ITALY ENVOYS QUIT LEAGUE, LEAVE GENEVA

Delegates Maintain Reborn Empire Permits No Meddling

LEAGUE COUNCIL CONDEMNS ITALY

Diplomatic Break Is Seen Between Great Britain and Fascist Over Sanctions

Rome, May 12.—(AP)—A high fascist official indicated tonight that the Italian delegation's departure from Geneva meant an effective if undeclared policy of non-cooperation with the League of Nations until Italy's new empire is recognized.

Geneva, May 12.—(AP)—Europe's crisis deepened tonight as the Italian delegation left Geneva by order of Premier Mussolini and the League of Nations Council declared "there is no cause" to mediate measures taken against Italy.

These measures are the sanctions declared by the League as a result of what the League declared to be the unprovoked aggression against Ethiopia.

Shortly before the council's action, Baron Pompeo Aloisi and the entire Fascist delegation left the city. They carried with them the secret of Premier Mussolini's hasty instructions of recall.

Nevertheless many League observers believed the move was a prelude to a complete Italian break with the League over the question of the crushing and annexation of Ethiopia.

(By Associated Press) Italy's delegates to Geneva, maintaining their "reborn" Afro-European empire permit of no League of Nations meddling, announced today they were going home.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, apparently on orders from Premier Mussolini, informed the league secretary general of his intentions.

Just previously leading league council members had drafted a tacit condemnation of Italy's annexation of Ethiopia. The resolution, product of a midnight meeting at which Italy was not represented, stated the council needed time to reflect on a proper course.

Just what the sudden Italian decision meant was not immediately clear. Even Baron Aloisi, II Duce's number one diplomat admitted: "I do not know."

In Rome reliable sources said a diplomatic break between Italy and Great Britain could not be avoided if the British continued to press for sanctions at Geneva.

Dino Grandi, fascist ambassador to London, was reported under orders to try and make Great Britain "like" the Ethiopian annexation.

In Ethiopia fascists hinted the coronation of Victor Emmanuel as Emperor of the primitive country might take place at the holy city of Aksum.

Clinic Being Held For Tuberculosis Throughout Pitt

Citizens Wishing To Take Advantage of Free Examinations Still Can Secure Appointment

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county health officer, said today any person wishing to take advantage of the free tuberculosis clinic being conducted in the county this week could register now and receive the examination.

The clinic started Monday morning in this city. Today the examinations are being given in Farmville. The clinic will move to Ayden tomorrow and return to this city Thursday and Friday.

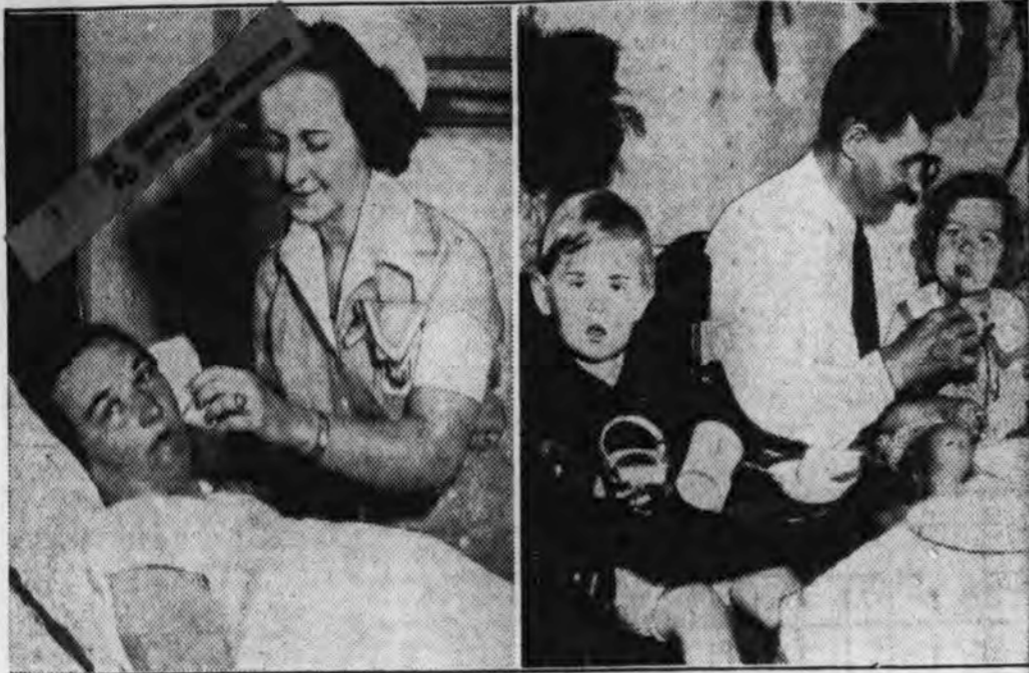

Dr. Ennett said the clinic so far had been encouraging and many citizens had taken advantage of the free examination.

Anyone interested in taking the examination may do so by having his or her physician make the request of the health department for an engagement. Children are accepted without any previous engagement, but adults are required to make an appointment.

The clinic is free except where an x-ray is required. In such instances a special rate has been arranged for persons able to pay for the extra service. Indigents will be given the entire examination without cost.

Barks from many common trees produce dyes having good color fastness and may be used on wools and other materials.

