KARPIS EAGER PLEAD GUILTY TO SAVE NECK

Seeks Avoid Possible Death Penalty For Another Crime

READILY ADMITS HAMM 'KIDNAP'

Former Public Enemy Number One and Another Defendant Get Life Terms

St. Paul, Minn., July 26—(AP)—Alvin Karpis and Charles Fitzgerald, participants in the $100,000 William Hamm, Jr., kidnaping, were sentenced to life terms today by Federal Judge M. M. Joyce. Both had pleaded guilty earlier.

Before sentence was imposed, Karpis, asked by the court whether he had anything to say, declared: "Jack Pelfer is absolutely not guilty because I know the circumstances. He had nothing to do with the kidnaping."

Pelfer, a St. Paul night club operator, charged as "finger man" in the case, was convicted of a part in the abduction plot by a Federal Court jury Saturday.

St. Paul, July 27.—(AP)—Pictured as eager to plead guilty to abduction in an effort to avert a possible death penalty for another crime, Alvin Karpis was called into federal court today in the last round-up of the government's long war against St. Paul kidnapers.

Karpis, former public enemy number one, and two others—Edmund C. Bartholmev, former Bensenville, Ill., postmaster, and Charles "Big Fitz" Fitzgerald of Los Angeles—were summoned to be sentenced for their parts in the $100,000 kidnaping of William Hamm, Jr., wealthy brewer. All had pleaded guilty. Under the Lindbergh law they may be imprisoned for the rest of their lives.

Karpis, it was learned from an authoritative source, was ready to plead guilty at the same time to the $200,000 abduction of Edward G. Bremer. He planned the second admission, the informant said, in the hope of escaping prosecution on a charge of murdering Sheriff C. R. Kelley at West Plains, Mo., in Dec. 1931.

But Sheriff Ed Threlkeld declared at West Plains that prosecutors there were determined Karpis should die and would move to bring him to trial unless he received the death penalty elsewhere.

John Pelfer, former St. Paul night club operator, was the last to be convicted in the Hamm conspiracy. The federal court jury returned a verdict against him Saturday night. Sentence was deferred until Wednesday. Also awaiting sentence was Bryon Bolton, Chicago machine gunner who pleaded guilty in both the Hamm and Bremer cases.

New British Liner Sets Low Mark In Crossing Atlantic

Queen Mary Wreath Blue Ribbon From Normandie by Crossing in Four Days, Eight Hours, 37 Min.

New York, July 27.—(AP)—The Queen Mary rode into New York harbor today with a new trans-Atlantic record.

Britain's super liner wrenched the blue ribbon of the Atlantic from the French liner Normandie by completing the passage from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose lightship in four days, eight hours and 37 minutes.

This record, given as the official time by the Queen Mary's commander, Sir Edgar Britten, clipped three hours and five minutes from the record established last summer by the Normandie on her maiden voyage.

Judge Refuses Order Barring Investigation

Washington, July 27.—(AP)—Justice Oscar Lohring of the District of Columbia Federal Court refused to issue a temporary order forbidding the securities and exchange commission to investigate investment trusts.

The court's action came after the commission had received public hearings in investments inquiry pending outcome of legal efforts to block them.

SEEK UNSOLVE OTHER CRIMES

Detroit Police Trying to Link Slayings to Black Legion

Detroit, July 27.—(AP)—Detroit and suburban police scrutinized their records of unsolved crimes in which negroes were victims today after Dayton Dean, confessed black legion "executioner," had told of a second unprovoked attack by Black Legionnaires on a negro.

In his latest statement, Dean said Harvey Davis, black legion "colonel," ordered him and Charles Rouse, to "drive around and find a negro—any one so long as he's black" and then fired a shot into the back of the first negro they saw.

Deorose police said the victim was Edward Armour, 33, a factory worker who was shot at the door of his home in the suburb in February, 1935. Armour, who was in a hospital for months, will view Dean, Davis and Rouse today.

Davis denied Dean's story, but Deorose policemen said the bullet taken from Armour's back was fired from a pistol taken from Davis.

Dean said Davis' insistence upon shooting any negro followed an unsuccessful attempt to find Clarence Oliver, negro campaign worker for Mayor William W. Volzine of Deorose. Oliver had been marked for death by the legion, Dean asserted.

