Foe Of State Sales Tax Lacks Few Votes Having Majority Over Others

Clyde Hoey Running Second with 33.8 Percent of Votes

MUCH INTEREST IN TABULATION

Straw Ballot Conducted by Reflector and Other Newspapers Has Following

Ralph W. McDonald had 48.8 per cent of the total number of votes as a tabulation of 8,260 ballots in the newspaper straw vote on the democratic governorship race was made today.

The division of votes was as follows:

Table with 4 columns: Candidate, Gra-Hoey, Mc-Donald, Mc-Rae. Rows include McDonald (4,028), Hoey (2,789), Graham (1,274), Clyde R. Hoey (169), etc.

McDonald is polling a clear majority of the votes in the east, his total, 1,884, surpassing the combined vote of his three opponents, which totals 1,545.

McDonald is the favorite and has a plurality of the total vote.

The East-West vote shows clearly the relative strength of the candidates:

Table with 4 columns: Candidate, Gra-Hoey, Mc-Donald, Mc-Rae. Rows include East (893), West (1906), etc.

For convenience in separating east and west a line was drawn, beginning at the Virginia line, between Granville and Person counties, and extending southward along the western boundaries of Wake, Harnett, Hoke and Scotland counties to the South Carolina line.

It is interesting to see what the election results in the first primary on June 6 will be if the present ratios are maintained between the four candidates.

The total vote cast for governor in the first primary, 1932, was 379,657. Assuming that the vote will be increased to at least 400,000 next month the state-wide vote would be:

Table with 4 columns: Candidate, Gra-Hoey, Mc-Donald, Mc-Rae. Rows include McDonald (195,200), Hoey (135,200), Graham (61,600), McRae (8,000), etc.

The vote by occupations follows:

Table with 4 columns: Occupation, Gra-Hoey, Mc-Donald, Mc-Rae. Rows include Housewives (259), Farmers (569), etc.

Many voters did not give their occupations and such instances were merely recorded as voting for the candidate of their choice and do not appear at all in the tabulation just above.

Teachers, as expected, are voting for McDonald, the former teacher (Continued on page three)

FASCIST ARMY HAS COMMAND OVER RAILWAY

Addis Ababa-Djibouti Line Resumes Operations

FRENCH REFUSE AGREE ON PLAN

Only Harar, Garden City of Ethiopia, Remains to Be Seized By Il Duce's Forces

(By the Associated Press)

Fascist Italy's army of occupation was reported by the Stefani (Italian) news agency to have taken over the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad in Ethiopia today—all the way to the border of French Somaliland.

By order of the military commander, troops took over all traffic on the narrow gauge line and restored normal service, Stefani reported.

Whether the seizure was considered permanent was not immediately made known. Only today the French government let it be known it would refuse at this time to relinquish rights to the line.

Simultaneously Italian armies all but completed the subjugation of southern Ethiopia with the capture of the important town of Jijiga and pressed into service Haile Selassie's own imperial police to "mop-up" riot-torn Addis Ababa.

General Rodolfo Graziani, veteran of colonial wars, landed at Jijiga on an airplane after his motorized troops had seized the town without resistance.

Now only Harar, "garden city" of Ethiopia, remains to be seized by the fascists. It falls was considered only a matter of days.

Addis Ababa again was calm under the watchful eyes of fascist military police. Last night one untoward incident was the wounding of two frenchmen by Ethiopian bandits.

The state department at Washington reported as missing 30-year-old Eleanor Meade, correspondent for an American news agency. But Cornelius Van H. Ensert, the American minister in Addis Ababa, wirelessly the belief she may have left the city prior to the recent looting and rioting.

Two Billion Dollar Bill Goes To Floor Of House

Deficiency Appropriation Measure Carrying $1,425,000,000 for Relief Faces Showdown Fight Over PWA Policies

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—A $2,364,229,712 deficiency appropriation bill, carrying $1,425,000,000 for relief, went to the House floor today for a showdown fight over PWA policies.

The big money bill was reported by the appropriations committee with $75,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 originally asked by President Roosevelt for continuing work relief activities, shifted to the Civilian Conservation Corps. This made $308,000,000 for that agency.

Other major items in the last big measure to be cleared before adjournment were $453,831,820 for the social security program; $65,550,000 for public buildings and $39,900,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The relief money was allowed by the committee subject to maximum limitation on specified classes of expenditures, but with a 15 per cent leeway permitted between classes.

Republican members of the committee contended this nullified any actual efforts at limitations and the minority raised a concerted demand that WPA be dismantled and replaced with a system of federal grants to states.

But administration leaders expressed confidence the bill as reported would pass the House this week or early next.

BOTH PARTIES MAKING PLANS

Conventions in June Claim Chief Political Attention

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—With the June conventions drawing close, both parties pushed ahead today with plans to greet their presidential and vice presidential nominees in huge outdoor ceremonies.

Republican Chairman Henry P. Fletcher announced that provisional arrangements have been made to use the municipal stadium at Cleveland, conveniently located near the convention hall, to notify the party's nominees of the convention choice.

The democrats previously announced plans to notify President Roosevelt of his renomination with a ceremony at Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Other political developments included comments by a republican and a democrat on a recent declaration of President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech by Democratic Chairman James A. Farley asserting that the east had benefitted from farm relief because of "enormously increased" shipments of manufactured goods to the west.

President Green said recently he favored the re-election of President Roosevelt. Chairman Fletcher in a statement last night asserted that the present republican national committee "attaches no particular significance to this because Green has 'always been a democrat' while the federation itself is non-partisan.

Monthly Wage Of WPA In State Set At Scale Of $23.93

Average For 10 Southern States Disclosed To Be Lower Than In Any Other Section of Country

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—The WPA wage averages for ten southern states were disclosed today to be lower than in any other section of the country.

North Carolina was shown to have the lowest rate—an average monthly of $23.93. Mississippi was next lowest at $24.33.

The average for the United States was $30.03. The highest was in New York City where the average monthly wage was $72.23.

The averages were made public in published hearings by the House appropriations committee on the proposed new $1,500,000,000 works progress funds.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

SMOKE: Senate apathy toward the House tax bill is attributed by cloakroom scouts to politics and ignorance. The Democrats don't dare to defy the President, and the eight-edical-point rates are so complicated that the Republicans can't frame a popular or technical counterattack.

Finance Chairman Pat Harrison hates new-fangled things, but he will go along because he needs FDR's help in a hard reelection struggle. Senator Couzens of Michigan brands the bill as a "reform" rather than a "revenue" measure, but he, too, may be thankful for the presidential blessing next fall.

Senator Byrd of Virginia loathes the whole proposition, but he can't stir up any indignation or recruit any support. Progressive Republicans favor it. The political stars—and even lesser senatorial planets—line up in FDR's corner.

In baseball they say that you can't hit what you can't see, meaning that the opposing pitcher has a smoke ball. In politics it's the same thing—you can't hit what you can't understand. And nobody ever denied that Fitcher Roosevelt sports a swell political curve. That's why the House bill, though nobody understands it, will slide through the Senate with only slight amendment.

STRONG: Herbert Hoover may not have known it, but his old foe—William Edgar Borah—was rooting for him to win California's presidential primary against Alf Landon of Kansas. Where the outcome leaves the two duelist—nobody can figure out.

Here's the story: Mr. Borah originally intended to enter the California primary, but he pulled out.

SUM PROPOSED TO ADMINISTER COMPACT BILL

$300,000 Allocation Offered in Deficiency Measure

N. C. ALLOCATION SET AT $65,000

Doubt Expressed Plan Will Be Effective This Year and Wants Reserve Money

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—A $300,000 allocation to help tobacco growing states put into effect compact for leaf production control was proposed in the first deficiency bill reported today to the House.

