Japanese Army Officer One Of Two Indicted In U.S. 'Navy Spy Case'

Secrecy Stripped from Oft-Rumored Conspiracy Plot

FORMER OFFICER U. S. NAVY HELD

Woman Also Injected in Alleged Plan to Furnish Information to Japan

Los Angeles, June 25.—(AP)—The oft-rumored "navy spy case" was stripped of its secrecy today with the indictment of two men charged with conspiring to furnish United States navy information to the Japanese government.

One of the defendants, Toshio Miyazaki, was identified in the federal grand jury indictment as a lieutenant commander in the Japanese imperial navy. The other was Harry Thomas Thompson, former navy petty officer accused, by the government of masquerading as an officer to obtain information and then selling it to Miyazaki.

In addition, a Japanese woman was injected into the affair when it became known federal operatives had been questioning her and were keeping her accessible for further interrogation.

The indictment returned yesterday accused "divers other persons unknown" of complicity in the alleged plot.

Thompson now is serving a county jail sentence for illegally wearing a naval officer's uniform.

The allegations contained in the indictment read like the plot of a familiar espionage fiction. They gave the full complement of routine elements involving two first class elements and several second class, east and west meeting in illicit and mutual profitable alliance.

The indictment presented this story: Dressed as a navy officer, Thompson went aboard United States warships at San Pedro, and San Diego and obtained ascertained documents — "code books, signals, books, photographs, blue prints, plans, maps, models x x x and information relating to the national defense."

Miyazaki, described in the indictment as one time honor student at Stanford university, met Thompson on several occasions in San Pedro and Los Angeles and paid him for naval information.

Candidates Report Their Expense In June 6th Primary

Not a Single Person Who Has Filed With Clerk of Court Thus Far Has Reported Any Contributions

Four additional candidates in the June 6 primary have filed their expense accounts, none reporting having received any contributions. The expenses included filing fees, newspaper advertising, cards, car rentals and other items.

Harry M. Brown, reported he spent $73.83 in his unsuccessful fight for solicitor against Charles Whedbee.

J. Picklen Arthur, one of four in the race for the two Pitt seats in the State House of Representatives reported the campaign cost him $200.75.

S. A. Whitehurst, who was re-nominated sheriff, reported the largest amount spent of any candidate having filed so far. He reported that he spent a total of $968.50.

W. J. Bundy, who was defeated for a member of the House of Representatives from Pitt county, spent a total of $125.90. His report set forth that he not only received no contributions, but said nothing was spent in his behalf by any person other than himself.

Under state law all candidates who were entered in the primary are required to file a report showing what they spent and what, if anything, was contributed in behalf of their candidacy.

J. Vance Perkins, nominated treasurer, Dink James, re-nominated County court judge, and Charles Whedbee who won out in the race for County court solicitor, made their report several days ago.

PITT FARMERS TO HEAR TALK

Farm Bureau Federation President To Speak in State

A large delegation of Pitt County Farm Bureau members is expected to hear Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, when he addresses the farmers of Eastern Carolina, on the "Present and Future Problems Confronting the New Farm Program—both state and national," according to E. F. Arnold, executive secretary of the North Carolina Farm Bureau.

All of the County Farm Bureau organization members in Eastern Carolina have been notified and urged to hear Mr. O'Neal at the court house in Smithfield, 2:00 p. m., June 30. Active farm bureaus, who are expected to have delegations to hear Mr. O'Neal, are as follows: Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Currituck, Chowan, Craven, Currituck, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Gates, Greene, Guilford, Halifax, Hertford, Hyde, Johnston, Jones, Lee, Lenoir, Martin, Nash, Onslow, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrrell, Wake, Warren, Washington, Wayne, Wilson, Harnett.

In addition to Mr. O'Neal, E. Y. Floyd, State Administrator of the New Soil Conservation Program, will address the meeting, featuring the "referendum being held on tobacco grading, on the Smithfield, Goldsboro, and Farmville markets. All counties contacted have indicated that they will have large delegations to hear these two outstanding officials discuss the farm program.

County agent S. C. Oliver of Johnston county, has assured headquarters that he hopes to have every farmer in that county present.

On June 29, Mr. O'Neal will speak to the farmers of the Southeastern District in Fayetteville at the court house, 2:00 p. m. He will also speak in Lenoir at the court house, 2:00 p. m. July 1, to a mass meeting of farmers in sixteen counties. From Lenoir he goes to Greensboro, where he will speak on July 2, 2:00 p. m., to farmers from eighteen surrounding counties. It is expected that some thirty thousand farmers will hear Mr. O'Neal during the week of June 29. Farmers and business men alike are urged to hear the bureau president, who is an outstanding national figure in farm activities.

Violators Rabies Law Being Fined In Court

Those people who have not had their dogs vaccinated are being prosecuted for their violations of the Rabies Act. Sheriff Whitehurst has ordered that warrants be issued for all violators.

In Justice of the Peace J. R. Nichols' court today the following cases were disposed of, the defendants in each case being found guilty and fined $10 and costs:

Lonnie Tyson, Perry Barrett, Luke Gay, Harvey Gay, Warren Hatton, Isaac Phillips, H. T. Tucker, Ardno Joiner, Peter Anderson, Alonzo Hatton and Alonzo Boyd.

Inspector J. E. Willoughby stated that there are about twenty cases yet to be tried.

Sheriff Whitehurst has said that he expects to enforce this law as it is a measure for the safety of citizens and will, if enforced, save the lives of people who have heretofore been endangered by mad dogs.

State Entomologist Aids Local Officials

C. H. Brannon, entomologist at N. C. State college, spent today in Pitt county aiding R. Bennett, farm agent, and other officials in conducting demonstrations on the control of plant insects.

Eight or ten places were scheduled to be inspected and demonstrations carried on by the farm officials. Mr. Bennett said worms on tobacco, chinch bugs and plant lice were chief insects forming threats to various plants.

Various sections of the county were to be visited so farmers from all townships could attend the demonstrations.

KEYNOTER FLAYS G.O.P. AND SUPREME COURT

Dramatically throwing the flats of his palms toward his audience, Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky is shown denouncing the opponents of President Roosevelt in his keynote speech to the Democratic National Convention in Philadelphia. He assailed Gov. Landon, the Republican presidential nominee, as an inflationist, attacked the Supreme Court majority for its "distorted interpretation" of the Constitution and pointed to "astounding economic recovery under the New Deal." PLAN DETAILS FOR BIG RALLY

Roosevelt Demonstration to Be Staged Saturday Night

Plans are rapidly being completed for the Roosevelt rally Saturday night at ten o'clock at the Pitt county court house. The rally will be county-wide and Farmville, Bethel, Ayden and Grifton have already sold a number of tickets and are joining with Greenville in making the rally an outstanding success.

