RAINFALL FOR MONTH OF MAY AVERAGED .90

State Experienced Least Wet Weather On Record

NO RAIN AT ALL AT TWO PLACES

Summary Shows That Sun Was Visible Over State in General 22 Days in May

Raleigh, June 16.—(AP)—North Carolina last month had the least rainfall and the most sunshine it has had in May since records have been kept.

The summary for the state's May weather was released today by Lee A. Denson, in charge of the weather bureau here. The rainfall for the state average only 0.90 of an inch, lowest in the records for 50 years and 3.21 below the May normal.

Bryson City and McHenry's Bridge, near Statesville, reported no rainfall at all in May and only 0.01 of an inch fell at Charlotte, Concord, Albemarle and Mount Gilead. The sun was visible in Charlotte for 92 per cent of the time it was possible for it to have been shining during the month and it was clear over the state in general 22 days of the month.

The temperature mean was 67.7 degrees, 1.9 degrees above normal with the highest being 98 degrees recorded at Kinston on the 19th and Monroe on the 26th.

"Drought was intensified by more sunshine than any previous period," the summary said. "The abrupt change from a wet to dry period with much sunshine hardened the top soil, especially clay or clay mixture and x x x brought an exceedingly unfavorable season for starting, that is planting, germination and growth of cotton, tobacco, corn, peanuts and others crops."

High School Girl Claimed By Death In Pitt Hospital

Miss Kathleen Jones Dies Following Operation; Funeral Services Conducted This Afternoon

Miss Kathleen Jones, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Jones, 529 Cotanche street, died last night in Pitt General Hospital following a two weeks' illness. She was operated on for appendicitis and peritonitis developed causing her death.

Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at four o'clock from Williams Funeral Home by Rev. W. M. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian Church. Burial followed in the family cemetery on the Farmville highway.

Miss Jones was a student, having graduated into the ninth grade in the local high school about two weeks ago.

Surviving besides the parents, are three brothers, Allen Jones, Los Angeles, Calif.; Jeffie Jones, Greenville; and William Jones of Panama; three sisters, Mrs. Roy Sutton and Miss Bettie Jones of Greenville, and Mrs. Chris Katsomer of Amarillo, Texas.

Active pall bearers were: C. K. Beatty, Dr. Alex Viola, George Gardner, Jasper Jones, Frank Savage and W. L. Patrick.

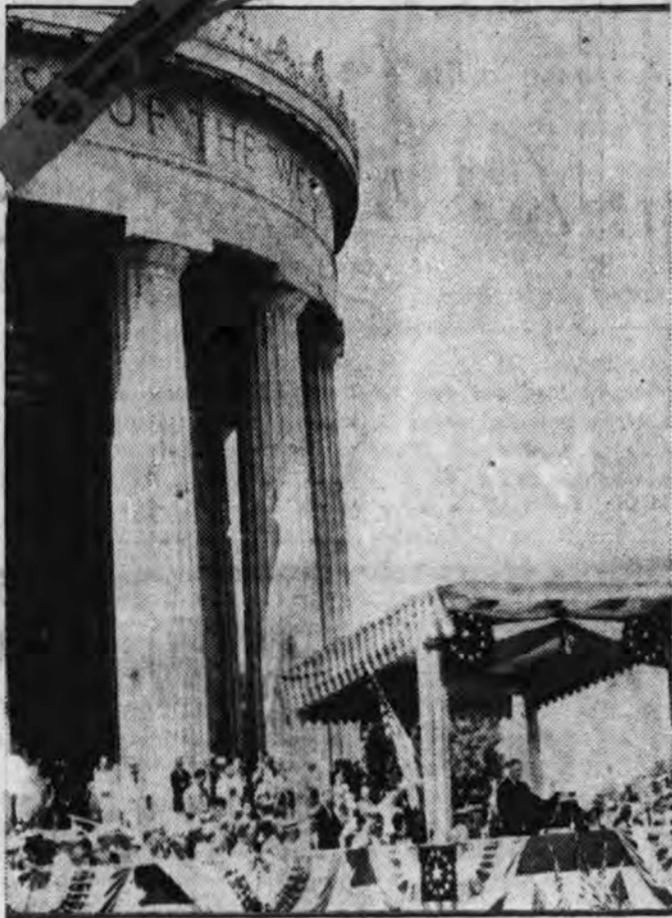

Farmville Resident Plunges To Death From Third Story

J. M. Christman Almost Instantly Killed In Jump From Bank Building This Afternoon

J. M. Christman, of Farmville, jumped to his death from a third floor window of the Bank of Farmville building. Death was said to have been almost instantaneous. Mr. Christman had been in ill health for some time which was said to have probably been the cause for his act. Funeral arrangements had not been announced early this afternoon but it was reported that the funeral would probably be held tomorrow.

Mr. Christman, who was around 60 years of age, came to Farmville from Clatsop, Illinois, about 30 years ago. He engaged in the horse and mule business in Farmville until ill health forced his retirement about three years ago. He is survived by his wife Mrs. Elvah Christman, and two daughters, Mrs. Clyde Finch, of Henderson, and Mrs. Hubert Benson, of Lenoir.

FEW SPEECHES ARE PROMISED

McDonald Managers to Concentrate on Organization

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 16.—More emphasis will be placed on organization and less on speech-making by the McDonald forces in the second campaign. W. L. Lumpkin, campaign manager for Dr. Ralph W. McDonald said today. He said that he, Dr. McDonald and other members of the managerial staff would spend more of their time in the field than ever before, making personal contacts with their leaders and followers, rather than in making speeches.

Dr. McDonald will make some speeches, of course, but by no means as many per week as in the first campaign. Lumpkin said, "We feel that the people are tired of so much talk and would rather see some action—which is what we are planning to give them."

Numerous speeches in behalf of Dr. McDonald and his platform will be made by various speakers in all sections of the state and a speakers' bureau is now being organized in McDonald headquarters here with C. A. Uphurch, Jr., in charge of it. A good many of the speakers in this bureau will be those who spoke for Graham during the first campaign. Lumpkin said. In a great many counties, the entire Graham organizations, from the county managers down, have pledged their support to Dr. McDonald, Lumpkin stated.

Thousands of new votes for McDonald have been made as a result of the announcement by Herbert G. Gulley, chief engineer of the Bailey machine in North Carolina, that he is now definitely for Clyde R. Hoey for Governor, Lumpkin said.

"We knew during the other campaign, of course, that while Mr. Gulley had not publicly declared himself that he was working against Dr. McDonald and for Mr. Hoey," Lumpkin said. "Now that he has definitely come out of the woods and publicly stated that he is for Mr. Hoey, thousands of those who know or knew Mr. Gulley and of the machine of which he is chief engineer and mechanic, are coming over into the McDonald ranks. They realize that machines and mechanics stick together and that Mr. Gulley now aspires to a leading role with the Gardner-Ehringhaus-Hoey machine."

