ENTIRE GROUP OF AIR FORCE IS MASSACRED

Italian Soldiers Meet Death on Way to Addis Ababa

ATTEMPTS MADE FIGHT ATTACKS

Italian Headquarters in Addis Ababa Order Reinforcements Following Incident

Rome, June 2.—(AP)—Italian military authorities said today that 30 air force soldiers on their way to Addis Ababa had been massacred.

The Italian soldiers, it was stated, were with a small column of auto trucks loaded with supplies.

The column was on its way to the airport near the Ethiopian capital at the time of the attack.

Work of the last stand of the Italians against overwhelming numbers was communicated to Addis Ababa by the detachment itself.

While its soldiers fought off the attack the radio operators with the column tapped a call for assistance on his wireless set.

Headquarters in Addis Ababa ordered reinforcements to the assistance of the column, but it arrived too late. The Italian detachment was wiped out to the last man.

Work Underway On Club House for Country Club Here

Building to Contain Large Dance Floor, Lounge Room, Kitchen, Dining Room, Other Features

Work has been started on construction of a new club house at the Greenville Country Club, the building to be 104 feet long with a large ballroom floor.

The club-house will be a two-story building and constructed all of brick and steel. It will replace the one which burned down several years ago and will be modern and complete in practically every detail.

It will contain a lounge room, kitchen, dining room, card room, locker room for women and many other features. Its cost will be approximately $15,000.

The old club house burned three years ago and while a small golf shop has been built, construction of the club house was postponed until recently. The golf shop contains lockers for men and these quarters will continue in the small building.

The country club site is located on the Ayden highway, a short distance from the city.

Cyrus McCormick Claimed By Death from Heart Attack

Former Chairman of Board of International Harvester Succumbs Following Brief Illness

Chicago, June 2.—(AP)—Cyrus Hall McCormick, 77, former chairman of the board of the International Harvester Company, died today after a short illness.

McCormick was stricken with a heart attack Saturday. A number of efforts to save him were made and he was placed in an oxygen tent.

His wife Mrs. Alice Holt McCormick, nd his eldest son, Cyrus, Jr., were at the bedside.

The capitalist was the son of the inventor of the reaper, CYRUS H. McCormick. When the inventor's son retired as chairman of "Harvester" in 1935 it was one of the nation's principal manufacturing concerns with 18 plants in the United States and abroad.

LOYAL TROOPS IN NICARAGUA OVERWHELMED

Forces Reported To Have Raised White Flag Over Fort

NATIONAL ARMY IN REBELLION

President Still Holds Out in Capital While Diplomatic Corps Seek Settlement

Managua, Nicaragua, June 2.—(AP)—National army leaders in rebellion against the government of President Juan B. Sacasa announced today loyal troops had raised a white flag over the fort Acoasaco at Leon.

The defenders of Leon had held out for three days against troops commanded by General Anastasio Somoza, chief of the national army.

General Somoza himself was reported to be entering the fort to accept the surrender.

The fort was the final military objective of the national guard. The guard issued a bulletin declaring peace prevailed elsewhere throughout the 14 departments of the Central American republic and former authorities were being removed "due to the wish of the public."

President Sacasa, with his own bodyguard, still held out in the presidential palace, but an armistice persisted in the capital while the diplomatic corps searched for a practical settlement between the government and the national guard.

FARM BUREAU PLANS PICNIC

Organization Making Extensive Plans for Rally June 10

According to reports coming from the North Carolina Farm Bureau office, plans are going forward for the big rally and picnic dinner at Third Street school grounds on June 10.

Prominent speakers from over the State have been secured to address the farmers on this occasion. A good response has been had from the 40 County Farm Bureaus in this section of the State and it is expected that more than one hundred and fifty delegates will attend the early morning conference on the aims and objectives of the Farm Bureau.

E. P. Arnold, executive secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau announced that in addition to this meeting, arrangements have been made with President Edward A. O'Neal to make four addresses in the Piedmont area in the interest of the Farm Bureau. The first address will be made on June 29 at Greensboro. Other addresses will be made at Statesville, Charlotte, and Fayetteville, in a drive to enlist all the farmers in the Farm Bureau, in order that they may develop a Farm Bureau and secure legislation protecting same.

Out of the road drive in the East and the Campaign in the Piedmont area, it is anticipated by bureau officials, that some twenty five or thirty thousand farmers will line up with the organization.

Below is the program to be carried out at the Third Street School grounds on June 10:

Morning Session—G. E. Trevathin, vice-president Pitt County Farm Bureau, presiding.

1. Address by Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker—11:35 to 11:50 a. m.—"Pitt County Farm Women's Program."

BRITISH SECRETARY IN SCANDAL

J. H. Thomas, former colonial secretary, who resigned from the British cabinet headed by Stanley Baldwin (right), was charged today with disclosing budget information which was used for private gain. (Associated Press Photo).

Former Secretary Thomas Blamed For Budget Leak

Accused of Disclosing Information For Private Gain

London, June 2.—(AP)—The budget tribunal announced today it found J. H. Thomas, resigned colonial secretary, had disclosed the secret of the British budget previous to submission in the House of Commons.

The tribunal reports stated there was an unauthorized disclosure of the budget information by Thomas and that use was made of this information by two men for the purpose of private gain.

The two men named were Alfred Bates, advertising agency executive and Sir Alfred Butt, a member of parliament and horse racing enthusiast.

The tribunal, headed by Justice Porter, cleared all civil employees and printers and all cabinet ministers gave Thomas, of having disclosed any of the budget secrets.

It cleared the former colonial secretary's son, Leslie M. Thomas, of all blame.

Simmons Declares He Is Supporting Dr. R. W. McDonald

Admits Writing Letter to F. M. Wooten of This City of His Intentions Support Candidate

New Bern, N. C., June 2.—(AP)—"Absolutely correct" was the reply today of former Senator P. M. Simmons when asked if he had been quoted correctly by state papers in stating that he is supporting Dr. Ralph W. McDonald for governor in the June 6 primary.