W. I. Bissett is chairman at Grifton and is being assisted by R. A. Nelson, Mrs. C. R. Cobb, Miss Bert Johnson, Miss Jean Harvey, Mrs. J. C. Louise Worthington and Mrs. J. C. Andrews are assisting W. E. Hooks at Ayden. Mrs. Lelia Andrews has charge of the tickets at Bethel. The Junior Woman's Club at Farmville of which Mrs. Jesse Moye is president, is handling the sale of the tickets. Miss Mary Lou White and Miss Eugene Ricks are assisting R. L. Powell with the sale of tickets in Greenville.

Mr. Bradshaw at the Norfolk and Southern Railway, is securing the torch lights for the parade. J. E. Winslow has promised to furnish Mayor Blount with a gentle Democratic donkey to ride in the parade. The high school band will accompany the parade and play some of President Roosevelt's favorite songs. After the crowd has assembled at the court house Hon. F. C. Harding will have charge of the meeting preceding the President's radio acceptance speech. Albert Gaskins of the Carolina Sales Corporation, has promised to install a radio. The parade will form at the library at 9:30 p. m., and march up Evans street to the court house.

Health Department Seeking Establish Clinics In County

Dr. Ennett Confers With State Officials on Maternal and Child Welfare Program

Efforts to secure maternal and infant welfare clinics for Pitt county are being carried on by the health department, and Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, health officer, was in Raleigh today conferring with state officials in regard to the matter.

The clinics are in the process of being established throughout the county with Social Security funds in connection with the Children's bureau of the Department of Labor and state and county health departments.

Dr. Ennett said before leaving for Raleigh he hoped to secure clinics in this county and had every hope that they would be established throughout this section.

While in Raleigh, Dr. Ennett will discuss the question of a proposed orthopedic clinic for Greenville. This project is in its first stages, but the health officer expressed confidence one could be established in this city.

Production Loans in Craven. New Bern, June 25.—Loans totaling $25 for amounts aggregating $92,000 are reported for this year by the New Bern Production Credit Association. Secretary R. F. Allen says that this is $6,000 more than the sum lent last year, though fewer farmers are borrowing this year.

Smith Worked With Negroes

Columbia, S. C., June 25.—(AP)—South Carolina's state historian cited records today as showing that United States Senator E. D. Smith, who walked from the national Democratic convention when a negro prayed, once sat in the South Carolina legislature with two negro members.

A. S. Salley, secretary of the State Historical Commission, said Smith served as a representative in 1896 to 1898 with R. B. Anderson, negro Democrat from Georgetown county, and in 1898 to 1900 with another negro representative from the same county.

WEST SUFFERS INTENSE HEAT

Destruction of Crops Hastened in Drought Sections

Chicago June 25.—(AP)—Intense heat hastened the destruction of crops in drought scourged sections of the west today.

Concern grew apace as the federal forecaster of Chicago described the current month as the driest June on record. No relief was sighted. Meteorologists cited the "likelihood of a few scattered thundershowers in the northern third of the north central states," but predicted generally fair weather accompanied by "abnormally high" temperatures.

In North Dakota where officials reckoned half the state's 87,000 farm families were in need of assistance — readings of 107 degrees at Bismark 105 at Jamestown, and 101 at Fargo were recorded yesterday.

"Conditions are the worst I ever encountered," stated M. A. Kennedy, South Dakota WPA administrator. He said cattle were being shipped out by the trainloads in some ravaged areas. Short harvests of oats and barley were in prospect for parts of Iowa. Chicago grain traders received private advice that 75 per cent of North Dakota's wheat was imperiled.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER PHILADELPHIA: Democratic spellbinders and platform-makers here have their political eyes on three groups of Americans whose combined vote presumably furnished President Roosevelt his 7,000,000 majority over Herbert Hoover in 1932. With convention proceedings cut and dried, National Chairman Farley is holding conferences looking toward November rather than June. He is hatching schemes for wooing and winning the same supporters his hero corralled four years ago. Mr. Farley devoted himself to gathering delegates at Chicago in 1932. Always foresighted, now he's giving all his time to conferences with key politicians from every state. He is handing out secret instructions to big and little bosses, thus enabling them to snap into the vote-making game earlier than usual. Jim, has no interest in delegates or platform issues; his only concern now is the figures that will show on Wednesday, November 4. Private figuring developed that on his first run Mr. Roosevelt received the votes of about 2,000,000 Republican voters who were bitter over Mr. Hoover's attitude toward prohibition repeal; of 3,000,000 veterans who burned up at the then President's eviction of the bonus army by fire and sword; and 2,000,000 voters who reached the age of 21 between 1928's boom days and 1932's depression gloom. There are other important political classes, of course. There are the women, the farmers, the working man. But the Democratic chieftain believes that they will divide next November about as they did four years ago. In fact, he thinks Mr. Roosevelt will, without any particular help, win without any particular help.

Two-Thirds Majority Rule Taken To Convention Floor By Aroused Southerners

TAR HEELS MAY DESERT STAND

Move Develops to Reconsider Decision on Party Rule

Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—A movement developed today in the North Carolina delegation to the Democratic convention for reconsideration of the state action in pledging its 26 votes for abrogation of the two-thirds rule.

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, chairman, said a number of delegates had told him they wished to change their vote. In its caucus Tuesday only nine members opposed the proposal to abrogate the rule with the delegation going on record for casting its 26 votes as a unit.

Miss Beatrice Cobb, Morganton, national committeewoman from the state, hailed the pacts of women on the platform committee as a political move of outstanding importance.

"It is a deserved recognition for the woman in politics," Miss Cobb said.

Miss Harriet Elliott, Greensboro, dean of the Woman's college of the University of North Carolina, was named North Carolina's first woman alternate member of the committee.

She will work with Senator Joseph W. Bailey, the state's male member, in the drafting of the platform.

Senator E.D. Smith Takes 'Walk' Back To Fight For Rule

South Carolina Delegate at Democratic Convention Says He is a "Reconstruction Democrat"

Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—Senator E. D. Smith of South Carolina, describing himself as a "Reconstruction Democrat," returned today to the Democratic national convention, which he left yesterday in protest against negro participation.

Smith, who walked out when a negro minister offered invocation and announced he was "through," said he was back to fight abrogation of the two-thirds rule and may take the floor to "give 'em hell." Smith expressed satisfaction over reaction from the south to his "walkout."

He exhibited about a score of telegrams from the south congratulating him on his stand.

Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—The walkout of South Carolina's Senator E. D. Smith on the Democratic national convention yesterday when a negro offered the invocation today as "simply an indication that brother Smith needs more prayer."

Smith, who has served 27 years in the senate, said he would walk out "whenever a negro has a part" in the convention proceedings.

The Rev. Marshall Shepard, pastor of the Baptist church here, who offered the prayer, commented:

"If that is the way he feels, I don't see what he can do. If he goes to the Republican party he will find negroes in the convention and if he goes to the Socialist or any left wing parties he will find them even more important in the activities."

