DRY WEATHER IS DAMAGING TOBACCO CROP

Other Southern States Report Serious Droughts

HOPES HELD FOR SCATTERED RAIN

Indications Are Tobacco, Cotton and Potato Crops Will Be Seriously Hurt

Raleigh, May 19.—(AP)—Frank Parker, federal state crop reporter, said today "very dry" conditions in Piedmont and Eastern North Carolina counties were damaging crops and seriously affecting tobacco, cotton and potatoes.

Lee A. Denson, in charge of the weather bureau here, said Raleigh's rainfall in three showers since April 12 was only .63 of an inch, though some other parts of the state have had more.

"In the east truck, cotton and tobacco crops are suffering," Parker said. "The indications are that the tobacco and potato crops will be definitely affected for the summer, though how much is hard to say yet. Cotton in many instances has been planted, but the seed has not germinated properly and that may come through all right."

"In the Piedmont small grains are maturing and the dry spell is having its material effect. How badly it will affect other crops there can not yet be figured."

Denson held out hopes for scattered showers in many sections of the state late today and tonight.

SOUTH CAROLINA CROPS SUFFERING FROM DROUGHT

Columbia, S. C., May 19.—(AP)—G. C. Merchant, federal meteorologist, said today drought condition in Georgia are "pretty serious and gradually becoming worse."

Except for a few southern counties no substantial rains have fallen in more than a month.

The northern half is in the worst condition especially the clay sections. Merchant said, "Corn and cotton planted there can't sprout a single root."

TRUCK FARMS SUFFER FROM DROUGHT IN VA

Richmond, Va., May 19.—(AP)—Virginia truck farmers said today general rains were necessary to halt destruction of early plantings.

Henry Aylor, state agriculture statistician, said the Eastern shores strawberry crop which brought $1,500,000 last year has been cut in half already by the "drought."

"While much damage has been done to truck gardens and farms," he said, "the weather of the next week or so will determine whether it will react severe proportion."

District Rotarians In Annual Meeting

Winston-Salem, May 19.—(AP)—Fifty-seventh district Rotarians opened their convention here this morning with three addresses, a message from District Governor Cleveland Thayer and nomination for new district governor, Chase Idol, High Point banker was re-elected treasurer, a position he has held several years. Balloting for general will be held this afternoon. Nominees are Edmund H. Harding of Washington and Major W. A. Graham of Kinston.

HOENZOLLERN MEMORIAL PUSHED BACK IN BERLIN

Berlin (AP)—Another relic of the Hohenzollern regime was relegated to the background when the marble statue of the kaiser's first consort, Empress Augusta Victoria, was moved from the Tiergarten center, where it has stood for 30 years, to a pergola at the back.

The life-size statue shows the empress in the close fitting dress fashionable about 1900, with a large brimmed hat, much appreciated by birds as a roosting place.

The ex-empress died in exile at Doorn in 1921, age 62. The next year, the ex-kaiser married Princess Hermine of Reuss.

High School Season

Professor R. C. Deal of the E. C. T. C. faculty and one of the most outstanding speakers in the state, is experiencing his busiest season of the year. Mr. Deal is much in demand as a commencement speaker and has taken on a heavy schedule. (Photo by Manning).

He has gone to Alliance, in Pamlico County, where he will deliver the commencement address tonight. On next Friday night he will speak at the closing of the school at Pollockville. Next week he has two engagements for commencement addresses at Central High School near Elizabeth City and at Bath. Last night he spoke at the close of the Grifton high school, substituting for Dr. Adams, who was unable to attend.

Early in the month he was a guest speaker at the Junior-Senior banquet of the Princeton High School in Smithfield, and at a meeting of the Four-County Home Demonstration Agents and Clubs held in Robersonville. Last week he spoke at the Junior-Senior banquet of the Grimesland school.

GERMAN CRAFT AVOIDS STORM

Aboard the Zeppelin, en route to America—May 19.—(AP)—Swinging south of a storm area over the Atlantic, the big Zeppelin Hindenburg picked up speed today with a possibility of reaching New York late tonight on its second flight from Germany.

Except for one sudden squall yesterday which tilted the ship's nose broke dishes and frightened some passengers, the voyage proceeded with smooth monotony.

Captain Ernst Lehmann in command of the craft, told the passengers at dinner the unusual weather conditions being encountered on the flight involved no danger.

McKay radio reported the Hindenburg's position at 4 a. m. (EST) as about 970 miles, straight east of New York.

Texas Representative To Speak in Raleigh

Raleigh, May 19.—(AP)—Representative Marvin Jones of Texas, chairman of the house committee on agriculture, will be the principal speaker here Thursday night at the Raleigh chamber of commerce's annual "farmers night."

Congressman Jones will be introduced by Representative Harold D. Cooley of this district.

Three More Bogus Bills Found Here

Three more counterfeit $10 bills were detected by the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company here today according to announcement made this afternoon. Two bogus bills of the same denomination were detected by the bank authorities yesterday.

The announcement said that the bills, although good imitations, could be detected through the quality of the paper being used by the counterfeiters. The public is warned to examine closely any $10 bills that are tendered them.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington
By RAY TUCKER

LULL: One of the nation's smartest politicians predicts that Gov. Landon will be the Republicans' presidential nominee. The prophet is Franklin D. Roosevelt.

There are private indications that the President was not indulging in wishful thinking when he confided this bit of news to a few close friends. The Democrats' research bureau — some call it the "smear gang" — is concentrating on the Kansas Governor. They are not trying to dig up material on Candidates Hoover, Hoover, Dickinson, Vandenberg, Hoover, and Fish. Kansas newspapers on file at the Congressional Library have become popular and enforced reading for the Michelsonians, whose compilation under "L" grows fatter every day.

If Mr. Roosevelt is right, he'll have a head start in the campaign. He will be able to open up immediately with a full-blown attack on his opponent. Democratic orators and propagandists can obtain advance speeches from headquarters. Which means that there will be no usual July-August lull in the campaign this year.

ALIBI: Confidential reports from the field are giving a headache to administrators of the new AAA soil-conservative program. It will not curtail production and maintain high prices on farm products.

HINTS CLEVER 'SABOTAGE' IN FEDERAL PLAN

Secretary Testifies Power Applications Held Up

DENIES CHARGES OF UTILITIES

Refutes Contention P.W.A. Seeking To Seize Illegal Control of Power

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes hinted in the District of Columbia Court today that "clever sabotage" in the public works administration may have been responsible for delay in power projects allotments.

As a result of this delay, Ickes told the court, he set up a power division to expedite consideration of loans and grants for municipal electric plants.

He testified in defense of the constitutionality of the $200,000,000 PWA power program, which has been challenged by four utility firms.

"Whether or not there has been some clever sabotaging in my own organization," Ickes said, "I felt that the power applications had not been getting an even break. They had been retarded in one way or another."

He denied the contention of the utility companies that PWA was seeking to seize illegal control of intra-state power production.

The private power companies are asking an injunction to block PWA allotments for ten municipal power projects scattered throughout four states.

The power companies contend that PWA is unconstitutional and that it has no authority to finance local electric plants.

Strike of Mexican National Railway Employees Fails

(Copyright by Associated Press)
Mexico City, May 19.—(AP)—A strike of 48,000 employees of the great Mexican National railways collapsed today under resolute counter action from President Lazaro Cardenas's administration.

Leaders of the strikes, who walked out at 5 p. m. (central standard time) yesterday demanding higher wages, ordered the workers back to their posts at noon today after the government declared the strike unjustified and "non-existent."

A personal appeal by the President, who cited "unmistakable proof of my intention to fight for the betterment of the working classes," was believed to have gone a long way toward ending swiftly the short-lived movement.

The government central conciliation and arbitration board warned the workers if they failed to return within 24 hours they would lose all rights under present collective labor contracts and the railway management would be free to hire new workers.

Bottling Company New Headquarters Best To Be Found

Recently Completed Plant Constructed at Cost of More Than $50,000 Is Big Asset to City

M. O. Minges, owner, and the entire city have reason to be proud of the Orange Crush Bottling company plant here, said to be the best south of Washington, D. C.

The recently completed plant was constructed and equipped at a cost exceeding $50,000. The Dickinson avenue building, the framework of which is strictly steel, is one of the most modern available. The equipment also is considered to be latest.

