RIVALRY OVER G.O.P. NOMINEE GROWS BITTER

Opposition Camps Seek Undermine Landon Claims

PLATFORM ALSO GETS ATTENTION

One Proposal Under Discussion Would Condemn Compulsory Crop Control

Cleveland, June 6.—(AP)—Republican rivalries grew more tense today as a variety of opposition camps sought strenuously to undermine the mounting claims of the supporters of Alf M. Landon.

Sharp words poured in upon the Landonites, who overnight had boosted their estimates of the Kansas governor's first ballot strength in next week's national convention to 400 votes. That would be but 102 short of enough to nominate.

For the most part, the disposition of the Landon managers was to accept the attacks without retaliation. Talk of trying to force a first ballot choice quieted somewhat as friends of the Kansas sought to calm the storm and to assure all rivals they would have a run for their money.

Nevertheless, the Landon claim of 400 votes drew immediate sharp replies from both the Knox and Borah camps and was followed in a few hours by circulation of an unsigned handbill urging the delegates "to look the field over." It was apparent that the contest was assuming a bitterness which hitherto had been notably lacking.

The prospective platform also came in for increasing attention.

One of the proposals—still lacking any sort of official standing—was for a constitutional amendment to permit the states to pass minimum wage laws. Another would turn over the administration of relief to the states. A third would condemn compulsory crop curtailment, but propose a farm subsidy to equalize prices.

Sponsors Discuss Means to Continue Swift Creek Plan

Federal, State and County Health Officials Attend Meeting Held at Ayden Friday Afternoon

Sponsors of the Swift Creek malaria control project met yesterday afternoon in the Ayden community building for the purpose of discussing means for continuing the plan to completion.

The session was attended by representatives of the Federal, State and County health departments. All departments gave reasonable assurance that the project would be completed as planned.

Approximately three miles of the canal has been constructed. A dragline dredge is working up stream, above the paved highway and a steel floating dredge of much larger and heavier type is working down stream.

The meeting was under guidance of J. R. Turnage, chairman. Dr. N. Thomas Ennett had charge of the professional presentations of malaria problems by the physician, health officers.

It is reasonably certain that the Swift Creek area will by this drainage be freed of danger of malaria or it will be under such control that chills and fevers will be very much reduced.

Missionary to Japan Speaks Here Monday

Mrs. J. S. Farmer of Raleigh, former Southern Baptist missionary to Japan, will deliver an address at the meeting of the Missionary Society of Memorial Baptist church Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The public is invited to attend the meeting and hear Mrs. Farmer discuss her experiences in Japan. Mrs. Farmer is author of the mission study book, "The Gate to Asia," recently used in the study of this continent, so influential to the destiny of the Far East and the control of the Pacific.

Mrs. Farmer is the wife of the editor of the Biblical Recorder, North Carolina Baptist paper.

FRANK LOWDEN BEING PUSHED

Stop-Landon Coalition Unites on Former Governor

Cleveland, June 6.—(AP)—The Cleveland News said today that a "stop-Landon coalition" was turning to former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois in a search for a candidate upon which its varying groups could consolidate.

The News said "old guard leaders of the Knox-Borah-Dickinson combination" were turning to the former Illinois governor in a hope of capturing the nomination.

The story came at a time when the forces of Governor Landon of Kansas were claiming enough assured ballots to give their candidate an early nomination.

The News said that if the Lowden's candidacy failed an effort would be made to consolidate the anti-Landon forces behind.

Senator Vandenburg of Michigan or Glenn Frank, the liberal president of the University of Wisconsin.

The News said their tabulations showed that this combination totaled 543 votes—43 more than enough to withhold the nomination from the Kansas.

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill to curtail large benefit payments under the soil conservation act farm control program.

Capitol Hill Is Nervous As Voters Express Choice

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL
Raleigh, June 6.—There's many a case of jitters on Capitol Hill here today as the primary voting goes on and as the partisans of the various candidates wait for the votes to be cast and counted. For while most people are sure their candidate will win in their public expressions, privately they are all in doubt and exceedingly jittery.

For even the veteran observers of primary elections concede that just as this campaign so far has violated all the laws and customs of primary campaigns in North Carolina, just so is the outcome exceedingly doubtful. Accordingly, most observers privately agree that the election today is anybody's race, that anything may happen and that nobody knows which of the three candidates for the nomination for Governor will be in first or even in second place.