He continued "I feel sympathy and pity for him and pray to God that he may be emancipated from his prejudices."

The situation brought very comments from other southern delegates, but only Smith voiced his resentment, publicly.

NEW YORK JURY TO PASS ON BROWNING BEQUESTS

New York, June 25.—(AP)—Claims to deathbed bequests of $300,000 made in a codicil to the will of the late Edward W. (Daddy) Browning will be put up to a jury.

A trial was ordered yesterday by the appellate division which reversed Surrogate James A. Delehant's decision holding the codicil invalid.

Legacies of $100,000 to the hospital for joint diseases, an equal amount to Mrs. Florence E. Biggs Browning's sister, since dead, and smaller bequests to friends, physicians and nurses, are affected.

Mrs. Dorothy (Sunshine) Hood 20, of Dunn, N. C., Browning's adopted daughter, is heir to the residue of the estate, the value of which is estimated at between $6,000,000 and $10,000,000.

PATROL FORCE TO WAGE DRIVE

Hope To Do Away with Middle-of-Road Drivers

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, June 25.—Instructions have just been sent out to the state highway patrolmen in all sections of the state to make a drive on middle-of-the-road drivers and "hearse" drivers, as slow drivers are designated, Captain Charles D. Farmer, commander of the patrol said today.

He is convinced that those who drive in the middle of the highways and who drive so slowly that they hold up and delay traffic cause just as many if not more accidents than any other drivers.

"While most of the drivers in the state are doing better, especially about driving on the right hand side of the road, there are still many drivers who persist in driving in the middle of the road," Captain Farmer said. "They seem to think they are safer in the center of the highway, when in reality they are not only endangering themselves but everyone else by crossing the danger of being sidwiped. Consequently, we are instructing patrolmen to bear down harder than ever on these drivers and to make arrests instead of issuing warnings, as in the past. For if we can stop middle-of-the-road drivers, we will be able to eliminate one of the principal causes of accidents."

The patrolmen have also been ordered to bear down harder than ever on the slow drivers who hold up traffic, thereby creating an accident hazard. These slow drivers of "hearse" drivers cause traffic to back up behind them which eventually forces those cars wanting to pass to cut in and out of the traffic in order to get by, thus increasing the chances for accidents. Drivers must learn that they must maintain normal speeds on the main highways or else be arrested. For under the present law it is a violation of the traffic code to hold up traffic by slow driving. Those who want to poke along at only 20 or 25 miles an hour must learn to drive faster or get off on the side roads."

The one-arm "necking" drivers are the worst offenders at hearse driving especially at night. The patrol is to be expected to show them that an automobile is not the proper place to make love."

Outvoted by 36 to 13, in committee they obtained the unanimous consent of a subcommittee for the recommendation of a plan whereby by convention representation in the future would be apportioned on a basis of Democratic strength in the state, instead of total population as now.

The committee row, in which no feelings were spared, forced adjournment of the fifth session soon after it had unanimously accepted the reports of the credentials and permanent organization committees.

Treasury Announces Sum For Postoffice

Washington, June 25.—(AP)—The federal building program in North Carolina announced yesterday, was estimated by the treasury today to involve about $1,000,000.

Included in the program was Greenville, N. C. postoffice which will be extended and remodeled at a cost of $75,000.

COMMITTEE IN FAVOR CHANGE

Convention Proper to Vote Tonight on Whether or Not to Abrogate; Concessions Made in Efforts to Get Support of Southern Delegates

Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—The Democratic convention rules committee today recommended scrapping the 104-year-old rule requiring a two-thirds majority vote to nominate Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates.

A fighting southern group will carry this issue to the floor.

Convention Hall, Philadelphia, June 25.—(AP)—A source of party dissension for a century, the two-thirds rule, split the Democratic convention into warring factions today while leaders hinted a formula for peace on the platform.

Resentment in the south against going over to plain majority nominations, thus depriving that sector of its long cherished vote.

Failure of the platform subcommittee to complete its labors in an all night session evidenced trouble there. The return of Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, to the city against doctors' orders caused a flurry of speculation about his taking a hand on the monetary plank after all.

Friends quickly denied it, saying the old timer had been aroused by reports of his "taking a walk" along with Alfred E. Smith when he left abruptly earlier in the week, and came back to show he stood with the party.

Curiosity was aroused by rumors that Smith might appear personally against the New Deal after all, had left New York but acquaintances did not expect him to come here.

North Carolina stood practically alone as a unit from the south against the two-thirds rule. Arkansas and Louisiana were split and some aid for the dissenters came from Massachusetts and Indiana.

The foes of the rule agreed to carry the fight to the opposition, expressing confidence they had more than the 551 votes — a plain majority — by which the tradition could be scrapped.

Anxiety lest bitterness carry over into the platform debate tonight or hinder the drive for unanimity in renominating Roosevelt and Garner had some administration men frowning.

Also contributing to their difficulties were hard feelings among some Minnesotians about how their factional dispute over representation was settled, the prospect of a minority platform report from Washington state advocating the Townsend old age pension plan and resentment in the South Carolina delegation over the presence of negroes at the convention.

A dogged, but diplomatic new deal leadership labored productively to clear the way for renomination of Roosevelt and Garner, achieving a death sentence for the two-thirds rule by compromise and approaching agreement on a platform to be presented to the convention tonight.

Suggested planks for a constitutional amendment to fortify federal powers were rejected in a subcommittee while the rules committee voted unanimously — with a bow to the south — to recommend reapportionment of the representation in future conventions.

Mention of the constitution in the platform was expected to infer at least that New Deal difficulties in the Supreme Court result from interpretations of the document not in scope. All plans were kept secret.

An implacable southern minority in the rules committee forced the concession if the century old nominating rule is to be abrogated tonight as expected.

Outvoted by 36 to 13, in committee they obtained the unanimous consent of a subcommittee for the recommendation of a plan whereby by convention representation in the future would be apportioned on a basis of Democratic strength in the state, instead of total population as now.

The committee row, in which no feelings were spared, forced adjournment of the fifth session soon after it had unanimously accepted the reports of the credentials and permanent organization committees.

FAIR WEATHER AND BASEBALL

Coastal Plain League Teams To Resume Activities Today

By JAMES E. WHITFIELD

When old man sunshine stuck his snout from behind the cloudy Eastern horizon this morning shortly after the break of dawn, he was probably indicating that the baseball clubs of the Coastal Plain League would receive an opportunity to play baseball today, and that Johnnie and the fellows from 'tin can alley' could play America's favorite sport in the Jones' pasture.

Until today rain has blocked every game the Greens had on their roster for the week. Most of the other teams composing the Coastal Plain group, too, have taken a few days rest. The locals, with the cooperation of rain and the other Coastal Plainers have clutched the top position in Coastal Plain league standings so far this week without seeing action. The phenomena will take a gradual change this afternoon, however.

