COUNTY BOARD HOPES REDUCE 90-CENT RATE

Profit From Liquor Stores to Make Up Difference

RATE TO BE SET AUGUST MEETING

Taxes Expected to be Lowered Despite Increased Budget For Fiscal Year '36-'37

Profits derived from the sale of liquor through a county controlled system will provide a decrease in the county's present tax rate of 90 cents on the $100 valuation, it was indicated today by J. H. Coward, auditor.

The tentative budget calls for a slightly increased expenditure over last year, when $309,686 was spent for all purposes. A slight decrease in the tax rate is predicted despite this increase in the budget. Approximately $25,000 will be needed from some new source if the rate is decreased as is contemplated, but officials declared they felt this could be made up and the decrease allowed.

The board will meet the first Monday in August at which time it is expected to adopt formally the budget and set the tax rate for the year.

The tentative budget calls for the expenditure of $316,270, or $6,584 more than was spent during the last fiscal year.

On the basis of a 90-cent rate this sum would have to be made up from some new source. But with a decrease in the rate a much larger sum would have to be accounted for.

Figures included in the tentative budget show that the general fund, the entire cost of operating the county will cost $94,000 for the current year, the same amount expended last year.

The County home budget was increased from $9,200 last year to $10,760 for this year. The increase will be utilized in installing a new heating plant and doing general repair work about the place, as well as making additions to the water plant.

A total of $21,069 is tentatively set for carrying on relief work in the county. The figure compares with $19,171 during the 1935-36 period. This increase will allow additional office help to take care of the necessary enlargement of the budget as shown by last year's requirements.

The health department was tentatively allocated $13,441, as compared with $11,815 last year. The additional funds in this department will be taken care of by allotments from state and federal health departments.

The debt service fund requires $177,000 this year, compared with $175,000 last year. Of the total amount allotted, $116,066 will be used to pay interest on outstanding bonds which will mature during the year; $39,000 to pay bonds falling due, and $20,000 will be allocated to the sinking fund to meet bonds coming due in future years.

Figures available at the office of the county auditor reveal that much progress is being made in paying debts, $291,000 having been paid since the first of January, 1931.

Opening Date For Schools In County Left Up To Boards

Report on Building Project Made to Members at Meeting of County Board of Education

A poll will be taken of the various school boards in the county to decide whether to open schools in the Pitt system on September 1, earlier than has been the custom in the past.

The Board of Education met yesterday to decide on the matter, but when some opposition arose to the plan it was decided to let the local boards decide on the proposal. All schools in the county system will open on the same date, however, regardless of the vote.

A report was made at the meeting on the building program and it was indicated the new buildings and additions will be completed by the time school opens this fall. Furniture for the additions was purchased at the session.

C. W. Mingle, chief engineer of PWA for this state, attended the meeting and discussed the building program with the board members. The project will add 50 classrooms and four auditoriums in the county.

MAIN WORK IS IN COMMITTEE

Handling Of Tax Bill in Congress Shows New Trend

Washington, July 24.—The handling of the tax bill in the recent Congress has shown a new trend in legislation which leaders on both sides of the aisle have recognized; but they seem uncertain whether to wrestle with it or allow it to proceed.

It is the tendency to allow committees to legislate and the open assemblies of each house merely to ratify what the committees have done.

Here is the general course of the tax bill: A house committee labored over it for weeks. It then was fed to the house, which, with barely time to digest its sugar coating, sent it to the senate.

There a somewhat similar procedure was followed. A senate committee held hearings on it, then set out to re-write it.

But was the object then to get it out on the senate floor and hammer it into final shape? Not at all. The senate leadership made no pretense of anything but a desire to get it out of the hands of the open senate and into another committee—the joint conference committee of the house and senate.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader, stated the view of many legislators when he said it was his policy to rush legislation out of committee into the senate. That simply prolongs debate.

There is no exact line of difference, but nevertheless a difference, between that view and the view of certain others, such as perhaps Senator and Borah, who prefer to see issues hammered into shape in the hot flame of debate.

Sociologists long have recognized the partial conflict in the two views. They assert that one man, sitting alone in concentration, can think more clearly about a subject than he can when sitting with a committee. But the view of the committee, on the other hand, represents more factors. It is a step down from the clear, idealistic thinking of the individual to the more practical compromising of views in a committee.

The question is, just what is likely to remain of the idealistic thinking of the one man if his thought product, in the form of a bill, must be paddled and patied here and there to meet the views of, say, 436 house members.

If anyone doubts that much legislation is done in committee, let him sit in the gallery during calendar day when as many as 300 bills will be hurried through. Never more than two to three men on the floor will know the contents of any one bill. The others take the committee's word that it is all right.

