Rivers Of Carolina On Tremendous Rampage Due To Heavy Rainfall

Tar Here Expected to Crest at 19 Feet by Monday

MUCH DAMAGE IN LOWLANDS

Cape Fear, Neuse and Roanoke Rivers Also Reach High Water Marks

With the Tar river rising at the rate of two feet every 24 hours, B. T. Clark today warned that the stream would go to 19 feet Sunday afternoon or Monday, and advised all lowland residents to prepare for the crest.

The 19-foot level predicted for the river is only four feet less than the all-time high water mark set for the stream in July, 1919, when it reached 23.6 feet. The river is expected to go about two feet above the highest mark reached this winter, despite the fact records of many years' standing were broken earlier in the season.

Mr. Clark warned all persons having cattle in the lowlands to get them to higher territory immediately.

The heavy rains of Monday night and Tuesday accounted for an official fall of 3.41 inches and brought the total for the month to 4.48 inches. The 4.48 inches for the first seven days of April compared with a total of 2.87 inches for the entire month last year.

The river was standing at 12.3 feet at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and by that time today it had reached 14.3 feet. The stream was described by local weather officials as being on a "tremendous rampage."

Farmers in lowlands throughout the county reported much damage, declaring that tobacco beds had been washed away in many instances, and other farm damage suffered.

EASTERN CAROLINA STREAMS ARE CAUSING MUCH DAMAGE

Raleigh, April 8.—(AP)—Eastern North Carolina's four major streams were in flood today, doing damage to lowlands and closing two highways.

Lee A. Denson, in charge of the weather bureau here, said data available at midday on the streams showed:

The Cape Fear at Fayetteville had passed 52.6 feet and late today was due to crest at 55 feet, 20 feet in flood. At Elizabethtown it was above 30.2 feet, eight feet above flood level with a depth of 35 feet expected tomorrow afternoon.

The Neuse at Smithfield passed 19.7 this morning with 21 feet, eight feet above the banks, expected tomorrow.

At Rocky Mount the Tar was 10.2 feet with 11 expected tomorrow night, two feet in flood, while at Tarboro it was 18.8 with 26 feet, eight above flood mark, expected Saturday night. At Greenville it was 14.3, already a foot in flood, with 19 expected by Monday.

The Roanoke at Weldon was 37.7 feet with 40 expected tomorrow or Friday, to make the stage nine feet in flood.

Two More State Their Candidacy for Commissioners

Walter Cherry of Greenville District and B. M. Lewis of Western Section Enter Campaign

Two more candidates today announced for positions on the Pitt county Board of Commissioners, under the new set-up provided by the 1935 legislature.

Walter Cherry announced from the district composed of Greenville township, and B. M. Lewis state for member from the Western district, composed of Farmville, Fountain, Falkland and Beaver Dam townships.

Both candidates are at present members of the board and offered for re-election.

Frank M. Kilpatrick of Ayden, in the South district, and David T. House of Bethel, in the North district, Saturday announced their candidacies for members of the board.

Under the new set up of the board, one member of the board will be selected from each of the new districts. The last legislature divided the county's townships into five districts and provided that each should name one member of the board. Greenville township is to have one member. All other districts are composed of several townships.

STUDIES LEVY IN COMMITTEE

House Committee Considers Final Form Taxation

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—House Ways and Means committee democrats assembled behind closed doors today to consider the final form of the $799,000,000 tax program.

Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) indicated some modification would be made in the plan which some business men including spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States pointed out an early hour this morning.

Republican committee members were not present.

While prominent democrats have indicated most of the tailoring of the program will center on minor matters, they agreed that opinion was fairly well solidified within the committee to grant some measure of special treatment to debt-ridden corporations.

In connection with the absence of Republicans, Doughton said "we had hope to do work on a non-partisan measure; but the republican members apparently are in agreement to oppose the plan with every measure at their command."

Doughton said he hoped to have a bill ready for the House early next week. The battle will be renewed in debate there and later before senate committee and on the senate floor.

Roosevelt Fishing Cruise Completed In Florida Today

President Goes Ashore at Port Everglades After 16-Day Fishing Trip and Reports Grand Time

Port Everglades (Fort Lauderdale) Fla., April 8.—(AP)—Sun-tanned and smiling, President Roosevelt came ashore today from his 16-day fishing cruise, reporting a grand time.

He then boarded his special train which pulled out at 2 p. m. (EST) for Mr. Roosevelt's former home, Warm Springs, Ga.

The trip U. S. S. Potomac drew alongside the pier here shortly after 1 p. m. today from the 800 mile trip around the Bahama Islands, and Mr. Roosevelt remained aboard almost a half hour to meet members of his staff and welcome officials.

L. H. Fleming Out For Chicod Constable

Leslie H. Fleming today announced his candidacy for constable of Chicod township, subject to the Democratic primary in June.

Mr. Fleming's brief announcement only set forth that he was seeking the position and the support and vote of his friends would be appreciated.

Tax Defendants With Fines in Police Court

Several defendants were taxed with fines and the costs of court by Mayor M. K. Blount, in Police court this morning, none of the cases being of much importance.

Israel Oliver and John Green, convicted of fighting, were fined five dollars and costs; Willie B. Perkins, negro, was fined five dollars for being drunk and Ruby Mobley, white man, was taxed with the costs upon conviction of being drunk.

Spring Holidays Start At College Tomorrow

The spring holidays for East Carolina Teachers College will begin at noon tomorrow and will continue through Tuesday, with the regular schedule of class work resumed at eight o'clock on the morning of April 15. The Easter holidays for several years past have been included in the spring vacation.

A Senior Class trip to Washington City to see the cherry blossoms and other attractions is one of the holiday features. Most of the students and members of the faculty left the campus, many of them in small parties taking interesting trips.

Births in Augusta, Ga., reached peak of 1,377 in 1935.

VOTE PROCEED WITH PAVINGS

Authorize Bond Issue Not to Exceed $75,000

The Greenville Board of Aldermen, in an executive session last night, authorized an order for the issuance of bonds not to exceed $75,000 to carry on a number of paving projects in the city.

The projects will include at least eight streets, sidewalks on each side of East Fourth street from Reade street to Rotary avenue and a number of curbs and gutters.

The eight streets upon which definite action was taken were those for which properly signed petitions have been presented to the board. It was explained that others probably would be added before the work actually begins.

The proposed curbs and gutters are those for which petitions have been drawn, but have not been properly signed as yet.

The city is making plans to go ahead with the projects, borrowing money on bond anticipation notes, with the bonds to be sold at a later date when the entire cost has been determined.

Notice has been published that the board will receive sealed bids on the projects, the offers to be opened April 20. The board reserved the right, however, to reject any and all bids.

A number of citizens owning property on the streets to be paved have signified their willingness to pay cash for their part of the work. Otherwise the city will pay for all the work and assess the property owners with their part, payments to be made annually.