Most of the state officials, both elective and appointive, are generally conceded to be largely for Clyde R. Hoey for Governor, although a few are actively and openly for Sandy Graham. Not a single major state office holder is known to be for Dr. Ralph W. McDonald. Likewise, a majority of the state em-

Vandenburg Declines Seek Vice-Presidency

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—Senator Vandenburg of Michigan announced today that he would not accept the nomination as Republican candidate for vice president.

In a formal statement the Senator said he thought he would be a greater service in active labors on the Senate floor than on its silent rostrum.

BODY REMOVED TO NASHVILLE

President Accompanies Remains of Late Speaker

Aboard the Roosevelt train en route to Nashville, Tenn., June 6.—(AP)—Over a route he had traveled many times in his 27 years as national legislator, the body of Joseph W. Byrns moved today—back to his native Tennessee for last services and burial.

The coffin bearing the late Speaker of the House of Representatives was escorted by President Roosevelt, a host of colleagues and friends in Washington officialdom who had attended the impressive state funeral in the House chamber yesterday.

The funeral train, running in two sections with the Chief Executive following behind the Congressional party and members of the 66-year-old legislator's family, crossed the Virginia-Tennessee border long before daybreak, after speeding through the hills of Eastern and Northern Tennessee. The trains were due in Nashville for a mid-afternoon funeral.

Consumers' Purses Affected By Weather

(By Associated Press)

Freight weather conditions—early drought in the southeastern states and late frosts in the northern states and Canada—struck today at the pocketbooks of millions of consumers.

Commodity prices soared as food and produce dealers in the large consuming centers, their stocks already running low rushed orders to producers in the agricultural sections.

PREMIER BLUM BRANDED 'JEW' BY OPPONENTS

Students and Police Engage in Bitter Conflict

OFFICERS MAKE MANY ARRESTS

One Deputy Says Blum's Coming to Power Will be Historic Date in France

Paris, June 6.—(AP)—Students and police fought in the Latin quarter in an outburst of violence tonight after Socialist Premier Blum had temporarily withdrawn from the Chamber of Deputies under a personal attack.

A Rightist deputy had assailed Blum as a Jew. The students demonstrated with shouts of "France for the French."

Sergeant-at-arms suppressed the outburst which approached physical violence in the Chamber of Deputies.

Gendarmes broke up the student demonstrations making a dozen arrests.

Leftists supporting the new Socialist government and the Rightist opposition jeered behind their desks too and shouted.

The riotous demonstrations reached its height when a Rightist deputy yelled:

"Blum's coming to power will be a historic date for it is the first time that Gallic-Roman country has been governed by a Jew."

Blum arose and walked out of the room.

Former Local Man Declares Outlook Good For Tobacco

J. D. Rogers Says Prospects Better In This Immediate Section Than Anywhere Else in Belt

J. D. Rogers, of Pelham, Ga., director of the Georgia-Florida Tobacco Growers association, who is making a survey of the weed crop in the various states, declared here today that the outlook is for a considerable reduction in poundage this year, but added that the crops in this immediate section were better than in any place he had visited.

"The tobacco crop around Greenville is better than in any part of the state, ever better than in section of the south I have visited, and I have covered most of the tobacco belt," declared Mr. Rogers.

He added that he had seen "some very nice tobacco in Eastern North Carolina and with reasonable weather a crop of fair quality will materialize."

As to South Carolina, he said that state would make about 75 per cent of last year's yield, under favorable conditions.

Mr. Rogers said that recent rains had aided the crop in this section and discounted estimates that North Carolina farmers had already suffered to the extent of $50,000,000 the loss set by extension officials.

Mr. Rogers is a former Greenville man and is well known here. He was accompanied on his visit to this city by L. J. Powell.

MAKING PLANS SUMMER CAMP

Local National Guard Receives Motor Equipment

When the local unit of the National Guard, Battery A, 113rd field artillery, leaves for its annual two weeks' summer encampment, Wednesday, July 1, it will go by new motorized equipment.

The unit has just received three new two and one-half ton trucks, bringing the quota up to six. The big guns located here have been mounted on new, pneumatic tires, the old-style, hard rubber tire having been discarded for the new equipment. This will enable the unit to be moved more speedily in case the unit is called out for duty.