Mayor Volzine who also was the target of an unsuccessful black legion death plot, according to another of Dean's numerous statements, ordered police to seek possible black legion ramifications in a dwelling fire in which James E. Bailey, a negro campaign worker, burned to death in February, 1934.

Legion Speaker Urges Building Up Merchant Marine

WAR VETERANS HEAR JOHNSON

J. H. Rose, Vice-Commander, Appointed Head of Committee on Time and Place.

Asheville, N. C., July 26.—(AP)—J. Monroe Johnson acting secretary of commerce urged building up an American merchant marine as a part of a policy of preparedness in an address today to the state convention of the American legion.

"Peace and preparedness are just naturally logical partners," declared Johnson, a South Carolina veteran of the Rainbow division.

The legion and auxiliary settled down to business today. Josephus Daniels, Jr., of Raleigh state commander, called the convention to order for the first session in which the auxiliary participated.

Rep. Graham Barden of New Bern was named chairman of the resolutions committee. June H. Rose of Greenville, vice commander, was appointed chairman of the committee on time and place, and James M. Caldwell of Raleigh, chairman of the credentials committee.

British and American Refugees Being Evacuated to Alicante After Week of Terror

Madrid, July 27.—(AP)—(By secret courier to Hendaye, France)—After a week of terror huddled in their embassies, American and British refugees today were being evacuated to Alicante, on the southeast coast of Spain.

The government placed a special train at their disposal.

It was assured they would board a British destroyer at Alicante, where the refugees were due to arrive tonight.

Unconfirmed reports said 20 British women refugees were violently assaulted by rioters before they found sanctuary in the embassy.

SITUATION MORE ALARMING IN SECTIONS OF COUNTRY

Washington, July 26.—(AP)—An increasingly alarming situation at Vigo, Spain, prompted American Consul William W. Corcoran today to advise the State Department he was evacuating 23 Americans and Cubans on a British cruiser.

At the same time the American cruiser Quincy was steaming toward Alicante, on the southeast coast of revolution-wracked Spain, to rescue more than 100 Americans and other foreigners reported taken there by train from Madrid.

Asserting that apprehension in Vigo is increasing hourly "as the military and Right elements are apparently becoming less hopeful and increasingly nervous," Corcoran said that if the military authorities should fail, mob rule and anarchy would follow.

The cruiser proceeded immediately to the port on the southeast coast after touching briefly at Malaga.

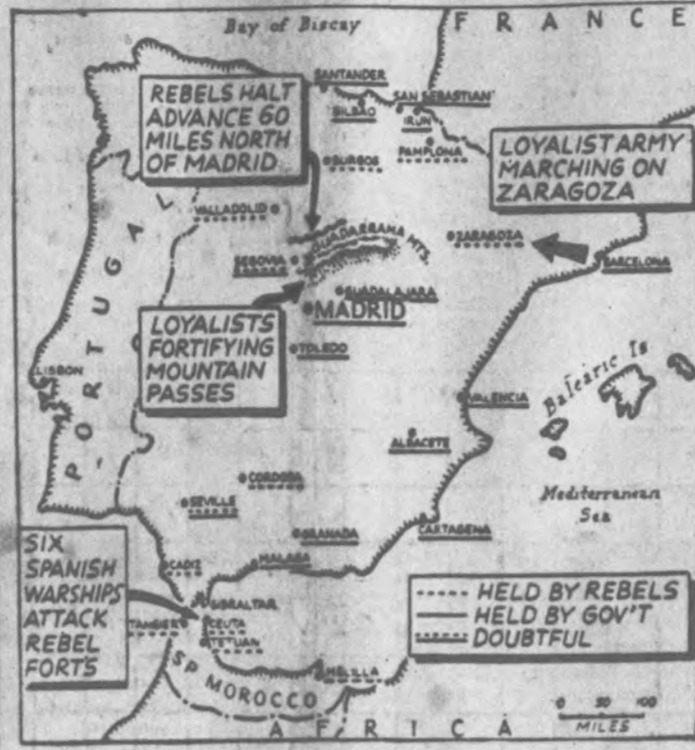

While the Navy department was advised of this rescue effort, the State department received a message which strengthened the hope for the safety of a group of New England college girls touring Spain.

Consul John B. Johnson at Madrid advised the department he had information that the American students are safe.