THEY'RE THE PARENTS OF NEWEST 'QUADS'

New Jersey's new quadruplets, Frances, Frank, Ferdinand and Felix, gained weight on their medicine-dropper diet as their mother, Mrs. Ethel Kasper (left), was in a Passaic hospital recovering from her extraordinary ordeal and the mayors of two cities petitioned the state government to give financial aid to the father, Emil Kasper, $22 a week railroad worker. He is shown (right) feeding his other two children at home during the absence of their mother. (Associated Press Photo.)

SEEKS LARGER RELIEF GRANT

Senator Hayden Asks Extra Grant For PWA Projects

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—Senator Hayden (D-Ariz.) today introduced in the Senate an amendment to the $2,364,229,712 relief deficiency bill to appropriate an extra $700,000,000 for the Public Works Administration.

The bill as it now stands carries $1,425,000,000 for work relief as well as items for social security and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

In a speech, Hayden said PWA has 6,204 applications from states and local subdivisions for grants and that 2,976 of the projects suggested have been approved.

He claimed that under his amendment more grants could be made to carry out more of the remainder of the original 6,204 applications and that "with $700,000,000 the Public Works Administration can bring about over $1,500,000,000 of new construction but the final cost to the federal taxpayers will be less than half of the $1,500,000,000."

Democratic Opposition to Frazier-Lemke Farm Debt Refinancing Measure Opens up in House

Cooley Maintains Refinancing Bill Is Fantastic Scheme

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—The Democratic opposition opened up on the Frazier-Lemke farm debt refinancing bill in the House today when Representative Cooley (D-N. C.) asserted its effect would be to "bait out" banks and insurance companies to the extent of their bad mortgages.

The House, he said, is being asked to "follow some fantastic monetary scheme which is advocated not by the administration, not by the farm credit administration, not by the Republican leaders, but by the Republican leaders who seem for the moment to have taken over the Democratic House."

A few moments earlier Representative Lemke, co-author of the $3,000,000 measure had taken the floor to describe the bill as strictly non-partisan and to deny that it would mean inflation.

A member of the agriculture committee, Cooley said he came from one of the greatest agricultural districts in the country and as a congressman his first love and duty was to the farmer. But he said not a single farmer in his district had written him a letter asking him to support the bill.

Kidnaper of Alice Speed Stoll Taken in California

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—(AP)—Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., was brought here by Department of Justice agents by airplane today from Glendale, Calif., where he was captured as the kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, Louisville society matron.

Robinson, whose confession of the $50,000 kidnaping of Mrs. Stoll October 10, 1934, was announced by J. Edgar Hoover landed at the municipal airport here at 11:21 (EST).

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—The government checked the last big name from its list of hunted "public enemies" today as a flying squad of justice agents sped Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., to Louisville, Ky., to stand trial for his part in the brutal kidnaping of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll.

In a coup at Glendale, California, last night J. Edgar Hoover's men seized the pasty-faced youth with a penchant for dressing in women's clothes and checked his past that included terms in a college and two insane asylums.

The 29-year-old Robinson, often called the "lone wolf kidnaper," surrendered without firing a shot, and was hustled aboard a plane bound for Louisville. There Federal Attorney Bunc Gardner announced that he would seek the death penalty and fight any defense plea of insanity.

Mrs. Stoll, wife of Berry Stoll, wealthy oil man, was slugged with a lead pipe before being taken from her home in the $50,000 kidnaping in the fall of 1934. The Federal law provides a death penalty when a victim suffers bodily harm.

The seizure of Robinson was the climax of an 11-day campaign of swift raids in which Federal agents scooped up Alvin Karpis, Harry Campbell and William Mahan. There are other names remaining on the hunted list, but none rating the fateful prominence of "public enemy number one."

Episcopal Diocese Of North Carolina In Annual Session

Bishop Edwin A. Penick Oppens Convention in Historical Emmanuel Church at Warrenton

Warrenton, N. C., May 12.—(AP)—Bishop Edwin A. Penick today called on the Episcopal diocese of North Carolina to return to development of the church in the rural field and warned the "old conception of the mission of the church needs to be deeply restudied and reevaluated."

Bishop Penick's address opened the 120th annual convention of the diocese in historic Emmanuel church, a business session for nomination of church officers and reports of committees followed.

Bishop Penick said the church for years "has been practicing economy" and warned it is false economy and an unwise policy.

Arrest Two Boys For Operation Of Illegal Syndicate

Two Youths Held Under Bond For Robbing Meat From Farmers and Selling it to Various Markets

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst today announced the arrest yesterday in Washington of two young white boys charged with operating an illegal meat syndicate, stealing meat from smokehouses and selling it to various markets.

Sheriff Whitehurst said the syndicate had been in operation for some time in Pitt, Beaufort and Bertie counties. He added, however, he felt with the arrest of J. T. Phelps of near Windsor and Tebo Whitaker of Williamson the operation would cease.

The officer said he had been working on the case some time, but had been unable to catch the operators. He said he was given a clue recently by a local market which led to the arrest of the pair.

Sheriff Whitehurst said he located about 300 pounds of stolen meat Saturday night and spent yesterday in Washington seeking the two offenders. The two youths are being held in jail in default of $500 bond each.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

SOUR: The House investigation of the Townsend movement has blown up as far as saving seats for anti-pension Democrats and Republicans is concerned.