Eller Funeral To Be In Wilson Tomorrow

Funeral services for William "Buddy" Eller of this city will be held from the home of his sister, Mrs. Russell Braswell, in Wilson tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Rev. J. A. McIver, Greenville minister, will aid in conducting the services. Burial will be in Maplewood cemetery, Wilson.

Eller, about 30 years old, died in a Goldsboro hospital yesterday morning from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Eller of this city; three brothers, Bernice, Busby, and Tommie Eller of this city; and six sisters, Mrs. Braswell, Mrs. Dick Peacock and Mrs. Lottie Ella Jones of Wilson, Mrs. Carl Winders of Warsaw and Mrs. A. AS TOWNSEND LEFT FOR INQUIRY

A house investigating committee today began a probe of activities of Dr. F. E. Townsend and his plan for paying $200 monthly pensions to all persons over 60 years of age. Dr. Townsend is shown boarding a plane in Los Angeles en route to Washington for the investigation. (Associated Press Photo).

House Committee Begins Townsend Investigation

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—The present administration was described today by Dr. F. E. Townsend as "the hostile force" behind the House committee investigating his old age pension.

Before a crowded committee room the retired California physician emphasized the "unfriendly attitude" of the committee and denied assertions that he started the Townsend movement to "make a hateful use of money" or for the sole purpose of obtaining cold cash.

His statement that his followers "feel like I do about the two old parties" and that a third party would be organized "as soon as the opportunity presents itself" was applauded by Townsend witnesses in the audience.

In tracing the administration as "the hostile force" behind the investigation Dr. Townsend said that the situation made necessary a recent appeal for a "defense fund" to be spent at his discretion.

"We need millions to carry on a movement like this and we are going to get them," the witness said.

At the outset Rep. Tolson (D-Calif.)—Townsend committee member, protested the line of questioning by James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, but Tolson was overruled by Chairman Bell.

Sullivan read into the record a letter from Dr. Townsend to Robert E. Clements, former national secretary, which said:

"You and I have the world by the tail on a downhill pull on this this if we work it right."

McDonald Continues Add To Straw Vote Majority

Washington, May 19.—(AP)—Post mortems on the old Guffey coal control act and moves to create a new one occupied the capital today amid the din of clashing statements on yesterday's court decisions.

New Deal officials gathered with some coal operators and mine union leaders to draft a substitute bill. Observers understood it would contain some price regulation clauses.

The Supreme court, in its opinion demolishing the old act did not commit itself on any attitude toward price fixing if enacted separately from wage, hours and other wage regulations. The labor clauses were definitely outlawed.

The decision raised speculation as to the fate of other legislation, notably the Wagner labor relations act regulating employee-employer relations in many industries.

Disputes continued as to the scope of a district of Columbia court of appeals decision bearing on the resettlement administration. Attorney General Cummings said the only features held invalid were certain model housing projects such as the one at Bound Brook, N. J. Opposing attorneys argued the whole $275,000,000 agency, headed by Rexford G. Tugwell, came within the scope of the invalidation.

Resettlement officials, however, indicated that most of the agency's manifold activities, including the transfer of farm families to better land, would be continued, it was made plain that WPA and other relief activities financed like the resettlement administration from the $4,880,000,000 relief appropriation of 1935 would go on.

Mass Meeting Called to Organize Plans to Keep Slot Machines Out of City

Preceded by a parade led by the High School band from the school down Fifth street to Five Points, thence to the Court House, a mass meeting will be held in the county seat building tonight for the announced purpose of permanently removing slot and pin machines from the city.

The meeting, to be called at 8:00 o'clock, will be presided over by Mayor M. K. Blount and Judge M. V. Barnhill will be the principal speaker. Bruce Sugg also is scheduled for a talk. It is expected the meeting will take the form of a round-table discussion, with various interested persons expressing themselves on the question of ridding the city of the machines for good.

It was indicated today a permanent law enforcement league will probably be formed out of the session.

Resolutions to be presented to the meeting have been drawn up by a committee headed by Rev. W. A. Ryan.

The mass meeting grew out of a preliminary session last week following the signing of an order temporarily restraining officers from confiscating pin machines. The order, signed by Judge Walter Small is returnable before Judge J. Paul Frizelle in Snow Hill Saturday, May 30.

A steering committee making plans for the meeting has announced that it is seeking to have the order heard in this county and at an earlier date than originally scheduled.

Chief George Clark said today the city practically has been cleared of the machines, but leaders of the mass meeting expressed the opinion that unless some concerted action is taken the devices will be replaced at public places as soon as the subject quieted down.

Judge Barnhill considered one of the most bitter foes of the machines on the Superior court bench, was invited to attend the meeting and he immediately accepted the bid.

McDonald Continues Add To Straw Vote Majority

Dr. Ralph McDonald was the big favorite in The Reflector five county poll over the week-end receiving 27 of the 42 votes cast. The other 15 votes went 8 to Hoey and 7 to Graham with none for McRae. Again Graham led in the voting in Beaufort county receiving 3 votes to 2 for McDonald and none for Hoey. Pitt county gave McDonald 14, Hoey 7 and Graham 2. Graham received his second vote so far from Bertie county while the week-end voting gave McDonald two more from that county. Hyde county gave McDonald 5 to one for Hoey and none for Graham. Martin county gave McDonald 4 and Graham 1, with none for the other candidates. The week-end voting increased McDonald's clear majority in the five counties to 90.

The Reflector in co-operation with 24 other North Carolina newspapers is taking a poll of the state on the gubernatorial race and The Reflector is polling Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Beaufort and Hyde counties. Already two tabulations of the vote in the 100 counties of the state have been published and another such tabulation will be published Thursday between now and the June 6 primary. The newspapers are conducting this poll in an impartial manner and hope upon the results of the voting of these straw votes to accurately predict in advance how the voters will cast their ballots on June 6.

The Reflector, since the poll was begun, has mailed 2,500 ballots into the counties it is polling. To be counted in the poll all ballots must be returned to The Reflector before May 28. Persons who have received the ballots and still have them in their possession are urged to mark them and drop them into the mails at once.

The tabulation of the votes received by The Reflector so far from its five counties follows:

Revival Is Being Conducted at Memorial Baptist Church

"Carrying Your Corner of the Sheet" was the subject of the second of the series of sermons delivered by Dr. John W. Ham, last night, at Memorial Baptist church. A fine audience was present as the services of the week-day evenings was begun, and all present felt the inspiration of the singing of the fine old gospel hymns led by Rev. L. R. Ennis, of Farmville. This feature of the services will continue, as well as special musical numbers during the course of the week.

Dr. Ham used as the text for his message, "and they come unto him bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four." Mark 2:1, 2. In part the speaker said, "Jesus had returned to Capernaum. His arrival was quickly heralded through the village. People began to flock in from every direction to the place where he was speaking. He could not be hid. His presence is like the odor of Magnolia blossoms. It spreads to all parts of the house. Jesus was the greatest sensationist the world ever saw. He never did anything for the sake of a sensation. There was nothing cheap or superficial in his actions. The thing He did, however, created a sensation. Wherever there is life there is sensation. The opposite of sensation is stagnation and death. He preached the word unto them."

Scrap Tobacco Law Probable In S. C.

Columbia, S. C., May 19.—(AP)—The South Carolina House of Representatives gave second reading approval today to a bill to place a prohibitive tax on dealers in scrap tobacco.

The bill was avowedly intended to outlaw scrap tobacco dealers.

The representatives have before them a senate bill for a uniform tobacco crop limitation agreement in the Southeast, but did not get to act on it.

The bill would tax scrap tobacco dealers $1,000 for each county in which they operate.

Annual Is Dedicated To Josephus Daniels

The theme of the "Tecora" the yearbook of East Carolina Teachers College which has just come from the press, is "Historic Eastern North Carolina" and it is dedicated to Josephus Daniels, with this inscription under his picture:

"The Tecora of 1936 is respectfully dedicated by the students of East Carolina Teachers College to the United States Ambassador to Mexico, Honorable Josephus Daniels, who has devoted much of his time and talents to the upbuilding of Eastern North Carolina."

The theme is carried out by the presentation throughout the book of the pictures of buildings that are landmarks in towns in Eastern North Carolina with an inscription under each that ties it up with colonial history. The pictures are of old Market House in Fayetteville, the old Church at Bath, the home of John W. Stanley in New Bern, the Cupola House, and the Hayes House in Edenton. The major part of the book is devoted to pictures of classes, campus life, personalities, and activities.