During discussions of plans for the new paving projects, the aldermen called attention that a number of back paving assessments are still outstanding and urged those owing such sums to pay up at once. Following the meeting, Mayor M. K. Blount stated that the city would have to have the cooperation of the citizens if it intended to go forward with paving projects. He explained that the city could not go ahead with new plans unless the citizens did their part and paid their back assessments.

The streets for which petitions have been properly signed and on which work is scheduled to start as soon as the contracts are let follow:

West Third street from end of the present pavement to Tyson street, with curb and gutter.

West Fourth street from White street to Tyson street.

Student street from Fourth street to Johnston street.

Johnston street from Student street to Rotary avenue.

Rotary avenue from Johnston street to Fourth street.

Biltmore street from Johnston street to Fourth street.

Library street from Fourth street to Fifth street.

Evans street from Fifth street to Third street, resurfaced.

Eleven Persons Are Killed On Highways In Section

Monthly Report For Highway Patrol Division Issued

Eleven persons were killed in traffic wrecks on highways in the Eastern division of the state during March, Eastern division of the State Highway Patrol reported today.

The same number of fatalities occurred during March as were reported for the previous month.

The report, issued by Lieut. Lester Jones, head of the division, showed that 66 additional persons were injured in the 102 accidents investigated by the patrol members.

During the previous month only 77 wrecks were investigated and in addition to the 11 killed, 34 persons were injured.

Drunken drivers arrested by patrolmen took a decided jump during March over those in February. Last month 118 persons were arrested on the charge, while in February only 59 motorists were charged with the count.

The entire patrol force for the Eastern division spent a total of 15,470 hours on duty, traveling 113,040 miles and using 3,871 gallons of gasoline and 946 pints of oil.

Activities of the patrol resulted in 638 guilty verdicts and 26 acquittals. Sentences totaled 168 months. Fines amounted to $7,017.50 and court costs $4,624.86. In addition the force recovered property valued at $4,790 and collected $27,371.40.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington
By RAY TUCKER
KEY: The Republicans have at last massed their forces for a grand assault upon President Roosevelt and the New Deal. Heads of the hitherto warring National and Congressional committees signed the compact recently at a private dinner which National Chairman Fletcher hosted.

Mr. Fletcher has corralled half a dozen professors to dig up dirt on the administration. Under his direction they will assemble facts and figures designed to discredit FDR in the campaign. Then he will turn their professorial material over to the Bolton-Hastings Congressional committee for sensational polishing by their journalistic writers—Messrs. Warren, Wheaton, Lawrence Sullivan and Edwin Lewis. All three have a deadly headline aim.

The finished product will be handed to members of the House. They will spout the charges which the professors and the journalists have cooked up. At least twelve major anti-New Deal speeches are scheduled, and they will pitch the G. O. P. key for the campaign. G. O. P. tacticians have despaired of stimulating opposition in the Senate. So watch House developments from now on.

AGEING: Veteran employees of New Deal departments are getting fed up after three years of experimentation. With a possible change of administration looming up for November, they are also becoming bolder. They are furnishing tips to G. O. P. spokesmen on Capitol Hill.

It's these old hands who have supplied Senator Vandenberg with facts about AAA payments running into thousands of dollars. Department of Commerce tipsters furnished Rep. Robert Bacon of New York with material about the Roper family.

STORM RIPPED STATES WATCH FLOOD WATERS

Cheered, However, By Promise Of Federal Aid

RED CROSS ALSO RAISING FUNDS

Gainesville, Ga., and Tupelo, Miss., Continue to Dig From Tornado Wreckage

(By The Associated Press)
Rebuilding began today in tornado-wrecked Tupelo, Miss., and Gainesville, Ga., as the slow surge of destructive floods claimed attention at other points in the south.

Five flood deaths lifted the week's toll of the elements to 429. Even as funerals progressed, WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins announced that $1,000,000 each to Georgia and Mississippi for tornado relief had been allotted.

South Carolina was allotted $200,000 and Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee $100,000 each.

(By The Associated Press)
Definite progress in rehabilitation and promise of federal aid of charred tornado-torn Gainesville, Ga., and Tupelo, Miss., today while scores of cities in half a dozen southern states kept anxious watch on rising rivers.

President Roosevelt last night announced allotment of $2,500,000 in works progress administration funds for rehabilitation work in the southern storm area.

Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Red Cross chief, reported his organization had raised more than $3,400,000 for flood relief and was asking additional funds for rehabilitation in the southern tornado zone.

Gainesville planned to bury most of its dead today while 2,000 relief workers continued clearing wreckage. Some stores reopened in the business area and the Red Cross reported progress in caring for some 3,000 homeless and several hundred injured.

An army of 1,500 relief hands remained on the job in Tupelo, where nearly all of the 195 dead had been buried by this morning.

The threat of pestilence seemed to have been checked in both storm regions and the flood troubles which were worrying other sections had not become acute in the storm areas.

Hundreds of thousands of low-lying acres were inundated in Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky and the Carolinas with several thousand persons driven from their homes by rain-swollen streams.

Five deaths were charged to the flood conditions, including two which occurred as an automobile skidded from a bridge into a creek in east Tennessee. A three-year-old child drowned near Boone, N. C., and 13-year-old D. C. Kiser, Jr., drowned in Sugar Creek near Charlotte, N. C.

The death list in the south Sunday and Monday tornadoes stood today at 421, with Mississippi reporting 211 fatalities, Georgia, 185; Tennessee, 13; Alabama 11 and Arkansas and South Carolina one each.

Stopped watches of two of the dead convinced Lieutenant George Pickering of the highway patrol and Coroner S. A. Baltz that the tragedy occurred at 10:20 a. m.

Eden Charges Italian Armies with Using Poison Gas

North Carolina Representatives Backing Proposal EXPECT DECISION MOMENTARILY

Measure Would Back Up States in Attempt to Enact Legislation for Control

(By The Associated Press)
The League of Nations took steps today to determine exactly how much truth there is in allegations that Italy has violated the Geneva treaty of 1925 by using poison gas in her war against Ethiopia.

The League committee of 13 appointed a sub-committee of jurists to investigate the charges after Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, presented a list of 10 instances upon which the Fascist soldiers were said to have used the banned weapon.

The committee also instructed its president, Salvador de Madariaga of Spain, to ask Italian representatives just what terms Premier Mussolini demanded for stopping his war against the East African empire.

(By The Associated Press)
Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, protested to the League conciliation committee of 13 today against the alleged use of poison gas by the Italian armies in Ethiopia, while Premier Mussolini, in an extraordinary session of his cabinet, said today Italy would fight for the "total annihilation of the Ethiopian military formation."

The French came forward at the same time with their plan to maintain peace in Europe with the establishment of permanent military forces to guard against violation of frontiers.

At the first meeting of the council committee, Eden called Italy to task on the charge of using asphyxiating gases on the Ethiopian war front in violation of the convention signed at Geneva in 1925 by both warring nations. The foreign secretary asked the international Red Cross to disclose any information it possesses regarding these charges.