BRUTAL DEATH COLLEGE GIRL YET UNSOLVED

Sheriff Had Promised Arrest of Slayer By Tonight

UNCLE EXPECTED BACK IN CITY

Chief Investigator Declines to Reveal Any Evidence About Expected "Break"

Asheville, July 24.—(AP)—Sheriff Laurence E. Brown indicated today he believed little but he promised arrest by 7 p. m. of the slayer of Helen Clevenger, New York college girl.

Brown who took charge of the investigation shortly after the bullet pierced and clubbed body of the 18-year-old girl was found in the exclusive battery park hotel eight days ago came to his office about noon.

A swarm of reporters gathered around him.

"What news have you got this morning," he was asked.

"Not a thing," he answered.

He was asked if the suspect had perhaps already been arrested.

"No."

In reply to another question the sheriff said professor W. L. Clevenger, dairy expert at N. C. State College, who reported finding the body of his niece, was expected to arrive in Asheville late today, coming from Fletcher, Ohio, where he went to attend the slain girl's funeral.

Gorncr George J. Baier, Jr., said today one of Miss Clevenger's thumbs showed a bruise, presumably suffered when she struggled with her slayer. He would not explain whether any significance was attached to the find.

The sheriff declined to reveal anything about the promised "break" in the case, except that the suspect is not one of the three persons now detained for questioning.

Local Government Ready Retire Debt Incurred get ETC

Bonds issued by Pitt county and the City of Greenville to secure money to have East Carolina Teachers' college established here will be paid at the end of this fiscal year, a check-up at the two offices revealed today.

A $50,000 bond issue by the county will be due July 1, 1937, and one for $75,000 by the city falls due on the same date. Both bonds were issued payable at one time, 30 years from the date issued.

J. H. Coward said the county was ready to make its payment when the bonds mature and J. O. Duval, city clerk, said the city was also in position to meet its obligation. The county owns $33,000 of the $50,000 issue, while the city owns a portion of its securities. In addition a number of the bonds are held by local banks and individuals.

The money was borrowed to provide a location for the college after the legislature had voted to establish a training school in Eastern North Carolina. A number of other cities in the state sought to have the college located in their communities, but Greenville and Pitt offered the most attractive inducements and the school was established here.

While most bonds are issued in serials, payments falling due on each of a number of years, the bonds to secure the college were made out for payment in one lump sum. Although the county and city have been in position to retire part of the securities, the bonds were not made callable and therefore none has been paid.

Increased Salary Expected be Voted For All Teachers

Raleigh, July 24.—(AP)—The State School commission prepared this afternoon to fix teachers' salaries for next year with many members of the commission saying they favored a flat 4.16 per cent increase over the present schedules for all teachers.

Dr. B. B. Dougherty, chairman of the salary committee, and several other members of the commission said they expected the flat increase to be voted.

Rebels Renew Attack on Seat of Leftist Government After Having Been Blocked in Previous Assault by Liberal Artillery, Infantry and Airplanes

(By Associated Press)

Spanish fascist and loyalist troops battled today 26 miles northwest of Madrid for possession of the capital city.

Reversing an attack blocked yesterday by liberal artillery, infantry and airplanes, the fascist armies of General Francisco Franco, rebel leader, fought for control of the pass of Guadarrama, gateway to Madrid.

Some 6,000 men, bulwarked by the natural protection of the range, defended the pass. Reinforcements of militiamen and of assault and civil guards were dispatched to their aid during the night.

Reports tended to indicate neither side had gained the advantage. Diplomatic dispatches received in Paris from Madrid said the rebels apparently were "on top" in Spain.

President Manuel Azaña announced that the rebels were "falling."

Spanish communists in San Sebastian, the summer residence of American ambassador Claude G. Bowers and other foreign diplomats, threatened to kill 500 Spanish aristocrats unless rebel airplanes came to their aid.

The city was reported in ruins. Ambassador Bowers and his staff were reported to be living in the cellar of a hotel.

Madrid itself was relatively quiet. Paris heard the revolutionary movement was strongly entrenched in Spanish Morocco and apparently was holding its own in several parts of the peninsula.

ESTIMATED 4,000 KILLED FAMOUS SPANISH RESORT

(By Associated Press)

An estimate of 4,000 dead in bitter fascist-leftist fighting for possession of San Sebastian, famous Spanish resort on the Bay of Biscay.

Was made tonight by Colonel Villanueva, a rebel commander. These casualties added to a roughly estimated 25,000 killed and wounded previously during the insurrection.

American ambassador Claude G. Bowers, who had been vacationing in San Sebastian, was reported to have taken refuge in a fortress a few miles from the city.