Congressional authorization to the states to enter into agreements to control tobacco production was given last month. The proposed appropriation would be used to make advances to states enacting compact legislation to meet the administrative expenses of the state control plan. The money would be refunded to the government.

Published hearing on the proposed allocation disclosed the amount expected to be advanced to each of the cooperating states as follows:

Georgia and Florida, $20,000; South Carolina, $15,000; North Carolina, $65,000; Virginia, $30,000; Kentucky, $65,000; Tennessee, $35,000; and in minor burly growing states, $10,000.

Approximately $25,000 would be used by the federal government for supervision.

J. B. Hutson, assistant farm administrator, said there was doubt that compact legislation would be come effective this year. He asked that the money be made available until 1937 in the event the program was not put into effect this year.

GIANT AIRSHIP BEGINS FLIGHT

Hindenburg Expected to Reach Lakehurst Saturday

Aboard the Zeppelin Hindenburg enroute to America, May 7.—(AP)—The Giant German airship Hindenburg, averaging 75 miles an hour, struck out across the north Atlantic today on its first flight to America.

The great Zeppelin passed Land's end, the Cape of Southwest England, at 6:05 a. m. (10:05 a. m. EST) and 40 minutes later crossed the Scilly Islands, off the English coast.

Bright sunshine and clear skies prevailed.

The Zeppelin bearing 107 persons, 3,300 pounds of freight and 20 sacks of mail, headed on over the English Channel southwest to the Azores and then west to Lakehurst, N. J.

The Zeppelin was expected to reach Lakehurst Saturday afternoon or earlier.

Hail Red Flag From Building Supreme Court

Washington, May 7.—(AP)—An amazed capital awoke today to find the red flag of communism flying over the huge marble temple of the supreme court of the United States.

Apparently raised in the night by a prankster, the flitting emblem struck consternation into the ranks of the supreme court guard, picked men assigned to protect the dignity of the nation's highest tribunal.

Francis the guard and a big detachment of metropolitan police struggled for an hour and a half to get the flaming emblem down, but without success.

Finally a fireman mounted a lofty extension ladder, swaying precariously he touched the flag with a gas torch tied to the end of a long pole. The emblem burst into flames and was destroyed.

The government began a wide hunt for the pranksters who had raised the banner, the hammer and sickle. Authorities said they found a copy of the Harvard humor magazine, Lampton, at the base of the flag staff.

Final Karpis Henchman Taken In Toledo, Ohio Without Firing A Shot

Overall-Clad Girl Barred From School

Bureau of Investigation Men Arrest Harry Campbell

TAKE GANGSTER TO ST. PAUL, MIN.

Bureau Chief Said Gang Members Escaped in 1934 Thru Aid of Politicians

Cleveland, May 7.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, federal bureau of investigation chief, announced here that Harry Campbell, last of the Alvin Karpis gang, a woman described as his wife, and Sam Cokar, a minor gangland figure, were captured by federal agents early today at Toledo, Ohio.

Hoover said the capture was executed without the firing of a shot. Campbell was taken to St. Paul, Minn., by airplane to face charges in the Edward Bremer kidnaping, he said.

Campbell showed what Hoover termed a "little resistance" when the agents apprehended him, Hoover said.

Federal men surprised Campbell and the woman in a Toledo apartment.

Hoover said that when Karpis and other members of the former Barker-Karpis gang escaped from a trap here in 1934 "they were tipped off by two Cleveland politicians and we are now investigating every detail of this angle."

The bureau chief said members of the Karpis gang had face-lifting and finger-print operations performed by a Cleveland surgeon.

"That doctor probably is dead now," Hoover said. "We have reason to believe he was killed after performing the operations. We believe his body was dumped into Lake Erie."

Hoover said that Campbell was married under the name of Robert Miller and that his wife did not know anything of his criminal career. She probably will be released, he said.

Campbell's capture came less than a week after that of Karpis, who was taken in similar manner without gun-firing in a fashionable New Orleans residential district.

Politics Expected Hit Boiling Point In Raleigh Friday

Two of Major gubernatorial Candidates Scheduled to Deliver Addresses at State Capital

Raleigh, May 7.—(AP)—Raleigh, setting politically for the past few weeks, probably will approach the boiling point Friday night with speeches scheduled here to two of the major candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Sandy Graham will start the evening with a radio address from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock.

Clyde R. Hoey, speaking in the Wake county courthouse, will follow with a full hour's address that also will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock.

Noted California Man To Be Kiwanis Guest

Humber is here on a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Humber. The program will be in charge of "Billy" Woolford, Bennett Moseley and George Woodward.

Delegates and Alternates to the International Convention at Washington, will be elected this week.

Kiwanian Charles W. Parsons, for several years Manager of the W. T. Grant Co. here, has been transferred to Lynchburg, Va., leaving a vacancy on our Board of Directors.

The Classification and Membership Committee met with the Directors a few days ago and canvassed the names of prospective members recently submitted. President Galloway appointed committees to call on those who were recommended for membership.

Local Rotarians Join In Inter-City Meeting

The Greenville Rotary club will join with those of Engelhard and Washington in an inter-city meeting in Washington tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Carl Goerch, publisher of the magazine, The State, and radio commentator, will be the principal speaker. The Greenville and Engelhard clubs will put on stunts during the program.

A general modernization program of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company building here was started this morning.

The interior of the building will be completely redecorated, new fixtures will be put in and changes in the lighting system already have been made.

The old cases, behind which the employes work, will be done away with and modern teller counters will be substituted. The new counters will provide a clear view by the customer of the working personnel of the institution.

The walls will be redecorated and the granite front will be cleaned and look like new.

In order to handle the increased volume of business, the institution has installed an inter-connection telephone system with three outside connections. Telephonic connections are available to every department of the bank.

Gypsy Weather

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris married Hope Deane on the rebound, after Elinor Fleming killed him because of his drinking. At first Rupert insisted on an annulment, and offered Hope $1,000 to permit it. But when he finds that his friends must the marriage will not last he suddenly reverts himself, gives Hope the check and tells her she is to stay. Dirk, Rupert's younger brother, is delighted at the result. He and Hope met strangely, just before the happy wedding.

Chapter 14 HAPPY DAY

DIRK sat watching Hope. Sunday dinner, which had been usually an abstracted meal, was tonight enlivened by her presence. She sat in the place where Elinor had so often sat, and she seemed gay and at ease. Dirk had supposed that this first appearance at the table would be an ordeal for her, that sitting opposite Rupert would inevitably try her spirits.

In this he had been mistaken. Rupert himself seemed in rather good humor, although he was drinking less than usual. His presence appeared not to disturb Hope. She seemed conscious of him, though not in the way Dirk had anticipated. Laughing and talking with Dirk, it was plain that her smile was for Rupert, her swift dark glance.

She had been driving with Dirk most of the afternoon. He had shown her the village, and they had encircled the beautiful mountain known as the Storm King, winding through woods still in their summer green. Returning, they had gone for a stroll outside the walls of Lowrie, on the river-side, passing the tomb of that ancient Joris lying on the embankment.

They had leaned together on the iron fence that, amid arbor vitae and dwarf-cedars, encircled the grave. Dirk read the inscription in the bronze slab that covered it, carved beneath a lion's head:

Bliss you, my friend,
Who pass in reverence by,
My course on you
Who touch the place I lie.

"Like Shakespeare's epitaph," said Hope.

"The English, perhaps," agreed Dirk. "You should read the Dutch one just beneath it. It alludes to hell-fire as waiting for any one who disturbs him before Judgment Day. Poor old great-great-great—I don't know just how great he was—Uncle Pieter! Why couldn't he have slept with the rest of his family in Sleepy Hollow . . . or even inside his own wall?"

