LARGE CROWD HEARS SPEECH BY McDONALD

Administration Foe Lashes Out Against "Machine Rule"

DECLARES STAND VARIOUS ISSUES

Tells Pitt County Audience a Vote for Hoey is a Vote for Gov. Ehringhaus

Declaring that if his opponent in the Democratic gubernatorial campaign, Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby, is nominated and elected he will be obliged either to do away with liquor control or else turn its operation over to the state and deny the various counties any profits derived therefrom and charging his foe also would place a tax back on land, Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, foe of what he termed "machine rule," brought his campaign to this county last night.

Dr. McDonald also stressed his farm program and recalled that he was active in trying to influence Governor Ehringhaus to call a special session of the legislature this spring to enact legislation which would allow tobacco compact to have been put into effect this year.

He charged Mr. Hoey was directly responsible for the governor not calling the session, requested by thousands of farmers from Pitt and other Eastern North Carolina counties.

Dr. McDonald branded as ridiculous a referendum on the liquor control question and added if one were held and the state voted for control, a "Gardner system" would be established which would mean that Pitt county would receive no revenue from the profits of the stores. He said that any referendum conducted under Mr. Hoey would be held under the "Hoey machine system."

Asking "what is behind Clyde Hoey," the speaker answered by saying the old machine and power and tobacco companies. He declared that his opponent had said he would not increase the tax on wealth, and asked "where will he get the money. I have told you where I would get the revenue - from the wealth - but he has told you nothing because he will place the tax back on land just as it was under the Gardner regime."

Mr. McDonald branded as ridiculous charges by his opponents that he sought to put white and negro children in the same classrooms and said it was a "plain lie" invented for the purpose of arousing the worst kind of prejudice against him. He added that this was one of the many lies his opponents had invented in its efforts to beat him in the second primary, July 4.

Despite a hard rain, a crowd that more than filled the court room ventured out to hear the anti-administration candidate. Every seat in the court room was filled and the doors packed.

Invite Smith to Stump for Republicans

ALFRED E. SMITH

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Chairman John D. M. Hamilton of the Republican national committee today virtually invited former governor Alfred E. Smith to speak in the campaign in behalf of governor Alf M. Landon.

In response to a direct question as to whether Smith would speak for Landon, Hamilton replied: "I think Governor Smith is one of the finest Americans, and the people of the country are entitled to hear his views."

Asked whether his statement did not contain an inference that he wanted the former governor "to take the stump" in behalf of the Republican ticket, Hamilton replied: "It isn't even an inference—adding that he would be tickled to death."

GUARD KILLED IN OHIO STRIKE

Rioting Breaks Out at Ohio Steel Corporation Plant

Portsmouth, Ohio, June 23.—(AP)—One company guard was slain and at least four other persons were wounded today by rifle bullets in an outbreak of rioting between pickets and guards at the Portsmouth plant of the Wheeling steel corporation. Two of the wounded were company guards.

Police Chief Clarence Highfield of New Boston, where the plant is located, estimated that between 200 and 300 persons were engaged in the rioting.

WPA DIRECTOR OUTLINES NEW REGULATIONS

Present $19 to $94 Monthly Wages Be Continued

HARRY HOPKINS HOLDS CONTROL

Most of $1,425,000,000 Relief Appropriation Be Handled by WPA Administrator

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, the Works Progress Administration administrator, directed state WPA administrators today to continue the present $19 to $94 monthly "security" wages.

Armed with most of the $1,425,000,000 relief appropriation made into law by President Roosevelt yesterday, Hopkins ordered a number of changes in work relief regulations.

Three, the first two required by congress in the new relief bill, were ordered as follows: 1. Need of veterans for relief should be determined without taking into consideration of the bonus.

2. Aliens illegally entered into the United States shall be barred from work relief jobs and administrators "shall make every reasonable effort consistent with prompt employment of the destitute unemployed to see that such aliens are not employed."

3. WPA workers no longer will be paid for time lost because of weather conditions or temporary interruption in operations of projects, but "shall be allowed every reasonable opportunity to make up the lost time in that month or the succeeding month."

The WPA field staff was given the responsibility for selecting workers. Hopkins continued the requirement that 90 per cent of WPA employees be taken from relief rolls.

Tar Heel Delegates Vote Abrogate Two-Thirds Rule

Philadelphia, June 23.—(AP)—North Carolina's delegation to the Democratic national convention today voted to cast its 28 votes for abrogation of the rule requiring a two-thirds convention vote to nominate candidates.

Nine delegates voted against the proposal and the delegation invoked the unit rule and all the votes will be cast for abrogation.

Rep. Robert L. Doughton, Laurel Springs, made the motion for abrogation. Julian Price, Greensboro, proxy for national committeeman C. L. Shuping, also of Greensboro moved for no change.

There was little discussion as Governor Ehringhaus, chairman of the delegation, called for a vote on the proposals.

Among those voting for abrogation were Doughton, Ehringhaus, L. Gov. A. H. Graham, J. W. Winborne, Marion, chairman of the state executive committee.

Senator Robert R. Reynolds voted with Price against lifting of the rule.

Luke Lamb, Wilson, delegate from the second congressional district, made the motion that the state cast its vote as a unit at the convention.

Convention Better Unified Than Since Days Of Wilson As Democrats Start Session

Chairman James A. Farley Says New Deal Sole Issue

Roosevelt Generalissimo Opens Democratic Convention with Lashing Attack on Both G. O. P. Nominees and Platform

Philadelphia, June 23.—(AP)—The sole issue of the coming presidential campaign is the continuance of the new deal, Chairman Farley of the Democratic national committee, said today as he opened the party's national convention.