As Spanish rebels fought leftist government forces only a few miles from Madrid, the fascist high command was reported to be maneuvering to "starve out" the capital city and other strategic points.

Body Of Research Recommended For Tobacco Industry

Washington, July 24.—(AP)—Recommending establishment of a tobacco research foundation, the national recovery administration's review division pointed today to such an agency as the major need of the industry.

The division undertook a sweeping statistical and analytical study of the industry during the past period, completing it after the invalidation of NIRA. It was made public last night.

Fields of research, the report said, included the problems of better curing of tobacco, better marketing of the cured leaf, experimental work in the manufacture of tobacco by-products.

The study included a study of wages in the industry since invalidation of the code and it said that the large manufacturer in the cigar, snuff, smoking and chewing tobacco industry had not only maintained, but increased code wages.

Criticism leveled at the American Tobacco company, Liggett and Myers Tobacco company and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company for what was described as the "marked degree of opposition of ownership from control."

A warning that the nation is threatened with a loss of a large part of its Chinese tobacco market also was contained in the study.

Pair Had Set Out In Automobile Flying American Flag

Washington, July 24.—(AP)—The killing of two men attempting a mission of relief for the American consulate at Barcelona was confirmed today in dispatches to the state department.

One of those shot was Santiago Iturraide, a Spanish clerk employed by the consulate for many years.

The other was an unidentified chauffeur, described as a British subject. It was not made clear whether he also had been employed by the consulate.

Both men set out from the consulate on July 22 in an automobile flying the American flag to bring to the consulate George Jenkins, head of the Ford Motor Company at Barcelona, who was on the outskirts of the city.

They never reached their destination and definite word of their deaths came today. Jenkins was reported safe.

Even as this grim news was received, the department was looking for reassuring word of the arrival of the American export line steamer, the Exeter, at Barcelona, where 600 Americans reside.

The Exeter, one of four American ships speeding to the rescue of United States citizens in revolution wracked Spain, was expected to reach her destination today.

The navy checked over vessels on the Atlantic seaboard preparing to send additional craft to evacuate Americans if necessary.

Anxious state department officials still had no word from Ambassador Claude G. Bowers since he, and presumably Mrs. Bowers, first were cut off from communication with the American consulate at Sebastian.

Man Who Drew Revolver at King Remanded to Jail

London, July 24.—(AP)—George Andrew McMahon, said British who drew a revolver at King Edward's military parade, was remanded to jail for a week today after a hearing on a charge of producing a weapon "with intent to alarm his majesty."

The decision to grant a remand pending continuance of the hearing next Friday was made after Alfred Kerstein, counsel for the prisoner, had announced McMahon wished to testify himself and to call witnesses.

Sitting in the Bow street police station court room, McMahon heard Special Constable Anthony Gordon Dick tell how he smashed at the prisoner's pistol when King Edward rode by on Constitution Hill eight days ago.

GREENIES DROP ANOTHER GAME TO MARTINS

Locals Again Lose League Lead to Williamston; Yesterday's Score, 3-2, 10 Innings

Williamston, July 24.—Williamston and Greenville, battling for the league lead, waged an extra-inning game here yesterday—the hometown Martins won 3-2 to drop the Greenies to second place.

Prior to yesterday's game, which was settled in the 10th, the teams were in a virtual tie for the lead although Greenville held an eight-point advantage in the percentages.

Larry Wade, who pitched the victory for the Martins, struck the blow which ended his hurling duel with Lefty Bill Holland. With two out in the 10th, Howard Earp reached first on an error by Manager Bo Farley of the visitors. Earp scored when Wade hit a single which got away from Outfielder Epper.

Wade, Oglethorpe University athlete, and Holland, East Carolina Teachers College star, waged an old-fashioned pitching duel. Wade allowed six hits, walked four, struck out seven. Holland gave eight hits, walked eight, struck out four.

The Martins made the first run of the game, in the second inning, on a walk and hits by House and Earp. The Greenies tied it in the third, on a walk, a sacrifice, and Wayne Ambler's single.

A double by Corbett and a single by Black gave the Martins a run in the fifth, but the Greenies came right back in the sixth to score on triples by Epper and Ambler. The triples came with none away, but Wade pulled out of the hole—the famed Latham; Ambler was run down between third and home when Wagner hit to Earp; Brown popped out.

Ambler, with two hits, led the Greenies. Black and Corbett made two at-bats to lead the Martins.

Score: R. R. H. Greenville . . . 101 001 000 0-2 6 2 Williamston 010 010 000 1-3 8 2 Holland and Wagner; Wade and Epper.