"Perhaps he liked the river too well," suggested Hope.

"I'll bet he hates the railroad down there. You notice when they cut into the slope to build it they spared Uncle Pieter."

Hope said she didn't blame them. She would have spared Uncle Pieter, too.

"Well, there was some argument, I understood. But even corporations have their qualms. Uncle Pieter's epitaph. . . . Don't go too near the edge there. The cedars hide it. You might go over."

"It wouldn't be much of a tumble," discovered Hope. She had parted the cedars to look at the river, its far sapphire sweep and tranquil foats. They went down rock steps and strolled at its edge, facing a wind, faintly salty, coming in from the sea. The wind died, and the sun went down—deep down into the river, dyeing it vermilion. The sail-boats, moving into the arc of the sunset, became pointed flames. Presently everything was mauve and misty. Lights blossomed on the Jersey shore.

HOPE, Dirk learned, was going to remain at Lowrie. Rupert had said so, had given her a check, and told her to buy herself proper clothes, the clothes his wife should wear. All this she told him as they walked in the sunset.

Clothes, she no doubt felt, were matters of importance to Rupert, for, coming home, she had changed her dress again, had put on this frock of embroidered muslin, with a dahlia from the piano at her waist. Her curls had a gloss as from much brushing, and she had rouged her lips with a certain skill.

What had passed between them, wondered Dirk. The chances were that Rupert had meant to send the girl away; then, hearing how Elinor had predicted she would leave of her own accord, had accepted the challenge, and permitted her to stay. Dirk had relayed Elinor's remark to Rupert with the suspicion that he would do just that. It was part of his own unreasoning efforts to protect Hope, to keep her in the house. Something dark and strange rankled in him. He was conscious of other feelings, of desires at war with his own efforts.

Had he not been obscurely hoping, when he went searching for her this morning, that Rupert had indeed thrown her out? He had meant to find her, wherever the search might take him, but with the hope that she would say, "I have no friend but you. . . ."

Rupert and Hope had risen. Dirk laid a hand on Hope's chair, followed her from the room. Rupert spoke to him in the hall as Hope went into the library.

"I've got to go over the papers of the Dunhaven case," he said. "It's coming up in White Plains tomorrow, and I'll be there all day. I'm wondering if you will mind taking. . . ."

He glanced toward the library, and Dirk supplied the name with a smile.

"Hope."

"I wonder if you will mind taking her to lunch. It needn't be out of your way. . . . say to the Lawyers' Club. She'll be at the bank tomorrow, and shopping."

No explanation of his solicitude. No reference to his change of mood. "Glad to," said Dirk.

"Tomorrow evening," suggested Rupert, "you might get Isabel and we'll go somewhere for dinner. I suppose there's nothing at the theater yet."

"There's the opening of 'The Black Swan,'" offered Dirk. "Ernest Webb's new play. Ernest sent Gage Seymour seats, and Elinor asked Isabel and me to have dinner with them, and go along. I'm not tied, however."

"I'd go," Rupert answered. "You like Ernest."

He went upstairs, and Dirk joined Hope in the library. She was looking over the books, old, old volumes, some of them, bound in calf and morocco. Their shelves reached halfway to the ceiling. A fire burned on the hearth, and a bowl of chrysanthemums was on the table.

There was the strange warm feeling of a woman in the house. Even the servants felt it, and had paid the involuntary homage of flowers and a fire. Or had Rupert ordered these?

HOPE glanced about, and Dirk said,

"Rupert's gone up. Had some papers to go through."

He added, half-sitting against the table, watching her in her pale dress against the shadowy background of old books.

"He'll be out of town tomorrow. Says I may take you to lunch, and specifies the place."

"Where?" she asked with interest.

"Lawyers' Club, so that I won't run too far afield. Prosaic, but near the office. All right?"

"All right," she smiled. "And will you show me the office?"

He promised, and carried to the couch a book she had extracted from the shelves. It was the "History of the Joris Family," a huge and ancient tome, bound in pigskin. He revered her taste, for few had shown the inclination to delve into its labyrinth of fine, uneven print, its dull, old-fashioned prose.

She was looking, however, at the pictures.

"Tell me about them," she said. And Dirk sat down beside her, and told her what he knew, turning the yellow pages.

There were square Dutch burgo-masters, and their squarer wives. There was a duke in a black hat with a red plume. There was his duchess, wearing pearls and a gathered velvet gown. Rembrandt had painted them, and they hung in the dining-room. There was a crest, a three-masted ship, sails unfurled, pennants flying.

She paused at a woodcut of Jan Steen's portrait of Croon Joris. Dirk wondered if she saw the resemblance to Rupert. She said nothing, and he turned the page.

"Here's the ancestor who built this house. Looker Hans Joris. Doesn't he look shrewd and twinkling? Frightful old smuggler he was, but most respected. And here's the 'Onrust,' the Restless. A boat big enough to go on the ocean, first product of skilled labor on Manhattan Island. They say the plegmatic Dutch actually cheered as she slid down the ways."

"Was Uncle Pieter there, do you suppose?"

"No. Too early for Uncle Pieter. Old his grave wake your interest in the family?"

"I shouldn't wonder. His wanting to be and there all by himself." She looked at the fire. "Some of us have to be alone. But not many of us want to be."

He was smiling now. Her eyes went back to the book. "Here's a great," she said. "A helmet in profile."

'I'M A MEDAL-SNATCHER'

When newspaper men went to the home of Harold L. Davis at Horn Springs, Tenn., to inform him his book, "Honey in the Horn," had won him the Pulitzer prize for the best novel published by an American in 1935, they found him nonchalantly lounging in a bathrobe on his front porch. And just as nonchalantly, he dismissed his accomplishment with a nod and one terse sentence: "I'm a medal-snatcher." (Associated Press Photo)

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

(By The Associated Press)

Senator Daniel C. Hastings of Delaware has one of the toughest jobs among the campaigners of 1936—it's his task to try to take Senate control away from the Democrats.

He is chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee and, barring decimation of Democratic ranks by death, he hasn't a chance to reach what is at least technically his goal.

If the Democrats lost every seat for which they offered candidates—as things shape up now—they still would be in the majority. So Hastings, of course, must content himself with trying to pick up for the Republicans as many seats as he can.

While his specific responsibility does not extend to the presidential ticket, he will naturally and quite cheerfully expend all possible efforts for the nominee.

Cordell Hull

(By The Associated Press)

Seldom does a secretary of state enter the rough-and-tumble of a national campaign. But this year's political wars are likely to include some speeches from the tall and handsome Tennesseean, Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

If his trade treaties run onto the shoals of Republican vituperation, Hull will be drafted to explain them. He is a life-long specialist on tariffs. His apprenticeship in the house and his post-graduate days in the senate found him expounding the subject, hitting at either foreign or domestic policies he thought might clog the channels of trade. The saying is there is no one in congress today who has not heard "Hull on the tariff."

He speaks in a convincing manner that inspires respect, and he enjoys debate as much as unchallenged exposition, tearing his op-

WASHINGTON DAY BOOK

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, May 7.—Politicians who remember the turbulent days preceding the Republican national convention of 1920 perked their ears at the threat of Senator Borah to "tell the whole story" of the "vast and astounding amounts of money" being spent to prevent his nomination.

While the Idaho senator did not disclose publicly what information he has, the manner in which he made it threat was sufficient to cause those who know Borah to do anything but take his charges lightly.

It was Borah who introduced the resolution in 1920 which resulted in the creation of the senate campaign expenditures committee. The disclosures of that committee were largely responsible for the famous Lowden-Wood-Johnson deadlock in the Republican convention that brought about the nomination of Warren G. Harding and his subsequent election to the presidency.