To this he added a lashing attack upon both the nominees and the platform of the Republican party and a charge that they were the product of an effort to appear conservative in the East and liberal in the west.

"Behind the Republican ticket," he added, "is the crew of the Du Pont liberty league and their allies which have so far financed every underdog agency that has disgraced American politics with their appeals to race prejudice, religious intolerance and personalities so gross that they had to be repudiated even by the regular Republican organization."

With these assertions he coupled extended praise for the accomplishments of the new deal and a prediction that the Democratic platform would be one to which the resolutions committee could commit itself "without laughing and swallowing without choking."

"The continuance of the new deal is the issue," Farley shouted to the delegates at the very outset of his remarks.

The platform adopted by the Republicans at Cleveland, he said, was "unsurpassed in the history of party declarations for platitudes and vague promises," and then he said: "Nobody takes the Cleveland platform seriously—not even our political adversaries."

Had the Republicans been sincere, he contended, they would have renominated former President Hoover, who Farley said, "represents the classical attitude of their party and then we would have had a direct and frank contest before the American people of the new deal and the old deal."

INCOME SHOWS BIG INCREASE FUNERAL HELD FOR C. F. BLAND

Morgenthau Reports Tax Collections Surpass Estimates Services Conducted From Methodist Church Monday

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau reported today that income tax collections in the first 20 days of June amounted to $298,505,823 a 23 per cent increase over the comparable period last year.

At the same time the daily treasury statement indicated that income tax collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 would exceed the $1,434,000,000 estimated by President Roosevelt in his revised budget message.

The statement said receipts for the year had amounted to $1,405,000,000 through June 20.

Morgenthau's report on the first 20 days of this month, covering second installment payments on last year's incomes, showed collections in this period were $55,817,047 in excess of the $242,688,776 collected in a corresponding period last year.

Funeral services for Claudius Franklin Bland, prominent Greenville resident who died at his home, 502 East Ninth street Sunday as a result of an accident in Rocky Mount early in April, were conducted from Jarvis Memorial Methodist church yesterday afternoon.

The services were conducted by Dr. G. R. Combs, pastor of the church, of which Mr. Bland was a member. Following the funeral, the cortege left for Washington, N. C., former home of Mr. Bland, where interment was made. The rites at the grave were conducted by Greenville and Washington Masons.

Mr. Bland died at 5:55 Sunday afternoon as a direct result of injuries he received on April 8 when he was installing an automobile lift at a filling station in Rocky Mount. He spent some time in Parkview hospital in Rocky Mount, coming home three weeks ago.

He was an active member of the local Methodist church and was prominent in Masonic circles. He was a native of this county, having been born in Gritton, where he was married to Miss Minnie Gabriel in 1896 of Beaufort. After living in Conetoe a short time, he moved to Washington in 1900 and established the Harris hardware company, which he operated until 1916 when he moved to Hendersonville where he also operated a hardware store. He came back to his county some time later, moving to Farmville, thence to Greenville in 1933, where he has since made his home.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Minnie Gabriel Bland; two daughters, Mrs. P. A. Cabell, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Minnie Bland of this city; two sons, C. Frank Bland, Jr., of Annapolis, Md., and R. Barnes Bland of Greenville; two brothers, Jim Bland of Vanceboro and R. E. Bland of Kinston; and three sisters, Mrs. J. H. A'britton of Chapel Hill and Miss Ella B'and of Kinston.

Active pallbearers were: J. H. Wadrop, J. C. Wadrop, G. P. Riegan, Edward Batchelor, G. J. Woodward, J. K. Spivey.

Honorary stewards and trustees of Jarvis Memorial church: A. B. Ellington, James Brown, J. C. Congleton, M. K. Blount, K. T. Furr, H. J. McGinnis, R. L. Humber, S. T. White, J. L. Little, E. L. Four Greenville Men Are Cited To Court

Four Greenville business men have been cited to appear in Mayor's court Saturday morning to face charges "rowing out of two alterations following arguments over politics."

J. W. Clark and R. L. Powell engaged in one affair and Bryce Sigmond and Charles Stafford in another.

Each of the altercations occurred last night and resulted from misunderstandings over politics.

Officials Report Contributions To Community School

Good Enrollment at Both Units of Daily Vacation Bible School Yesterday Despite Heavy Rains

In spite of the rain yesterday there was a good enrollment at both units of the Daily Vacation Bible school. It is expected that the present enrollment will be materially increased when the weather clears. It was stated today that pupils may be enrolled at any time.

Contributions received yesterday through the work of the committee from the Methodist church totaled $54.75. The previously acknowledged $21.00 collected by the Christian church committee brings the total contributions to $75.75. It is expected that other committees will begin to turn in reports. This is a community project and the small budget of $500 should be raised without a great deal of trouble. Contributions may be turned in to any member of the Ministerial Association or to The Daily Reflector.

Local People Attend Rites Mrs. C. E. Norris

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Norris, and Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Norris of this city attended the funeral in Goldsboro this morning of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Norris' daughter-in-law, Mrs. C. E. Norris, 42, who succumbed at her home in Goldsboro yesterday morning after several months of confining illness.

Mrs. Norris was before her marriage, Miss Dorothy Griffin, a daughter of W. H. Griffin, Sr., and the late Mrs. Griffin of Goldsboro.

Funeral services were conducted from the home this morning at 11 o'clock by Rev. O. W. Dowd, pastor of the St. Paul Methodist Church of which Mrs. Norris was a member. Burial followed in the Willow Dale cemetery of Goldsboro.

