

STATE OFFERED TESTIMONY IN BEATING CASE

Evidence Is Offered That Poulnoe Beaten 'Raw as Beef'

FLOGGING FATAL TO SHOEMAKER

Claim Two of Defendants Sought To Silence One of Chief Witnesses for State

Bartow, Fla., May 8.—(AP)—The prosecution in the Shoemaker flogging trial presented testimony today that Eugene F. Poulnoe was beaten "as raw as any piece of beef you could see in a butcher's store," and that two of the defendants sought to silence a witness to his abduction from near the police station.

Testimony of Poulnoe's condition after he, Sam Rogers and Joseph Shoemaker who died, were tarred and feathered last November 30 was given by John W. Scott.

"Did you examine Mr. Poulnoe today?" asked State Attorney Rex Farlor.

"Yes," the witness replied, but defense objections restrained him from describing Poulnoe's present condition. Poulnoe himself previously had testified he still carried marks of the beating.

Testimony that Sargeant C. A. Brown, Jr. and C. W. Carlisle, two of the defendants, tried to keep him from telling what he knew of the case was given to the jury by former policeman H. L. Russell.

He quoted Carlisle as telling him in part to "keep my mouth shut," that he was depending on me not to tell anything about what was going on around the police station.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dees and son, Sam, of this city, had only praise for the "wonderful personality" of President Roosevelt today upon their return from Washington where they were present for the presentation of the Congressional medal of honor to Captain Samuel I. Parker, brother of Mrs. Dees.

Captain Parker, a native of Monroe, Ga., was the 100th veteran of the World War to receive the highest award bestowed by the United States for heroism in time of war.

The medal was awarded by the President and was the first award to be made personally by the President during this administration.

Parker, presiding judge of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals and Mrs. Parker; his sister, Mrs. J. E. Dees, of Greenville; Mr. Dees and their son; Representative J. Walter Lambeth; Maj.-Gen. Seeking Further Arrests Of Karpis-Barker Aides

Federal Agents Attempting to Learn Names of All Confederates of Kidnaping Gang, Including Politicians, Lawyers, Etc.

St. Paul, May 8.—(AP)—An effort to learn the names of Karpis-Barker gang aides—including politicians—was pressed by federal agents today in questioning Harry Campbell, last of the major members of the mob.

Campbell, seized in Toledo yesterday and rushed here by plane, was interrogated in the federal building. Campbell's capture followed a five day quiz of his confederate, Alvin Karpis, in the same place.

Government officials declined to comment but the Minneapolis Tribune said it had learned Karpis furnished the clue that led to his lieutenant's arrest.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the justice department's investigation staff who participated in both arrests, asserted the capture of the gangster at Cleveland two years ago was frustrated because "they were tipped off by two politicians," he added.

"We are going to get all who aided that gang in Cleveland—the doctors, lawyers and politicians."

Karpis was in the county jail under $500,000 bail awaiting arraignment on five counts, based on the abductions of William Hamm, Jr., brewer, and Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker.

Campbell is charged with kidnaping in the Bremer case. United States District Attorney G. F. Sullivan said $500,000 bail would be asked when he is arraigned.

BEAUFORT FOR SANDY GRAHAM

Dr. McDonald Continues to Lead in Other Counties

(Copyright, 1936, By The Daily Reflector and 24 Co-operating North Carolina Newspapers)

Lieut.-Governor "Sandy" Graham received two Beaufort county votes today to one for Dr. Ralph McDonald, giving Graham a lead of one vote in that county.

McDonald's gain in other counties continued, however, to increase his clear majority in the five-county poll being made by The Reflector and Clyde R. Hoey remained in second place in the running.

Out of the 19 ballots received in today's voting McDonald received 10, Graham was second with six, and Hoey third with three. McRae has failed to receive any votes in the Reflector five-county poll since the first week, when he received four.

In today's voting Hoey and McDonald received one each from Bertie county, where to date Graham has not received a single vote. From Beaufort county Graham received two to one for McDonald and none for Hoey. From Pitt county McDonald received 8, Graham 4 and Hoey 3.

Today's voting brought McDonald's clear majority in the five counties to 57 votes. By courtesy McDonald has the lead in Pitt, Hyde, Martin and Bertie with Graham leading by one vote in Beaufort county.

An additional 500 ballots were placed in the mails late yesterday and a large return of voted ballots is expected over the week-end. Since the first week there has been a decided increase in the voting and each week has brought in a larger percentage of the ballots.

In the state-wide tabulation published yesterday McDonald had 48.8 per cent of all the votes cast so far, with Hoey in second place with 33.8 per cent, Graham third with 15.4 per cent and McRae far to the rear with only two per cent. With an increased interest in the voting now, many ballots are expected to be voted between now and the time for publication of next week's state-wide tabulation which should present an even more definite picture of the true political trend in the state regarding the gubernatorial race.

Here's how the candidates stand today in the five counties being polled by The Reflector:

	McDonald	Hoey	Graham	McRae
Pitt	106	32	19	3
Beaufort	30	13	31	1
Bertie	19	13	0	0
Hyde	19	17	3	0
Martin	33	10	8	0
Totals	207	85	61	4
Total votes cast to date—	357

RETURN MAHON TACOMA, WASH.

Government is Ready to Try Fugitive for Kidnaping

Tacoma, Wash., May 8.—(AP)—William Mahan came back to the scene of the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping today with the government ready to place him on trial immediately for the $200,000 abduction of the nine-year-old lumber fortune heir.

Brought here by airplane last night after his bloodless capture by federal agents at San Francisco, the 33-year-old ex-convict was hustled off to a cell scarcely a dozen blocks from the scene of the kidnap May 24, 1935.

"We are ready to go to trial today if necessary," said J. Charles Dennis, U. S. district attorney. He also indicated the young kidnap victim would be the state's chief witness against the fugitive who evaded capture for nearly a year.

Dennis and other officials agreed Mahan would be tried—unless he pleads guilty—on federal indictments charging kidnaping and mail fraud.

Harry H. Johnston, Pierce county prosecutor, said he did not plan to ask a trial in state court, although the state law would allow imposition of the death penalty in even of conviction.

Stroke Is Fatal To J. S. Hargett Today

Kinston, N. C., May 8.—(AP)—J. S. Hargett, 62, assistant director of the State Department of Conservation and Development, died in a hospital here today. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy at Trenton on Tuesday.

Hargett was prominent in the Democratic party in Eastern North Carolina for many years. He was a former sheriff of Jones county and was twice elected state senator. He was appointed to the Conservation Department by Governor Gardner.

Funeral services will be held at Trenton at 4 o'clock tomorrow. His widow and four children survive.

Washington By RAY TUCKER KILLED: Whirligig predicted some time ago that AAA's Chester Davis' trip to Europe was designed to prove that there was no foreign market for American farm products. The tip has come true faster and more furiously than even his abettors anticipated.

Mr. Davis, who will top the list of the administration's agricultural orators next fall, recently called a long interview to the AAA building his belief that Europe offered no hope as a buyer of wheat, corn, tobacco, etc. His message, of course, was meant to spike G. O. P. farm planks and to support Henry Wallace's program for development of a self-sufficient home market. AAA Minnigraphs went into action and the Davis distum was to be widely broadcast.

But Cordell Hull's scouts learned of the coup. The Secretary of State saw in it a sideswipe at his program of reciprocal tariff treaties, which have certain farm products grown by American farmers. And, as always happens when Mr. Hull collides with a Cabinet or sub-Cabinet, he was quick to retaliate.

