

JUDGE ALLOWS PRESENTATION OF TESTIMONY

Witnesses To Be Allowed to Tell How Negro Confessed

RULING FOLLOWS LONG ARGUMENT

Judge Declines Rule on Whether to Allow Confession Itself In Evidence

Asheville, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Judge Don Phillips announced today he would allow state witnesses to tell how Martin Moore confessed the slaying of Helen Clevenger, but withheld a ruling on admission in evidence of the statement Moore signed.

The ruling came after a long debate about presentation of witnesses in the absence of the jury during which Moore took the state to charge he was beaten before he confessed.

J. F. Clevenger, father of the slain girl, testified that the negro who stands six feet three inches as compared with Helen's five-foot march to the stand. He had to be taken out of the courtroom.

The battle over admission of the confession was precipitated when Sheriff Laurence E. Brown took the stand.

Brown denied he used coercion but was refused permission to tell of the signed statement after he signed the statement, after he admitted promising the negro to let the judge know if Moore would tell the truth.

Moore said he was beaten with fists and by a rubber hose by "a fat man" as that he later told solicitor Zeb W. Nettles the confession was made freely "because I was afraid to open my mouth."

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 20.—(AP)—Judge Don Phillips refused today, at least temporarily, to allow Sheriff Laurence E. Brown to testify regarding the confession he said Martin Moore, 22-year-old negro Bakery Park hotel ball boy, made of the slaying of Helen Clevenger.

With the jury out of the room, Brown denied from the stand that dress or inducement were used to get Moore to confess, but said he did tell the negro that if he would tell the truth the judge at his trial would be apprised of that fact.

Phillips then upheld defense objections and, with the jury still out, Solicitor Zeb W. Nettles called A. Bridgewater, radio service man, who told the court he was present when the confession was made and heard Moore tell of slaying the girl when he went to her room to rob it about 1 a. m. July 18 and became panicky when she screamed.

Before Brown took the state coroner George F. Baker, deputy sheriff Frank Messer and photographer E. M. Ball described the condition of the girl's body and room immediately after the slaying.

ROAD PROGR'M BEING PUSHED

Much Preliminary Work on Avenue Widening Plan

Mayor M. K. Blount said today the Dickinson avenue widening and underpass projects were progressing satisfactorily, but added much preliminary work remained to be done before the programs will get in full swing.

Work already has been started on the underpass at the railroad crossing at the cotton mill, but the tracks must be lowered, drainage put in and the roadway excavated and leveled, which will take some time.

A detour is being provided on Chestnut street, and Mayor Blount said the auxiliary route would be made as satisfactory as possible.

Bowers Brothers Company of Whiteville has the contract for the underpass. Cobb and Homewood of Chapel Hill was awarded the contract for the other work on the large project.

Widening of the street beyond the Norfolk-Southern tracks has been underway some time and almost has been completed. It is understood the work will steadily progress toward the city.

Greenville Mart Ready For Sales

Several Loads of Tobacco Already on Local Warehouse Floors for Opening of Auctions on Tuesday, September 1st

K. W. Cobb, Supervisor and Publicly Director of the Greenville Tobacco Market, was in the city this week, placing opening announcements of the Greenville tobacco market.

Mr. Cobb stated that everything was ready for the opening of the market Tuesday, September 1st, at which time five sets of buyers will simultaneously begin the sale of the 1936 crop of tobacco at auction. Already several loads of tobacco have arrived in Greenville for the opening sale.

The ten large auction warehouses in Greenville have been thoroughly remodeled and overhauled and everything is in tip-top shape for the opening Tuesday, September 1st. The ten mammoth warehouses will be operated this year by warehousemen of experience and ability, who have the nerve and money to back their judgment in seeing that every pile brings the high dollar. The warehouses this year will be operated as follows:

The Farmers Warehouse will be operated by C. H. McGowan, better known to the farmers of eastern North Carolina as "Hugh."