The Williamstons still clinging to their second place position and the Ayden Aces are trailing along in third place in the standings of clubs in the Coastal Plain league.

Snow Hill grabbed a winner over the Kinston Eagles at Snow Hill yesterday afternoon by a 7-2 score, bringing them within one game of tying the third place position and playing the only game of the loop yesterday.

This afternoon the Greenville are attempting to outscore the Kinston Eagles at Kinston; the Snow Hill boys are attempting to stop the progress of the Williamstons at Williamston; the New Bern Bears are attempting to overcome the Ayden Aces, and Burn Hearn's Tarboro Bunnies are locking horns with the Gold Bugs at Goldsboro.

The next home game of the season beginning at 4 o'clock will be played at Third street stadium here tomorrow afternoon. A large crowd is expected to attend due to the lay-off of the players—as well as the fans, themselves—have taken in the past two or three days.

DEPUTY SHERIFF KILLS SUSPECTED RUM-RUNNER

Salisbury, June 25.—A. G. Seagraves, of Wilkesboro, Route 2, was fatally wounded last night just after he had jumped from a rum-ridden car on the old Concord road between Boston's Crossroads and Ebenezer. The shot was fired by Deputy Sheriff Sam P. Ford of Kannapolis, who was later arrested and held until a $2,000 bond was arranged. An inquest into the tragedy is set for later in the week.

Several officers, including Ford, arranged a trap for a suspected rum-car, and when it arrived Seagraves jumped out and was chased by Ford. The two were in a ditch when Ford shot. He said he was threatened by Seagraves and saw what he thought was a pistol. Later a flashlight said to have belonged to Seagraves was found in the ditch.

TURN DOWN REQUEST FOR FINANCIAL HELP

Durham, June 25.—Both the city and county of Durham have turned down the requests of the Workers' Alliance for funds for approximately 200 employables who are unable to obtain jobs. County commissioners refused on the basis of a law which prohibits their appropriating funds for relief of other than the indigent poor who are unable to work. The city council was of the opinion that it was the responsibility of the county rather than the city to take care of these people.

From 'Tinker to Evers to Chance'—the old infield trio of the Chicago Cubs, like scores of other famed combinations of past years, is scattered all over the nation.

After a fling at managing minor league clubs, Joe Tinker now operates a tap-room in Miami, Fla. Johnny Evers is general manager of the Albany International league club, Frank Chance lives in Tucson, Ariz.

Their active days past, former professional baseball stars, dating from the 70's and 80's up through the 1930's, are to be found, some wealthy and some poor, in hamlets and large cities throughout the country.

Old Honus Wagner of the Pittsburgh Pirates, generally regarded as in a class by himself among shortstops, is a Pirate coach and operates a sporting goods store in Pittsburgh.

Chief Bender, who won fame as a hurler for the Philadelphia Athletics, is a department store salesman in Philadelphia. Eddie Cicotte, whose pitching career with the Chicago White Sox was cut short when he was outlawed from baseball for his connection with the 'Black Sox' scandal of 1919, works for a Detroit motor company.

A former president of the National league, John K. Tener, is a Pittsburgh business man. Tener, star on the old Chicago White Stockings, was once governor of Pennsylvania. The three-fingered wonder pitcher, Mordecai Brown, runs a filling station in Terre Haute, Ind. And Shoeless Joe Jackson, one of the greatest natural hitters the game has ever known, lives in Georgia.

When great infielders are mentioned, Larry Lajoie's name always comes up. Larry divides his time between Cleveland and Florida. He works for a brass company. Grover Cleveland Alexander, the hurling hero of many major battles who wound up with the House of David team, lives in St. Paul, Neb. One of the employes of Allegheny (Pittsburgh) county is Ed Morris, a room-mate of Billy Sunday in the 80's when both were Pittsburgh Pirates. Kid Elberfeld, peppery shortstop of the 90's, lives in Gadsden, Ala. The Kid has opened several baseball 'schools' for youngsters in the south.

Bill Lange, one of the speediest of outfielders in the 90's, is in the real estate business in San Francisco. Jerry Nops, a fine moundman of early professional baseball, operates a bar in Camden, N. J. Jack Glasscock, shortstop of the 80's and 90's, whose run broke the winning streak of Pop Anson's Colts at 21 straight in 1880, lives in Wheeling, W. Va.

Old Cy Young, whose feats on the mound won him fame during the gay 90's, and who carried on well into the twentieth century, farms near Peoli, O. Young, generally included in any list of all-time pitching greats, also has clerked in a 5-and-10 store.

Frank Bowerman, Baltimore Oriole catcher and later with the Giants and the Braves, is a fruit farmer of Romeo, Mich., while Albert Bohl, backstop for the Pirates and the Braves, lives on a farm near Cresco, Neb. Tommy Corcoran, Cincinnati

YOUTH FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING FATHER

Taylorsville, June 25.—(AP)—A jury convicted Willard Teague, 19, of manslaughter yesterday for killing his father who, he said, often abused him.

He will be sentenced today.

The youth testified he shot his father, Porter Teague, when he advanced on him with an axe.

Young Teague said he had decided to leave home to get away from his father's ill-treatment of him and that his father found out about it.

He said his father had often beat and mar-handled him.

His mother and other members of the family corroborated most of his testimony.

Postpone Hearing
Taylorsville, June 25.—(AP)—The hearing of six men arrested in connection with the ambush-shooting of Revenue Agent Daniel E. McShane last month, was postponed yesterday until June 24. The men charged with the crime are John Brown, his son, Glenn, and three half-brothers and a son-in-law, Ross, Garland and Joe Brown and Garlick Bolick.

Miss Wilson Honored.

Last evening at his home on Fifth street, Tom Wilson delightfully entertained at a "bon voyage" party honoring his sister, Miss Verda Wilson, who is sailing in a few days for a tour of European countries.

The party was a surprise to Miss Wilson.

About thirty members of the younger set were present. A number of games were enjoyed and tempting refreshments were served.

Miss Wilson, accompanied by Tom Wilson, left this morning for Norfolk, Va. She will go by boat to New York where she will join Dr. Lyons' party from Chapel Hill. They will spend several weeks in European countries.

Encampment Quota Nearing Completion

Lieutenant Needham E. Ward, of Greenville, chairman of the Military Training Camps Association Pitt county announced today that the procurement campaign for the camp to be held there August 5 to September 3 is over ninety per cent complete. Young men who wish to attend should see or write him at once and get their application on file as soon as possible.

The C. M. T. Camps are direct descendants of the pre-war Plattsburg Camp originated by the late General Leonard Wood. Physical examination during the war indicated that nearly half the young men of the country were physically unfit for active military service. This alarming situation was met by Congress in 1920 by creating the Citizens' Military Training Camps, which normally provide about forty thousand young men annually with proper diet and exercise amidst healthful outdoor surroundings. These men return to their homes ardent exponents of the American principles of physical health and fitness.

