Several Hospitals Destroyed To Have Been Destroyed By Air Raids In Ethiopia

Fire, Panic Spread Through Strategic City of Harar

ITALIAN PLANES DO BIG DAMAGE

Very Few Persons Believed to Have Fallen Victims To Bombardments

Addis Ababa, March 30.—(AP)—An Italian air raid which spread fire and panic throughout Harar wrought virtual destruction on that second city of Ethiopia, and wrecked several hospitals and French centers.

A squadron of Fascist planes, Ethiopian reports said, plunged incendiary bombs down on the strategic center 250 miles east of the capital and 30 miles south of the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad for more than two hours yesterday, leaving the city in flames.

Forewarned by scouting planes, however, most of the populace fled the city in terror, and few persons were believed to have fallen victims to the bombardment.

An official communique relayed by telephone from Harar to Addis Ababa, said 15 bombs struck the Egyptian Red Cross hospital there, several hit the Ethiopian Red Cross hospital and two fell near the Swedish hospital.

A French mission, a French consulate, the former Italian consulate the Ethiopian radio station all were reported officially to have been ruined.

The attack on Harar coupled with a heavy bombardment of Jijiga, 50 miles east of Harar, and a center of Ethiopia's southern defenses, raised native fears in Addis Ababa that the capital itself might be the next target of the Italian aerial bombs.

Requests Farmers To Take Measures To Prevent Fires

County Fire Warden Asks Farmers To Move All Cut Timber and Cord Wood From Dangers

The County Fire Warden today urged farmers to move all cut timber and cord wood from danger of forest fires and to protect tobacco beds from fire hazards.

Pitt County has been fortunate in the limited damage from fires this season and the number of forest fires and acres burned has apparently decreased over last season's record, the Warden pointed out.

"Our county has a fine record in protecting its forest areas due to a well organized fire crew system of over 100 trained men."

He asked the people to report forest fires and offenders of fire laws to the following wardens who are always on the alert to prevent fire damages:

Number Relief Clients Be Reduced Sharply

Raleigh, March 30.—The State Works Progress Administration today announced it expected to have reduced the number of relief workers over the state to 38,759 by tomorrow night in line with a curtailment program started early this month.

Allocation of additional funds for projects were announced. The projects included geodetic survey work in Wayne county, $2,340.50.

NON-METAL SHIP PLANNED TO STUDY MAGNETIC FIELD

London.—(AP)—A non-metallic ship for the investigation of problems of variation of the earth's magnetic field, is to be constructed by the British Admiralty, it is announced.

It will be the first ship of its kind since the ill-fated Carnegie, built by the Carnegie Institute, wrecked in 1929.

REVENUE BILL IS CONSIDERED BY COMMITTEE

Helvering Declares Measure Advances Tax Equity

REVENUE AGENT FIRST WITNESS

Expresses Opinion That Proposed Bill Will Not Fully Cover Revenue Needs

Washington, March 30.—(AP)—An administration spokesman told the House Ways and Means committee today its revenue program would advance the principle to tax equity, but would not "fully cover the needs for additional revenue" outlined by President Roosevelt.

Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, was the first witness on the tax report, drafted by a ways and means subcommittee as the basis of hearings after Mr. Roosevelt recommended new levies to meet bonus payments and farm relief costs.

He said the additional revenues that would be obtained by revision of the present corporate tax structure would result in the removal of inequality, discrimination and tax avoidance and "will come mainly from members of the upper income groups of our population."

Helvering told the legislators treasury officials were in complete harmony with the tentatively drafted revenue program.

The plan embraced raising $591,000,000 additional from a graduated tax on corporation net income based on percentages of the income turned into reserves; $100,000,000 from a windfall tax on processors who escaped payment of AAA processing tax levies and suggestions for bringing in $83,000,000 from temporary continuation of capital stock and excess profit taxes and $25,000,000 from taxes on corporations dividends to foreign stockholders.

Helvering added, however, that he thought the committee should consider whether there were not additional sources of temporary revenue that can be provided for the next two or three years to bridge "a gap between the committee recommendation and those of the president."

EXECUTION DATE DRAWS NEAR

With Bruno Richard Hauptmann scheduled to die in the electric chair at New Jersey's state penitentiary at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, there was much last minute speculation as to whether the convicted Lindbergh baby kidnap-slayer would be granted another lease on life. If he is not, he has only a short while longer to live. Hauptmann is shown above in the Flemington jail after his conviction. Associated Press Photo.

New Pasteurization Plant To Start Operations Here

Milk of Three Dairies To Be Delivered Direct From Plant

Beginning Wednesday morning customers of three of Greenville's dairy plants will be served direct from the city's new, modern pasteurization plant with no additional cost to the consumers.

Deliveries will continue to be made as usual, but the products of the Harvey, Blount, and McDermott's Greenville dairies will be pasteurized and delivered direct to the customer from the plant.

Management of the plant, which is located between Third and Fourth on Washington street, emphasized the fact that no increase in the price of milk will be put into effect, despite the fact purer products will be furnished customers.

J. B. Webb, Jr., is general manager of the plant and he has been in the city supervising the construction of the plant for some time. The plant also was built under the supervision of local and state health authorities.

The plant will be the most modern in the state, new equipment has been installed throughout and the plant in general has an atmosphere of cleanliness and sanitation.

The various participating dairies will deliver their milk to the plant and it will go through the various pasteurization processes and then delivered to the customers.

In addition to pasteurizing milk, (Continued on page six)

HITLER GAINS FULL VICTORY IN PLEBISCITE

Immediately Starts Drafting Proposals To Powers

FUEHRER BACKED BY BIG MAJORITY

Official Returns Give Hitler 98.79 Percent of Total Votes in Election

(Copyright by Associated Press) Berlin, March 30.—(AP)—Adolf Hitler hearing the greatest endorsement ever given in plebiscite, turned today to drafting proposals to the Locarno powers in the Rhineland crisis which political sources intimated would "astound the world."

The Nazi propaganda machine, moving with speed and precision, swung virtually the entire German nation behind Der Fuehrer in yesterday's election, nominally to select a new Reichstag, but actually to approve the remilitarization of the Rhineland.

Official returns gave Hitler 98.79 per cent—the strongest majority the head of Germany ever received—of the 44,592,476 votes cast. Only 542,954 were counted as invalid.

In the German view the fact that there was no chance to vote in opposition but only to take the Nazi party list or leave it, did not detract from the overwhelming Nazi triumph.

Der Fuehrer now felt, informed sources said, that whatever he might demand from the other powers he would demand not as the dictator but as the servant of 67,000,000 Germans who command him not to yield one inch of German territory nor one bit of German rights.