New Orleans Grand Jury Scores Homer Cummings

Nine Members of Group Which Indicted Political Friends of Late Senator Long Ask Release of Only Defendant Sentenced

New Orleans, June 16.—Nine members of the grand jury which indicted numerous political friends of the late Senator Huey P. Long for income tax fraud today scored the United States attorney general for abandoning prosecution of the cases.

In a letter to Attorney General Homer Cummings the jurors demanded immediate release from the Atlanta penitentiary of former State Representative Joseph Fisher, one of the two men tried before the criminal cases against others were dropped.

They said there was a "gross and unwarranted official discrimination" against Fisher who is scheduled to complete a sentence of a year and a half on July 9. Abraham Shushan, former president of the New Orleans levee board, the other man brought to trial, was acquitted.

"Fisher was tried before the death of Senator Long, at the time Long was waging a vigorous fight against the administration of President Roosevelt. Shushan was tried after Long's death.

The statement was announced here by Arthur C. Waters, who served as foreman of the grand jury which returned the income tax indictment.

The jurors, in their letter, said that during the investigation which led to the indictment it was reported that those under investigation "were trying to make their peace at Washington by political pull or by payments of the taxes claimed, or even by both means."

The jurors said that, excluding Fisher and Shushan, the others indicted "had not even been brought to nominal trial" and if the cases were abandoned they felt that they had "every cause to feel aggrieved and outraged."

WIDOWS HERE GET PENSIONS

Not a Single Civil War Veteran Living in Pitt County

Semi-annual pension checks for 26 widows of Civil War veterans have been received at the offices of Clerk of Court J. F. Harrington and are being distributed to the wives of the old soldiers, but not a single veteran is living in Pitt county.

Of the entire number of widows, only two receive monthly pensions. The remaining 24 receive checks for $50 each a year. The checks are delivered in June and December each year.

Franklin Jackson was the last veteran to receive a pension check from the clerk's office here, the files show. He received his last pension payment in June 1933, death having overtaken him before the December check was due.

Negroes who served Civil war veterans also are due to receive a pension, but there is none in Pitt county, and widows of veterans are the only one who get the payments.

Pension checks being delivered here totaled $1,500.

The two class A widows receiving checks this week are Jennie Carney, widow of R. H. Carney; and Nannie Little, widow of Francis Little.

Class B widows receiving checks are: Martha L. Baker, widow of A. J. Baker; Nancy Briley, widow of J. A. Briley; Fannie Brooks, widow of H. F. Brooks; Mary Crawford, widow of David L. Crawford; Mary P. Caton, widow of A. D. Caton; Mary A. Cannon, widow of J. W. Cannon.

Alice E. Galloway, widow of E. S. Galloway; Lydia C. Gardner, widow of J. H. Gardner; Elie Hardee, widow of H. P. Hardee; Jennie Hardee, widow of P. M. Hardee; Etta Hazelton, widow of E. L. Hazelton; Ellen Hill, widow of A. D. Hill; Macca Hearne, widow of Reuben Hearne.

Bettie Moore, widow of K. T. Lewis; Victoria McGowan, by special act of 1924; Mary A. Oliver, widow of J. A. Oliver; M. E. Peardon, special act of 1924; Susie Roberson, widow of W. L. Roberson; Mrs. J. A. Stocks, widow of J. A. Stocks; Elizabeth Wilson, widow of Joe Wilson; Lucy Worthington, special act of 1924; Martha A. Davenport, widow of J. R. STUBBORN: Labor conditions throughout the country are worrying the administration. Strikes are becoming numerous and more difficult to adjust. Conciliators of the Labor Relations Board are stumped when "both sides" refuse to meet in conference.

Two reasons are assigned for the stubbornness of recent labor disputes. First, organized labor is deeply disappointed by the breakdown of laws enacted for its benefit and the left wing is determined to take direct action. Second, employers fear closed-shop campaigns and

TRAFFIC LAWS ARE VIOLATED

Most Cases Tried Today Involve Highway Regulations

Practically every one of the cases tried at this morning's session of County court was for violation of a State traffic law.

R. E. Koonce was fined $50 and costs and had his license revoked for 12 months upon conviction of driving while drunk. James E. Jones was fined $50 and taxed with half the court costs on a similar charge.

Brady Brown entered a plea of guilty to operating a vehicle more than 96 inches wide on the highway and fined $25, costs to be deducted from the fine.

A nol proes was taken in the case charging J. B. Oakley with operating a car in a reckless and careless manner.

Mrs. Annie Whichard was convicted of driving a car on the left side of the road and was ordered to pay the cost of the case. She took an appeal to the Superior court and bond was set at $100.

Charlie Sumerlin was convicted of driving on the wrong side of the highway and was taxed with the costs.

Frank Randolph was fined $25 and ordered to pay the costs upon conviction of operating a car in a reckless and careless manner. An appeal was taken to Superior court and bond set at $100.

Hugh Faulkner was taxed with half the costs upon entering a plea of guilty to being drunk on the highway.

Jim Henry Hand was acquitted of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Harvey Moore was given six months on the roads for possessing liquor for sale.

The case charging Cleo Vanderford with bastardy, etc., was transferred to Superior court for trial by a jury.

WOOL GROWERS URGED TO QUIT BRANDING SHEEP

Davis, Calif. (AP)—Wool growers are urged by Prof. J. F. Wilson, wool expert of the University of California, to co-operate in abandoning branding to produce paint-free wool in large enough quantities to command a premium.

Paint brands on wool constitute one of the most serious problems confronting manufacturers of wool textiles. Professor Wilson points out. No branding fluid, used as a paint substitute, will scour out in the ordinary processes.

Professor Wilson believes manufacturers would pay a premium if they could get unbranded fleeces.

Prominent Young Woman Charges She Was Beaten

Reports That She and Presbyterian Minister Flogged

Memphis, Tenn., June 16.—(AP)—A prominent young Memphis woman charged today that she and a Presbyterian minister were flogged last night near Earle, Ark., where they had gone to investigate a rumored slaying in a cotton strike.

Miss Willie Sue Blagden, 23-year-old member of a well known Memphis family, told officers here early today that she and the Rev. Claude Williams of Little Rock were beaten by a band of men when they refused to reveal the name of the man they had gone to Earle to interview.

Miss Blagden said she was struck four times across the back and sides with a heavy leather strap studded with brass and that her companion was lashed 14 times.

After the flogging, she asserted, she was put on a train for Memphis and she did not know what had become of the clergyman, identified by her as a member of the religion and labor foundation. She expressed fear that he might be badly hurt.

Miss Blagden explained that she and the Rev. Williams had gone to the Arkansas town in an effort to determine if Frank Weems, negro tenant farmer, had been fatally beaten in an altercation growing out of the eastern Arkansas cotton strike.

Sheriff Howard Curlin of Crittenden county promised an investigation of the affair early today.