The inquiry, as Whirligig has pointed out, was framed to discredit the gray doctor's scheme and thus save the scalps of the politicians who have battled it inside and outside the House. But it had the opposite effect. It made the Townsendites mad at their self-appointed protectors, and started pilgrimages to Washington by the old

THWART PLANS TO CONFISCATE PIN MACHINES

Court Restrains City Officers from Taking Devices

CLARK REFUSES ANNOUNCE AIMS

Order Halting Confiscation of Pin Ball Machines Is Returnable May 30

Temporarily blocked in their efforts to purge the city of slot and pin machines and other such devices by a temporary restraining order signed last yesterday by Judge Walter L. Small in Beaufort county, officials and others interested in removing the devices from public places declared today they would continue their fight on the operation of such machines in the city.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst announced this morning that he would start a drive on the machines at 6 o'clock this afternoon, but by early afternoon the sheriff had been added to the defendants restrained from taking such action and it appeared that all officers were barred from molesting the devices until after a hearing on the temporary restraining order.

The temporary restraining order is returnable before Judge J. Paul Frizzle in Snow Hill on May 30.

Whether the order restrains police officials from arresting operators of the machines or merely prohibits them from confiscating them was controversial today and Chief George Clark said he preferred not to make any statement at the present time on his next move.

Chief Clark issued a warning yesterday, giving the operators until tonight to remove the machines from public places. Distributors of the devices retaliated by securing the order restraining the confiscation of the machines.

In his warning yesterday Chief Clark cited sections of the state law he contended branded the machines illegal and added they were a public nuisance and were demoralizing to the youths of the city.

Mayor M. K. Blount said he was wholeheartedly behind Chief Clark in his efforts to rid the city of the machines. The mayor said the situation "has gone entirely too far," and reiterated that the police chief was working strictly in accordance with his wishes in regard to the problem.

Dr. Alban Papineau of the State Sanatorium, who is conducting a tuberculosis clinic in the county this week, will be a guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Pitt County Medical Society, to be held at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night at the Episcopal church parish.

Ministers Lend Aid To War On Machines

Members of the Greenville Ministerial Association in regular monthly business session, this morning, passed the following self-explanatory resolution:

"The members of the Greenville Ministerial Association, having viewed with some concern the undesirable conditions brought about by the operation in various public places of non-vending slot-machines of different types, expresses its appreciation of the efforts of Police Chief George Clark to eliminate this evil and pledges him the support of its members in this work. The members of the association request information as to ways in which they may further assist the authorities in this matter."

Up To Congress To Provide Method To Raise Revenue

Capital Hill Sources Say President Informed Senator Harrison Task of Determining Means Provide Money Up To Congress

Washington, May 12.—(AP)—Capital Hill sources said today President Roosevelt had informed Senator Harrison (D. Miss.) that it is up to congress to determine the tax methods of raising the revenue he has requested.

The chief executive conferred with Harrison yesterday after the senate finance committee had indicated clearly it favored a revision of the house bill to tax corporations on the basis of their undistributed profits.

Harrison, chairman of the committee, would not discuss the conference. It was learned, however, the chief executive did not insist upon the House bill and told the Senate leader that the important thing in his mind was to raise $620,000,000 in permanent revenue and $500,000,000 through temporary levies.

It had been reported in Senate circles that the President would be willing to accept a bill retaining the present corporate tax structure with a sur tax on undistributed corporate income.

As this development became known, increasing the likelihood of a major revision in the House bill, Vice President Garner and Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, called at the White House. The purpose of their visit, however, was made known immediately.

Simultaneously the finance committee unexpectedly reopened public hearings to hear Secretary Wallace strongly urge enactment of the proposed 80 per cent "windfall" tax on refunded processing taxes.

Wallace also urged the committee to put in the bill the processing taxes which President Roosevelt recommended, but which were left out of the House bill.

Zeppelin Sighted Along Route On Return Flight

RELEASE VOTE FOR WEEK-END

Main Fight Narrows Down to Second High Candidate

Voting over the week-end in The Reflector's five county poll, in connection with the statewide gubernatorial poll being conducted by 25 newspapers, indicated that the main fight is narrowing down to a struggle between Hoy and Graham for second place in the first primary while McDonald continues to gain a lead over the two candidates. Already with a clear majority in the five counties as shown by the last tabulation, McDonald added further gains during the week-end when he received 36 votes to 9 for Hoy and 7 for Graham. McDonald again failed to receive any of the votes.

Graham continued to be a favorite in Beaufort county six of his seven votes coming from that county. In Beaufort, however, McDonald ran a close second to Graham with five votes while Hoy received but one in that county.

Bertie continued to favor McDonald giving him five votes to four for Hoy and none for the other candidates. Hyde County gave McDonald four votes to one for Hoy. Martin county gave its entire support to McDonald in the week-end voting with six votes for him and none for the other candidates. In Pitt County McDonald received 16 votes to three for Hoy and one for Graham.

The Reflector is conducting the poll in co-operation with 24 other North Carolina newspapers and on next Thursday the second tabulation of the votes to date in the 100 counties of the state will be published. Last week's statewide tabulation showed McDonald far in the lead lacking just a few votes of having half of all those cast in the state. In the eastern section of the state he had a clear majority while in the west he had a plurality over the other candidates.

Supporters of Hoy and Graham contend that it will be a different story when this week's tabulation is published predicting that McDonald's lead will be greatly cut down. On the other hand McDonald supporters declare that he is gaining strength and that the week's tabulation will likely reveal that he has gained the necessary 12 per cent to give him a majority of all votes cast in the state so far. The answer to this question will be answered in The Reflector Thursday afternoon when the second statewide tabulation will be published. On each succeeding Thursday until the June 6 primary a statewide tabulation will be published.

Persons who have received The Reflector ballots are urged to mark them and place them in the mails at once in order that the poll might show the true trend of thought on the subject of the gubernatorial race.