There was no intimation, however, of the exact contents of his extensive counter proposal to the Locarno powers, promised for tomorrow in his preliminary reply March 24 to the London plan for a settlement of the Rhineland issue.

CHANGES MADE FOR RAILROAD

H. G. Moore, Local Freight Agent, Transferred

H. G. Moore, local freight agent for the Norfolk Southern Railroad since 1923, will leave Thursday for Raleigh to resume his new duties as freight agent in that city.

Promotion of the local agent was one of several changes announced by the railroad company. He will succeed J. C. Poe, who has been appointed assistant to General Superintendent L. P. Kennedy, who will continue to have his headquarters in New Bern.

Succeeding Mr. Moore here will be M. T. Bradshaw, agent at Washington, who in turn will be succeeded by H. W. White.

Mr. Moore entered the railroad's service in 1910, his first duties being night operator at the Marsden station, then known as Chocowinity station. In 1917 he was made ticket clerk in this city, and in 1920 went to Wendell as agent-operator for the company. He returned to this city in 1923 and has been here since.

While Mr. Moore will leave Thursday, Mrs. Moore will remain in Greenville until the end of the school term.

The official changes are in line with the recent appointment of Mr. Kennedy as general superintendent after serving in the capacity of superintendent for a number of years. Mr. Cox, to become assistant general superintendent, has been with the railroad in Raleigh for many years; and is amply qualified through experience to shoulder his new responsibilities.

The office of superintendent formerly held by Mr. Kennedy is also abolished.

Jersey Court Of Pardons Hears Last Ditch Pleas To Save Hauptmann

Immediately Starts Drafting Proposals To Powers

Official Returns Give Hitler 98.79 Percent of Total Votes in Election

(Copyright by Associated Press) Trenton, N. J., March 30.—(AP)—The last ditch effort to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from execution tomorrow night for the Lindbergh baby murder swung into an attack before the Court of Pardons today on the testimony of one of the state's ace witnesses—Arthur J. Koehler, the wood expert.

The court, after having been in session for more than two hours, called for the part of the Flemington trial testimony concerning Koehler's qualifications as an expert.

The action was seen as definite indication that Governor Harold G. Hoffman was pressing his efforts to have the court act favorably on Hauptmann's plea for mercy—a plea the court once before refused to grant.

It was Koehler, a government employe, who testified that wood in the ladder found at the kidnap scene the night of the crime came from the attic of Hauptmann's Bronx home—testimony regarded as among the most damaging to be presented against the prisoner.

Governor Hoffman had called the pardons court to consider Hauptmann's clemency plea and was the most vigorous advocate of the condemned man before the court which he heads.

The Supreme Court deferred today for at least one week its decisions on constitutionality of the Guffey coal and 1933 securities act.

Fourteen opinions were delivered all unanimous. The one of widest effect in the hour and a half session held that some practices of the sugar industry violated the Sherman anti-trust act.

Despite arguments that its actions were intended to be cooperative in the public's interest, Chief Justice Hughes held that "the end does not justify illegal means."

Granting a government request, the court refused to pass at present on the public utility holding companies act. This law is on its way up to the court in other cases.

Provisions of the Washington State law of 1933 imposing an occupational tax on radio broadcasting were held unconstitutional. The levy was ruled an illegal "burden on interstate commerce."

The litigation involved whether the state or federal government has jurisdiction.

Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt lost another attempt to obtain custody of her wealthy 12-year-old child, Gloria. The justices refused to review a lower court decision.

Final Rites Held For Mrs. Gwaltney At Her Late Home

Definite Indications Seen That Chief Executive Wants Court To Act Favorably

Trenton, N. J., March 30.—(AP)—The last ditch effort to save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from execution tomorrow night for the Lindbergh baby murder swung into an attack before the Court of Pardons today on the testimony of one of the state's ace witnesses—Arthur J. Koehler, the wood expert.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

SCORING: Harry Byrd's move to whittle off struggling and duplicating New Deal agencies hasn't got away to an auspicious start. Although he has received pledges of White House cooperation, the President's first contribution was to set up three reorganizing crews where the Virginian thought one was plenty.

Mr. Roosevelt's next remark flabbergasted the Senator. It was to the effect that Mr. Roosevelt favored a new commission—a three-man board to replace treasury alcohol control. That was a little too much for the good-natured apple-grower, who dropped the remark that he was heading direct from the White House to the Senate Finance Committed the senatorial hatchet-man by naming for the presidential committee two outside investigators whom the Senator had already drafted. It caused Mr. Byrd to wonder whether there shouldn't be a committee to reorganize the reorganizers.

The demonstration's original indifference to the proposal vanished as soon as the Senate endorsed it. Summoning Mr. Byrd to the White House, Mr. Roosevelt explained that he had been thinking of such a reform for a long time. Then he surprised the senatorial hatchet-man by naming for the presidential committee two outside investigators whom the Senator had already drafted. It caused Mr. Byrd to wonder whether there shouldn't be a committee to reorganize the reorganizers.

GREENIES SET FOR BIG GAME

Local High School Nine to Meet Raleigh Tomorrow

The whole student body of the Greenville high school as well as other baseball lovers of the city are expected to turn out tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Third Street stadium for the first home game of the season in baseball of the local high.

The highs will engage the nine from Raleigh, who was runner-up to Durham last year for the state championship in high school baseball. The locals dropped their first game of the season to Durham last week by a score of 6-4.

The Greenies have a fine schedule arranged for the season in class "A" conference baseball as well as a few games with teams who are members of the Northeastern conference.

Reynolds May, who is coaching the boys in baseball this year has put them through some strenuous work out and from the consistent practice which they have already seen and will see in the future, hopes that his team will be a winning one.

J. H. Rose, Reynolds May, and all members composing the local nine urge all citizens to give them their whole hearted support in making the baseball season which is now in progress one of the best that has ever been known in high school baseball.

Baseball Official Announces Rulings For Legion League

Arthur B. Corey Urges All Boys Born Since March 30, 1919, to Get in Touch With Local Director

Arthur B. Corey, one of the Commissioners of the Department of North Carolina, American Legion Junior Baseball Commission, announced today that the Commissioners have adopted the new rules for the 1936 Junior Baseball program. And it is now time for the boys who were born since midnight March 30th, 1919, to get in touch with Tom Swain, Athletic Officer of Pitt County Post No. 39, American Legion, and make arrangements to qualify for play on the local Legion Junior team.

He gives the following data for the information and guidance of all concerned in the Junior Baseball program:

The most important change in the National Junior Baseball rules for 1936 extends the age limit of the players by three months. Under this new rule all boys who are amateurs (that is, boys who have not been paid for playing baseball) and who will not have attained their 17th birthday before March 31, 1936, (that is all born after midnight March 30, 1919) are eligible to play this year.