In discussing his plans for the coming season, Mr. McGowan says that he was never in better shape to care for the interests of his customers. Mr. McGowan is a native of Pitt county, and is a practical farmer. He knows tobacco. He will have associated with him this year the very best force of assistants that could be secured. L. C. Powell, auctioneer, P. H. Cannon, Lennie Edwards, Lyman Edwards, Donald Worthington, and Guy Lanier of the office, Grover Hodges, B. R. Manning, J. J. Carroll, G. A. Justice, as floor managers.

Dixie Warehouse, Will P. Moore and Biggs T. Cannon, owners and proprietor of the new Dixie Warehouse, have one of the most modern warehouses for the sale of tobacco found in the eastern market.

Will Moore, who has charge of sales, is a man of large experience in warehouse business.

Keel's New Warehouse, located on West Dickinson Avenue, is a modern and well-equipped warehouse for the sale of tobacco at auction, with every convenience for the farmers who sell at this house.

Keel's warehouse will be operated this season by Rufus Keel and Jimmie Taylor. Mr. Keel for the past several years has been connected with the Greenville tobacco market. Mr. Taylor has operated warehouses at Robinsonville and Williamson, and also worked on the Greenville market. This warehouse has a very competent force this year, consisting of D. S. Spain, Gilbert Peeler, H. H. Keok, office managers, T. S. Tyson, Jack Perkins, and K. S. Woodard, floor managers. Jack Taylor, auctioneer, Center Brick Warehouse will be operated this year by a new firm, but in no way new to the Greenville tobacco market: Dow Lassiter.

State Highway Accidents Claim Toll Of 75 Deaths

By J. C. BASKERVILL (Reflector Raleigh Bureau)

Raleigh, Aug. 20.—Automobile accidents took a toll of 75 lives in North Carolina in July, while 681 persons were injured in a total of 596 accidents, according to figures released today by Captain Charles D. Farmer of the State Highway Patrol.

In July of last year, 69 persons were killed and 508 injured in 359 accidents. Thus six more persons were killed, 153 more injured in 237 accidents in July of this year than in July, 1935.

The July figures bring the total number of automobile casualties for the first seven months of 1936 to 514 killed and 4,029 injured in 3,533 accidents as compared with 549 killed and 3,423 injured in 2,831 accidents for the corresponding seven months of 1935. A comparison of these figures shows that in the first seven months of this year 35 fewer persons were killed in automobile accidents than in the same seven months in 1935, but that 606 more were injured in 902 more accidents.

The Greenville store showed a percentage profit of 24.14 and the Grimesland store a profit of 3.18. All others had percentage profits ranging between these two figures.

Escapee Captured By Local Officers And Returned Jail

One of Five Men Who Fled County Jail Sunday Night Taken by Officers; Three at Large

Lige Small, one of five negroes who escaped from the Pitt county jail last Sunday night, was caught local officers last night and returned to the jail.

The negro, sent up from City court on a charge of breaking and entering, was taken by officers when they happened up on him while on another mission.

Three of the escapees at yet are at large, but officers are concentrating their efforts on capturing Norris Barnes, convicted in police court jointly with Small, and Tom Sims, sent up from City court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

James Edwards, who escaped from the others, returned voluntarily and gave himself up Monday morning, several hours after he had fled from the jail. The fifth to escape was a young negro boy who was being held in jail for stealing watermelons.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

FISH: The administration's political trouble squad are gluing their eyes on a certain nationally known Democratic leader in a western state. Though nominally a New Deal sympathizer and erstwhile adviser, he has shown signs of "taking a walk" without any public announcement.

He was a key figure in FDR's campaign for the nomination and performed a deft job on the floor at Chicago. He was offered a high post early in 1933, but he declined it to remain in a law practice that grew more lucrative under the Roosevelt administration. Subsequently a certain coolness developed, though he is still a frequent guest at the White House.

He thinks that he has been badly treated. He has informed friends that the ingratitude of beneficiaries of his political lobbying hurts. If he decides to seek revenge, he won't publicize it. He'll simply slip the word to his powerful personal machine that the fish might be biting well on Election Day. If they are, it will mean the loss of his state.

Leaders Of Major Parties Continue To Assail Foes

Landon Turns Eastward; Roosevelt Toward West

Washington, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A mid burst of activity among top-flight figures in the major camps of the presidential campaigns, Gov. Alf M. Landon turned eastward today in the Republic can drive to defeat the new deal.