He said he expressed his preference for McDonald before his announcement of candidacy.

Senator Simmons declined to give his reasons for favoring McDonald stating that "these reasons are entirely my own business." He admitted writing F. M. Wooten of Greenville reiterating his stand for McDonald and added that he had state his view fully to the Doctor on a visit to him some weeks ago.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER DRAMATIZE The report that at least one Supreme Court Justice will resign before the November elections thrills G. O. P. supporters, though they figure it too good to be true. Latest word has been that the conservative jurists were undergoing a stiff health regime so they could hold on until after FDR left the White House.

But a certain member has "informed" friends that his age and poor health may combine to force him into retirement. Moreover, he feels that the court has withstood assaults on the constitution and that none will succeed in the future. The Republicans are praying that he will step down during the summer, for they feel that a vacancy will personalize and dramatize the constitutional issue.

The G. O. P. would headline the demand that President Roosevelt, who would undoubtedly not fill the vacancy until after election—say that type of man he intended to name to the bench. Anti-New Dealers would of course predict the selection of a radical or at least a Frankfurter apostle. They could then wage the home-and-mother-and-flag and -constitution campaign which had planned until Mr. Roosevelt outsmarted them. (Continued on page four)

NEW ESTIMATE REVENUE BILL $829,000,000

Senate Finance Committee Boosts Treasury Estimate

HOUSE FIGURES ARE SURPASSED

Committee Majority Describes Treasury Estimates as 'Excessively Conservative'

Washington, June 2.—(AP)—Boosting treasury estimates, which were described as "excessively conservative," a senate finance committee majority today estimated the yield of its compromise tax bill at $829,000,000 a year, of which $82,000,000 would be temporary revenue.

This is $26,000,000 more than the house bill. The majority committee report said, "and will amply take care of the permanent revenue of $62,000,000 requested by the President and the temporary revenue for the next fiscal year."

The report was filed as Senate Republicans assembled to determine their attitude toward the controversial legislation and the Senate itself prepared to open debate.

Preceding the filing of majority views on the tax measure, two minority reports had assailed the bill. In one Senator Hastings (R., Del.), accused the government of "extraneous" and said:

"I am opposed to any increase in taxes until there be shown some affirmative evidence on the part of the President and the majority of congress of real appreciation of their respective responsibilities to the tax payers of this and future generations."

Senators Black (D. Ala.) and La Follette (P. Wis.) issued another minority report, describing the measure as one which would yield a "wholly unnecessary and deadly blow" as small corporations and small stockholders. They favor a measure more nearly approximating administration suggestions for steep graduated taxes on undistributed income of corporations.

Wis.) issued another minority report, describing the measure as one which would yield a "wholly unnecessary and deadly blow" as small corporations and small stockholders. They favor a measure more nearly approximating administration suggestions for steep graduated taxes on undistributed income of corporations.

Anna Jenkins was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, but prayer for judgment was continued.

Geneva Little convicted of a similar charge was given a 60-day sentence, suspended upon provision she pay the costs of court and remain of good behavior for two years.

Emer Wiggins was fined $25 and costs upon entering a plea of guilty to operating an automobile in a careless and reckless manner.

Central Davis was given eight months on the roads upon conviction of larceny.

Eljah Williams was fined $10 and costs for being drunk on the highway.

Montie Barnes was given a 12-month road term upon conviction of possessing liquor for sale. H. A. appeared and bond was set at $500.

Milton Cherry was given a six-months road term upon conviction of larceny.

News Behind The News

Washington, June 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Marion A. Zioncheck, 21-year-old bride, who left her husband of a month last Saturday, spent a half-hour with him today at Gallinger Hospital where the Washington State Representative was lodged by police for mental observation.

Mrs. Zioncheck talked with Dr. Joseph Gilbert, District of Columbia alienist.

Mrs. Zioncheck gave Dr. Gilbert an address where she has been living since walking out on her husband in the midst of a hilarious party in the Zioncheck apartment.

Found in Chicago

William Webster Theile (above), 15, son of a New York financier and descendant of Daniel Webster, was found today following a search since May 3. When discovered he declared he was fed up on society life. (Associated Press Photo).

MISSING SCION IS FOUND SAFE

William Webster Theile Discovered Selling Magazines

Chicago, June 2.—(AP)—William Webster Theile, 15, son of a New York financier, who had been missing from his home since May 3, was found today, the Chicago Daily said in a copyright story.

The boy was in good health and making his living by selling magazines. It reported that his parents had been notified and were on their way here to return him.

"I was fed up on society life and decided to make my own way in the world," the boy was quoted. "Now I guess I'll have to go back to breakfast in bed and chauffeured driver automobiles."

The boy disappeared from his luxurious home on a private island in Long Island sound near Mamaroneck, N. Y., while supposedly on his way to meet a tennis engagement. The son of William Theile, president of the Atlantic Investing corporation, he was a descendant on his mother's side of Daniel Webster.

His finding here ended a long search which centered mainly on the east coast.

The boy, the newspaper said, was living in a $5 a week hotel room on Chicago's north side. When found he at first expressed unwillingness to return to his home. When told that his mother was ill because of grief over his disappearance he consented to return.

PLAN TO PROBE DEATH OF LONG

Hill Appropriates $100,000 to Carry on Investigation

Baton Rouge, La., June 2.—(AP)—The Louisiana House of Representatives today adopted without dissent a concurrent resolution calling for an investigation of the fatal shooting of Senator Huey P. Long.

It approved without discussion a proposal by Representative Ben R. Simpson of Caddo to create a fixed members' legislation commission to inquire into the shooting of Long on September 8, 1935 in a State House corridor.

Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, young Baton Rouge specialist, who killed Long was shot to death by bodyguards. The physician's father, Dr. Carl Adam Weiss, in a letter to the late Governor O. K. Allen insisted Long's death followed a "personal encounter."

The report went to the Senate for concurring vote. It carried a $100,000 appropriation to defray the costs of the investigation.