Surviving Mrs. Norris are her husband, C. E. Norris, two sons, William and Eugene Norris, Jr., and a daughter, Nancy, all of Goldsboro; her father, W. H. Griffin of Pointeferd, Fla.; a brother, W. H. Griffin, Jr., of Pointeferd, Fla.; three sisters, Misses Lena and Haddie Griffin of Pointeferd, Fla., and the other, Miss Mamie Griffin of Goldsboro.

LEADERS BACK OF PRESIDENT

Roosevelt Men Swarm Speaker's Stand, Others Seek Draft Platform Satisfactory to White House While Still Others Consider Changes in Rules Desired by Executive As Party Chieftains Gather in Philadelphia For Democratic National Convention

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 23.—(AP)—A Democratic national convention more firmly unified than any since the days of Woodrow Wilson assembled today to answer muster under the banners of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The opening salute of the big rally resounding militantly through the vast and colorful reaches of Philadelphia's great public auditorium was a booming new deal speech by James A. Farley, Democratic chairman and Roosevelt generalissimo.

Roosevelt men swarmed the speaker's stand. Other Roosevelt men headed by Senator Wagner of New York worked elsewhere in seclusion to perfect a platform satisfactory to the White House. Still others pledged to Roosevelt drafted the changes in convention rules which he desires.

And on every hand the expectation was universal that before the week-end Roosevelt and Garner would be renominated with substantial, if not complete unanimity.

Senator Wagner, fresh from conferences in Washington, was closeted with Secretary Wallace about the farm plank but it remained uncertain whether the President would accept Wallace's proposal for crop insurance. In the end Mr. Roosevelt is expected to decide.

Missing from the party councils were Senator Carter Glass, the Virginia party leader who refused election to the resolutions committee, saying he was too weary after the long congressional session at Washington. Governor Peery was chosen Virginia's representative in his stead.

At peace within, the convention assumed a war-like unyielding attitude toward conservative and liberal opposition alike today in the fleetly but vibrant open session.

The standards of all 48 states were waved in a tumultuous parading demonstration for President Roosevelt which lasted 30 minutes.

An unsmiling Farley, himself always expressing confidence, warned the party cohorts against over-confidence while castigating the Republican ticket and platform as one the electorate would reject in November.

After hearing him praise the New Deal, the platform workers under Senator Wagner repaired again to their conference rooms to discuss the policies upon which the party this week-end will ask reelection of Roosevelt and Garner.

Their task was not as easy as they had hoped, but there was apparently no expectation of floor arguments such as have split the party on money, farm and labor questions in the past. It looked more than ever as though even the two-thirds nomination rule dispute would be a washout. Strong southerners joined the repealers.

Though divisions remained evident from private comment, no dissensions on hand showed the least inclination to join Alfred E. Smith in his "walk."

Not naming Smith, Farley referred to him obliquely by arranging the American Liberty League.

He repeated that the League which includes Smith and some Democratic leaders, is a "Du Pont" and backs the Republican ticket.

ALF M. LANDON: Picture Story of His Life

While directing party headquarters for Clyde Reed, later Governor, at the state capital in 1928, Alf M. Landon met the inspiration for another, non-political campaign. She was Theo Cobb, prominent young society woman and daughter of a Topeka banker. An accomplished pianist, who had completed her musical education in Europe, she also was interested in welfare work. They were married on January 9, 1930.

"Alf's new bride," John Landon said following his son's second marriage, "is his first all over again. Just two sizes smaller." "Nominee" ket and washed out prices, Landon for First Lady, Theo Cobb Landon went to Washington to seek congressional pro-ration of production remains placid in the hubbub that rocks the governor's mansion and a boost in the tariff. When Oklahoma, Texas and California government control of the oil man's foma gushers flooded the oil mar-business is needed—and that only in case the oil men and the states fail to get together on the marketing policy."

Landon's constant attention to local politics, his successful management of the 1928 state campaign and his part in the oil men's fight turned Republican thoughts to him in 1932, when they pondered an opponent for Harry W. Woodring, Democrat, who had defeated Reed in 1930. Oil hit $1 a barrel again seeming to prove the success of his trip to Washington, and the Republican voters answered in the primary by nominating Landon for governor.

Invariably the crews on the sets, the electricians, the cameramen, the wardrobe women, are "regular." Most of the actors and actresses are too.

But through the eyes of a stand-in, the studio has none of the glamour which outsiders think it has. I work from 8:30 to 5—or usually later. It's just a glorified factory.

That's my impression. But maybe I've been a stand-in too long.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — Hollywood actresses, in the opinion of Ernest Dryden of Paris, err in trying to dress "like Hollywood actresses" in their pictures.

"I am speaking against my own interests," he says, "when I suggest that quite frequently it would be better for pictures if the actresses were dressed in clothes bought from the dress shops, rather than in gowns designed especially for pictures.

Many picture dresses defeat their own ends," the noted designer explains. "The moment the audience's attention is distracted by a dress the star happens to be wearing, the picture suffers. Instead of watching the star's emotional performance, the audience is smitten by her clothes. What she is doing, saying or thinking, any expression of her art, is likely to be overlooked."

Dryden is an unusual fellow in studios as well as costume designs.

Washington.—Administrative reliance upon the senate for much of its plow work carried over into the Philadelphia convention, where four senators held the key positions.

Heads Mount Olive Schools

Goldsboro, June 22—R. L. Pough, who was acting superintendent of the Craven County schools for several months of the past school year, has been elected principal of the Mount Olive city schools. He will succeed C. H. Pinner, who recently resigned.

Senator Clark, Missouri, rules committee chairman, was honored with a post of unusual importance because of the two-thirds rule controversy. Clark smacked his lips at a chance to repeal the rule that defeated his father, the late Champ Clark, for the presidential nomination that went to Woodrow Wilson in 1912.