Fewer Pecans Expected

CONTROL BILL TAKES EFFECT

Commodity Futures Exchanges Under Rigid Rule

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Grain, cotton and other commodity futures exchanges were brought under more rigid government regulation today as President Roosevelt signed the Jones-Smith commodity exchange bill.

The act is aimed particularly at curbing speculation in grains, cotton, rice, mill feeds, potatoes and butter and eggs through the placing of trading limits on contract margins.

A complaint to the stock exchange control bill, it will be administered by the grain futures administration under a new name—the commodity exchange commission.

All exchanges will be licensed and floor brokers and commission merchants required to register. The act would not interfere with legitimate hedging operations in products actually bought and sold. Regulations will take effect within 90 days.

Compromise Offered by Senators Meets Opposition

CONFEREES PLAN MEETING TONITE

New Plan Is Said To Provide Flat 15 Percent Tax on Corporation Incomes

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Senate tax bill conferees today produced a new compromise plan for settling the key troubles over corporation taxes, but it met with no immediate favor among House conferees.

Chairman Doughton (D.-N. C.) of the House group seeking to reconcile differences with the Senate said the Democratic senators who left a morning session early had submitted "a counter proposal." No details were given out.

The House conferees said they wanted to study it before giving any information as to whether they might be inclined to accept it.

Doughton said the conferees probably would meet tonight in overtime attempt to negotiate sort of compromise to break deadlock which has gripped a week and a half and threatens to delay adjournment of Congress past the opening of Democratic national convention.

Word came from the White House during the day that President Roosevelt before he left on his western trip last week, had invited the conferees to meet with him again if their deadlock persisted. It was said no request for such a conference had been made as yet, however.

Senate sources later said the new proposal would place a flat 15 per cent tax on corporation income, a graduated tax on undistributed corporate earnings and allow a $2,000 exemption from the latter.

Commissioners In Perfunctory Meet Mond'y Afternoon

Board Sits as Board of Equalization and Review Then Makes Inspection Tour of County Home

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners convened yesterday as a Board of Equalization and Review, as provided by statute, to hear complaints regarding assessment of property, but not a single person appeared before the board.

The law provides that the board shall meet every year on the third Monday in June, but valuation of property is made only every four years and the meeting yesterday was only a perfunctory session.

A new valuation will be made next year and the meeting next June is expected to be attended by a large number of property owners seeking adjustments.

Following the meeting, the board made an inspection trip to the county home, examining the farm and all buildings. J. H. Coward, auditor, said many improvements had been made at the county home recently and the sanitary conditions had been improved to a great extent. He said the board merely inspected the home as a matter of information.

Conferees Nearing Agreement On Bill Providing Relief

Chairman of Senate Group Predicts Final Compromise on Measure Will Be Reached Tomorrow

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Congressional conferees virtually reached an agreement today on the $2,370,000,000 deficiency bill carrying next year's relief fund—except for two items which must be voted on again by the House.

Chairman Adams (D.-Colo.) of the Senate conferees forecast a final agreement would be reached tomorrow except for the two items on which the House tied the hands of its conferees—the Florida ship canal and the $300,000,000 for a new public works fund.

Adams said the other provisions of the relief section would be left about as they were in the bill passed by the Senate—with the $1,425,000,000 relief fund appropriated direct to President Roosevelt.

The annual turnover in the retail fur trade of this country is said to have shrunk from $500,000,000 in 1929 to $150,000,000 in the last year.

PREMIER BLUM FACING UNREST

Is Convinced Coming Years Will See Big Differences

By FREDERIC SONDERN

Paris — State Department circles in Washington listened eagerly when Premier Leon Blum stressed so eloquently the necessity of closer French-American friendship and cooperation, first at the Paris American Club's banquet, and then through the trans-Atlantic broadcast.

Blum is convinced, according to his intimates, that the coming years will see a running conflict between the dictatorial "have-not" and the democratic "have" nations. Germany, Italy, and Japan on the one side; France, Britain, Russia and the little countries on the other — with southern Central Europe, northeastern Africa, and northern China as the "battlegrounds." Blum is too clearheaded a realist to think that Mussolini and Hitler can be held back by Mediterranean and Rhineland pacts in the long run — not to speak of the Tokio generals — by a reorganized League of Nations. Too many signs already indicate the contrary. Blum is thinking of a coalition of the democracies to preserve their status quo against the aggressive dictators.

France, according to Blum, has three immediate aims: to consolidate the French Republic internally with sound financing, trade recovery, and a popular government of factism's sails; to get England to resume as quickly as possible and help her regain her prestige; and to establish France's crumbling position in the Danubian basin.

The Premier realizes that the United States has been sadly neglected. He sees that American markets and capital are essential for economic recovery, particularly France is to maintain her position on the Continent. The recent Washington-Paris treaty was a long step forward. The Quai d'Orsay will concentrate on removing prejudices in the United States by non-payment of the war debts — and on making the American public world-democracy-minded.

Blum knows the American mentality pretty well, and has, moreover, been in close contact with the British interests that have made mighty strides in building up an unseen but very effective propaganda machine in the United States. As previously reported in this column, the English capitalists have been investing millions of pounds methodically in key American industries — and the newspaper business. One of London City's slickest experts in American affairs does the "advising." Incidentally, the Queen Mary and the trans-Atlantic air lines are shrewdly calculated as important agents in the British "penetration."

Despite Mussolini's freid protestations, French colonial experts have few illusions about the march of events in and around the new Italian Empire. Il Duce will make short work of the large French interests in Ethiopia and the Jibouti-Addis Ababa railroad. Jibouti, the capital of barren French Somaliland, is a vital naval base between Marseilles and the French Asiatic empire. And its existence depends on trade with the rich Ethiopian hinterland over the railroad now "guarded" by Mussolini's troops.

The French statesmen have also suddenly awakened to the fact that the security of Egypt and the Suez Canal is vital to them as to the English. And they begin to share their London colleagues' doubts on whether in five years, when new adventures will inspire his "dynamic spirit," Mussolini will respect treaties signed now. "We also know how Italian agents and Italian broadcasts from Bari have been responsible for Egyptian and Syrian unrest," said a Quai d'Orsay insider to your correspondent recently. "And we know that the Italian colony in Egypt contains 20,000 able-bodied fascists armed and organized for eventualities."

Blum will try to bridge over the present dangerous rift by urging a general Mediterranean pact, but few Paris experts doubt that an Anglo-French coalition against Italy will come eventually.

On the Balkan nations, too, has Mussolini's great victory put a very serious strain. They are now turning back to Paris and London for support against the suspect Caesar.

During the Little Entente and Balkan League conferences in Belgrade early in May, the diplomats talked very little about their usual problems — Habsburg restoration and the Hitler menace. Mussolini's saber rattling in Eastern Europe and the Near East was the main topic. Greece and Turkey watch restlessly the huge naval and air bases that Italian engineers are building on Rhodes and the Dodecanese Islands, controlling the Aegean. Yugoslavia and Greece see Albania being converted into an Italian fortress, with convenient access to the Dalmatian coast and Corfu.