France, however, came forward with a demand that the league investigate the Italian atrocity charges against the Ethiopian army.

Premier Mussolini proclaimed to his minister in Rome that security for Italian colonies could come only when the armies of Emperor Haile Selassie had been completely overpowered.

The French memorandum for a European security system based on mutual assistance pacts on a territorial basis in Europe was put forth in opposition to the German proposal for settlement of the Rhine-danube crisis.

One Frenchman in Geneva described the French plan as creation of a United States of Europe with an armed force to maintain peace.

Proponents indicated that if they were successful in passing the bill, money for the advances would be sought by amending a future deficiency appropriation bill.

Hearst Loses Fight Secure Injunction Restraining Group

Ruling in District of Columbia Supreme Court Denies Plea of William Randolph Hearst

Washington, April 8.—(AP)—William Randolph Hearst lost in the District of Columbia Supreme Court today in his fight to secure preliminary injunctions to restrain the Senate lobby committee and the Federal Communications Commission from examining or using his telegrams.

Chief Justice Alfred A. White granted a motion by Crampton Harris, lobby committee counsel, to dismiss the publisher's injunction plea.

The court stipulated that final disposition of the commission angle of the litigation could only be made when it filed a formal answer to the publisher's petition.

Elisha Harson, Hearst counsel, immediately served notice of intention to appeal.

In announcing the telegram seizure Hanson told the court the lobby investigations were not authorized "to permit larceny nor to conspire with another agent of the government to commit larceny."

Crampton Harris, committee counsel, replied the injunction sought against the committee would amount to judicial interception with the legislative branch.

Referring to Hanson's contention that the seizure violated the congressional guarantee of freedom of the press, Justice Wheat said: "I can't see how the question of freedom of the press is involved in any way."

GASOLINE SALE FORBIDDEN TO DRIVERS HELD DRUNK

Canton, Ohio.—(AP)—A new plan to curb drunken driving is being tried out here.

City council adopted an ordinance forbidding filling station operators from selling gasoline to drivers who appear to be intoxicated. The attendants face a fine of not less than $25 and not more than $50 and a jail sentence of not less than 15 days nor more than 30 if convicted of violating the measure.

PROSPECT SEEMS REMOTE FOR PARTY SPONSORSHIP OF TAX-BALANCED BUDGET

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The current tax discussion in congress demonstrates pointedly how major political issues often become hopelessly confused and beclouded.

It is agreed universally that the government is facing a time of critical decision with respect to its finances. The budget has been out of balance for five years, and there is widespread questioning about the whole problem of national fiscal policy.

As a matter of common sense, it would seem that in such times the voters should be given an opportunity, under a democratic form of government, to express themselves clearly and directly.

Theoretically, it would appear a simple matter to put into the coming campaign an issue stated thus: should taxes now be increased to equal expenditures, and if so who should bear the burden?

Actually, national decisions seldom work out that way. Not only will any expression on this subject be complicated by a tangle with other issues, but the tax issue itself has become so complicated that it is hard for anyone to understand it without the aid of a textbook on public finance and a table of logarithms.

In the first place, there is no prospect that either of the major parties will say directly in its platform that it favors an immediate balancing of the budget by increasing taxation.

If the precedents of former years are followed, the voter who wants a balance struck at once will have no chance to vote his convictions. He will have to choose instead between two party plans of beautifully indefinite language, meaning one thing to one person and another thing to another.

As to the methods to be pursued in a tax increase, the likelihood of vague party declarations is even greater. The membership of both parties in congress is split widely. Whatever bill is enacted will be inevitably, an awkward compromise; and it will be the job of the respective platform committees at the conventions to please as many different schools of thought as possible.

The usual result of that process is to leave the subject in a complete fog, from which it can be rescued only if one or the other of the principal candidates for President brings forward a clearly defined program of his own.

But even about this, there are many complications. Mr. Roosevelt, for instance, already is on record for an increased tax on corporation incomes.

His proposal immediately is attacked on the one hand as a plan to "soak the rich," and on the other as a disguised thrust at "the little fellow," who, it is argued by some of Mr. Roosevelt's opposition, would have to foot the bill eventually.

On top of this, congress has rewritten the Roosevelt program, bringing into play a sliding scale of corporation rates so intricate that it is almost impossible to explain in language understandable by the layman. To some of this administration officials object, thus ineffectually washing their hands of the political consequences. The result will probably be more rewriting.

In the end, whose bill will it be? Who can be held accountable for it at the polls, when apparently everyone finds it unsatisfactory? Beset by technical controversies, and even contradictory statements of fact, how can the voter tell what the bill really means, especially as its practical operation will be delayed until next year?

At this distance, it appears that confusion and frustration will be the tax issue's principal contribution to the campaign.

Population At Prison Is Largest in History

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 7.—North Carolina now has the largest prison population it has ever had, with 5,925 prisoners in its various units. Acting Director Oscar T. Pitts of the prison division of the State Highway and Public Works Commission announced today. There are 8,822 prisoners in the various camps and prison units and 103 in the criminal insane divisions and at the state tubercular hospital at Sanitarium, making a total of 8,925.

The former peak in the prison population was reached in May, 1935, when there were 8,650 prisoners in the prison system, Pitts pointed out. The present population is 275 greater than in May a year ago.

There were only 18 escapes during March, while 33 escaped prisoners were recaptured, as compared with 43 escapes in March, 1935, and 48 recaptures, Pitts said. In February there were 21 escapes and 35 recaptures, while in February, 1935 there were 43 escapes and 47 recaptures.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

WILLIAM E. BORAH

(By The Associated Press) Senator William E. Borah of Idaho is certain to be a major influence in the year's political battles—no matter what he does.

He is a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. If he wins, his role is fairly definite. If not, only Borah knows what he will do. It is supposed he will campaign actively only if he approves the party's candidate, and his approval will be gratefully accepted.

Already he has caused more than a ripple in the Republican pond by entering state primaries in his fight against uninstruced state delegations, and by his initial "stumping" activity.

After the convention Borah still will spell trouble for the Democrats if he schedules a speaking tour. His voice and his manner of expressing himself are always gold in any campaign cash drawer.

GRAHAM FOES GET TANGLED

Indications Are That Agriculture Head to Be Unopposed

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 7.—Opponents of Commissioner of Agriculture William A. Graham who for several months now have been trying to get a candidate to oppose Graham for the nomination in the June primary, are about to get all tangled up in their own maneuverings, much to the amusement of the Graham supporters.

Present indications are that those opposing Graham are about to get so badly gummed up in their own political maneuverings that in the end Graham will have no opposition whatever in the primary.