ITALIANS CHEER IL DUCE'S VICTORY

Routine Matters Claim Attention Of Aldermen

Paving Projects, City-County Armory, Aid for Boy Scouts, Swimming Pool and Zoning Law Considered at Regular Meet

Only routine matters were taken up at the regular monthly meeting of the Greenville Board of Aldermen last night, but it was decided to convene at a meeting to be called by Mayor M. K. Blount later in the month to consider old paving projects.

Following a request by B. B. Sugg that the board appropriate a sum to aid Boy Scout work in the city, the aldermen approved a donation of $100 now and indicated they would contribute another sum after the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1. Guy Smith also spoke in behalf of the Scout movement.

A permit was given for the construction of a filling station at the intersection of Dickinson avenue and Washington street. Provision was made that the station accede to the wishes of a nearby church in regard to closing during services.

Dr. M. B. Massey, chairman of the committee in charge of the swimming pool, reported that some trouble was being encountered in locating a leak, but added it was hoped this would be remedied shortly. The board decided against building a band stand at the pool at the present time.

Dr. Massey also recommended to the board that the city purchase a half block to add to playground facilities at the West Greenville school when there were sufficient funds to buy the lot and if a reasonable price could be obtained.

Upon recommendation Alderman A. E. Hogobood, the board instructed the committee on streets to proceed with plans to purchase a truck to be used by the street department. The cost of the truck will be paid out of next year's budget. (Continued on page eight)

SEEKING WAYS TO AID INDUSTRY

President Roosevelt Studies Means Build Up Trades

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he was seeking suggestions from industrial leaders on how to build up certain industries that have a large capacity for expansion, particularly railroad equipment and housing.

The executive, in response to questions at his press conference, explained, this was the purpose of recent talks with such captains of industry as Bernard M. Baruch, Owen D. Young, and Walter P. Chrysler.

The President said the railway equipment industries were being held back because railroads, heavily laden with capital charges, were unable to buy equipment.

He added that before adequate housing for low income groups could be provided, construction would have to be placed on a mass production basis like the automobile industry.

Donald Crisp was a noted light opera singer before he became a picture player.

Britain Presses Germany On Non-Agression Pacts

Reliable Sources Declare British Pushing Reich to Include Russia, Latvia and Estonia in German Proposed Treaties

London, May 8.—(AP)—Great Britain was declared by responsible sources today to be putting new pressure on Germany for the inclusion of Soviet Russia, Latvia and Estonia in the Reich proposed non aggression pacts.

That point, said these sources, was the most important contained in the Locarno questionnaire which Great Britain has handed to Germany after consultation with France and Belgium.

Britain, likewise, requested a clear declaration from Hitler as to whether Germany now regards herself in a position to conclude "genuine treaties."

There was also a blunt question as to whether the point had been reached where Germany can signify she recognizes and intends to respect the existing territorial and political status of Europe.

The questionnaire failed to treat with the German proposal for a temporary agreement in the remilitarized Rhine zone pending completion of the first stage of general negotiations for the peace of Europe.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden stated, however, in the questionnaire "there are other matters which will have to be raised later."

The questionnaire, presented to the Berlin foreign office yesterday, was made public in London today in a White Paper or government report.

SESSIONS SET FOR PRECINCTS

Meetings to Be Held Tomorrow to Elect Delegates

The various Democratic precinct meetings will be held throughout the county tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock for the purpose of electing delegates to the county convention next Saturday and also for setting up their own executive committees.

Meetings will be held at the regular voting places. Greenville and Chocoma township have been divided into several precincts, however, and new meeting places selected.

W. E. Hooks, chairman of the county democratic executive committee, called attention to changes in Greenville township, which has been divided into four precincts, each to hold its own meeting, selecting its delegates to the county convention and setting up its own organization.

Precinct number one in the township will meet at Third street school and elect 10 delegates; precinct number two, at the court house and elect 25 delegates; precinct number three, at Center Brick warehouse and elect 10 delegates; and precinct number four, at the city hall and elect 11 delegates.

Chocoma has been divided into three precincts since the last primary and the meetings will be held in various sections of the township and delegates selected on a pro rata basis.

The remaining meetings will be held at the usual voting place. There is a total of 19 precincts in the county now, as compared with 14 at the last primary.

Paris Exchange Hit By Official Ruling

Paris, May 8.—(AP)—Market circles today made speculation on foreign exchange in Paris virtually prohibitive by fixing premiums of 1.25 francs on domestic operations and 6.75 francs on foreign operations.

Marcel Regnier, minister of finance, conferred with President Albert Lebrun on the present financial crisis and it was rumored in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies that Regnier planned to resign because of the difficulty in perverting a panic.

Speculators said financial experts apparently have been experiencing the devaluation of the franc since they already have been paying "exorbitant" premiums.

Large Sturgeon Caught In River Near Grimesland

Scott and Rufus Buck of near Blackjack proved to the satisfaction of all that it is not necessary to go out of Pitt county to enjoy the sensation which comes only with the landing a big fish.

The two brothers last night landed a 125-pound lusk sturgeon, measuring six and one-half feet in length. The fish was caught in the Tar river at Willow Point, beyond Grimesland in a shad drift net.

The brothers explained that their net was badly torn, but was not beyond repair. The sturgeon was landed by drifting the boat to the bank, roping him around the neck with part of the net and then dragging him ashore.

Immediately after the catch the brothers took the fish to Grimesland to show their catch to friends and later sold it to a fish house in Washington.

This is the second sturgeon of any size ever caught here. Several years ago a fish of the same species was caught in a revolving net near the water and light plant near the city.

Appropriation Bill For Big U. S. Navy Voted By Senators

Measure Carrying Funds Far More Fightline Equipment Returned to House With Amendments

Washington, May 8.—(AP)—The Senate today passed the record-breaking $529,000,000 navy appropriations bill.

The measure, carrying funds for more fighting ships, aircraft and men, returned to the House with amendments. Conference committees were scheduled to adjust differences between the two houses.

Just before final passage on a voice vote the Senate rejected an amendment seeking to eliminate provisions for the construction of two battleships, six submarines and 12 destroyers.

HAILE SELASSIE BEGINS EXILE IN PALESTINE

Harar, Last of Ethiopian Cities to Fall, In Flames

ETHIOPIA STILL IS RECOGNIZED

League of Nations Is Annoyed Over Imminent Annexation of Country by Italy

(By Associated Press)

Ethiopia's beaten ruler reached sombre self-exile in Jerusalem today amid conflicting reports of the fate of his second city, Harar, and tightening tension in Europe over the status of his once sovereign empire.

Reports from both Sir Sidney Barton, the British minister in Addis Ababa, and from Djibouti, French somaliland, said Harar was on fire and that rioting raged in the street with the advancing Italians, believed to be 10 miles away.

But a press dispatch from Mogadiscio to Rome said the southern troops of General Rodolfo Graziani already had captured the city, thus completing Italy's military objective in Africa.

(By The Associated Press) White-clad and wan, Emperor Haile Selassie reached his exile goal of Palestine today while the second city of his fallen Ethiopian empire—Harar—was reported in flames.

A British warship carried the fleeing "king of kings" to a respectful military reception in Haifa and the Negus rode through streets patrolled by heavily armed troops to board a train for Jerusalem.

Harar, long the goal of the Italian forces, from the south, was reported captured by the troops of General Rodolfo Graziani after rioters had looted and burned in a fashion similar to that experienced by Addis Ababa.

The capture of Harar was said to complete Italian military objectives in Ethiopia.

While Ethiopians gave the fascist salute to the Italian army of occupation in Addis Ababa, there were these developments in Europe:

Reliable quarters predicted Premier Mussolini will bid for a lifting of sanctions Saturday night, along with the expected decree for total annexation of Ethiopia. His avowal of intentions to again take a full part in international affairs was expected to be one result of fascist grand council and cabinet meetings.