It was this committee's disclosure that a war chest of more than a million dollars had been raised to obtain the nomination for General Leonard Wood that spelled defeat for him.

Evidence also was obtained of how political strings were pulled in Missouri to line up delegates for Frank Lowden. Lowden himself disclaimed any knowledge of such maneuvering, but it contributed to his downfall. Borah declares now that "before this campaign story is over, the use of the money and where it came from will be well known, because I was instrumental in creating a Washington committee which will disclose it."

Borah's claim to being "instrumental" in the creation of the senate campaign expenditures committee this year is disputed by the Democrats. The record shows that Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, is author of the resolution. Borah, however, did confer with Robinson on the subject.

It was not until after the Idaho senator had made his current charges of excessive spending that the administration leaders in the senate got around to naming the members of that committee.

Such a committee is set up in every campaign year as a matter of routine. Senator Borah's charges however, may lift its duties this year far above routine.

The activities of the expenditures committee may not be confined wholly to Borah's charges of prevention spending once it gets under way.

Whispers behind the scenes have said that if the senate did not order special investigation of alleged politics within the administration's relief and other emergency expenditures, that that angle might be explored by the committee on campaign expenditures.

Democrats, of course, will control the committee since they will be in the majority. The greatest interest at the moment, however, lies in what Borah has to say in support of his charge that "corporation powers are putting up money to control the Cleveland (Republican) convention" and in the effect the statement will have on that convention.

By PRESTON GROVER
Washington—(AP)—There's a lot of chaffing among southern Democrats against abrogation of the two-thirds rule at the national convention but a goodly number are willing to drop the precedent to prevent its use in the future against a candidate of their own.

From pre-civil war days the south has insisted on the rule requiring nomination by two-thirds of the delegates. Should a bare majority be sufficient to nominate the presidential candidate the southern states would face the possibility of being forced by the north and west to accept a candidate wholly distasteful to them.

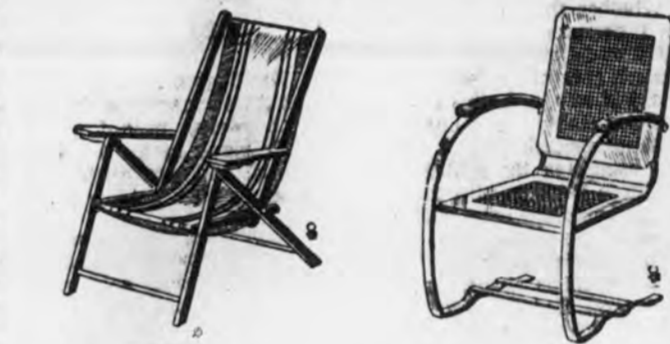

There has been a change in sentiment in some sections of the south in recent years and now arise, perhaps a new reason. Some of the congressional friends of Senator Byrd of Virginia would like to see him a presidential candidate in 1940. They foresee it might be difficult, however, to amass a two-thirds majority for him. Byrd, himself, is opposing the change.

Bank On Quiet Convention. Those seeking to upset the century old tradition are banking on a quiet session at Philadelphia, and the support of President Roosevelt, to smooth the way. With Mr. Roosevelt's nomination almost a certainty, they cannot be accused of trying to strike out the rule just to insure a Roosevelt victory.

The two-thirds rule was adopted most historians agree, for the specific purpose of saving Andrew Jackson's "their apparent," Martin Van Buren.

Jackson wanted a change of running mates for his second term. He had broken with John C. Calhoun, vice-president during his first term, and wanted Van Buren instead. Van Buren is credited with suggesting the rule to block Calhoun.

Van Buren Lost Out. The rule was adopted. Van Buren was nominated an elected vice-president. Then in 1836 he was elected president. The rule turned around to bite him later. A ma-

MINISTER GIVES THIRD SERMON

Says Too Many Take Hold of Religion Wrong End

"There are too many people who take hold of religion by the wrong end," said the Rev. Dr. J. J. Murray in his third sermon at the First Presbyterian church last night. Preaching on the subject of "Religion, Power, and Love," he said that a text from second Timothy 1:7, "For God gave us not a spirit of fearfulness, but of power and love and discipline," Dr. Murray said that such a text was written for people who find religion a strain and a burden and not a joy and power.

"The text suggests three concepts of much current religion: the first of which is false, the second of which—though it may be true—is not large enough, and the third of which is the kind of religion that Jesus and Paul had. For one thing, there are those who upon religion as a suppression and not as a release. Much religion that young people get has come to mean a tremendous 'no.' It is built on an inadequate idea of God. But there is this much truth in it: life does have its choices, and the purpose of religion is to point us to choices that are wisest—so after all, there must be something of discipline, of the right kind. In addition to this prison-house religion, there is also the concept that makes of religion a sanatorium; something to which we repair when life gets too hard—a refuge to flee to! Of course the religion of Christ does give comfort, peace and strength. But that is by no means all there is to religion. For, there is this third way of living religion: finding it as the power to do hard things, to do them nobly and leave the result with God! For even as a matter of a 'disciplined mind' religion is not the resultant force of outward laws but the inward compulsion of one's own loyalties. Religion ought to bring joy to Christians. But it is not happiness to do as one pleases, or to take things easy; but happiness in religion is found in living nobly, in fighting for the right, in serving humanity, in friendship with Jesus Christ and in His stirring us to our very best! For religion is power, not a prison or a sanatorium; and if we approach it from the right end we will find it to be so!

Dr. Murray's sermon tonight will be on the subject of "Zacchaeus, A Man Who Needed Christ." The service begins at 8 o'clock.

DO WOMEN SUFFER MORE THAN MEN?

Physicians tell us the nervous system of woman is more sensitive than that of man. And her nerves are more susceptible to the influences that produce "nervous tension" (strain) which is only another name for "pain."
That is why women especially benefit from Capudine, a pleasant-tasting, quick-acting remedy which relieves high nervous tension and pain by soothing the nerves. For nervous headache, neuralgic, and periodic pains Capudine is ideal. If Capudine does not relieve, you may be sure there is some organic condition which should receive the attention of your oculist, dentist or family physician. Get Capudine today, and if you do not prefer to anything else, the manufacturers will cheerfully refund the price. Ask for Capudine Liquid or Capudine Brand Tablets. 60c, 30c, 10c sizes.—(Adv.)

lighthouse keeper comes right back with one for Hoy. Beauty parlor operators (cosmetologists) divide their attentions, but mostly vote for the gentleman with the long hair, Clyde Roark Hoy.

Next Thursday, and each Thursday thereafter until the first primary, another state-wide tabulation of votes will appear in The Daily Reflector. Only in The Reflector in this territory can you follow the race as it gets hotter and hotter. The election is only a little more than four weeks away. Will McDonald continue his furious pace or will he falter in the stretch? The youngest candidate is now invading the west. Will he gain because of it? The Reflector will have the answers. Follow the state-wide returns and the balloting in this territory in The Reflector.

POLICE COME TO RESCUE AS HUBBY FORGETS 'TUX'
Middletown, Ohio.—(AP)— Bennett Chapple, Sr., American Rolling Mills Company executive, was mystified and a little piqued when a Richmond, Ind., police squad stopped his auto and took him to headquarters while he was on the way to deliver a speech in Indianapolis.

What was wrong? What had he done? The officers did not know. They were merely obeying orders. The desk sergeant cleared up the mystery—Mrs. Chapple had telephoned from Eaton, Ohio, asking that her husband be held until she brought him something he had forgotten—his tuxedo.