It has been no secret for several months that the anti-Graham faction in the Democratic party has been trying to persuade W. Kerr Scott of Alamance county, former Master of the Grange in North Carolina and now an employe in production credit division of the Resettlement Administration, to run against Graham. It has also been generally agreed that Scott has wanted to run against Graham and would if he believed he could win the nomination, but did not want to spend the time and money necessary, likewise resign his job with the Resettlement Administration, just to be number among the "also rans." As a result, Scott has not yet decided whether he will run or not—and many still doubt if he will get into the campaign, since it is known that many of his close friends have advised him not to run, in the belief that if he did he could not win the nomination from Graham, conceded to be an expert in the grand old game of politics.

But the anti-Graham faction, determined to have some one oppose Graham, and believing Scott would make the best race, several weeks started a movement to hurry Scott up by starting a report that former Sheriff E. A. Rasberry of Greene county might become a candidate, according to current reports.

It is also understood that they sent Hasberry to see John Sprunt Hill and his son, Watts Hill, in an effort to get them to provide the much needed campaign fund, but that no money was forthcoming from the Hills, despite their well known dislike for Commissioner Graham. It is also reported that Scott is now making a last effort to find a campaign fund from some other source than the Hills, but that he is having considerable difficulty. The report is also current that Rasberry may run anyway, even if Scott does.

RECORDS REVEAL NAME OF TOWN LONG MISSPELLED

Centerville, Ia.—(AP)—The name of this town has been spelled with a "C" for years when, as a matter of fact, it should have been an "S." The error was discovered by County Clerk Howard D. Evans when he searched through the records after receiving a letter addressed to Centerville. A history of the town is daily known, says Evans, that says they incidents here dated to 1800 when community Centerville in honor of Governor Senator of Tennessee. Later, the state legislature, not knowing all of the connection with Governor Gentry, thought it was just a case of bad spelling on the part of the old timers and made it Centerville which, in all probability, it will remain.

Senior-Normal Plays.
Another successful entertainment was added to the long list of those that have been presented annually by the Senior-Normal class of the college.

The three plays made an excellent combination, as they were very different, and it is difficult to tell which the audience liked best. The features between acts added greatly to the evening's success, and made the wait between acts seem all too short to the audience.

Miss Helen Dorch who has been the director of several of the senior normal plays in the past five years, again proved herself a master director.

The acting was excellent in all the plays. Billy Tolson and Paul Fitzgerald, who had important parts in two of the plays, showed they were veteran actors by doing the best acting perhaps they have yet done.

The three sisters in "Agatha" were charming, with Miss Betty Herring playing the title role in a most pleasing manner. Misses Julia Peterson and Caroline Richardson, the other sisters, and the spinster aunt, Miss Roberta Brantley, supporting her well. The North Carolina local color in this play was especially appreciated by the audience.

Bill Sledge as the Confederate army officer, was a fine companion to Colonel Joseph Pettway. Billy Tolson, the part of Shadrack the negro butler, as played by Sherman Smith, showed that he was a real actor.

In "The Threshold," Miss Estelle Adams as Mrs. Wadsworth, played the difficult part of the invalid grandmother with rare art that made one feel the spirit of the borderland between the real and unreal world. The doctor friend, as played by Joe Hatem, had much of the same spirit. Miss Eleanor Taylor as the granddaughter, was a fine example of youth in contrast with age. Miss Ruby Lucas, as the family servant, fitted into the play well.

The comedy, "The Leap Year Bride," was an excellent play with which to close the evening's entertainment. Miss Sara W. Rhyme as the star comedian of the evening, the star comedian of the evening, and not a trick of hers was lost, and from the time she appeared on the stage and began to set her trap until at the end when she was caught in another trap. The trio of characters acted well together. Paul Fitzgerald and Billy Tolson made an excellent team in playing the parts of the two men who foiled the plot of the office girl.

Between the plays the audience was entertained by popular local talent. Misses Helen and Eoline Sawyer and Mary Hoover Boyd, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Tyson, sang two popular songs, "With All My Heart" and "You Are My Lucky Star." Alvin Page, with Miss Marion Wood at the piano, sang "Alone At a Table for Two" and "Isn't This a Lovely Day?" James D. Simpson, accompanied by Miss Nola Walters, sang "Moon Over Miami" and "Goody Goody."

Children from Miss Carolyn Hauric's dancing class, between the second and third plays, presented a number of interesting dances. The dancers were Misses Mary Jane Guthrie, Shirley Warner, Cora B. Reddit, Joan Bloom, Peggy Rose Smith, Sarah Frances Williams, Alice Ruth Bundy and Marion Cox. Mrs. W. L. Guthrie was at the piano. Miss Hamric herself did some acrobatic dancing that amazed her audience.

The stage for each play gave evidence of excellent work done by the committees. Miss Roberta Brantley, president of the class, most graciously thanked publicly those who furnished properties or helped with the play.

HOUSE-PLANNING COURSE
ATTRACTS 32 OHIO CO-EDS

Columbus, Ohio.—(AP)—Thirty-two co-eds at Ohio State University are acquiring knowledge which will permit them to dictate to future husbands what kind of houses they shall live in.

A course on house planning gives them the "inside" on home construction from basement to attic.

Dr. Wooster B. Field, course director, says it "could really be called an effort to teach women, by thought process, the proper means of judging a well-planned house."

BISHOP TELLS BIBLE HISTORY

Relates How Book Came to Be and What It is About

Telling how the bible came to be and what it is chiefly about, was Bishop William Fraser McDowell's reply to his announced subject, "How Shall We Think of the Bible?" last night in his fourth sermon of the series of seven he is preaching at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church this week.

Services begin at 7:30 each evening and will last through Friday evening service this week. The size of the congregation last night shows that the community is all too slowly becoming aware of the extraordinary messages of Bishop McDowell.

Bishop McDowell said last night that his sermon for tonight "How Shall We Think of the Bible?" is the sermon his wife always said he ought to preach if he were going to preach only one sermon in a community—"Not because it is any better," the Bishop assured, "but because it would mean more good to the people."

Bishop McDowell opened his remarks last night with the humble statement that he was anxious to speak wisely about how we should think of the Bible. In introducing the subject he explained that the bible is not just one book but lots of books together, sixty-six altogether. That it is called by one name which is thoroughly justified by the character of it. That it occupied many centuries in the making. That it was written by many people under many different circumstances. All of this he characterized as "common facts."

Then the Bishop went on to say that if one analyzes the Bible one will find it is written in many styles and includes discussions on many subjects using every form of written expression from fable to history. Though people are prone to forget that it is really a very large book, it is not possible even to read it through in a little while. There is not as much reading of it now as formerly though not much then.

"There could not have been the Bible if it had not been for the lives it reveals—Egyptian captivity, God's guidance, the march from Egypt, pursuit by army of Pharaoh, Red Sea, Parting water, retiring water drowning army.

"Things so full of the presence of God and His meaning and purpose. We are just thrilled by it."

"Miriam's song—praising God and events so fortuitous. You would be perfectly willing to admit that God was in the singing of the song but God was also in the event out of which the song came."

Next he illustrated by use of the Twenty-Third Psalm indicating how it grew out of a shepherd's picture from the Shepherds' life but God is and that the shepherd got his inspiration from the seeing of this relation.