Ambassador Daniels will deliver the commencement address this year on June 1.

Rotarians Vote Sponsor Local Orthopedic Clinic

The Greenville Rotary Club voted unanimously and enthusiastically last night to become the sponsoring organization for an orthopedic clinic in Greenville to serve Pitt and all other Eastern counties. This vote followed the clear, forceful presentation by Rotarian Thomas Ennett of the need, opportunity and necessary steps.

This does not assure the establishment of a clinic but satisfies one of the conditions cited by the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation in their correspondence with Dr. Ennett, the County Health Officer of Pitt. It is the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation that has the placing and supervision of such clinics in charge.

"Carrying Your Corner of the Sheet" was the subject of the second of the series of sermons delivered by Dr. John W. Ham, last night, at Memorial Baptist church. A fine audience was present as the services of the week-day evenings was begun, and all present felt the inspiration of the singing of the fine old gospel hymns led by Rev. L. R. Ennis, of Farmville. This feature of the services will continue, as well as special musical numbers during the course of the week.

Dr. Ham used as the text for his message, "and they come unto him bringing one sick of the palsy, which was borne of four." Mark 2:1

LONG'S WIDOW UNLIKE HUBBY

Wife - Successor To Kingfish Abandons Senate Feud

By PRESTON GROVER
Washington — The voting record of Mrs. Huey P. Long indicates she has no disposition to carry on the relentless battle her late husband fought with the administration.

She has voted, for the most part, as administration leaders have voted. Quietly disposed, Mrs. Long has had nothing to say about any pending legislation.

There are instances where it is very apparent her vote went contrary to the way Mr. Long would have voted. In retrospect, it appears certain he would have opposed the motions by which Majority Leader Robinson killed the two Republican amendments to the Vandenberg resolution asking reports on AAA benefit payments.

One would have required a statement of all WPA employees appointed outside the civil service, and the other would have directed a mild investigation into the Resettlement Administration.

The tabling motions by which they were killed automatically shut off debate, a procedure which was anathema to Mr. Long. Mrs. Long voted with Mr. Robinson.

It has been said at different times that she follows the administration, or that she follows the lead of Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the elder woman senator, or that she heeds the voice of Senator Overton of Louisiana, a Long organization man.

A check of roll calls on questions that might be considered important shows that she has disagreed twice with Majority Leader Robinson, once with Mr. Overton, and twice with Mrs. Caraway.

Mrs. Long obviously is enjoying her term in the senate amid the genteel flattery of her fellow senators. Washington's public knew little of her while her husband was alive.

Her term will end this year as Allen Ellender has won the Democratic nomination for the next term which in Louisiana is tantamount to election.

Kindly British
London (AP)—As a special treat to American schoolboys coming to England for the Henley regatta in June, the Henly town council has offered free use of its hall for the visitors' college board examinations, June 15-20. Several overseas crews are expected, including Kent School, winner of the Thames cup in the 1933 regatta.

Thank You, Please.
Bournemouth, England (AP)—Senorita Anita Lizana of Chile, who has been playing in the British hardcourt tennis meets here, is improving her English by frequent visits to the movies. Her knowledge of the language is still somewhat sketchy, as a sports writer discovered when, in declining a drink, she said: "Thank you, but I am not drunk. You are so kind."

Pennsylvania, once regarded by hunters as "shot out," today is one of the largest producers among states of all kinds of game. Deer were so plentiful that a special 1935 open season was declared, with permission to shoot does.

Aviation Jamboree.
Berlin (AP)—A world champion ship contest in stunt flying and an international airplane rally will be staged here July 30-31, in connection with the Olympic Games.

Ernst Udet, German war ace, is given an excellent chance for victory in the stunt flying.

Eliminations will be held at the Rangsdorfer airfield near Berlin, with winners to meet for the finals at the enlarged Berlin airfield.

Both the contest and the rally are sponsored by the "Aero-Club of Germany."

VETERAN SLEUTH SEEKS STAMP COUNTERFEITERS

Austin, Tex. (AP)—Retired after 16 years of work for the federal government, A. H. Rebenstish of Dallas, is reentering the field of sleuthing for counterfeiters, this time for makers of spurious Texas liquor stamps.

Rebenstish, wounded as a Rough Rider and given a secret service post by his former commander, President Theodore Roosevelt, once tracked bogus $100 bills over America and Europe.

Schoolboy Kangaroo.
Kansas City, Kas. (AP)—Seventeen-year-old Jack Buckman, with one more year of high school ahead, is the envy of college track coaches since he high-jumped 6 feet 5 at the Kansas Relays carnival. A week later he leaped 6 feet 4 to win another title. Five feet 11-1/2 inches all and weighing 160, he was high scoring forward at the Kansas interscholastic basketball tournament last winter.

CLOUTING CATCHERS

SPORT SLANTS

Bill Dickey was adjusting his tie in the Yankees' dressing room after his team had pounded out a 6-5 victory over the world champion Tigers. Bill had played a major part in that victory, for his two homers drove in four of the Yankees' runs.

Strangely enough, none of the conversation in the buzzing dressing room mentioned the slugging catcher. It was all about Joe Di Maggio, the sensational rookie from the Coast.

They had seen nothing to compare with that throw since Bob Meusel's palmy days, they declared. Some even went so far as to say that Bob at his best never could have matched Di Maggio's effort.

There is no denying that Di Maggio's play saved the game for the Yankees. The Tigers were roaring down the stretch with a late inning rally. Pete Fox was on third anxious to bring in the tying run. Di Maggio deliberately took a long fly near the left field foul line on his right side and with the motion of a catcher throwing to second base he threw the ball waist-high on a line to Dickey, who caught the surprised Fox 10 feet off the plate. It was a gem. And no wonder the boys were still thrilled as they changed into their street clothes.

One of the players who turned to Dickey and remarked that the first home run he hit into right field was "an awful poke."

And the second one was no swinging bunt, in case any of you fellows happened to have noticed it, replied Dickey, pulling on his coat. Di Maggio and his miracle throw still had the floor when Dickey headed for the exit, wondering, no doubt, just why the rookie's great defensive play should so completely overshadow the offense he himself explicated in the face of the Tigers.

That's the way it has always been with Dickey. The fans know him to be a capable catcher and a fairly dependable batter. They expect him to come through with his share of scoring drives and let it go at that. He has been taken for granted, more or less, ever since he came to the Yankees in 1928.

He has wielded a heavy bat for the Yankees ever since he donned a New York uniform and his average, for his big league life, is well over the .300 mark. But this spring he has been going better than ever. In the all important "runs-batted-in" column he leads the league with 35 in 25 games. At his present pace he is certain to beat his mark of 81 tallies driven in for last season.

Curiously enough, Dickey had trouble connecting solidly with the ball in training camp. It was not until Lou Gehrig pointed out to him that he was holding his hands too close to his body, and therefore not swinging freely, that Dickey began meeting the ball good and solid. From that time on, there has been no stopping him.

The little diagnosis Gehrig made in Dickey's case was exactly the same as Dickey offered Gehrig last spring when the big first baseman was floundering in a terrible batting slump. It put Lou on the right track to cure his batting ills, and apparently worked just as well in Dickey's case.

Baseball Racket.
Charleston, S. C. (AP)—Officials of community baseball leagues in this section have warned fans that racketeers have been known to go through crowds with bats and sleds to collect to buy baseballs and bats for the teams. Make sure your donation goes to an authorized solicitor, they warn.

-By PAP

that it would be politically wise for the Democrats to return relief administration to the states, with federal assistance.

Republican charges that WPA is "in politics up to its neck" would then fall back on the governor's. The suggestions presuppose that this election will put back in office a number of Republican governors who then would be burdened with a share of the criticism that has welled up against the Roosevelt administration not only from Republican sources but from Democratic. Republican critics of the bill in the senate expected some Democratic support for a motion to put the states in charge of relief administration, but were doubtful they could hold even their own ranks together in line.

What a spirited effort for earmarking part of the money was planned, there was more than one Republican critic of WPA operations who privately expressed the view that as long as federal relief is to be administered on a make-work basis, a free hand must be given the administrator.

