COLONEL KNOX RETAINS LEAD IN PRIMARIES

Chicago Publisher Apparently Victorious Over Borah

GOV. HORNER HOLDS LEAD

Democratic Party in Illinois Casts Greatest Vote in State's History

Chicago, April 15.—(AP)—Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, contesting with Senator William E. Borah of Idaho for the Republican presidential preference vote in Illinois, and Governor Henry Horner, seeking a return to office, stood apparently victorious today on the mountain of ballots cast yesterday in one of the state's most dramatic primaries.

Piling up an early lead in Chicago, Colonel Knox led Borah by about 77,000 votes in the first test of strength between the two GOP presidential aspirants. Borah was stronger than the Chicagoan in the 101 down-state counties.

After 4,437 of the state's 7,426 precincts were in Knox had 281,022 votes to 204,860 for Borah. The vote was advisory only to the 50 delegates elected yesterday who, with seven others to be named later will represent Illinois at the June national GOP convention.

Overcoming an early Cook county lead by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, Chicago health commissioner supported by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and National Committeeman Patrick Nash of Chicago, Governor Horner rolled up a tremendous vote down state in the Democratic gubernatorial primary which led his supporters to claim he would outdistance by between 80,000 and 100,000 votes.

Returns from 5,063 precincts of the 7,426 in Illinois gave Horner 529,043; Bundesen, 517,472.

Of all the primary totals the most sensation was that of the Democratic party in Illinois, which cast a greater primary vote than ever before in the state's history, rolling up a total estimated at 1,500,000.

The tremendous Democratic vote and the gain of 28 per cent since 1934 was given varying explanations.

Republican leaders denied it indicated increase sentiment for the National Democratic Administration. They claimed thousands of Republicans voted in the Democratic primary attracted by the bitter gubernatorial race.

Mayor Kelly of Chicago and County Chairman P. A. Nash ridiculed the idea that it was a "Horner vote." Said Nash "it represents the desire of the people to show they are for President Roosevelt."

John Raskob And duPont Backed Anti New Dealers

Information Revealed at Senate Lobby Committee Meet

Washington, April 15.—(AP)—The Senate lobby committee was told today that John J. Raskob and Pierre S. DuPont contributed $5,000 each for the anti-New Deal mid-winter convention of Southern Democrats at Macon, Ga.

T. Vance Muse of Houston, Texas, general manager of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, a group which collaborated with Governor Talmadge of Georgia in holding the convention—was the witness.

He testified also that he had circulated in the south pictures of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the company of two negro escorts.

"We were interested in the Macon meeting and I asked those two men to help us," Muse said.

He said he told them personally "absolutely" what he wanted the money for.

Muse said Raskob and DuPont "didn't know a thing about the literature showing Mrs. Roosevelt and the negroes."

When Muse protested against describing the negroes with Mrs. Roosevelt on the ground that "it is nauseating," Black asked: "You circulated them, didn't you?"

"I had to," Muse replied. Later Muse said: "They showed Mrs. Roosevelt entering a negro meeting of some sort with two negro escorts."

Intimates That Modified Plans For Passamaquoddy Power and Florida Canal Plans Possible

Washington, April 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today that the congressional disapproval had closed the door to the further funds for the Passamaquoddy power project in Maine and the Florida ship canal, but he intimated modified plans for both may be submitted to Capitol Hill.

At the same time the President explained to his press conference that flood control work is proposed to be included in the regular annual public works program of $500,000,000 included in his January budget estimates.

He said flood control and navigation was a very definite part of what he hoped would be a regular, orderly public works program.

Asked whether if a million dollars of worthy projects were found for flood control and public works he would approve such a program, Mr. Roosevelt explained he would do so if it put people to work right away.

Just what modifications may be proposed in the Passamaquoddy and Florida ship canal projects, for which Congress has refused further funds, was not revealed by the President.

DESSYE FALLS TO DUCE ARMY

Italian Northern Army Achieves Immediate Objective

(Copyright by Associated Press) Rome, April 15.—(AP)—Italy's advancing northern army achieved its major immediate objective of capture of Dessye today, the government announced officially, opening the heart of Ethiopia to the conquering fascist forces.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander in chief of the Italian army in East Africa, reporting the occupation of the former field headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie, said in a communique:

"Our troops entered Dessye this morning. From that point, 140 miles directly south of the former northern front lines at Amba Alaji and 170 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, a good automobile road runs into Ethiopia's capital.

"The days of the Ethiopian empire are numbered," commented the correspondent reporting from Asmara, Eritrea. He said the Shoa section of Ethiopia, backbone of Haile Selassie's domain, now lay open to occupation by the Italian troops.

The fascist campaigners covered the 125 miles course down from Ashangi, scene of the earlier defeat of Haile Selassie's body guards, to Dessye in nine days despite bad weather and difficult roads.

En route the troops captured large quantities of war materials abandoned by the fleeing army.

NEW DEAL FOE OFFERS MOTION

Backers of Roosevelt Lose in Efforts to Set Date of Primary for May 5

Atlanta, April 15.—(AP)—The State Democratic executive committee today ordered a presidential preferential primary in Georgia June 3 after defeating a motion by supporters of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to set the date for May 5.

The resolution calling for the primary was offered by Will Mann, close personal friend and political friend of Governor Eugene Talmadge, New Deal critic.

It set the entrance fee for each candidate at $10,000 and May 16 at noon for the date for qualifiers. It provides that if only one candidate qualified there shall be no primary and that such candidate shall name the delegates and alternates to the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia.

Signup Underway For Conservation Program in County

Members of Various Township Committees Remaining at Assigned Places to Give Aid to Farmers

The new soil conservation and domestic allotment program sign-up was begun in Pitt county today, following a meeting of the local committee here last night.

Members of the various township committees started today staying at their assigned places to be on hand to aid farmers in drafting their worksheets complying with the soil erosion program.

Farm leaders urged the farmers in the county to call on their respective committees at once and sign their contracts. No definite date has been set for completing the sign-up, but the committees have been employed for only a short time and it is urgent that all farmers file their worksheets promptly.