While President Roosevelt at Hyde Park arranged further drought conferences prior to his swing into the scorched western farm country for a 10-day tour the Kansas governor set out from his summer ranch at Estes Park, Colo on a trip to carry him through nine states.

Leaders of both major parties continued to thrust at opponents. Speaking before the united retail merchants association last night at Hagerstown, Md., Colonel Frank Knox, Republican vice presidential nominee, declared that "the business of this country can not be run from Washington."

On the other side, Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic national committee, in his first political broadcast since the conventions, said the Republicans were "raining hoping for enough voters to be frightened to secure the success of their ticket."

When he examined the Republican case, said Farley, "we find nothing but two score stories, both of which disappear in the light of hard facts."

John D. M. Hamilton, the Republican national chairman, brought an "erial campaign tour to a close at Sedalia, Mo., with an address in which he said he was "so optimistic about the outcome in November because the fundamental issues are becoming clearer daily in the people's mind."

Instigator Declares Plot Would Place Fascism In Russia

Gregory Vinovskis Accused Full Guilt For Bloody Conspiracy Aimed Against Soviets

(Copyright by Associated Press) Moscow, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Gregory Vinovskis, accused instigator of a bloody plot against the Soviet regime of Joseph Stalin, testified at his trial today the terrorist conspiracy, if successful, would have put Russia on the road to fascism.

Accepting full guilt for the conspiracy alleged to have included the intended assassination of Stalin and other high Soviet leaders, the 44-year-old man declared:

"I went all the way from opposition party power to country revolution and terrorism and actually fascism.

Earlier in a dramatic moment of the trial of Vinovskis and 15 others, testimony was brought out that a 1924 attempt to kill Stalin failed because Vinovskis' attorney committed suicide rather than carry out the death orders.

Vinovskis' admission he had abandoned the principles of Karl Marx in resorting to individual terrorism was made in an explanation of how and why he plotted to kill Stalin and unseat the government.

NAZI GERMANY WARNS MADRID IN ULTIMATUM

Retorts Search of Vessels Flying German Flag

ITALY DELAYS DEMOBILIZATION

Both Loyalists And Rebels Claim Victories As Civil War Continues in Spain

Berlin, Aug. 20.—(AP)—German warships in Spanish waters were ordered tonight to meet all "unjustifiable acts" with force.

Admiral Carl commander of the Nazi warships, wireless the commander of the Spanish government fleet and advised him he had given the order to reply to acts of force with force.

The stringent orders followed a curt Nazi ultimatum in which Madrid was warned the German warships would take "all means" to prevent repetition of such incidents as the reported search of the German steamer Kamerun on the high seas.

German naval reinforcements in the shape of seven warships now are en route to Spain.

Admiral Carl's radiogram read in part:

"This action against a German ship is a breach of the right of free shipping on the high seas.

"I am not disposed to tolerate such acts of force.

"I have instructed my sea forces to meet all unjustifiable acts of force from your ships with force."

(By Associated Press)

Germany issued a flat ultimatum today to the Spanish socialist government that German warships commanders would take "all means" to prevent the illegal search of vessels flying the German flag.

The warning resulted from the reported search yesterday of the Reich's Kamerun, a Spanish territorial waters off Cadix.

In Rome it was reliably reported Italy was delaying demobilization of the class of 1914 recruits and 200,000 troops were ordered to war gear.

Such steps, it was said, resulted from Italy's determination to present a strong front against the possibility the socialist regime would be victorious in the Spanish war.

The new aspects of both German and Italian attitudes toward a general European neutrality caused France to regard with pessimism the chances of completing her proposed pact of non-intervention in the Spanish civil war in which rebel forces seek to overthrow the present Madrid socialist government.

Rebel fascist forces were brought within 100 miles of Madrid on the northwest in an advance on the capital from Badajoz. Both sides claimed victory over Naval Moral.

The government troops said they pushed rebels back from the beleaguered city of Brun, on the Bay of Biscay.