Post Athletic Officers should realize right now that where birth certificates are available, they must be used for each player. That's the proof of age which is best of all: certified copies of official birth certificates. If every Post Athletic Officer will just realize now that it is much easier to secure certified copies of birth certificates than to ever explain why such certificates are not secured, and if they will just make up their minds now to secure proper certified copy of birth certificate of each player, before they enter the team, they will save themselves and their players from a lot of grief later on for the Department Junior Baseball Commission will enforce that rule with reference to birth certificates and all other rules this year.

Judging from the inquiries coming in from all sections of the State there will undoubtedly be more Junior Baseball teams in North Carolina this year than ever before. Inasmuch as the main purpose of Junior Baseball is to build good citizenship by teaching the boys good sportsmanship and patriotism while giving them an opportunity to become star baseball players, the National Americanism Commission and the Department Junior Baseball Commission will require every boy who enrolls to memorize the good sportsmanship code. Each team must repeat this code in unison before every game. The code follows:

- "Keep the rules.
- "Keep faith with your comrades.
- "Keep your temper.
- "Keep yourself fit.
- "Keep a stout heart in defeat.
- "Keep your pride under victory.
- "Keep a sound soul, a clean mind and a healthy body."

Revolta Joins Up With Star Colony Of Chicago Pros

Chicago, March 30—(AP)—Johnny Revolta, the reigning national P. O. A. champion and big money winner of 1935, is changing his address from Milwaukee to Chicago, joining the colony of famous golf professionals who ply their trade along the shores of Lake Michigan. The curly-haired wizard of the links, who collected $9,543 as a roving representative of Milwaukee last year, has signed a 2-year contract as pro at the Evanston Golf club.

job at the Tripoli Country Club in Milwaukee, thus joins the select circle of money golfers who have headquarters hereabouts.

The group includes Tommy Armour, Horton Smith, Harry Cooper, Ky Laffoon, Frank Walsh, Dick Metz, Jim Foulis and Orville White, the latter of whom recently signed as pro at Olympia Fields.

Johnny has laid out a 1936 competitive program calling for seven tournament appearances, starting with the Augusta Invitation event on the Bobby Jones-built course in Georgia. The Augusta event ends on April 5, which is Revolta's 25th birthday.

His schedule calls for the national and western open tournaments, the P. G. A., the Canadian open, St. Paul open and the Inverness invitation.

David Michael, the shortstop who last year was a sensation on the Duke University nine, will play this year with the Charlotte (N. C.) semi-pros.

MINNESOTA HAS "HOME TALENT" ON GRID SQUAD

Minneapolis (AP)—Minnesota's 1936 football squad which opens spring practice March 30, likes its undefeated predecessor of last season will be a home-grown product.

Last year 28 members of the Gopher varsity came from Minneapolis, seven miles from St. Paul and 18 from other Minnesota communities. Only nine members of the 1935 squad were from outside the state and all were midwesterners.

Birmingham Sandlots Go On Producing Big League Baseball Aces

Birmingham, March 30—(AP)—The Birmingham sandlots that produced Ben Chapman, Sam Byrd, Virgil (Spud) Davis and other major league timber, will team with hopeful and embryonic stars again this year.

James A. (Sunny Jim) Downey, president of the Birmingham Baseball federation, says the sandlots here will have more players than ever this season—150 teams comprising about 2,500 players.

"And stars? Of course, we will have stars, some of whom may be greater than any we have ever sent up before."

Weekly Crowds of 75,000 Downey is enthusiastic about his amateur proteges. "We have an approximate attendance of 75,000 every week-end at these amateur games."

The Birmingham Baseball federation in reality controls the amateur games throughout Jefferson county and it maintains the only all-year amateur baseball office in the nation.

The leagues join the federation, which drafts the schedules, arranges for inter-league contests and assigns umpires for each game. And the umpires get paid for their work. To qualify, an umpire must attend a school and be listed with the federation.

"How do they get the money?" That question brought a chuckle from Downey as he recalled some of the things done to finance the teams.

"Boy," he replied, still chuckling, "those youngsters can raise money. If I were half as good, I could retire in a few years. They stage dances, solicit funds, hold box concessions go to the home team."

That brought another chuckle from Downey, as he said, "You know competition gets so keen between teams that rotters of the visiting teams go thirsty rather than buy cold drinks to keep the home club from increasing its treasury balance."

Nearly two score graduates of Birmingham sandlots are in professional ball this year, with Chapman of the Yankees, Byrd of the Reds, Davis of the Cardinals, Walker of the Yankees, Nelson of the White Sox, Bryant and Vines of the Cubs, among the most prominent.

"We develop them and professional baseball gets them," said Downey as he called the roll, "but that puts more interest and competition into our sandlot games."

Speaks At Vesper Service.

"Living At One's Best," was the subject of an inspiring message brought to the college students by Rev. H. M. McLamb, pastor of the Methodist Church of Pink Hill, at the Y. W. C. A. vesper service last night.

Human nature, he said, is so destructive that people are not satisfied with anything less than the best; the ability to make life's decisions and to carry them out, lies in the ability of the person. Christ, he pointed out, came to bring the more abundant life, but Christianity cannot think in local terms; life is like a valley stretching out ahead.

The only fixed thing in the world he continued, is progress, and the surest element in personality is change. Courage, he gave, is an important element and the sterner test is to live loyally and faithfully under diverse circumstances.

The most thrilling thing in the world is to live a life in its entirety, was his concluding thought.

Miss Margaret Peele sang a solo "In the Garden."

Attends Meeting In Washington. Miss Mamie E. Jenkins has returned from Washington City where she attended the meeting of the American Association of University Women for the southeastern section, which met at the National headquarters. She reports an exceedingly interesting meeting and a busy time.

The Washington Branch which has a membership of nine hundred, was the hostess of the convention, with the members of the National Staff assisting and helping participating in the program.

There was a delegation of about eighty-five from the eight states and units in the section, which are Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Washington City.

On Friday afternoon the first business meeting was held in which the activities of the A. A. U. W. and the various units were presented by the State Presidents. The program, which centered in the work of individual branches, was a revelation of the wide scope of the work and the variety of interests. The staff members in charge of various kinds of national work, had charge of the program on Saturday morning, among them a number of people with international reputation as research workers or leaders.

Senator Pope, of Idaho, who is on the Congressional Committee of International affairs, was the speaker at the International banquet on Friday night.

After the luncheon on Friday, an exceedingly clever dramatic presentation of a hearing before a congressional committee was given. National Press Club's "Consumer Beware" was the title of the skit, and all the lines were taken bit by bit, from the report of the hearing on the pure food and drug bill. The proponents of the bill were the women who actually appeared before the committee. It was done in the manner of the Gridiron dinner skit, with satirical lightness camouflaging seriousness.