The department at Washington is urging a 30 per cent reduction in the 1936 tobacco base and a 35 per cent reduction in the cotton base acreage. Farmers will be paid five cents a pound on the average poundage per acre in their contracts on the number of acres reduced. The average poundage in the Pitt county tobacco contracts is 810 pounds, providing farmers with an average of $40.50 per acre for each acre retired.

Farmers will be paid regardless of the number joining in the program. Only farmers complying will receive the benefits, however.

Athens, Ga., April 15.—(AP)—Blue mold tobacco plans disease, reported threatening a reduction in the leaf production in North and South Carolina has not become a serious problem in Georgia so far this year, Harry Brown, director of the state agricultural extension service, said today.

Brown said the disease had appeared in limited areas in South Georgia, but it is not general.

"Millions of tons" of a new petroleum product called "elvea" and described as "petroleum in a nascent state," have been reported found in Brazil.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

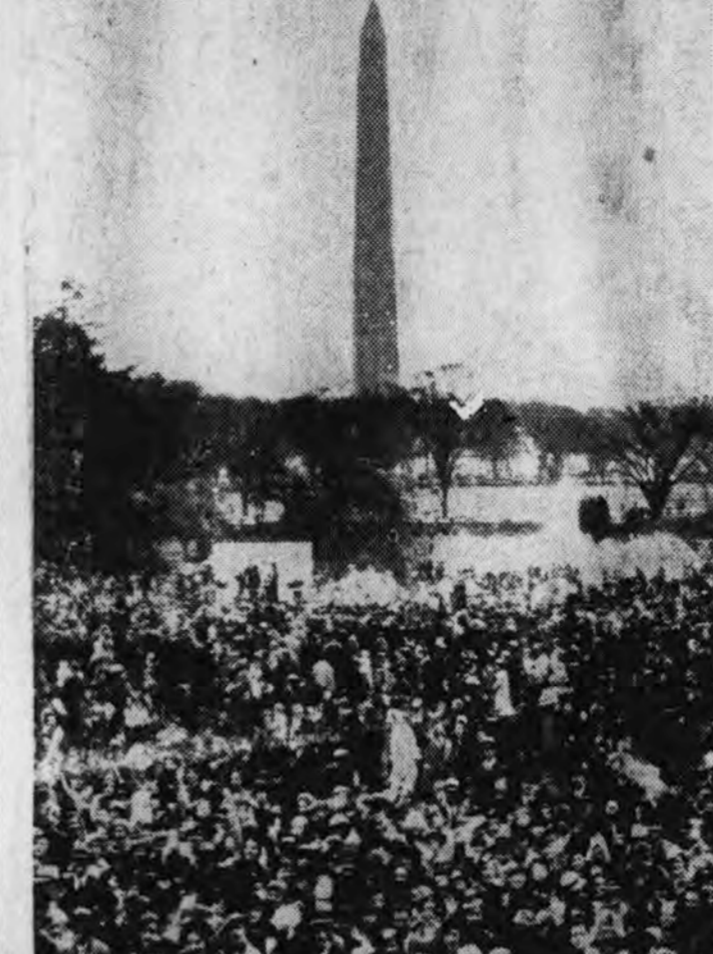

GOBLING: Liberty Leaser Raskob may be banished on the New Deal but he's quietly gambling a motor magnate's ransom on a Roosevelt rise. He's buying real estate at low prices for an integrated development.

His back-to-the-land associate is none other than Tom Campbell, Montana wheat grower. The few cognizant of their venture suggest slyly that the big, breezy westerner has taught the New Yorker several new tricks in high finance. It was Mr. Campbell who collected $50,000 from the AAA for not raising crops on land leased from the red man for little more than Christopher Columbus shelled out for primeval acreage.

Mr. Campbell heads up the field forces while Mr. Raskob hides behind documentary scenery. They're gobbling up urban, suburban and rural property on a large scale. Unannounced plan contemplates construction of cheap homes which will make a market for Raskob-financed products.

Two Extremes In Weather To Curtail Cotton Crops

THREE POWERS HOLD PARLEYS

British, French and Belgium Staffs Confer on Peace

London, April 15.—(AP)—Officers of the British, French and Belgium army general staffs gathered in London today to begin drafting plans for defensive cooperation in the event of European war.

The beginning of the tri-power general staff conversations, arising from Germany's remilitarization of the Rhineland, coincided with Italo-Ethiopian negotiations at Geneva under the auspices of the League of Nations' forecast African peace.

The British, French and Belgium officers decided to undertake immediately their consultations on practical measures to insure security against any unprovoked aggression despite the absence of Italy, fourth remaining Locarno power, from the conference table.

The conversations were likely to be conducted with the strictest secrecy, but the British public had been assured repeatedly by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's government that no new political commitments could arise from the military negotiations.

Luby M'Lawhorn Dies of Pneumonia in Pitt

Luby M'Lawhorn, 23, only son of M. T. M'Lawhorn, well-known Pitt county farmer, died at his home on the Ayden highway this morning following an illness of pneumonia.

Funeral services will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Burial will be in the family burying ground.

Mr. M'Lawhorn is survived by his wife, the former Miss Essie Norwood to whom he was married about a month ago; his parents and two sisters, Mrs. Jessie Lang of Ayden and Miss Esther M'Lawhorn of the home place.

Droughts in Western Belt and Heavy Rains in East

New Orleans, April 15.—(AP)—Drought in the west and excessive rains in the east today were hampering planting and threatened there to become major factors in the federal government's efforts to curtail the 1936 cotton crop.

Reports from 10 chief cotton growing states showed plantings running from one to four weeks behind schedule in six of them.

Data from officials and trade sources indicated clearly that bad weather was playing an important part in the early development of the crop. Most observers, however, found it too early to predict what effect these delays would have on the ultimate acreage and yield.

Roughly the cotton region resolved itself into three meteorological belts:

Texas and Oklahoma in the west were afflicted with a serious drought that was retarding planting as much as a month in some places and carrying a strong threat to the year's final acreage.

To the eastward, the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee were harassed by rains that had thrown crop preparations from one to three weeks behind. The peril of the second was not regarded gravely as the western drought menace.

Between these two extremes, conditions in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and extreme western Tennessee were reported nearly normal.