Energetic Kemal Attaturk, the Turkish dictator, is fortifying the Dardanelles and has arranged with the Russians to allow their big submarine fleet into the Mediterranean in case of trouble. But his geographically less fortunate colleague Prince Paul and King

Paris, now that the League of Nations is practically finished. "For we can't trust Mussolini, no matter how many puffs he signs," said Titulescu, Rumantia's shrewd Foreign Minister.

There's the basis of the new two-camp development in Europe—re-calling 1914, when the diploma by-word was, "You can't trust Kaiser Wilhelm." And Europe now has two of them.

The other "Wilhelm" Hitler, is also presenting to Blum a problem that permits no delay, and one which will require plenty of diplomacy and "silver bullets." As the French government's shrewdest observer for Central Europe told me recently, "Blum is the last man who can stop Hitler's neutralizing the Danubian countries."

Prague, in particular, looks anxiously to Blum to remedy the many mistakes of his predecessors. Benes and his Czech government are hard pressed. Hitler's propaganda in Czecho-Slovakia is increasing in volume and violence. And the Nazi party of the German minority, supported by German funds and led by Hitler's able apostle Henlein, becomes a growing menace to the republic's stability and military value. Fear of a German invasion has driven Benes to spend 51 per cent of last year's budget for military purposes — mostly planes, heavy artillery, and fortresses. Railway building expenditure went up 80 per cent — to lay strategic roads into the German frontier sectors. And twelve new airports have been built to accommodate Russian planes in case of war, under the Czecho-Slovak military treaty.

Nevertheless the Czech generals admit that the whole western industrial part of the country would be an easy prey to the German forces. Prague, with a democratic government and conservative financing, can't stand any further arms increases without help.

In the other Little Entente states Yugoslavia and Rumania, German propaganda solidly based on big German orders for foodstuffs is making rapid headway. Your correspondent has seen and reported Berlin's "peaceful penetration" in detail. Blum needs money to counteract that, and lots of it.

From agents in Berlin comes the report that the new Schacht-Goring-Bloemberg armament council figures on the "reformed" German army being completely equipped and ready by January 1937. Six billion marks are to be spent during the current year. 600,000 regular troops and 900,000 reserves—police, Schutzstaffeln, Sturm Abteilung, and Labor Service formations—will then be ready to march at the touch of a button. The huge motor transport system described here some weeks ago, makes mobilization a matter of hours.

The Paris General Staff is particularly disturbed by details of the new German artillery units. 77mm and 109mm field guns with a range of 14 and 17 kilometers respectively compare with the 7 kilometer range of the French cannon. Schneider has perfected a gun equal to the German, but the whole French army would have to be re-equipped. Berlin Generals figure on still another advantage — their material is all brand new.

Berlin — Awaiting the developments of the momentous Geneva sitting in June, Hitler is carefully avoiding the spotlight. He wants no new "German menace" to precipitate a British agreement with Italy. He wants the troubled waters to stay as they are, so that he can fish either for London or Mussolini, at the occasion will demand.

Another bit was added to one of Nazi Germany's greatest rackets last week. Hitler's bosom pal, publisher of the Voelkischer Beobachter, and newspaper industry dictator, Herr Amann, decreed that no magazine in Germany may belong to a publisher who cannot prove his Aryan descent back to 1800. A similar law for daily newspapers was passed a year ago. The statute is very pliable, and more or less subject to Herr Amann's discretion. Amann and several Nazi leaders, including Hitler himself, have formed a company with a capital of 20,000 marks to buy up newspapers condemned under the Press Decrees. Up to date the "Phoenix Lid" has acquired 265 lucrative papers — without spending a penny. The Press Dictator appraises the value of the concern at its profit during the past year and pays the sum in instalments over the next year. "That's condemnation, not confiscation," remarked a foreign observer to the press objects the

Gestapo threatens him with prosecution for "attempting to swindle the State."

Rome — Mussolini is not sentimental about the man who practically turned Austria over to him, to be made into an Italian province. Prince Starhemberg is such a sworn enemy of Hitler that not even a "relaxation of tension" between Austria and Germany would be possible as long as he was in office. If Il Duce should decide on a dicker with Germany... And if not, the Schuschnigg government will be able to keep the Nazis out as well as anyone — with Italian help.

Even Herr Mandl, Austria's arms king who financed the Heilmwehr from the start, is deserting his companion. He has made twice his original investment out of Austrian rearmament. And with Schuschnigg planning to nationalize the armament business, he prefers to transfer his capital to where no Nazi can ever confiscate. Starhemberg is licked.

One of Rome's leading experts on British affairs recently gave me a statement of the opinion shared by most of the Italian diplomats and already indicated in this column. "Even if Baldwin and Eden should decide to be reasonable and negotiate a Mediterranean agreement," he said, "British public opinion, the Admiralty, and the London City imperialists with their powerful newspapers are going to do everything in their power to prevent our consolidating our position in Africa, Empire and Imperium just won't get along for a hundred strategic reasons. Eden's sanctions have raised an undying hate in the hearts of the Italian people. London and Rome will never again trust one another."

Mussolini exclaimed proudly that no foreign capital would be necessary for the exploitation of Ethiopia. And the Finance Minister, mentioning no figures, told the Chamber that Italy was financially as sound as before the war — the lira would remain firm, and no inflation would be resorted to.

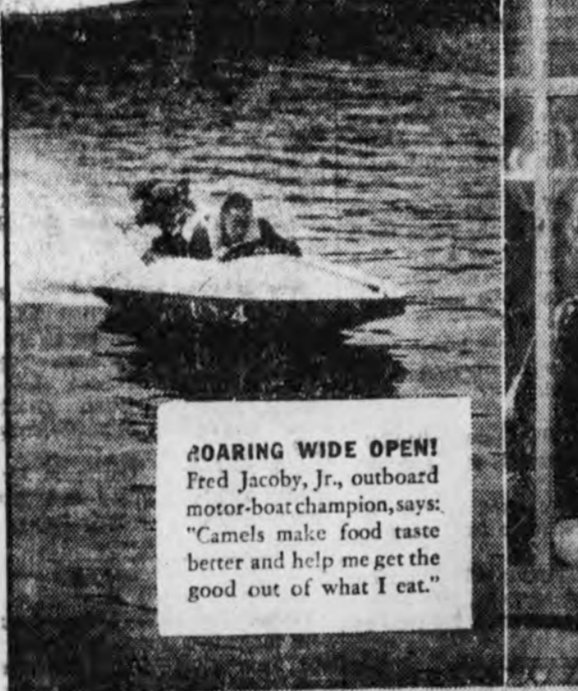

At the Milan Exposition I talked to one of northern Italy's biggest manufacturers and quizzed him on the future of Italian finance. "We are doing exactly what Germany has done," said he "much more conservatively, of course. Every foreign penny gained from exports is controlled by the government and used to buy the most vital raw materials. We make textiles of milk from Italian cows. We shall continue to decrease the internal standard of living, as far as it is dependent on foreign materials to the lowest possible point. The internal labor, for the war and now for colonization, will be paid with short-term paper, as in Germany; the banks and insurance companies will be forced to discount it and bring their entire capital into flow. When Ethiopia begins to produce, we shall again build on gold. No figures, reliable ones, are available. But that's the theory, you see."