Young men attending these camps are no more likely to be called to the colors in time of war than other men. However, if they volunteer or are selected for service they are likely to secure more rapid advancement and to be able to defend their country effectively, with greater safety to themselves.

A candidate must be physically fit and of good character, an American citizen, or one who has taken out first papers, for naturalization. He must have reached his seventeenth birthday by the day camps open and not have passed his twenty-ninth birthday. Age requirements by courses are: Basic, 17 to 24; Red, 17 to 25; White, 18 to 28; Blue, 19 to 29.

A physical examination, inoculation against typhoid, vaccination against smallpox, and a certificate of good moral character are required as indicated on the application blank.

TUGWELL DISCUSSES RESETTLEMENT JOB

Washington, June 25.—Representative Lindsay C. Warren Tuesday had a lengthy conference with Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, administrator of the Resettlement Administration about the Magnolia resettlement project now being proposed in the counties of Washington and Tyrrell. Dr. Tugwell recently returned from a visit to the locality and assured Mr. Warren that it would become an accomplished fact. He said the only question now open was the size of the project and that it had already been determined to have in at least 600 resettlement families. Dr. Tugwell informed Mr. Warren that he had discussed the entire project with the President.

For a long time Mr. Warren has been impressing upon officials the suitability of this locality for such a project, and was much pleased over the enthusiasm of Dr. Tugwell and his determination to see it through.

MISSING MAN FOUND IN JAIL AT HAMPTON

Hampton, June 25.—(AP)—Investigation of a man charged with vagrancy and held in the Elizabeth City county jail after being arrested Thursday night on the Langley Field road, has been identified as Sidney Broughton, 40, former chief of police of Hertford, who left the Facility Hospital while being treated for a nervous breakdown.

Broughton was arrested after residents of the area had registered complaints against him for pestering them with nocturnal visits and asking for food.

TO HAVE SPECIAL COINS FOR HISTORICAL EVENT

Manteo, June 25.—Presidential approval of a bill that has already been passed by the House and Senate is the only step necessary before the authorization of the issuance of 50-cent pieces engraved in commemoration of the 350th anniversary of Virginia Dare, to be celebrated on Roanoke Island next year.

Hourly approval is expected, as notice was received here sometime ago that the bill had been sent to President Roosevelt.

KIWANIS MEET IS CONCLUDED

International Convention Brought to Close Today

Washington, June 25.—Annual reports of the committees on boys and girls work, child welfare and underprivileged child work for 1936-37 were heard today at the closing session of the 20th annual convention of Kiwanis International.

Training of youths in the handicrafts and promoting hobby shows, music, drama, literature, painting, etc., are suggested activities. Agencies such as the Y.M.C.A., Junior Red Cross, Girl and Boy Scouts will be used in broad social programs for citizenship education, naturalization work for the foreign born adult education, night schools and the providing of recreational facilities.

In vocational guidance work each Kiwanian will continue to aid students interested in his business or profession. Character training, back-to-school movements, health education and planned use of leisure time are all included in community-wide programs for the coming year. Child welfare work includes medical and dental service for school children, orthopedic clinics, supervised playgrounds and juvenile court assistance. It is urged that all character building agencies and efforts be used by Kiwanis in an effort to secure parole for delinquents who are first offenders.

"Prevention and not correction is the theory Kiwanis supports in dealing with delinquents in juvenile courts," declared John F. Eastwood of Los Angeles, underprivileged child chairman. "Working with court judges Kiwanians are now accepting the responsibility for youths paroled from institutions. Kiwanians should do all they can to support character training in the city schools, where clubs are now providing wholesome recreation, competitive athletics and skilled leaders for supervision of youth," he said.

Will Durant of New York City, philosopher and author, explained to Kiwanians today that four threatening and basic problems, biological, economic, moral and political, confront civilization. "These problems are so vital and their simultaneous attack constitutes a major crisis in history," he said. "The most fundamental of these problems is biological, according to Mr. Durant. He criticized the low birth rate among the better classes and the high birth rate of mediocrity. "This breeding from the bottom and dying at the top is flooding our cities with millions at the very time when invention has made mere muscle superabundant and has placed a premium on brains," he said. "Natural selection once eliminated the incompetent and now generosity and charity preserves them. No constitution can be good enough to enable such a stock to preserve their civilization," he said.

The second problem, the speaker said, is economic. "The American system of industry, with its high standard of living, cannot continue unless purchasing power of our people rises as fast as their power to produce. But the natural inequality of men inevitably concentrates wealth, prevents the full spread of purchasing power, and periodically stalls the industrial machine. Our economic system, like our political system, seems to demand a higher degree of equality among men than nature has provided," he said.

"The third problem is moral. A civilization requires some form of social order. Order depends partly upon law, chiefly upon morals; morals are in large measure transmitted through religion and the family. But industrialism has weakened the Puritan-agricultural moral code, and has weakened the institutions that transmit morality. A decaying moral code usually brings marital disorder, political corruption, epicurean cowardice and increasing crime," Mr. Durant stated.

The fourth problem, which is the political one, the speaker looked upon as serious because men are now selected for office because of their political skill and when once elected they are called upon to deal with issues requiring an economic, biological and a wide background of education and intelligence. "Political machines grow out of the mob and stand between honest ability and public office," he said. "We spend more money on education than nearly all the rest of the world combined and then we make education a disqualification for public office," he said.

Mr. Durant advised that people need not be discouraged or fearful. Democracy has preserved its liberties and the economic system even in confusion feeds and clothes and shelters the people. He advocated segregating defectives against reproduction, encouraging fertility among the able and restoring marriage to a natural age, encouraging parenthood among the married. "Perhaps we can take steps toward political regeneration by equalizing educational opportunities," he advised. Organizing schools of government in our universities, establishing a U. S. civil academy at Washington and gradually closing all but the highest offices to those who have not been trained for public administration will help, he thought. "Education alone should nominate, with equal opportunity for all to make themselves fit for office," he said.

Rodent Control Work Mapped For Sections

Raleigh, June 25.—Florida and Georgia have been added to the territory of George B. Lay, rodent control leader at N. C. State College. It was announced today.

With Virginia and the Carolinas already in his field, Lay's work will now cover five States. His headquarters will remain at State College, Raleigh.

The work is conducted by the bureau of biological survey of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the State College extension services of the five States.

Although he will be concerned mainly with rodent control work, the bureau has instructed him to give considerable emphasis to the conservation of wildlife. Lay added.

The conservation of wildlife, he said, is becoming more important, in view of the fact that as the country's population becomes more dense, wildlife has a tendency to die out unless given special protection.