The two weeks' of encampment at Fort Bragg this year, beginning July 1, is much earlier than in the past. Some members of the unit have been traveling to and from the camp by train, but the purchase of the new trucks will enable all of them to travel by motor.

When the unit goes to camp this summer, the members also will be equipped with new uniforms which have been purchased since last year's encampment.

The unit has been outstanding in past years at the summer camp, taking athletic honors as well as receiving good marks on the range.

Managers Of Campaigns Predict Primary Victory

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, June 6.—Each of the campaign managers for the three leading candidates for Governor predicted that his candidate would be victorious in the primary election being held today.

Hubert E. Olive, state campaign manager for Clyde R. Hoey, predicted the nomination of Mr. Hoey by a vote of not less than 207,000 votes. Willie Lee Lumpkin, manager for Dr. Ralph McDonald, declared that the Winston-Salem candidate would get not less than 200,000 votes and probably more, while A. D. (Lon) Folger, campaign manager for Sandy Graham, predicted that Graham would be high man with at least 170,000 votes.

"Without any doubt, Clyde Hoey will be named the Democratic nominee for Governor today," Campaign Manager Olive said. "We feel certain that he is assured of receiving 207,000 votes, although the number of votes cast will, of course, depend somewhat upon the weather throughout the day. But if the day remains fair over most of the state, as is indicated, he will not only be high man but probably will get a majority."

PREMIER BLUM SUBMITS PLAN

New Head of Government Offers Program to French

Paris, June 6.—(AP)—France's Socialist premier, Leon Blum, went before parliament today with a program intended to satisfy labor's demands, revive business and relieve the farmer.

Peace for all Europe through collective security was announced as his foreign policy in the ministerial declaration to parliament.

Simultaneously, Blum took action to break a nation-wide strike of nearly one million workers, to revise the government's financial structure and to coordinate France's national defense.

To parliament he handed the task of passing labor laws granting demands of striking workers, whose numbers were estimated near 1,000,000.

Under Former Premier Edouard Daladier, he coordinated France's national defense in the first decree adopted by the new Socialist cabinet.

Roger Salengro, minister of the Interior, meanwhile reported an apparent easing of strike tension as a result of the "government's action."

HEAVY VOTING REPORTED FOR ENTIRE STATE

Election Officials Expect Record-Breaking Vote

OFFICE HOLDERS FACE OPPOSITION

"Machine Rule" Decried by Dr. McDonald in His Final Speech of Campaign

Raleigh, June 6.—(AP)—Headquarters here of three of the four Democratic gubernatorial candidates said they had received reports at midday of heavy voting in the primary throughout the state, and the bureau said it believed clear weather prevailed everywhere in North Carolina.

Voting in Raleigh and Wake county was reported heavy.

Sandy Graham headquarters said reports from Montgomery, Richmond, Gates and Beaufort counties indicated Graham was running stronger there than it had expected and the voting was at a record breaking pace.

Headquarters for Ralph W. McDonald said reports "from nearly every county west of Charlotte say McDonald is showing unexpected and gratifying strength" and the east "McDonald is running strong in very heavy voting."

Hubert Olive, state manager for Clyde R. Hoey said one report from Lenoir in Caldwell county the voting was heavy with Hoey apparently getting all of the first 100 ballots cast there.

In Cleveland county, Olive said the voting was so heavy people were lined up at the polling places "for blocks." He said Randolph, Gaston and Halifax counties also reported fast voting with Hoey running strong.

At Tarboro, it was estimated at noon the vote up to then equalled the total first primary vote four years ago and Henderson reported extremely heavy balloting in Vance county.

George Ross Pou, candidate for state auditor, said reports to him from 16 counties indicated the heaviest vote in history.

"Extremely heavy voting" was reported from Lumberton where more than 1,200 votes were cast in two precincts by mid-morning.

At Rocky Mount heavy voting was reported. Gastonia reports indicated a total vote of about 12,000 for the county, or about average.

Charlotte, June 6.—(AP)—A sizzling four-corner race for Governor, with the sales tax the dominant issue, drew Democrats to the polls today in what election officials predicted would be a record number.

Senator J. W. Bailey and seven congressmen faced opposition, but the governor's race, with a 33-year-old former professor advocating outright repeal of the $10,000,000 a year general sales tax, held the spotlight.