JAPAN CLAIMS CHINA FORCES DECLARED WAR

South China Faction To Engage National Government

EARLIER REPORT IS REPUDATED

Canton at First Understood Have Declared War Against Japanese

Shanghai, June 2.—(AP)—Japanese authorities announced late tonight that the south China government at Canton had declared war against the national Chinese government demanding the latter order a national war against Japan.

The Japanese, who earlier said they understood the Canton government had declared war against Japan, received further advices from Canton saying that instead of declaring war on Japan the Canton government had issued a manifesto.

This manifesto denounced Japanese aggression in North China and demanded that an immediate declaration of war against Japan on the part of the national government at Nanking.

In this latter announcement the Japanese reiterated that Canton had declared war against Nanking.

The Japanese said a proclamation announcing the establishment of an independent government at Canton was imminent.

Chinese political sources, however, denied any knowledge of an independent movement in South China and branded the Japanese report as "propaganda."

Chinese authorities in Shanghai stated the relations at the present time between Canton and Nanking had "never been better."

They added: "Canton and Nanking are on the verge of a complete union."

Despite the Chinese denial the Japanese reports persisted.

Greenville Native Boosts Centennial

Heber B. Tripp, native of Greenville, but for the past 15 years a resident of El Paso, Texas, was in Greenville today greeting old friends and at the same time boosting his adopted home. El Paso and the Texas Centennial Exposition, that opens in Dallas June 6.

While he did not wear the ten gallon hat now being worn by most Texans to give added publicity to the exposition, he was sporting the centennial necktie and likewise brought with him a similar tie to present to R. L. Powell, secretary of the local chamber of commerce.

Tripp said that on his trip to Greenville he had distributed a number of the ties to chamber of commerce secretaries and that he had received a cordial welcome in every city in which he had stopped to put in a good word for the exposition.

Mr. Tripp left Greenville more than 25 years ago. Since that time he has made his home first in Mexico City and Cuba and 15 years ago moved to El Paso where he is engaged in the construction business.

Seeking To Show Poole's Execution Planned At Meet

Testimony Given by Detective Shows That Death Was Arranged On Night Before Body Found

SEKING... Detroit, June 2.—(AP)—Testimony intended to show that the "execution" of Charles A. Poole was definitively decided upon the night before his body was found in a ditch on a county roadway was introduced today in the examination of 13 of 15 members of the Black Legion charged with abduction and murder.

The testimony was given by Detective Sergeant John Harvill who told of a conversation with Dayton Dean, admitted Black Legion "executioner."

Harvill quoted Dean as "telling him that Harvey Davis called a 'colonel' in the Black Legion," and "one of the 13 in court today said: 'Whether we use a rope or not, it will be a one-way ride.'"

The remark was made, the detective said while Davis and Dean were enroute to the meeting hall at which action against Poole was decided upon. At the hall, Harvill said, Dean told him Davis and another defendant, Ervin Davis, called up a rope and placed it in a sack.

Dean has confessed he shot Poole believing "that" was what was expected of me" when other members of the night riding band who had the rope did not put in an appearance.

SPORT SLANTS

Tucked away in the annals of American sport are numerous stories of famous athletes of yesterday and today who achieved fame despite early handicaps of physical weakness or serious accidents.

Conspicuous members of this "spinach cult" of comebackers are Glenn Cunningham, Olympic track star; Billy Grant, the bantam member of the American Davis cup team; Bill Walker, St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher; Charles Atlas, the world's most perfectly developed man; Bobby Jones, erstwhile emperor of golf; Annette Kellerman and Johnny Weissmuller, famed swimmers; George Matison, outstanding candidate for the Olympic gymnastic team, and many more.

From discouraging getaways as weaklings and ambulance cargo, these modern Hercules and Miners have bounced back to fame, coaxing their stamina and rigging their unprepossessing frames with steel-spring muscles.

Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas flier, one of this country's greatest distance runners, was badly burned by the explosion of a rural school stove when he was 8 years old. His older brother died of burns received in the same explosion, but Glenn began to rebuild himself physically while attending high school in his home town of Elkhart, Kan. He finally fashioned a body as hard as nails and a powerful pair of legs on which he made a speedy ascent to cinder-path fame. In 1934 he captained the American track and field team which toured Europe and that fall he was awarded the Sullivan medal as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

Take the case of Bryan M. Grant, Jr., who has shown as much if not more stamina on the country's tennis courts than any player in the history of the sport despite his pint-size stature. Grant, who once pooh-poohed the pastime of tennis, is self-developed also. At 4 years of age he contracted a serious case of pneumonia and 10 years later couldn't break an egg with a tennis racket! But, at 15, he won the Southern men's singles championship and has since marched in to the tennis hall of fame. He's the "Little-Bill" Johnston of the current court era.

Bill Walker, pitching ace of the St. Louis Cardinals and one of the standouts of the National League's spring drive, is another exhibit in this gallery. Walker, who plunged into May with a 4-0 shutout victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers, says he was troubled with a leaky heart when he was a youngster in grade school, and had to take things easy.

But he plugged away at his training and now he's burning 'em over the corners in the big leagues and carries 190 pounds on his 6-foot-1 frame.

Annette Kellerman, the first mermaid to win world-wide acclaim, was the despair of her parents when 5 years old. Infantile paralysis had left her so badly crippled that braces were necessary from her hips down. Doctors tried all kinds of cures, but to no avail. A friend one day suggested swimming and though she had to take 17 lessons, the exercise put the zest of life back into her body and she junked the braces. Not only did Annette Kellerman become a champion mermaid, but also America's Venus.

A close parallel to the Kellerman case is that of Charles Atlas, the physical culturist, who at 16 was a 97-pound weakling and was warned by doctors not even to climb stairs. But consistent exercise gradually conditioned his body until on two different occasions he won from all comers the title of the world's most perfectly developed man. Distance swimming and running are two of his hobbies and today, at 43, he can run 10 miles in slightly over 58 minutes.