London—a tempest of British anti-sanctions feeling gave rise to predictions of a possible cabinet crisis for Stanley Baldwin's government.

Geneva—League of Nations officials, annoyed by the reported imminent annexation of Ethiopia by Italy, insured the fallen empire still was recognized as a sovereign member of the league.

Form Organized Support M'Donald And Mr. Roosevelt

Group of Pitt County Voters Organize Roosevelt-McDonald Club at Meeting Here Last Night

A group of Pitt county voters last night organized a Roosevelt-McDonald club, with the expressed aim to encourage voters "to think on the merits of the respective candidacies for president and governor—intellectually upon their respective opinions without interference by undue persuasion of officious persons."

A statement by the organization said officious persons among the voters were as offensive as "lobbying" law-making officials.

Particular attention was given to the desire to encourage voters to respond to their intellectual conclusions and to avoid conclusions based on prejudice and lack of information.

Comment was made on the policies of our State to maintain an efficient system to educate the people, and upon the repeated attitude of certain candidates in opposition to Dr. McDonald's attempt to ridicule him by designating him "The Professor" and other expressions tending to discredit education and to exalt the art of crafty politicians to the discredit of education. Such course was emphatically condemned.

Attention was called to the campaign of Governor Charles B. Aycock in 1903 to have a school house on every hill in North Carolina and every child in our State have equal opportunity for education, and that the result of this campaign, developed by 38 years being discredited by crafty politicians.

Gypsy Weather

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris was drunk when he married Hope—and he only did it because Elinor Fleming jilted him on account of his drinking. But when Rupert finds that his friends insist the marriage will not last, he grows stubborn, gives Hope a $5,000 check, asks her to overlook the fact that he had suggested an annulment, and tells her to go to New York in the morning to buy herself the clothes she needs. Dirk, Elinor's young nephew, has met Hope under peculiar circumstances before the marriage; he does not know whether to be glad or sorry of Rupert's decision. He is talking with her about the old and prominent Joris family.

Chapter 15

JEWELS—RETURNED

HOPE spelled out the motto. "Hilarious. 'Merrily.' I like that, too. . . . Is that this house?" "As it used to be," said Dirk. "You see Hans Joris wanted to do something big, so he copied the town-hall back home, and called the place 'Schlechterhorstveid.'" "Big enough!" she smiled. "Too big for English Admiral Lowrie, when he married a Joris and became head of the family. He didn't like Dutch things anyhow, so when a fire destroyed part of the castle he rebuilt it. . . . in good colonial fashion. Gothic towers and a colonial wing. We're an awful hodgepodge, inside and out. Your room now. . . . It has all the Dutch furniture that's left in the house. The old kas. . . ."

"The kas?" "That old painted wardrobe is a kas. There were kases in all the bedrooms. Almost everything was Dutch to start with. But the generations came and went, throwing out, bringing in. That mantel there, for instance, is Italian. And the tapestries in the hall are French. And the drawing-room, you may have noticed, is all Chinese Chippendale. . . ."

"The only generation that hasn't changed something is mine and Rupert's. All we've done is shut up most of the rooms. It took a platoon of servants to run the place. Somewhere around here," pointing to the colonial wing, "there used to be a secret stair."

"A secret stair?" Dirk nodded. "Some canny old Joris built it, either to escape from his intimates, or to let them in. It wasn't discovered by his descendants until the fire, and then Admiral Lowrie tore it out in shocked surprise. But he did something much worse when he built the wing. . . ."

"It's all beautiful," said Hope. "It looks as if there might have been a moat and a draw-bridge once, and a dungeon and a keep. . . ."

"A dungeon, at any rate," Dirk answered. "We call it a basement. I'll show it all to you some day, the old ballroom, and the Dutch chapel. . . . and the very top of the tower where they used to watch for the boats. It will take some climbing. . . ."

She was looking at another crest, a shield, a hand that held a broken sword. She read the Latin words. "My shield is scarred. . . ."

She closed the book. Presently she said, "That's the motto I choose. . . ."

Dirk said, "Can't I sell you Merrily? Or Favorable Winds? They suit you better. . . ."

"No, they suit you. My shield is scarred. . . ."

She rose, the book in her arms. "I'm taking it upstairs. May I?" "Of course. Aren't you. . . aren't you a Joris, too?"

"Perhaps. That's why I want to read it. It's. . . something to live up to. . . ."

Dirk went upstairs with her, carrying the book. He was disappointed. He had thought they would have the evening together. At her door he said, "Don't forget lunch. The Lawyers' Club. . . ."

He gave her the address. She would remember, she told him, and they said good night. . . .

When the door was closed she laid the book on the table beside the bed. The bed had been turned down, and one of her own nightgowns folded on the pillow. After a moment she moved noiselessly to the door between the two rooms, and pressing her cheek against it, listened. . . .

There was a sound now and then of papers stirring, and once a sharp noise as if Rupert were knocking out his pipe. . . .

She stole back, and moving the lamp, settled herself in the big gilded chair, the "History of the Joris Family" propped against the table. She began to read the fine, uneven print. . . .

Reading, she fell asleep, and when the great clock in the hall was striking midnight, she was still there. . . .

Dirk has a difficult moment tomorrow, at the theatre. . . .

Gossip has it that a substitute measure already has been drawn for submission to Congress should the court invalidate the act. What the bill contains, however, is a closely guarded secret. . . .

A play for time is involved. It would require almost a year for the court to test any new bill which Congress might pass now and such a breathing spell is just what the administration wants. . . .

and creeping to the door, listened again. Still the soft rustling of paper. . . .

She undressed and crept into bed. . . .

DIRK met Hope at one o'clock at the Lawyers' Club. She had attended to her deposit at the bank and had already done a bit of shopping. . . .

Dirk was conscious that the black dress looked somehow different, less demure—saw that the change in it was due to the hat, a rakish scrag with a curling feather. "Stunning," he said. "She sparkled. Look under the table. . . ."

He looked, and as he did not come up at once, "My shoes!" she explained. "Oh, your shoes! I should say." He came up then to find the waiter at grave attention. . . .

After lunch he took Hope to the Joris offices a few doors away. Gravel dignified quarters that had once commanded a view of lower Manhattan and the Battery, but that now were hemmed in by new growths of steel and stone. . . .

Hope met Sanford Joris, and the members of the Joris staff, lingered in Rupert's private sanctum. She was interested in his secretary—efficient, thirty-odd—in the books on his glassed-in shelves, in the street below his window. . . .

Dirk finally enticed her forth to look at his own office, and the morning paper which lay on his desk. He had folded the paper at the account of the wedding. It was short, a mere announcement, and she read it quickly. . . .

Dirk explained that Connolly had mislaid some of the data. "Your father's name, for one thing, and the city you hail from. Or it may be Connolly doesn't know the items that belong in the society columns. At any rate, I have them, and tomorrow's issue. . . ."

She turned to him, a little pale. "Please don't. One account is enough. . . ."

"I think so, too," Dirk answered. She had seemed slightly relieved on reading the notice, grateful apparently for its brevity. There would be no second account if she did not wish it. He went with her to the elevator. "So you're going shopping?" She answered thoughtfully, "What color does he like—for evening, I mean?"

Dirk hardly knew Rupert's preference in colors, and mentioned his own. "White," he said. . . .

It might be Rupert's color, at that, since Elinor so often wore it. He reflected that a box had come for Rupert that morning, a small, precious-looking box. He himself had signed for it, and carried it up to Rupert's room, Rupert having already left for White Plains. . . .

He dreaded the moment when Rupert should find the box, dreaded it for Hope. She with her anxiety as to Rupert's choice in colors! "White," he said again, for after all it mattered greatly to himself what she should wear. "White, and for daytime, brown—that sort of rusty brown. . . ."