Election officials prepared for a turnout of up to 450,000 voters, about 75,000 more than voted in the last primary. For candidates not getting a majority the first time there will be a second primary July 4.

The anti sales tax candidate is Dr. Ralph McDonald, who also denounced what he termed "machine rule" of the state is his campaign.

Conferees Decide On Agreement For Anti-Price Fixing

Long Disputed Legislation Designed to Protect Independent Merchants Finally Agreed Upon

Washington, June 6.—(AP)—Congressional conferees today reached an agreement on the long disputed anti-price discrimination legislation designed to protect independent merchants from large scale competitors.

The House and Senate conferees agreed to the major provisions of the Senate bill including the Robinson bill and the Borah-Van Nuys amendment.

The Robinson bill would empower the federal trade commission to limit quantity discount where monopoly was involved and probably would prohibit false discounts for brokers fees or other services.

Under the amendment, a new and different method of measuring price discrimination tending to create monopoly would be set up.

Competitors who felt they were being discriminated against could institute criminal proceedings in federal court directly instead of going to the federal trade commission.

CHIEFS: Although the Socialists have never polled an important vote in a presidential election, and Farmer-Labor strength is confined to a few states, New Dealers privately regard the decision of these groups to back FDR as a major victory.

In 1928 Norman Thomas, the Socialist presidential candidate, received only 267,000 votes. The Old Guarders who have split away from him this time plumped for Al Smith because of the Liberty League's social and economic policies as Governor of New York. In 1932 the Socialists suspected both Messrs. Hoover and Roosevelt of capitalist sympathies, and Mr. Thomas got 584,000 votes—a difference of more than 600,000. It reckoned that at least 500,000 Old Guard Socialist ballots will be cast for the President next fall, and they may be decisive in several industrial states—New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, etc.

Minnesota Governor Olson has not always been sympathetic toward the administration. Democratic politics have neglected him in a futile attempt to build up a Democratic party in the state. It is generally admitted that if Mr. Olson campaigned against FDR he could deliver his state to the G.O.P. So his belated decision to go along cheers the White House, especially as it may round up Senators Shipstead and Benson.

HALTID: Important makers of power equipment are engaged in a running backstage battle with Harold Ickes over the breakdown of his grandiose policy for building municipal plants. The inside story suggests that the New Deal's program is preventing reemployment and blocking power expansion instead of furthering either cause. Mr. Ickes has allotted funds for the construction of almost 1,000 municipal power plants under the grant-and-loan system. But only 170 are actually under construction or completed as a result of three years of government building and ballyhoo. All the others are tied up by departmental red tape or court litigation.

Before PWA a single construction company used to build 100 municipal plants a year. It financed the project with private capital at 6 per cent, accepting the completed plant as security. But it has lost this business because municipalities preferred to borrow at cheaper rates from the government. The cities are now holding off pending court decisions which will not be handed down for a year or more. Thus both private and public construction has been halted, and the relief rolls grow longer and more expensive every day.

GOVERNOR: New Dealers and G.O.P.-ers are girding for a major engagement on the New York sector next fall. With 47 electoral votes at stake, they are trying to coax their strongest champions into the race for the admittedly arduous and thankless post of Governor. The Rooseveltians are still in a quandary as a result of Governor Lehman's refusal to run for reelection. Chairman Farley's candidate—Internal Revenue Robert H. Jackson—is a virtually unknown State Attorney General John Bennett is suspected of being lukewarm towards the New Deal. The Democrats' ideal man is Senator Wagner but he doesn't relish the prospect of quitting the Senate for Albany.

Representative James W. Wadsworth is the G.O.P.'s best bet. But he is angling, apparently in vain, for the vice-presidential nomination at Cleveland. He may wangle it, though the Landonties prefer Senator Vandenberg. If he doesn't he may agree to run for the Governorship. Should he win and the presidential nominee be defeated, he might be in a fine spot for 1940. That's how FDR made the grade!

HEADACHE: Builders of naval vessels are angling up against the Vinson provision that their profits cannot exceed 10 per cent of the contract price. Unless the muddle is straightened out by negotiation they plan a court suit or a boycott

Gypsy Weather

SYNOPSIS: Both Rupert Joris' widow, Hope, and Dirk, who is his younger brother, know that Rupert did not commit suicide—although the police accept that theory blindly. The murder connects with the mystery which has always surrounded Hope; Dirk is now sure that it connects also with a mysterious secret stair which all the Jorises thought had been burned when a wing of the great Joris house burned years ago. Hope is showing Dirk how to enter the secret stair.