Johnny Weissmuller, one-time holder of all free-style swimming records and twice an Olympic hero, was physically weak and as a youngster caught every illness that visited his neighborhood. Swimming gave Weissmuller the envied physique which cast him in the Tarzan role.

Then there is Bobby Jones, the Atlanta par-buster who in 1930 scored golf's "grand slam" when he won the American and British open and amateur titles in one conquering march. Jones started life with an oversized head, a frail body and starting knees. Moreover, he had a serious digestive derangement which caused his parents and physicians much worry. The now stocky and robust Jones did not eat any food until he was 5 years old. But daily exercise in sandlot baseball and tennis, and then years and years of golfing developed his body and gave him competitive fire and zip.

Because of his lack of physical development, George Matison, now a University of Minnesota senior and prospect for the Olympic gymnastic team, was cut from his college's freshman football squad. Minnesota coaches after a quick appraisal of his slight build advised him to take up a sport less strenuous. Matison, by determination, overcame his physical obstacles and is now about to reach his goal—a position on the Olympic team.

at 12:00 o'clock, Noon, on Friday, July 3, 1936 the following described real property, to-wit:

"That certain piece, parcel or lot of land, located, lying and being in what is known as 'Perkins Town' in West Greenville, North Carolina, and known as the Charity Williamson lot, and being the second tract described in deed from H. A. For Digestion's sake...

SMOKE CAMELS

Smoking Camels stimulates the flow of digestive fluids... increases alkalinity

Life sometimes pushes us so hard that we feel too worn-down really to enjoy eating. Hurry and mental strain reduce the flow of the digestive fluids. Smoking Camels increases the flow of digestive fluids... alkaline digestive fluids... so vital to the enjoyment of food and to good digestion. Enjoy Camels... for their cheering "lift"... for their aid to digestion. Camels set you right!

Behind the Scenes in The Brown Derby—the Famous Rendezvous of the Hollywood Celebrities

The chef is putting the final touches to a Lobster Thermidor, while within the restaurant proper the glittering stars of Hollywood gather to dine and to enjoy Camels. In the glamorous life of Hollywood, Camels play a major rôle. The supreme mildness and flavor of their costlier tobaccos have made Camels an outstanding favorite. As Mr. Robert H. Cobb, the man behind The Brown Derby's success and host at one time or another to every great personality in Hollywood, remarks: "Camels are the choice of a great majority of our patrons."

SPRINT CHAMPION of the U. S., Willie Honeman (right), has spun around the boards against the leading sprinters of the world. "I relish my food," he says—"smoke Camels. They help my digestion to proceed smoothly."

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic... than any other popular brand.

Club Women's Summer School. The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, with the cooperative assistance of Greater University, is putting on a two-day summer school at Chapel Hill, June 18 and 19, for club women.

Unlike the institutes of former years, when invitations were limited to officers and chairmen of departments, this one is open to all members of federated clubs in the state.

The purpose of the institute is to provide for every club woman information, instruction and training which will equip her for more efficient service in any field of club activity.

Toward that end the program there "Climbing Up the Golden Stairs of the Federation" has been developed under the four topics: "Evolution" demonstrating the growth from the organization to leadership of a local club, the State Federation and the General Federation; "The Federation Today," presenting the opportunities along with the problems of the times; "A Balanced Perspective," treating of club programs, year-books and finances; and "The Federation of the Future," depicting the anticipated cooperation of all club women—rural and urban, junior and senior.

The first session of the institute will open at 9:30 Thursday morning, June 18. The last session will close at 3:30 Friday afternoon, June 19. There will be a dance that evening given for the summer school students of the University, to which all are invited, and the Junior club women have a special invitation.

All Junior Woman's Club members that are interested in attending call Mrs. Vance Perkins, phone 814-JX.

CREDITS HOEY WITH SECTION

Writer Says Shelby Man Ahead in South-eastern Counties

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILLE. Raleigh, June 2.—Clyde R. Hoey has the edge on both Dr. Ralph W. McDonald and Sandy Graham in the 18 counties in the southeastern part of the state, although several of these counties it is admitted to be a neck-and-neck race between the three leading candidates, this correspondent found on a trip into most of these within the past three days. From a cross-section of opinion heard in these counties concerning the trend in them or in neighboring counties, indications are that Hoey will be high man in nine, Graham will be high in five and McDonald in only four.

The counties now credited to Hoey are Harnett, Scotland, Robeson, Pender, Onslow, Wayne, Craven, Carteret and Pamlico. Those credited to Graham are New Hanover, Brunswick, Hoke, Duplin and Johnston.

Dr. McDonald is regarded as still in the lead in Cumberland, Columbus, Lenoir and Jones counties. While conceding that Dr. McDonald is probably in the lead in Columbus county at the present time, the Hoey forces maintain that his lead is so narrow that there is a possibility it will go for Hoey in the primary Saturday. The Graham forces also maintain they have a good chance to put Sandy in first place in both Cumberland and Lenoir counties by Saturday. Although they concede that McDonald is probably in the lead there now, the McDonald leaders maintain, however, that they will be able to hold their lead and make the professor high man in Harnett, Scotland, Robeson, Columbus, New Hanover, Brunswick, Jones, Lenoir, Johnston and Carteret counties, or in nine of these counties.

Political leaders in these counties who are in close touch with conditions and sentiment in them and in adjoining counties, agree for the most part that the past two weeks or more Dr. McDonald has been slipping rapidly in most of these 18 counties and that while he would undoubtedly have carried at least ten of the 18 two or three weeks ago that he will do well to carry the four counties conceded to him—Cumberland, Columbus, Lenoir and Jones. Those to whom this correspondent talked in Fayetteville and other counties in Cumberland county agreed that Graham had an unusually strong and militant organization, composed chiefly of war veterans, and that there was a strong possibility that this organization might succeed in bringing Sandy through in first place and shoving McDonald back to second place next Saturday. It was generally agreed that Hoey could not do more than run in third place in Cumberland.