She thanked him gravely, stepped into the elevator, and smiling a goodbye, disappeared. . . .

RUPERT found the box on his arrival home. It contained the jewels he had given Elinor during the six years of their engagement. He opened it, looking at the strand of pearls that had been his mother's, the twin bracelets he had bought at Cartier's, the brooch, the ring, the necklace. . . .

Their very touch, he had thought, would be like touching the flesh of Elinor. He would have thought, too, that, receiving this box from her, he would have sat down to an evening's steady drinking. . . .

He looked at his watch. Hope would be in her room, he reflected. He had telephoned her two hours before that he would not be home before eight, that she was to have dinner without him, and be dressed for their evening together. She was dressing now, Nora assisting her. He had met Nora going to her room on his arrival. . . .

Rupert lifted out the strand of his mother's pearls, and, opening a small, inner drawer of his desk, dropped them within. Then, the box of jewels in his hand, he knocked on the door of Hope's room. (Copyright, 1935, Margaret Bell Houston)

Dirk has a difficult moment tomorrow, at the theatre. . . .

Gossip has it that a substitute measure already has been drawn for submission to Congress should the court invalidate the act. What the bill contains, however, is a closely guarded secret. . . .

A play for time is involved. It would require almost a year for the court to test any new bill which Congress might pass now and such a breathing spell is just what the administration wants. . . .

While the justices have given no indication when they will recess for the summer, the time is usually the last Monday in May or the first of June. The first decision day following the summer recess will not be until November—and after the national elections. . . .

The fear of strikes in the coal industry should the Guffey act be thrown out is the reason why its sponsors are prepared to go ahead at once with a substitute measure. . . .

The seven leading bituminous coal producing states already have protested that they are without practical or legal control over the destructive trade practices in the industry. . . .

A threat of coal strikes during a campaign year such as this would be a source of the greatest embarrassment to the administration. It would be forced to intervene in some way and such intervention would be politically dangerous. . . .

While the coal miners are working under a wage agreement with the operators now which has almost a year to run, it might be disregarded should the court throw out the Guffey act. . . .

Not even John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and the dominant figure in that organization, has always been able to hold his men in check. . . .

On the other hand, should the court hold the Guffey act valid the administration is prepared to take full advantage of such a victory. Plans are in the making to extend such control to other major industries. . . .

President Roosevelt apparently is committed to some measure of government control over industry to insure unemployment and raise wage scales. . . .

Politicians regard it as almost certain that something of this nature will be attempted in the anthracite and textile industries of the court upholds the Guffey act. . . .

ELATED BY LOVE, SUITOR DRIVES CAR INTO CREEK

Joliet, Ill. (AP)—Charles Singer, 29, of Chicago, asked Louise Bosson of Joliet to marry him. She said "yes." Charles starting home, drove right through a dead end street into Spring creek. . . .

Officers found Charles wading out. His car was nearly submerged. "When I left her I was driving on air—I felt that happy," Charles explained, wringing out his coat. "I didn't know I was on a dead end street until it was too late. . . ."

THE MODERN RURAL KITCHEN

In most photographs of modern kitchens electric equipment is illustrated. There are about five million farm homes in this country where electricity is not available. This photograph shows that these homes beyond electric lines have not been overlooked so far as modern equipment is concerned. The modern oil range shown here is as attractive as any stove to be found in a city kitchen, and the refrigerator, which harmonizes with it in line and color, also is operated by the heat from kerosene, requiring no outside connection of any kind. . . .

TAX BILL HITS IN MOVIELAND

Incorporated Stars to Feel Effect of Proposed Measure

By PRESTON GROVER
Washington—The new tax bill seems destined to take some of the glow from the smiles of the more successful motion picture stars. In its present form it applies to them with a peculiar intensity. A number of film luminaries have incorporated themselves, thereby being able to reduce their income taxes. . . .

As corporations they now pay 12-1/2 to 15 per cent on earnings. If they had received their income as individuals they would have paid as high as 75 per cent in the top surtax brackets. . . .

Now comes along a bill intended to transform corporation earnings from reserves to dividends for stockholders. It is a devil and deep sea situation for such incorporated individuals—and this class includes of course, others than motion picture actors. . . .

If they choose under terms of the bill to continue to keep their earnings in the corporation, they may be forced to pay a federal tax growing increasingly higher in proportion to the percentage of income kept by the corporation. . . .

On the other hand, if they pay themselves fatter personal "dividends" they will force their individual earnings up into the higher brackets of the surtax. In addition the new tax bill proposes to subject dividends to the flat four per cent normal tax, from which they now are exempt. . . .

As corporations they have been able to allow themselves such income as they saw fit, while the balance of their pay has remained in their personally owned corporations, escaping the high surtax schedules. . . .

By this means a sudden flush income in one year has escaped the tax drag net because the actor could allow his earnings to go into his corporation, which paid the 12-1/2 to 15 per cent corporation tax. . . .

tax. Then "dividends" could be paid out when needed—part of them perhaps in a year when no pictures were made. . . .

Necessarily such a system would work only for the individual whose earnings are substantial. The coming season promises to be a busy one for Hollywood tax advisers. Undoubtedly new schemes will be evolved. . . .

High-Power Perfection Oil Range No. R-879
Beautiful new PERFECTION with High-Power burner speed has "live heat" oven at convenient height

The mark of Quality
To be truly modern, a kitchen range must have its oven built high enough to prevent stooping, reaching and lifting—so homemakers tell us. That's why this newest Perfection oil range, finished in glistening cream-white porcelain enamel, has its oven—like all Perfection oil ranges—at convenient elbow height. Five High-Power burners, concealed by a hinged panel, each provide a large volume of clean, cooking heat easily controlled for every task from simmering to broiling. The concealed, unbreakable fuel reservoir holds two gallons and is easily removed for filling. Rounded corners, full porcelain enamel finish, including oven linings and removable burner tray, make this range as easy to keep clean as it is to use. See it at your dealer's and ask for a demonstration. Twenty-two other High-Power models offer sizes and prices to suit every need.

The senior prom is being presented by the management at no cost to the invited guests sponsored by the Cartaret Board of Education. Over 1,100 invitations were issued early this week to those expected to attend the very original dance.

The pre-season dance on Saturday will start at 9 o'clock and continue until 1 a. m. on the sabbath. A number of Greenville residents who are week-ending at the beach or in Morehead City for the fishing will be present at the Saturday night dance.

Stream Of Benefit Checks from AAA Flowing In State

Dean Schaub Points Out, However, Most Tar Heel Farmers Have Been Paid Full Amounts

Raleigh, May 8.—The stream of AAA benefit checks to North Carolina farmers who cooperated in the crop control programs is still flowing.

However, said Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College, most of the farmers have been paid in full, with the exception of certain adjustment payments to cotton and tobacco growers.

Tobacco growers who did not sell as much as 95 per cent of their base poundage this past season are to get adjustment payments based on the difference between the amount they sold and 95 per cent of their base.

The cotton price adjustment payment, not to exceed two cents a pound, is based on the amount by which the average of 7-8 inch middling cotton on the ten spot markets of the country was less than 12 cents a pound on the day the grower sold or will sell his cotton up to July 31, 1936.

The latest tabulation of checks shows that up to March 31, North Carolina growers received a total of $31,493,407.48 in rental, benefit, and adjustment payments.

Tobacco growers led the list with $15,027,093.95. Cotton growers received $14,337,781.54, peanut growers $980,077.30, corn-hog producers $957,897.50, and wheat growers $135,557.20.

An additional $2,617,100.68 was spent in North Carolina in administering the crop control programs during the two years and eight months of the AAA.