Chapter 39 MAN NAMED VINES

INSTANTLY a panel of the wall began to move. An opening as tall and wide as the average door disclosed a narrow hall with one small high window. A bed—mattress and blankets—lay on the floor, an old lantern and a kerosene stove beside it. A narrow stair went down into blackness.

The stair. The secret stair. How had Hope found it? "I'll tell you everything," she was saying. "Help me a little more. It wasn't his fault. Only find him . . . if he's down here."

"And if he's not?" Dirk asked. "Then he wasn't badly hurt. He's gone back . . . back to the house where you found me . . . Twenty-second Street. Go to his room there . . . on the second floor . . . the door at the back. Find out . . ."

"You haven't told me his name yet." "Vines," she said after a pause. "Just ask the landlady. Mrs. Turner her name is. If she opens the front door. But she may not be there. Here's my key."

She turned and opened the drawer beneath the long mirror. It was empty. All her belongings had been moved into the south room. She remembered now. "I'll get it," she said. "I'll give you the key."

He went with her, made her stay in the south room, found hat and overcoat, and was gone. "I'll find my way," he told her. "If I'm not back in half-an-hour you may know I've gone into New York."

"Close the panel!" she whispered. "You'll find the spring on the other side." DIRK went down the stone steps, moving the pale arc of his flash before him. It was a long flight, descending below the level of the ground floor into the warmth and dampness of the earth.

He found himself in a stone passage, parallel, he determined, with the basement of the house. His flash showed burnt-out matches scattered amid the moss and fungi on the floor.

He followed the passage slowly, moving his light with care. He had come, he judged, a little more than thirty yards when he encountered other steps, stone like the others, and narrow, leading upward. They were green with moss, and recent mud had been tracked over them. Above them was a trap-door, long and narrow, with blackened hinges and ratchets on each side.

He thrust the flash into his pocket and went up the steps, pushing with both hands against the cold metal of the door, feeling it yield and slip gratingly along the ratchets. He emerged into the starlit world, feeling a vague sense of familiarity with the spot.

Yonder was the river, there the railroad, there the stone wall separating him from Lowrie Wood. In a circle about him, outside an iron fence, were the snow-bowed cedars. He had just ascended from Uncle Pieter's grave.

Dirk descended again into the grave, drew down the bronze door with its warning inscription. He had violated that inscription. His childhood dream had come true. But there had never been any Uncle Pieter to curse or bless. Uncle Pieter's grave had been mere doorway for that respected smuggler, Ancestor Hans Joris.

How had Hope found it? Dirk was moving along the passage, and up the stair. He went through the sliding door whose spring from this side was distinctly visible. He would not disturb Hope. Dirk got out his car, and in another moment was speeding through the snow and straight into Manhattan.

At the house in Twenty-second Street there was no need to use the bell. A woman answered the bell, a stout, troubled-looking woman whom he guessed at once to be Mrs. Turner. "Does someone named Vines live here?" he asked.

She replied in a low voice. "Are you Mr. Joris?" Dirk, taken slightly aback, said that he was. "The lawyer?" He acknowledged this also, and she admitted him. "I'm afraid you're too late," she said, leading the way upstairs, "but I'm glad you've come. He kept saying phone somebody named Joris, and he couldn't remember much of anything. I thought it must be a doctor he wanted."

"You see, I didn't find him until today. I looked up Joris in the phone-book, and all I could find was a law-firm down on B-way, but being Saturday there was no one there but the office-boy. He said he would leave a note on Mr. Dirk Joris' desk. I thought it might be Monday before you'd get it. I called a doctor. He's in there now."

Seeing Through My Windshield (By ETHEL NICE, H. D. A.) Washington Trip. The camera was turned on the country women of the world in Washington this week. Pitt county was in the picture. It was a tired, happy group that returned to Greenville Wednesday night.

If they were not proud of their organization they are now. Mrs. Paul T. Ricks conducted the tour which left Greenville early Sunday morning. We were housed in the National camps and did much sight-seeing in and around Washington.