In New Hanover county the militant Graham organization, with the veterans as its nucleus, is credited with having made a very deep dent in the McDonald following so that all but the more enthusiastic Hoey and McDonald leaders are now conceding New Hanover to Graham. Even the Hoey headquarters here is privately conceding that Graham will probably carry New Hanover. On the other hand, while Columbus county is now listed for McDonald, the belief prevails here in both the Graham and Hoey ranks that Columbus will probably give Hoey a slight lead over McDonald in the voting Saturday.

Graham is generally conceded to have more progress in Johnston county than in any with the exception of New Hanover while even the McDonald workers concede that he is giving them plenty of trouble there. The Hoey forces concede Johnston to Graham. It is also generally agreed that Sandy has picked up a lot of strength in Lenoir recently, especially since Dr. J. Y. Joyner of Lenoir came out for him with the result that many now think he has a good chance to be high man in the county. Hoey's biggest gains in the past week or two days have been in Harnett, Robeson, Pender and Wayne, according to those consulted in these counties. Though still claimed by the McDonald forces, most observers agree that Hoey has made exceptional progress there in the last week and that he will now undoubtedly lead. Though he is slated to lead by a small margin over McDonald in Robeson, the belief in many quarters now is that Hoey will get a clear majority over the other candidates in Robeson by Saturday. Pender, regarded as a McDonald county until two weeks ago, is now regarded as safely in the fold for Hoey, as is Wayne. The militant work of the Hoey and Graham supporters is credited with having brought about much of this change.

BAILEY BACKS PUBLIC WORKS

Senator Supporting Appropriation Of $250,000,000

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, June 2.—Senator Josiah W. Bailey is vigorously supporting the provision for an additional $250,000,000 appropriation for public works as now contained in the deficiency appropriation act now before the senate, he advised this bureau today in a special statement concerning it, since he believes it will help greatly in the financing of additional public works projects in North Carolina.

"I am supporting this provision earnestly and hopefully and believe it will be adopted," Senator Bailey said. "If adopted, it will provide a revolving fund of $250,000,000 for the making of grants, or of loans and grants, to aid in the financing of our public works projects in North Carolina. We have about 200 of these projects, each of which has been well prepared under the supervision of Dr. H. C. Baily of Chapel Hill, who is Public Works Administrator in North Carolina. I am very hopeful that this legislation will enable us to obtain proper allotments to construct these projects. After all the fine work done by way of preparing these projects I think we should go ahead. They will not only provide additional employment, but will also increase the demand for materials and will prove of real permanent value."

The provision of the act relating to this new public works fund are that the Administrator of Public Works, upon the discretion of the President, and in addition to any funds now available under the law may use any sum not to exceed $250,000,000 received from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, pursuant to the provisions of Pub-

COALITION: Although Gerald Smith's offer of a third party presidential nomination on a silver and share-the-wealth platform did not tempt Senator Borah, Huey Long's evangelistic har has not abandoned hope of "ganging" the Townsendites, Coughlinites and his crowd against President Roosevelt.

Mr. Smith has found Doctor Townsend and Father Coughlin's spokesmen receptive to his suggestion of a new party. It would be based on such issues as old age pensions along Townsend lines, share-the-wealth schemes and cheap money for farmers as proposed by the Frazer-Lemke bill.

Lack of a popular figure as a candidate is the only obstacle to formation of a financial leftist party which might damage the President in a dozen states. Although conservatives abhor the Smith-Townsend-Coughlin heresies, it is understood they would finance the movement if it threatened to defeat Mr. Roosevelt. The money appears to be forthcoming—but not the man on horseback.

CONTROL: Senator Capper's prediction that prohibition will return in ten years does not seem so far-fetched to officials who know the inside story of the liquor interests' persistent violation of the spirit of the law.

The brewers failed to solve the question of cut-throat competition at recent conferences and have fallen into a dog-eat-dog squabble. They are ignoring regulations which prohibit tied-in houses, price rebates and advertising favoritism. Though better behaved, the distillers are cheating and chiseling wherever and whenever they can get away with it.

RIVALRY: Although government agencies cannot afford to quarrel publicly, Postmaster General Farley, detectives regret that Congress did not force a showdown between them and G-Man J. Edgar Hoover. The testimony would have made sensational but disillusioning reading.

Gypsy Weather

BY MARGARET BELL HOUSTON

SYNOPSIS: Rupert Joris, now in the Adirondacks, has married Hope Devine an hour after meeting her. Behind Hope there is a mystery, but in spite of the mystery and her many suspicious surrounding circumstances, Dirk Joris loves Hope. Dirk is Rupert's younger brother. Now, just after Dirk and Hope have confessed their love for each other, Dirk returns from a business trip to Albany to find that Hope has disappeared, leaving notes for himself and Rupert. There is nothing to show where she has gone.

Chapter 36 THE COSSACK

No clue—nothing. Perhaps Rupert's note held something. Briefly hesitating, Dirk tore it open. She had written:

Dear Rupert: Thank you for all you have done. It would not be right for me to stay longer. The five thousand dollars you gave me when I came, is ample reward. I accept it as such, and will never trouble you. HOPE.

Gone without a trace. But Hope must be found, for Rupert's sake, as well as his own. Rupert, Graves had reported that morning, had been asking for her, desired urgently to see her, though he would not consent to her coming on to Old Forge.

They would bring Rupert home the moment it was safe, because of his desire to be near Hope. Apparently he had emerged from his illness with some new resolve, some godding sense of duty, with even-though Dirk's mind veered from such a conclusion—some new affection. Such change was not unusual after violent illness.

Dirk telephoned to Logan who restrained him from going to the Araby to question Fazzini. "That's my quarry," Logan said. "But I don't question him."

He asked for Mrs. Joris's home address—"Though it's not likely she's gone there."—And said he would report next morning.

Dirk went to Hope's room. Impossible to feel that it would not furnish some trace, some betrayal of what she had meant to do.