HE CAN HIT

SPORT SLANTS

by PAP

The 1936 Olympic team is the strongest squad we have ever sent abroad to international track and field competition. There's not the slightest doubt about that. The amazing performance turned in by the athletes in battling for places on the team bear it out. If the lads could guarantee a duplication of those efforts on the Berlin track the Olympic Games would be as good as "in."

But unfortunately they can guarantee no such thing. On the strength of past records it would be safe to guess that the long journey, the enforced layoff and the strange country and climate will be certain to take a toll in the form of lost speed and stamina. We have sent other "great" teams abroad in the past—in 1928, for instance, only to see our "certain" winners go down to defeat before the flying feet of foreign runners. As long as we stick to the practice of picking the squad by means of a final tryout, with the athletes necessarily pointing for places on the team and letting the actual Olympic competition take care of itself, we will have to take our chances on the final results.

Field Stars Fall Down
The final tryouts afforded some excellent examples of the uncertainty of athletic form. Look at the showings of competitors in the field events—in the discus throw and shot put in particular. The entry list included three men who were rated throughout the spring as 170-footers with the discus. Yet Gordon Dunn walked off with first honors when he tossed the platter less than 150 feet, more than a dozen feet under the mark that had been considered likely. Big Jack Torrance, the 325-pound giant from Louisiana, was six feet off his record performance in winning the shot put.

The Hospital Saving Association of North Carolina, sponsors of the "Two-Cents-A-Day Plan" for hospital treatment, has opened an office in Greenville to serve Pitt County and adjacent territory, according to an announcement received today from Felix A. Grissett of Chapel Hill, executive Director of the Association.

Hooker and Stallworth will be in charge of the Association's local service. All details of the plan, as well as applications for membership, can be secured at the firm's offices in the Hood Bank Building, 315 Evans Street.

The new Association maintains its executive offices in Chapel Hill and is sponsored and controlled jointly by the North Carolina Medical Society and the North Carolina Hospital Association. Members of the Association, in return for the payment of a small fee each month or year may have their hospital bills paid if and when they should require hospital treatment.

This was the third watermelon feast of the season, and a large crop of melons still maturing promises others during the term.

250 Japanese Births Recorded Every Hour

By GLENN BARR
Tokyo, (AP) — With little brown babies arriving at the rate of more than 250 an hour, Japan's natural increase in population during 1935 was the greatest in history.

For the second time her annual growth passed one million. It was 1,028,623 during the year, compared with 1,007,398 in 1932, the previous record year.

These figures show there is no relaxation in the pressure of population on the resources of Nippon.

Japanese social scientists explain by that factor the restless straining of this eastern empire against all bonds, its conquest of Manchuria, its military and economic penetration into North China, its plans for economic advance into the South seas and its unceasing fight for world markets.

The figures are those of the cabinet's bureau of statistics. They apply only to Japan proper excluding colonies such as Korea and Formosa and the newer dependency of Manchoukuo.

Natural increase means simply the margin of births over deaths. Emigration and immigration are on such a small scale as to make no essential difference.

In 1935 there were 2,190,681 babies born in Japan, 146,674 more than in 1934. Deaths were 1,162,058, a decrease of 72,525 from 1934. The natural increase for 1934 was only 869,224.

In one respect 1935 fell below the previous record year, 1932. Last year's natural increase was at the rate of 14.85 per thousand, whereas in 1932 it was 15.30.

