and short subjects, the theatre is running the Jackie Boy Scout trailer starring Jackie Cooper, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, who is a Scout in California.

Two of the troops in Greenville are just at this time re-registering and boys that are interested in becoming Scouts get in touch with the Scoutmaster, or one of the patrol leaders of the troop in your neighborhood and they will give you all the information necessary to become a Scout. The camping season will open in June and boys who want to have a real good time in the outdoors and camping will want to be eligible to attend the summer camp. Register now if you are not already a Scout so you will have time to get some of your own equipment ready by time for camp.

Rev. W. A. Ryan At College.
Rev. W. A. Ryan, who was the speaker at the college assembly hour yesterday morning, took the broad subject of "Education" as his theme but finally narrowed it down to its value. "It must be something worth-while if so many are willing to spend so much time on it," he said, and gave a few examples that showed the price many will pay for it. Instead of selecting unusual people, those of rare gifts or who had careers, he chose those of mediocre ability and from the ordinary vocations and trades. One was of a boy who, although he had to leave school in the lower grades and go to work, by his efforts, continued his studies until he passed college entrance examinations in his early twenties. Another was of Italian laborers who attended night school, and still another of a hotel book-black who at forty years of age was found studying Latin.

He closed by showing the danger to civilization if education were not carried forward. He quoted statistics showing that in six generations the cultured class would disappear if the uncultured class continued to gain at the present rate.

SEE POSSIBILITY OF RACE BETWEEN GRANGE, BUREAU

In the middle west, where the Farm Bureau Federation originated and is highly organized, it has been getting what it goes after for 20 years or more.

There is tremendous political significance in the meeting in Greenville Monday and the one to be held there next Monday, as well as agricultural significance, observers here believe. Many see in these meetings the first definite step towards a strong agricultural and political union between the farmers of the middle west and the southern farmers to bring about national legislation more favorable to farmers in every part of the nation. In his speech before 3,500 farmers who

Lady Took Cardui During Middle Life
Women who are entering middle life will be interested in the experience of Mrs. L. C. McDonald, of Paragould, Ark., who writes:

"I cannot say anything but good about Cardui. I think it is a grand medicine. I took Cardui during change of life. I was so weak, so nervous, I could hardly go. I just dragged around. I had fainting spells, and would just give down. My back and head hurt. I knew I had to take something to give me strength. I read of Cardui. I took about seven bottles. It gave me relief and strength. I am now 60 years past, and can do a pretty good day's work in the house and garden."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)

BAD WEATHER IS EXPENSIVE

Costing Highway Department $1,000,000 in Revenue

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—The snow, ice and cold weather has already cost the highway department at least $1,000,000 in revenue from the gasoline tax by reduction in the consumption of gasoline, in addition to the damage done to the roads, estimated as amounting to at least $2,000,000. Chairman Capus M. Waynick pointed out today.

Revenue from the gasoline tax was off about $300,000 in December and estimates are that it will be at least $900,000 below normal for January, although the total collections for January will not be available until February 20. It is also expected that the February collections will be reduced proportionately with the result that the total loss in revenue due to the extreme winter weather in December, January and February will amount to at least $1,000,000.

"The facts are that we really are not able to tell yet how badly the roads have been damaged by snow, freezing, rain and then freezing weather again, since we have not yet been able to make any comprehensive survey of the damage done so far," Waynick said. "But we know that the damage must amount to at least $2,000,000 and that in addition we have lost at least $1,000,000 in highway revenue from the gasoline tax, since the weather has been so bad that people who have not been compelled to use their cars have been leaving them in the garage.

"This means that we will need at least $2,000,000 to repair the damage done by rains, snows and below-freezing temperatures and that we will have at least $1,000,000 less to do it with, even if we have to make bad weather from now until the spring."

GREENIES WIN EASY BATTLE

Defeat New Bern By Score of 41 to 18 Here Last Night

The Bears of the New Bern High School were defeated by the boys' basketball quint of the Greenville High School here last night by a score of 41-18, which brought forth the Bruins' second defeat of the season in the hands of the Greenies.

The short rest the Greenies experienced during the bad weather period strengthened their playing ability, and when the boys from New Bern matched their basketball wits with that of the Greenies outfit in the local high gym here last night, they weakened.

Reynolds May, coach at the local high school, started part of his second team against the New Bernians last night, to enable them to obtain a little practical experience.

George Lautares, right forward, was high scorer for the locals last night, making a total of 10 points. Next highest scorer was Harry Rountree, who topped off 7 points. Others scoring for the local group were John Lautares, Louis Gaylord, Carl Pierce, Charles Gaskins, Joseph Hatem and Thomas Parrish.

Others who featured in last night's game and failed to score played exceptionally well, and the New Bern boys found out that the local quint is one of the finest teams in Eastern North Carolina.

Scoring for the visitors were Paul Mitchell and Lupton.

Greenville—Richard Gaylord, rf; Louis Gaylord, lf (6); Gaskins, c; Cox, rg; Hatem, lg, 5.

New Bern—Paul, rf; Mitchell, lf; 2; Weatherly, c; Lupton, rg, 10; Mullens, lg.