FOE OF STATE SALES TAX LACKS FEW VOTES HAVING MAJORITY OVER OPPONENTS

and onetime college professor. Last legislative session he led the fight on the house floor for a $22,000,000 annual school appropriation and for a salary increase for teachers. A survey of the teacher vote shows that he is getting a clear majority, his votes totalling 101, while his opponents, when their ballots are combined, have only 93. In only one area are the teachers voting for another candidate in any numbers. That is the Charlotte territory, "stomping ground" of the long-haired Hoy, where teachers are voting for him almost 3 to 1.

Merchants too are back of the anti-sales taxer McDonald, returning 301 votes for him and only 232 for his three opponents. It is interesting to compare the vote of the salesmen and merchants. It is astonishing how nearly alike are the totals for each candidate among the two groups. This, doubtless, is because the two occupations are so closely allied.

It should be noted that either Hoy or McDonald lead in each occupation-group. Hoy has a slight edge with housewives, but he is weaker with the farmers, previously thought to be a pillar of strength for the Shelbyite. Doctors also favor Hoy, but preachers divide their affection equally between them.

Lawyers thus far are concentrating on Hoy, with Graham as second choice. McDonald, alone of the quartet, is not a lawyer.

A combination of the mechanical and industrial votes shows which way the wind is blowing among the non-white collar class. Combining the votes of the two groups the result is: McDonald 683; Hoy 297; Graham 116; McRae 15.

Among the unemployed too, a formidable group in the post-1929 era, McDonald has a clear majority, polling 206 votes to his opponents' combined even 200.

Many miscellaneous occupations also appear on many of the ballots. There is, for example, one in Cumberland who votes for Hoy and declares he is a bootlegger, while down Beaufort way a "fisherwoman" votes for McDonald, but a Right now he's holding back the Robinson-Patman chain store bill, a birth control regulation, the popular thirty-hour proposal, a demand for a study of silicosis, an investigation of several departments. He's sitting in the L.D., as he did on the Frazier-Lemke measure.

GREENIES GAIN ELEVENTH WIN

Local Highs Triumph Over Washington Nine, 7-4

The Pam Pack of the Washington high school suffered defeat in the hands of the Greenville Greenies on Kugler field at Washington yesterday afternoon by a score of 7 to 4. This was the eleventh successive win of the year for the locals.

The number of spectators attending yesterday's tilt was undoubtedly the largest crowds to witness a game this year in high school baseball competition in this immediate section.

Richard Downing did the hurling for the Greenies and by his excellent control in handling the old ball, the rivals of the local high were able to obtain only four earned runs.

Reynolds May, coach of the high school today said that "the boys under his supervision played a very well-balanced game of baseball and not only did the pitcher himself pitch a splendid game, but was given all the support available." The boys composing the local nine have for a number of times this season proven that a pitcher is no better than his support and that the support is no better than its coach.

The game with the Fayetteville high slated for this afternoon at the Third street stadium was called off. Reports were issued today, however, that the game would be played sometime in the near future. This will be the last class 'A' conference game of the season for the high.

Future games will be played with teams who are members of the Northeastern conference. The next game of the season is with the New Bern Bears at that place tomorrow afternoon. The Bears were defeated in their last tie-up with the locals.

Ayden Aces Win Tilt from Greenville Nine

The Ayden Aces defeated Greenville nine 14-7 in a baseball game yesterday.

George Clark started on the mound for the locals but was relieved in the third inning by Burley Warren. Jarry James namer in the eighth won three men on or out at great excitement to the Greenville crowd. Warren, Gardner, O. Clark and James each with two hits led Greenville. James and E. Clark featured the hitting in the local's Leslie and Short pitched for Ayden and allowed 12 hits. Short and Summer led the hitting attack for Ayden with 3 hits each.

Greenville Nine Beats Nine from Winterville

Wednesday at the Third Street stadium, Greenville won a ball game from Winterville 5 to 2. With Nobles hurling 3-hit ball Greenville coasted to victory. Greenville made 6 hits and Winterville made 3 hits.

Michigan's traditional "pant, pass and prayer" system is about worn out, according to the Wolverine football coaches. At Ann Arbor, Harry G. Kipke and his associates are already deep in thought—planning strategy that they hope will resurrect Michigan football from its present low level.

IN RELIEF ROLE

SPORT SLANTS

That old jinx, injuries to key players, wasted little time before striking the four leading contenders for the American League pennant—Detroit, Boston, New York and Cleveland.

The Tigers have been most fortunate in the past in the matter of avoiding injuries. They have paraded to two consecutive pennants with their line-up practically intact. But this year their luck seems to be falling.

The loss of Greenberg, who last season was voted the most valuable player in the American league, for six or seven weeks, is a severe blow to the Tiger's chances of repeating. The big first baseman suffered a fracture of the left wrist—the same one which kept him out of the World Series—when Jake Powell, the Washington outfielder, accidentally crashed into him, at first base.

The luck of the Boston Red Sox did not even hold out until the season got under way, for Johnny Marum, a newcomer from the Athletics, suffered a sore arm in training camp and threw cold water on the Red Sox's high hopes for a pennant. Marum was counted on to add 20 victories to the Sox total.

The New York Yankees had to get along without the services of their prize rookie, Joe DiMaggio, for the first three weeks of the season as the result of a training camp accident. Joe strained his ankle in practice and when heat instruments were resorted to he suffered a severe burn on his instep. The injury was a long time healing and the month of April rolled around before Joe broke into the lineup.

The Cleveland Indians suffered the saddest blow of all when Bruce Campbell was stricken with cerebral spinal meningitis for the third time in ten months. The 26-year-old outfielder was one of the club's leading batters and figured heavily in the club's chances for finishing high in the standings.

Inspiration To Team. The entire Cleveland team had been rooting hard for Campbell to make a successful comeback after the same fight he put up for his life last summer when he suffered a similar attack. The one thing that seemed to delight Manager Steve O'Neill most on the occasion of his first visit to New York this spring was to report the apparent recovery of Campbell.

"Campbell has come back better than ever. He certainly licked old boy Spinal Meningitis," he was happy to tell his interviewers. "The game fight the youngster put up has been an inspiration to the other fellows on the team. The boys have the spirit it takes to win and they are going to be mighty hard to beat."

Campbell was hitting at a .333 clip when he was stricken. The chances are that his baseball career is ended, for his physician has hinted that it will be unwise for him to attempt to play ball again.

Blackie Caldwell, Alabama university outfielder, got only one hit in a recent baseball game, but he scored three runs.

SUPERSTITION MUFFLES WARY CUB MOUNDSMAN

Chicago, May 6.—(AP)—Superstitions, or temperament if you prefer to call it that, are noticeable among baseball players who maintain winning is a matter of a little strength, some brains, and a word of luck.

Bill Lee, Chicago Cubs' pitcher, for instance, is mighty superstitious on days he is going to pitch. He won't say a word to anyone and the mere suggestion of being photographed sends him scurrying for cover. If he even thinks he will be in line of sight when a picture is being taken of someone else, Lee gets out of the way.

“THE GREAT MAILS” A TRAINED SEAL NOW!

By RUSS NEWLAND (Associated Press Sports Writer)

San Francisco, May 7.—(AP)—Walter Mails, one-time pitching star and man of many nicknames, is preparing the latest chapter of an unusual baseball career as a publicity man who cannot operate a typewriter.

The lean left-hander who helped pitch Cleveland to the 1920 World Series championship today fills the dual role of publicity director-relief pitcher for the San Francisco Seals. In the first five weeks of the Coast league season he worked in one inning but meanwhile produced reams of copy for the press.

His press agency is direct—delivered verbally while sitting on sports writers' desks. For written copy he employs a stenographer.