What—No Americans!
Augusta, Ga. (AP)—Here for an exhibition match, William T. Tilden, 2nd, expressed his opinion of the Davis Cup team's chances in future play:

"It is just this: There are for amateur tennis players in the world. I mean THE four. They are Bunny Austin and Fred Perry of England, Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany, and Jack Crawford of Australia. You notice, I include no Americans."

Steve Brown, righthanded pitcher for the Colorado School of Mines at Golden, made ten assists in a recent game with Denver University, which is busy fielding for any hurler in any league.

Miss Doughty Honored. Miss Maggie Doughty was honored on Monday when Mrs. J. L. Fleming entertained a few friends at a birthday luncheon. The affair was quite informal. Guests arrived shortly before one o'clock and greeted "Miss Maggie" with good wishes. The luncheon was served at 1:15 in the dining room which had been decorated beautifully with summer flowers for the occasion.

Places for Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Arthur were marked with shoulder-ettes of pink roses.

After a number of interesting games, cards were removed and ice moulded in roses, decorated cakes, mints and salted nuts were served by Mrs. Brock, assisted by Mrs. Jesse Moye and Mrs. Jack Scan.

Mrs. John Cotten Taylor was given a cigarette box for high score for women; James Bowers, bridge cards for high score for men; Mrs. Fred Arthur, an ash tray for floating slams prize for women, and Coan McLean bridge cards for floating slams for men.

As a reminder of this charming affair, Mr. and Mrs. McLean were presented a gift of linen and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur an attractive vase.

Tucker-Shearin. Rocky Mount, May 19.—The marriage of Miss Jessie Mayo Shearin to Mr. Kenneth Tucker was performed in a private ceremony which took place at the parsonage of the First Baptist Church on Saturday evening, May sixteenth. The Reverend J. W. Kincheol, D. D., pastor of the church, officiated in the presence of a few friends of the young couple.

Miss Shearin is the daughter of Mrs. R. E. Shearin and the late Mr. Shearin of this city, and is popularly known among a wide circle of friends here and in the section. For her marriage she was exceptionally pretty in a suit of orchid knit with which she wore gray hat and accessories.

Mr. Tucker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Tucker of Greenville, but he has made his home here for some time. He and his bride left immediately after the marriage service for Wilmington for a brief trip. They will make their home with the bride's mother at 516 Western Avenue.

Heilig-Ireland. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ireland of Alliance, N. C., announce the marriage of their daughter, Julia Ireland, to William J. Heilig of Fayetteville, N. C., on Friday, the fifteenth of May, in Raleigh.

Mr. Heilig is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith of Oriental. He was born and reared in Oriental and finished high school there. He attended college at Wake Forest, later graduating from King's Business College. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Sigma fraternity. Mr. Heilig is now holding a responsible position at Fort Bragg.

Mrs. Heilig has been making her home in Greenville for the past year and has made a host of friends. The former Miss Ireland is now holding a position with M. R. Long. She will continue here awhile, and later join her husband at Fayetteville where they will make their home.

In Asheboro. Coroner A. A. Ellwanger is attending the annual meeting of the North Carolina Burial Association in Asheboro. He is expected to return tomorrow night.

Piano Recital Wednesday. The piano recital to be presented by pupils of Miss Eva Hodges has been postponed from this evening until tomorrow (Wednesday) evening, at eight o'clock in the Third street school auditorium.

Mr. Overton Ill. Friends of D. D. Overton will be sorry to learn that he is ill at his home on West Fourth street.

New Attractions at Beach. Atlantic Beach, May 19.—Many new attractions and features will greet the visitors to Atlantic Beach, North Carolina's fastest growing resort, this summer, it was stated today by the management. The lengthy boardwalk is being renovated. Conveniently located on this boardwalk will be automatic drinking fountains for patrons of the beach. Drinking water at the average beach is a sort of premium, the management realized, and to be different Atlantic Beach will feature at no charge, sanitary drink fountains along the boardwalk, accessible not only to boardwalk patrons generally, but to those enjoying the surf.

Another feature which is believed to be original for Atlantic coast resorts is the installation on the open beach, free shower baths. These showers have no connection whatsoever with the regular bath houses, but are provided by those who wish to be drenched in fresh water before taking sun-baths on the sand. Someone has made the statement that the sun's blistering effects are not so blistering if the person seeking the tan first rinses the salt water from their body. Anyway, the showers have been installed and will prove especially popular with surf bathers, who get to the beach from Morehead City or Beaufort, already wearing their bath suits. A number of concessions along the board walk and regular concerts (at no cost) are among other attractions.

A review of the past year and plans for next year, instead of a set program, were the features of the last meeting of the A. A. U. W. for the year, which was a supper meeting held last night at the home of Mrs. E. B. Ferguson, with Misses Adams, Higgs and Turner acting as hostesses.

The annual reports from the various committees revealed a year of varied activities and stimulating programs.

The reports from delegates to the sectional and state conventions prove that the Greenville branch has not confined itself to local affairs, but has made contacts with the various divisions of the national organization.

Miss Jenkins gave the high spots of the meeting of the South Atlantic Division, held at Washington, D. C., early in the spring. M. Rose and Dr. Turner gave interesting reports of the state meeting held in Greensboro last month.

Mrs. Ficklen Arthur, president for the next biennium, presided, taking the chair for the first time.

The guests, all of whom are eligible for membership, are Misses Schnopp and Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Browning.

The tentative committees for next year were announced. Miss Grigsby, chairman of the new program committee, presented attractive possibilities for programs for next year. A discussion of these plans followed and suggestions were called for.—Reported.

"Post Road" Saturday. Greenville will be one of the first places that will have a chance to see the first play "Post Road" to be presented by the Federal Theatre touring company, as North Carolina was the state chosen for the first try-out of the experiment of decentralizing Broadway plays by taking the cities and towns of other sections, and having professional actors and producers present the plays.

This is a part of the movement led by Miss Hallie Flanagan, national director of the Federal Theatre, to establish regional theatres which is one of the spectacular dreams of President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The first group which is headed by a prominent New York director, Charles Schofield, is a pioneering company, and the first performances seem destined to be history-making. The people in Greenville are fortunate in being among the first to see it.

The play will be presented in the Austin Auditorium at 8:30 o'clock on next Saturday night.

Choral Club Represents Tobacco. Next Tuesday afternoon, May 26, at the court house steps at Goldsboro, the Greenville Choral Club will compete for first honors in the Eastern North Carolina Song Festival. The local club is to represent "Tobacco" in a sketch which is now in rehearsal.

King Tobacco opens the sketch singing the following song when the club hums the accompaniment:

"In Greenville, Eastern North Carolina Not far away— You'll find a great tobacco market. Largest in the world today— If farmer heed the control act They'll be happy again. They'll make more money and start singing This gay, lively refrain—

Chorus All this world is bright and cheerful Every where we roam: We've bought some new hats and dresses And we're taking them to the young folks at home.

At the beginning of the chorus "Blue Mold" creeps up the steps and gets under "Tobacco" and "Tobacco" begins to wilt away. When "Tobacco" comes on and revives "Tobacco" when "Tobacco" is strong again "Blue Mold" creeps sheepishly out and is chased away by "Nitrate of Soda." As "Tobacco" is praising "Nitrate" for the assistance he has always rendered him "Control Act" "Tobacco's" best friend enters with "More Money," his companion. "Control Act" introduces "Tobacco" to "More Money" and tells him if he ("Tobacco") will always obey his instructions and heed his advice he will always have "More Money" as a companion to take home to his mister, the farmer. To prove this, he summons an Auctioneer and buyers who represent Person & Garrett, E. B. Ficklen Tob. Co. and Imperial Tobacco

Co., and the sale starts. When the bidding reaches $1.60 a pound the Choral Club dressed as "Tobacco," farmers and farmerettes begin singing their songs of rejoicing.

This sketch was written and directed by Edward Hearpe of this city, who is also making the costumes. The "King Tobacco" costume is made of hundreds of various size hand-painted tobacco leaves against a powder blue lace effect background. The beard and crown are also made of cloth tobacco leaves.

Everyone is invited to go to Goldsboro next Tuesday and help Greenville win the prize.