One thing was absent—the guitar. It had lain in its case on the floor of the kas. Dirk thought of the revolver, and opened the wall safe. The revolver was there. She had forgotten, or abandoned it.

He went about the room, knocking on the walls, seeking for some spring, some hollow sound, that might indicate a sliding panel. There was no sign of either.

He could not stay in the house, but got into his car and drove into Manhattan, past the Araby. Opposite the Araby was a Russian restaurant whose doorman, dressed in red coat and Cossack boots, contributed a dash of color to the crowded sidewalk. Dirk, driving slowly, chanced to catch the doorman's eye, and that vivid personage winked, almost imperceptibly. The Cossack, tonight, at least, was Dinwiddie.

So they were, at work on what, to Dinwiddie, was something of a lark. Dirk could himself see the grimness of the joke.

LOGAN found Hope on the day before Rupert was to return. "You were right," he said, as he drove with Dirk to the house in which he was staying, a house in whose neighborhood Dinwiddie was at the moment lurking watchfully. "You were right when you said this Fazzini might not be Tony, but one of his brothers."

"He's not Tony—I know that as soon as Dinwiddie showed him to me. Dinwiddie bought the doorman's job at the Russian Bear, and I've been inside eating caviar or waiting on tables. At ten o'clock this morning this man came out—the one Dinwiddie says Mrs. Joris went to see."

"He and several bags hopped a taxi, and I hopped another. Looked like he was bound for a train, but I figured—since I was pretty certain she wasn't in Fazzini's house—that he wouldn't go without seeing her."

"He didn't. He drove straight to this house in Old Chelsea. She was evidently on the look-out for him, for she and another girl, came out as soon as he got there. The other girl looked Scandinavian, or maybe Russian. A blond, ugly and strong looking, with bushy hair and knobby legs. I'd seen her before, coming out of Fazzini's place."

"They got in the taxi with the man, and they all drove to the dock. The man and the blond went aboard the 'Forsas,' a Finnish freighter, and Mrs. Joris came back alone, a surface car. I saw her go into the house, then I phoned you. I didn't leave to meet you till Dinwiddie came."

"There's the place, I don't see aroused curiosity as to what service he performed to deserve such reward."

This situation accounts for the President's insistence that Congress shift liquor control authority from the Treasury to a three-man commission that a separate, full-time agency is needed to keep the best and whiskey boys under control. Otherwise, it may be the beginning of the end of another "no-le experiment."

RIVALRY: Although government agencies cannot afford to quarrel publicly, Postmaster General Farley, detectives regret that Congress did not force a showdown between them and G-Man J. Edgar Hoover. The testimony would have made sensational but disillusioning reading.

The fracas started when Mr. Hoover charged that the postal inspectors had not aided his men in capturing a gangster on the loose. Rep. Short of Missouri, a G-man admirer, then introduced a resolution asking for an investigation of the allegations. The idea was to show that other government agencies were not cooperating because of jealousy of Hoover's headlines.

But the postal inspectors were prepared to prove that Public Enemy Alvin Karpis was turned up by DISCUSSING PROBLEMS OF INTEREST TO THIS COMMUNITY. IN ALL CASES NAMES MUST ACCOMPANY ANY COMMUNICATION. Please Make Your Discussion As Short As Possible.

OUR POLITICAL RACKET It is our common practice to refer to individual political candidates as buying their office. Is this criticism justified so long as we set the price for the election of our officials? Is it not a fact that the majority of our leading politicians are in the business for the high dollar? Are they not helping you and I to sell our birthright? Are we not sapping the very life out of Jeffersonian Democracy? Have we not lowered our ideals and standard till it is well nigh impossible for a statesman to be elected to office? If we cannot find some way to prevent a candidate from buying his seat in office. If we cannot prevent our politicians from exacting money from our candidates—Democratic government will cease—graft and corruption will prevail. MARK H. SMITH.

their own outfit rather than the G-men. Although Karpis became a Public Enemy almost two years ago, he successfully evaded capture until recently. But last fall he made the mistake of participating in a mail robbery, and the post office dicks got on his trail. They found his hideaway and tipped it off to the G-men, who had a much more serious charge against him. That's why the Department of Justice asked that the Short resolution be tabled.

New York BY JAMES McMULLIN MOTIVE: There's more behind the boom for Owen Young as Democratic candidate for governor of New York than meets the eye. Leading Democratic business men are urging FDR's support for Mr. Young, but the President hasn't committed himself in any way as yet. Mr. Young also declines to state his position, but the inference is that he will not reject the office if it seeks him.

Young backers have used two arguments in soliciting Mr. Roosevelt's endorsement. One is that a purely "political" Democratic nominee would cinch a Republican victory in New York—especially if he had even a remote affiliation with Tammany. This is supposed to deter Attorney General John J. Bennett at present. The other is that a man of Mr. Young's standing would attract many Republican votes and thereby enhance the chances for Democratic success. All of which is well enough, but the backstage motive of Mr. Young's promoters has not been revealed to the White House. The real point is that the industrialist's nomination would enable as complete a disassociation as possible between the New York State Democratic campaign and the national Democratic campaign. Anti-New Deal Democrats would find this highly desirable. They figure they might then be able to elect a business man governor of their own party without at the same time carrying New York for Roosevelt—and from their viewpoint nothing could be sweeter.

SUBTLE: Herbert Hoover has disavowed intentions of "stopping" any candidate at Cleveland, but for all that New York insiders have reason to believe that the ex-President would still prefer some other nominee to Landon. On his last visit to the metropolis Mr. Hoover made a point of sounding out his friends about ex-governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois. He managed quietly to revive a lot of interest in Lowden as a possible compromise candidate and indirectly to infuse fresh hope in the anti-Landon forces.

FDR WITHHOLDS MAIN ATTACKS

No Political Bombshelling Expected Anytime Soon

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The prediction that President Roosevelt would compete with the Republican national convention for publicity, and seek to blanket it, seems likely to qualify as the season's worst political guess.