A rebel broadcast, however, declared Francisco Franco, nearby had been taken from the government.

GREENIES TAKE 11-2 VICTORY OFF GOLD BUGS

Reynolds May Hurls 7-Hit Ball as Locals Tounce Goldsboro; Martins, Aces and Kinston Get Wins

The Greenies defeated Goldsboro, 11-2, yesterday behind the seventh-inning hurled by Reynolds May.

The Bugs' runs came in the second inning. Bradford, first up, homered. A single by Batten and Crisler's triple produced the other score.

The Greenies scored one in the first, on a double by Booser and a single by Ambler, and added two in the second when May tripled with two on. That proved enough to win, but the Greenies sewed things up in a big way by scoring seven times in the sixth. Homers by Babo, House and Booser featured the seven-run inning.

The fourth frame proved to be a very exciting inning. Sanford, of the locals, first man up—hit a high fly to left center which looked like an easy out. However, Bradford and Caldwell collided and were knocked out. Sanford circled the bases. The Bugs made a triple play in this frame to retire the side. With runners on first and second, May attempted to bunt, but Perritt snatched the ball before it hit the ground. Both runners were caught unawares. The ball traveled to second first and to complete the triple play.

Greenville plays Tarboro here tomorrow afternoon at four o'clock.

Score by innings: R. H. E. Goldsboro ... 020 000 000—2 7 4 Greenville ... 120 107 000—11 14 1 Webb, Perritt, Kirkland and Williams; May and Latham.

Eagles Continue to Win.
Kinston, Aug. 20.—It was Charlie Keller Day at the local park yesterday. The University of Maryland athlete, a member of the Eagles for the second season, received a watch presented by Harry Black, a fan, and an ovation from an overflow crowd. Keller responded by hitting a double on his first official trip to the plate.

The Eagles won the ball game from Tarboro, 13-7. They reached three pitchers for 15 hits. The visitors bumped Pep Rambert of the locals for a higher total—they made 16 safeties—but his mates saved him such a strong lead that Rambert never was in real danger. It was his eighth consecutive win and his 11th of the season.

Morris hit a homer, triple and a single to beat 750 and lead the winners. Bragan, visiting third-sacker, hit a triple and two singles for five. Basin hit a double and two singles for four.

When the trans-Atlantic plane service begins to operate, probably early next year:

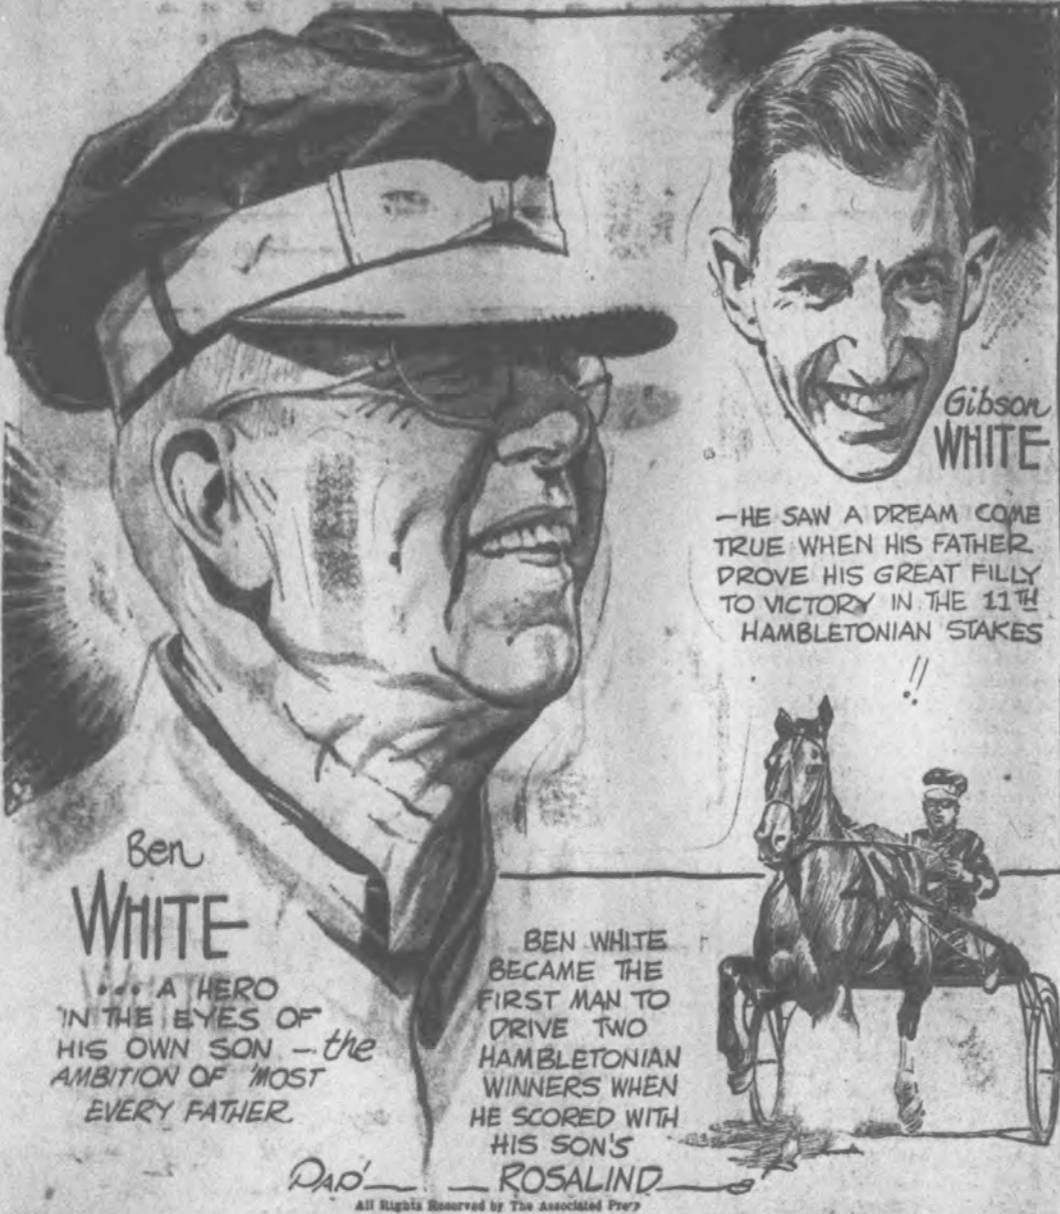

West-bound passengers will make the trip in 18 hours.

East-bound passengers will have to allow for 28 hours.

And yet, both trips will take 23 hours actual flying time.

ONE HAPPY FAMILY

SPORT SLANTS

Mel Ott has been pumping home runs into the right field of the Polo Grounds for so long that New York fans take him for granted. They have grown used to seeing him cock his hat and let fly for a homer in the 11 years he has been with the Giants. In spite of his flair for hitting 4-baggers Ott never has been a flashy player, nor one to capture the fans' imagination. They appreciate that he is a fine ball player, out there doing a fine job day in and day out, and they are very fond of him. But somehow they just let it go at that— seldom do they rave about him.

The recent "at home" spurt the Giants flashed found the spotlight focused on Ott. It was his big bat that sent his mates over the plate with the runs that spelled victory and put the Giants back in the thick of the pennant fight. The Giants scored 17 victories out of 21 during the home stay, thanks, in great measure, to the whole-sale production of home runs. That short right field must have something to do with the Giants' success, for Bill Terry's crew won 40 out of 56 games played at home.

Weights Only 170 Pounds.
Ott's record as a long-distance hitter is all the more interesting when one notes that while he is well built, he does not shape up anything like Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Fox and other home-run hitters. Mel scales around 170 pounds, against the 250-pounder that furnishes the popular conception of what a home-run hitter should look like. Yet there isn't a man in the league who can boast a record the equal of Ott's. In 10 years at the Polo Grounds (not including the present season) Mel has paled out 242 4-baggers.

Mel's batting average seems to hover around the .320 mark. His lifetime average in the majors is about that. But that average does not begin to show his real value to the team on the offense. His runs come very often when they do.