County Agent Says Little Blue Mold Throughout Pitt

E. F. Arnold Says Check-up On Reports of Disease Shows No Spread, Even in Beds Where Discovered

E. F. Arnold, Pitt county agent, said that blue mold, a tobacco plant bed disease, was not on the increase in Pitt county.

The county agent added that while some 10 days ago his office received reports from a few farmers that blue mold had appeared in their beds, a check-up revealed that the disease was not even spreading on the beds where it had appeared, which indicates that weather conditions in the area are not suitable for the spread of blue mold.

He also said that he understood this situation prevailed in a number of adjoining counties.

The county agent said that there was an abundance of tobacco plants in every section of Pitt county. "There are enough in Pitt county to set out 60,000 acres of tobacco," he said. Pitt usually devotes 38,000 to 40,000 acres to tobacco.

"Farmers in this section are convinced that the only thing that will prevent heavy planting of tobacco is enactment of compact laws to control tobacco production," he declared.

Pitt County Red Cross Praised by National Organization

Wyatt Brown, chairman of the local chapter of the Red Cross, today received a message from the national headquarters of the organization expressing appreciation for the drive which has been carried on in Pitt county and acknowledging receipt of the money sent from here for the disaster relief fund.

The message said the response in this county had been very liberal and officials of the organization expressed much appreciation for the work that has been done in the county. The local chapter was asked to convey the thanks of the organization to each contributor.

It was pointed out that the funds still were in great demand in connection with rehabilitation work in the sections struck by tornadoes and floods.

A contribution of $100 by Pitt county and a five dollar donation anonymously sent from Farmville direct to the national headquarters, along with several individual contributions, brought the total raised in the county to date to $2,005.21. Today's contributions totalled $110.50.

Raleigh Man Is Being Held in Jail Here for Kidnaping

TAKEN TUESDAY BY WAYNE POLICE

Former Mrs. Morton, With Deaver When Children Taken, Not Being Held

Donald Deaver, of Raleigh, is in Pitt County jail today awaiting a trial on a kidnaping charge growing out of the abduction of Chesley and Glenn Morton, ten and twelve-year-old sons of S. V. Morton, of this city. Deaver and Neil Winther, the former Mrs. Morton and mother of the children, picked up the children as they played on the sidewalk about a block from their father's home late yesterday.

As soon as the abduction was reported Chief of Police George Clark spread the alarm to nearby cities and the couple together with the children were taken into custody in Goldsboro. Chief Clark and the father of the children went immediately to Goldsboro and brought back the children and Deaver. The children's mother was not brought back by Chief Clark but was reported to be returning to this city today.

This is the second attempt of Deaver to abduct the Morton children the other occurring January 14 when he went to the city school attended by the children and advised the teacher in charge that the father of the children had sent him for them, and at that time two of the school teachers hid the children in the building while another called the police. Deaver attempted to leave the scene as police appeared but was taken into custody and charged with attempted kidnaping. Upon his person were found a photograph of the former Mrs. Morton together with letters from her which indicated that she and Deaver had lived at the same home in the country near Raleigh before her return to New Jersey. When Deaver's case was heard in court there was insufficient evidence to convict and he was released. On a former occasion he was reported to have visited Morton's place of business here and threatened Morton if he did not provide for his former wife.

Morton was divorced from his first wife several years ago and the court gave him the custody of the two boys. Since that time there have been several attempts to get the children away from him.

Deaver was given a preliminary hearing this morning and bound over to Superior Court under bond of $1,000. Failing to provide bond he was placed in the county jail to await trial.

Rev. John W. Ham Gets Endorsement By Publicity Head

Plans: Going Ahead For Two Weeks' Revival Service at Memorial Baptist Church May 17-31

An enthusiastic endorsement of Dr. John W. Ham of Atlanta, Ga., who will conduct a two weeks' revival here beginning May 17, was received by Rev. W. A. Fleishmann, pastor of Memorial Baptist church, from Walter W. Gilmore, publicity director of the Southern Baptist convention.

Saying that he had been informed that Dr. Ham was to conduct the two weeks' service here, Mr. Gilmore wrote:

"I want to congratulate you on being able to secure Dr. Ham. In my judgment he is one of the most virile evangelists among us today. He is thoroughly sane and orthodox with a passion for souls. I am sure he will render you most effective service."

Dr. Ham was associated with the late Dr. Len G. Broughton, who was at first scheduled to conduct the service here.

Through Dr. Ham's instruction local committees are being set up to develop a program for the preparation for the services. The evangelist conducts his revival under a well-worked out program, with local church leaders taking an active part in the preparation for the meetings.

There will be a series of preparatory prayer services arranged in connection with the meetings. The dates and places for the sessions will be announced later by Rev. Mr. Fleishmann.

Virtually every Kansas county is requiring direct relief clients to plant vegetable gardens.

Chapter 35. PLAIN SPEECH.

ALLAN appeared duly in the blue roadster.

"I adore you," he said. "You set me wild. Let's drive to the moon together, after we're finished with Granny."

"Any moon you say," she returned, lightly.

"I'll keep you to that. I know a lot of pretty hot moons," said he gayly. Presently they were at their destination.

It was an unpretentious authentic Georgian house, behind a white picket fence. Peaceful, human sized, reminding her of home. She said so. "I love your Granny's place, it's so like Persia!"

Granny, rising stiffly from a kneeling mat before a bedful of sweet-williams, came forward in a proposterous smock to greet her.

Presently Mrs. Morgan, very much as if she were sending a little boy to play in the attic, said, "Allan, my dear, there are some business papers upstairs in your grandfather's study that I wish you'd go over. I'll entertain Miss Lanning while you're gone."

Allan, lifting a lazy eyebrow, smiled and went. "How long do you want them to keep me there?" he inquired as he passed the door.

"Half an hour," said his grandmother, as coolly. She smiled reassuringly as she turned to Iris, but none the less she got down to business.

"That rather dreadful young woman, Georgia Blair, was here this morning. I have to see more or less of her, as she is on the membership committee of our branch of the Junior League, and her mother and I are on various other committees together.

"It's no secret to you that she would rather you weren't a member of the League, or took part in the Anna Lispenard concert—I believe they are calling it a revue this year. I am a judge of human nature to rather more of an extent than any girl in her twenties."