The opening program of the conference was attended as well as the White House party and song and folk dance program. Several of our group returned through the Shenandoah Valley. Mrs. Roosevelt said in her address that she was distinctly surprised that so many farm women could leave home, and the President said he had heard it said that farmers would not stick together, but he had evidence that the farm women could and did stick together. Mrs. Roosevelt said women have a desire for friendliness but must study economic causes. Secretary Wallace said the women contributed more to agriculture than any other one phase of work. Women make it possible for men to conquer. There would be little production were it not for the women. The expressions heard most often on the buses were "back home" and "the children." These homes have gained something by sending the mothers and wives to attend the Third Triennial Conference of the country women of the world. Those who attended from Pitt county were: Mrs. J. R. Lewis, Miss Dorothy Taylor, Mrs. E. T. Cox, Miss Annie Carroll, Miss Carolyn Blount, Mrs. Fronia Hawkins, Mrs. R. L. Little, Mrs. J. Brooks Tucker, Mrs. W. E. Andrews, Mrs. John Thorne, Mr. John Thorne, Miss Mary Lee Thorne, Mrs. Paul T. Ricks, and Miss Ethel Nice.

4-H Encampment. The 4-H girls who stuck to their work throughout the year and turned in their reports are being rewarded by invitations to the 4-H encampment at White Lake, June 8-13. We regret that all girls eligible cannot attend. We shall leave from back of the Court View filling station at 9 o'clock Monday morning and return to the same place about noon Saturday. Miss Clara Small, a nurse from Greenville, will be present to render any services needed. Miss Laura Whitley, life guard from Tarboro, will be there. Leaders from Pitt county will include Misses Ethel Little, Roxie Worthington, Evelyn Baker, Arlene Parker, and Ella Lee Lewis. We shall camp with Washington and Edgcombe girls and leaders.

"AS RELIGION SEES IT" By FATHER MICHAEL J. AHERN, S. J. Weston College, Weston, Mass. (Member of Good Will Team completing nationwide tour)

INCREASE IN GOOD WILL NOTED BY PRIEST—FINDS AMERICANS LEARNING TO LIVE TOGETHER IN CIVILIZED WAY. A Roman Catholic priest, a rabbi of the synagogue, and a Presbyterian minister have just completed a nationwide tour. They have emphasized spiritual concerns. They have pleaded for the preservation of civil liberties and human rights for all. With infirmity in mind, they resounded the American principle of liberty of conscience.

One newspaper editor put it this way: "The seriousness of the state of men's minds today was driven home by the trio. They pled for an understanding of the totalitarianism which is gripping other countries and preventing freedom of thought and expression."

"Their sincerity and their earnestness cannot be doubted. It is inspiring to hear men of this type, who accept no remuneration for their work, battling against the greatest wall of cynicism and unrest which has ever gripped the world."

They concluded their seven weeks tour sponsored by The National Conference of Jews and Christians on May 28th with a large meeting in Philadelphia. Opening on the evening of April 13, in Washington, the trio visited 25 leading cities in 10 states going as far West as California and Oregon. They addressed 110 audiences aggregating close to 50,000 people; these audiences were, in addition to general audiences in open meetings, university, college and high school assemblies, fraternal and social clubs, church and synagogue congregations, university and college faculties.

Bishops Approve Participation. The trio held innumerable conferences with individuals and small groups, and delivered radio broadcasts in every city of importance, one of these being on a hook-up covering the entire Pacific Coast region. More than once the trio appeared before five or six groups in a single day.

Every Catholic bishop of the fourteen dioceses in the jurisdiction of which the cities visited were located, gave their cordial approval to the participation of the writer in this activity, reports of which were often carried in the diocesan weeklies, and the meetings were frequently announced from the Catholic pulpits of the city. Similar cooperation came from Protestant and Jewish quarters. The secular press was remarkably generous both with editorial and news space, so that it is safe to say that the nature and objectives of the movement for justice, amity, understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews were never so widely nor so enthusiastically publicized.

Prayerful Enthusiasm. An outstanding effect of the meetings on the audiences with whom the trio came into contact was the reverent, almost prayerful enthusiasm, with which the message of tolerance and good will was received. This enthusiasm was nearly always coupled with an outspoken determination to carry this message by personal precept and example, as well as by round-table groups and other forms of organization into the business, political and social environment of the community. Speaking of the closing mass-meeting in El Paso, The Herald-Post said: "Their final message was inspiring, equally inspiring was the sight of leading men of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant faiths sitting down at table together, expressing their approval of these seminars to promote a closer relationship between people of all faiths.