Birds Destroyed By Farming Operations. Raleigh, June 16.—Mechanized farm operations like harvesting grain and mowing hay do considerable damage to quail and other upland game birds. Frequently nests are destroyed and young birds killed.

This condition can be remedied, said Sydney Franklin, biologist of the Soil Conservation Service, by the use of a very simple device known as a "flushing bar."

The flushing bar may be simply a long bamboo pole extending out several feet in front of the cutting blade and supporting a burlap sack weighted with old chains, Franklin said.

This device flushes the covey ahead of the blade and enables the farmer to locate the nests. Then the operator can lift his sickle to leave an undisturbed spot of cover around the nest. If this is done, said Franklin, it is highly probable that the nest will be revisited.

WAR VETERANS FORCES READY TO RULE COUNTRY

Old Story, Soldiers at Political Front, Repeats

By PRESTON GROVER Cleveland, June 16.—The years of the veterans have arrived. Historically it is 15 to 20 years after each war that the warrior lads of the rank and file who fought in their twenties come into the prominent places in party affairs.

Not by any means is full control always taken over by former soldiers, but it is notable that two of the outstanding figures connected with the Cleveland convention, Governor Landon of Kansas and Senator Steiwer of Oregon, are war veterans.

Political history since the World war has not run exactly parallel to the next previous war of really major importance, the Civil war. After the war between the states, the country turned at once to its fighters for leadership, beginning with General Ulysses S. Grant.

Thereafter both parties drew lavishly on veterans' ranks for their Presidential nominees. The last Civil war soldier to sit in the White House was William McKinley, who rounded the turn of the century as President. He had strutted the streets of his Ohio home town as a brilliant major in the armies at 22.

No World war soldier has served in the White House, although General Leonard Wood was the leading candidate for the Republican nomination (the last by deadlock) in 1920, and General Pershing was prominently mentioned.

Instead of warriors, the country has drawn on its war-time civil official ranks for post-war leadership. Harding came from the senatorship, Coolidge from the governorship, Hoover from war-time food administration and Roosevelt from assistant naval secretaryship.

So large a portion of the country's young manhood wore World war khaki that it seems inevitable that the next 20 or 25 years will see the race for the White House dotted with warrior names.

It also may be significant that in this year the soldier bonus is being paid.

Convention scene: Senator Borah on a chair in a large hotel ball room, nearly 300 news writers packed around. Directly in front is a pink-clad woman reporter. A momentary lull comes in the almost steady stream of questions.

"Senators," asks the pink lady something to this effect: "Isn't it your belief that, if all the hindrances in the way of agriculture were removed, the condition of the farmer would improve?"

To the sharp-shooters who had been grilling the senator on constitutional and platform issues it seems a pretty useless question. There is an amazed hush.

Borah, kindly visaged as a Sunday school teacher, replies something about monopoly. She writes it down, nodding her head.

Shades of 1932 and the years before: The back cover of the Republican convention book bears an advertisement for whisky. It is reported the Democratic convention book will have something like it.

Issues Instructions on How to Feed Hogs

Raleigh, June 16.—From now on, pigs that are being fed for marketing this fall should be pushed as rapidly as possible, said H. W. Taylor, extension swine specialist at State College.

A self-feeder, placed in the pasture and kept full of corn and fish meal or tankage, will enable the pigs to gain weight rapidly, he stated. The different feeds should be kept in separate compartments of the feeder.

When the price of cottonseed meal is less than three-fourths the price of fish meal or tankage, it may be mixed with these feeds to reduce the cost of feeding the pigs.

In no case, however, should the proportion of cottonseed meal be more than 50 per cent of the mixture, Taylor added.

Chauffeurs Must Secure Driving Permits and Badges

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, June 16.—Thousands of new bronze badges for licensed chauffeurs, and which must be obtained before July 1, 1936, by all persons who operate trucks, taxicabs and busses in North Carolina for pay, are now ready and on sale by the Highway Safety Division of the Department of Revenue.

These badges are of bronze, oval in shape and each bears the inscription "Licensed Chauffeur—North Carolina—Expires June 30, 1937." Each license bears a serial number. They will replace the present celluloid buttons which were issued last year and which look like campaign badges or hunting licenses.

The cost of a new badge and a new chauffeur's license is $2 and these must be renewed each year on or before July 1, according to the drivers license law. Director Arthur Fulk of the highway safety division pointed out. Last week new application blanks were mailed out to the more than 12,000 truck, taxi and bus drivers who have already been licensed. When these are filled out and returned with $2, a new license and new badge will be sent to each driver. If a driver has had no serious accident and has not been arrested or brought into court during the past year, he will be allowed to fill out his application blank before any notary public and send it in. But any driver who has been in court or involved in any serious accident, must pass an examination given by a highway patrolman and have his application signed by the patrolman, in order to get a new license, Director Fulk said.

TIME FOR GOOD CITIZENS TO TAKE A HAND

Whether they are part truth, all truth, or no truth the reports that have drifted into this office regarding the conduct of the primaries in this county on June 6 are enough to make our decent citizens rise up in arms to see to it that our primaries are conducted on a decent basis.

It is a known fact that for several weeks prior to the voting the petty politicians from every section of the county were seeking handouts from the various candidates promising support in the various precincts and promising to deliver so many votes to the polls for certain stipulated fees.

In one instance at least one of these would-be money grabbers approached a candidate who had no opposition and told him that he would need $2 in cash and a tank of gasoline in order to get votes for him in the Saturday's voting.

The candidate of course knew this was just another effort to get some money out of him so he never told the fellow that he didn't need any votes, but told him that the others had already relieved him of all his money so to look elsewhere for a handout for his support.

It is a known fact that in cases where candidates did have opposition they were at the mercy of these panhandlers and many did pay and pay dear for support in certain precincts whether they got it or not.

In other instances rumors were to the effect that voters were actually paid so much each to cast their ballots for certain candidates while in another precinct the vote buyers worked a smoother scheme by betting the voters a dollar to a nickel that they would not vote for certain candidates and made the voters show them the marked tickets in order to prove that they had won the bet.

These are just a few of the reports that have come to this office from the various sections of this county since the primary. There may or may not be truth in them but we believe that there is more truth than fiction in them.

The only person lower than the one who will sell a vote is the one who will try to buy a vote in order to gain an advantage over another candidate.

our primaries is bringing the system into disrepute, but what we need is not to do away with the primary but for the decent citizens to make an honest effort to try to expose those persons who traffic in votes and let public opinion make it so hot for them that they will back off into the dark and hide forever.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

(Continued from Page One) industry is determined to take the offensive now, in the hope of warding off a tougher subsequent war over the closed shop.