Here's how the candidates stand in The Reflector's five counties based on all votes received up to this morning:

Table with 4 columns: County, Mc-Donald, Hoy, Gra-Mc-Rae. Rows: Pitt, Beaufort, Bertie, Hyde, Martin.

Total vote cast 444. McDonald majority 72.

SEAWELL SAYS ABC HOLDINGS SUBJECT LEVY

Holds Ad Valorem Tax Should Be Paid On Liquor Stock

BUILDINGS ALSO SUBJECT TO TAX

Ruling Would Allow Municipalities And Counties to Collect Taxes from Boards

Raleigh, May 12.—(AP)—Attorney General A. A. F. Seawell ruled today that Alcoholic beverage control boards, stocks and buildings, if owned by the boards, are subject to ad valorem taxes of municipalities and counties.

Seawell said "it is probable that the supreme court, if a case would come before it involving the taxation of stock and property of ABC stores, would say that they are subject to tax" in reply to an inquiry from J. M. Aldridge, tax collector at La Grange.

Pointing to two recent decisions on taxes on property of municipalities Seawell said "as in all other cases where a dispute seems to be made from settled doctrines by decision of the Supreme Court the material is still in some doubt as to the extent to which the decisions may be applied."

He added it was his opinion the property used for the sale of liquors and the stock of liquors are "not protected from taxes on the theory that it is the property of a municipally used for governmental purposes."

Patrolmen Attend Divisional Session Held Here Monday

Thirty-Eight Patrolmen, Captain Charles D. Farmer and Other Officials at Meeting

Thirty-eight patrolmen, Captain Charles D. Farmer and Miss Caravan, title official in the Raleigh office, Lieut. Lester Jones, head of the Eastern division of the patrol force, and Miss Thelma Exum, clerk in the division headquarters here, attended a meeting of the State Highway patrol force in this division held here yesterday.

Captain Farmer stressed the importance of the patrolmen being on the highways as much as possible. He said each man's report would show the fatal accidents in his respective section and added each fatal wreck would be charged against the patrolman in whose territory it occurred.

Captain Farmer warned patrolmen of participating in any manner in politics, advising the officers they would be subject to suspension if it is discovered that they were taking any active part in behalf of any candidate for any office.

Miss Caravan explained to the patrolmen some errors in titles for automobiles and instructed the officers in regard to the new forms of titles—for new, used and out-of-state automobiles.

Lieut. Jones was in charge of the meeting, a regular divisional session. Thirty some odd counties are included in the Eastern division of the force, with headquarters located in this city. The divisional meetings are held at various places in the district, however.

Reflector-Pitt Party Registered Big Hit

Boxes of candy furnished through the courtesy of Charles O. H. Home Drug Company were presented the oldest mother present and the mother who traveled the greatest distance to attend the theatre party. The prize to the oldest mother went to Mrs. Susan McLawhorn, of Winterville, while the distance prize went to Mrs. C. W. Rivenback, of Pnetops, who traveled 25 miles to attend the party.

THE SLOT MACHINE FARCE

Yesterday a local police order was issued to the effect that all slot machines of any kind in Greenville must be removed from operation by tonight. Shortly after the order was issued Judge Walter L. Small of Elizabeth City, signed a restraining order returnable before Judge Paul Frizzelle on May 30, which means that the local officers cannot touch the machines at this time and they are permitted to continue operation.

Recent failure of the courts here to bar the machines from operation followed by a restraining order when the police tried to do their duty to the community, makes the situation here very similar to that described in the following editorial from the Statesville Daily:

The claim is made that some of the machines which various judges all over the State have outlawed, are not gambling devices but games of skill, and it seems that the last Legislature left the gap down here, without properly differentiating between skill and chance.

Over and over again the operators and distributors have been haled into court but action there has not been carried to the Supreme Court for final determination. The issue is in a fair way to get there now because considerable value is tied up in Raleigh and it is about to be destroyed, which means that the owners of these machines will seek to stay the destruction by appeal.

Delay in final construction of the law serves the distributors' purpose almost as well as if the bars were down. And their boldness and audacity almost parallels the stupidity of the legislative body in failing to build a law that is hog-tight.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

TARDY: But the real story for the failure of Congressional rebuff of this crusade is short and simple—lack of political courage! When the $200-a-month pension movement assumed threatening proportions six months ago, economists in all sections of the country began to excavate it and examine it. They turned out scores of tracts demonstrating to the average mentality that it would ruin the nation, and force a comparative few to work for the 8,000,000 or 10,000,000, who have passed the age of 65. Copies of these dissertations were offered to members of Congress with the idea that they should disillusion Townsendites with facts and figures. There were almost no takers for the offers, the members depending on luck or expediency to pull them through next November.

But when the flood of Townsend mail continued, they got frightened. They authorized the Bell investigation. It has been a complete flop. But if the 100 members are defeated next fall, they will have nobody except themselves to blame. They realize that now.

CHOICE: Major changes in the Navy Department are foreshadowed by the President's private decision not to supplant the aged and ill Secretary Swanson or fill the assistant vacancy caused by the death of Henry L. Roosevelt. It is understood that Mr. Roosevelt,

Chapter 18
AMATEUR DETECTIVE
HOPE did not come down to breakfast, and Rupert had already left when Dirk, later than usual, started for the office. Dirk, having, with mixed motives, taken on himself the office of spy, visited Rupert's room before leaving, as he had visited Hope's the night before.

Hope might safely have brought the gems back with her, but he had no way of looking in the carbox this morning. There was a chance that Rupert had them now. In that case, he knew where to look.