During his big league days he acquired such nicknames as "Duster" and "Rabbit Ears." He modestly refers to himself as "The Great Mails."

A Bean Ball Pitcher. As a raw recruit with Brooklyn in 1915 he picked up the cognomen "Duster" through his combined wildness and a penchant for rifling bean balls which had baffling hitting the dirt as precautionary measures.

Brooklyn sold Mails to Seattle in 1919, and a trade sent him immediately to Sacramento. The next year Sacramento sold him to Cleveland for three players and $45,000. And it was in 1920 he whipped his old Brooklyn teammates, 1-0, in the sixth and deciding game of the World Series. During the series he pitched 172-3 innings without being scored upon.

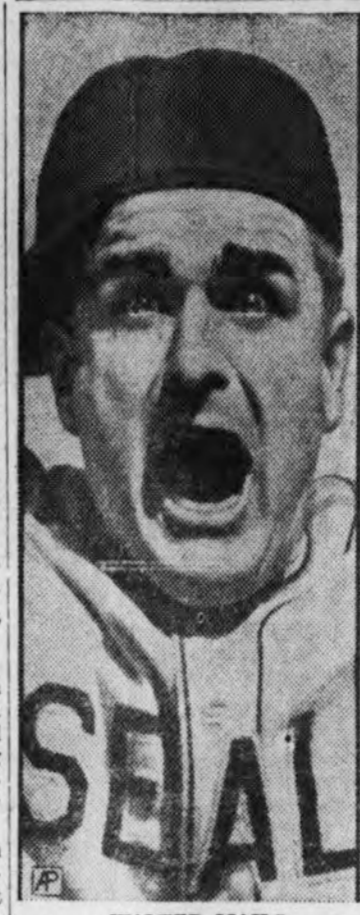

The next year, peerless Ty Cobb and his Detroit teammates started riding Mails. Cobb then dubbed the southpaw "Rabbit Ears."

"They rode me out of the American league," Mails admits now. "I couldn't take it. When Cobb and his gang opened up on me, I'd blow up like a balloon. Now that I've developed a thick skin, I'm too old to go back."

How It All Began. Mails says the feud with Ty Cobb started in the winter of 1920-21, when he pitched against the Georgia Peach in exhibition games in San Francisco.

"Cobb was off form and didn't have much luck against me. A local paper ran a cartoon showing me holding Ty in the palm of my hand and calling him a 'busher.' Next season the Detroit bunch started the ribbing and that was the beginning of the end for The Great Mails. Cobb and I are great friends now, though."

Mails broke into organized ball in 1914 with Seattle. His minor league wanderings carried him to

NEBRASKA TRACK STAR WINS DISCUS THROW BY ACCIDENT

Lincoln, Neb., May 6.—(AP)—Sam Francis, University of Nebraska port-sided weight tosser and football star, unawared a winning discus throw of 149 feet 9.1 inches at the Drake Relays, but it was all an accident.

Francis, better known as a shot-putter than as a discus thrower, attempted to show a teammate, Fred Shirey, what was wrong with his discus form. Both were entered in the event, and Francis' effort, which served the dual purpose of a lesson and an official trial, exceeded even his fondest hopes.

Reds Set High Mark

Cincinnati, O., May 6.—(AP)—The 686 average with which the Cincinnati Reds won their only National league pennant, in 1919, is the highest percentage standing of any pennant winner since 1909. The next best is the 649 average made by the Chicago Cubs in 1935.

SHORT CROP TALK INCREASES WHEAT PRICE IN FRANCE

Paris.—(AP)—France, which normally produces just enough wheat to supply bread for her 40,000,000 citizens, may have to import part of her needs next year, for both the wheat carry-over and crop forecasts are low.

The mild and extremely wet winter, unfavorable for winter wheat, which comprises the greater part of the country's crop, is expected by agricultural forecasters to reduce the total yield even below last year's low output of 76,000,000 quintals (about 278,000,000 bushels). A 75,000,000 quintal crop is probable.

Wheat prices, no longer directly regulated by law, have been rising rapidly in anticipation of the short age. The price jumped from 70 francs a quintal last August to 104 francs a quintal—the equivalent of $1.88 a bushel—in March.

CABINET TWINS PUZZLE CAPITAL

Washington, (AP)—Butlers who swing open Washington's most exclusive iron-grilled doors face a delicate problem when the cabinet is invited to dinner. They must look sharp to avoid announcing "The Attorney General of the United States, Mr. Cummings," as "The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Morgenthau." And vice versa would be just as deplorable.

There the similarity stops. Cummings' eyes are light blue and Morgenthau's eyes are dark. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., was born in New York and grew up to become a gentleman farmer with financial acumen made necessary by the family's Manhattan real estate holdings. He shared the enthusiasm for conservation of his Hyde Park neighbor, now President of the United States. He followed his neighbor to Albany and then to Washington.

The two gentlemen look very much alike; similar noses, similar mouths, the same quiet smiles, the same retreat of hair from the forehead. Just to add another element of confusion, they wear the same kind of pince-nez eye-glasses. They're both tall with wide shoulders. They both move in a slow, dignified fashion. They both wear snap brim felt hats and conservative clothes.

Homer S. Cummings was born in Chicago. He became a familiar figure at Democratic conventions, practiced law at Stamford, Conn., and served as the town's mayor three times. Despite their very similar appearance, there is a difference of 21 years in their ages. Morgenthau is 44; Cummings is 65.

Reported Daniels Eyeing Post Of Committeeman

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILL. Raleigh, May 7.—Johnathan Daniels, editor of The News and Observer and son of Josephus Daniels, the present U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, formerly Secretary of the Navy in the Woodrow Wilson administration, wants to succeed C. LeRoy Shipp as National Democratic Committeeman from North Carolina, according to reports current here today. While Mr. Daniels has not made any formal announcement as yet that he is a candidate for a post in the Democratic National Committee, a post which his father held for a number of years, it is generally agreed here that son Johnathan is at least a receptive candidate and already getting his ducks in a row. He is reported to have frankly admitted to several people here that he would like to be National Committeeman from North Carolina. Nor is that all. It is further reported in political circles hereabout that son Johnathan, who was one of the principal backers of Dr. Ralph W. McDonald during the 1935 general assembly and one of his confidential advisers, if not his principal political strategist during the 1935 session, is now counting on the support of Dr. McDonald and his following in the state to help unseat Shipp and put him in as National Committeeman. It is generally agreed in political circles both here and elsewhere that son Johnathan and The News and Observer have done as much, if not more, than any other combination in the state to make Dr. McDonald what he became during the 1935 general assembly and what he is today, with the result that if Dr. McDonald wins the Democratic nomination for Governor, he will more or less be under obligation to son Johnathan. So if Dr. McDonald is nominated and elected Governor, and if son Johnathan wants to be National Committeeman, most observers believe that according to the rules of the great political game of "I will help you and you help me," the Professor-Governor would be honor bound to back the youthful editor-politician for any post to which he might aspire.

Not that any political trading is being done between son Johnathan and the youthful Forsyth county college professor who is now leading the field in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and who most observers believe is being greatly assisted in his campaign by The News and Observer. Neither Mr. Daniels nor Dr. McDonald are of the type who would justify themselves by making a cold-blooded, cut-and-dried political trade, it is readily agreed. But both Mr. Daniels and Dr. McDonald are intelligent men—they belong to the ultra-intellectual strata of thinkers in North Carolina and are by no means dumb, it is pointed out. There is no doubt that Dr. McDonald already realizes how much help and assistance has already been given him by Mr. Daniels and that he would not hesitate to do anything he might be able to do later on to assist him, most observers here agree. It is also believed that Dr. McDonald already realizes what an unusual asset it would be to his administration, should he become Governor, to have both the editor of The News and Observer and the paper itself back of him. For during the past ten years, The News and Observer has been one of the bitterest critics, if not the bitterest critic every administration has had, those who have followed the facts here agree.