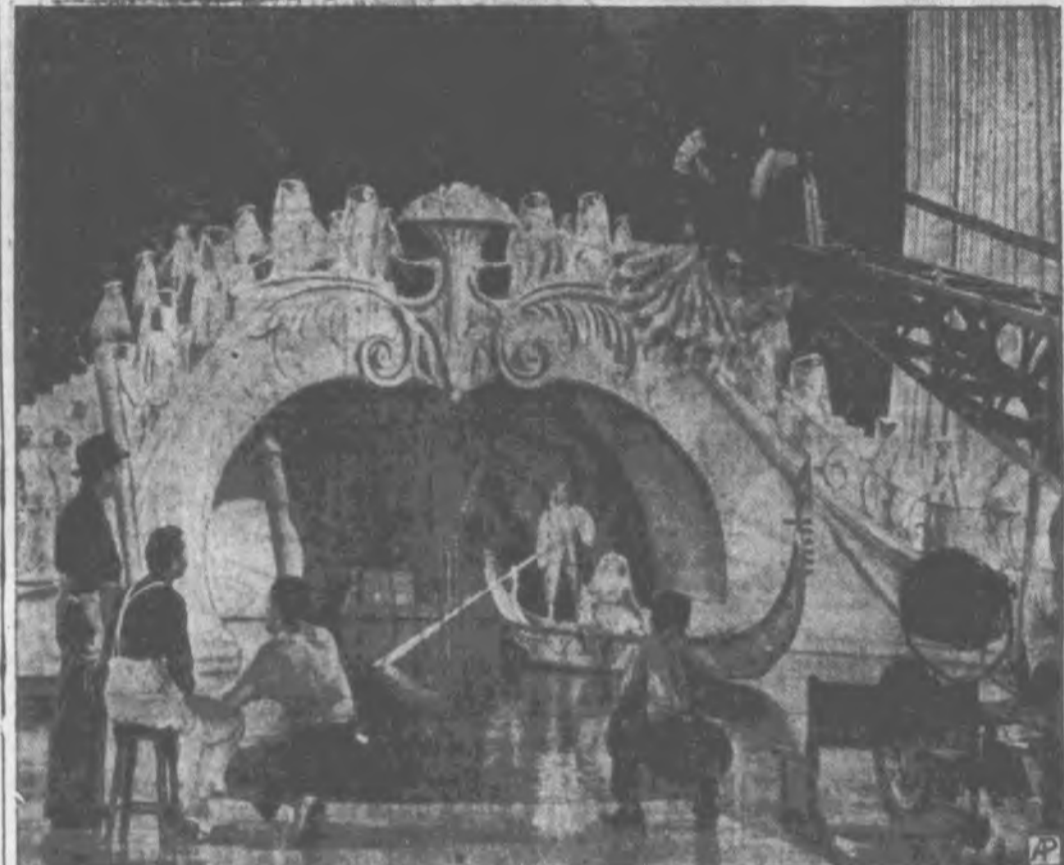

The official census of October 1, 1935, showed the population of Japan proper to be 69,251,260. That count gave the population of the whole empire — excluding Manchoukuo — as 97,894,628.

FILM MAKERS HAIL 'COLOSSAL' EFFECTS IN RACE FOR BIGGER AND BIGGER SETS

The producers literally raised the roof—heightened the sound stage by 30 feet—to accommodate this Venetian setting for a musical number in a forthcoming picture.

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood — The "Pretty Girl" number in "The Great Ziegfeld" challenged the other makers of movie-musicals, and the race is on toward greater lavishness in sets and designs. Warner Brothers already has under way its "Thousand Love Songs" number for the Marlon Davies-Clark Gable film, "Cain and Abel." An ordinary sound stage was not tall enough for the "colossal" effects desired, so they ripped off the roof of one, built it up an additional 30 feet and proceeded from there. This number has four huge sets.

first of which is for the Venetian sequence, all representing a stage production in which Miss Davies, cast as an actress, is starred in the story.

Mean Time Over Gondola
The Venetian sequence is a cool symphony in white, grey and black, with a great arched bridge spanning a canal over which a great white moon is rising. Star twinkles in the black sky, chorines in white satin and lace adorn the stairs, and Miss Davies and Enrico Riccardi, vocals, ride in a graceful gondola.

There are 160 girls, and nearly as many boys in the number—dancing on grey platforms which, at the touch of a button, close in over the black water to form a single dance floor and then part again.

On the end of the camera crane from which most of this is being photographed is suspended a huge fan of orich plumes. When the fan is rotated upward, blotting out the scene, a "dissolve" is effected. What will appear in the picture as an instantaneous change of sets occurs. Actually, however, the change will require several days and incredible work from all on the set, including dance director Bobby Connolly who can't complain because it was his job.

Others Follow Suit
At R-K-O "Swing Time" has Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in a number called "Bojangles."

Metro is busy on spectacular effects for Eleanor Powell's "Born to Dance," for "Maytime" and "Broadway Melody of 1937." Twentieth Century-Fox will decorate similarly its "Sally, Irene and Mary." Paramount has numbers going for "Big Broadcast of 1937" and "Champagne Waltz."

Universal is preparing "Hippodrome," which by virtue of its setting if nothing else will have to be fairly colossal. Soon Samuel Goldwyn will be busy on Eddie Cantor's next film, unostentatiously as usual and perhaps more eager to spread with the lavish hand.

The "Pretty Girl" number definitely has started a cycle.

Although Passamaquoddy is in eclipse, Maine has no reason to find fault with distribution of federal relief funds.

Incident to the main battle, townsmen expect to snap up an extra member of Congress in Maine.

Changes brought about by the New Deal in the economic field have transformed the old-time line up in Pennsylvania.

THANKS: Both sides in Washington are narrowly watching the political possibilities of the drought crisis.