At the Fellowship Luncheon on Saturday, the two speakers were women who have achieved fame, but whose opportunity came through the Fellowships for advanced graduate study awarded by the A. A. U. W. One of those was Dr. Gallagher, of Goucher College, who is now chairman of the Fellowship Awards. The other one was a woman from the Argentine Republic, who is at present doing important research work at Johns Hopkins University.

A sight-seeing tour in the city of Washington members, winding up with a tea at a private school in Fairfax County, Virginia, featured Saturday afternoon. On Saturday morning there was an alumnae breakfast at the club house, when those from the different colleges and universities had a chance to meet each other.

Miss Jenkins has served as the president of the Greenville Branch of the A. A. U. W. for the past two years. She says that in her study of the activities of the organization as shown by the charts, graphs and records at the offices of the national headquarters, she was gratified to find that the Greenville branch showed up well in the number of activities in which they participated and in per capita participation. It is one of the smallest branches, as most of the others are in larger towns and cities.

Soil Conservation Plan Explained By Dean Schaub

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, March 30.—The new program which succeeds the old AAA is a soil building program, having for its ultimate purpose a definite increase in the farmers' income and providing national stability in the cultivation of cash crops, preventing erosion of land, and increasing the water table that floods and droughts may be prevented, Dean I. O. Schaub of the State College Extension Service, said today.

In securing the cooperation of farmers in these major purposes, two different payments are offered, one for voluntary participation. There are no binding contracts and no compulsion. But if a farmer does certain things in a positive way, he secures certain benefit payments or grants. After two years of preliminary effort, the program becomes permanent in 1937 with grants made to states to secure the program as a definite part of future farming operations.

In the first place, the landowner prepares his planting scheme for the year on a work sheet and shows that he had replaced at least 20 per cent of his base acreage of soil depleting crops with soil conserving crops. In the case of cotton, he may replace up to 35 per cent of his base acreage as fixed under the old AAA contracts; with tobacco, he may replace 30 per cent of his old base, and with peanuts, 20 per cent. For replacing 35 per cent of 5 cents a pound for the normal yield of cotton on the acres replaced. Thus if his cotton yield is 240 pounds to the acre and he replaces 10 acres on his farm, he is paid five times 2400 pounds or $120. This is $12 an acre which will be about the average payment for cotton in North Carolina. Tobacco will average about $40 an acre since the payment here also is 5 cents per pound. But this is only one payment. All the soil conserving crops planted on the land, if as much as 20 per cent of the base acreage is devoted to these crops, qualifies the landowner for another payment of up to $1 an acre. Thus if a person puts in 40 acres of soil conserving crops and this acreage is 20 per cent of the base acreage planted on the whole farm, then the farmer has a ceiling or top payment of $40 that he will get $40 just by having these acres in soil conserving crops. It means that he can earn $40 by following some definite and positive soil improving practice. In other words, the amount of soil conserving crops planted is a measure of what a man can earn in this particular phase of the program by good soil management practices.

Director Warns Of Jokes on April Fool's

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, March 30.—"April Fool's Day" will be here Wednesday and it will be necessary for motorists to watch out for pranks played on them by the youngsters in the neighborhood and by other practical jokers, Director Arthur Fulk of the highway safety division of the Department of Revenue pointed out today.

"But there is another type of 'April Fool' who is with us the entire year and who is much more dangerous," Fulk said. "He is the type of year round fool who crashes traffic lights, passes other cars on hills and curves, who crowds other vehicles off the highway and drives too fast for existing road and traffic conditions."

"This is largely the type of driver who was largely responsible for killing 1,095 persons and injuring 6,950 others in automobile accidents last year. This is the type of driver we are trying to curb with the new driver's license law and the highway patrol."

CLYDE A. ERWIN CITES BOOSTS

Declares That People of State Becoming School Conscious

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, March 30.—The people of North Carolina are becoming more and more "school conscious" and are realizing the need for providing better school facilities than the state is able to provide in the state-supported eight months school term, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin said today.

In support of this contention, Supt. Erwin cited the cities which have either voted local supplementary taxes with which to improve their school systems, also those which are planning to hold elections on the levying of supplemental taxes for schools.

"The entire state now knows how Raleigh waked up and voted a supplement of $95,000 a year with which to provide a ninth month, a twelfth grade and additional teachers, with the result that many other cities and towns are going to hold elections and try to emulate the Capital city," Supt. Erwin said. "For indications are that the public generally is at last becoming convinced that the only immediate way to improve the schools is by voting local supplements."

Eleven cities or counties have either decided to hold elections for the voting of supplementary taxes for schools, or are contemplating doing so, Erwin said. The voters of Reidsville will hold a school supplement election April 14, while the people of Greensboro will hold a similar election May 5. Other school administrative units which are contemplating calling supplementary tax elections between now and fall are Salisbury, Wilmington and New Hanover county, Concord, Kinston, Goldsboro, Mount Airy, Rockingham, Guilford county and Lexington.

The action recently taken by Raleigh in voting a supplementary tax for schools brought the total number of cities which have voted supplemental taxes to 13, since a special tax for school maintenance were abolished by the 1933 general assembly. These 13 cities are: Raleigh, Durham, Southern Pines, Rancake Rapids, North Wilkesboro, Rocky Mount, Lenoir Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Winston-Salem, Morganton, Asheville and Greenville.

"I am delighted to see these school units vote supplements or call elections, since both indicate the sentiment in favor of better schools is growing throughout the state," Erwin said. "By this time next year, I am confident we will have at least 20 administrative units in the group having supplemental taxes and thus be able to offer larger and broader educational advantages to the boys and girls in their school systems. I think it is a very hopeful sign—a sign that the people in these cities and counties want the very best educational advantages for their children."

Reports of Red Cross flood relief funds raised in Ayden and Farmville brings the total for this county up to the original quota of $750, but it must be remembered that a continuation of the floods has made the need for relief greater than was at first anticipated and this county's quota was increased to $1,000. So far we have done well, but Pitt County should not be satisfied to do less than its quota, so we urge those who have not contributed to do so at once.

COURT DOCKET SHOULD BE CLEARED

With more than 150 cases already scheduled for the next term of criminal court that begins here the middle of April, it seems to us that one of our great needs at this time is a special continuous term of court to clean up the criminal docket. In addition to those cases already docketed for the April term others will probably be added before the court actually begins, with the result that it will be an impossibility for the court to dispose of the large number of cases in the allotted two weeks. As a result of the congested criminal docket few cases with the exception of jail cases are being heard in the courts here from time to time and those persons who are able to give bond for their crimes go free indefinitely because the court does not get to their cases. A steady stream of offenders are under bond for several crimes committed each after he has been released under bond for a previous offense. This delay in bringing offenders to justice and punishment is doing more than any other one thing to break down the effectiveness of our courts.