MANY PERSONS FORT VISITORS

Total of 280 Paid Admissions at Fort Macon Last Sunday

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, May 7.—A total of 280 paid admissions to Fort Macon last Sunday, central attraction to the State Park of the same name as Bogue Banks in Carteret county, was reported today by State Forester J. S. Holmes to Bruce Etheridge, director of the Department of Conservation and Development.

Sunday was the second day on which admission has been charged to the old fort after its formal opening participated in by Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, National Park Service and army officials. The admission fee is 10c per person. Unsettled weather on the previous day cut off virtually all visitors.

Conservation officials expressed satisfaction over this early demonstration of the popularity of the fort and park. They emphasized the point that there is no admission to the park, the fee applying only to entrance into the fort proper which is surrounded by approximately 412 acres of state-owned land which comprises the park.

Applications for reservations for rental of the state-owned cottages on the fort grounds are now being received by Thomas W. Morse, State Superintendent of Parks. The cottages will be completely furnished with the exception of linens and is available for rental to the public on a weekly basis.

Receipts from admissions to the fort and rental of the cottage will be applied to the expenses of administration of the park and maintenance of the fort and improvements in the park. Public accommodations in the park include a picnic shelter, a dock and rest rooms for visitors.

With the official opening of the nearby beaches and the summer resort season, conservation officials expect the number of visitors at the park and to the fort to increase steadily.

VOTE RE-COUNTERS FIND A KITTEN AMONG BALLOT

Waukegan, Ill., (AP)—Judge Perry L. Persons and Bailiff Albert Weinberger heard "strange noises" coming from the court vault in which were locked primary election ballots, held for a recount. When the six principals of the recount, State's Attorney Charles E. Mason and County Clerk Russ Alford were called to court, the judge signed an order to open the vault. Six keys were inserted in six padlocks and the vault door swung open. Out stumbled a black kitten which had been locked in three days previously.

SOLONS STEER CLEAR RELIEF

Both Democrats and Republicans Move with Caution

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Any blow-by-blow account of the current congressional encounter over relief would show a large percentage of shadow-boxing. A few hard ones have been struck but in the main both Democrats and Republicans have attempted only cautious and tentative approaches to a subject they both dread and are anxious to be rid of with as little roughing as possible.

Almost without exception the members recognize that a new appropriation must be voted, but that it will be merely a temporary measure, postponing for the future the larger problem of a long-term policy toward unemployment.

The vast majority has shown neither the initiative nor the desire to advance concrete proposals for dealing with the jobless on a permanent basis. As for the years to come, they seem content to fall back on the hope that something will turn up.

The trouble with such an attitude is that, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out some weeks ago in his Baltimore speech, something already has turned up without even pointing the way to salvation.

Industrial activity has made long strides toward recovery. Some thoughtful economists are saying that so far as general indices are concerned, the depression is over. Yet the unemployment figures remain almost stationary. The facts have disproved one of the universal theories of these depression years—that if production could be restored to normal, the unemployment problem would evaporate.

It is not this serious situation, however, or the remedy of it, that congress is debating. It is considering only what must be done at the moment to keep people from starving—a pressing matter, it is true, but hardly comparable to the question of what should be done to keep starvation from becoming chronic.

Neither party has produced more than sporadic suggestions about the future. Instead both sides talk of the past administration of relief, of the best method of spending what is to be spent during the next few months, of many things which can have little or no bearing on permanent policy.

The truth is that even if either party could agree on a long-term program, political precedent would be against serious advocacy of it at the outset of a campaign. It is one of the bad breaks of national fortune that things should have come to their present state in an election year.

Only a few alternatives seem possible. One is to acknowledge that large-scale unemployment is inevitable, at least for years to come, and heavy federal appropriations therefore inescapable. Another is to work out an allotment of the burden, return most of it to states and municipalities. A third is to undertake to spread employment by reviving some of the wage and hour regulations of NRA.

The political opposition which would develop against any one of these courses unquestionably would be strong and persistent. No taxpayer wants to be told he must go on paying for relief indefinitely, the states in general are dead set against taking back their responsibility, and every mention of NRA or anything resembling it stirs loud echoes of dissent.

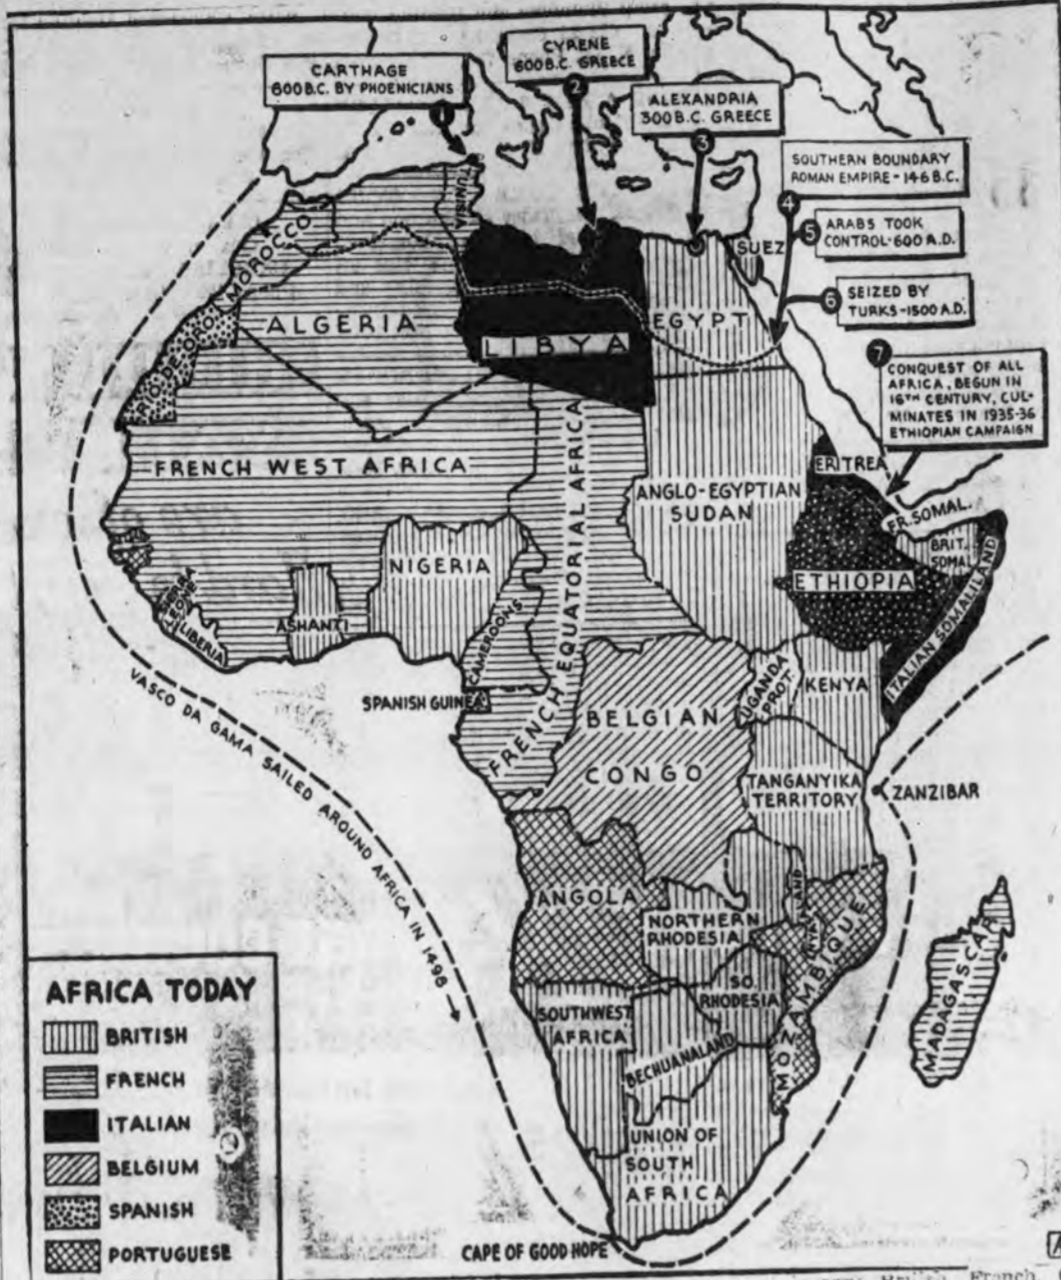

So congress shadow-boxes, making so great a stir over momentary aspects of the case that the real issue is forgotten. Some day, perhaps when this election is over, it must face the problem more squarely and take the consequences.