SPANISH WAR—AT A GLANCE

This map vividly illustrates latest developments in Spain's bloody civil war. It indicates the location of the fortified passes in the Guadarrama mountains where loyal troops blocked the rebels' march on Madrid and also Ceuta, Morocco, where loyalist warships attacked rebel forts. Insurgents Unsuccessful in Assault On City's Gateway

FASCIST LOSSES SAID BE HEAVY

Loyal Troops March on Three Regions Dominated by Insurgent Spanish Forces

(By the Associated Press) Spain's loyal troops marched today on three regions dominated by insurgents in the wake of what the government termed leftist victories on the northern slopes of strategic Guadarrama mountain passes, a few miles from Madrid.

Fascist losses were described as heavy.

The rebel high command flung its main power against leftist positions in the mountains, strongly fortified and paid for its assault on the gateway to the capital city with severe casualties.

Now in its eleventh day the nation's civil war was punctuated with reports of a food shortage in the contested north central portion of Spain, of mass desertions among the rebels and of insurrectionists' plans to "starve out" Madrid.

Aides of United States ambassador Claude G. Bowers, said reports in Hendaye, France, left San Sebastian, Bay of Biscay, summer resort, aboard the American coast guard cutter Cayuga. The ambassador apparently still was at the fortress at Suenterrabia.

The American battleship Oklahoma arrived in Bayonne, France, with 38 refugees from Santander and Bilbao.

The government laid claim to important advances in the northwest, southwest and southeast in an extension of its campaign to crush the revolt.

Several Cases Aired In Municipal Court

Only a few defendants were tried in police court this morning, but a majority of these were bound over to County court.

Oliver King, negro, was bound over to the higher court under $200 bond, following a preliminary hearing on charges of reckless and careless driving, operating an automobile without a license and driving a car without sufficient brakes.

Robert Betheau, another negro, was bound over under $500 bond on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. He is charged with attacking a negro woman, Ethel Williams.

Randolph Parker, negro, was fined $5 and costs upon conviction of being drunk and disorderly.

Elder Freeman, negro, was taxed with cost for drunkenness.

John McGowan, negro, was bound to County court under $500 bond on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on Annie Knight, negro.

1,306 City Licenses Sold To Auto Owners

Greenville automobile licenses issued this year total 1,306, as compared with 1,505 during the whole of last year, W. L. Patrick, assistant City clerk and tax collector, said today in announcing that warrants would be issued for all persons in the city driving cars without the plates.

The city official was unable to state what date he would begin issuing warrants, but said it would be some time next week.

The licenses cost one dollar each, but if a person is halted into court he probably will have to pay court costs, amounting to about $5, and perhaps a fine, in addition to the cost of the license.

Boston Girl Furnishes Officers With New Clue In Mysterious Slaying

Tenacious In Hunt For Co-Ed's Slayer

Provides Description of Voice of Man in Girl's Room

SHERIFF GUARDS HIS NEXT MOVES

Whereabouts of W. L. Clevenger, Uncle Of Dead Co-Ed Continues Remain Mysterious

Asheville, July 27.—(AP)—A description of the ravisher-slayer of Helen Clevenger, 18-year-old college girl, as a man with a "hoarse, spoken, cultural voice" furnished officers with a new clue today.

Meander Sheriff Laurence E. Brown, chief investigator of the baffling murder, closely guarded his next move as he sought to track down the slayer who entered the girl's room in a fashionable hotel here early on the morning of July 18.

Guy Weaver, lawyer for Professor W. L. Clevenger, the slain girl's 64-year-old uncle, who was detained Friday for investigation, reported he was out of jail, but neither the sheriff nor his deputies would confirm it.

The description of the voice of a man in the college girl's room at 1 a. m.—the hour officers said the man was slain—was obtained from a Boston, Mass., stenographer who had a room two doors from Miss Clevenger.

Detectives in Boston quoted Miss Lydia Everson, a vacationist, as saying she heard a "sharp, piercing scream" come from the girl's room and then a "sound like a water pitcher and glasses falling."

"I went to the window," she stated, "and looked across the court. I saw that the room from which the scream had come was dark. Then I heard a man's voice, cultured and soft spoken."

Miss Everson said she dismissed the incident then, thinking the woman had probably had a nightmare and her husband was soothing her back to sleep.

Many Pitt County Residents Expect Attend Convention

North Carolina Farmers and Farm Women's Conventions Being Held in Raleigh This Week

The North Carolina Farmers and Farm Women's convention held in Raleigh this week will be attended by a large number of Pitt county men and women, it was indicated today.