Most of the administrative expenditures went to pay county and community commitments; farmers appointed to assist the county farm agents with the control programs, Dean Schaub pointed out.

BOYS 'PEACH' ON DRIVER WHO STRUCK PARKED CAR

Middletown, Ohio.—(AP)—The motorist who struck Mrs. H. H. Horne's automobile while she was in a theatre did not get away with it.

When she left the show she found a note in her damaged car giving the number of the machine that struck it. The note was signed by three youths who witnessed the accident.

MOTORISTS INVOKE SAINT AGAINST AUTO ACCIDENTS

Roseland, Ind.—(AP)—Each Sunday afternoon a line of automobiles waits for the blessings of St. Christopher, patron saint of motorists, at Christ the King Church where the Rev. Wendel P. Corcoran, C.S.C., pastor of the church, administers the blessings.

"St. Christopher," the Father Corcoran explains, "is recognized as the patron of automobile riders and as protector of all in storms, accidents and pestilence."

Horrified by the toll of auto accidents, Father Corcoran says, he decided to build a shrine dedicated to St. Christopher where motorists could come for special blessings.

The choir will render the anthem, "Send Out the Light," and there will be a sermon by the minister on "The Home and the Church—A Reciprocal Relationship." All parents are being asked to attend this service with their children that members of each family in the congregation may celebrate the day by worshipping together.

Old Tires As Smudges

Yuba, Calif. (AP)—Charles A. Wetmore buys old auto tires by the hundreds and stacks them up in his peach orchard. When chill nights require "smudging" to protect the fruit, he sprays them with oil, scatters them about and sets fire to them with a gasoline blow-orch. They beat the customary oil pots, he finds.

New College Officers Installed at Meeting

Installation of new officers of the E. C. T. C. Women's Student Government Association and the contest for the cup offered by the Tau Sigma Sigma in connection with the "Get-Acquainted Week" were features of a mass meeting held last night.

In the contest for the cup fifty students, picked at random, walked across the stage, while other students, who had paper and pencil in hand ready, wrote the names, addresses, and classifications of as many as they knew. The one getting the largest number correct will get the cup. There were approximately 250 who entered the contest. It will take some time for the judges to check the papers and decide the winner. The announcement will be made in next week's issue of the Tecco Echo.

In the installation ceremony, the old officers first took their places on the stage, and retired as their successors took their places.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

OPPOSED: Virginia, historic Democratic dominion, has muscled up FDR's power program in a big way.

The state's utilities commission recently turned the "cream" of the rural electrification field over to a private company at the very moment when Morris Cooke, Rural Electrifier, was negotiating for that same territory.

Virginia's action emphasizes the fact that heaviest opposition to the Roosevelt power policy has developed in historically Democratic commonwealths—Alabama versus TVA purchase of private corporations.

DEMANDS: Uncle Sam will bump up against his first borrowers' bloc as Whirligig forecast some time ago, next month. It will be the first of several showdowns between the borrowers and the federal banker.

ZIONCHECK IS 'BACK-SEAT DRIVER'

Rep. Zioncheck is now a "back-seat driver." If that determined look on the face of his pretty bride can be taken seriously, Mrs. Zioncheck is seen holding firmly to the steering wheel at Miami Beach, Fla., after the fast driving of the Washington state representative on their honeymoon brought on several clashes with the police. (Associated Press Photo)

On June 1 almost 200,000 beneficiaries of HOLC mortgage advances will be called upon to pay the principal on their loans.

History suggests that Uncle Sam will come out on the short end. For years Congress has, under the be-laboring of borrowing diodes, reduced interest charges and postponed principal payments on reclamation and other government projects.

ICKES: President Roosevelt's bitter opposition to any curtailment of his $1,500,000,000 relief bill is understandable to those who have been let in on the background of the problem.

Mr. Roosevelt based his estimate on private figures furnished by the Mayors' Conference, and they are supposed to know the relief needs of their cities.

Mr. Ickes, however, has overnight become the administration's most popular figure on Capitol Hill, whereas a year ago he was the pet hate of Congressmen.

New York BY JAMES McMULLIN

DEALS: Colonel Frank Knox has 78 delegates to the G. O. P. convention lined up to date.

Those 78 votes, switched to Landon on the second ballot, might clinch victory for the Kansan.

We have previously reported that the Landon general staff is working on prospective trades whereby other candidates would be offered key posts in the Kansan's administration as a reward for dis-avowal of his handwagon at the proper time.

Nothing has jelled yet along this line—but financial insiders are watching developments closely. It wouldn't be the first time such deals have been made.

KEYNOTE: The quiet and skillful build-up of Senator Fredrick Steiwer of Oregon—preempted by men who are important behind the Republican scenes—included a visit to New York last week.

Th significant point about Steiwer's remarks was that he criticized the management of the New Deal instead of condemning it in principle.

especially stressed that the Republicans "will not repudiate the destitute nor starve those whose are in need."

This ties in exactly with the campaign attitude urged on the party by influential backstage leaders—reported in this column several weeks ago.

DESTINY: The Oregonian left the impression that he is a sound man with a good all around record. His votes for various New Deal features can be turned to his benefit by explaining that he was big enough to recognize the national emergency as transcending partisan considerations.

Shrewd G. O. P. observers figure that Steiwer could cause Roosevelt trouble by pulling many dubious Democrats—who like the ideas of the New Deal but not the way they have been carried out—into the G. O. P. fold.

Some of the highest Republican sources in New York say that Steiwer is the outstanding bet to see their man of destiny if Landon is stopped.

LIFT: One of RFC Chairman Jesse Jones' pet brainchildren has hit a couple of snags. His plan to dismember the bankrupt Minneapolis and St. Louis and distribute the pieces to seven other railroads is already under critical scrutiny by the Interstate Commerce Commission—which is none too fond of Mr. Jones.

It is now due to be tied up still more by a Senate investigating committee, headed by Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota. The inquiry was inspired by the protest of railway labor unions, which fear a large increase of unemployment as a result of the dismemberment.

TACTLESS: A New York banker just returned from Europe predicts that Hitler's next Austrian move will be an effort to reestablish the Nazi organizations which the Austrian government has been unable to suppress completely.

MURDERESSES CRY WORK, PRIMP, PRAY, SAYS MATRON Chicago (AP)—Murderesses cry, then they work and primp and pray, says Matron Mary Kennedy outlining the emotional routine followed by women slavers while they are being held in Cook county (Chicago) jail for trial.

Mrs. Kennedy has seen more than 100 murderesses come and go during her 25 years as matron in the jail. She says they all follow the same sequence of reactions.

PLACES BLAME UPON CITIZENS

Judge Says People to Blame for Lax Law Enforcement

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, May 8.—The people themselves are to blame for lax law enforcement here in Raleigh and over the entire state, and not the officers of the law or the grand jury, Superior Court Judge M. V. Barnhill of Rocky Mount, who is holding court here, said today.