Still another motive attributed to industry is that it will welcome turmoil and an ebb tide during the fall as a means of defeating the New Deal. Some observers actually expect a stock market slump to be engineered by big operators and their industrial allies.

DEMANDS: William Z. Foster is busy encouraging formation of industrial unions among Pacific Coast steel workers. Foster is said to have advised his followers that the Communist party must take an active part in supporting the Committee for Industrial Organization, because the Communists hope to take over all these unions sooner or later.

BUYER: Mixed in with labor disputes is the Walsh-Healey bill requiring concerns doing business with the government to submit to wage and labor costs. Intense opposition to this bill is now being developed by many industrial concerns.

INDIRECT: Two other measures are scheduled for enactment besides the Walsh-Healey bill. They are the Federal-aid-to-highways bill giving the states nearly $100,000,000—and it's so nicely distributed that every Congressman gets his gray.

DOCUMENTS: Disposition of documents and files is a perennial problem for Uncle Sam. Thousands of tons of records crowd the departments. The Archives Building, immense repository of valuable documents, is not designed as a filing cabinet.

ALLOP: Some of the biggest money men in New York are surprisingly disinterested in the presidential contest. They still expect to lay plenty of cash on the political line—but plan to devote their donations chiefly to the election of conservative Congressmen of either party instead of "squandering" it on the long shot chance of beating Roosevelt.

THREE factors contribute to their attitude. One is that they do not really believe that Roosevelt can be licked. The O. O. P. convention did nothing to change their minds about that.

Second, they are suspicious of all this new-fangled Republican liberalism. They have been assured that it is nothing to worry about, but they remain skeptical. They recall all too clearly that several substantial donors to the Democratic campaign fund in 1932 have been heartily kicked in the teeth by the New Deal.

Finally, the talk about the West taking control of the party away from the East has got under their skin. Their reaction is that if the West is going to ignore their wishes it can also do without their dough. "Perhaps that treatment

ent. Horse and hound, hound and horse; the talk turned as naturally that way as in Chelsea it might have turned to palette and pen, or in Mayfair to personalities.

Nancy Featherstone could talk hunting as well as anyone; in fact she was summed up in Lois Everest's brilliant account of the evening to a London friend by the cruel description, "My dear, there was one woman there, in a disastrous chignon affair, who practically was a horse"; but once Nancy's heart was not much in the talk and her eyes kept traveling to the gilded clock on the mantelshelf.

Lois Everest thought the woman who was practically a horse dull; but then God had seen fit to give her a certain fish.

His faithful factotum presented a cheerfully ruddy face from the kitchen regions. "I'm going over to dinner with Captain Reeves," Dale announced.

"Yes, sir," Mrs. Somers beamed. "I'm walking as it's a fine night." Dale amplified, "so I'm giving myself plenty of time."

Dale Shipley lived by himself at Fielden Cottage and a little more than a mile away by road, less if one took the field paths, stood Ferny House where he was hidden to dine.

Ferney House at a quarter to seven knew none of the peace and quiet of Fielden Cottage. Captain and Mrs. Reeves were two of the most popular people in the district and they did a considerable amount of entertaining, but somehow practice never brought Nellie Reeves anywhere nearer to perfection, and on a day when people were expected to dinner a tense atmosphere reigned in the place almost from breakfast time.

On this particular occasion matters were complicated by the fact that there was a visitor staying in the house—Lois Everest, a friend of Nellie Reeves, down for the hunting, a polished creature from London, who at a quarter to seven precisely was doing her heroic best to bathe in less than six inches of hot water and shouting, out dutiful and unconvincing assurances through the bathroom door that she liked it.

DESPITE the inauspicious nature of these preparations everything miraculously came right in the end, and by twenty past seven when the first guest was announced she was shown in to a collected host and hostess sitting in a charming drawing room.

And the drawing room of Ferney House was really charming. Nancy Featherstone knew the room of old and had always loved its odd shape, its great open fireplace and its heavy black oak beams.

The instant she entered the room her heart fell. He was not there. She was not particularly fond of the Reeves, and had accepted their invitation solely because she hoped that a certain person would be there. And he was not. It would have been physically impossible for her, even in the most casual way, to frame his name and ask whether he was to come or not. She would have to wait now and hope. And at the age of forty Nancy Featherstone was getting tired of waiting and hoping.

"Miss Everest—Miss Featherstone." She was being introduced to someone, an ordeal which always made her feel awkward. "How do you do?"

Just like the Reeves, she reflected, to spring somebody really smart from London on her without warning. A blackish frock and blood red nails, the sort of things he would fall for straight away, of course. "Doctor Chamberlain."

Everybody smiled at the entrance of Sydney Chambers into the room. He was short and looked comically schoolboyish in his tight-fitting, out-of-date dinner suit. Tubby is the exact word to describe his figure and his laughing face and his happy staccato voice.

He visited Ferney House as often as he decently could. "Dine where there's plenty of money," was his motto, "then you get good food and good wine, and you'll do your stomach no harm."

WITH the wine talk began to flow more easily, and indeed conversation was never very difficult where Sydney Chambers was present.

Conversation was not difficult.

Lois Everest a lovely skin and a beautiful face. Men were always anxious to talk to her.

Presently Doctor Chambers, whose eyes for a pretty girl was as discriminating as fifty-five as it ever had been, came to the rescue of Lois and Nancy Featherstone was left to her apprehensive wonderings undisturbed.

"Were you hunting today?" the doctor asked. "Yes. Gorgeously, wasn't it?" "I didn't go. Busy."

"Which way did they go?" "My good man, don't ask me. I don't know this country from Peckham Rye."

"And don't you know Peckham Rye?" "Is there such a place?" "Oh, rather. I lived there for four years, my first practice."

"My God—what do people do there?" "Oh, they live and die and have babies; and love and hate and sneer at one another, just like anywhere else, you know," the doctor said quietly.

"What are you two talking about over there?" their hostess called out. "I'm being told off for being a snob," Lois laughed.

will bring the boys back to their senses." ern Air and United Airlines make their appeals of this nature to the I. C. C.

COMPLICATED: New York political sharps are intrigued by the Michigan senatorial situation—especially by Louis Ward's efforts to become the official Democratic nominee.

Father Coughlin has repeatedly expressed disapproval of Roosevelt because the President refuses to accept the dicta of the National Union for Social Justice as the last word in political and economic wisdom.

The Michigan picture is complicated by the strange case of Jim Couzens, who is likely to be discovered by the Republican party to which he nominally belongs and adopted by the Democrats instead.

RIVALRY: The Interstate Commerce Commission's recent action in granting a mail rate increase to the Northwest Airlines over the heated protests of the Post Office Department points up the bitter backstage rivalry between these two agencies for jurisdiction over the air transport companies.