R. H. Bennett, county farm agent, said he expected at least 100 to attend some of the sessions, and added the county possibly would have up to 600 or 1,000 in attendance at some times during the week.

"Every day of the convention, which is to be held at State College, July 27, 28, 29, 30 and 31 will offer special knowledge, privileges and advantages to every man and woman who attends," declared Mr. Bennett before leaving for Raleigh.

Vital and worthwhile subjects are to be discussed by the outstanding leader of the state and nation.

Of special interest to Pitt county farmers will be a discussion by J. B. Hutson, Director of West Carolina Region Soil Conservation Program, on policies and plans for county legislation.

Truckers will be especially interested in the discussions, July 28, of the truck situation and an organization that will enable the truck growers to be properly represented in drawing up the 1937 Soil Conservation program.

The college dormitory rooms are available without cost, but those who attend should carry towels, soap, sheets, pillows and such other personal necessities as will be needed. It was advised.

The county agent will be glad to provide details of the program throughout the week.

Negro Finds Cursing Something To Avoid

John Mays Shander, Fayette county negro, found that cursing is the front yard of a local negro, Bernard Smith of Bolivarville, who was something to avoid.

The visiting negro was ordered from the front yard of the post office and was refused and began using profane language. He shot him in the leg, the doctor taken to jail, but later released.

He was not seriously injured.

...at Cop Cummings' "dicks." It appears that Mr. Hoover has a headline habit of capturing credit from the so-called T-men. Some time ago he publicized the news that "my men have caught Dutch Schultz" at the very moment the gangster was surrendering to Treasury agents. A short while later Mr. Hoover breathlessly phoned press agencies here that his agents had described Count Lusia, the notorious counterfeiter. Actually the G-men at Pittsburgh refused to cooperate with a short-handed Secret Service squad after the latter discovered Lusia's hideout. The G-men simply beat the T-men to the front page.

Local police - New York, Chicago, Seattle, Memphis, Louisville - hold the same grudge against the G-men. In many cities they won't cooperate with Hoover's men after one experience with what they dub "headline detectives."

TROUBLE: Although Treasury officials who inspired the inquiry into G-men's captures and killings held the same grudge against Mr. Hoover's procedure, it provoked the higher-ups. Instead of submitting a formal protest, he rattled several Cabinet secretaries by running a friendly reporter.

Privately Mr. Morgenthau is furious at both Mr. Cummings and Mr. Hoover. When the G-men took credit for the Schultz and Lusia arrests, the Secretary of the Treasury burned to protest to the White House. But he mustered his indignation because he preferred not to provoke another Cabinet feud. Now he finds both Mr. Cummings and Mr. Hoover shooting at him with daily state-ments in the newspapers. The G-men also antagonized Mr. Fairly by charging that postal inspectors would not work with him, although it was the Post Office detective who tipped off the G-men on Alvin Karpis' whereabouts. Mr. Hoover's "is making trouble for the Cabinet" than for criminals - or so certain influential New Dealers opine.

SKEPTICS: Ex - Lieutenant Commander John S. Farnsworth engineered his own arrest for the alleged sale of naval secrets to the Japanese by offering a sensational story to a news bureau at Washington. His mistake lay in asking too high a price. He wanted $20,000. The size of the amount forced the bureau chief to consult "the big chief," noted for his anti-Japanese bias. The publisher ordered his men to check Farnsworth's record as a naval intelligence. The navy's spy hunters, who had deferred arrest so as to run down possible accessories, closed in and jailed Farnsworth.

Unless the government is withholding important evidence, some officials are growing skeptical of the case against the prisoner. The document he is alleged to have disclosed to Japanese spies is not such a closely guarded paper as "scarce documents" suggest. It is accessible to thousands of naval officers who sign for it, and the Navy doesn't smother strategic secrets like that.

MARGIN: Despite pro - London path, Democratic politics acut missummer claims that FDR faces a licking. They insist that they have secured a majority of electoral votes the G. O. P. can't touch.

The Roosevelt - Farley - Hurja trio bank on a minimum electoral total of 290-310, although they swell these figures for public consumption. Here's how they divide their battle map: Sure for Roosevelt - The Solid South, five border states, three Pacific Coast states, Arizona, New Mexico, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska, Montana, Utah, Indiana. They insist that the only one of these liable to fall into the G. O. P. column is Nebraska.