His promotion may quiet South Carolina murmurs and such June distractions as national conventions and baseball scores may kill off popular interest in Hagood's fate. Prim military men are filibustering against Hagood's reinstatement behind the scenes of the War Department. They argue that it would

HELLO, Iris. Evening jackets to match all gowns, sports suits; hat's right, is it not? But it is as much as anyone's life is worth to make a chalk mark on you till Miss Phina comes."

"Sure, Miss Sigrid," said the pretty yellow-curl'd girl who had conveyed Iris, becoming suddenly pertly human. "I only brought her along for you to make the chalk marks. All I do's walk them!"

Both girls laughed. "Why is everyone so afraid of Aunt Phina?" Iris asked when the girl, still giggling at her own wit, was gone. Sigrid had dismissed the other woman till Phina arrived.

"Power of personality, I suppose," Sigrid shrugged. "Owen is afraid because she has always had him under her thumb."

"Sigrid, I'm on Owen's side," Iris said. "I want you both to be happy. Why won't you marry him unless he stops working here? I should think you'd like it."

"Because, well as he does it, he is ashamed of it, and because as long as he does it Phina will own him as she always has. And Phina will hold him through what she thinks is gratitude and honor. And eventually he will marry somebody whose father was not a Swede carpenter. That is what Papa was, and darn good at his job, too, I tell you!"

"Sigrid, you shan't talk so or say aunt! You don't know what she's been through. She doesn't feel like that, she's always worked herself."

"Girls, girls!" said Phina's cool voice. She was even laughing. "If either of you can abandon romance for a moment we'll get to work." Iris expected Sigrid to be ashamed or surprised. She was neither. "What do you want fitted first?" Sigrid asked as quietly as if nothing had happened, and Phina, also quietly, told her.

"How can you go on being her partner?" Iris asked when Phina had gone again.

"Why not?" Sigrid asked; and Iris began to understand what Owen had said about wanting someone soft and human with him. Sigrid had a Northern hardness. "Business is one thing, personal feeling another. Phina is one of the finest business women I know, and honest. She feels the same way about me." She rang for the women, and the work began.

AFTER the fitting, which took all morning, and luncheon with her aunt at the newest and biggest and most exciting hotel, she was sent home to lie down until time for the cocktail party. But she walked up Fifth Avenue instead. The shop windows were so exciting.

Everything beautiful in the world, bronzes, oriental images, jewels, exquisite rugs and draperies; what might have been museum exhibits of beautiful shoes hats, gloves, frocks, rare books—a clock in a jeweler's window finally sent her racing home in a taxi.

"I'm late, Honora, I've only time to dress," she told the older maid, whose special charge she was.

She found herself being redressed from the skin out, different shoes, stockings, everything; finally arrayed in black velvet with a short silver jacket under an afternoon coat she had not seen.

"But is this right—are you sure?" she asked Honora. It seemed like a funny costume.

"It's what Madame said you were to wear," the maid assured her. She crowned the work with a close-wrapped silver turban, gave her fresh white gloves and sent her down to the waiting car. Dicky Hamilton's madly-shaped, madly-painted runabout. Owen and Sigrid were already in the rumble, wherever he had found them. Dicky was rather nice, now that he was alone, and, oddly, a little sad.

"You're the kind of girl that makes men feel romantic," he said. "Swearing allegiance, dropping on one knee, all that sort of thing we read about when we were kids, you know? Where'd you think up your swell line?" His blue eyes looked so wistfully into hers that she could not be angry at his words. She laughed. "I'll have to get a placard and wear it—I was brought up by romantic old-fashioned people in a country town on recollections of vanished grandeur." Sorry, Dicky, it isn't a line, it's the only way I know how to behave!" "You mean you're real?" "As far as I know I'm real."

"Never thought it up or anything? Gosh! Iris, from now on I'm your true knight. That is, until you turn into something else."

There was no visible hostess in the big studio apartment where Dicky led them. A red-shaded negro was playing a frenzied accordion to which fifteen or twenty girls and men were dancing. There were colored lantern-like lights hanging here and there.

The story-and-a-half room was misted blue with cigarette smoke. Two painted life-size wooden Renaissance Madonnas brooded, lost, above the place. There were a few pictures on the dark paneled walls.

It might have been a revel of Cosmo de' Medici's but for the accordionist, and the taxi horns crying louder or softer, recurrently, below the enormous frosted windows draped in red damask fringed with gold.

Georgia Blair danced past them, in scarlet velvet pajamas that made Iris's costume seem quiet by contrast. She reached out unceremoniously for Owen.

"Here, take the platinum blonde," she ordered her partner, who effected the exchange swiftly and neatly. Dicky saw a table under a window with cocktails and hors-d'oeuvres.

"Come along," he said to Iris, and dived through the dancers without waiting for her to follow. Two other men stood there with glasses. They all began to discuss polo loudly and continuously.

IRIS stood still, gl'd of a moment to look about her. Off in a corner, heedless of the accordion, a boy with a girl's chiffon scarf tied round his head was playing the piano. The scarf's possessor, severely tailored, one foot on the piano bench, was singing to him "Why Was I Born?" in a mock-tragic voice.

Two or three other couples were perched on silks and cushions making cheerfully open love. Empty or half-full glasses were everywhere. An arm came round her waist; Allan Beckley was with her, swinging her in his long-stepped dancing. She felt his thinness, his eas; precision, smell lilac water faintly and cigarette of a very good kind as he swung her down the room.

The dance was so nearly done that they stopped directly before a fire-side seat. Allan drew her down into it. There were embers of a fire which opened windows had kept from overheating the room. His light-blue eyes considered her as if he were looking at something very new, very interesting which had been given him for a playing.

But what he said was simple enough. "Like all this?" "I'm crazy over it. It's living. And the way it looks—the lights and spots of color, like a Matisse. Nature does imitate art even if Wilde had to say it."

He looked surprised. "Who told you to talk to me about Matisse and Wilde, young Iris?" he said lightly; but still as if he wanted to know; and as if anything he said, Iris thought indignantly, was all right.

"Is there any reason why I is forbidden? Doesn't your mother let you refer to modern painters? You asked me a question and I answered it. You're the second man who has acted as if I said things to make an effect. I don't, and I don't know anybody who does."

"I am very sorry," said Allan simply, his voice amused again. "Unfortunately, I do know people who do, too many of them; and knowing your background—"

"But you don't!" Iris said in surprise. "Or do you feel as if I ought to talk in effects because Aunt Phina is a dressmaker? Frankly, I don't understand your attitude or Dicky's. Or perhaps it's because I don't belong in New York, and you're laughing at me."