Can Play 'Em Off The Boards.
His work on the defense is just about on a par with his work at the plate. So efficiently does he go about his outfielding chores that he attracts little attention. Still, there are plenty of fans who delight in sitting in the rightfield area just to watch Mel play liners off the fence. He takes his hat off to no one when it comes to figuring how to play the liners as they come skidding crazily off the boards.

At 27, Ott is playing his eleventh full season with the Giants. It seems like but a couple of seasons ago that the pink-cheeked youngster of 16 reported to the Yats John McGraw. He was a catcher then. McGraw looked him over, paying particular attention to his heavy-set legs and decided squatting behind the plate would show him up too much. The outfield was the place for Mel, McGraw decided. Ott's natural swing at the plate indicated to McGraw that the youngster ought to develop in a great hitter. He was not disappointed on that score. Nor was he ever sorry that he chose Ott into the outfield.

Mel, too, is grateful that McGraw decided to make an outfielder out of him. Chances are that Mel would have been about through as a big league catcher by now instead of just arriving at the peak of his career.

Zon Robinson Added To Faculty of W.F.C.

Wake Forest, Aug. 20.—Zon Robinson, former dean of men at Campbell college, has been recently added to the Wake Forest college staff, according to a recent announcement by President Thurman Kitchin.

Mr. Robinson will teach courses in argumentation and public speaking and coach debating. In this work he replaces Dr. J. R. Quisenberry, whose death last month created a vacancy on the staff.

Also, he will serve as secretary of religious activities in the college and educational director in the Baptist church.

For the past two years Prof. Robinson has been dean of men, teacher of history and debate coach at Campbell college, Bales Creek. Last year he served as president of the North Carolina Speech and Forensic Society.

Graduating at Wake Forest with honors in 1923, he was a member of the Golden Bough, college honor society; president of the Eusebian literary society, the Statesmen's club; and a member of Chi Epsilon, Phi Kappa Phi and Pi Kappa Delta. DROUGHT MAY INCREASE FARM TENANCY IN IOWA

Ames, Iowa—(AP)—Dr. Ranier Schickels, state land planning specialist, says he believes the trend toward farm tenancy in Iowa will be speeded up this year by the drought.

"Farmers throughout the state with whom I have talked," he says, "foresee an increasing number of farm losses by owner-operators, most marked in the southern counties increasing the trend towards tenancy."

FARMER PLOWS DEEP AND BEATS DROUGHT

Augusta, Ga. (AP)—Plow deep and beat the drought, is Cotton Farmer S. O'Connor's formula for a successful planting of the staple.

He forecasts a bale-a-acre yield from this 14 acre despite the drought year.

"I plowed as deeply as possible," he said, "and, as a result, when my cotton began to grow the roots penetrated into moisture storages."

Plan To Complete Road Resurfacing Project This Fall

Approximately 500 Miles of Highway Damaged Last Winter to Be Repaired Under Plan

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—The repair and resurfacing of approximately 500 miles of highways, including most of those which were badly damaged by last winter's cold weather and freezes, will be completed this fall, Chairman Capu M. Waynick of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, said today.

Already some 500 miles have been completed and work is now progressing as rapidly as possible on the projects which have not yet been finished.

When the entire 500 miles have been completed, the cost will be about $3,500,000.

"Because so much of this work is being done in short stretches of from a few hundred feet to a few hundred yards, it is difficult for the public to realize that by fall the total repair and resurfacing work will amount to about 500 miles," Waynick said.

"This resurfacing, of course, is in addition to the new surfacing which has been put down on new roads, which comes under the heading of betterments. As a result of this work, we are convinced that by fall the people of the state are going to find the highways in better condition than they have been in many years."

There has been some complaint because all of the bad places in the roads have not been repaired as promptly as some thought they should be or because some entire stretches of roadway were not re-built immediately, Waynick said.

But he pointed out that neither the skilled labor or the type needed for surface treatment work nor the equipment was available to rebuild 900 miles of roadway within a few weeks time and that a certain length of time must elapse between the putting down of the various coats of surfacing.

Still another factor was that in many cases the road base had to be torn up and rebuilt before any new surfacing could be put down, all of which required still more time.