"I credit you with honesty, breeding and ancestry, as well as your more potent qualities; prettiness and a singing voice and good clothes are easy enough to come by. They interest Allan, naturally, more than the others," said the old lady quietly, while Iris colored high.

"But why do you tell me this?" she asked as quietly, when Mrs. Morgan paused.

"I believe in plain speaking. I have hoped for a long time that such a girl as you existed, and that my only remaining grandson would find and be attracted by her. I have said all this to you because I want to ask for your word of honor that you haven't deceived me about yourself or yours in any way."

This amazing old lady stopped talking.

IRIS pulled herself together and answered with dignity.

"Certainly I give you my word of honor. There's nothing to know about me. I haven't been outside the place where I was born, except to go to Philadelphia, a few miles away, since I was born. Your relative, Mrs. Cadwallader, could tell you all about us Lannings."

She rose to go. Mrs. Morgan threw a strong arm around her.

"My child, you mustn't be offended. I'm your friend, and I always hope to be." She kissed her, and Iris, realizing that what she said was true, returned the kiss.

"Did you make a hit with Granny?" said Allan, as they got into the car. "You must be an animal charmer. And now, what about the moon?"

Things were relaxed and delightful again.

"Where are you going to take me?"

"Anywhere you say, you good little sport."

But the end was something neither of them had foreseen—the encounter at a service station of Dicky and three other of their friends, vociferous over a broken car and appropriating a ride home. Only, as she was dropped at her own door, Allan whispered: "Postponed only!" And she nodded.

Next day was one of Camilla's fencing days. It coincided again with one of Owen's days at home.

but Iris hoped it wouldn't matter. They were dressed after their swim when one of the maids rapped on the bathhouse door.

"A young person with the costumes, from Madame Phina's," she said.

"Oh, bother. I'll have to see her. Phina's golfing," Iris said.

"All right," Camilla said. "I'll wait for you under the striped umbrella."

"In the housekeeper's room," said the maid. Iris entered. And there sat a small stiff figure in errand-girl black. Sigrid, with a devil in her eye.

"Why on earth are you waiting here—and what are you dressed like that for?" Iris demanded.

Sigrid lifted a face which Iris saw was deadly angry.

"Madame Phina sends me to bring down pageant costumes. I come, properly dressed, to the proper room. When Miss Iris has seen the costumes," Sigrid went on stiffly. "I would be glad if she would ask the young master if I might speak to him. I have something to tell him."

"I have something to tell you, you idiot! Owen's breaking his heart. You're tormenting him to death!"

"And what about me?" She glared at Iris. "Owen talks about gratitude and duty, and all the while he's getting deeper tangled in this life Phina's playing for, with the two of you for pawns. And what do I count, what do I matter?"

"But he loves you and wants to marry you."

"Then he has to break with Phina. This is a showdown. Send for him."

IRIS rang; she sent a maid for Owen. Meanwhile she tried to reason with Sigrid.

"If you love him, why don't you marry him and let him go on doing what he considers his duty to Phina? I think the trouble is you don't trust Owen."

"Trust a man? If you still believe in trusting men you don't know what trouble is: you won't know till who ever it is lets you down. I know, I was married and divorced when I was sixteen. A gentleman who met me across a glove counter, and then let his family divorce and buy me off. Where did you think I got the money to buy into Phina's?"

Owen stood in the doorway. She turned on him, icy angry again.

"Owen, I know you will be glad to hear of any good luck that has happened to me. I have an offer to go to Paris, very advantageous. I am selling out at Madam Phina's. I sail next Monday. We are through, you and I."

"Sigrid—" He caught her in his arms, he bent down over her. Iris slipped away—her last glimpse was Sigrid moving from his arms with a cold finality, and beginning to speak.

Camilla looked keenly at Iris. She laid a big shapely brown hand over Iris's ivory long-fingered one.

"You've been wonderful to me, Iris. I shan't forget it. You know, Iris, you're real, no matter what Georgia says. Oh, do be careful of Georgia!"

"Why, what else could I be?" Iris said gayly. "As for Georgia, I am as careful as I can be. But I have to see her along with the rest."

Before Camilla's slow voice had begun to answer, Owen was there, standing above the two girls. He was as white as a ghost; he was as angry as Sigrid had been; he spoke to his sister in a voice she had never heard from him.

"You and Phina have succeeded. I see you have Camilla here. You would."

Camilla looked up at him, a little hurt and frightened.

"Am I in the way, Owen? I was going in a minute—" she said, meekly.

"No, you're just where you should be." He stood before the two girls, his stern, sensitive young face tight-lipped. "Camilla, will you marry me?"

Camilla never saw his bitterness. She lifted her face to his. It looked as if heaven were shining on it. In that moment she was beautiful.

"Why, Owen—Owen, I didn't think you cared—" she put her hand out to him. Iris sprang up and ran.