Total electoral vote on this basis is 531. But the White House counts on New York or Pennsylvania or Illinois to home the ballot figure in 1936 at least. They'll bet on that.

Chapter Three DON KICKS UP

DON RICHARDS appeared that evening unexpectedly, his habitual grin buried under an air of perturbation. It was Don whom Carol had considered marrying - because he was solid and amiable, and because his magnificent body and exquisite cleanliness tricked people into thinking him handsome. He walked in without ringing, and confronted Carol in the living-room.

"What's this about you going to Ashboro?" Carol stared at him. The almost indecent intimacy of small towns, had she said? None of the family had been out of earshot since she first brought the matter up for discussion.

"This whole thing sounds screwy," declared Don.

"Will you please tell me where you heard that? And sit down, instead of glaring at me like a traffic cop."

He sat down with an air of impermanence. "I saw Jim Henley in the drug store, and he said he'd recommended you and that he imagined you'd take the job."

"Oh, he did? He knows an awful lot." She was unreasonably irritated with Jim Henley for speculating on her decision in a drug store.

"You're not going, are you, Carol?" His eyes begged her. They were blue and ingenious, and she looked away from them. He got up and walked the length of the room, a habit he had when he was worried.

"Let's go to ride, I want to argue with you and I don't want you running out on me."

"All right. Let me get a hat." It had to be faced, she knew. Don was part of her life in Meredith, and like Meredith his image was distorted, enlarged, by the imminence of separation. He talked aimlessly until they reached an unfrequented road. Then he turned on her.

"Listen, Carol: this whole thing sounds screwy. What's the deal?" SHE meant, of course, to tell him what she had told Milly. She tried to tell him that, and he brushed her words aside like gnats.

"You wouldn't go to another town and teach school for that. Your salary won't go any farther than your income does here. You're just checking out, aren't you?" His voice sounded furry-blurred.

She watched the flow of pavement beneath the lights. The car seemed stationary, while a soft August night moved past them. She was rather like the car, she thought: standing still while her life went by on the wind. What was it the Red Queen had said: that you had to run very fast to stay in the same place? And much faster than that to get anywhere? Don looked at the road and waited, and she had to tell him the truth. If a man loved you, that was the least you could do.

"I guess I am, Don. There's so little point to the way I live."

"He said surprisingly: 'There's not much point to the way anybody lives. Ashboro's no different from Meredith; don't kid yourself about that.'"

"I'm not. But I don't intend to stay there."

"You mean... you're not coming back?"

Her throat ached intolerably, and Don's arm was across her shoulders. His arm had been there before, and the sensation had never gone beyond a pleasant warmth - a sort of tempered pleasure: it had never approached the sword-like ecstasy of Bill Faraday's embrace. But Bill Faraday was in New York, and the dust of five years lay thick on the memory of him.

He sensed her uncertainty, and with one hand he wrenched the car into a deserted side road and stopped.

"Carol..." He had both arms around her, and his mouth was hunting hers. She gave up and kissed him reluctantly.

But it wasn't the sort of kiss she had had from him before.

She wrenched herself away finally and sat, shivering, in the far corner. She was intensely angry, with herself as well as with him.

ment of this type of trust and offers a strong inducement for voluntary conversion of other trusts into this species wherever such a transformation is possible.

PRACTICAL: The distinguishing feature of a "mutualized" trust is that any stockholder can have his money back on demand at a discount of not more than 3 per cent below the actual current asset value of his holdings as measured by the market prices of the securities comprising the trust's portfolio. He does not have to sell his shares at a loss in the open market. What a break it would have been for hapless investors if investment trusts had been set up on this basis in '29 and '30!

By legal definition (in the tax law) a mutualized trust is also one which has at least 95 per cent of its capital in common stock. This aims at a frequent abuse of the boom days wherein most of the capital of a trust would be preferred stock sold to the public, with a small proportion of common retained by insiders. The latter profited tremendously and disproportionately from the leverage factor in a rising market.

Several mutualized trusts are already in existence - including Massachusetts Investors and the State Street Trust of Boston. They have been markedly successful in the past year - which indicates that the type is practical to operate.

HANDICAPS: The Commission's research work preliminary to hearings has been going on for months. New Yorkers who have had close contact with the investigators pay tribute to their fair-minded and factual attitude - in marked contrast to the "inquisitorial spirit" behind other Washington investigations of financial institutions in the past three years.