"It would have been a clear waste of time and effort to have put down new surfacing on old, worn out bases," Waynick said.

"For the surfacing would have gone to pieces again. As it is, we are trying to put down bases that will hold up in any weather."

GREENVILLE MARKET READY TO START SALES

(Continued from Page One) Jack Moye and Harvey Ward will be proprietors this season. They are succeeding Simon Moye, who retired at the end of last season.

These men are all experienced tobacco warehousemen, having been connected with the Greenville tobacco market for years.

Center Brick Warehouse has undergone many improvements. The following is the personnel for the coming season: Ray Oglesby, auctioneer, Jerry Gaylord, Lester L. Clark, Frank Whitehurst, Wiley Waters, Coy Smith and J. R. Morris floor men and solicitors; Robert S. Moye, the Melton Brothers, Vernon Bunting and W. S. Moye, Jr., are the book force; Fred Broadwell is leaf man.

Johnston Warehouse, located in the heart of Tobacco town, is to be operated this year under the management of J. M. Johnston. Mr. Johnston is a son of the late F. V. Johnston, who for years was connected with the tobacco industry in Greenville.

Since the close of last season many improvements and changes have been made to this popular warehouse.

Mr. Johnston has a very fine array of associates associated with him, who know the tobacco business from beginning to end. Mr. O. G. Rucker, sales manager, is a man that needs no introduction to the tobacco growers of eastern North Carolina as he has been closely identified with the business for many years.

Other members of his force include: Bob Leggett, auctioneer, Lawrence Hyman and Ervin Robbins, floor managers, Bill Redd, Charlie Stafford and Jimmy Poole, book force.

Webb's Warehouse, C. H. Webb, proprietor and manager, is well known to the tobacco trade of eastern North Carolina, having operated a warehouse here which bears his name for a number of years.

Associated with Mr. Webb this coming season will be W. L. Evansfield, who will be assistant manager and sales manager. Mr. Evansfield has been closely identified with the local market for the past seven years, and like Mr. Webb is well known among the farmers of this section. Last season he was con-ected with Mr. H. C. Sugg in the operation of Johnston's warehouse, as sales manager.

Webb's warehouse has recently undergone modern improvements to take care of the every need of the farmer this coming season, and is now ready for the opening on Tuesday, September 1st.

Mr. Webb has chosen the other members of the warehouse force with the greatest care and all include men of long experience in the tobacco business. Those connected with him this coming season include: Freeman Parrish, auctioneer, Willie Eason and Levy Stokes, floor managers, and W. E. Crisp, head bookkeeper.

Star Warehouse, owned and operated by G. V. Smith and B. E. Sugg, the oldest warehouse firm in Greenville, Mr. Smith and Mr. Sugg have been owners and proprietors of the Star Warehouse since 1913. During the early part of 1930 their warehouse was burned. Soon afterwards they began to erect, one of the largest and most modern warehouses in eastern North Carolina, for the sale of tobacco at auction.

Much of the progress made by the Greenville market during the past several years is due to the efforts of Smith and Sugg individually and collectively. There are numerous things connected with the operation of the New Star Warehouse that are responsible for the firm retaining its place among the leaders of the new bright belt. The personal attention of the owners to every pile of tobacco sold on their floor and a most efficient office force, has been a large factor in the success the business has attained. Their personnel for the coming season includes: Robert Nash Cooper, who has auctioneered for the past thirteen years at the Star Warehouse, Hugh S. Ragdale, F. A. Williams, Gordon Roberts, Thomas Turnage, Mack Harris, Glenn Harris, Bill Cleave, Ave V. Cleave, clerical force; B. B. Sugg, Jr., cashier, W. C. Williams and Duck Cleave are the floor managers.

Gorman's Warehouse will be operated this season by J. T. Timberlake, better known to the farmers of eastern North Carolina as "Tom." Ample lighting and parking facilities are provided growers so that tobacco is always sold under the best of conditions, and patrons experience no trouble in parking the cars and trucks or finding ample accommodations for their teams. Large and airy rest rooms have been provided for the comfort and convenience of patrons who desire to spend the night. Special accommodations have been set aside for the ladies, with rest rooms sufficiently spacious to take care of the greatest rush of the season.