The list of senators with big voices in the convention must also include Glass of Virginia. Glass, who has criticized bitterly some aspects of the administration program, held no executive position at Philadelphia. He remains, nevertheless, a perennial factor in the writing of Democratic planks on currency and banking.

Glass had made plain, in his address to the recent Virginia state convention, that he would discountenance any undue criticism of constitutional limitations on the authority of the government to "do things." There he reminded the delegates that upon entering the senate "I took an oath to serve my country and maintain the constitution, which I regard more than I do my life."

From others such words might sound pompous. But Virginians hearing them from Glass didn't appear to think so.

VICTOR HUGO'S IN LOS ANGELES. The world of fashion calls Victor Hugo's charming Garden Room "Paris in Los Angeles"! And, as the diners pause to enjoy their Camels, Hugo says: "Our guests know fine tobacco. They have made Camels the outstanding favorite here."

ON THE RYDER CUP TEAM. Henry Picard (right) is rated the best golfer at full iron shots. "I know that 'Camels set you right!'" he says. "Smoking Camels aids my digestion. And Camels never get on my nerves."

"YOU KNOW WHAT nervousness and eating fast can do to digestion," says Claire Huntington, public stenographer. "I find that smoking Camels makes food taste better and helps digestion."

Camels stimulate digestion in a pleasant, natural way ... increase alkalinity

The human digestion responds unfavorably to nervousness and strain. It is definitely encouraged by smoking Camels.

Scientific studies show clearly the manner in which Camels aid digestion. Using sensitive apparatus, it is possible to measure accurately the increase in digestive fluids—alkaline digestive fluids—that follows the enjoyment of Camel's costlier tobaccos.

For a cheery "lift" and for digestion's sake, enjoy Camels. They never get on your nerves. They are gentle on your throat. You'll like the firmness of Camels too—no loose shreds annoy you.

During and after meals, Camels bring a sense of well-being and good feeling. That's why people say: "for Digestion's sake... smoke Camels"

COSTLIER TOBACCOS!

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic—than any other popular brand.

GOLD-CUP WINNER! George Reis won the trophy three times! "I'm a Camel smoker," says this outstanding speed-boat driver. "I eat heartily, smoke Camels, and enjoy that feeling of well-being that goes with good digestion. Camels set me right!"

The Legion dance will be presented on Thursday night as previously announced, the management stated. One of the most elaborate fireworks displays ever staged at any coastal resort in North Carolina is planned for the night of July Fourth, the management stated.

CHINA'S CIVIL EMPLOYEES ORDERED TO SAVE PAY. Nanking (AP)—Civil employees of the Chinese government are to be compelled to salt away part of each month's pay check for the rainy days that may be ahead.

Coming on top of compulsory contributions to flood relief, and general salary slashes, long suffering civil servants are greeting the enforced savings scheme with audible groans, and whispered suspicions that this is but another scheme to provide ready cash for the government's official spenders.

From two to 10 per cent of all salaries must go into the thrift account of the Central Trust Bureau. The interest rate is fixed at the discretion of the bureau, which incidentally is responsible for arranging China's purchases abroad of airplanes, tanks and other engines of war.

SWEDISH IMMIGRANTS WILL MILLIONS TO HOME FOLK. Stockholm (AP)—Legacies left by Swedish immigrants in the United States and Canada, ranging from a few pennies to several hundred thousand dollars, are being handled here by a special "inheritance bureau" in the foreign office.

Within four years 8,000 heirs in Sweden have received $4,250,000 on the estates of Swedes who left their home country, many penniless at the time, for America.

Since the inheritance bureau has been in existence, approximately 40,000 heirs have been located and paid.

About 90 per cent of the funds handled by the bureau come from the United States and Canada. One man turned out to be the new boss. Miss Gray had seen his car with a flat tire parked at an intersection and had offered him a lift.

'ALWAYS PROUD OF HIM,' SAYS F. D. R.'s MOTHER

Mrs. James Roosevelt refers to "my son, the President," in a quiet way that nevertheless bespeaks her pride for him.

By CHARLES NORMAN. NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, finds it a simple matter to reply when asked if she is proud of her son, Franklin. "I've always been proud of him," is her invariable answer. And that goes back many years—long before her only child became the nation's chief executive or stood for re-election.

As a boy he used to make things for her—brackets to put on the wall, and pictures which he painted himself. "He had a great deal of boyish skill in his hands," she once said.

Rode Along on His Pony. Courage and strength of character were displayed early by the President, his mother has told. He was about seven years old when the men folk left on a hunt. Franklin had a pony and went along. He was expected to turn back shortly, but it was hours before he arrived home.

"Aren't you awfully tired?" his mother asked when he came back. "Well, a little," he admitted. "Why did you take such a long ride then?"

"Why, Mother," he replied. "I couldn't turn back and let the rest of them go on."

His father, James Roosevelt, was a lawyer, with financial and railroad interests. He numbered among his friends many famous men of his day, including Grover Cleveland. The older Roosevelt, a keen student of public affairs, often entertained distinguished guests, and young Roosevelt listening to discussions at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, first found his interest in politics awakened during this period. His father died in 1900.

Two Generations Use Nursery. The President's mother also recalls how young Franklin, at the age of four, trundled his cousin, Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, on his back when she was brought on a visit. She was two. Nineteen years later she saw them married. The Hyde Park nursery where Franklin's enthusiastic hospitality was displayed later became the playroom of his own children.