Inferring the Old Testament grew out of God's taking the Hebrews and doing the best with them He could, the Bishop said.

"Once a spotless man came who walked straight the path with God. There is no question the Spirit of God was in Him. It would be a violation of all the laws of life and literature if it were not true that the Spirit of God was in Him. And no such four Gospels could have been if there had not been a Christ."

REFINANCING STRIDES MADE

Many Units Assisted by Local Government Commission

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, April 8.—There is nothing new in the proposal being made by Dr. Ralph W. McDonald in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor favoring the refinancing of city, county and state bonds, since for the past two years the present administration, through the Local Government Commission and the office of the State Treasurer, has assisted 28 cities and towns and 18 counties to refund their debts at lower interest rates. It was pointed out here today by State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson.

In addition, all of the refunding plans which have been worked out and agreed to by the bondholders, provide that a definite amount of money be raised each year to pay the principal and interest and also an additional amount to be used in purchasing bonds in the open market before their maturity, whenever this can be done to advantage. Johnson pointed out.

"Since 1933 we have had all the laws we need to enable the counties, cities and towns to refund their obligations and we have been proceeding just as rapidly as has been possible," Johnson said. "Refunding operations require a great deal of time, since it is necessary to secure the approval of all of the bondholders to the refunding plans before they can be put into operation. The condition of the bond market must also be considered and is an important factor, since it is useless to try to refund any bonds with new bonds when the new bonds cannot be absorbed by the market. It has only been within the past year that the bond market has loosened up enough to make it possible to carry on any extensive refunding operations."

These 28 cities and towns and 18 counties have been saved a total of $36,422,086 in interest over the total life of the bonds which have been refunded, Johnson pointed out. Of this amount, $19,729,045 goes to the 18 counties and $16,693,041 to the 28 cities and towns.

The state has also effected a total saving of $2,566,351 by refunding its floating debt at an interest rate of 3.53 per cent instead of 6 per cent, Johnson pointed out. It also made a profit of $150,000 for the sinking fund recently by selling some short maturity bonds and replacing them with long term bonds with a higher yield.

Dry Forces Gathered For Raleigh Meeting

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, April 7.—The United Drys, of which Cale K. Burgess, local lawyer is vice president and active campaign manager, are meeting here today. At this meeting the board of directors is expected to decide whether the organization will continue to oppose any move towards state liquor control or continue to hold out for state-wide prohibition until it is rejected in a state-wide referendum vote, the same position Burgess and his dries took during the 1935 general assembly.

Some see in the meeting today an effort to get the dry forces of the state more aroused and more interested in the campaign of Clyde R. Hoey for Governor. It is generally known that Burgess is one of Hoey's close advisors and strong supporters and that the Hoey managers are counting heavily on the bone-dry vote going for Hoey in the June primary. It is conceded that Hoey's stand on the liquor question, favoring changing the present dry laws only after a state-wide primary, is entirely satisfactory to the dries.

EARLIEST ARABIC SCRIPT FOUND NEAR BEERSHEBA

Jerusalem.—(AP)—The earliest known specimen of Arabic writing has been found in two papyri among the 37 rolls so far discovered by the British Colt expedition at Ajja Alhafir near Beersheba.

Nine rolls were found in the southern church and the rest in the northern church on the site of the ancient Byzantine town.

The oldest papyrus has been identified as of 565 A. D., the first year of Emperor Justin II. It recorded wheat land transactions.

In addition to the papyri a dozen fragments in Latin and Greek, have been uncovered, relating to the fourth book of Virgil's Aeneid.

John Blondell hopes her son, Norman Scott Barnes, 3, will become an artist when he grows up.

I surely can recommend Cardui for weakness and pain."

A.A.U.W. Hears Mr. Mulholland.
A thoroughly responsive, appreciative group heard V. M. Mulholland read "First Lady," on Tuesday afternoon at Ragsdale Hall.

In this drama the farce, the intrigue, the spirit, the seriousness, the sincere statesmanship, and the power—all the elements that make up the complicated life of Washington are strikingly presented. Lucy Chase Wayne, the grandchild of a former President and the wife of the Secretary of State, was not going to let Irene Hibbard, the thief of Lucy's cook and the wife of a Justice of the Supreme Court, become First Lady; but she was going to have her own husband made President. Lucy won. This "juvenalian satire" is full of "ear-bolic humor." A farce could scarcely arouse more laughter; a high comedy could scarcely provoke more thought. Mr. Mulholland made the most of the possibilities of this delightful play.

The Drama Group is looking forward to Mrs. G. A. Bowen's reading at the next meeting.

Service At Christian Church.
The annual Maundy Thursday service of Holy Communion will be observed in the Eighth Street Christian Church tomorrow night at eight o'clock. Visitors are welcomed to this service, as they are to all services held in this church.

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES: The F. Clark Co., Inc., New York, Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, Kansas City.

The Board of Aldermen last night definitely approved the project of resurfacing Evans street in the business section and projects for extending the paving on seven other of the city's streets. It is understood that projects for other streets will also be taken up by the Aldermen just as soon as the petitions are signed and presented by the property owners. Evans street has needed resurfacing for a long time and the board acted wisely in ordering this work done now. It is well that the other streets be paved now also for the work can be done more cheaply now and at the same time it will afford employment for a lot of those laborers who need work.

Have you done your part in the way of contributions to the Red Cross disaster relief fund? This county has been asked to increase its quota to $2,500. Your help is needed if we are to reach this goal and extend the necessary help to the sufferers in the stricken communities.

For some time motorists in this city have been somewhat careless in their parking, not adhering to the right side of the street parking ordinance. The police department has just issued a warning that persons parking their cars on the left side of the streets either in the residential or business sections of the city will be subject to arrest.

(Continued from Page One) lly's use of government vessels for pleasure trips. Almost every day key G. O. P.-ers receive suggestions like these in the mail, and a little digging produces material for an attack on the floor. It's a quadrennial custom. As the presidential election approaches, office-holders seek to ingratiate themselves with the opposition, feeling that their undercover aid may prove an "ace in the hole" in the event of a political turnover. So that's the source of these inside-information barterings against the New Deal. Rooseveltians are checking up in an effort to plug the leaks. But it's almost impossible. REGULAR: Although Carter Glass will support President Roosevelt, he is still an unreconciled New Dealer. He's a Democrat because of sentiment, not satisfaction. Recently a colleague accosted him in the Senate cloakroom and asked him if it was true that he had received a $100,000 payment from Secretary Wallace for slaughtering his precious Virginia livestock. Mr. Glass wheeled around viciously and snarled: "There's not a word of truth in it. I told Mr. Glass to stick out his police dogs on 'em if Henry Wallace sent any of his agents to my farm. The dogs are still waiting for them."