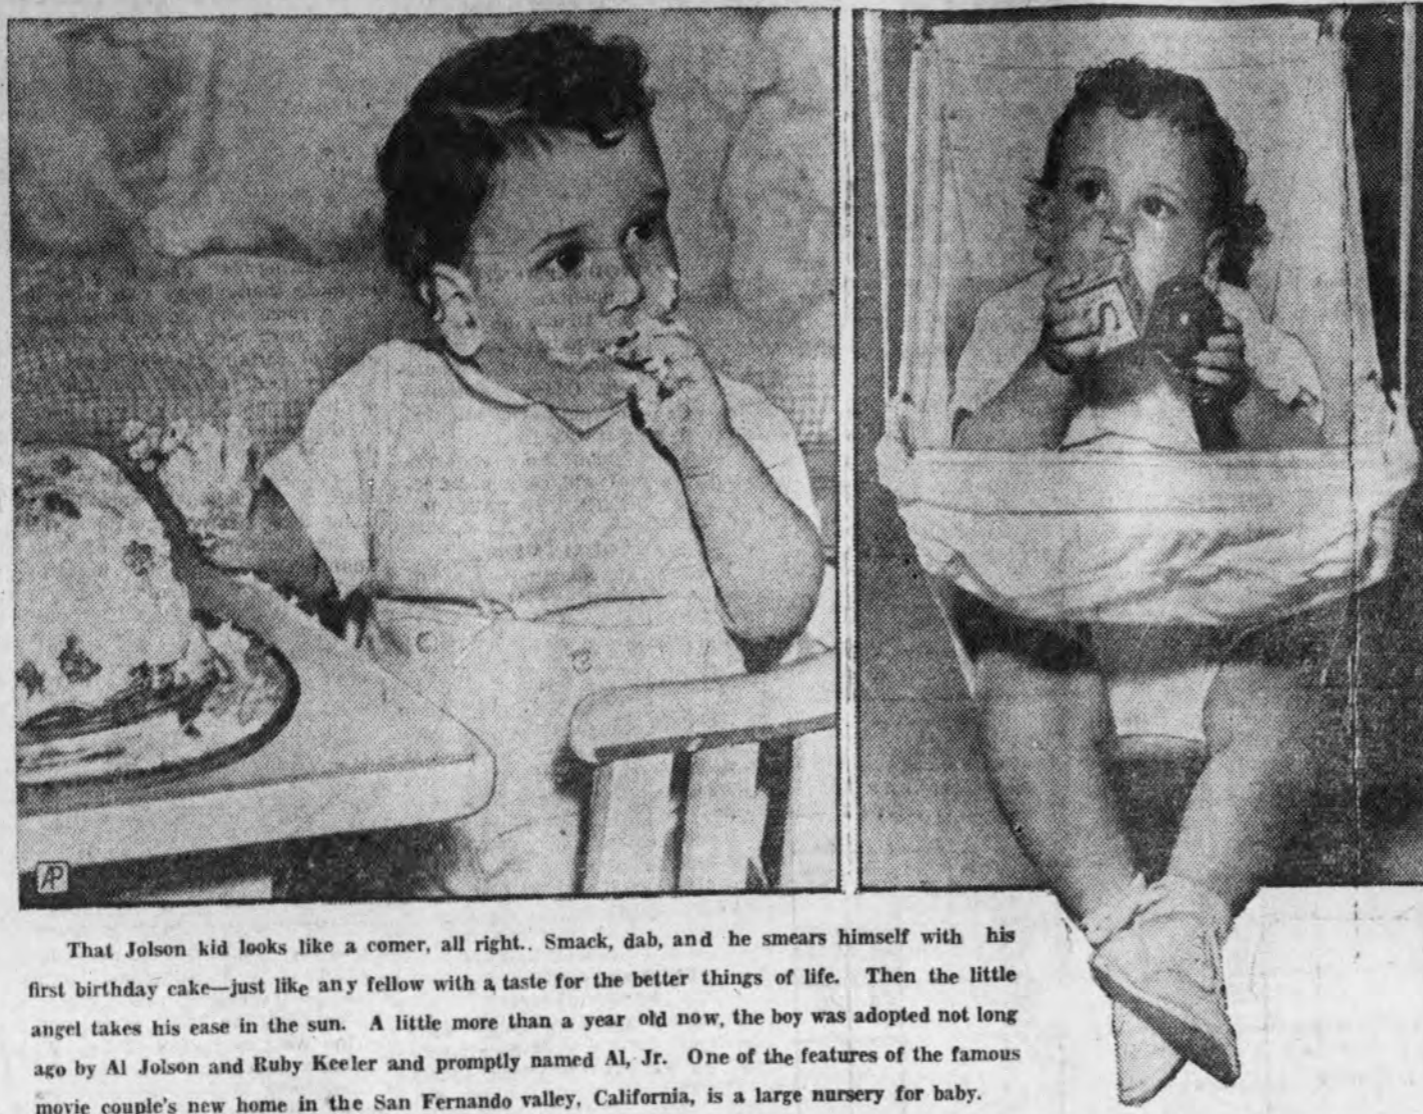

Several days ago he called upon the grand jury to clean up conditions here in Raleigh and Wake county with regard to slot machines, gambling, the sale of liquor, disorderly houses and so forth. The grand jury so far has not taken any action, but the reason for this is, he said, the fault of the grand jury but because citizens who have actual knowledge of conditions refuse to come before the grand jury and testify, Judge Barnhill says.

"A grand jury cannot return indictments unless people will come before it and testify as to violations of the law," Judge Barnhill pointed out. "The grand jury and officers of the law here in Wake county would have no trouble in cleaning things up in the county and in Raleigh if citizens who know of conditions would come before the jury or swear out warrants making specific charges. But they will not do this."

"Several days ago the foreman of the grand jury received a letter from a man complaining bitterly about some law violation, but when this man was asked to testify before the grand jury and to swear out a warrant, he declined to do so. That is why I say that the people themselves, by their refusal to give testimony before the grand jury or to swear out warrants, are much more responsible for whatever lax law enforcement may exist than the officers of the law themselves, who cannot act nor make an arrest without a warrant in many cases."

Judge Barnhill did take the situation with regard to slot machines into his own hands here Wednesday when he issued seizure warrants from the bench upon which the Raleigh police seized 66 slot machines of various sorts, before their owners could take them up. The owners of the slot machines did succeed in getting many of them removed before the police arrived, however.

JOLSON YOUNGSTER LIKES THE "FINER THINGS OF LIFE"

That Jolson kid looks like a comer, all right. Smack, dab, and he smears himself with his first birthday cake—just like any fellow with a taste for the better things of life. Then the little angel takes his ease in the sun. A little more than a year old now, the boy was adopted not long ago by Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler and promptly named Al, Jr. One of the features of the famous movie couple's new home in the San Fernando valley, California, is a large nursery for baby.

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, May 8.—Two state officials are in Washington today making a personal request for the National Park Service to take over the administration of Fort Raleigh on Roanoke Island, Dare county, where Sir Walter Raleigh established the first white colony in America almost 350 years ago.

These two state officials are Dr. C. C. Crittenden, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission and Director E. Bruce Etheridge of the Department of Conservation and Development. They are joining with Congressman Lindsay Warren of the First District in this request, as Rep. Warren some time ago asked the National Park Service to take over the control and supervision of the Fort Raleigh area.

The restoration of the old fort was started several years ago under the old CWA, was continued under the NCERA and is now being completed by the WPA, under the sponsorship of the Department of Conservation and Development. The fort as now being restored on the site where Sir Walter Raleigh's famed "lost colony" landed and built its fort and stockade, has already become a mecca for tourists and historians and people have been visiting it by the thousands for several years now. Time Is Extended for Peanut Farmers' Pay Sealed bids will be received until 11 o'clock, A. M., May 26, 1936, by the undersigned at its office in the City of Raleigh, N. C., for $75,000 Town of Greenville, North Carolina Street Improvement Bonds.

Raleigh, May 8.—The offer by the Secretary of Agriculture to pay growers for diverting peanuts into oil production has been extended from April 30 to May 10, 1936.

This offer is part of a peanut diversion plan designed to remove surplus peanuts from normal channels of trade and divert them into the manufacture of peanut oil, said E. Y. Floyd, of State College.

The rate of payment will be $21 a ton of Virginia type, $11 a ton for Spanish type, and $3 a ton for runner type peanuts, Floyd pointed out.

Slugs, Snails, Grubs Infesting Leaf Beds

These pests can be controlled by broadcasting over the beds a mixture of one pound of Paris green to 25 pounds of wheat bran, with enough water to moisten, said C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College.