Mrs. Sara Roosevelt, now 81, was her son's own childhood nurse, directed his early education and saw his political beginnings as a state senator. March 4, 1933, may have marked the proudest moment of her life when, after the inaugural ceremonies at Washington, she lunched with her son and daughter-in-law in the White House. In her book, "My Boy Franklin," she told the story of his babyhood and boyhood. Sometimes, when speaking before women's groups, she has referred to Franklin as "my son, the President."

LT. VAN TAYL'R CLUB SPEAKER SCOUTS ENJOY SUMMER CAMP

Rotary Program Also Featured by Musical Numbers. Local Boys Getting Most Out of Annual Encampment.

By WYATT BROWN. Music predominated on the program last night at the Rotary club meeting. Junius Rose sang two solo selections—"Home on the Range" and "Old Faithful." Following his two numbers Judson Blount gave two solos—"Lonesome That's All" and "Marchita." Both sang in such fine spirit and ability that their hearers were delighted.

Following the two soloists Lt. Dan Taylor who is visiting in Greenville told very briefly some of the ancient, decayed ruins of old missions in the Philippines, particularly Manila. He spoke of the expensive paraphernalia used on festive occasions by the natives. He also told of the man who made a pipe organ out of the native bamboo, curing it by burying it in the sand on the beach. There is no metal in the organ and the guide of the old church where it is located will play it for tourists even today. One altar he mentioned was decorated in gold leaf and has more than a hundred electric lights.

Finishing up the program was a good Irish boy named Bora Minnevelitch—J. B. Kittrell—who amused the club with his harmonica. He led off with "Tell Mother I'll Be There" the title of which he left the club members to guess. Then followed a rendering in a variety of interpretations the old familiar Home Sweet Home with many variations.

Wild Bill Cummings, the race driver, has a hobby. His recreation is riding a motorcycle—one of the fastest in the country, with a speed of 110 miles an hour.

Mexico's export trade in cantaloupes and melons, competing with those shipped from Texas, New Mexico and the Imperial Valley, is assuming important proportions.

Richard Winters, 13-year-old McCulloch county, Texas, 4-H club member, made a net profit of $937.70 in seven months by feeding 24 Hereford calves.

The camp director reported to Bill Taft, the local camp chairman that a few additional scouts will be accepted for the period opening next Sunday if prompt reservation is made with the council office. Parents are urged to take advantage of this information as so far the camp has been running at capacity registration.

Ralph H. Mozo, assistant scout executive, who is assistant camp director, returns tomorrow from Camp Carolina at Brevard where he was sent by the local chapter of the Red Cross to take the instruction as an examiner in junior and senior Red Cross life saving. At the close of the camp it is planned that Mr. Mozo will conduct swimming and life saving classes locally.

Camp Charles is really a success and boys of Greenville are happy that the opportunity has been given them to enjoy its facilities. Wednesdays and Sundays are visitors days and parents and friends are urged to come see for themselves the many reasons why Camp Charles is so popular.

Ralph Mozo Enrolled Life Saving Course

Brevard, N. C., June 18.—Ralph H. Mozo of Greenville, is enrolled in the American Red Cross National Aquatic School at Camp Carolina, near Brevard, for the ten-day Red Cross life saving school.

Mr. Mozo has been given a part in the annual water pageant "The Broken Arrow, which will be presented on Camp Carolina Lake next Monday evening, June 22. More than two hundred aquatic students will participate in this pageant, the largest to be produced at Camp Carolina. The pageant will be presented in the natural amphitheatre surrounding the lake and on the lake, presenting a spectacle that will attract several thousand spectators from Brevard and neighboring cities.

THE DOG NUISANCE

There is nothing much more worrisome than to be awakened in the middle of the night by a dog rolling your garbage can about the premises or to hear a dog fight below your window, yet recently this is getting to be a common occurrence in most any section of this city during the dead hours of the night.

HIGHWAY DEATHS INCREASE

The increase in automobile deaths in this state last month indicates that even more drastic steps must be taken if the slaughter on our highways is to be curbed. Despite a continuous patrolling of our highways and despite our drivers' license laws the number of fatal accidents on our highways continues to climb.

MURDER TONIGHT BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton from Scotland Yard and Sergeant White are about to begin an inspection of old Arthur Burdett's house at Hope Enderton, guided by Burdett's unprepossessing manservant. The occasion for the inspection is the murder of Burdett, and the curious fact about the murder is that almost everybody in the village is secretly rather relieved that the old miser has been done to. The house is large but mostly unused, and the atmosphere is eerie.

Chapter 10 COLD BLAST

ENDERTON COURT was built in the mid period of Victorian industrialism. 1840 saw the foundations dug, a year and a half later the place was finished. It was a multiplicity of rooms and great lengths of cheerless corridor, which possibly did not matter so much in the days when servants were cheap and plentiful.

Such a place needs life and plenty of it, if it is to be at all bearable, and for half a generation Enderton Court had known little enough life. In one corner of its savage, inward-eating spirit had sat jealously huddled over an occasional spark of begrudged fire, and somewhere in the outer regions a servant or two had passed a cold and comfortless existence; for the rest its big rooms were sheeted and silent.

that floated back, "No windows been opened here for long enough." It was an assurance that did not satisfy the inspector. "Fetch the lamp back and let's have a look," he ordered, and the three men made a silently thorough inspection of all the windows they could find. All were fastened, many shuttered.

"Why did you hear something inspector?" Sergeant White asked. "No, I didn't hear anything," Hylton answered, "I just wondered." He caught sight for an instant of the grin on Lumsdale's queer face, and not for anything would he have added that for a brief space, ten seconds or more maybe, as he had stood alone in the darkness, he had felt across his cheek a chill, damp blast of air.