Yet political scouts report such a seething unrest in the farm belt, such dissatisfaction with conditions, that gratitude for what the administration has done seems to be very rare.

Impartial observers are waiting to see what effect the third party campaign may have in the farm belt before trying to form an estimate of how farmers will vote.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

Chapter 37 THE ANSWER

"DEAR INSPECTOR," the Sergeant's letter began, "I am sorry for all the official faddoodle there will be about this business.

"I don't know whether you are beginning to guess it or not, but I killed Arthur Burdett; an action for which I wasn't sorry at the time, but which I am inclined to regret now.

"It so happened that the second time she was there (or at any rate the second time I know of) I was on some of his land beyond Nyetson, seeing about a tree that had blown across the road and that had to be cleared away.

"She looked a bit upset and flushed, and I suppose she was frightened at seeing me there.

"I thought it over a day and decided to go up on Monday, when I knew his man would be out, to thrash the whole thing out with him and see where we stood.

"Actually I went up to Enderton Court; I used the back drive, I got to the Court at about five minutes to seven.

"I burst out into the usual torrent of abuse which he used whenever he lost his temper.

"Of course I took no notice of that, except perhaps that it made me even angrier than I was already.

"It was then that the whole atmosphere of the thing changed. I didn't speak at all for the next ten minutes, he had it all his own way.

"I couldn't stand it any more and when he said that about Alice I lost control of myself (damned fool that I was), I had my truncheon out before I knew what I was doing.

element that demanded the Frasier-Lemke bill in the drought region, from which the administration hopes to receive a reward for quick drought relief.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

Chapter One CAROL AT HOME

HE room, usually gay and serene, had today an electric quality, as if its atmosphere were charged with the currents of conflicting desires.

It was a charming room, recently grown shabby, filled with beautiful and unrelated objects that long association had blended into a harmonious whole.

The brilliant surface of a Duncan Phyfe secretary reflected a disreputable armchair, cherished for its vitiating comfort; a mellow Sarouk rubbed shoulders with a big taupe rug that had graduated years before from a department store.

The room reflected with uncanny accuracy the temperament of its inhabitants; the mixture of hardness and softness, of weakness and strength, of ugliness and beauty.

It was a hard room to leave, Carol thought as she stood on the hearth and felt it wrapping its tentacles about her.

That left Jill, who was Pat's twin. Nobody, Carol thought gratefully, needed sympathy on Jill. She knew what she wanted, and she knew that a straight line was usually the shortest distance between two points.

"I was back home by half past eight and sat there pretending to read with my ears nailed to the door as you may say.

"Just after nine Lumsdale knocked. I let him in and he told me his alarming news. I hope my face looked serious and official enough, I tried to make it so anyway, and I walked up with him to see the first murder of my life (but my second view of it).

"I want to make it clear, Inspector, that I didn't want anybody else to be charged with the crime, but I didn't see how there could be any evidence to charge anyone else.

"However, you feel a damned fool, Inspector, when you've jumped into the river to rescue someone and it turns out to be a dummy. I found out today that what Arthur Burdett said about my wife was absolutely true—so I needn't have killed him at all really, which is a pretty good joke on both of us when you come to think of it.

"Well, Inspector, that's the way of it. I knew it all before; shut my eyes to it and have had it proved abundantly again: Go your own way in life and trust yourself, nothing else is worth while.

Inspector Hylton read this remarkable and eminently lucid document through slowly and with a series of mingled feelings such as he had seldom, if ever, before experienced.

that, and the Commission will probably soon be engaged in a tug-of-war with brokers as bitter as the argument between the New Dealers and the utility holding companies.

MARGINS: Every so often Wall Street gets all steamed up about some menace which subsequently turns out to be a false alarm.

This was true of the Securities Exchange Act issue; it was certain to wreck the brokerage business beyond repair—until it became operative. Now a majority of brokers privately concede that it has done more good than harm, especially by restoring public confidence.

An astute observer remarks: "About all that has done is to freeze out the shoe-string suckers. And every poker player knows that a game is livelier and more interesting if confined to those who know what it's all about."

"That's just it," said Carol. "Managing is getting me down."

She looked at the family, sitting in characteristic attitudes. Milly, her mother, was upright on the couch, an expression of hurt astonishment in her eyes.

Pat sprawled on his shoulder blades in an armchair, an unlit pipe between his teeth. It was Pat who broke Carol's heart, but she knew with the insight Evan had bequeathed her that she couldn't do much for Pat. Nobody could. He was the victim of his own weakness and his own strength.

He had so many capabilities, and no driving talent. He did charming water-colors, wrote promising, bitterly clever sketches, had an uncanny feeling for the theatre. And each gift distracted his attention from the others: he was diverted from a set of illustrations by a burning idea for a story, and then somebody would put on a benefit play and persuade him to drop both.