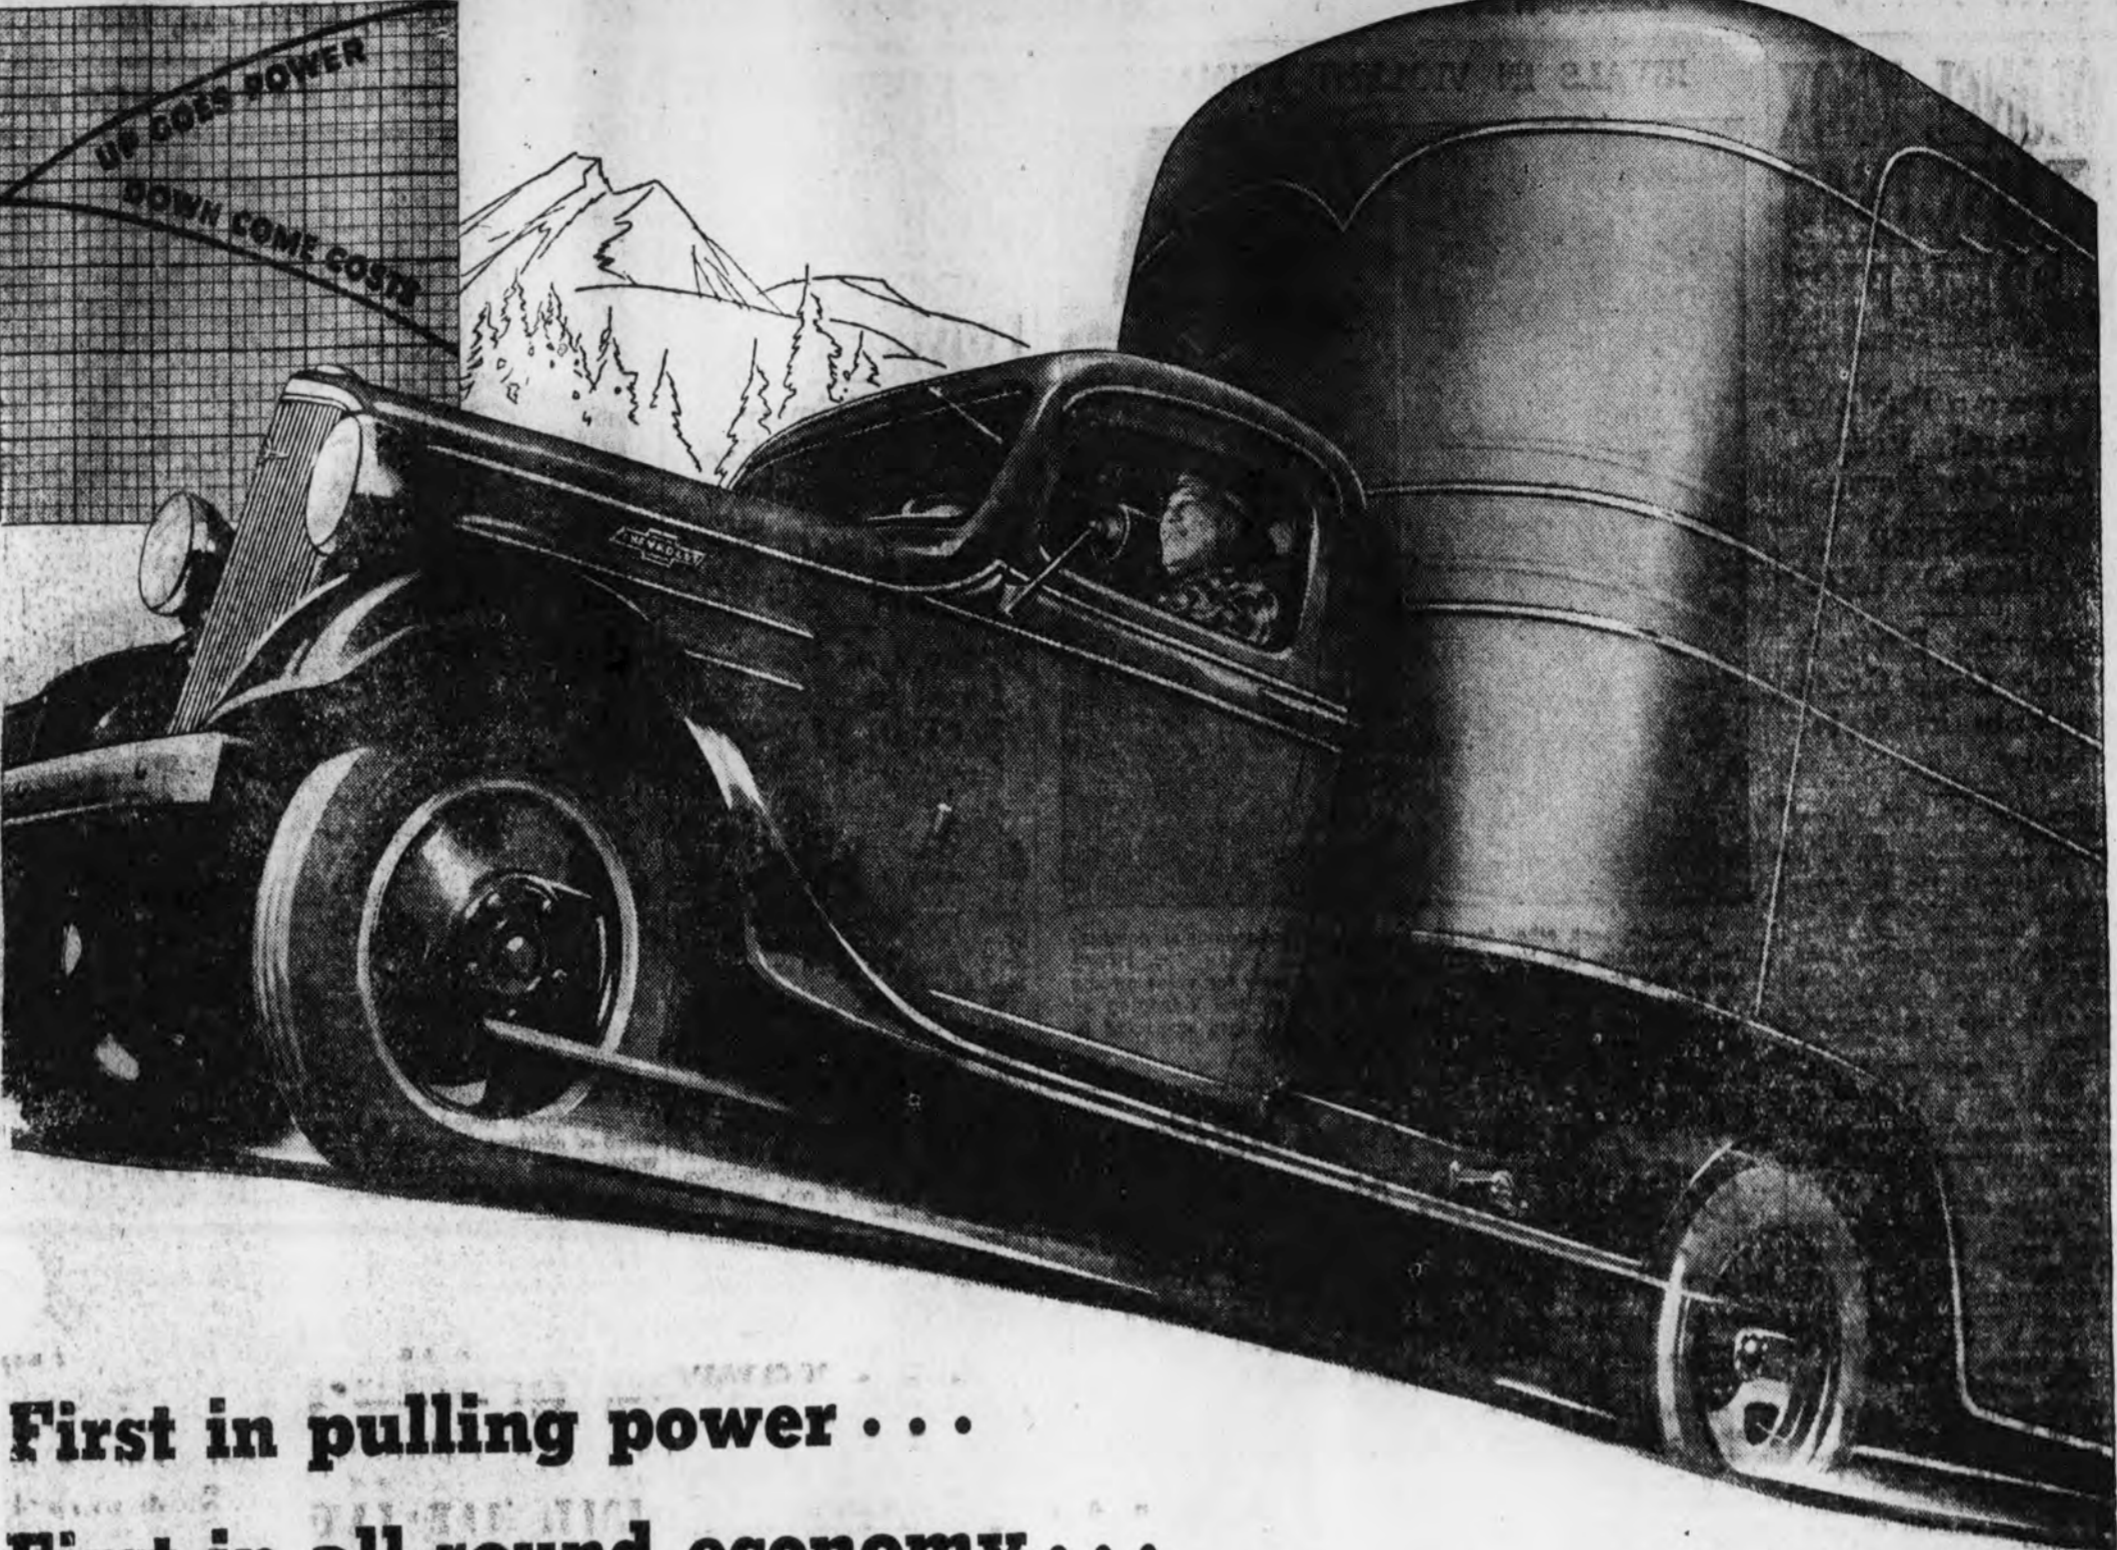

In the days that followed Camilla bloomed. The engagement had, by Phina's insistence—and doing—constantly been made public. Iris was afraid Owen blamed her for this; too, the only blot on those triumphant days was her brother's attitude of detached civility, instead of the warm affection he had given her before. To Camilla he was quiet, courteous, no more.

State. The project is to be developed by the National Park Service, with the Resettlement Administration providing funds for land purchase and construction work. The Blue Ridge Parkway received preliminary approval of the National Park Service, and of the land program of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration in February, 1935. The project subsequently was included in the allotment for recreational demonstration projects. Establishment of this parkway was planned to preserve natural beauty of the route between the two large national parks, to conserve timber, control erosion and prevent commercial encroachments which would mar the scenic beauty of the area. It is pointed out by officials of the National Park Service and Resettlement Administration as a concrete example of establishing permanent protection in acquiescence with urgent public demand and approval of scenic areas which are connecting links between park sites set aside for their superlative beauty. As an avenue of ingress and egress it will be free from repugnant intrusions such as "hog dog" stands and flamboyant billboards and will guarantee protection to primitive surroundings peculiarly necessary to great national parks.

Mrs. Winslow Hostess. On the afternoon of April the fourteenth the Round Table held a most enjoyable meeting in the home of Mrs. J. E. Winslow.