He answered her directly, looking at her in a new way, almost as if she were a man.

"I'm not laughing at you. I am known to be interested in the things you referred to. Most girls try to talk to men of things of which they themselves know nothing, to be, shall we say?—kind. As for Madame Phina, it wasn't her profession I meant. I have the highest respect for her; she is a female Napoleon, I have always heard. And if you have forgiven my slip, please tell me about your background. I hate New York myself."

Before she realized it she had, in answer to a few swift questions, described the place, the people, she came from.

of tapping undistributed profits. Treasury spokesmen rarely furnished an answer when the legislators quizzed them on social or financial effects of the proposal at executive sessions of the Ways and Means Committee. To the Congressmen it seemed that the Morgenthau-ers had grabbed at a grand idea and dressed it up in fanciful figures. is that the resultant delay in framing a measure places them in an embarrassing light.

The House may enact a quasi-administration measure but it will be torn to shreds in the Senate. Booming income tax payments sharpen the demand for a modest revenue bill that will simply increase existing corporation taxes, impose a small levy on undistributed earnings and spread a low processing tax over a score of commodities.

BUSTER: A mysterious backstage figure planted the bomb which dynamited the famous Townsend-Clements alliance and may yet destroy the $200-a-month crusade. He is Sheridan Downey of California, Upton Sinclair's running-mate for Lieutenant Governor on the EPIC ticket and a recent accession to the pensioners.

Clements and Downey clashed as soon as they met. Whereas Clements possesses organizing genius, Downey is supposed to be a dynamic fellow with an oratorical gift. His ideas of grandeur appealed to Doctor Townsend, whose vague and visionary qualities have become more noticeable in recent days. It was Downey who urged the doctor to spread himself on a nationwide scale, politically. Clements backed the idea of penetrating both parties by endorsing Townsendites in the Congressional contests.

There was also a practical consideration behind the farewell to Clements. He has handled the dues and profits from sale of the Townsend Weekly. His enemies inside the movement thought it advisable to cut loose from him before the start of the Congressional inquiry into the organization's finances.

NOTES: "Daisy" Harriman's Sunday evening hash parties are all the rage with New Dealers. Representative Isabella Greenway, who voluntarily retires from Congress, is scheduled to marry a rich New Yorker. "Chip" Roberts, late Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, has made a killing in Venezuela oil, thanks to his father-in-law, Harold Walker of Standard Oil of N. J. Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, sitting in on tax legislation, advertises his opinion that Herman Oliphant, aid to Secretary Morgenthau, doesn't know anything about taxation.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN FLUNKS: Herbert Hoover's influence in inner Republican circles is much greater since he withdrew as an active competitor for the presidency. Many party leaders are willing to listen to him now they are sure they won't be called upon to nominate him. His ideas will carry more weight at Cleveland than you might suspect. Here are his private views on G. O. P. policy and the merits of various leading aspirants as outlined to Whirligig by reliable and exceptionally well-posted sources.

Mr. Hoover is sincerely persuaded that the Republican party must take a firm stand now on what he considers fundamental principles of government if it is ever to reestablish its former power and prestige whether or not it wins this fall. The definition of a worthy G. O. P. candidate is one who hammers away to establish these principles and expose New Deal fallacies without trimming and hedging designed to further personal political fortunes. with the monetary and industrial problems which the New Deal raises on all fronts. So Mr. Fletcher hired professors to catch professors. Republicans, incidentally, are deeply dissatisfied with the attacks which the National and Congressional committees are making on the administration. Unless the publicity improves, they may form an independent organization of writers, economists and propagandists, to reinforce the political gunners.

RISEING: Colonel Frank Knox made a much better impression in his New York appearance last week than he did on previous visits. He apologized to his audience for not attacking the New Deal more vigorously. As a matter of fact, his temperate and constructive attitude registered more effectively than the fireworks he indulged in earlier.

Political sharps who had counted Knox out of the race are not so sure now. His fate as a candidate rests with the Illinois primaries on April 14. If he wins there he stands a good chance of rising from the ashes of his own lost cause.

"MUCH RELIEVED" SAYS LADY AFTER TAKING CARDUI Although they may be very active and apparently in good health, many women, at certain times, will do well to take Cardui. It may relieve some of the nagging symptoms that are so annoying every month. Mrs. F. T. Foster, of Greensburg, Ky., writes that she has "derived great benefit" from Cardui. "Before taking Cardui, I was weak and extremely nervous and suffered from sleeplessness. This made me tired and worn in daytime. My back ached continually. Being an active woman, I did not want to continue in this condition. Having heard a great deal about Cardui, I found, after just a few bottles, I was much relieved. I continued taking Cardui and was so much helped."

Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)

RITTER IMPEACHMENT TRIAL PROMISES SENATE DRAMATICS

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington (AP)—The senate of the United States temporarily will lay aside its regular duties April 6 and embark upon one of the rarest of dramatic governmental proceedings—trial of a senator.

A Florida federal district judge—high crimes and misdemeanors in office—must appear before the bar of the senate at high noon on that day and be judged guilty or innocent.

The white-haired, sallow-complexioned Florida jurist, elevated to the federal bench by President Coolidge, will be the twelfth person in the nation's history to face a senate court of impeachment.

A president, a senator, a secretary of war and eight federal judges have preceded him.

While every effort will be made to expedite the trial of Ritter so that it will not interfere with the rush of the closing days of this session of congress, the very nature of the procedure requires the utmost in dignity and solemnity.

A President Was Tried.
The most celebrated impeachment trial was that of President Andrew Johnson, accused of usurpation of office act. Only vote of the requisite two-thirds saved Johnson from conviction and removal from office.

William Blount, a senator from Tennessee, was the first impeachment trial defendant. Accused of sedition, the charges were dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

Only one justice of the supreme court has ever faced ouster. He was Samuel Chase, accused of misconduct at trial, who finally was acquitted.

The secretary of war to be impeached was William K. Belknap, charged with bribery. He was acquitted, however, after he had resigned from the cabinet in 1876.

Three Judges Acquitted.
Of the eight federal judges ordered before the bar of the senate, four were acquitted, three found guilty and removed from office, and one resigned before a verdict could be rendered.

The house of representatives inaugurates impeachment proceedings. Any member of that body has the privilege of preferring charges against a federal official. The house judiciary committee receives the charges unless they are tabled immediately.

The judiciary committee studies the evidence and recommends the action to be followed by the house. In the case of Judge Ritter, who is charged with accepting $4,500 from a former law partner who had been allowed a $75,000 fee in receivership, the house voted 181 to 146 to try him before the senate.