Typical of many other utterances is the following, from an editorial in The Oregon Journal: "The United States is composed of men holding various religious ideas. Our forefathers, with surpassing wisdom, framed the great constitution and its bill of rights to safeguard to each the right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. These are enduring principles which should never be exchanged for the racial and religious hatreds that make for unhappiness in less fortunate lands."

Increase in Good Will Noted. Every meeting provided at least one high-light. In Oklahoma City a local Jewish rabbi introduced AFather Ahern; a local minister introduced Rabbi Lazaroff; and a Catholic priest introduced Dr. Clinchy. In El Paso the Roman Catholic bishop, Dr. Anthony J. Schuler, S. J., graced the platform. In Los Angeles, the whole of Saturday, May 2, was devoted to a seminar with morning, afternoon and evening sessions, on the problems of Human Relations from the academic approach, which seminar was held on the campus of Loyola University, a Jesuit institution, and was attended by faculty members of the University of Southern California at Los Angeles, and of Los Angeles Junior College. As a direct result of this seminar at Loyola, a Catholic, who had long given up the practice of his faith, returned to the Catholic Church.

It was agreed everywhere that there had been a welcome and emphatic increase in tolerance and good will since the previous visit of the trio in 1934. There was an increased frankness in facing dangerous conditions but there was new hopefulness that the final outcome would be favorable. American Protestants, Jews and Catholics are learning how to live together in a civilized way. They have a new determination to realize to the full "The American Way."

Is The Golden Rule Sufficient? "Creeds and dogmas mean nothing to me. The Golden Rule is my religion." A common statement. A growing sentiment. A dangerous tendency which bodes ill for the human soul and for the good of our country.

With the Golden Rule, no real Christian has any quarrel. It is Christ's own command to "love thy neighbor as thyself." But is that all that God commands? Is that all that Christ taught in His three years of missionary life?

No Bible student—no true Christian—will concede this, nor can he help but deplore a condition today which enables mere man with his so-called "freedom of conscience" to cast aside one by one God's eternal truths, leaving himself at last with the Golden Rule alone, which he too often follows merely from an innate sense of decency and from a desire to maintain the respect of his fellow man.

The Catholic Church with its positive creed, its absolute dogmas, its uncompromising adherence to eternal truths—has not only existed basically unchanged throughout the ages, but has flourished in all parts of the world, under all sorts of conditions and persecutions. To the unbiased thinker, all this must cause a wonderment and a desire to know the Catholic secret of success.

CITES VALUES GUIDING YOUTH Vocational Guidance Explained by Kiwanis Speaker

Edward W. Boshart, professor of education and vocational guidance at N. C. State College, delivered the principal address at the regular meeting last night of the Kiwanis Club.

J. C. Galloway, president, cut the business session short so more time could be devoted to the address by Mr. Boshart. The program was arranged by the vocational guidance committee composed of Chairman M. B. Massey, J. Picklen Arthur Dr. J. M. Barrett and George V. Night. Dr. Massey introduced the speaker.

Mrs. J. H. Waldrop, who sang two solo numbers, received the enthusiastic applause of the club members.

Prof. Boshart explained that vocational guidance did not put a boy in blue short and overalls, as many city people seem to think, but attempts to steer him in the field he is best fitted for.

He declared the first duty of vocational guidance is to give boys and girls the capacity for self support, adding his ideal for such education was to see that youths know their capacity and get to work with some definite goal in mind.

He declared, however, that no one should discourage a boy from attempting to succeed in any field he expresses a preference for. He said the aim of vocational training was not to drive a youth in any particular field, but to give him in-

of years. It has become a pedestal upon which has been stacked volumes of "court law" affecting almost every phase of business and industry.

While some caustic commentators refer to it as the "corporations' protective amendment," even they consider it has become so much a foundation stone of business law as almost to preclude tearing it bodily out of the constitution by repeal.

Much doubt is expressed that either party convention will try to frame an amendment plank at this late hour. Many supporting wage and labor legislation believe a constitutional amendment unnecessary.

The state population department at Rio de Janeiro released figures showing that of 274,749 rural properties in Sao Paulo state, 33,590 are owned by Italians, 14,180 by Spaniards and 13,945 by Japanese.