Preceding the program of the day the president, Mrs. H. E. Austin, presented Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president of the Woman's Club who, in a spirit of enthusiasm and aspiration, announced the Fine Arts Festival to be held in the Woman's Club April 18, 19, 20 and 21. All present keenly wished to encourage in every way possible these occasions which so enrich the lives of our community. During the business session of the club, there was much merriment when Mrs. S. J. Everett, chairman of the program committee, read the subjects and assignments for the coming year which promise studies of such valuable interest.

A very informative and pleasing paper by Mrs. Howard McGinnis on the "Shrines of Washington"—the nation's capital—featured the program. The entire city was treated as the "Shrine of America" with vivid descriptions of the magnificent government buildings, memorials, monuments, cathedrals, libraries, parks, and so on.

In the current events given by Mrs. Herbert ReBarker, we get two points of immense interest to us—namely—as listed by McMillan Company, a decided increase in women writers of fiction, and in the south and west an increase in writers of all books—thus verifying the educational trend southward.

Guests adding pleasure to the meeting included Mrs. G. F. Smith and Mrs. Wyatt Brown.

At the conclusion of the program Mrs. Winslow assisted by her daughters, Mrs. Joe Taft and Miss Elizabeth Winslow, served a most tempting salad course.—Reported.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 12.

The golden text was from Luke 3:6, "All flesh shall see the salvation of God."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thine diseases; Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies; He made known his ways unto Moses, his acts unto the children of Israel." (Ps. 103:2-4-7).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Does God send sickness, giving the mother her child for the brief space of a few years and then taking it away by death? Instead of God sending sickness and death, He designs them, and brings to light immortality. Omnipotent and infinite Mind made all and include all. This Mind does not make mistakes, and subsequently correct them. God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die."