USEFUL: Japanese efforts to negotiate trade agreements with smaller Latin American nations have met several reverses lately. Colombia, Salvador, Guatemala and Haiti—among others—have refused to entertain Japanese proposals.

INFORMED: New York observers say this may be due to the fact that some Latin nations have been badly stung in earlier dickers along the same lines. They cite the case of Guatemala, which accepted a large consignment of cheap cycle cars from Japan. The cars worked fine—except that they were incapable of climbing a grade of 2 per cent or more. As Guatemala is all hills, you can figure how useful they turned out to be.

Hoey's Managers Concede They Face Hard Struggle

Plan To Wage Stiff Campaign Preceding Second Primary

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILL. Raleigh, June 15.—The campaign managers and workers for Clyde R. Hoey know they have a hard fight ahead of them if they are going to defeat Dr. R. P. McDonald for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the second primary July 4. It was indicated today.

Nor are they going to be misled into the belief they are going to have a push-over in the second election because of the enthusiasm for Hoey shown in the State Democratic Convention last Friday. They are fully aware of the fact that out of the more than 50,000 votes cast in the June 6 primary, Mr. Hoey received only 193,882, that Dr. McDonald received only about 4,000 votes less than Hoey and that the combined vote of Dr. McDonald and Sandy Graham was 321,356. So the Hoey forces know they have a

Donald has already served notice that he is going to use some rough-and-tumble methods in this second campaign and let the chips fall where they may.

"In the first primary campaign, I kept my campaign in the parlor in spite of the campaign methods used by the other candidates," Dr. McDonald said Saturday. "But in this second campaign I am going to take the fight out into the back yard."

Yet the very fact that both Dr. McDonald and his supporters are mad and angry while many of them are frankly discouraged, is regarded by many observers here as being decidedly to the advantage of the Hoey forces. For when a candidate gets mad and ceases to weigh his words and plan his punches, but starts to blurt out harsh words and to swing wild, he is not as effective as the candidate who remains calm, cool, collected and in complete control of all his faculties.

Accordingly, if Dr. McDonald continues to make more and more bitter attacks upon the record of the Democratic party in the state, on former Governor O. Max Gardner, Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and other administration leaders, especially when more than 3,000 representative Democrats from every county in the state overwhelmingly indorsed the record of the party, including the records of Gardner and Ehringhaus in the State Democratic Convention here last Friday, many believe he will make more votes for Hoey than he will for himself.

Dr. McDonald and his supporters are confident, of course, that a majority of the 125,000 persons who voted for Sandy Graham for Governor in the first primary will vote for McDonald in the second. They are convinced that most of those who voted for Graham were originally for McDonald and went over to Graham only because Graham made such a vigorous attack on the present and past state administrations. Now that Graham has been eliminated and because most of the McDonaldites maintain he was nothing more than a Hoey paw-paw to pull votes away from McDonald so Hoey could lead, they are convinced that most of those who voted for McDonald rather than Hoey in a second primary.

The Hoey managers are confident, however, that most of those who voted for Graham did so because they were not satisfied with McDonald and that now they will not switch back to a candidate who is not acceptable to them in the first place.

BEARS BEAT GREENIES BY SCORE OF 8-7

New Bern Bests Locals in 10-Innings to Break Win Streak

By JAMES L. WHITFIELD

History repeated itself yesterday. Baseball teams like great empires, after obtaining a certain standard, fall. Yesterday it was a baseball team that did the falling when the New Bern Bears defeated the Greenies by a score of 8-7.

The defeat suffered by the locals at New Bern yesterday put them one game short of being tied with the Ayden Aces, who have held the top place position for some time.

Yesterday's loss was the first in 9 games for the locals, having secured eight consecutive victories previous to their losing tilt.

In the sixth inning, the locals had a comfortable lead of 5 runs over the Bruins, and in the ninth had a three run lead until it was tied by a single by Sousa, who went to second on a sacrifice made by Jacobs.

It was the tenth inning, however, that the Bears scored the lone run needed to overtake the locals. This was secured by Bill Branch, who singled with one man gone from his group, bringing in the runner who scored the winning run for the Bears.

Watson was the starting twirler for the locals, but was replaced in the sixth by May, with no outs. Swain started in the box for the Bruins, but failed to star, and was snatched out and replaced by Parker, who pitched the rest of the way.

Ace Parker, local left fielder, was started on third sack yesterday because of Bo Farley, who had decided to take a few days rest because of a "charley-horse".

When Parker went to bat in the first inning, he was hit on the left elbow by one of Swain's tosses, and Dr. Joe Patterson of New Bern, deemed it necessary that the arm of Parker be X-rayed. This was done last night, and it was revealed the injury received by Parker was painful and that he was suffering from muscular bruises.

The doctor said he would be able to see duty again within the next two or three days. After Parker's misfortune, Farley took his position on third base and held it down during the remainder of the game.

Mueller got a homer and a single to lead with the stick for the New Bern outfit, while Wagner's homer featured for the locals.

This afternoon the Greenies are playing the Tarboro Bunnies at the Third street stadium here. If this game is a victory for the locals, and the Aces lose their tilt, the Greenies will obtain the top position.

Grid Lineup Ready Seattle — (AP)—Jimmy Phelan, grid coach at the University of Washington, has already selected his starting lineup for the opening game here next fall when the Huskies tackle the Gophers of Minnesota, undefeated for three years. Ten veterans are to begin the fray, with one sophomore, according to Phelan's plans.

SPORT SLANTS by PAP

Training camp stories that emanated from Bradenton, where the St. Louis Cardinals were getting into shape for the current season, did not mention the presence in camp of one Stuart Martin. Much less did they sing the praises of the rookie infielder. He was completely overlooked. Yet today he has "arrived" as the Cardinals' regular second-baseman and has kept the veteran Frankie Frisch in the dugout.

At last the baseball observers have noticed him. "That's all right with me," draws the slender youth from North Carolina. "I'd rather have them saying nice things about me now in the regular playing season than when I was at camp."

Probably that was the longest speech Stuart ever made. He is as disc-mouthed as his teammate Dizzy Dean is talkative. At camp Branch Rickey was singing Martin's praises but it all fell on unappreciative ears. Martin had come up from Asheville in the Piedmont league, but what of it, Rickey argued—the lad was good enough to play ball on any club in any league. What's more, he added that Stuart would prove it before the season had run its course.

It took some stretch of imagination to visualize the 155-pound, quiet youngster taking Frankie Frisch's place at second. Rickey could see it, but he was pretty much alone in that respect. Yet that is exactly what has happened and, unless all signs are wrong, Stuart Martin is destined to become one of the outstanding infielders in the game.

juicy World Series melon (if they do get into the series). But that's the way it goes. A club must constantly replace worn-out parts with fresh material, if it is to survive in the race for gold and glory. And Hallahan already has collected a fair share of World Series spoils.

HYPNOTISM ENDS STUDENTS' FEARS OF DENTAL DRILL

London (AP)—Students of the Royal dental hospital here have had their teeth cracked, chipped, filled and extracted, all without anaesthetics—and all without pain.