"Anything else you want to see?" Lumsdale asked when they re-gained the hall.

"No, I don't think so. Not at present. When's the inquest, Sergeant?" "Friday morning, Inspector."

"Um. We shall see what that brings out."

"I can tell you that now, Mister," Lumsdale said, a trifle unexpectedly. "Nothing."

A CONSIDERABLE experience of inquests inclined Kingsley Hylton privately to agree with this

The house looked doubly deserted.

It looked doubly deserted now as the three men made their way about. Even Inspector Hylton felt a certain earnestness from that damp, deserted mausoleum.

They inspected the ground floor thoroughly.

"Even a house agent would have a job to describe this in glowing terms," was Hylton's comment; "now what about the upstairs?"

"This way, Mister," Lumsdale said briefly, leading the way up the fine wide staircase.

"This is where the old man slept, and my room's three doors along."

Inspection was duly made of two bedrooms, which Hylton privately thought must be as bleak and uninviting as ever any human beings slept in.

"And the other rooms?" he queried.

"All empty. Bits of furniture in some of 'em; old boxes and the like, but for the most part empty."

"Well, we'll poke our heads in," the inspector said cheerily, and they duly poked their heads in to find only too dismal a verification of Lumsdale's account.

"Can't say I altogether blame you for not falling in love with the place," was Hylton's comment.

"THIS part's all right," Lumsdale said. "We can go in the other wing if you've a mind."

"I've a mind to everything," Hylton assured him. "That's my one besetting sin in life—curiosity. Which way?"

"This way, Mister," Lumsdale led them down a long corridor which turned sharply to the right at its end. "This is where all the servants used to sleep when the house was full like, I suppose."

"Anything interesting here?" "Nothing as I've ever heard of, Mister."

Kingsley Hylton was last out of the third bleak bedroom they visited and for a moment, the Sergeant with the lantern being down the corridor, was virtually in darkness.

"Hallo," he cried sharply, "who's opened a window?" "Neither of the men ahead seemed to hear him. "Who's opened a window?" he called out more loudly, and there seemed to be a sort of sardonic satisfaction in the voice cannot completely conceal their feelings and it's a force every President with any publicity sense recognize."

Washington newspapermen detested Herbert Hoover in 1932, and their stories revealed their antipathy. They were charmed by Franklin Roosevelt's fresh personality, and he got whatever "break" can be packed into cold type. But this year it's different. Every Washington correspondent who has met Al Landon—and that includes writers for liberal and conservative newspapers—likes him personally. To admire his public record is the next step. The Kansan's politico-journalistic backers realize the value of newspaper friendship for their own. Editors Roberts, White, Allen, Stauffer, Harris—newspaper men themselves—are making friends of every journeyman reporter who strolls in to Topeka. They are given interviews, photographs, lunches with the Republican nominee. That accounts for the tremendous buildup he has had—and will have—in newspapers and magazines. And this clever courting of the press comes at a time when even White House reporters are souring on FDR.

AWKWARD: Lively scrambling when Representative Halleck (Rep. Ind.) made public Jan Farley's round-robin letter to fourth-class postmasters, asking them to kick in $25 for tickets to help finance the Democratic campaign.

The photostat shows the signature of Farley as "National Chairman." Mr. Farley was absent, but his buddies said "the letter was sent without his knowledge." The same thing happened when a letter signed for Farley endorsed Upon Sinclair in California.

The corrupt practices act imposes a fine of $1,000 and/or a year in prison upon any federal officer who solicits political contributions from any other federal employe.

RIPOSTS: You may look for several smart moves by President Roosevelt to check Republican sorties even before the race has started:

(1) He demanded passage of the Guffey and Walsh-Healey bills so as to keep organized labor on his side. The legislation would have died otherwise.

(2) He plans to name a successor to Controller General McCarl so as to meet charges of reckless spending. He has three names before him—William McReynolds, administrative aide to Secretary Morgenthau; Col. O. R. McGuire, Mr. McCarl's general counsel for fifteen years and a Republican; and a nameless politician. McGuire looks like the best bet for the reason that he has been trained under McCarl and knows the office. It would be good politics.

(3) He has set his scouts to work in organizing Senate Progressives. Even before this is published, Republican and Farmer-Labor liberals may proclaim their support of the President in a round-robin. It is meant to meet the G.O.P. propaganda that the Grand Old Party has been liberalized and westernized by the Landon-Knox-Hamilton leadership.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN PRESSURE: It didn't attract much national attention when Democratic Congressman Samuel B. Pettigill of Indiana made a statement friendly to Landon last week. But informed New Yorkers call it the significant prelude to a series of bombs scheduled to explode inside the Democratic camp.

Mr. Pettigill was one of the Democratic members of the House who fought FDR's utility program right down the line. (Another—George Huddleston of Alabama—was recently defeated in a primary contest). He is now counted upon as a leader in the movement to embarrass Mr. Roosevelt by disrupting party harmony. A number of other Democratic Senators and Congressmen are likely to play the same game. When Senator Norris spoke of the "hidden forces" behind Landon he referred particularly to the utilities. And they are behind the G. O. P. nominee—all the way. The subtle pressure they know so well how to exert will be freely used—according to authoritative sources—to swing doubtful Democratic legislators into line for Landon.

TEST: John Hamilton is going to have his diplomatic problems in New York State. Now that the boys have decided they are really hot for Landon there are numerous rivals for the privilege of running his campaign locally.

Inner signs indicate that Hamilton will apply a For-Landon-Before-Cleveland test similar to that which Jim Farley has used as a yardstick in distributing rewards. That would G.O.P. state chairman Mel Eaton, who is one of the aspirants. It might also bar Clarence King—chairman of the Republican state executive committee—although this is not so certain. King has enough power behind the scenes to be worth cultivating. Moreover, he took pains to establish friendly relations with Hamilton at Cleveland as soon as it became evident that Landon was in the bag.