PEACE
The pinetrees sigh as daylight flies, The page grows dim before my eyes And on the wings of night there lies A hush of rest and peace. Far off a frog croaks out his song, A bird's trill on high lingers long. In this quiet place there seems on wrong, No breath of war, but peace. A childish laugh floats on the air, Why should this child be made to share The harsh brunt of a statement's dare That shattered dreams of peace? Why should the trees by which I sit By angry, roaring bombs be split And fall to earth because if it, That one man loved not peace? Dear Father, raise Thy hand tonight To down the wrong and lift the right, That ever when recedes the light There may come rest and peace.—GLADYS BEST TRIPP, Woman's College of the University of N. C., Greensboro.

man's detective work. The Senator's suspicious enemies are scheming to maneuver him into the role of unpopularity to the farmers. It was, for example, a Landon newspaperman - admirer who pointedly asked Secretary Wallace if he detected any "politics" in the publicity crusade. Nodding agreeably, the top AAA'er hinted that the Senator was seeking the nomination instead of the party's welfare in November. Then Mr. Wallace turned to the inquiring reporter and said: "I hope that helps your candidate."

QUERIES: The inside reason for Joe Robinson's filibuster against the Vandenberg publicity resolution in that tricky Democrats were fixing up an ambush for the Senator from Michigan. The Majority Leader simply stalled for time while AAA publicists scoured their arsenals for ammunition.

Mr. Vandenberg spoke ardently and voted gladly for the Jones-Costigan sugar act, protecting Michigan's beet sugar interests by reducing foreign imports. In return Porto Rican and Hawaiian growers received benefit payments and they happen to be larger than those paid to domestic producers of wheat, corn, tobacco, rice and cotton. One Hawaiian firm owned by prominent Republican contributors and office holders—the Baldwin brothers—got more than $1,000,000. Michigan sugar planters don't appear among the above-$10,000 class.

Mr. Robinson will also ask why Mr. Vandenberg voted against publicity for large income tax payments and R. F. C. loans (including the unpaid $90,000,000 to the Dawes bank), and now insists upon headlining hand-outs to the tillers of the soil, the backbone of America and all that Joe is all set to rage and shake with indignation, although he's holding up the bill to benefit southern sharecroppers for fear it may hurt him with big plantation owners.

No action now but plans always subject to change. Mr. Roosevelt's most trusted advisers are begging him to smother all unnecessary legislation and to stifle friendly firebrands whose outbursts antagonize business and industry. They advanced these arguments for White House silence: (1) Your political stock has steadily risen during your absence. (2) The Republicans are quarreling among themselves. (3) If you sit tight, the election is in the bag.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN SORE: New York G. O. P. backstagers tell this inside story of the party row in California which has so enraptured ex-President Hoover. It is likely to have an important bearing on Governor Landon's prospects.

Regular Republican leaders were inclined to be friendly to Landon in the early stages of his candidacy. But as primary time approached they decided it would promote party harmony and minimize the thorny Hearst angle if an uncommitted delegation were elected unopposed. They felt this still more keenly when it became apparent that the Landon slate of delegates would be a Hearst-Merriam concoction. So they sent a message to the Kansan strongly urging him to withdraw and assuring him that publican leaders (as recently reported here) that their party should take conservative support for granted and appeal to border-line liberals. If these ideas are carried out the two parties will be edging steadily closer to each other from now to November.

Frank Walker and Vice President John N. Garner are among the President's key advisers who suggest bearing to the right. You haven't heard much about them lately but informed sources say they carry much more weight currently than the Tugwells and Frankfurters. Mr. Roosevelt's failure to battle Congress about an appropriation for Passamaquoddy and his concentration on budget problems are taken as evidence that he is listening to them.

SPARED: Secretary Wallace is a smooth worker at times. It was his fine Italian hand that obtained modification of the Senate resolution calling for a list of AAA beneficiaries to the tune of $10,000 and up.

As the resolution stands now, only those who got that much on uncultivated acres in a single county and on a single crop control program will be listed for publication. For instance, a person who got $9,000 in each of two or three different counties will not be included. Nor will he be publicized if $18,000 was paid him in one county, if half was on the wheat program and the other half on the corn-hog program.

He recently called on an agency chief in Washington. The man was out but his secretary invited the visitor to make himself at home in the chief's office and he did so. While he sat there a boy came in with a pile of papers obviously including checks, looked at the visitor and asked: "Where'll I put these, boss?" "Right here," said the caller. "Okay, boss," said the boy and departed blithely.

When the agency head returned he got a lively razzing about how well he was known to his own employes.

HELP PREVENT FIRES With the spring cleaning season at hand residents of the city are urged to be extremely careful in order to prevent fires. While you are cleaning up your premises be sure to remove all leaves or other rubbish that might be a fire hazard, but in cases where this refuse is burned on the premises be careful about your fires. See that they are watched closely while the rubbish is being burned and make sure that all fires are out before you leave them for the day.

MUST CUT DOWN SPEED Despite all the laws and all the restrictions that have been thrown about the operation of automobiles, the deaths on the highways of this state and nation continue appalling, indicating that there is still need for something to be done if this slaughter is to be stopped. In most cases speed seems to be the outstanding cause of the fatal accidents. It seems that as long as automobiles have the power to run at excessive speeds the motorists are going to drive them to the limit, so the next step in cutting down speed is going to have to come from the manufacturers of the automobiles. The only way to make some motorists hold down their speed is to make the automobiles so they will run only so fast. Already some of the states are contemplating enacting legislation that would require speed governors on all automobiles operating within those states, and if the plan is effective in cutting down accidents the plan should be made nation-wide.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG (Continued from Page One) somersaulted into a subterranean struggle between rival forces backing Senator Vandenberg and other G. O. P. presidential candidates. The Senator's agricultural aggressiveness has made him the favored boy among influential easterners. But other G. O. P. hopefuls suspect that the revelation means more in political, financial and industrial areas than back on the farms. You may not have noticed it, but Candidates Landon, Borah, Dickinson and Knox have not wined and dined for the Michigan

Greenville High Plays at Raleigh This Afternoon

The baseball nine of the Greenville high school dropped another game to Durham yesterday afternoon by a score of 14-2.