The Procedure.
Judge Ritter will be prosecuted by three managers from the house headed by Representative Sumners of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee and a participant in two previous impeachment trials. The defendant is allowed counsel and may testify himself. Witnesses are called and cross-examined as in any court. The trial is open to the public.

If two-thirds of the senators vote for conviction, the defendant may be removed from office and disqualified "to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under the United States."

Judgment in impeachment cases may not extend further than this, but the person convicted "shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to the law."

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, March 30—Supporters of the Townsend old age pension plan in congress affected brave smiles and determined expressions when they heard of the resignation of E. E. Clements, co-organizer and secretary of the movement, but privately they admitted it was a crushing blow.

It left them bewildered and uncertain. Several are of the opinion that the combination of Clements' resignation and Dr. Townsend's statement in support of Senator Borah for the R-publican presidential nomination spells the end of OARP Ltd.'s political effectiveness.

There are conflicting versions as to just what prompted Clements, generally conceded to be the "spark plug" of the Townsend movement, to quit. The most widely circulated is that Clements lost out in the wrangle, which had been going on for months, as to whose advice should be followed by the doctor in his political utterances.

Once it became evident to Clements that he was no longer the closest to the "throne room" there was nothing for him to do but get out.

Opposed Third Party
Those in intimate touch with the inside working of OARP Ltd., but who refuse to be quoted, describe the situation as follows:

Clements from the start has been steadfastly opposed to the Townsend movement entering politics. He has discouraged all talk of a "third party," which has been discussed. More than that, he has been cold toward throwing Townsend support behind any individual for the purpose of advancing his personal political fortunes.

He is said to have told one Townsend supporter in congress, who is a candidate for the senate, that the Townsend Weekly, official organ of OARP Ltd., in so far as he was concerned would accept a paid advertisement from his opponent.

Portrait of a man, likely related to the Ritter trial.

Representative McGroarty of California, author of the Townsend-old-age pension bill in congress, is said to have felt the same as Clements did and joined him in his efforts to so advise the doctor.

Downey Enters Picture
Opposed to the ideas of Clements and McGroarty, however, say these same sources, was Sheridan Downey of California, described as Dr. Townsend's personal attorney, but who had no direct connection with the national organization.

Downey was a candidate for lieutenant governor of California in 1934 on the EPIC ticket with Upton Sinclair.

Downey, it is said, was the source of inspiration for all the talk about a "third party." He is said to have circulated petitions in California calling for the formation of a "third party," but so far as is known never filed them with the secretary of state in time for the primary on May 6.

Thus the lines were drawn—Clements on the one side and Downey on the other, each seeking to influence Townsend. Apparently Clements reached the decision that his position was no longer tenable and quit.

Differences of opinion on the conduct of other phases of OARP Ltd., including internal organization and strategy to be followed in forcing a vote on the McGroarty bill in congress, probably had something to do with Clements' resignation, but those on the inside point to the other as the real reason.

Potash Is Needed for Cotton Growth and Prevent Rust

Cotton, like all other plants, manufactures its food in the leaves. Potash is needed for this manufacturing process and for the transportation and assimilation of the food. When the cotton plant approaches maturity and begins to develop burs, seed and lint, there is a tremendous demand for quickly-available potash.

If the cotton plant does not receive plenty of potash, food manufacturing is hindered or stopped, the food is not properly distributed throughout the plant and a complete breakdown occurs as a result of a starved condition. Then you see Cotton Rust.

The leaves turn yellow, break down at the edges, become rusty or black and finally drop off. The fruiting limbs are weak, the twigs supporting the burs are short and small, and the burs are small and do not open properly. The cotton is hard to pick and the lint is weak and not uniform with some long and some short fibers. The seed are small and immature with a low oil content.

All of these losses are due to potash starvation, commonly known as Cotton Rust. Nitrogen and phosphoric acid do not prevent Rust. The average fertilizer does not contain sufficient potash to prevent Rust. There is only one way to prevent Rust—simply use enough potash to balance your plant food and help you get greater benefits from other more expensive elements in your fertilizer.

Many farmers have found that it pays to use potash as a top-dressing. They have gotten excellent results from using 100 pounds of Muriate of Potash, or 200 pounds of High-grade Kainit per acre. Other farmers use nitrogen-potash mixed-woods top-dressers. All of these materials are on sale by leading fertilizer men. Potash top-dressing should be applied when you chop out.

PEACE ACTION

America lies between her two oceans and far removed from the territories of Europe and the Orient. Can she not keep herself unentangled and neutral in the quarrels of the rest of the world, and so live on in peace and prosperity regardless of who is at war? This is the question that is being raised by many in the United States today.

The answer is that even if our neutrality laws could keep us out of war, this nation's interests are too closely linked with those of other nations for us to hope to escape sharing any illfortune or suffering that comes to them.

Take the one field of trade and investment, for example. According to figures compiled in 1926, there were in that year, among the nations from whom we bought needed goods, fourteen countries from whom we imported over 100 million dollars' worth of goods. And there were twelve or more countries to each of which we exported goods worth over 100 million dollars.

In that same year we had, it is estimated, over 13 billion dollars of good American money invested in Europe, Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Central America, South America, China, Japan, the Philippines, and elsewhere.

Do these figures suggest that this country could live on in safety if other nations should go to war? James T. Shotwell, author of Economic and Social History of the World War, describes the depression as "the World War's last battle." And Henry L. Stimson, former cabinet member, is authority for the statement that even if we had not entered the war, we could not have avoided in its aftermath the "disruption of trade and the drying up of markets" which caused our depression. No, Americans can never again leave others to struggle with the disorder of the world while they gather in the benefits.

The only hope, it would seem, of peace and prosperity for even "isolated" America lies in realizing that world peace is a cooperative undertaking at which nations of the world must work together, and in supporting those "substitutes" for war that will tend to keep peace and prosperity among her neighbors, and thus within her own borders.

DO YOU KNOW ANY OF THE "SUBSTITUTES THAT HAVE BEEN SUGGESTED?"

Cultivated fallow land, including clean cultivated orchards and vineyards. Wasteland, roads, lanes, lots, yards, etc. Woodland other than that planted at owner's expense since 1933. Beginning sometime next week, farmers who wish to cooperate with the above program, will be required to fill out work sheets for their farm and it will be necessary for them to study the above classifications carefully in order that they may be able to give the Local Committees the proper information, in order that they may assist them in filling out same. Under soil depleting crops, farmers who have definite information with regard to each of these crops grown on their farm in 1935, in order that they may have an equitable base set up.