WPA Library Plan Giving Good Service

The W. P. A. library project now in operation in Pitt County has given excellent service. About 5,078 books have been cleaned and repaired. Work is being done for the Greenville High School Library, Sheppard Memorial Library, Greenville, and for the rural schools in Pitt County. Neither unit had a supply of books equal to the demand or sufficient funds to purchase new ones and pay for repairs to those in use. The small number of library books in the county would have been reduced by at least one half, due to honest wear, if W. P. A. workers had not kept up this repair service.

Those employed on the library project like it. This work with books has developed an interest in schools and libraries which will affect the lives of the workers and the homes in which they live. Two of the best workers from the Pitt County Library Project spent three days in Carteret County and taught bookmending to the workers on the project there. They were highly praised for the excellent work done, and the project there has been doing splendid work, because of this training.

Two workers also taught bookmending to NYA workers at East Carolina Teachers College. After this training these NYA workers continued their work and are doing good work.

It is the opinion of both the Library Board and Staff that the bookmending project at Sheppard Memorial Library is of very great value.

STATE AGENCY FINDING JOBS

Employment Service Places 11,608 in Jobs in April

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, May 19.—A total of 11,608 persons were placed in jobs in North Carolina through the North Carolina State Employment Service during April, according to figures released today by Mrs. May Thompson Evans, state director of the service. In addition to this number, 618 war veterans were placed in jobs during April by the veterans placement division of the service.

Of this 11,608 placed in employment during April, the largest number, amounting to 6,446 were placed in jobs on public projects, such as WPA, PWA, or other projects financed with Federal funds which required that all labor be supplied through the employment service. Private industry and business employed the next largest number, or 2,856 while 2,296 were placed in jobs on relief projects. The figures show, of the 618 war veterans placed in jobs during the month, 396 were placed on public projects, 147 in private industry and 75 on relief projects.

There were 8,366 new registrations in the state during the month, 4,578 re-registrations and 3,673 renewals. In the war veterans division, there were 220 new registrations, 275 re-registrations and 261 renewals.

On May 1 there were 187,096 persons listed on the active list of the employment service not yet placed in jobs of which 128,245 were men and 58,848 women. Here were also 7,288 war veterans in the active files still unplaced. The Fayetteville district office had both the largest number of placements and the largest number of new registrations during April, with 1,791 placed in jobs and 1,151 new registrations. The Greensboro district placed the next largest number, amounting to 1,753 and had 1,024 new registrations. The Kinston district office ranked third in the number of placement with 1,060 and had 1,015 new registrations. The Wilmington office came next with 939 placement and 689 registrations and Charlotte next with 909 placements and 581 new registrations.

AN ALL TIME JOB

Don't fail to attend the mass meeting of citizens at the court house tonight and give your support to a movement for better law enforcement in this city and county. Our citizens can have just the kind of law enforcement that they want and no more, but it must be remembered that to obtain the best results we must keep steadily at the job instead of showing one burst of enthusiasm and then let our efforts die.

YOUTH POINTS A WAY

Pointing out that drivers from 18 to 24 years of age are involved in more than one-fifth of all motor vehicle accidents and more than one-quarter of all fatal accidents, the National Student Federation of America has called upon the college youth of America to accept its share of the responsibility for the traffic accident situation.

"This problem needs to be tackled by youth," says a Federation bulletin going to 1,700 presidents of student councils and editors of student newspapers. "So long as the evil which annually takes 36,000 lives continues uncontrolled, youth is faced with a menace of its security and welfare and an affront to its intelligence."

The Federation presents in its bulletin a series of suggestions for a campus traffic control program. Warning against the futility of an abortive, short-sighted campaign, the Federation emphasizes that a Spring program ought to be undertaken with the expressed purpose of laying the ground-work for a long-term program next fall. The proposals are aimed at two specific phases of the problem as it especially affects colleges. They are, (1) influencing on and away from the campus; (2) establishing rules to govern undergraduate use of the college and the community, not only locally, but in the community-at-large.

That youth should recognize and act upon its responsibility in one of the nation's gravest social problems, is itself a heartening indication of a new thoughtful spirit. There is extraordinary good sense in the recognition that establishing traffic control

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris will hope he has been only a wife in name, married on the rebound after Elmer Fleming had killed Rupert because of his drinking. On the night Elmer married Seymour Gage, Rupert left for his northern camp—but did not arrive. A posse is searching the snow-drifted woods for him, while Dirk and Hope talk before the fire in the Joris camp. Dirk has been trying to solve the mystery surrounding Hope, with the help of detectives and her chauffeur. But all he has learned is that the mystery concerns a certain blond cowboy—in some way.

Chapter 24

"COME AT ONCE—"

H OPE went on: "I wanted to win him, to make him happy. But I couldn't. He was kind to me. He did things for me, gave me things. But it meant nothing, I was like a doll that he dressed up . . . for her to see. He thought she might return. He hoped for this. And if she had . . ."

"But he was married to you," Dirk reminded her. "I know. Certain words were spoken over us, if you mean that. But how long would they have held if she had come to him?"

Dirk repressed a smile. The diagnosis was so entirely feminine. "Anyhow," she said, "I could have told Rupert that Elmer would never come. I think maybe he came to know this. But he went on getting pleasure out of showing her he didn't care, out of thinking he hurt her . . . with me. I was a sort of weapon. Maybe he found he hadn't even hurt her, for she went serenely on and got married. And that day . . . the day of her wedding . . . he came in my room for the first time, and kissed me. He was drinking, and angry, and I pushed him away."

Dirk said, "I don't blame you for that. I think any woman would have done the same." "But he left," she said. "He rode out of town. He felt that no one cared . . . And aren't there ways and ways of winning a man? Shouldn't a wife take any way she can?"

"The discussion had become painful to Dirk. He replied, "I thought you had won him. I thought it when I saw your ring." She smiled down ruefully at the chased platinum band. "I'm glad you noticed it," she said. "Rupert never has. I bought it myself."

Dirk went out on the kitchen porch to get more wood. The snow had drifted onto the porch, and the wood had almost to be dug out. When he came back into the room Hope had slipped sideways in the chair, her face pressed against the rough hickory arm. She was asleep.

He lifted her, limp as a child, and carried her over to the bunk, spreading an army blanket over her, and her raccoon coat. Then he mended the fire and lay down on the bunk opposite.

Dirk fell asleep, and was awakened by a knock on the door. Hope, too, sat upright. It was Sandy, standing in the dawn, beside his sleigh.

"We've found him," reported Sandy. "Down at Old Forge, at Steve Clapp's house. He's in bed, sick."

SANDY told them more as he drove them toward Old Forge. It had happened the night of the big snow. Rupert had got lost while driving up. In the obscurities of the storm he had turned off the road and had stalled. Then he had got out, searching for help, afraid.

"I guess he saw Steve Clapp's light. Anyhow, they found him next morning where he'd stumbled at the gate. The dogs found him. He's still unconscious. Doctor says he's got pneumonia. Clapp heard there was somebody lost around Big Moose, and he phoned over."

Clapp's house was a cottage of four rooms. They had given Rupert the best bed, and Mrs. Clapp was taking care of him. Dirk telephoned to New York for two nurses and for Rupert's physician. He said to Hope, "I want you to go home. We've found him now, and we'll take him to Louisville soon as we can."

During the next few days Rupert remained in a coma, his physician and nurse came on from New York, the Clapp home was requisitioned as a hospital, and the Clapps went to stay with neighbors.

On Monday Dirk received a telegram. He was in close touch with Sanford and the office, but this was from neither of those sources. It was signed David Logan, and it said, "Come at once."

David Logan was one of the watchers at the gate. The morning train had already gone, so Dirk left Big Moose in his car. Rupert was better that morning, had emerged into consciousness, and the attendants were hopeful. Dirk reached home shortly before dusk. Logan and his companion had not come on. Martin, meeting him in the porte cochère, hailed him as a miracle.

"Did they wire you?" asked Martin. "They did. Do you know what it is?" Martin knew. "Will you come up to my room, Mister Dirk? I daren't talk out here."

They went up the back-stair to Martin's room. On the way Dirk said, "Mrs. Joris all right?" "No, sir. She's not. She can't leave her room."

"Have you called a doctor?" asked Dirk. "She's not as ill as that, sir. But Mary says she looks . . . She won't let anybody in but Mary. Mister Dirk, you may blame me for all this. But you told me to watch. You told me to guard her. I can't help it if she saw me . . . If she knows it was me."