Subs for Greenville—John Lautares, George Lautares, 10; Carl Pierce, 2; Helein, Rountree 7, Bostic, Bracy, and Parrish 5.

Subs for New Bern—Harris, Shep-on and Marshburn.

Local All-Star Five To Meet Williamston

The Greenville All-stars will meet the strong Williamston All-star quint tonight at 8 o'clock at the high school gym. Williamston defeated Greenville in the first game of the season and the boys are out for revenge in tonight's encounter.

STATE QUINTS IN BUSY WEEK

State-Carolina Game to Attract Capacity Crowd

This week promises to furnish basketball fans of the state with a menu made to order, Carolina and N. C. State being scheduled to fight it out Friday night in Raleigh and Duke and Davidson slated to meet tomorrow night.

With only a few more games on schedule before the Southern conference tournament at Raleigh, interest in the various teams is increasing and backers of the various teams are attempting to analyze the chances of their favorites to come through in the annual event.

Make Arrangements For Capacity Crowd At State

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—Athletic officials at North Carolina State are making arrangements to take care of more than capacity crowd for Friday night's basketball game between State and Carolina in Frank Thompson Gymnasium.

According to Dr. R. R. Sermon, State's athletic director and basketball coach, the game will probably draw the largest crowd of the season surpassing the Duke-State attendance on January 25 when some 3,000 fans packed the gymnasium.

All seats have been priced at 65 cents, the usual price charged for State's games. The varsity tilt will start at 8:30. At 7 o'clock freshman teams of the two schools will meet.

Carolina is figured as having a slight edge over the Red Terrors. The team defeated State, 37-35, at Chapel Hill during January and at that time the team was without the services of its star forward Melvin Nelson. Earl Ruth, fine sophomore guard played just a few minutes. Both men are in top shape for Friday's game.

Duke Carens To Meet Wildcats In Big-Five Go

Durham, Feb. 12.—Duke University's cage team will go into the final section of its 1936 schedule by meeting Davidson's Wildcats in Duke gym tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

It will be the first of a pair of home games for the Blue Devils on consecutive nights. Friday night the Blue Devils play hosts to Florida's quintet which is making a tour of this state.

After the games with Davidson and Florida, the Blue Devils face but four more contests before the conference tournament but these contests size up as the most important of the campaign. They will tell the Blue Devils' standing in state and conference races.

Next week the Blue Devils play return games with Wake Forest and Carolina and the following

Crew Bails From Army Bomber As Motors Start Fail

Atlanta, Feb. 12.—(AP)—An L. B. 6 Army bomber abandoned by its crew when motors faltered over dangerous terrain was demolished in a crash 16 miles southwest of here today.

Four aviators assigned to the plane for a mass flight with ten other bombers and 13 pursuit planes from Langley Field, Va., to the Panama Canal Zone, escaped with only bruises and scratches.

The crew bailed out at 2,500 feet. A military board was appointed to investigate the crash immediately.

Senator Norris Takes Floor To Support Farm Bill

Washington, Feb. 12.—(AP)—Senator Norris (R-Neb.) declared today that the Supreme Court is "for all practical purposes a continuous constitutional convention" and added its AAA decision "cannot stand if our country is to live and prosper."

Taking the floor to defend the administration's new farm program the Republican independent made the first speech of the day in the debate that is expected to bring a final vote on it Friday night.

"The people can change the Congress, but only God can charge the Supreme Court," he said.

Referring to Secretary Wallace's description of the court's processing tax order as "the greatest legalized steal" in American history, Norris observed that might be erroneous but that it undoubtedly was "the greatest gift since God made salvation free."

He said the soil conservation crop control program may be decidedly unconstitutional "under existing court conditions" but that it was "the only hope," referring to the court's opinion that Congress had no power to regulate agriculture production. He said if that

Raleigh, Feb. 12.—Athletic officials at North Carolina State are making arrangements to take care of more than capacity crowd for Friday night's basketball game between State and Carolina in Frank Thompson Gymnasium.

According to Dr. R. R. Sermon, State's athletic director and basketball coach, the game will probably draw the largest crowd of the season surpassing the Duke-State attendance on January 25 when some 3,000 fans packed the gymnasium.

All seats have been priced at 65 cents, the usual price charged for State's games. The varsity tilt will start at 8:30. At 7 o'clock freshman teams of the two schools will meet.

Carolina is figured as having a slight edge over the Red Terrors. The team defeated State, 37-35, at Chapel Hill during January and at that time the team was without the services of its star forward Melvin Nelson. Earl Ruth, fine sophomore guard played just a few minutes. Both men are in top shape for Friday's game.

Duke Carens To Meet Wildcats In Big-Five Go

Durham, Feb. 12.—Duke University's cage team will go into the final section of its 1936 schedule by meeting Davidson's Wildcats in Duke gym tomorrow night at eight o'clock.

It will be the first of a pair of home games for the Blue Devils on consecutive nights. Friday night the Blue Devils play hosts to Florida's quintet which is making a tour of this state.

After the games with Davidson and Florida, the Blue Devils face but four more contests before the conference tournament but these contests size up as the most important of the campaign. They will tell the Blue Devils' standing in state and conference races.

Next week the Blue Devils play return games with Wake Forest and Carolina and the following