This was the second time this season that the two teams have met, and the second defeat for the locals in the hands of the Durham high schoolers in their class "A" conference affair.

The five pitchers composing the hurling staff of the high team were given an opportunity to see action, but could not stand up to the terrific strain inflicted by Durham, who obtained ten hits off the local twirlers.

The visitors started the game by making one run in the first inning and six in the second. Durham's pitcher weakened somewhat in inning five and permitted the locals to obtain a total of two runs, but as far as making more was concerned, the Greenies were deadlocked.

The locals left for Raleigh this morning to face the strong high school nine of the Capital City. This will mark the second game of the season with Raleigh, and if won, will be the first win of the year for the locals.

MIRAGE PHOTOGRAPH MADE IN BARREN CHILE WASTES

Durham, N. C.—(AP)—A desert mirage has been photographed by Dr. F. C. Hall, Duke University zoologist, and five associates from other universities.

Dr. Hall said the shot was made during the recent high altitude expedition to the Chilean Andes and distinctly shows a far distant mountain rising above the desert horizon.

The mirage was on the barren Andes salt beds.

SPORT SLANTS

If Bill McKechnie of the Boston Bees should be caught in the very human act of casting envious eyes in the general direction of the "million dollar kids" cavorting around Fenway Park in the Red Sox uniforms, one could hardly blame him. Manager Bill could make excellent use of some of that money Owner Tom Yawkey has been using so generously to buy star players.

The situation in Boston is unique. Here are two clubs bidding for the patronage of the fans and using directly opposite means to gain that end. The Red Sox by loosing the purse strings, the Bees on a shoe string. The contrast is amusing.

It would be odd, indeed, if Boston fans should decide to string along with the under-dog, as American sports followers often delight in doing, and patronize the Bees at the expense of the Red Sox. That would, of course, be obviously unfair to the owner of the Red Sox for he has made an expensive effort to give Boston a winning ball team.

Then, too, it is possible that the Bees might finish higher in their league standings than the Red Sox in theirs. It is possible, though highly improbable. On paper, the Red Sox have a pennant contender of the first water but the stars may not "jell" in the manner that means victories.

McKechnie's team has everything to gain and nothing to lose. The Bees could not possibly be as bad as they were last season when, playing under the name of the Braves, they set a new modern National league record in losing 115 games and winning only 38. Previously, the mark was held by the Philadelphia Phillies who suffered 109 defeats in 1928.

The Bees' leader has managed, by a bit of wise trading, to scrape together a ball club. And it may prove to be a fair one if McKechnie gets a few good breaks. If Johnny Lanning, a rookie pitcher from Knoxville, lives up to his spring training promise, and one or two other youngsters come through, the Bees may surprise even themselves.

McKechnie is banking heavily on

Wally Berger, and is optimistic enough to believe that the big outfielder is set to come through with the best season of his career. Berger won the National league home-run crown with 34 circuit clouts last year but his average dropped below the 300 mark. He led the league's sluggers in batting in runs with a total of 130. Over a stretch of 11 games he scored 14 runs, which must be some sort of a record.

Berger has been a durable worker for Boston but he has yet to live up to the promise he showed when he first came up six years ago. In 1934 and 1935 he fell a shade below the 300 mark for the only times in his career. If the Bees show some signs of life he may yet reach the heights—he's only 30.

The uneven battle being waged in Boston for patronage will be interesting to watch, especially so if the teams do not perform according to the advance dope. In any case, the Boston fans are in for an interesting season of the national pastime.

'Pitching Prize' From Muleshoe Pines For Hills

Houston, Tex., April 15.—(AP)—Absent from spring training of the Houston Buffs one recent afternoon was Lawrence Toten, left-handed pitching pride of Muleshoe, Tex., a good looking prospect.

Houston officials were worried. Three days later came a letter to the club office.

"Will write you—all a few lines this evening," started Toten's letter, dated at Muleshoe. "This leaves me well. Hope you the same. This seems like being in the hills after being down there."

Toten explained he "just got homesick" but wanted to come back.

Buffalo officials hastily urged him to return—or be ineligible.

The pride of Muleshoe came back.

POINTS VALUE RADIO PATROL

Increase In Auto Thefts Laid to Need of System

Raleigh, April 15.—The number of thefts of automobiles in North Carolina is increasing again, in spite of the excellent work being done by the enlarged state highway patrol, according to W. A. Coble, representative of Automobile Underwriters of Atlanta, Ga.

"It is only necessary to look at the figures for states and cities which have police radio systems and those which do not, to see the difference in the number of automobile thefts," Coble said.

"Take an example right here in North Carolina that shows the difference between cities which have and do not have police radio communication systems. The city of Wilmington has no police radio system, with the result that automobile thefts in Wilmington average about seven per week.

A state-wide radio system for the state highway patrol would also make it more effective in reducing the number of accidents, as well as in spotting and arresting reckless drivers, hit-and-run drivers, drunk drivers and all types of violators, in addition to automobile thieves, Coble said.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Herbert Hoover

(By The Associated Press) After two years of silence at his Palo Alto home, Herbert Hoover surprised even members of his own party by the vigor with which he entered the presidential campaign.

His frequent speeches, his trips about the country, his criticism of "new deal" policies, have raised extreme curiosity as to his purpose. Is he a candidate?

He is still titular head of the Republicans, and the only living former president. He chants the Republican credo of sound money, fear of high taxes and hatred of government interference in business.

His former secretary, Theodore Joslin, has written that Hoover's "one particular objective in life today is to get the absolutely fundamental issues before the American people."

"We also visited the jail and found the same in a clean and sanitary condition. We were especially impressed with its cleanliness and sanitary condition in general. "We also visited the Convict Camps and found conditions in excellent shape; and we desire to commend the management at the camps for their efficient services being rendered.

"We visited the County Home and found everything in a very clean and sanitary condition. The inmates stated that they were being well cared for and apparently were entirely content. They all expressed their admiration for Mr. David Wilson and Mrs. Maud Evans, their new Matron. We recommend both of them for their untiring efforts in making these inmates' last days as comfortable as possible.