Much of his work in the future will be concerned with promoting rodent control campaigns and wildlife conservation work, although he will not be able to give as much personal supervision to the campaigns and conservation work as formerly.

Lay plans to prepare written instructions that will serve as a guide to individuals taking part in control campaigns and conservation work.

PERMITTED TO DEPART AFTER 7 WEEKS IN JAIL

Smithfield, June 25.—After staying in jail for nearly seven weeks and being summoned into court on Tuesday afternoon, Halie Ring and Mona Thompson, charged with the larceny of a car from Georgia Wright, were told that the grand jury failed to find a true bill, and were released to go on their way.

They were arrested in Laurinburg with the car some time in May and brought to jail here. They admitted in jail that they had led a rather wild life, but contended that Mr. Wright had told them to drive the car wherever they chose, just so they returned it before the following daybreak and that he had them arrested before the expiration of the time. He had picked them up in Raleigh where they were trying to beat their way back to Logan, W. Va., from somewhere in Georgia. Mona Thompson said that her mother had deserted her when she was 11 years old and that it was a wonder that she had not gone wrong worse than she had. But her mother's parents are living, but the other girl's is afflicted.

Musical Program at College

Tonight at eight fifteen o'clock a charming musical program consisting of scenes from light operas will be presented in the Austin Auditorium of the College by the Davies Light Opera Company.

Four singers, each of whom has an excellent voice and whose voices blend well in ensemble singing, compose the company. They were here during the Summer School last year and pleased their audience so well that the announcement of their return visit was received with enthusiasm by those who heard them.

Miss Dirnberger at College

Miss Mary Dirnberger will lecture at the College this evening at 6:45 to the students and others interested on some subject connected with theatre arts. This is one of the regular semi-weekly lectures on subject to be given during the term of the Summer School.

Miss Dirnberger made a deep impression in both the College and community last year because of her fine work in the community and the excellent plays produced under her direction.

During the past year her friends have followed with interest her work in the State as director of community drama subjects under the WPA and have been delighted with her success. The community work carried on here by Miss Dorfeh comes under the State projects directed by Miss Dirnberger.

IN SERIOUS CONDITION FOLLOWING ACCIDENT

Washington, June 25.—In a letter received by George Taylor from Dr. George R. Clay, who is at his wife's bedside in Kirksville, Mo., it was revealed that Mrs. Clay's injuries, suffered in an automobile accident in Illinois some time ago, are more serious than at first indicated.

Her injuries include four broken vertebrae in the lower portion of her spine, concussion of the brain, an injured neck and there is also evidence of internal injuries.

The Clays' young son, "Corky," who was slightly injured in the wreck, has completely recovered. Mrs. Clay, with her son and a sister, were enroute to the family home in Missouri for a visit when the mishap occurred. The sister died a short time later from her injuries.

CURTAINS!!

Jim Jones lives out in the county, twenty miles from his office, and drives to work daily. The drive takes place largely on a modern highway, with the last few miles confined to busy streets.

The drive can be made safely in about thirty-five minutes. But Jim would feel ashamed of his record if he ever took that long. So, by "stepping on her" hard, he manages to make it in twenty-five minutes, and sometimes less.

That saving of time is a great boon to Jim. It permits him to spend ten or fifteen minutes talking about golf to the boys at the cigar stand, or reading the funny papers. And the day he made his record he spent the saved time, plus a few minutes more boasting about it.

Of course, Jim has to weave in and out of traffic occasionally, cursing the slow-pokes who move along at a sedate forty-five. And sometimes he has to steal a right of way. Now and then he misses a crash by an inch, and after the first flush of nervousness passes, he chuckles to himself about what a good driver he is.

Once he did have a minor accident, but the insurance company paid for that.

There are a good many thousands Jim Joneses driving cars in this country. They go on for years with nothing happening to them—and then the inevitable occurs.

lar effort, get a better break among organized labor and unorganized farmers than he did when the G. O. P. was out on its feet.

Mr. Farley has reason to believe that the President's social program is as popular with the women as ever; also that Alf Landon's acceptance of some of FDR's social objectives will not destroy FDR's strength among the home-and-mother bloc.

But it's a different matter when he tries to predict the November behavior of the 2,000,000 Republican wets. Rep. Farley is here, and for a long time the chance of overturning it seems rather remote.

Under such circumstances it appears likely that the majority of these drinking G. O. P.-ers will return to their traditional party. In the cities of eastern states with large electoral votes that might be a distinct handicap to the President.

Therefore one major Democratic move will be to brand Alf Landon as a congenital dry, and to recall that Kansas gave birth to Carrie Nation. If the platform doesn't carry a subtle reference to the anti-liquor and anti-cigarette laws of Mr. Landon's "typical prairie state," campaign speeches will.

MURDER TONIGHT BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton has arrived nowhere in his investigation of the murder of old Arthur Burdett. Hope Burdett's miserly old square, Sergeant White thinks it was a tramp who did the deed. Hylton does not feel so sure. And now, as Hylton is finishing lunch at the inn, Captain Reeves bursts in and somewhat rudely plunges himself into the affair. He was at Burdett's house on the afternoon of the murder, he declares.

Chapter 12 THE CAPTAIN'S TALE

"At what time were you there, Captain?" "About five, might be ten minutes either way, but thereabouts."

Hylton carefully lit his beloved cigar and nodded. He was rapidly turning over in his mind the conversation he had had that very morning with Doctor Chambers. Chambers had stated that in his opinion death was due partly to the blow on the skull, partly to the shock consequent on the blow, and had taken place certainly two hours before he arrived just after ten, possibly four hours before.

On being closely questioned by the inspector on this point he had reaffirmed his strong opinion that death had taken place somewhere between six o'clock and eight on the fatal day. And here was somebody professing, indeed pugnaciously professing, to have seen Burdett alive at five, or even after.

"Was Burdett all right when you left him?" he asked. "Sour as a crab apple, but that was his nature."

"You saw nobody else about the house?" "Not a soul. I chose Monday to go up because I knew that ex-convict looking man of his would be away, and I wanted to see Burdett alone."

"You called on a friendly visit I suppose?" "Pat Reeves laughed. 'I did not,' he said, 'and might have ever did at that house. If ye want to know I called there for the express purpose of telling Arthur Burdett that he was a filthy-minded old roset and that his soul was as rotten as his beggarly body.'"

"You had a quarrel with him?" "Ye can call it that if you like; I'll not dignify it with the name."

"What about, Captain Reeves?" "I'll not tell you."

Kingsley Hylton looked steadily at his man and the tall, wiry, blue-eyed Irishman looked as steadily back. Hylton knew the type well—pleasant to work with, but beggars to drive.

"You may have to tell us, Captain Reeves," Hylton said quietly; to which Reeves replied grimly and sardonically.

"Make me." The Inspector let that pass. "You might have told us about this earlier," he said.