There were at least two good reasons, all the time, for being certain he would attempt no political bombshelling in the speeches he was booked to make in the south and west during Cleveland convention week.

One was that that hardly would be the time, when the Republican picture was changing from day to day, to take up major campaign issues. It would be too much like shooting at a rapidly-moving target.

The other reason was that it would take something like a super-human effort to dislodge any national convention of a great party from page one. The reading public likes its conventions too much.

No one versed either in politics or publicity was surprised when it developed that Mr. Roosevelt proposed to confine his speeches to more or less philosophic discussions of past historic events, and leave the event at Cleveland for future reference.

Much manifestly futile speculation likewise is being expended on the question whether the President, or anyone else, will insist that Governor Lehman of New York reverse his decision and run for reelection.

If the draft is exercised on Mr. Lehman, it will not be done for some time. It would be the worst politics in the world for the governor to say one week he wouldn't run, and then say the next he would.

Washington has been hearing a lot about another Democratic governor, but in a different way.

In Indiana, a state executive is ineligible for reelection. Insistent word has come out of that state, however, that Governor McNutt is to be kept in the national picture, one way or another.

Some time back McNutt partisans were pointing out what a fine candidate for vice-president he would make. Nothing came of that and then the talk turned to his qualifications for a place in the cabinet.

The latest and best prediction is that Senator Minton will be elevated to the federal bench after the election, and McNutt appointed senator to succeed him.

Democratic headquarters strategists have been presented with a campaign hint in the keynote speech of Senator Clark before the Missouri state convention.

Instead of lambasting the Republicans, Senator Clark largely ignored them. He praised Mr. Roosevelt, and then turned loose on John J. Raskob, the DuPonts and the Liberty League as the real enemy.

Whether or not they adopt similar tactics in the national campaign, party headquarters men are vastly interested in the suggestion.

Herry P. Fletcher is preparing to take leave of duty he doubtless will rejoice to see on other shoulders.

Two years ago he was chosen as chairman of the Republican national committee. He didn't know a great deal about politics. The party was badly divided, and it was essential that much reorganization work be done without trading on anyone's toes or being partial to any faction or candidate.

The position had no future, as everyone expected the new nominee to pick his own chairman. All Fletcher had to do was to raise a lot of money, get a broken machine under way, and add showers of brickbats.

There is no more thankless job than this, but Fletcher has come through it smiling.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Senator Dickinson of Iowa, who in recent weeks may have felt disappointed at the reception given his New Deal criticisms, used a peculiar technic when he decided to name names in his latest WPA attack.

Perhaps it only goes to show again that "names make news," a newspaper axiom especially pertinent in campaign years. The names the Iowa senator named were those of Senator Reynolds and Representative Doughton, both of North Carolina.

Dickinson took the senate floor late one afternoon and began reading a speech. It was his first since the noted "dog food" declaration which let him in for all manner of raillery.

As he began reading, senator began filing out, one or two at a time. The speech was read hurriedly into the record, and the senator seemed to make no effort to impress his points on an audience composed mostly of empty senatorial desks.

His speech included the reading of a pair of letters from unnamed members of congress offering to intercede for WPA jobs for unnamed applicants from an unnamed state, provided they obtained Democratic endorsement. Dickinson sought to show politics in the WPA. The speech didn't bite very deeply into page one territory.

The page one invasion began two days later when Dickinson's office gave out names of the senator and representative allegedly concerned.

Governor Lehman of New York has presented the Democrats with an important "I-do-not-choose-to-run" personality to balance the one the Republicans found in former President Hoover.

Despite positive assertions by both that they are not candidates for election again to the offices they have held, there is widespread belief that a draft movement would pull either back into harness.

Governor Lehman's announcement immediately prompted speculation that it might be a Democratic deep-sea maneuver somehow intended to affect the Republican convention now about two weeks off.

Vote For CLYDE HOEY For Governor

Opposed To Putting Tax Back On Homes And Farms

Mr. Hoey is generally considered the ablest public speaker in North Carolina. He knows every part of the State and every condition of life within its borders. His ability is readily admitted by everybody. For more than a quarter of a century he has been a leader in every movement in North Carolina in the interest of Progress and development of the State and the improvement of the moral and civic life of its citizens.

He is keenly interested in schools. North Carolina was the only State in the Union that kept her schools open during the depression and paid her teachers every month in cash.

- FIRST—He stands for the right of labor to organize and engage in COLLECTIVE BARGAINING.
- SECOND—He's for FREE SCHOOL BOOKS thus aiding the children of the needy.
- THIRD—He is for OLD-AGE PENSIONS, UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE and the SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM.
- FOURTH—He is in favor of REDUCING AUTOMOBILE LICENSE TAX COSTS.
- FIFTH—He is 100% BEHIND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT in his program.
- SIXTH—He is in favor of immediately REMOVING THE SALES TAX FROM THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE, including foodstuffs and meals at hotels and restaurants.

FIRES CAUSING MUCH DAMAGE

Eastern Portion of State Experiencing Numerous Blazes

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, June 2.—(AP)—Forest fires, especially smoldering flames in the peaty soil, have caused extensive damage in Eastern North Carolina during recent weeks, according to reports to the Department of Conservation and Development.

Some of the worst fires have been burning for weeks, often below the surface of the ground, where it has been almost impossible to check its advance, particularly in counties where there are no organizations charged with the duty of forest fire protection.

Fire centers have been in the White Oak pocus in Onslow and Jones counties, in the so-called open lands of Carteret county, in the vicinity of Lake Pungo in Washington and Hyde counties.

W. C. McCormick, assistant State forester, in charge of forest fire control, has been in Eastern North Carolina several days to assist in the suppression of fires in organized counties and to advise with landowners in counties where no organized help is available.

A representative of the U. S. Forest Service who has made an inspection of the areas hardest hit by the first estimated today that as much as 5,000 acres of land had been burned over in a single fire in Carteret county. He estimated that an equal amount or more had been covered by fire around Lake Pungo.