At the moment, however, Robert H. Thayer, son-in-law of national committeewoman Ruth Pratt—appears to have the inside track. He is new to the political spotlight, but has been close to Hamilton for some time. The job would serve as a useful stepping stone for Thayer's ambition to become a Congressman.

WINDOW-DRESSING: If the Republicans had really expected to win the approval of organized labor with their platform declaration in favor of collective bargaining, they would have been due for a severe disappointment. In their apparent effort to appeal to workers without offending open shop employers, the platform-makers managed to phrase the plank in precisely the form best calculated to arouse the irritation and suspicion for organized labor leaders.

The plank reads: "We pledge ourselves to protect the rights of labor . . . to bargain collectively through representatives of its own choosing without interference from any source." The last five words were the bitterest bone of contention in the Wagner labor relations act. Open shop advocates insisted on their inclusion to prevent closed shop organizers from interfering with company unions. The Federation of Labor fought strenuously for their omission—and finally won out.

But G. O. P. insiders admit off the record that they have long since abandoned hope of capturing any worthwhile percentage of the organized labor vote. They privately indicate that the plank was designed as "liberal" window-dressing for public consumption—not as a serious bid for labor support.

I. C. C. Although Jesse Jones shows no signs of weakening in his determination to force through a dismemberment plan for the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad, New York opponents of his proposal are not worried about its imminent adoption.

The plan must run the Interstate Commerce Commission gauntlet successfully before it can be put into effect. The I. C. C. has already held some hearings on the subject, but others are scheduled later in the year. Several members of the Commission are congenitally hostile to anything advocated by Jones and will therefore be receptive to adverse arguments. Joe Eastman—best known member of the I. C. C.—will probably favor it, but he also rubs some of his associates the wrong way. So there is bound to be a strong predisposition against it inside the Commission.

The I. C. C. in the past has likewise shown that it is keenly aware of political considerations—which in this case are all against dismemberment. Railroad labor and Senators and Congressmen from Minnesota and Iowa are strongly opposed. Since a negative opinion by a bare majority of the Commission is sufficient to kill the project, its chances look none too good. Of course it is possible that sub rosa pressure from the administration might alter the picture.

WEIGHT: The Post Office Department has gained a valuable ally in its battle to regain control over the commercial airlines from the Interstate Commerce Commission. Senator Kenneth McKellar's recent statement that the I. C. C. is "incompetent" to fix the rates for carrying mail and his suggestion that this power be restored to the Post Office was a major triumph for the latter.

Of course nothing can come of this before next year. But McKellar's views on air transport matters carry great weight with many of his Senatorial colleagues. He thinks the Commission has been far too generous with the airlines.

Campaign Managers' Utterances Fail To Shed Any Light

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

To all intent and purposes, the machinery of the parties now has been set up for the 1936 campaign...

Certainly the opening exchanges between the Republican and Democratic organizations have left much to the imagination.

The Republican keynote is a bitter condemnation of Mr. Roosevelt and his works...

The Cleveland convention's rhythmic complaint about "Three Long Years" is answered by a song of mockery against the Republican candidate and managers...

James-calling reaches a new high the siverity and even the morality of each side is questioned by the other...

On June 13, as the Republican delegates were traveling homeward from Cleveland...

He placed a very low estimate on Mr. Landon's background and experience...

"I wonder how the Republican leaders keep from laughing out loud," said Mr. Farley...

Twenty-four hours later, Republican National Chairman Hamilton replied...

Does all this mean that the campaign is to be fought, after all, on charges of deception, dishonesty, conspiracy and fraud...

Instead of the epochal struggle over principles expected in so many quarters is the battle to resemble a sort of double-action grand jury proceeding...

Heavier than ever, Jack Torrance, plain-clothes copper, has two main objectives these days. One is to run down malefactors...

With very little training last winter "Big Jack" stepped out and won the weight-tossing event at the Sugar Bowl track and field meet in New Orleans...

Torrance took a filing indoors last winter, but this showing in three Eastern meets was nothing to brag about. He was forced to take second place on each occasion when he could not beat 52 feet of the boards...

Torrance is expected to do much better in the way of physical conditioning by the time the important tests roll around this summer.

Close associates say he is sensitive about his pounce, and won't get on the scales before witnesses. He doesn't look fat except around the waistline.

For almost 20 years, from 1909 to 1928, Ralph Rose's mark of 51 feet stood as the world shotput record.

5—Adequate appropriations for agricultural extension work and vocational agriculture.

6—Adequate road fund set aside for farm to market roads.

McDonald also pledged support of the rational program, which follows:

- 1—Interstate commerce act to protect tobacco allotments of competing states.
 - 2—Adequate Federal appropriations for soil conservation program.
 - 3—Protection of cotton price levels through sufficient commodity loans on cotton.
 - 4—Continuation of diversion payment on peanuts to maintain parity price level.
 - 5—Quota allotment for potato production with special price per pound on acreage allotment diverted.
 - 6—Provisions under soil conservation act to give truck farmers the same protection as is accorded cotton, tobacco and peanut farmers.
- "You know and every man and woman knows that I have no strings attached to me to prevent me from cooperating with the farmers," said McDonald.
- Hoy and his supporters are obliged to defend and protect the tobacco companies and power companies, not the farmers, McDonald charged. He reiterated the assertions of his radio speech last Thursday that Hoy is the candidate for lobbyists, Liberty Leaguers' predatory interests, and the present State administration.