Scholarships For C.M.T.C. Trainees

N. E. Ward, M. D., of Greenville chairman of the Military Training Camps Association for Pitt County, announced yesterday that the Commanding General, Fourth Corps Area has allotted two scholarships to the C. M. T. Camp to be held at Fort Bragg, N. C., August 5-September 3. These scholarships have been given through the efforts of the Military Training Camps Association by institutions of learning for award to this summer's trainees. These scholarships are as follows:

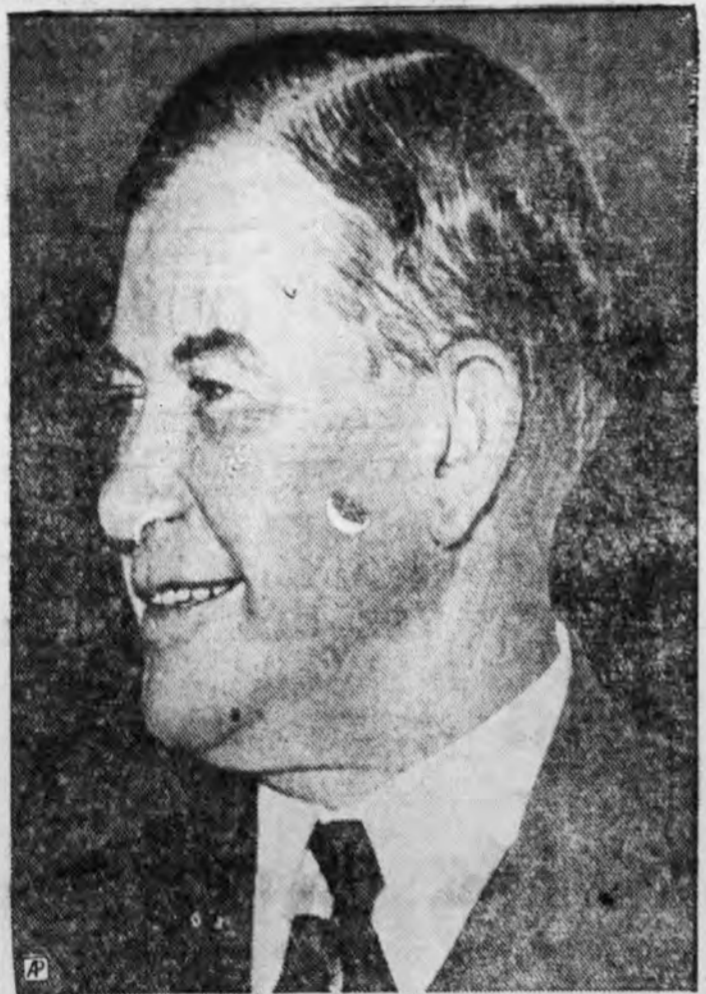

1. Furman University, Greenville, S. C. One scholarship, value $350.00. Period—1 year or through college course if merited. Additional expenses, $350.00 per year for books, laboratory fees and laundry.
2. Wofford College, Spartanburg, S. C. One scholarship, value $65.00. Period—2 years. Estimated additional expenses, $300.00. In addition to these the following described scholarship has been given by the Castle Heights Military Academy, Lebanon, Tenn., and is open to competition at each of the seven C. M. T. Camps to be held in this corps area during the coming summer:
One scholarship, value $250.00. Period—2 years provided recipient maintains a satisfactory academic average and good behavior. Estimated additional expenses approximately $650.00 for the first year. This may be paid for at the rate of $65.00 per month. Approximately $500.00 for the second year. The

EUROPE'S SWEEP OF AFRICA ENDS WITH ITALY'S ETHIOPIAN CONQUEST

Italian conquest of Ethiopia ends a lengthy chapter of African history which has seen the entire continent, with the exception of tiny Liberia, a republic fostered by the United States, pass into the control of European powers. The map above tells the story. The Phoenicians founded Carthage about 800 B. C. and 200 years later Greece founded Cyrene. Three hundred years later, Alexander the Great marched to the Nile and left his name to a new city, Alexandria. Rome capped these European excursions into Africa by consolidating the northern part of the continent after the fall of Carthage in 146 B. C. Arabs, in the seventh century, swept the Romans out of control. Nine hundred years later the Turks supplanted the Arabs, but land-hungry Europeans would not be denied. Vasco da Gama, the Portuguese, led the vanguard of European explorers and traders, when he sailed around southern Africa in 1488. He was followed closely by English, Spaniards, Dutch, French and Danes. Rival powers soon began seizing territory. European holdings at the outbreak of the World War ranked as follows: Britain, 4,234,000 square miles; France, 4,200,000; Belgium, 930,000; Portugal, 788,000; Italy, 680,000; Ethiopia (independent), 35,000; Spain, 149,000; Liberia, (independent), 40,000.

Barkley Tunes Famous Voice For Second Keynote Speech

Senator Alben W. Barkley, who sounded the successful Democratic war cry in 1932 as keynoter of the national convention, will launch another campaign in the same capacity in Philadelphia on June 23.

Washington (AP)—A stalwart Kentuckian will deliver the Democratic answer to the Republican challenge voiced by a rugged Oregonian.

Two weeks after Senator Frederick Steiwer gives the keynote address at the Republican convention in Cleveland, Senator Alben W. Barkley will sound the Democratic call to arms at the Philadelphia convention, which opens June 23.

A seasoned campaigner and a frequent senate defender of the Roosevelt administration, the senior student must be a graduate of an accredited high school within the Fourth Corps Area and present proper admission certificate and certificate of good character and health.

These scholarships will be awarded in each instance to outstanding trainees who expect to matriculate at the institutions noted. In all cases, the award of scholarships will be dependent upon the trainee's ability to meet the entrance requirements. Applications of all trainees of the camp will be given careful consideration in making the final selections for the award of scholarships.

In previous years, competition for the scholarships awarded has been keen and trainees selected have made creditable records in the institutions in which they have matriculated.

Up From The Ranks

Later he studied law, learned shorthand and became a court reporter where he made contacts that gave him political ambitions. He was a prosecuting attorney and county judge before election to congress in 1913.

He was a member of the house continuously until 1927 when he entered the senate. A man of powerful, compact physique, he handles with apparent tirelessness his work as assistant Democratic leader in the senate and assignments on several committees.

In the blue grass country, Barkley is known as an "iron-lunged" orator. He has delivered 10 to 12 campaign speeches in a single day.

An advocate of prohibition for years, he nevertheless as a party loyalist seconded the nomination of A. Fred E. Smith in 1928.