The forester declared that in places the peaty or vegetable matter had burned several feet into the ground, stopping only when it reached mineral soil. He did not estimate the damages in dollars, but pointed out that the loss would be irreparable to the fertile soil which scientists say probably required hundreds of years for nature to create.

A group of State College forest students was reported in Onslow county to help check the flames which were steadily eating into the vegetable soil in White Oak pocus where a large forest is under the administration of the school forestry.

PEEK MAY AID GOP PLATFORM

Probable Ex-New Dealer May Help Draw Farm Plank

By PRESTON GROVER T Washington — Former President Hoover's suggestion that Frank O. Lowden of Illinois write the Republican farm plank created speculation here and there in Washington as to whether it might be a pro-Landon gesture.

It so happens that the organization building itself around Landon has for some time proposed that Lowden either write the plank or that he head a committee to write it.

Landon followers professed to see no significance in the Hoover statement. Mr. Hoover has been described variously in some quarters as cold to Landon, or even opposed.

Republican progressives not in the Landon camp found little fault with the Lowden recommendation. Senator Nye of North Dakota who has been outspoken for Senator Borah, commented that Lowden had the respect of the Midwest farmers. His influence, Nye said, together with "a farm plank attractive to agriculture," might sway some of the 1932 Roosevelt vote to the Republicans next fall.

There appears rather general support for some sort of "two-price" system under which the bulk of the farmers' crops would be sold on a protected American market while the surplus would be put on world markets at whatever price it would bring.

Republicans have been unable to agree on the machinery to accomplish this arrangement.

The old McNary-Haugen bill and the export debenture plan aimed at that goal but persistently were beaten down during the dozen years of Republican supremacy after the war.

There appeared near unanimity that "controlled production" as espoused by the present administration would receive little sympathy in the Republican platform.

Some were looking to George N. Peek, once head of AAA, to draw up a two-price system that would weld together the groups differing on method rather than on principle.

Peek has been working quietly with certain Republican groups seeking again what he could not get while cooperating with the Democratic administration.

New York, June 2.—(AP)—The underpinning of today's stock market was somewhat shaky. While there was no outstanding news to account for it, many of the leaders back-tracked fractions to around 3 points.

The list became unsettled in the first hour after a steady to firm opening. After a brief but active selling flurry the pace slowed and scattered recoveries appeared.

The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 750,000 shares.

Honor Texas President.
Dallas—(AP)—Anson Jones, the shoe clerk from New York who became the fourth president of the Republic of Texas, is being honored by a permanent shrine in the Texas "Hall of Heroes" here.

Jones, who struggled to school himself as a physician, arrived in Texas in 1826. He was both surgeon and soldier in the battle of San Jacinto. He opposed bitterly the union of Texas and the United States and soon after the ceremony, February 16, 1846, when Texas became a state, he took his life.

SOLONS LURED BACK CAPITAL

Many Spend Most of Time in City of Washington

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington. — The effort of Senator Glass of Virginia to make Washington a better city in which to live emphasizes that many members of congress spend more time here than in their home states.

The matter is important perhaps only because of the influence of the Washington environment may have upon the individual legislator.

Top flight members, those who have places in the national or international spotlight, often find that once they are back home they are rather out of touch with the business which in Washington occupies most of their time.

Most concede they are eager for this home period, usually in summer and fall, for two reasons paramount to others. They quite frankly want a rest among the home folk, and they face the practical necessity of keeping their party followers contented.

But once they have achieved those two ends, the large percentage push plans to return to the capital.

Those who cut a big swath in party organization or in shaping important legislation state openly they can't do their work away from the capital. Contact with fellow legislators by mail is less effective than to stroll down a corridor and drop in on a colleague to discuss plans for a bill.

It becomes apparent in time that some have become national figures quite removed from strictly home state influence.

There are exceptions, of course. Certain home loving members from New York and other nearby eastern and southern states spend few week-ends in Washington.

Senator Glass, who lives in the capital much of the time, wants the city less noisy. He has quarters high up in a downtown hotel. In the past month or so he has made a continual round of appearances before city and congressional boards trying to get legal silencers on noisy newboys, fire sirens, street cars and auto horns.

He hasn't made much progress yet. But Senator Glass has fought long battles before—to a successful conclusion.

NATIVE STATE FOR McDONALD

Newspaper in Home County Interested in Campaign

Raleigh, June 2.—Friends and relatives of Dr. Ralph W. McDonald back in Gallatin county, Illinois, where he was born 33 years ago, are much interested in his campaign for Governor in North Carolina, according to a front page news story in The Gallatin Daily—was received here today. The headline of the story is "Gallatin County Boy Candidate for Governor," while the story itself refers to "the spectacular race for Governor of North Carolina now being made by Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, one of Gallatin's native sons."

The story also says that "it seems all the most remarkable that a man of his youth and from another state, could go into an old, original state like North Carolina and within the space of a few years override the existing order and become elected Governor."

"His race is now attracting national attention and his fellow citizens from Gallatin county are already sensing that feeling of pride which accompanies the accomplishments of a home-town boy who makes good," the story says.

"While still a mere boy, being but 23 years old, Dr. McDonald is leading three other candidates, all natives of North Carolina, in various straw votes being conducted by newspapers of the state; the news story continues, "A number of our citizens remember him, but practically all are acquainted with his forebears."

Senators attending the meeting said their strategy probably would be to support the finance committee's compromise tax plan in preference to the House bill or any other proposal and then vote against it ultimately.

They said their opposition to final approval, even of the compromise, was based on a belief that a tax bill is unnecessary, especially if a greater effort were made to curtail government expenditures. They also expressed a conviction that insufficient time had been allowed to work out details of a sound measure.

Senator McNary (R. Ore.) said it was clearly understood there would not be "knock down discussion" of the bill during debate on the floor and the Republican would seek not to delay the measure. McNary said all minority members "want to get away Saturday or Monday," adding, "and I believe we can."