Declares Farmers Ought Plan More Food, Feed Crops

Raleigh, June 23.—To be on the safe side, a farmer must not depend too much on the market price of his cash crops, said C. B. Williams, head of the agronomy department at State College.

When a farmer grows cash crops and little else, with the expectation of buying most of the necessities of life, Professor Williams added, he is courting disaster.

But when he is producing at home as many as possible of the things needed on the farm, he will be well supplied with food, feed and other necessities, even in years when the price of farm commodities is down and his cash income is limited.

For a safe farming program, Professor Williams urged that all farmers:

Produce on each farm ample food and feed crops to meet the needs of his family and his livestock.

Grow soil-improving crops like cowpeas, soybeans, velvet beans, and lespedeza during the summer. When they have matured, plow under a large part of these crops for soil-building.

Since these crops make good hay, the professor continued, a farmer may expect to harvest part of his acreage for feed. But when they are harvested, they do little to increase the soil's fertility.

Grow on each farm only such acreage of cotton, tobacco, and other cash crops as can be fertilized well and cultivated properly by the workers available. The acreage of such crops should not exceed the allotments allowed under the old AAA.

By sining work sheets and participating in the new farm program, Professor Williams brought out, farmers can obtain payments from the government for doing these things which conserve and build up the soil and tend to put the farm on a self-sufficient basis.

OFFERS IDEAS FOR PLATFORM

Same as Suggested in Previous Years By Senator Glass

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington, June 23.—(AP)—Democrats of Virginia—perhaps Senator Glass himself—have provided the Democratic national convention with a model for a short platform, and it contains a cautioning note or two just such as Glass has uttered in the S-nate.

The model is the same Glass and his Virginians have always provided—the state platform which he has drafted or guided for 40 years or more. The 1936 Virginia platform contains 255 words, less than one-sixth the length of the "short" 1932 Democratic national platform. It did not go into detail. It did not mention gold or PWA, or the Pasquaquoddy, or even the agriculture problem.

Its framework is important largely because Senator Glass has been Virginia's representative on the Democratic platform committee with but one interruption since 1896.

In the 1936 Virginia platform it was written that Virginia democracy "reasserts its devotion to the sound principles of representative government," adding:

"At no time within the history of the nation has adherence to those sound principles been more imperative than today."

Specifically it alluded to Jeffersonian principles of government as essentially guiding. Then it went on to cover the Roosevelt administration in this manner:

"We commend the humanitarian purposes of President Roosevelt in his earnest and persistent efforts to rescue the country from an unprecedented depression and wish for him the largest measure of success in every sound measure which he may hereafter project. Virginia favors the President's renomination by the national convention and also that of John N. Garner for vice-president."

Republicans and Democrats alike who regularly look to the Virginia platform as a guide to what the Little Virginian is contemplating, noted that in spite of the firm endorsement of Roosevelt, there were seeming reservations.

And further, the platform states that Virginians wished the President success in every "sound" measure he may project in the future. Glass has criticized centralization of certain banking powers within the federal government and opposed delegated authority in relief expenditures.

TEACHERS GET $16,600,000 Sum Larger Than Had Been Estimated To Be Spent Reflector Bureau.

Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 23.—A total of $16,600,000 was paid out to 23,581 school teachers and principals during this past school year in salaries, Lloyd E. Griffin, executive secretary of the State School Commission, announced today. This is some $4,000 more than the School Commission had estimated would be expended for teachers salaries, and was made necessary by the employment of 59 more teachers than the commission had allowed for. There were 23 more teachers employed this year than last year, when the total amounted to 23,322.

The total of $16,600,000 paid out to teachers and principals this past year does not include the salaries paid to superintendents, janitors, school bus drivers or mechanics, Griffin pointed out. The salaries paid to superintendents amounted to approximately $400,000, to janitors about $350,000, to bus drivers $280,000 and the school bus mechanics $175,000. When this is added to the amount paid the teachers and principals, the total expenditure for salaries alone is $17,822,000.

The cost of transporting some 200,000 children a day to and from school in more than 4,000 school buses amounted to $1,896,000 this past year, or fully $100,000 more than had been estimated. This was because of the very severe winter in all sections of the state which added greatly to the cost of operating the school transportation system. The cost of operating and heating the school buildings over the state was also $38,000 more than had been estimated, while the commission also spent $10,000 more for school buses than had been budgeted for that purpose. So altogether the cost of operating the schools this past year was much larger than had been anticipated.

But for the new auditing system which was installed last summer, under which a "cost" daily check is kept on the expenditure of all school funds, the cost would have been much greater, Griffin said. But the saving resulting from careful auditing of school funds will enable the School Commission to complete the school year with only a small deficit.

Tokyo Port Project Vast.

After 40 years of discussion Tokyo, Japan, has finally started its definite drive to become a seaport. Soon digging of the large canal, 19 miles long, to Yokohama will be under way. The work is expected to cost $15,000,000 and require eight years to complete. Actually there are to be two canals; the main channel for ocean-going ships and another one parallel to it for smaller vessels. The big canal will have a depth of 30 feet, and the vast amount of earth excavated in the construction of the two channels will be used for a land reclamation project to a Tokyo suburb where a new industrial area is to be established.

WORDS OF SIMPLE TRUTH

Some stars have greatness within them... some stories reach the secret places of the heart... Jean Hersholt is such a star... "Sins of Man" is such a story! Come prepared to be stirred... aroused... thrilled to the depths of your being... when you see the star of "The Country Doctor"... in a performance even more magnificent.

JEAN HERSHOLT "Sins of Man" with DON AMECHE ALLEN JENKINS