And for a living of sorts he sold motor cars. Carol tried to tell herself that he was only twenty-one, and that he would mature, but she knew better. Pat was a thousand years old in some ways, and an adolescent in

SOIL SAGA—1936

NEW DEAL AIDS DROUGHT AREA

LOYALISTS RUSH TO FIGHT REBELS

By PRESTON GROVER. Washington — The departure of Postmaster General Farley on leave to conduct the campaign was only the beginning of a migration of New Deal officials from government jobs to key positions in the headquarters set up.

The full list is not known at present, and probably will not be known until mid-campaign when an actual counting of noses may disclose it. But they have been drifting from Washington to New York in ones, twos and threes for some time.

A goodly number of them know long in advance just what holes they would fill. They were part of the headquarters organization set up by the late Louis McHenry Howe, longtime No. 1 secretary and counselor to President Roosevelt.

Howe left his place beside Roosevelt in Albany early in 1932 to act as the nominee's vicar in Democratic headquarters in New York.

Staff Move to New York. Mr. Roosevelt, through Howe and by actual contact, had a very close hand in the conduct of the 1932 campaign and Washington foresees him keeping an equally close touch this year.

Some of Howe's staffers and even Howe himself, until his death a few months ago, have had one principal idea in mind since 1932. That was the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1936. They have been spotted around here and there in the government service.

Pretty Wilma Francis, screen player, seems to be hard at work mopping but it's just play to her. She's shown scrubbing the deck of a yacht as she takes a day off from acting in a new film. (Associated Press Photo)

By ROBBIN COONS. Hollywood — "Hand-me-down Gretchen" is a young lady the movie fan would not recognize now unless she were billed as Loretta Young.

Loretta is clothes conscious in extreme, even clothes-mad — and she admits to an extensive wardrobe as her principal extravagance. If it needs justifying in her case, she is prepared: not only on the premise that all women are happier and hence more attractive and successful when well groomed, but also because her clothes represent a rebellion against the years she was "hand-me-down Gretchen" and wore the things Polly Ann and Sally Blane outgrew.

"Before Polly Ann's birth," Loretta reminisces, "mother made 14 baby dresses an dpetticoats, all beautifully ruffled and hand-embroidered. The durable material and fine needlework survived washings and served Sally when she was born, and when I came along, they were passed on to me.

"Wanted Bran-New Dress. It seemed to me that most of my life was spent in hand-me-downs, and I remember as a little girl wanting desperately one 'bran-new' dress without any mendings on it."

Even when she played her first grown-up role in a picture called "Naughty but Nice," she still wore Polly Ann's and Sally's outgrown but durable garments. By that time, being a youngster who had seen how movie stars dressed, Loretta yearned for a new coat, a real fur coat that was not a "made-over" with fur trimmings filched from her sisters' coats.

"I think one of the happiest moments of my life," Loretta says ecstatically even now, "was when mother gave me that fur coat for my sixteenth birthday. It wasn't very good fur and it wasn't the newest style, since mother couldn't afford more than an out-moded coat she found at a tremendous reduction. Fortunately we all can sew and we smartened it up a bit, and I was completely thrilled.

"Making Up For It Now. I know what a sense of inferiority it gave me to wear things that not only were old but were not made nor chosen for me and consequently didn't suit me. So I still get a thrill out of choosing even a handkerchief that seems to belong to me alone. And I get loads of fun out of choosing new things for Georgiana (her 12-year-old half-sister). When I can't find the right things for her, I design them and have them made up so she'll never have that hand-me-down feeling."

And then Loretta waxes philosophical: "Sometimes, though, I wonder if I'm wrong about Georgiana. After all, it's experience as well as taste that develops the finest selectivity. Certainly the years of making old frocks look like new at minimum cost, gave me truer appreciation of the details of grooming than I would have had if I had been born to sables and satins."

And so Loretta Young buys clothes—instead of yachts and cars and airplanes . . .

Steps In The Resettlement Administration's Program To Move Poor Land Farmers To Productive Acres

LAYING PLANS. U. S. Resettlement Administration land specialists, checking reports from field surveys, carefully map areas of poor land to be purchased and taken out of crop production.

SHOULD THEY MOVE? Agents go into an area blocked out for purchase to explain the plan to land owners, see if they will sell, and learn which families will need help in resettling.

LEFT BEHIND. In a poor land region, this house has been abandoned already by farmers who spent unfruitful years trying to grow crops on fields that should grow grass.

PROMISED LAND. Families in areas purchased by the Administration are helped to move to better homes on better lands, such as this—in the Douglas county farmsteads in Nebraska.