He found the jewel-box in the inner drawer of Rupert's desk, the strand of pearls lying loose beside it, the contents intact. Hope's companion had not robbed her, nor permitted her to be robbed.

Hope, herself, when he saw her this evening, seemed much the same—a bit tired, for, as she explained, she had been shopping again. She and Rupert had lunched together. They had also looked at cars, and they had a disagreement regarding them. Rupert wished her to have a town-car and a chauffeur. Hope wanted a coupé, and to drive it herself.

"What do you think?" Rupert asked Dirk at dinner.

Dirk was in favor of the chauffeur. Hope's eyes met his with the shadow of surprise. Apparently she had expected him to take her side.

She had shown no inclination to confide in him, though there had been opportunity. Before dinner Dirk had sat with her in the library. She had shown him the guitar she had bought that day, had played and sung for him. He would not soon forget the picture.

He had not known the room could be so beautiful. The presence of Hope had seemed to draw out its latent colors, to warm and kindle it. And now she filled it with song.

Her voice had for Dirk the disturbing quality of her eyes. A rich voice, liquid and warm and deep. She sang plaintive things, a little dark-haired Lorelei, in a blue dress, in the freight. Dirk had not lost the vision, the song, lure him to complete forgetfulness.

He said, when she had stopped singing, and sat plucking cords, looking at the fire—said with every intention of disturbing her: "I saw you last night."

She gave him her swift dark glance, and he added, "At 'The Black Swan.' You looked wonderful."

Her eyes had gone back to the fire. She asked, "Was that Isabel beside you—the one in pink?"

So she had seen him, too. And who had told her about Isabel? Rupert, no doubt.

Yes, it was Isabel, he said. "She wants to meet you. I waited around last night after I got home. Wanted to ask what you thought of the play. You must have got in first."

She said that she was not sure. At any rate, she had been sleepy, and had gone straight to her room. Which was no doubt true.

RUPERT came in the library then, and must be shown the new guitar, must be sung to. She sang again in Spanish, the most tender, the most passionate of all her songs. Her eyes moved now and then to Rupert's face, ecstasy and pathos in her glance.

Rupert liked the song. He asked what the words meant.

"It is a song," she said, "about a little turkey."

Rupert affected indifference. If Hope wanted to be entertained, he had, he said, no objection. Dirk knew that they would go. Later, alone with Rupert, he brought up the subject of the car.

"Hope probably knows nothing about driving in New York. I'll find the right chauffeur, if you like." Rupert was glad to be relieved. He agreed that Hope was safer with a chauffeur.

"It's the formality he wants," Dirk thought. "So much the better." By Saturday Dirk, who had had no difficulty in tracing the green taxicab finally found its driver at home. He and another lad drove the cab for a man in Harlem.

The day driver had been easy enough to find, but the night driver appeared never to take time for sleep. Dirk caught him, however, a toughened bachelor with no memory for dates or places. Dirk, who had discovered this lack by obscure processes learned at the bar, finally said:

"Suppose I told you that last Monday morning at exactly three o'clock you wrecked my car, parked in Lockett Street in Brooklyn. I'll say you didn't know it, since you were going so fast, but here's your number."

Three o'clock was the moment when Dirk, detained by a red light, had seen the green cab vanish in the direction of East River. But the driver could be forced into no enlightening alibi.

"Well, suppose you told me," he remarked. "I'd say see the cab-owner, or the bonding company."

Dirk replaced the notation of hour and number in his pocket. "Since you recall the accident..." he observed.

"I don't recall no accident. I run this cab all over Long Island, New Jersey. If I remembered things I'd go nuts. You see the bonding company?"

Dirk said that he would, and left, calling himself a sorry detective. Had he roused the man's suspicions? He could not tell. Certainly the man had increased his own. It had been no casual taxi that Hope had signaled.

RUPERT had bought a fashionable town-car that morning, and Dirk went from the cab-driver's house to call on Genevieve, his one-time nurse. Genevieve had married a moderately successful plumber. A widow now, she lived in the Bronx with her son Martin, a steady, clean-eyed lad of twenty-one.

Martin and Dirk had played together as children and often in the last two years Dirk had ridden out of his way to turn in at the garage where Martin worked and have the boy look at his gas or change a tire. It was Martin he had in mind when he promised Rupert to find the right chauffeur.

Martin could hardly believe his luck at the prospect of work in Mister Dirk's family. Dirk knew his love and loyalty, and while Rupert might find some fault with his youth, Dirk knew, too, that Martin's skill with a car, his good sense and habits, and perhaps most of all, the appearance of his fine young figure in the Joris livery would have their effect.

When Genevieve had gone out he gave Martin a brief version of the situation. Mrs. Joris, without her knowledge, was to be guarded and protected. Martin, also without her knowledge, was to make careful note of what places she visited, or whom she took into the car. These were to be reported to Dirk. Mr. Rupert Joris was in no way concerned.

"You are doing this for me. And you are to keep absolutely quiet. You are also Mrs. Joris's chauffeur, and at her command. You will be paid for both jobs."

Martin said that he understood, and believed that he did. It was, he considered, like the job of a friend of his, chauffeur and guard to a child whose wealthy father had received threats from kidnappers. Mister Dirk had no doubt got wind of some such conspiracy against his sister-in-law.

"You can depend on me, Mister Dirk."

Martin, Dirk felt, was enough for the daytime, but a chauffeur at her command, or not, nothing was to prevent Hope from making nocturnal excursions in a taxi. If she felt so inclined. He therefore stationed two detectives near the Joris gates at night.