"And I might not have told you at all," Reeves pointed out. "It would have been very foolish not to."

"Maybe. What's between me and old Burdett is my own affair."

"You're wrong," Inspector Kingsley Hylton answered with a sudden new quality in his voice, "what was between you and the dead man is now the affair of the law, and the law will not be trifled with."

"You're a deal keener on the law here than we are in Ireland, Inspector," Reeves said. "Arthur Burdett was a dirty, damned old good-for-nothing, and the world's no worse off because he's out of it. Ferney House you can find me at, when you want me. Good-day."

REEVES left as abruptly as he had arrived and for a long minute Hylton sat staring at the banged door. Burdett was seen alive by Reeves at five and he was murdered say between six and seven—it narrowed things down a lot.

He let his mind play with the speculation as to how much of Captain Reeves's aggressive honesty was real, how much make believe. Suppose the Captain's story was true in every particular save one, that just before taking his leave from Under-ton Court he had picked a heavy club from his nail on the wall and broken his host's skull with it? ... I called on the man; we quarreled; I left him."

"What did you quarrel about?" "I shan't tell you, it is too private."

A cunning move because, as any jury would instantly argue, no guilty man would admit the fact of quarrelling, being under no compulsion to do so.

His speculations were interrupted by a tiny sound on the far side of the second door that led from his luncheon room. Hylton had not been through that door yet, indeed he had hardly noticed it, and a double curiosity now led him to examine what lay beyond. The Inspector had acquired a sort of instinct in some matters, and there was something in the nature of the noise which had attracted his attention that made him want to investigate it.

Quietly he tiptoed across the room and pushed the door open. It led into a well-proportioned, old-fashioned billiards-room where a tall, good-looking young man in riding kit stood half way between door and table, ostentatiously chalking a cue.

He looked up when Hylton entered and nodded. "Having a game?" the Inspector asked.

"I've just been knocking the pills about."

"Lienumberone," Hylton thought; the click of ivory is curiously penetrating and unmistakable, and he was prepared to take an oath that no billiard balls had run on that table since he had started his lunch in the next room half in an hour before.

On the other hand, a young man comes into the billiards room to see if there is a game going; he hears a voice raised in the next room; he decides to postpone his solitary game and lays an inquisitive ear against the panel of the door. Hylton wondered...

walked out. So he's making sure, to quote absentee Jimmie Walker's song, that the voters will love FDR in November as the Democrats do in June.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN CRIPPLE: There has been a subtle but significant change in TVA publicity lately. Recent announcements by the Authority have featured navigation, flood control, soil erosion, fertilizer development, etc.—with rarely a reference to the power program that used to capture all the headlines.

New York sharps figure this shift of emphasis is a belated attempt to escape the kickback from mistakes in the promotion of the power program. It is known that sources high up in the administration privately feel that David Lilienthal showed more zeal than intelligence in his efforts to sell the advantages of government-owned power facilities to the public in a hurry.

Insiders understand that New Deal legal experts are especially sore about this. Naturally they can't admit it out loud, but they have told friends that such blunders will seriously cripple the Authority's defense against the court action of 17 private utility companies which are trying to prove that the TVA is out to wreck them completely.

STRENGTHENS: Here are two specific errors which New York learns have been chalked up to Lilienthal's score by people close to New Deal headquarters. (1) He forced the sale of small private distributing plants in five Alabama counties and three Mississippi counties to TVA at about 60 per cent of their fair valuation by threatening to build competitive municipal plants with PWA money that would put them out of business. (2) In furtherance of the "yardstick" policy, he established electric rates about 50 per cent below the prevailing rates of private companies.

Observers contend it would have been smarter to pay a fair price for properties taken over and to undercut the prevailing rates of private utilities by only about 15 per cent. If the private concerns had sought to meet that figure, TVA rates could then have been slashed another 15 per cent—and so on indefinitely. In that way the "yardstick" principle could have been maintained without giving utilities the opening to charge that TVA rates rest on a subsidy which they cannot possibly compete—and that therefore the New Dealers really aim at their destruction, not at the mere lowering of rates to reasonable levels.

By the same token, the TVA could have forestalled criticism by buying plants at a reasonable valuation. The "hold-up" method actually employed again strengthens the utility allegation that they are being deprived of property without due process of law.

ATTACK: A new anti-Roosevelt circular is getting wide distribution in New York and will probably be disseminated nationally. It focuses on Mr. Roosevelt's directorship in the Consolidated Automatic Merchandising Corp. in 1928. His name appears on a sales prospectus for a stock offering of the company in July of that year.

The prospectus paints a glowing picture of earnings prospects which were never justified. The company lost money heavily for five consecutive years and then went into receivership.

The inference is drawn that many people bought stock on the strength of Mr. Roosevelt's connection with the company. He is razzed about "truth in securities." It ends up: "Should a man whose business judgment has been shown to be so defective and irresponsible be continued in the highest executive office in the world?"

CASUAL: New Yorkers thoroughly familiar with the flotation call this attack pure poppycock. Mr. Roosevelt was named a director in July of 1928—the month of the offering. Two months later he was nominated for governor of New York and promptly resigned the directorship.

He never attend a directors' meeting. He took no part whatever in the sale of the stock. At that time he was a comparatively inconspicuous lawyer, and shrewd observers doubt that a single purchaser of the stock was influenced by his presence on the Board.

His mistake lay in accepting a directorship in a corporation about which he knew little. But plenty of Wall Street's most honored leaders were equally casual in those carefree and prosperous days when men became directors to oblige a friend —and there were no SEC traffic signals.

CLEAN: Anthony Eden's amazing exhibition of crow eating when he advocated the abandonment of sanctions against Italy was quite a shock to New Yorkers who have habitually regarded Britain as the fount of all wisdom in matters of foreign policy.

But financial sources in close contact with Europe rate the setback to England's prestige as purely temporary. The retreat was inevitable the minute Italy cinched a military victory in Ethiopia. Baldwin and Eden are given credit for meeting the situation realistically even at the cost of humiliation.

The point is made that the British government—having spectacularly swallowed humble pie—can now start reorienting its foreign relations.

What an unmentionable slipup the writers of the new Democratic platform made. Anyone could readily observe the majority of the platform made. Anyone could readily observe the majority of the platform made. Anyone could readily observe the majority of the platform made.

Any reasonable, fair minded person can readily see if the promise is taken in its true meaning all necessities of life would include all purchases of which the sales tax covers except a few toys, certain classes of jewelry, and cosmetics, on which the tax would not be worth collecting. Why could they not have been fair to the public and just said to abolish the sales tax altogether?

As for carrying out any part of the platform in its true meaning everybody should know and very few would deny except a few large corporation stockholders highly paid lobbyists and high salaried machine

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys. Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pen and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

F. D. R. ENEMIES OFFER THREAT

Observer Says Democrats Fear Landon Showmanship

By RAY TUCKER
Philadelphia, June 25.—Franklin D. Roosevelt may be defeated for reelection, but if he inhabits the White House for four more years it will be because of the blunders which his enemies have made here and elsewhere.