BACK TO GRASS. Workmen repair and regrow countrysides from which drought distressed farmers have moved. Dams to provide stock with water are being built on scores of projects.

Federal Relief For Dry Area Expected Help Farmers

By HERBERT PLUMMER. Washington (AP)—Under President Roosevelt as commander-in-chief a highly trained army of federal experts moves on a united front to battle drought.

The drought relief committee or "general staff" is the central authority. Its four members formulate policies and represent the President.

Secretary Wallace speaks for the department of agriculture. Dr. Rexford Tugwell's resettlement administration handles the bulk of actual relief work.

Williams Provides Jobs. Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of WPA, represents Administrator Harry Hopkins, who is charged with providing jobs for some 50,000 farmers, ruined by the dry weather.

Daniel Bell, acting director of the budget, is the finance officer who digs up the money.

Chester Davis, farm member of the federal reserve board, serves as ex-official adviser to the President and the "general staff" on arranging credit in the drought areas.

Policies formulated by the "general staff" are transmitted to the inter-departmental drought committee, the "division staff."

Tapp Heads 'Line Officers'. Jesse W. Tapp, assistant administrator of AAA, is chairman or senior "line officer". Tall, broad-shouldered and erect, he is in charge of crop surplus removal and the federal surplus commodities corporation.

Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, came to the department of agriculture in 1933 as chief of the corn-hog section of AAA on indefinite leave from Iowa State College.

Lawrence Westbrook, broad-shouldered, with thinning black hair and a dynamic personality, is called one of the most valuable line officers on the present crisis because of his familiarity with resettlement work in Texas.

C. W. Warburton, director of the extension service of the department of agriculture, has been connected with the department for 33 years. Gray-haired, mild-mannered and kindly, he has direct supervision over the thousands of county agents scattered over the country.

Field Men Are 'Troops'. Hugh H. Bennett, chief of the soil conservation service of the department of agriculture, came to the department in 1903 and has been in his present position since 1934.

Joseph L. Dalley, assistant administrator of the resettlement administration, a former judge in New Mexico, is in charge of the RA rehabilitation work.

W. F. Callender, assistant administrator of AAA, coordinates the activities of the various commodity divisions of AAA under the contract programs. Bald, bespectacled and of medium height, he has been with the department of agriculture since 1905.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER (Associated Press Staff Writer) Washington, July 20.—(AP)—If past performance is an indicator, Rep. William Lemke's bid for the presidency as the Union party candidate will be a lightning display. The time has come for a re-ignition of political factions, the 57-year-old North Dakotan asserts in announcing his candidacy. "The common people will vote for their own best interest in November and therefore join the Union party."

EUROPE PLAYS POLITICS IN THE STREET

Police rescue a priest from an anti-clerical mob in Madrid, Spanish Rightists list the toll of Leftist disorders in the four months after the Popular Front election victory last February as follows: 269 persons killed, 1,287 wounded and injured, 215 attempts at personal violence; 160 churches destroyed, 251 damaged; 69 political centers wrecked, 312 attacked; ten newspaper plants destroyed, 33 damaged; 130 general strikes, 500 partial strikes and numerous acts of terror, pillage and sabotage. Political and labor groups are banned.

THUNDER ON THE RIGHT

Their leagues dissolved by government decree, young French nationalists demonstrate along the Champs Elysees where years of handling unrest have taught police to look for the first disorders when Parisians take their differences to the streets. Thousands who spend their evenings in cafes that line the avenue provide large audiences; and because few Frenchmen are without strong political bias, the onlookers sometimes become demonstrators and the demonstration a riot. Another trouble spot is the student quarter.

SELF-SUPPORTING STUDENTS EARN TO LEARN

At Berea college in Kentucky, where enrollees pay their way by working on school-sponsored projects, there is no time for football. Students are shown here taking part in a "labor day" contest. (Left to right): milking, weaving and broom-making.

Berea, Ky. (AP)—Students at Berea college really work for their grades. Numbering about 2,000, they spend 10 to 15 hours a week on campus jobs during the school term and up to seven hours a day thru the summer vacation if they do not go home. Even the poorest thus are able to support themselves and pay their own way while learning useful occupations as well as book knowledge. Earning 10 to 25 cents an hour, the students are graded not only on classroom recitations but on their work. Projects include a large farm, 5,800 acre forest, power plant, fire and water departments, telephone system, factories and shops, cooperative store and hotel. Students have no time for football. They attend religious services regularly but are not required to accept any creed. None may use liquor, tobacco or automobiles, and the girls do not wear silk dresses. They are not allowed to enter eat-