The Senator is consistent in his attitude toward Rooseveltian experiments. When the NRA was created, he told his sons who edit his newspaper to "throw Hugh Johnson's agents out the window if they tried to plaster a Blue Eagle above the masthead of my newspaper." The windows are still unbroken and Mr. Glass' newspaper never flaunted the Blue Eagle. Nevertheless, he will vote for FDR.

Golden Rain by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lennox has been taken out of her aristocratic but poverty-stricken surroundings in New York. Iris loves the gayety and romance, now, quite surprisingly, she finds herself in the home of Mrs. Morgan, Allan Beckley's grandmother. It is a center of the old New York, to Iris' surprise, at Versailles Park Pa., very much, but the sober charming dinner party is suddenly shattered by the arrival of a group of rosy guests.

Chapter 23 TORTURE

MRS. MORGAN'S eyes, hawklike still, softened. "I used to sing when I was a girl," she said. "All young ladies did, then, as a part of their daily lives. I suppose these might be some of my songs."

"Would you like it? I do hope so. They were my own grandmother's." She hurried upstairs, for the cowboy was in the midst of a song which began merrily.

"As I walked forth in the streets of Laredo— As I walked out in Laredo one day—" and she did not know how many streets there were in Laredo, but she did know that the corsets and fitted boned hooked bodices in Honora's suitcase took some getting into.

They were exquisite costumes. She had read of such dresses 'n old novels and magazines in the attic. The first was a race-costume, delicately coquettish; a dress that must have taken M. Worth in his heyday weeks to contrive and other weeks to fit.

All one could think of in a dress like this would be lovers and parties, and ways to ensure more lovers and more parties. Iris's variable spirits rose, as she saw the conquering flirt in the glass. It was fun. Little Iris from Persia, all dressed up like this, and going downstairs to show off before a lot of people!

She paused at the turn of the stairs; and she heard voices below. "Cowboy's all right, but what on earth is this folksong girl?"

"Madame Philina's niece, from Duquesne, Iowa," a girl's voice drawled. "Georgia's passed the word round that she's a scream."

Iris, angry, and yet not knowing what else to do but go on, came down the stairs. A tall mirror across from her reassured her a little; still she was trembling as she went into the center of the room and, standing before the piano with a small cleared space to move in, performed to that most difficult of audiences, a group in a private room.

The first songs she sang were out of a book from someone named Harrison Millard, passionate, sentimental, romantic—but with a real sweetness and appeal. She stood there, smiling, winning, gay, and began.

SHE had the men from the beginning. She would have had the girls, too, she knew,—for audiences are easily swayed one way or another—if it had not been for Georgia. For the first stanza she held them.

Then Georgia, crouched on her cushion, a little way out of sight, began to whisper, as Iris could tell by the low ripple of inattention and amusement that started to go through the room.

To sing these songs adequately Iris had to evoke a mood in her listeners. She had done it at home. She knew she could have done it here. But Georgia was evoking another mood, hostile, ridiculing. And the group were Georgia's friends, not hers. Iris sang on, valiantly, sweetly.

Mrs. Morgan, erect in her chair, was taking the songs seriously; so was Allan; and Dicky Hamilton, easily moved, a little affected by his drinks to begin with, had his eyes full of tears.

But fight as she might, when she came to the end of her first group of songs Iris knew Georgia had spoiled her performance for her; and furthermore, that from the beginning, egging her on to sing for them, she had intended to make a fool of her. She hadn't known there were girls like that. Mrs. Morgan held out a hand as she passed her. "Thank you, child, you brought back some of my youth," she said. "I used to sing those Millard songs." Her old voice was moved.

"Shame to egg her on to make such a fool of herself," said a boyish voice.

"Oh, Georgia has something up her sleeve. Girl must have a claw on Allan, or he wouldn't be giving a dinner-party."

"Sure," said the boy. "I was a dumb bunny. Allan can stand everything but feeling that something he likes isn't liked by the crowd. Has to be perfect for the Grand Mogul."

The words did something for Iris; instead of being hurt, she was furious. Her fighting spirit rose. This wasn't Georgia's house, it was Allan's. She'd been asked to do it, after all. She'd make these silly amuses "sophisticates," even this double-crossing Georgia, in a phrase of Georgia's own, "take it and like it."

She ran angrily into the bedroom they had given her for a dressing room and tore off the Worth costume. She was to have put on a quaint hoop-skirted frock next. She stood for a moment staring at it, her eyes blurring with tears. . . . Morgan would have fought for her if he had been here. Morgan would have backed her up. Would she never stop loving Morgan, who did not love her any more?

She put on the dark "Show Boat" dress; she thrust her hair down her forehead like Helen Morgan's—and she ran down the stairs, across the room to the piano. She dropped the music before Owen, and sprang onto the side of the piano.

She never knew how well she sang. All her longing for Morgan, all the passion of her anger at the girls and men who had ridiculed at Georgia's bidding, all her natural talent, went into the passion and pathos of that one song.

They were silent, first—then rapt—then moved, held, hers absolutely. She sang it through. She went on to the other Helen Morgan song—"Why Was I Born?"

The bright light shone on her slim quivering figure, its air of brave carelessness that covered only too imperfectly abandonment and hopeless grief. When she finished there was a hush; then applause, applause, more applause. She had won out. She had made them take it and like it.

She slipped down from the piano, tossed dark head held high, red lips smiling. Something hard and victorious made her able to stand there, taking their congratulations, their admiration. Easy, after all. A pack of cards. A flock of sheep.

Mrs. Morgan detained her again, as she began to move away. "I want you, or my charity performance this summer," she said. Iris could not think why there was a sudden stunned hush after the old lady had spoken.

ALLAN broke the silence after old Mrs. Morgan's invitation, speaking in Iris's ear, behind her, as she stood ready to move away from her position in the spotlight of applause.

"Dicky Hamilton's on the edge of doing the worst soft-shoe routine in God's earth," he said. "Come on up and see my Matisses."

He maneuvered her with a woman's ease behind the others, opened an unexpected door which led up a steep flight of dark stairs, and another which led to a quiet low-lit room.

The walls had been so painted as to make them seem to curve in a concave. Instead of the old-fashioned chandeliers of the rest of the house, this place was swept bare of anything but the man himself.

Tall lighting posts of a sort she had not seen there a clear indirect light over a desk in one corner; on another wall were hung the collection of modernist painters; there was a long wide couch covered with furs and a collection of horns and heads which told her that Allan collected more things than odd paintings.

The draperies were few, more skins lay on the floor. It was an odd room. It said, "Anything which does not concern and interest me does not matter in the least." She looked up at Allan, with the gentle limpness and quietude about him, and felt a little frightened.

"Like it?" said his soft light voice. He smiled at her. The pink spots on his face were deeper than usual, as if something excited him. She sat down on the low dark couch, with its cover of dark silky fur. "Yes, I do." She felt suddenly that she must rise, move about look at the pictures, talk about them—anything but sit there, low on the couch in her black Helen Morgan dress, with Allan, flushed and quiet, watching her.