Dirk knew that Hope had not been out at night since Monday, except in Rupert's company. He had himself kept watch. Now he could sleep.

Hope passes, tomorrow, through a difficult situation.

In fact, Mr. Ickes begged the President not to give an official endorsement to the anti-Horner crowd, prophesying that it would embarrass the administration. Mr. Roosevelt took his advice, as he did when several non-politicians urged him not to attack Forelle LaGuardia in New York's 1933 mayoralty campaign. Thus two politically important states—New York and Illinois—may be swung to Roosevelt because he didn't swallow the suggestions of the practical politicians but listened to a liberal goo-goo.

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN
VETO: A New Yorker who was an important figure in the Hoover administration and still maintains friendly contact with his former chief which eliminates Ogdin Mills was recently discussing G. O. P. presidential possibilities with a top-flight business executive.

Said the Hooverite: "There's one man we especially want to stop." The industrialist thought of course he meant Landon. But it developed that he was talking about Vandenberg, whom he characterized as "unstable." That's a fair enough description from the Hoover viewpoint. The Michiganian certainly didn't set any rivers on fire supporting Hoover in '32. Less prejudiced observers think "political realism" is more accurate. They figure that Vandenberg's coolness towards his party chief was due to a practical realization that Hoover's ship was sinking and a justifiable unwillingness to go down with it.

But the important inference is that Hooverite opposition may well wreck Vandenberg's chances at Cleveland. The ex-President's convention influence should not be underrated. Of course he won't be nearly strong enough to dictate a nominee but is likely to have an effective veto power.

GROOMED: Here's how the best-posted New York insiders appraise the form chart in the G. O. P. presidential sweepstakes at present. Prospects are rated on the basis that Hoover and Borah will each be able to wield a wicked axe on candidates they don't like.

Landon: Miles ahead of the field, but seriously weakened by his showing in California and South Dakota. Probably opposed by Borah, almost certainly by Hoover. Handicapped by critical indifference of eastern leaders. Believed out of luck unless he can win over important enemies and neutrals by backstage swaps. This could happen.

anti-Roosevelt elements in New York in the past couple of weeks. Two recent rays of light have penetrated the prevailing gloom.

One was the Democratic protest vote rolled up by Colonel Henry Breckenridge in the Maryland and Pennsylvania primaries—small in itself but heartening as a symbol. Of course it is hardly a secret that a lot of Democrats don't like FDR. But somehow the tangible evidence is comforting and gives the Republicans fresh hope that an attractive candidate and a well-conceived platform will lure several million Democrats into their army.

STIFFENED: Inside comment on the recent U. S. Chamber of Commerce sessions is revealing. As we noted at the time, President Harper Sibley tendered an olive branch to the administration at the earnest request of important business interests. It made no discernible impression on the New Dealers and it was not well received by the rank and file of the Chamber's membership. This was attested by the belligerent nature of almost all the subsequent speeches.

We have remarked before about the frightened attitude of big business men confronted by the possibility of political reprisals and the Democratic efforts to capitalize on it. This doesn't apply to heads of small and medium-sized businesses. They don't scare so easily—probably because they aren't nearly so vulnerable. The Chamber is essentially an organization of little fellows—which accounts for its refusal to trim its sails.

Most of the Chamber membership plainly intends war to the hilt with the New Deal regardless of what comes after. And the little fellows' forthright attitude is having quite an effect in stiffening the spines of their big brothers.

Negro Education Day Set For Next Friday
The program for Education Day, to be held at the Greenville Negro High school building Friday, May 15, was announced today by W. T. Murphy, district supervisor.

SPOTLIGHT ON BIG CAMPAIGN

Governor's Race Overshadows Other Elective Offices

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, May 12.—Less interest is being shown by the public generally in the contests for the various elective state offices than in years, due to the very great interest in the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor, according to comment heard here from almost every section of the state.

The prevailing opinion expressed by most observers is that the race for Governor is holding the spotlight to such an extent that most of the voters do not know or care who are opposing each other for the nomination for the minor state offices, with the possible exception of the race for Lieutenant Governor.

This decided apathy and lack of interest in the other state contests is causing considerable argument as to whether it will prove favorable to those now in office seeking renomination, or to the new candidates who are seeking to oust the old office holders. The prevailing belief seems to be that it tends to favor the present office holders who are seeking renomination, if for no other reason than that they are better known to the voters. It is agreed that for the most part there is an entire lack of interest in the contests for the lesser offices.

The contest for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor, between State Senator W. P. Horton of Pittsboro, Chatham county; State Senator Paul D. Grady of Kenly, Johnston county and former State Senator George McNeil of Fayetteville, Cumberland county, is agreed to be more spirited than any of the minor races. One of the reasons for this is that the Lieutenant Governor, as President of the Senate, appoints all of the senate committees, and thus is in a position to exercise more influence on legislation than the Governor.

Negro Leaf Planters Use Home Fertilizer

Burlington, May 12.—Some of the Negro tobacco farmers in Alamance county like their home-mixed fertilizer so well they will not use any other kind.

"It is cheaper and gives better results," said one farmer to J. W. Jeffries, negro county farm agent of the State College extension service.

They call it "Mammy Made" fertilizer. Jeffries pointed out, and this year at least 35 negro farmers will home-mix 100 tons or more of "Mammy Made" tobacco fertilizer.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.
"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on May 10.

The golden text was from Isaiah 2:22: "Cease ye from man, whose breath is in his nostrils; for wherein is he to be accounted of?"