THEY were facing each other in Martin's little room on the third floor. Dirk, a thousand apprehensions moving through his mind, could not help observing that Martin himself looked ill.

"You'll probably fire me," Martin said now. "Specially as Logan says . . . But I don't mind being fired if I'm no more use to you. It was like this. With you gone, and Mister Rupert gone, and me, and the rest of the help away up here, I got to thinking."

"I thought if anybody was after her it would be a cinch to come then, while you and Mister Rupert were gone. Up here on this floor nobody can hear a thing."

"Logan and the other fellow . . . I went out and spoke to them about it, told them you were away. I wanted one of them to keep the watch inside the house. But they wouldn't do it. Said it was their business to watch the gates; they hadn't received any other instructions. So it seemed my business . . . feeling like I did . . . to stay close to Mrs. Joris, though I hadn't received any such instructions either."

"It was your business. We'll take that for granted. What happened?" "Well, I made up my mind to go downstairs and stay in Mister Rupert's room . . . just be there in case anybody tried anything. I never knew where Mister Rupert kept his gun . . . his revolver. Nora told me."

Dirk was silent. So far as he knew, Rupert had no revolver, but he did not wish to check Martin's rather halting narrative. "All right," he said.

"I went in Mister Rupert's room, and looked in the desk-drawer where Nora said he kept the gun. The gun wasn't in the desk, and I began to look in the other drawers. And then, all at once, I heard a man's voice. It was low now. It had been loud for a minute. Loud and kind of mad."

"It was in Mrs. Joris' room. I didn't think a thing but that she was in danger. But the door was locked."

"You tried the door?" asked Dirk. "For Martin had stopped."

"Yes, sir. I tried it with all my might, pushing against it. I could feel it was a flimsy thing, not like the other doors. Everything was still while I tried it, and I was worried worse than ever. I ran into the hall, and tried that door. It was locked too, and felt like the wall itself, and I was just turning around to go back and smash in the other door, when the one I was trying opened, and Mrs. Joris stood there."

"She had on a kimono, and the light was on in her room. If there'd been a light before it was very dim, or I'd have seen it under the door. She said, 'What is it, Martin? I told her I'd heard somebody in her room. She said, 'But there is no one here.'" take a chance by growing the limit, and reaping the benefit of present high prices. The result may be bumper fall crops, especially in corn, with a declining return to the grower.

The politicians are scared at the prospect. A smaller agricultural income may incline the farmer to his back to his traditional political party — the G. O. P. The Democrats, of course, will reply that the Supreme Court was responsible for knocking prices down. But they're not quite sure whether this alibi will serve as a political substitute for cash.

URGENT: Heads of the Associated Stock Exchanges will air a novel criticism of the SEC at sessions in Cleveland this week. They are sore because they have been placed under strict regulation while the commission has made no move to restrict the operations of over-the-counter dealers.

Exchange spokesmen hold that the 55 per cent margin tends to create tremendous losses in a declining market. They argue that whereas a man might sell if he were committed by only a small margin, he will be tempted to hold to the bottom under the new system. Meanwhile over-the-counter dealers can operate almost as they please to the disadvantage of legitimate traders and dealers.

Another unlooked development has been the growth of operations in diamonds, antiques and pictures. Wealthy people hitherto active in the markets are said to be dealing in possessions which have permanent value. It is hinted that many are sales are nothing more nor less than "wash" transactions. So the exchange boys want the SEC to hurry up their recommendations for regulation of their promiscuous competitors.

STRATEGY: Although the G. O. P. cannot frame its 1936 platform until it learns who will try to walk into the White House on it, the master minds have fixed up tentative planks on relief and agricultural problems.

They will declare for "adequate relief," but they will insist that all federal funds appropriated to furnish work be turned over to the states for handling. Any man named to run for the White House is committed to that policy as a result of discussions among the inner councils. The proposal was defeated by a strict party vote when advanced in the House.

Likewise the G. O. P. will "meet" the general principle of raising farm prices, but they will charge that the Roosevelt administration has sold the farmer down the river by permitting the import of competing products. They will hammer at Mr. Hull's reciprocal tariff treaties as sacrifices. They will try to link the farm with the tariff issue, and make western states believe that their only salvation is the G. O. P. The Democrats are more worried than they care to admit over the prospect that this strategy may succeed.

PROBABLE: Although coquettish as a girl about his political plans, Senator Norris is understood to have promised to run for reelection in Nebraska. He is expected to campaign as an "independent Republican."

"Uncle George" sincerely wanted to quit, figuring that he had earned a rest. He spurned efforts of Nebraska friends to persuade him to reconsider. Two factors are believed to have changed his mind within bill to broaden the powers of the Federal Trade Commission slipped through the Senate almost unopposed and is understood to have a good chance of passage in the House. The Commission itself instigated the legislation. Business leaders are just awakening to its far-reaching — and alarming — implications.

Hitherto the Trade Commission has only been able to undertake an investigation of a company or industry upon receipt of a complaint from some outside source — usually a competitor alleging some unfair trade practice. This bill would empower it to investigate any business on its own unrestricted initiative. Conservatives fear this would lead to extension of "government by intimidation" and the end of all business privacy. Lawyers advise that such a law could not survive court scrutiny — but industrial big timers prefer not to take any penny of quiet pressure will be brought to smother the bill in the House.

GOLD: Bankers familiar with the French picture are skeptical about Leon Blum's insistence that his socialist government — which will take office in June — has no intention of devaluing the franc. They comment that Blum is smart enough to realize that such a move is the almost inevitable alternative to complete financial collapse. But naturally, as a politician soon to assume leadership of the French government, he cannot possibly afford to admit it. So they figure his real object is to maneuver his party into a position where it can duck responsibility for devaluation by blaming it — if and when it comes — on the speculative excesses of his conservative opponents.

Meanwhile an embargo on gold shipments — the prelude to official devaluation — creeps closer. The next step is expected to be a stiff tax on gold exports.

BONER: Many New York G. O. P. leaders are sharply critical of their representatives in the state assembly for killing Governor Lehman's social security bill, and especially of Assemblyman Jerry Wadsworth (son of the Congressman) for his inept attempt to justify this action.

The party was badly split on the issue. Several influential county chairmen pleaded in vain with stubborn G. O. P. representatives to change their tune. A man who is commonly thought of as an outstanding leader of the old guard was among those who privately urged acceptance of the Lehman measure — but to no avail.

Responsible G. O. P. backstagers call their Assemblyman's attitude a boner which may go far towards handing the state back to the Democrats.

HEAR JUDGE BARNHILL TONIGHT IN COURT HOUSE. To the mothers and fathers of Greenville and Pitt County — if you love your children an want to raise them in a clean, wholesome community and make good citizens of them, go to the court house tonight to hear Judge Barnhill discuss the general conditions of our town and county. It is generally conceded that people have the kind of community they want. So let's try to remove all kinds of evil temptations from our children and young people.

To the Editor: The tendency to gamble: To play for money or property in a game of chance, appears to be as old as man's first realization of the desire for possession. Nearly 2,000 years ago, men even cast lots for the seamless garment of Jesus — and coming down through the ages we find the evil agency of destruction of personal work growing by leaps and bounds. We have whitewashed many gambling games and made them innocent. I call to mind three: progressive eucruce, bridge and Mah Jong. Are they not gambling games also? So much so that most all civilized countries have passed laws with intent to curb, discourage, repress and stamp out this evil to humanity. Losses by those who could ill-afford them have brought want and woe to the numbered. Not only on the principle of the action, but indirectly on the members of their household, friends, business associates and those with whom they have dealings, but far greater evils come of this invisible propensity. It robs one of the values of time for useful pursuit, of peace of mind, of self-respectability, of nerve-force, of good repute and stability, of uniform physical function, of right heart action within, of beautiful heart evidenced without, yea, it pulls out by the roots the physical, mental and moral fibers that make a man a man, and make a woman a lady. It will rob the nominal Christian of that sacred seamless robe that has been prepared for those who overcome the world, the flesh and the devil. All gambling since it implies a desire to profit at the expense of another, involves a breach of the Tenth Commandment: Gambling is the child of avarice, the brother of iniquity and the father of mischief, the destroyer of happiness. —CITIZEN.

Sugg Motor Company Named Distributors

Announcement was made today of the appointment of Sugg Motor Company of this city as distributors in Pitt and surrounding counties for Nash and LaFayette cars.