It's just another trifle nobody thought of in all the rush to get revenue in a hurry.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN THREAT: Heres the inside story of Senator Black's lobby investigating committee. It was spent an average of about $6,000 a month. It had overspent its authorized allowance and was in hock about $5,000 when it was recently rescued by a new $12,000 appropriation. So it only has a little over $7,000 left to play with and that's all it will get this year. Senator Joe Robinson and other administration leaders put through this appropriation for Black on the definite understanding that he will be more discreet in the future. They realize there is political TNT in his methods but decided to keep the committee alive for its scare value. New York sharps figure that contributions to the G. O. P. war chest would have been at least twice as large if potential wealthy donors hadnt had an unholy horror of being raked over the coals by Black's dagger-tongued inquisitions.

So the committee will continue to function—on a very modest scale. Black cant scrap his verbal treaty with Robinson even if he wants to. He hasn't enough dough to go on another fishing spree. Roosevelt forces in the Senate have been smart enough to squelch the menace of Black in action while retaining the usefulness of Black as a threat.

HARMONY: The smashing defeat of all Borah candidates for delegate in the New York Republican primaries will have far-reaching effects. Even the regulars were surprised at the overwhelming nature of their victory. Judging by many private messages received from party chiefs in other states, the New York vote has clipped the wings of the Borah bogey. It's still alive but very shaky. Unless the Idahoan can recoup his prestige in other primary contests his vision of holding the balance of power at Cleveland will prove a mirage. It would make a lot of difference to the G. O. P. general staff if Borah could safely be ignored. The results bear out our prediction that Borah would weaken his case by crossing swords with the organization in New York. They also show that the state Republican machine is well-oiled and ready to roll.

A by-product of the primaries was the elimination of ex-state chairman Kingsland Macy as a serious factor in G. O. P. affairs. With this stormy petrel suppressed, party veterans claim the New York organization is more unified and harmonious than it has been for twenty-five years.

NEW York conservatives are mighty suspicious of the "routine" order transmitting what's left of the NRA research organization into a division of industrial economics in the Department of Commerce. The researchers are under orders to prepare an industrial analysis and submit a report by December 1. The administration's obvious at-

FARMERS LIKE SOIL PROGRAM

Improvement Plan Is Receiving Wide Approval

Raleigh, April 7.—The new soil-improvement program is receiving wide-spread approval from North Carolina farmers, Dean I. O. Schaub of State College, announced here today.

Representatives of the State College extension service who held meeting in 29 eastern North Carolina counties last week to explain the new program told the Dean that farmers are eager to get it started.

At a number of meetings, the speakers asked farmers who plan to cooperate with the program to raise their hands, and in each case the show of hands was almost unanimous.

The farmers were told that after the program has been explained to them, they could make preparations at once for cooperating with it. The work sheets, to be used in connection with each farm, will soon be available in each county, the dean said.

As no contracts are to be signed, the farmers will not have to wait for a sign-up to be completed, he added. However, all farmers are urged to consult their county agents in regard to what they should do to get the most benefits out of the program.

Later in the year, local committees will make a check of farms under the program to determine the amount of soil-conservation grants to be paid each grower.

Pou Again Waging Active Campaign In North Carolina

Candidate For State Auditor Busy Shaking Bushes For Votes in Southeast This Week

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 7.—George Ross Pou, one of the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for State Auditor, is still out shaking the bushes for votes, this week in the southeastern part of the state.

Pou was here over the week-end but started out again Monday morning and could not be reached for a statement. The other two candidates for State Auditor are Baxter Durham, the present incumbent, and Willard Dowell, secretary of the North Carolina Merchants Association.

So far, Pou is the only one of the three who is attempting to cover much of the state in person and during the past two weeks or so Pou is said to have been in about 50 counties and to have been getting an excellent reception in most of them.

Dowell is expected to start some intensive campaigning in the near future, his friends say. Indications are that Durham will carry on an intensive letter writing campaign but will not make any effort to conduct a personal campaign in the various counties.

LONDON EXERCISE SOUGHT BY EDWARD IN PALACE GROUNDS

London, April 7.—(AP)—It is believed in court circles that King Edward is planning extensive alterations to the grounds of Buckingham Palace so as to make them more suitable for outdoor sport.

Construction of a swimming pool, a hard tennis court and a squash rackets court are among the possibilities discussed.

It is the king's desire that his presence in London—necessary during a large part of the year—should not take from him the opportunities for exercise which he was accustomed to enjoy as Prince of Wales.

The swimming pool probably will be constructed in a part of the large lake at present devoted to water plants and swans. Although in the heart of London it is admirably screened by the high palace walls and a thick fringe of trees.

ODDITIES OF TORNADIC FURY THAT SWEEP GAINESVILLE

Aside from killing nearly 200 persons, the tornado played some strange pranks at Gainesville, Ga. With dead, injured and wreckage all around, a hog emerged from debris in the public square and nonchalantly rooted about for feed. He is shown (left) under the Confederate monument, the only object that remained standing in the square. Nobody seems to know just how this automobile (center) found its way to the top of a blacksmith shop but it was presumed the wind lifted it and dropped it there. At the peak of the tempest, a marble monument of the Confederate soldier, Col. C. C. Sanders, was blown from its foundation and decapitated but remained upright in the street. PROMISE GIVE GOOD SHOWING

McDonald Forces To Present Greatest "Show"

Raleigh, April 7.—The campaign managers for Dr. Ralph W. McDonald are certain of one thing, at least—they are going to give the state the greatest political show it has ever seen, whether they succeed in nominating Dr. McDonald or not, although they are fully confident they will do both, it was indicated at McDonald's headquarters here today.

With McDonald a veritable political John Barrymore and Houdini combined, with his campaign manager, Willie Lee Lumpkin to help him write his lines and develop his plot and with Phillip Whitley as stage manager and producer, it is generally conceded that the McDonald-Lumpkin-Whitley Theatrical Company is going to produce the greatest political thriller ever staged in North Carolina.

It is now becoming generally known that Whitley, who at one time was regarded as McDonald's choice for campaign manager, has become the unofficial stage manager of the McDonald campaign. It is understood that Whitley has already renounced that his ambition is to "become the Earl Carroll of this campaign and to put on a political show which the people of North Carolina will never forget." And with John Barrymore McDonald as his star and Ben Hecht Lumpkin as script writer, Earl Carroll Whitley should not have much trouble in staging a thriller that will make the people of North Carolina it up and rub their eyes for months to come.

Many already agree that so far McDonald and his stage managers have had uncanny success in convincing many people.

To Open Gardens At Wilmington On April 13th and 14th

Visitors to Be Permitted to See Azalea Gardens With Small Charges Going to Charity

By LOUIS T. MOORE
Manager of Wilmington Chamber of Commerce

Wilmington, N. C., April 7.—Through the generous courtesy of Mrs. Henry Walters, owner of Airle and Mr. and Mrs. J. Laurence Sprunt, owner of Orton mansion and plantation, the request of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce that their beautiful azalea gardens be opened to the public has been granted. Both gardens will be opened to the public on Monday and Tuesday, April 13th and 14th. Visitors will be permitted to see the floral display at Orton throughout the day.