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "And be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. (Eph. 4:23-24).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The real man is spiritual and immortal, but the mortal and imperfect so-called 'children of men' are counterfeiters from the beginning, to be laid aside for pure reality. This mortal is put off, and the new man or real man is put on, in proportion as mortals realize the Science of man and seek the true model."

May 23rd Poppy Day.
Poppy Day will be observed in Greenville this year on Saturday, May 23rd, when memorial poppies to be worn in honor of the World War dead will be distributed throughout the city by the members of the Pitt County Unit of the American Legion Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary women are making extensive preparations for the observance of the day under the leadership of Mrs. Alex Viola, Poppy Day chairman.

The poppies, made of crepe paper by disabled veterans, will be offered from the Auxiliary Unit and co-operating organizations. Members of the Auxiliary and "poppy girls" will distribute the flowers in the business district throughout the day, and will also work in the outlying shopping centers. Contributions for the welfare of the disabled veterans and needy families of veterans will be asked in exchange for the flowers.

"Wearing the poppy is a personal tribute to the men who gave their lives in the country's service. By having a poppy on the coat on Poppy Day, all can show that they still remember and honor the sacrifices made for America during the World War. The poppy is the flower which bloomed on the battle fields where they fell and on Poppy Day it blooms again over the patriotic hearts where they are remembered.

Wearing the poppy also gives the wearer a part in the vast work carried out by the American Legion and Auxiliary for the war's living victims; the disabled, their families and the families of the dead. Every penny contributed for a poppy goes to the support of this work, the bulk of the money being used here in Greenville in the welfare activities of the local Auxiliary Unit.

MRS. EVANS AT COLLEGE HERE

Director of State Employment Service Delivers Talk

Mrs. May Thompson Evans, director of the State Employment Service, and R. C. Atkinson, of the social science research council of Washington, were luncheon guests at the college today.

Mr. Atkinson is here to study the local set-up of the State employment service.

Mrs. Evans spoke to the students of the college this morning and declared, in part:

"Under an appropriation allotted by the 1935 Legislature the North Carolina State Employment Service came into being in July, 1935, as a unit of the State Department of Labor, operating under the principle of matched funds authorized by the Wagner-Peyser Act, details of conformity with the Federal Act were completed and affiliation with the United States Employment Service was accomplished in September, 1935. Revision of organization on a basis of consolidation operation of the State Service with the continued National Reemployment Service (Federal emergency agency) was undertaken immediately, and a state-wide organization based on the fundamentals of continued and permanent service was put into shape. Special service is given to veterans through the activities of a State Veterans Placement Representative, and through all offices.

The assignment of people with relief status to WPA jobs has been only the emergency activity, the State Employment Service has had before it the objective of developing the Service towards its normal function, that of connecting the applicant with the job in private industry with the least possible lost motion. The chief claim of any applicant for a job is his qualification for the job, and the Employment Service in meeting the needs of private employers of labor must prove its ability to supply competent workmen upon demand.

The ground-work has been completed. The state is divided into fifteen districts, with competent managers in each district. Through branch offices and itinerant staff members in District Offices, the Employment Service carries its facilities into the 100 counties of the state.

Offices are centrally located and accessible. Members of the staff are being schooled in their duties to the end that the service will be professional. This effort to professionalize the Employment Service is not always or fully understood. The applicant for employment is not an indigent seeker of charity. He is a self-respecting member of society legitimately seeking the guidance of a central effort to aid him in a laudable enterprise, that of finding congenial employment.

It is toward private employment that the Service is now directing its main attention. It is equipped to meet the needs of employers and employees alike in bringing together the applicant and the job with the maximum expedition and the most careful selection.

Full development of the opportunities of private placements, however, requires education of the public in the use of this instruction. Concerted effort toward public education is now underway. With the increased demand for labor attendant upon the growing recovery, encouraging progress in placements in private industry may be expected during the next few months.

With a network of accessible offices throughout the state and nation, the uniform system of classification and registration recording in detail the work history, primary and secondary occupations of each applicant seeking employment or a change of employment gives us for the first time a full knowledge of what our employment problem in this country actually is, and definitely reveals specific employment adjustments which must be made in solving some of the complexities of our present economic order.

For instance, an impressive percentage of registrations with the Employment Service comes from people under 25 years of age. This group is large enough to command special attention. Many of these young people are without work experience. Figures show that 45.3 per cent of all women registered and 46.6 per cent of all men registered fall into this group. In the light of these facts, this morning, at the Washington Duke Hotel here in Durham; organizations having to do with vocational guidance, training, and placement of youth, met and pooled their resources in a common effort to approach this problem of youth along a united front. The problem of youth is only one of the many employment problems of our industrial and urban life. The problem of the worker over 45 years of age presents another acute problem, and there are the problems of various handicapped groups. To three special groups the Employment Service through affiliation agreements has extended its facilities and financial aid to the latter two:

1. Bureau of Vocational Rehabilitation.
2. Placement Service for those with Defective Sight.
3. Bureau of Labor for the Deaf.

Rotarians Are Behind Plan to Aid Underprivileged

By WYATT BROWN
The Rotarians were presented with a strong appeal for taking interest in good music last night when addressed by Mr. Louis Bullock at the Monday night meeting of the local Rotary Club. The speaker sustained his appeal with the relation of how he had come to love music—good music—after a filing at jazz, acting and radio. He outlined his plans for an Eastern Carolina Symphonic Choir in the tradition of the famous Westminster Choir which choir inspired Mr. Bullock's present enthusiasm for good music. He said good music is a "wondrous magic link with God" and touches the soul.