The work sheet which will be filled out in the near future, will determine the amount of pay, each farmer is entitled to, provided the measurements next summer and fall show that he has complied with same. The one definite minimum requirement set up is that the farmer must have on his farm, in 1936, either twenty percent of the total base acreage of soil depleting crops, or the total acreage of soil conserving crops equal to the number of acres taken out of soil-depleting crops.

County Agent, Arnold, requests that every farmer in the County plan to reduce his tobacco acreage thirty percent, and his cotton acreage thirty-five per cent and that he prepare a specific list of all crops grown in 1935 and the crops to be grown in 1936 before going to his commitments to fill out his work sheet for 1936; thus entitling him to five cents per pound on tobacco and cotton for the poundage contained in the acreage taken from his 1936 base in these crops.

IT'S THE ONLY ONE OF "ALL THREE" WITH ALL THESE ECONOMY FEATURES

 HYDRAULIC BRAKES —The safest brakes made... self-equalizing... always sure, quick, even-acting.	 DOUBLE-ACTION BRAKES —Plymouth's 100% hydraulic brakes don't depend on "wrapping" wheel equal (left-hand picture)... but exert equal pressure throughout (see right, above).	 SAFETY-STEEL BODY —Plymouth's body's Safety-Steel like a modern railroad coach. And bolted horizontally and vertically to car frame gives safest, quietest construction.	 PATENTED FLOATING POWER —Ordinary engine mounting... as at left... transmits engine vibrations to rest of car. Patented Floating Power engine mountings... at right... hold engine in balance... absorbing vibration before it begins.
 PLYMOUTH HAS FOUR MAIN BEARINGS —Instead of three. Thus every piston stroke is supported by two big bearings. (Like driving nail in a solidly supported board.)	 FULL-LENGTH WATER JACKETS —circulate water all around each cylinder instead of half way. This means better cooling... a reason for Plymouth's economy and long life.	 DIRECTIONAL WATER CIRCULATION —In the picture at the left, the girls farthest from the fan aren't getting much benefit of the cooling breeze... illustrating the old type engine cooling system. The picture at the right illustrates Plymouth's directional cooling which forces cool water at	 high velocity to all exhaust valve assemblies. This, combined with full-length water jackets, lowers oil temperatures as much as 50°... improves lubricating efficiency... saves oil. Plymouth owners report amazingly low oil consumption as well as 18 to 24 miles per gallon of gasoline.

Refuse To Become Excited Over Gains By McDonald

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL
Raleigh, March 30.—The more thoughtful people over the state are not getting all hot and bothered over the progress which Dr. Ralph W. McDonald is said to be making in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor and are refusing to get all excited, as are some of the politicians, according to reliable reports reaching here from all sections of the state.

They are confident, that between now and the June primary a majority of the people are going to decide that either Clyde R. Hoey or Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham will make a better Governor of North Carolina and more to uphold the traditions of the Democratic party in the state for the past 36 years than McDonald. They believe the Democrats or North Carolina are not going to turn their backs on records of the nine Democratic Governors they have elected from 1900 to 1936 or forget that from Aycock to Ehringhaus, there has never been a single whisper scandal or a trace of corruption in the governmental affairs of North Carolina.

There are two basic reasons for this belief, as follows:
1. The superior intelligence of the people of North Carolina, as compared with that of the voters in most of the other southern states, due very largely to the better system of public education in North Carolina which has been built up by successive Democratic administrations for the past 36 years, so that North Carolina voters cannot be swayed by the type of demagoguery which is still used effectively in other states.

2. The examples which the voters of North Carolina have had from other states, and which they have had enough intelligence to evaluate and make them realize that what they do not want a Governor in North Carolina similar to Governor Talmadge in Georgia, the late Huey Long in Louisiana, Cole Blaise or the present Governor Johnston in South Carolina, Bilbo of Mississippi, Catts of Florida, the Ferguson in Texas or "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky.

The people of North Carolina have read of the recent political turmoil in Georgia, when Governor Talmadge fired the state treasurer and state comptroller and had his National Guardsmen evict them from their offices because they would not disregard the law and turn over all the state's funds into his control. They know of the trouble in South Carolina and the eviction of the members of the South Carolina Highway Commission by Governor Johnston, who also used national guardsmen to remove them from office, and of the present deadlock between Governor Johnston and the South Carolina legislature over the highway commission. They remember the antics of former Gov. Cole Blaise of South Carolina, what former Governor Bilbo did in and to Mississippi, and Huey Long in Louisiana. They know that while Governor Peay was titular Governor of Tennessee, that Colonel Luke Lea, now serving a term in the North Carolina State Prison, was the real Governor of Tennessee. And while Governor "Happy" Chandler of Kentucky made good his promise to repeal the sales tax, the people here know that Kentucky had to issue some $3,000,000 more in state warrants to finish out the fiscal year, since it cannot borrow any money and cannot sell bonds and already has more than $23,000,000 in state warrants outstanding, bearing a high interest rate.

The reason so many of the voters of this state know these things and have already decided that it is better to stick to a safe, sane, middle-of-the-road candidate for Governor or than experiment with a new type and one who is not even a native North Carolinian—Dr. McDonald is a native of Illinois—is because so many more of the voters in this state have been to school more, read more newspapers and magazines and are hence better informed, most observers agree. For while Dr. McDonald is assailing the state public school system and accusing the Democratic legislature of 1933 of deliberately sacrificing the schools for the benefit of the big corporations, it is this same state school system which has served to build up an electorate which many now contend is too intelligent to run the risk of nominating Dr. McDonald for Governor.

This does not mean that the campaign managers of Hoey and Graham are not alive to the strength McDonald has and the progress he has been making, or that they are over confident. But it does mean they believe that by the time the campaign is over and the people have been given the facts, they will decide that Hoey or Graham conform better to the tradition and record of the past 36 years than McDonald does.

GERMAN EMIGRES ADVANCE STUDY OF MEDITERRANEAN

Tel Aviv, Palestine (Palcor) (AP)—Scientists of this Jewish city, reinforced by German-Jewish newcomers, are to open here soon the first institute to study eastern Mediterranean marine biology. The initiative came from Dr. Walter Steinitz, formerly lecturer in zoology at Breslau university, Germany. Although there are 14 research stations around the western Mediterranean, not a single one exists in the eastern part of the sea. The intention is to study sea life in the hitherto unexplored area of the eastern Mediterranean, Suez Canal and Red Sea, and to establish the value of fisheries.

I wouldn't give that for a cigarette that doesn't Satisfy... that doesn't give me what I want in a smoke

I want my cigarette mild, of course—I hardly think anybody enjoys a strong cigarette. But deliver me from the flat, insipid kind

I find a great deal of pleasure in Chesterfields. They're mild and yet they seem to have more taste and aroma. I enjoy them.

They Satisfy... just about all you could ask for