Pessimists fear that the hearings themselves will be conducted with an eye to newspaper headlines. There are plenty of past abuses that can be spotlighted and SEC officials will naturally want to present as strong a case for regulation as possible. But the Commission will have three handicaps on the publicity end: (1) Its activities will be overshadowed by political news, (2) a federal agency inquiry invariably commands less attention than a Congressional investigation, and (3) the unavoidably technical nature of the evidence will sharply limit public interest.

They arrived in North Carolina July 7th after a journey of nearly six weeks. They were met in New York by Dr. John M. Barrett, Mrs. Barden's brother.

4-H Short Course
The following club members are attending the State Short Course in Raleigh this week: Lucille Tugwell, Myra Watson, Carrie Lee Jefferson, Elizabeth Whitchard, Sallie Tolar, Ella Lee Lewis, Austin Smith Noah Warren Carroll, and John Ashley Whitchard. They expect to return to Greenville Monday, July 27 between 11 and 12 o'clock.

Farm and Home Convention
Men and women of Pitt county will join other interested farmers in Raleigh next week at State College. The convention opens Monday evening, July 27 and will close Friday evening, July 31. Thursday is Pitt county day. Paul T. Ricks will run buses for those who want to make the trip Thursday. The buses leave from between the post office and the court house at 7 a. m. Thursday, July 30. Any interested men and women may go. The rate is very low and you will have a good time in route as well as at the convention. You will find much inspiration and information in the program. Take the day off and join the others. You owe it to yourself.

Garden Notes
The importance of the fall garden cannot be overemphasized and the earlier start we can make the longer period of time we will have a good variety of vegetables.

It is late for corn but if planted immediately Golden Cross Bantam will probably mature some roasting ears before frost.

Plantings of beets, carrots, peas, snap beans and cabbage can be made at this time. But seed will germinate more rapidly and a better stand attained if the seed are soaked over-night before planting. The soaked seed should not be allowed to dry out before planting and they should be planted in moist soil.

For fall Irish potatoes either Cobblers or Bliss should be used. If old seed are not available, early spring seed can be used if they are "greened" before planting. This is done by exposing the potatoes in open shade for two or three weeks before planting. Use small seed and plant the whole potato.

Manure is unequalled as a general garden fertilizer and should be used when available. Any good trucking fertilizer will be suitable. If applied in the furrow use about 1000 pounds per acre. Side dressings with readily available nitrogen are often necessary after a crop has started growing. This is especially true in the case of leafy vegetables such as cabbage, lettuce, spinach, etc. Several lighter applications are better than one heavy application as the latter is apt to damage the plants.

Private employers are turning more and more to the state employment service in getting additional help, it was pointed out. In Durham a large concern which is reopening after a complete renovation of its plant, is refusing to employ any workers unless referred by the employment service. In Asheville, Charlotte and Salisbury, the employment offices have a standing offer to supply workers of certain types, preferably without previous working experience, with the result that the service is supplying many workers for these jobs.

The Winston-Salem office has on file requests for four college graduates to work in the Georgia, South Carolina and North Carolina tobacco markets, for a truck owner, a field man for a telegraph company, a housekeeper for a very attractive and regular job and for a first-class colored cook.

Petrified Grove for Park
Roma, Tex. (AP)—A park "forested" with petrified trees has been established here. Zenon Pena, a barber and civic leader, had quantities of them hauled from nearby hills. Among the stumps, logs and small pieces of wood are thousands of fossil oyster shells, as long as 18 inches.

Washington, N. C., July 24th, 1936.
I have been curing tobacco over thirty years, and I find after curing two barns out, another almost cured, that the Smith's Oil Burner System is the best way to cure tobacco I have ever tried.

The heat is evenly distributed over the barn therefore you have little "sponged" tobacco from cold corners and don't redden tobacco because there is no cool spots to kill out after the rest of the barn has been killed.

Shortage Of Labor Instead Positions Develops In State

Many Sections of North Carolina Reported to Be In Need of Workers to Fill Jobs

Reflector Bureau, St. Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, July 27.—A shortage of labor instead of a shortage of jobs is developing in many sections of the state, according to word being received by the State Employment Service of the State Department of Labor, it was reported at the employment service offices here today.

This shortage of labor is more noticeable in the skilled labor field but in some sections extends into the unskilled field.