The bait should be broadcast evenly at the rate of 10 to 12 pounds to each 100 square yards of plant bed, Brannon stated.

Be careful not to let any of the bait fall on the young plants, he cautioned.

Part of the work of American weather forecasting is carried on by 5,000 observers who have never received a penny of government pay.

Push Investigation of Robbery Of Bissett's

Local police officers were continuing their investigation into the robbery Wednesday night of Bissett's drug store, when a sum of money estimated at between $50 and $70 and possibly some minor articles were stolen.

Chief George Clark said his force was still seeking the thief, but so far had been unsuccessful in its efforts. He added, however, two negroes have been arrested for the robbery of the street stand across from the Edwards building.

FISHING GOOD ON N. C. COAST

Good Catches Frequent at This Time Of Season

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, May 8.—"They're biting!" This is the news going out from Manteo and other fishing centers in the northeastern coastal section of North Carolina—referring, of course, channel bass and other prized quarry of the fisherman.

Reports received by R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the Department of Conservation and Development and a native of this fishing territory, are to the effect that fishermen are having good catches usually contemplated at this period of the year.

As is the case during the late spring and early summer, fishermen from throughout North Carolina and visitors from many other states have flocked to the fishing centers along Oregon Inlet and Cape Hatteras which have gained a wide reputation throughout the country as one of the nation's most popular salt water fishing grounds.

Persons recently returning from that section report unusual business and sports activity as a result of the good fishing. Fishing guides, it is said, are in great demand and general business conditions have been stimulated materially.

Boatmen recall a long list of "yarns" from anglers last year such as the fisherman, aroused by the tales of successful catches, who cut off his shirt tail as a lure to the bluefish when he was unable to obtain the ordinarily more prosaic bait. He is said to have used his first bluefish landed by this means as bait and to have landed a catch reaching prodigious figures. Other tales rivaling this one have emanated from the same section, but really "they are said to be biting."

LITTLE 'GIANTS' MEET IN RING

Boxing fans are looking forward to the meeting of Tony Canzoneri (left), lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin (right), former welterweight titleholder, at Madison Square Garden, New York, May 8. Both are rated strong punchers and clever boxers. Tony will be giving away about 10 pounds but nevertheless was a slight favorite. (Associated Press Photos) swell afternoon this would have been for a round of golf!"

No matter how much McLarnin protests that he is coming back to fight Canzoneri because he still loves to fight, he is not at all convincing. No fighter who had any real zest for ring battles ever neglected the game the way McLarnin has in the past few years. He has had fewer than a dozen fights in the past five years. Since he won the welterweight title from Young Corbett in the first round in 1933 (his only fight that year) he has had three fights and all of them with Barney Ross. He battled Ross twice in 1934 when he lost and regained his title. He battled Ross last year for his only ring appearance.

Rarely Returns

It is quite evident that Jimmy comes back to the ring only on those rare occasions when he seeks to add a little to his fair-sized fortune. The chances are that he will continue to do so as long as he can command the huge sums he has drawn in the past.

He talks of going abroad and touring Europe, possibly taking part in one or two fights. He doesn't admit it, but you imagine he expects the European fight fans to pay his way. He intends winding up his tour with a battle in Australia. Very likely he will face Jack Carroll, Australian welterweight champion.

After that he is coming back to challenge the holder of the world's welter title—and thinks he can win it.

No harm in thinking.

Retired Steeplechaser, Aged 19, Gum-Shoes His Way Into Society

R.S.V.P. Billy Barton is getting an invitation from Mrs. Orville Wright to the Preakness Ball, May 15, the eve of the Pimlico turf classic's renewal. The famous steeplechaser of a decade ago will be shod in rubber for his ballroom debut.

celebrating the race of that name to be run the next day at Pimlico. He should feel at home among the dignitaries of turfdom and their guests, for he has met the best in the society race realm.

Met and Conquered

In his day, he not only met but conquered some of the most formidable contenders over timber and brush. It must be said, though, that he was on the running and not the riding end of these triumphs, for he is a racehorse, now 19 years old and retired after a notable record.

For that reason, he must wear heavy rubber shoes to keep his hoofs from scarring the ballroom floor. So attired, however, he will be led in for all the dancers to see and admire.

1926 Best Year

Those who know him best will recall that in 1926, perhaps his best year, he won almost all the worthwhile steeplechases in the United States. His victories that year included the Maryland Grand National, the Virginia Gold Cup, the New Jersey Hunt and the Meadowbrook (New York).

CHRIST NEEDED SERMON TOPIC

Dr. Murray Continues Series at Presbyterian Church

In his sermon last night at the First Presbyterian church the Rev. J. J. Murray, D. D. of Lexington, Virginia, speaking on "Zacchaeus, a Man Who Needed Christ," said that in this incident of Zacchaeus and Christ three things were revealed: "a great sinner, a great Savior and a great conversion. Though the very name Zacchaeus meant 'holy, pure, he was anything but that! Wealthy, a servant of Rome extorting his own countrymen, Zacchaeus was a despised outcast. In fact, the New Testament uses the word 'sinner' in reference to two kinds of people: those who are morally bad and those who were simply not just active church people. In the very deepest sense this man was a great sinner—just as many of us are—because he had a purse instead of a heart, being greedy and unjust. In fact, he had gotten into a bad job and that made it hard for him to be religious. Temperaments and circumstances do make it harder for some people to be Christians than for other people. Ministers and other religious workers should recognize that. But, such supposedly hardened individuals still retain a religious sense; they never so hard these men to settle things once and for all with their consciences! But when Zacchaeus looked at Jesus, even his religious curiosity turned to concern; he knew he was undone and his life was empty. Hence, to see the element of a great Savior. For Christ never comes to a human life bringing to that life a feeling of being undone without at the same time bringing forgiveness and peace. Whether it be a sin of the flesh or of the spirit or of complacency Christ—though He never fails to see the sin and though He never gives a word of excuse for sin—does change us from our sinning. He never sentimentalizes over a sinner, even though we may sentimentalize over ourselves. For Christ sees the infinite possibilities in human lives. Jesus has more faith in our possibilities than we can possibly have in ourselves!"

"These two elements—sin and a Savior—give us the result: a great Conversion. Of course conversions differ greatly. But if it is a real conversion it will have two aspects: a surrender and a change—a surrender in answer to His call and a change in our ways of living. There is usually a long preparation to each conversion—the good and the bad in our lives contributing to that preparation—but the decision comes decisively and suddenly. God's invitations are always time-limited. They are for now! It is not mourning over our sin that counts," concluded the preacher, "but moving away from it that counts!"

Tonight at 8 o'clock Dr. Murray will bring a message on "Love's Final Commendation."

No Place Like Home

Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, spends much time in her old birthplace despite her extensive travels.

Somerville, N. J., May 8—Be it ever so palatial there's no place like home to Mrs. James H. R. Cromwell, the former Doris Duke, who inherited the vast tobacco fortune of her father, the late James B. Duke, and came known as the richest girl in the world.

She may roam the earth, as she did after her marriage, tasting the fruits of wealth in foreign lands, but she always comes back to Somerville.

Here she enjoys a 30-room house on a 2,300-acre estate with its for-

New Craze For Bicycles 'Built For One' Develops Niceties Gay Nineties Missed

The cycling vogue which has swept the country has launched a new chain of sport clothes. The girl on the left wears a dark gray wool gabardine suit designed with a trim jacket and culotte (divided skirt). The little leather lunch kit over her shoulder is the same shade of luggage tan as her boyish felt cap and neckerchief. The costume on the right combines a dust tan wool culotte and a navy blue flannel jacket. The felt pancake beret matches the skirt.

ty-two miles of improved roads, its woodland glens where bronze satyrs and Greek athletes ogle bronze dryads, and a multitude of bass and trout, fearless of capture, frisk in the eight lakes and the winding streams.