H. O. Sugg, head of the motor company, stated this morning that after careful consideration he had selected the Nash and LaFayette cars for distribution in this community because he felt that in these cars he could furnish the best possible values to his customers.

The Nash company in the past has not had a dealer in this city and Mr. Sugg stated he was sure the people of this community would be glad to learn that this popular line was now being handled here.

In addition to handling the new line of cars the Sugg Motor Company garage is equipped to service and repair all makes of cars.

LARGE CROWD HEAR SERMON

(Continued from page one) which was the will of God for their lives. He set forth the needs of man and the call of God. He declared the method, whereby souls might come into saving relationship with the Father. The common people heard him gladly.

In that community there were four men who were devoid of religious selfishness. Instead of rushing to the place where Christ was speaking they went after a helpless friend, who could not of himself come to Jesus. The names of these men are not given, but the thing they did abides with us. Through their efforts to get an important lesson on the principle of cooperation. This personal work is the Divine method of bringing men into touch with the Lord Jesus.

The four men who took part in the salvation of the palsied man, represent four vital and essential elements in a great work of grace. They may be named, Prayer, Faith, Love or Sympathy, and Perseverance.

Prayer is the fundamental necessity in every revival. Without it the machinery will be jacking in power and the meeting will be only a meeting. It will not be a revival. Prayer for the unsaved that does not get down into shoe leather and start us out to make an effort to bring the unsaved to Christ, will have little influence with God. God wants to see the depth of our earnestness. He comes into our earnestness and agonizing soul and gives power to go and win the lost to Him.

Faith is the power that grows out of the prayer bed of prayer. A strong prayer life begets a strong faith. Faith becomes vital to the extent that we vitalize it with prayer. Faith and works are illustrated in the activities of the second man at the corner of the street. How large is your faith for the present series of meetings?

Sympathy or love is the third man holding his corner of the street. The world waits daily to be loved. It will go anywhere when convinced that you love humanity. Every man engaged in the personal work outlined in this incident sympathized with the helpless, palsied man. If they had not done so they would have gone to hear Jesus speak and left the helpless man to his fate. The world hungers for your loving hand as the personal worker leading men to God.

Perseverance is the fourth man. When these men reached the place where Jesus was, they could not get near with their friend. This man is most essential to the whole work. He was not to be outdone because of unfavorable circumstances. He determined to find a way, and to get through to Jesus, and he did.

Are you carrying your corner of the street? Are you cooperating in fullest sympathy with the effort to bring people back to a first love for Christ, and into saving relationship with God?

A fine service for redemption of lives to Christ in His service was manifest at the call of the evangelist. This morning Dr. Ham led the congregation in the second study of the First Epistle of John, the second chapter. His topic was "Heart of Religion." Again the audience experienced the gracious influence of the Word, and found spiritual refreshment, and inspiration for renewed activity in Christian service.

Each evening service is to be preceded by a service of prayer at 7:30 o'clock, in the "sinner auditorium." All who desire to join in this period of preparation are invited to be present. E. R. Conway will lead this evening's prayer hour.

The subject for this evening's message is: "New Testament Repentance."

100,000 Converts in China. New York (AP)—One hundred thousand adult conversion to the Catholic church were made in the past year in China, according to a report received at the national office of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith. This is the largest increase in 22 years, the society says, and brings the Catholic population of China to a total of 2,418,839.

Life In The White House, So They Say, Doesn't Excite G.O.P. Hopefuls' Wives

Six talented women, wives of possible Republican presidential nominees, who share the limelight with their husbands as the June convention nears, are pictured above. Any of the six might become the nation's first lady. Left to right, top row: Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, Mrs. Frank Knox. Bottom (left) Mrs. Alf A. Landon; (right) Mrs. L. J. Dickinson.

By BESS FURMAN

Washington—(AP)—Days lengthening toward June and the Cleveland convention bring more talk each 24 hours of the "First Lady" chances of six Republican women.

They are, alphabetically, the Messinghams, Hoover, Vandenberg, Knox, Landon and Dickinson. Not one of whom has yet said for publication "wouldn't it be wonderful if my husband were President!"

On the contrary, several have stressed the strain of White House living, and the goldfish bowl quality of the place. Yet veteran Mrs. Borah whose husband is "dean" of the Senate, hit an important note when she said of the whole Washington scene:

"It's an adventurous life! There's not an hour in the day that is not taken by demands!"

And he six have varied talents with which they might, if so fated, meet the mounting demands of the First Lady role.

Mrs. Borah Knows Politics. Mrs. William E. Borah is small blonde of hair, brown of eye, sprightly. She's called "Little Borah." Her social conversation is amusing—light banter, said with a school-girlish stress of several words of several words in each sentence.

But don't let that fool you. Under her light talk lies great political wisdom. She has made a fine record here as a volunteer worker in a neuro-psychiatric ward in which she became interested after the World War.

The Dickinson pancakes probably would become as famous as the Roosevelt scrambled eggs if white-haired, blue-eyed Mrs. L. J. Dickinson of both domestic and literary tastes, went to the White House. She doesn't trust her husband's favorite dish of Iowa flap-jacks to any amateur.

Mrs. Dickinson A Twin. She's one of a pair of twins born to the comfort and plenty of a prominent family of the tall corn state. Her twin brother is Roscoe Call, Iowa insurance man. In the capital she has taken an alert, intelligent role, writing to home papers her keen observations on events as they unfolded. She's devoted to her four grandchildren, one here, three in Des Moines.

This country already knows Lou Henry Hoover in the First Lady role. She was the gracious hostess to more guests, while her husband was President, than ever had been entertained previously in any four White House years. Her parties were perfectly appointed. Yet her closest friends knew she got her keenest enjoyment from mountains and trees and flowers.

A Budget-Balancer. The Knox cohorts laud Mrs. Frank Knox as a budget-balancer—she's said to have saved $500 in three years on her husband's early income of $12 to $22 a week. She was Annie Reid of Alma, Mich., and met her husband while she was in college.

Years of a throat affliction have caused pretty Mrs. Knox, whose eyes are amazingly blue, to retire to a New Hampshire garden, which she frankly prefers to public life. Slender, dark-haired, dimpled Theo Cobb Landon, of Kansas, would bring to the White House, two lively small children, Nancy Jo, 3-1-2 and John Cobb, 2, a youthful stepdaughter, Peggy Ann, 18—and a whole string of hobbies: harp as well as piano in music, collecting early American glass and other antiques, horseback riding.

Doesn't Want Job. By the time of her eighteenth wedding anniversary, next June 14, Hazel Vandenberg will know if her "dark horse" husband will make the race. She insists she hopes their future will hold simplicity instead—the chance to just go off together "and have the best time."

She's a smooth-haired, dark-eyed, straight-seeing person, newspaper reporter, social service worker and advertising woman. Right after she was married, she went back to her desk at the Chicago Tribune, took a look at a clothes hamper full of true love stories, but wouldn't sell her own, which was worth the daily prize of $5.

She met Arthur Vandenberg in college. He was engaged. Fifteen years later, when he was a widower, they met again, and were wed.

The experiment was the idea of a clean break of it," comments one

PEARL HARBOR TESTED AS NAVAL REPAIR SHOP

Honolulu—(AP)—Testing the efficiency of Pearl Harbor repair facilities, four navy cruisers have been assigned for annual overhaul here this year. Odds have been given, the Richmond, Portland, Minneapolis and Louisville to come here during the summer. Heavier craft may follow.

Strategically centered for vessels disabled at sea, Pearl Harbor repair activities have been increased recently. They are to be augmented by a $9,000,000 floating drydock, destined to make the navy yard one of the most efficient in the west.

BOYS COOK, GIRLS MIELD HAMMERS, EVERYONE HAPPY

Bremen, Ohio—(AP)—The boys of the Bremen high school know about home economics and the girls are proficient with a brace and bit. They traded instructors for two weeks.

Miss Hattie Garner, instructor in home economics, and R. M. Foltz, vocational agriculture teacher. It proved so successful that R. M. Foltz, superintendent of schools says it may become an annual custom.

Miss Garner put her class of boys through instruction in home beautification, arrangement of furniture, and social etiquette. The boys also selected daily menus and prepared their skill.

Meanwhile the girls learned to repair electric irons and washing machines, and how to use a hammer, a brace and bit and other tools found in a workshop.