Then Rotarian Fleischman presented the report of the special committee appointed to cooperate with the other civic bodies in Greenville to prepare for the leisure time of underprivileged children in the town during the summer. He reported that the superintendent of the City Schools, June Rose, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore of the Woman's Club, Captain Bates of the Salvation Army, School Board of the Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce, Board of Aldermen and the Ministerial Association had been approached and had offered to cooperate. All have been called for a meeting at the high school tonight at eight o'clock to make definite plans.

"The whole community must be interested if the task is to be accomplished," the speaker said. At this point a letter from K. Futrell, County Welfare Officer, was read, setting forth:

"For your information I desire to quote you the Juvenile Court record of Pitt County for delinquent children during the months that we had swimming pool, baseball and other outside attractions in progress during last summer. From June 1st until October 1, 1935, we only had seven delinquent cases in our court. For almost two months we did not have a single delinquent case appearing in Juvenile Court from Greenville Township. These months were July and August, 1935. Our Boy Scouts and the league baseball and the swimming pool were timed activities touching different elements of our youths that practically solved our delinquency problems during that period.

I hope you will push this idea and I shall be delighted, as well as J. F. Harrington, Judge of the Juvenile Court, to lend any assistance the movement the Rotary Club is sponsoring.

The Ministerial Association is planning definite action by putting on the Daily Vacation Bible School he announced. He indicated the various play fields, the swimming pool and so forth and then indicated that the conferences held so far have convinced those interested that it will be much better to have all the summer plans made through a central committee; thus affording a definite program from the time school closes for the summer until it reopens in the fall. He reassured the Rotarians that it can be done without any great money outlay. He closed his report by saying he wanted to bespeak the cooperation of the Rotarians and that he did not seek money backing alone.

On the motion of Kinchen Cobb the meeting time was extended to hear from a distinguished guest and native son of Greenville, Dr. Johnny Humber of San Francisco, California. Dr. Humber responded with brief remarks commending Greenville on its fine hospital and capable doctors in charge and then paid tribute to the old family doctor. He told the Rotarians that it was gratifying to see Greenville progressing and he commended them on the fine spirit which they had shown in dealing with the underprivileged children's problem.

Prior to the speakers little Miss Dorothy Davenport entertained by singing a popular song in the caudate manner of strolling among the diners as she sang. Guests of the club were Rotarian Thomas Carter of Washington, Dr. Papineau, who holding a tuberculosis clinic in Pitt County this week Dr. Johnny D. Humber of San Francisco, and Mrs. B. F. Bullard. The program was presented by Charles Horne of the Vocational Service Committee. "Happy" Watson won the attendance prize given by Johnny Overton temporarily to the special committee on Underprivileged Children due to the forced temporary inactivity on the committee of Gus Fleischman. Bill Lee Club president presided.

The most important measure for the control of house flies in any program is the elimination of breeding places.

Ayden Homecoming Day Set for May 21

Ayden, May 12.—Ayden and community is expecting a big homecoming and get-better-acquainted day on May 21. Every organization of the town is extending to everyone throughout the state an invitation to come and be with them on this Festival day.

Sponsoring this event are the Masons, Red Men, Junior Order, Rotary Club, Jesters Club, Boy Scouts, Town of Ayden, Parent-Teachers Association, Senior Woman's Club, Junior Woman's Club, Eastern Star, Choral Club, and others.

The day has been set apart as a get-together day. It is expected there will be large crowds present, and all attractions will be free, no charge for any admittance. Starting early in the afternoon, there will be a mammoth parade, floats of many types and kinds, from different sections. Immediately after the parade there will be an open-house entertainment on the high school lawn. The parade will be led by brass bands and various kinds of music furnished throughout the entire program, in an effort to make the occasion an enjoyable one for everybody.

At night there will be crowning of the Queen, and stunts by clubs from Ayden, Goldsboro, Greenville, and Kinston.

Everything points to an event of pleasure for everyone who attends. Ayden, being located in the heart of the bright-leaf tobacco belt, is 9 miles south of Greenville, 18 miles north of Kinston—a town with beautiful paved streets, water and lights, good churches and schools, fine business establishments, banks and other enterprises—all of which

Dr. Daniel B. Ryan of Wake Forest College will make the commencement address at the Belvoir-Falkland High School Thursday evening, May 21, at 8:00 o'clock. Principal Newman Lewis has announced.

Dr. Bryan for the past 15 years has been dean of Wake Forest College and the popular director of the Wake-Forest-Meredith Summer School which, due largely to his unstinted efforts, has enjoyed a steady growth even during the depression years. Last summer, there were over 700 enrolled, quite a number of whom were from Pitt county.

extend a welcome to everyone to come and spend the day in Ayden, on Thursday, May 21.

It is hoped to have prominent speakers for the occasion and representatives from the leading state papers present to witness the occasion. It is promised that everyone attending this May Festival will enjoy themselves, and not regret having visited the town. No admission charge is being made for entrance to any of the attractions, as it is simply given for the benefit of all Carolinians and other visitors, this community wants to know others better, and have them know us better.

Federal Agency Has Interest In Tenants

Raleigh, May 12.—The Resettlement Administration is particularly interested in establishing farm tenants on land of their own, according to J. M. Gray, Assistant regional director of the administration. In addressing the staff conference of the State College extension service yesterday, he explained a farm tenant project the administration is carrying out in Johnston, Wayne, Sampson, and Perder counties. From 100 to 150 tenant families will be placed on farms running from 40 to 80 acres in size, he stated, and given from 20 to 40 years to pay for them.