Enlarging The Residence
Across the deep woods and rolling greenward the big bell in the tower of the house booms for hours, and now there is the sound of workmen's hammers and saws, for they are again enlarging the building. When the weather gets warmer the regular force of gardeners, farmers, woodsmen and others who keep the estate in order, here since her marriage and honeymoon. She has eleven servants. Mrs. Cromwell was born on the estate, lived here most of her life, and has spent many week-ends in the garage—it looks like an automobile show room, and its floor is covered with matting. Improvements of recent years include a swimming pool, 60 by 120 feet with underwater lighting effects; an indoor tennis court, and a lounging room where movies are shown.

Police On Guard
Two motorcycle policemen patrol the roads of the estate. Guards are always on duty at the entrances and the grounds are strictly private. The miles and miles of rustic stone fence cost James B. Duke $5 a cubic yard. There are marble statues in the house and other buildings; there are many fountains on the estate.

Should the Cromwells settle here for long periods at a time Somerville would react only slightly. The town has always known Mrs. Cromwell, regards her as democratic—before her marriage she and her mother used to go to the movies in Somerville—and is, on the whole, glad the estate is situated near the town. The firemen especially like the mistress, for every time they extinguish a fire—grass or chimney—on the vast acres they are rewarded with a check for $100.

Britain May Back Turkish Plea For Dardanelles Guns

By ROGER D. GREENE
London, May 8.—(AP)—Strong British support of Turkey's request for permission to fortify the Dardanelles, the 17-mile strait linking the Aegean with the Sea of Marmora, when the League of Nations acts on the case in May, is forecast here.

Suave Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, it is predicted, will seize on the occasion to administer a velvet-gloved slap at Hitler's world-defying method of treaty-scraping in contrast to the reasonable procedure adopted by Turkey's dictator, President Kamal Ataturk.

Where the Nazi leader deliberately challenged the Locarno signatories—Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy—by marching his troops into the demilitarized Rhineland, the Turkish dictator formally appealed to the League and to the signatory powers of the Treaty of Lausanne, under which the Dardanelles was demilitarized in 1923.

In his role as Europe's champion of diplomatic decorum, Eden may be expected to applaud Turkey's restraint in not restoring to the Hitlerian fait accompli method—i. e., hitting first and asking questions afterward.

Ataturk's moderation made a deep impression in British government circles, particularly since it followed a series of treaty ruptures, such as Germany's violation of the Treaty of Versailles in reintroducing conscription, March 16, 1935; Germany's violation of Locarno by remilitarizing the Rhineland March 7, 1936, and Austria's recent repudiation of the treaty of St. Germain by ordering conscription.

Today, Hungary and Bulgaria, alone of the countries "demilitarized" after the World War stand bound by treaty restrictions.

But Turkey has at least sought permission from the powers concerned—Britain, France, Italy, Bulgaria, Russia, Rumania, Greece, Yugoslavia and Japan—and informed quarters in London, express little doubt that her request will be granted if only as a reward for law-respecting procedure.

Eight-year-old Virginia Weidner modestly almost ripped her movie career in the bud. When Virginia was three, she refused to play a part because she had to remove her stockings in front of the camera.

Indication German Zeppelin Might Be Over Territorial Waters by Sunset Seen in Report

New York, May 8.—(AP)—The German zeppelin Hindenburg, on her maiden North Atlantic flight was nearing the shores of America today with a speed which indicated she might be over territorial waters shortly after sunset.

With her goal, Lakehurst, N. J., and a crossing time of 63 hours, a possibility, the Hindenburg was reported by Western Union at noon (EST) as only 680 miles east-northwest of Nantucket lighthouse.

A project for the re-surfacing of Evans street from Five Points to Third street was discussed, but no definite action was taken. The board has approved the work, not to cost more than $4,000. City Engineer Rivers is working on the proposal.

Alderman A. C. Tadlock, chairman of a special committee to investigate the possibility of securing an airport for the city, reported on the cost of such projects in other cities. He was instructed to continue his activities in this direction, but with the understanding the city itself did not have any funds to put up for the project. A. M. Moseley and J. Key Brown were added to a committee of citizens to see if an airport could not be secured with federal funds and public subscription.

A comparison was drawn, showing that during the past month $1,512.00 was collected from back paying assessments as against only $148 for the same month last year. A substantial increase also was shown in collections of back taxes during last month as compared with the similar period in 1935.

The city-county armory was brought up for consideration. J. H. Waldrop presenting correspondence from the Adjutant General of North Carolina as to the use of the building. The board agreed to dedicate the use of the armory to the local unit of the national guard provided the state agree to pay $70 rent each month. A stipulation also was inserted by the aldermen that the PWA complete the building as originally planned and contracted for.

The playgrounds committee was instructed to meet with a group of Rotarians to discuss means of providing playgrounds and other facilities for underprivileged children during the summer months. The meeting will be held in the High School library Tuesday night.

Upon suggestion of Alderman J. M. Tait the board asked that an investigation be made into the possibility of having all traffic light turned on stop for a brief period following a fire alarm so firemen would not be hindered in rushing to the blaze.

Two additional projects in the street improvement program were put on file. They were for paving Contentnea street from Third to Fourth, and laying a curb and gutter on Charles (sometimes known as College) from Tenth to Fourteenth street, the latter the New Bern highway. The board expressed a desire to make the street 36 feet wide and appointed a committee to investigate such action and see if the Highway commission would not build a 16-foot hard surface road, with the city to broaden it when and if it can in the future.

The street committee was instructed to investigate the feasibility of enacting a zoning law for at least some of the main streets in the city. Several members expressed a desire to have such a regulation put on the statute books but no definite action was taken.

Alderman Hobgood called attention to trucks speeding through the city, especially at night, and asked if something could not be done to curb the dangerous practice. Members agreed it was a serious problem and indicated the habit would be called to the attention of police officials with instructions they see if something can not be done to curb it.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 8.—(AP)—There were scattered strong spots in today's stock market but the list as a whole seemed unable to find solid recovery footing.

The news, including that from abroad, tended to accentuate the wariness of most traders. The thinness of many issues and the dullness of dealings helped to becloud trends.

The late tone was irregular. Transactions approximated 1,000,000 shares.

NEW JERSEY ANGLERS CAN'T FAIL IN STOCKED POOLS

Newark, N. J.—(AP)—One of the most effective antidotes for empty creels, fishermen have found, is a quiet visit to one of the trout "pools" scattered in the vicinity of Pompton Lakes in New Jersey.

These small ponds are stocked abundantly with brooks, browns, rainbows, natives, steelheads, and landlocked salmon that can't escape.

Anglers don't even need a fishing license. The initial fee of $1 takes care of that and also for the first 20 "inches" of trout taken. Afterward fishermen may take all the trout they wish at five cents an inch.

Licensed by the state and obtaining their fish from the state hatcheries, the "pools" have developed into a real trout paradise. The fish snap at flies, spinners or garden hawks.

Full licenses are guaranteed by the proprietors. "Juvenile" pools also are operated for children being initiated into the art of whipping a fly-rod, the charge being five cents for every fish taken. If desired, tackle and bait are furnished gratis by the management.

Fire Loss Estimated At $925 During April

The monthly report of the Greenville fire department, issued last night by Chief George Gardner, showed that only three fires occurred in the city during April. Only one of these caused any material damage.

The largest fire of the month, and also of the year, was that of the residence of W. W. Moore. Damage was estimated at $925, the full loss for the month.

Total loss for the year was estimated at $1,296.