BRITON'S PRAISE LITTLE FOR TURNING PROFESSIONAL

London—(AP)—While disappointed that Lawson Little turned professional without having tried to win his third consecutive British amateur title at St. Andrew's this spring, British players and critics have been loud in commending him for his forthright attitude.

'DON'T TALK,' WOMAN OFFICER ADVISES OTHERS IN POLITICS

BOISE, Idaho, May 15. — Mrs. Myrtle Powell Enking, only woman state treasurer in the United States, advises those of her sex who aspire to public office "not to talk too much."

"That's the conclusion I have come to after 21 years in public life," the gray-haired but vivacious little official declared. "And I intend to respect it in my campaign for a third consecutive term."

"I'm not much of a campaigner but I make lots of personal contacts and they are essential in politics."

Mrs. Enking believes the chances of a woman being elected President of the United States is remote.

"Winning the presidency takes years of background and contact with political powers, and men are way ahead because more men than women like politics," she said.

Mrs. Enking was born "sometime since the Civil War" at Avon, Illinois, and came to Idaho in 1905 to take a bookkeeping job in a store at Gooding. She married William L. Enking, a Chicago lumberman in 1911 but was left a widow two years later. A son, Harold, is a high school teacher. She lives with her aged mother, Mrs. Margaret Powell.

She was the first woman elected to county office in Idaho. Her present position is one of eight high state elective posts. She is a Democrat.

well-known writer. "He has displayed a finer character than many of his contemporaries, both in England and America, who continue to call themselves amateurs while making a handsome livelihood by their skill. "A thrill we had come to expect will be missing, though, from this year's amateur."

NAZI SOYA BEAN GROWERS GET GOVERNMENT SUBSIDY

Berlin. (AP)—German farmers are to receive doubled prices from the reich for soya beans.

In its efforts to gain independence from foreign markets the government is furthering the cultivation of oleaginous plants. Of these, soya beans, containing about 18 per cent fats and 35 per cent albumen, are listed as top.

So far, however, the low world price of soya beans, standing at about $3.20 a hundred pounds, failed to incite the German farmer to raise them. Now the government guarantees the farmer $6.40 a hundred, provided the seed is procured from authorized cultivators.

Robert Taylor, the actor, has added bowling to his favorite sports. It is Cecil E. DeMille, the director-producer, but his brother is William DeMille.

MRS. MYRTLE P. ENKING

Mrs. Myrtle Powell Enking, twice successful, plans a third "talkless campaign" for state treasurer of Idaho.

ROTARIANS VOTE SPONSOR LOCAL ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC

(Continued from page one) Stanton of the State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation had charge of placing clinics it was next brought to his attention that Pitt wanted a clinic and were ready to back it fully in the County Health Department.

Also Dr. Ennett presented the idea to the Pitt County Medical Society who approved the idea and helped supply statistics as the number and character of cases in Pitt needing such a clinic. Furthermore the Doctors responded by saying they would refer such cases to a Pitt Clinic if one were established.

At this point Dr. Ennett cited some of the statistics he had gathered from the doctors revealing that "the woods are full of them." Cases needing the attention of an orthopedist are caused by injury at childbirth, tuberculosis of the bone, burns, and the worst — infantile paralysis.

Dr. Ennett read a letter he had received from Mr. Stanton saying he had Greenville under consideration and next wanted sponsoring civic organization to give some small amount of monetary support but mostly moral support. The State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation pays the surgeon's salary, the Federal Government thru the United States Public Health Service under the Social Security Act will supply hospitalization and braces etc. With this Dr. Ennett closed his presentation saying he hoped the State would locate a clinic in Greenville if the Rotary Club would become sponsors. Hardly had the speaker seated himself until Bill Lee, the club president, arose and cited his opinion of the club's readiness to give its hearty support; furthermore he said there was a fund of $800 from the President's Ball which he as chairman of the Committee of the Ball would gladly make immediately available for us in an orthopedic clinic. Others who were bubbling over with enthusiasms at the idea and expressed themselves were Hayward Dail, Dr. Pace and J. E. Winslow.

Fordy Harding related how he had been the one who fathered Mr. Babbington's bill for a state orthopedic hospital through the senate and been chairman of the hospital's executive committee for four years. Which remarks left no doubt where Fordy stood on the matter.

Dr. Alfred Schultz called attention to a recent news stories in the papers of David LeRoy Corbett's activities in the field of history and recalled to attention that it was a former Greenville boy whom every one knew was a cripple and whom with some help from friends had gone to college and was now a great success to his state.

Dr. Gilbert Combs called attention to the dramatization of John Haynes Holmes' famous sermon — "The Unknown Soldier Speaks" — at the Pitt Theatre Sunday night.

The club welcomed three new members last night: Billy Nesbitt, Joe Dresbach, and Earl Sellars. The attendance prize given by "Doc" Horne was won by Claude Gaskins. Wyatt Brown, chairman of the Community Service Committee, was in charge of the program. Bill Lee Club president presided.

The washer holds 108 dozen bottles and each is taken through a 25-minute washing process. They pass through three compartments of strong cleansing solution of varied temperature and after being thoroughly rinsed in clear water they are ready to be refilled.

An individual pump has been installed in addition to city water. Both are available for use. Mr. Minges said the individual pump provided more pressure. An automatic stoker provides steam for the plant and a compressor is used to chill the water so it will mix with other ingredients better.

The orange fruit is shipped direct here from Norfolk, where it is bought in refrigerated boats or cars. Mr. Minges said the juice was the purest available, adding that it had not been cooked, thereby taking some of the freshness out.

Claudette Gathers Jade Hollywood, (AP)—Claudette Colbert, fond of jokes, has made a collection of them.

Advertisement for Camel cigarettes. The main headline reads: "—for Digestion's sake—smoke Camels". Below this, there are several testimonials from various people, including H. J. Herbert, A. Spear, and George Reis, all praising the benefits of smoking Camels for digestion. The advertisement also features an image of a man in a suit and a pack of Camel cigarettes. At the bottom, it says "...made from Costlier Tobaccos!" and "Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 19.—(AP)—The stock market declined for losses of fractions to two or more points today.

The general run of the news was constructive but the failure of the list yesterday to respond more than briefly to the Supreme Court's voidance of the Guffey act brought selling at the opening which unsettled the leaders. Trading turned dull later and recoveries were few and feeble.

The late tone was heavy. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

DOCTOR OFFERS FORMULA TO PRODUCE DEEP SLEEP

Chattanooga, Tenn. (AP)—Dr. E. Dunbar Newell says "three hours sleep with all five senses is better than seven hours sleep with only three senses."
 Sleep, he says, is in five intensities—producing, in order named, obliviousness to sight, smell, taste, sound and touch.
 "To one who would sleep well, he advises:
 "Take some very light nourishment and rest, without reading or writing and, perhaps, smoking a cigar, before retiring; have a bedroom that is withdrawn from noises; after retiring banish worries and think of nothing."

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Daniel C. Roper

(By The Associated Press)

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper is the recognized political veteran of President Roosevelt's cabinet.

For the past year, with the latest production statistics on his tongue, and he smilingly has told bankers, manufacturers and merchants that the country is "well on the road to complete business recovery."

His precise way of speaking and conservative manner of championing the "new deal" foremost mission among business groups. He will no doubt continue to spread his message of peace and good-will in the industrial centers as the campaign wars up.

Since he left the South Carolina legislature in 1894 he has moved shuttle-like among government departments in Washington, picking up experience, garnering college degrees, board memberships and club affiliations.

HOUSE COMMITTEE BEGINS TOWNSEND INVESTIGATION

James R. Sullivan, committee counsel, opened the examination. Tolson made his objection when Sullivan based questioned on subcommittee testimony that indicated Dr. Townsend started the Townsend movement to obtain "cold cash."

This, Dr. Townsend denied, as he did other statements by Pierre homason, an acquaintance in South Dakota, who claimed that Dr. Townsend did not believe "this racket will last over two years."

The pension leader, speaking clearly, denied a statement attributed to him "that these old fossils" (referring to Townsend club members) "don't know what it's all about."

More than 100 people, many of the elderly, were in the caucus room. Among the spectators were Townsendites who arrived Sunday from California in the "Townsend caravan" carrying petitions urging congress to enact the Townsend plan into law.