Beneath and behind the Democrats' confident predictions of November victory lies the admission that the G. O. P. might work a miracle, with the help of a conglomeration of allies. The Democrats really fear, though they won't admit it, the quiet showmanship of Alf Landon.

They suspect that the Lemke-for-President may chip off ten states which would otherwise go to Roosevelt. They shudder at the thought that the Smith-Cohalan-Coby trio may swing millions of Democratic conservatives, against a New Deal.

Although no responsible leader identifies the Lemke candidacy or the Liberty League threat with formal comment, it has sent the high command into a state of jitters and jumpiness. Even to Chairman Farley it's obvious that there will be trouble in repulsing assaults from the right and from the left.

But plans are under way to nail the protest of the Liberty Leaguers against FDR's renomination. According to talk in hotel lobbies, Justice Cohan, who signed the Smith-Coby telegram, is Father Coughlin's legal adviser in New York. Key Democrats say they have legal and political evidence that Mr. Cohan is closely associated with the Detroit priest.

To the ordinary reader that hook-up may have little meaning. But in the minds of Democratic strategists it is convincing proof that Mr. Roosevelt's enemies will stop at nothing to defeat him. Because of Cohan's tie-up with Liberty Leaguers and Coughlinites they see a union of radicals and Tories whose sole aim is to block FDR's reelection.

Dan Cohan — and Al Smith — may be FDR's chief assets, believe it or not.

These last-minute attacks on the President from the left and the right will have a distinct influence on the platform and on FDR's conduct during the campaign.

Whereas he intended to pursue a middle-of-the-road course, he will now seek the votes of the underdogs. He will pitch his appeal to the man on relief and to the folks whose maximum wage is $25 a week. He will appeal to the masses against the classes, even more than before.

What has happened since the Democrats gathered here is the assembling of several threats which shake their confidence. There is the prospect of a sizable third party, the warning of a Democratic walkout, the danger of a serious drought in the Middle West and the apparition of a smart Republican nominee in the person of Governor Landon.

It is doubtful if the horizon of a political campaign has ever been changed as suddenly as the 1936 contest has been transformed in the past few weeks. That realization permeates every conference and phone call from Farley headquarters to the White House. The Democrats are scared — and fighting mad.

Two months ago the presidential campaign looked like a "pushover" for President Roosevelt. After Cleveland, it looked like a fight. Now it looks like a horse race. Even top-notch Democrats admit that. But they're banking on opposition blunders.

WILKESBARRE CONCERN LEASES DURHAM PLANT

Durham, June 25.—The Durham Hosiery Mills Company has leased to the Georgetown Silk Company of Wilkesbarre, Pa. the North State Mills property located at Pettigrew Street and Alston Avenue in Durham, operation of the plant to begin in the fall.

Explains Way Get Rid Of Cantaloupe Worm

Raleigh, June 25.—Spotted worms can be kept out of late cantaloupes by planting squash in the cantaloupe patches, said C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College.

The moth which produces these worms prefer squash blooms as a place to lay their eggs, he explained, and will not infest cantaloupes when squash are nearby.

Spotted worms are often a great nuisance to growers, he continued. They bore into late growing cantaloupes from the under side and render the melons unfit for consumption.

The spotted worm also attacks late watermelons and cucumbers, Brannon pointed out. These crops may be protected in the same way recommended for cantaloupes.

Brannon urged that in areas where the worm has been at work, growers should plant from four to eight rows of early squash to each acre of cantaloupes, melons, or cucumbers.

The first planting of squash should be at the same time the crop to be protected is planted. Make three other squash plantings at intervals of ten days, so as to keep squash blooms available to trap the moths at all times.

In large plantings, it is advisable to plant squash between the rows of melons or cucumbers. In gardens, every fourth or fifth hill in the melon rows may be planted to squash.

Pick and destroy the squash blooms at least twice a week. After the cantaloupes, melons, or cucumbers have been harvested, enough squash can often be picked to pay the cost of planting.

SMALL CROP BRINGS INCREASED RETURNS

New Bern, June 25.—A total of 736 cars of Irish potatoes had been shipped from this section through New Bern to Northern market, Tuesday morning. This was only two-thirds of the amount of shipments last year, but the prices this year were so much higher that farmers will profit much more in the long run, it is said.

Of the shipments, 618 came from the Oriental branch, 110 from the Beaufort branch, and eight from Craven County. The Beaufort shipments are about over now, with 75 to 100 more carloads expected from Pamlico county.

HOT RACE FOR LT. GOVERNOR

Interest Growing In Campaign for No. Two Position

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, June 25.—The campaign for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor in the second primary July 4 is attracting almost as much attention now as the campaign for Governor, most observers here agree.

The candidates for Lieutenant Governor in the second primary are W. P. Horton of Pittsboro, Chatham county, and Paul D. Grady of Kenly, Johnston county who were the two high men in the first primary on June 8.

It is now generally conceded that Grady was and is the McDonald candidate for Lieutenant Governor and that the McDonald forces "went down the line" for Grady in the first primary in the hope of nominating a Lieutenant Governor who would be in sympathy with and favorable to Dr. McDonald and his policies if he was nominated.

By the end of the first half hour the market was within a point either way of yesterday's closing quotations. At midday October was selling around 115.50 and the general market three points lower to two points net higher.

It is also generally agreed now that the administration forces generally supported McNeill rather than Horton and made a tremendous effort to get the Hoey forces to go "down the line" for McNeill rather than Horton.

Forest Fire Loss For Month Of May Largest In Years

Blazes, Caused Mostly by Carelessness, Unusually Destructive in Organized Counties

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 25.—Parched vegetation fed flames, mostly carelessly set, during the month of May bringing forest fire losses in North Carolina counties organized for forest fire protection to $144,988, the largest in more than two years.

The unusually high damage from forest fires in the cooperating counties was occasioned by the occurrence of the largest number of flames in a one month period during the last ten years.

One of the most encouraging features of the report, according to W. C. McCormick, assistant State Forester, is the reduced damage from the average fire compared with previous months in which large numbers of flames were experienced in woodlands.

Careless smokers were charged with setting 370 or more than one-third the total of forest fires last month. Incendiaries came next in number of fires, being held accountable for 238.

Forest fire records were available last month from 56 cooperating counties as compared with only 33 counties in 1933.

TWO MEN ARE CHARGED WITH ATTACKS ON GIRLS

Lenoir, June 25.—(AP)—Harvey Kirby, 25, and Hugh Starnes, 19, both of whom live near Granite Falls, were held in the Caldwell county jail today on warrants charging them with criminal assaults upon two Burke county sisters.