The gardens at Airle will be open only during the afternoons of both days, from 1 p. m. until 6:30 p. m. a modest admission fee of fifty cents per person will be charged, the entire proceeds being given to several local charities.

Because of the willingness of the owners to permit others to enjoy with them the floral displays which are truly gorgeous and magnificent, North Carolinians are spared the necessity of journeying to other states to view, similar, but in no way superior spectacles. Visitors who have seen the Wilmington gardens, and those in adjoining States, have said, in many respects the floral display here is more beautiful than those elsewhere.

There are millions of azaleas in the local gardens and thousands of lovers of flowers and thousands of lovers of gardens to view a wonderful and truly gorgeous display of plants in full bloom. In addition, rare flowers and plants of varied description also may be seen as visitors inspect these very entrancing and beautiful estates.

The act that Airle, and Orton, are the homes of their respective owners, precludes any spirit or effort to commercialize the Gardens. It is merely because of the unselfish attitude and willingness of the owners, that the general public may have opportunity to enjoy the flowers with them, that the average person is permitted to witness this truly marvelous annual floral display at Wilmington. It is anticipated that thousands of interested persons from this and other states will take advantage of this exceptional and fortunate chance to visit these entrancing estates.

Scores Condition Of Public Schools Regard Sanitation

Sanitary Engineering Director Declares Condition Very Bad at Schools in North Carolina

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 6.—The general sanitary conditions of the public schools of North Carolina still are very bad, according to a statement by Warren H. Booker, director of the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the State Board of Health.

Approximately 30 per cent of the public schools of the state have absolutely no water or sewerage supply, Booker asserted, declaring at the same time that persons confined in the prisons and prison camps of the state are enjoying far better sanitary facilities than are the school children of North Carolina.

"The Department of Education," Booker said, "now is working on a survey, which we hope will result in a great improvement in the sanitary conditions of the public schools of the state. This, of course will require some time, but we believe that it will be time and money well spent."

"We hope," he said, "that the survey now being made will awaken the people of the state to the desperate sanitary conditions existing that there will be a concerted demand for betterment."

LYNCH ISSUES CITY WARNING

Says Situation in Sampson Should Cause Concern

E. G. Lynch, city sanitary inspector, today called attention to reports from Sampson county that one school had been closed and others may be as a result of discovery that more than 100 school children were infected with a social disease.

Inspector Lynch warned that unless some precautions were taken, the same situation may develop in this city.

The report to which Mr. Lynch referred to follows:

"With the discovery that more than 100 school children, most of whom are less than 10 years of age, were infected with a social disease, the State Board of Health has closed one Sampson county school and others may close, the State Board of Health announced yesterday.

"Health authorities attributed the spread of the malady probably to the use of old fashioned round toilet seats after someone with an active case of the disease had used them. In addition to the school closed for repairs to toilets, three other Sampson schools have had outbreaks this year, it was said at the Health Department.

"Dr. Carl V. Reynolds, State Health Officer, said, 'One school has been closed to permit repairs to toilet seats.'

"County health authorities, Dr. J. C. Knox, state epidemiologist, and Warren H. Booker, sanitary engineer of the Board of Health, investigated the case this week, it was announced yesterday.

"Warned by the outbreak in Sampson, Board of Health officials yesterday were laying plans for an intensive campaign for the modernization of toilet facilities in every school in North Carolina.

"Dr. Knox said such an outbreak as that in Sampson is not unprecedented as a similar outbreak occurred in the west several years ago."

Actress Sends Liberal 'Hubby' All Her Salary

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood, April 6.—Madeleine Carroll, the blonde star from England, works for the sheer joy of working. And that, take her word for it, is a liberal explanation.

She collects for herself none of the money she earns making pictures. Every cent of it, she says, goes to her husband, Capt. Philip Astley, back in England.

Quite casually, at lunch the other day, Miss Carroll revealed her odd marital agreement regarding financial matters. She was talking on happy film marriages, with the authority of one who has weathered four years of matrimony and insists there will be no second marriage for her.

Captain Astley is a wealthy English landowner, prominent in civic and charitable movements and in society.

Money Trade

"When we were married," relates Miss Carroll, "my husband made such a generous settlement upon me that I wanted to repay him with some gesture equally generous. I decided that all the money I earned with my career should go to him, and that is how we operate."

"I really didn't care about money personally. I like the feminine feeling of being taken care of by my husband. He pays my bills, attends to all financial matters, and I enjoy the freedom from worry over details like signing checks, balancing accounts, and all that. I really have no sense about money—when I'm in London I won't let him give me more than five shillings (1.25) a week for pin money."

By now, what with Miss Carroll's successes on stage and screen, Mrs. Astley's "gift" to Captain Astley has exceeded his to her.

Second Honeymoon

"Even the most nearly perfect man and woman," she explains, "can see each other too much. Ordinary human beings, therefore, no matter how much they love each other, need all the more the absence that makes the heart grow fonder. That is one of the reasons I like working part of the time in Hollywood—when I return home it is like a second honeymoon."

She is working currently in "The Case Against Mrs. Ames"—which is not an "epic," she affirms gratefully, with memories of her previous Hollywood film, "The World Moves On."

That picture was not the success its cost anticipated. She made her return on the strength of the less pretentious, more popular English film, "The 39 Steps."

State Health Bulletin Says Pellagra Problem

While there were fewer deaths from pellagra in 1935 than in the year preceding, there seems to be already a trend toward an increased number of cases and deaths from this disease for this year, according to the April number of the State Health Bulletin just released.

Attention is called to this situation now since outbreaks of pellagra are likely to occur in the months of April and May and June. The reason for this, in the opinion of the Bulletin, is the probability that the disease is present though in latent form all through the fall and winter, and attacks a precipitated by the varying changes in the spring weather. But it is more likely that winter diet has much to do with it.

William Webster, 29-year-old Chicago youth, escaped seven times in four years from the state reformatory at St. Charles, Ill.

GIVE YOU THE NEW

KELVINATOR

with Visible COLD, Visible ECONOMY and Visible PROTECTION

Today we recommend that every owner of an automatic refrigerator learn about the new 1936 Kelvinator. It has three outstanding, fundamental values that buyers want.

Visible Cold: Safe temperatures in the food compartment, proved by a Built-In Thermometer so there can be no doubt about how cold it is.

Visible Economy: It uses from one-third to one-half as much current, as shown in advance by a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation.

Visible Protection: A 5-year Protection Plan, signed by the oldest company in the industry.

The new Kelvinator gives you flexible rubber grids in all ice trays, and such conveniences as automatic defrosting switch, interior electric light and many others.

See the 1936 Kelvinator whether you now have an electric refrigerator or not, and let us tell you how you can have one for as little as 15c a day. Come in tomorrow.