It is becoming increasingly difficult to secure some types of skilled labor anywhere in the state, it was reported, especially brickmasons, road machine operators, skilled carpenters and skilled furniture workers, the employment service reports.

The service has many workers registered who are capable of becoming skilled workers and who would be skilled workers if they had had an opportunity to become apprentices when they first started to work, but these are not desired by the employers. This demonstrates the need for fuller and better apprentice training in all the skilled

Winterville Club Report
The following is a report of the Winterville Home Demonstration Club from December 1, 1935 to July 1, 1936: "The Winterville Home Demonstration Club has had an average attendance this year of about 50 per cent. The most interesting meeting held up to this date was at Miss Nan Loy Tucker's home. She gave a resume of the club since she has been a member. She showed some dresses she has made, and it was inspiring to behold how the course in sewing has enabled her to make such attractive clothes at a very low cost. She has recently had her home remodelled and she graciously pointed out to the members the major improvements she has made. Another helpful feature of the meeting was a demonstration of flower arrangement; each one declared she gained new ideas from it.

At that same meeting the club decided to sponsor the cleaning and planting of a public plot in town. This is situated between the railroad and the highway. The town furnished men to shrub, grub, and level the plot. The club has hired a man to sow peas and they are growing fine now. We hope to set out shrubs and flowers at a more favorable season.

The club has made one attempt to raise money. On the night of April 10 we gave a silver tea in the school building. The weather was inclement, however, and the amount made was very small. We are planning to sponsor a musical program soon.

Accomplishments show: 35 women enrolled; 2 hours painted, 2 interior; 1 barn moved; 3 garages repaired; 36 fences repaired, 1 out-door living room planted, 1 bird bath made, 1 pool and seats made, 55 trees set out, 142 shrubs planted, 15 club members rooting own shrubs, 17 exchanged plants, 12 having Compost heaps, 8 having propagation rows, 16 pruned plants, 48 plants rooted, 4 garden plans made, 1 house screened, 1 new home has been built with private water system, 1 sanitary toilet has been built, 1 new garage, wash house, wood shed, and sanitary toilet combined has been built and painted 1 new chicken house has been built and painted, I should like to mention what has already been done: 14 had grass before December 1, 1935, 11 had houses underpinned before December 1, 1935, and 13 had shrubs before Dec. 1, 1935." Mrs. J. T. Gaylord, leader.

SHORT COURSE SAID SUCCESS

Delegates to Annual Affair Desert State College Campus

Raleigh, July 27.—Seven hundred delegates to the annual 4-H Short Course, which began last Wednesday at State College, turned their faces homeward today. Described by Dean I. O. Schaub of State College as "the cleanest and best-looking bunch of 4-H boys and girls ever to attend a State College Short Course," the delegates went through a period mixed with education and entertainment during their five-day stay. During the mornings, the clubbers attended assembly and did class room work. The afternoons were free for sight-seeing and recreation. Each night was devoted to a program of entertainment or Riddick Field at the College. The girls delegates studied food-clothing, room improvement, books, home beautification, arts and crafts, canning, parliamentary procedure, and self-improvement. These classes were directed by extension specialists and guest teachers. The boys studied crops, livestock, poultry, farm improvement, conservation, parliamentary procedure, recreation, personal improvement, organization, and life saving. The delegates were quartered in the college dormitories and meals were served them in the college cafeteria. Sight-seeing tours of the State College campus and Raleigh were conducted by members of the Extension Service staff.

May We Take This Method Of Explaining What an Ambulance is

To avoid confusion, it is a vehicle made exclusively and for no other purpose than transporting the sick and wounded, NOT a hearse and NOT for the dead.

An ambulance should be so constructed inside that it can be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected between each and every trip with an invalid suffering with a contagious or infectious disease. The floor covering should be of linoleum and the upholstery and top of genuine leather. This permits easy washing and thoroughly disinfecting. Any other material such as plush or mohair should be a veritable nest for all disease germs.

In Cities, Public Health Authorities require and demand that even Taxicabs have leather upholstery to prevent the spread of diseases with the well. Ambulance patients should demand as much.

Don't expose your sick to more disease germs than they already have, call an AMBULANCE that has every requirement and approval of the American Red Cross, one that is sanitary, one that is used for nothing but an AMBULANCE. We have such an AMBULANCE ready 24 hours every day to serve you.