It's done by hypnotic suggestion. "There is nothing mysterious about it," claims Mr. William Lovatt, who is lecturing on "hypnotic dentistry," in several large London hospitals. "It is a perfectly natural process, and in no way harmful."

"A suggestible patient—and 70 per cent are—has only to accept suggestions for anaesthesia and he can submit to the forceps or drill confident that he will feel nothing, either at the time or afterwards."

Experience with 3,000 cases, he says, has convinced Mr. Lovatt that the possibilities for hypnotism in modern medicine are enormous.

Splitting Seconds New York (AP)—A timing device accurate to one-thousandth of a second is being used in auto racing here. The apparatus consists of a thin wire, one-sixteenth of an inch above the ground, stretched across the track at the finish line. When a car hits the wire, an automatic check is made on a revolving tape in the timer's stand.

THE SPORTSMAN

By LARRY BAUER Increased water over the northwest has left lakes and streams in better condition than they have reached at any other time since the drought of the early 1930's, according to Cy Platteau, writer and sportsman, who knows the region.

From the Brule river to the haunts of pike in northern Minnesota, this season has found more than the average number of fishermen ready for the annual inaugural and judging from reports, they are getting fish aplenty.

A wide variety of fish attract the pleasurable army. They begin on the shallow lakes of Dakota prairies where the bull head teams with the sunfish to provide outdoor recreation, and end with the muskellunge known as the "tiger of the north," which lures fishermen by the thousands.

Trouting districts hold the spotlight for the fly artist. Along Michigan and Wisconsin streams may be observed the ardent Waltonite, hat strung or book filled with "noters" and "sunkens," whipping his rod with a smile of satisfaction because there is something in his creed besides moss.

In the Minnesota-Wisconsin sector of the Mississippi nine-foot channel, fishermen are praising the waterheads as a top-notch hangout for the wall-eyed pike, a table favorite. Catches commonly are made of four and five pounders.

This one was told by Herbert

Woodcock. He has photographs and witnesses to prove it. While fishing on the Neosho river in Kansas, Woodcock hooked a one and a half pound channel catfish. As he was pulling it in a yellow catfish grabbed the smaller one and Woodcock landed both. The larger fish weighed 81-2 pounds.

Governor Elmer Holt of Montana urged "stockmen, sportsmen, federal agencies and individuals to work together to save the wild life of the west" in an address at a recent conservation conference.

Retreating winter disclosed one of nature's tragedies in the mountains near Etana, Wyo.—the death of 37 elk in a snowslide.

D. L. Roberts, boy scout executive, discovered the carcasses in a deep ravine. They had remained hidden beneath a snowbank until it was melted by warm weather.

New York Cotton

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, line to four higher on trade and foreign buying with offers small. Prices were ruling about three to five points net higher at the end of the first hour. The market at midday was about two to five points net higher with October at 11.23 and March 11.18. Futures closed very steady, 6 to 11 higher, spot steady, middling 11.85.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Steels and miscellaneous industrials gave a helping hand to today's stock market. Gains of fractions to two or more points were registered by the favorites. Near the fourth hour dealings were slow. There were a number of soft spots in evidence and many issues were unchanged. The market apparently was less disturbed by foreign happenings but the congressional tax controversy tended to promote a wary attitude in the commission houses. The late stock tone was firm. Transfers approximated 750,000 shares.

STEIWER SOUNDS G.O.P. WAR CRY

"There are no party lines when human liberty is at stake," shouts Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon as he sounds the keynote of the 21st Republican National Convention at Cleveland. Lashing the Roosevelt administration, Steiwer, a possible vice-presidential nominee, invited all dissatisfied Democrats to join the Republicans in a "drive to put an American Deal into the place now usurped by a self-styled 'New Deal.'" (Associated Press Photo).

completely the picture which had become more or less standard over a period of a generation. At a long succession of such gatherings, the big question had been how to organize the west. Eastern organization men, in firm control of the conventions but fearful of election repercussions in the plains states, had figured what concessions must be made to the Democrats, the LaFollettes, the Norrises. This time, the westerners, who marched on the convention under the banner of Alf M. Landon, had a similar problem about the east. Even before the party hosts assembled at Cleveland, the western leaders began to look forward to national leadership and take steps accordingly. They sent emissaries eastward to the burden of their representations was that in 1936 the west meant to take command, but had no intention of being bull-headed about it. They asked what it was necessary to do, so that a western nominee might have the best possible chance to carry the east in November. They found the easterners receptive. For months it had been agreed among the top men of the party that a western man must be the candidate. They way they put it was this: First of all, you must give us convincing evidence what candidate from their own section the west prefers. Then you must give us assurances written in the party platform, that western leadership will not run wild if it is put at the party throttle. At Cleveland the Landonites set out definitely to meet both of these requests. They pressed the case for their candidate on the ground that he suited the west as shown by the character of his western support. They undertook to write a platform which would neither alienate that support nor offend the east. That, in brief, tells the story of Cleveland. The general theme was echoed in convention details, from the day the convention began. Some were surprised, for instance at the number of old-line easterners delegated by a Landon-controlled resolutions committee to sit on the key subcommittee which wrote the platform. The answer was that the western leadership was anxious to avoid any appearance of ignoring the east. For the future, the trend at Cleveland is most significant. It means that the new western leadership is counting on the west as its November nest egg, and means to do what it can to annex the additional needed votes in the east; a process quite contrary to that prevailing in past years. It means that the east is to be made a real campaign battleground from now on.

Don't overlook the one really fine car for less than $1,000*

CHECK THE 3 KEYS TO VALUE

1. HAS IT THE COMFORT AND LUXURY OF A 125-INCH WHEELBASE?
2. HAS IT FINE-CAR ENGINEERING THROUGHOUT?
3. IS THE ADVERTISED PRICE THE PRICE OF THE SEDAN?

TODAY, AT THE lowest prices in its history, the Nash Ambassador is even more beautiful, even more luxurious than models formerly priced over $2,000! It has a 125-inch wheelbase. Compare that with its less luxurious competitors! The Nash Ambassador is not a "scaled-down" model. There has been no "skipping" in upholstery or in fittings. The Ambassador has the famous Nash Twin-Ignition engine and many other features of engineering usually found only in cars priced much higher. It gives you big, double-acting hydraulic brakes and a rugged all-steel body with steel top. The money-saving Nash Automatic Cruising Gear is available at slight extra cost. If you buy on facts alone in this price class, you will certainly buy a Nash Ambassador! The Nash Motors Company, Kenosha, Wis.

125-INCH WHEELBASE SEDANS WITH BUILT-IN TRUNKS $835 TO $995

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The one lingering impression of the big Republican show at Cleveland has to do with the constant, insistent pressure of the west, seeking to turn eastern party leaders away from traditions they have cherished for years. In terms of the drama, the play could well be entitled "The Wooling of the East." Its action reversed