Mr. Timberlake has associated with him an experienced and capable corps of employees, who will ever be alert to render the highest type of service to its patrons. His associates include: Dick Gorman, Stick Skinner, J. T. Barnhill, Edgar Duke and Jim Williams, with Shirley Morrow as auctioneer.

Harris Warehouse will be operated this season by Dick Rogers and R. E. Harris, Jr. This house was formerly known as Joyner warehouse. H. R. "Red" Rogers will be sales manager this season. Mr. Rogers has had 22 years of experience in the tobacco business.

The warehouse is not only one of the largest in the belt, but is one of the best lighted, enabling the conducting of sales on the darkest days with speed and facility.

The entire sales force is composed of practical farmers who have seen long service in the handling and selling of tobacco and this assures the growers of receiving unexcelled service at all times. Among those associated with Messrs. Harris and Rogers this coming season include: Billy Branch, auctioneer, J. J. Payne, C. L. Perkins, John S. Moore, Ernest Brown, C. T. Beaman, Julian Smith, Henry Gay and Lerman Porter, clerical force. Ed S. Taylor, Malcolm Hassell, E. R. Dudley, L. D. Burrow, and Pete Mendenhall, compose the floor force.

These ten warehouses, with their sixteen acres of well-lighted floor space, with modern rest rooms and camp rooms, and all other conveniences for the comfort of those who patronize the Greenville Tobacco Market, will be open for the sale of tobacco Tuesday, September 1st, with five sets of buyers.

The ten warehouses, nine factories, and several storages, are in a position to handle two and a quarter million pounds of tobacco daily for the 40,000 farmers of eastern North Carolina who sell on the Greenville Tobacco Market.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

Chapter 24 FAIRLY SAFE. "I'll go as soon as I've finished this one," said Carol. "If I quit now I won't be able to remember tomorrow what I meant to say today."

"Laura nodded. 'Suits me fine. Well—toodle-oo.' 'Goodnight.' She went back to the sheet before her.

The door opened and Blake came in and went to a filing cabinet. He saw her and raised an eyebrow.

"What are you doing here?" "Trying not to de-rail a train of thought. I'm leaving now."

"You'd better." He grinned suddenly. "I don't want the NRA on my neck."

"What about yourself?" "Oh," he drawled, "I'm an Executive. I don't count."

"I see." She slipped the sheets into a drawer and got up stiffly, realizing for the first time how tired she was.

He said quickly: "Wait a minute and I'll drive you home."

She hesitated, and wondered if he thought that was why she had lingered. He read the uncertainty and smiled.

"Oh, I know you're innocent. Come on."

In his car she relaxed, and reverted to her trick of absorbing sights and sounds. The streets were a cacophony of protesting brakes and roaring motors and the unintelligible shouts of newsboys.

In his car she relaxed, and reverted to her trick of absorbing sights and sounds. The streets were a cacophony of protesting brakes and roaring motors and the unintelligible shouts of newsboys.

Carol laid several typewritten sheets on her employer's desk, and tried to make her voice casual.

"Here are the first four. I thought it would be better for you to pass judgement before I'd done all of 'em wrong. Shall I wait, or will you read them and then talk them over?"

"I'll read them all first. I'll call you in a few minutes."

He picked up the first advertisement with considerable curiosity.

Blake read deliberately. When he had finished he put the pages aside, and reflected that they held the answer to his impulsive decision regarding Carol.

The ads were good: a few rough spots, of course, and a few changes in make-up; but her idea was sound and not threadbare. He rang for his secretary.

"Tell Miss Torrance I'd like to see her."

Carol came in, and he saw the dread in her eyes. He nodded reassurance.

"They're all right. Sit down and let's talk about them." He went through the ads carefully, suggesting changes and giving his reasons for each change.

"You can breathe now, you know. I think the job's fairly safe."

His approbation almost unnerved her. She said: "Once more—thanks!" and fed to her desk.

CORNELIA FARRAR looked now like a fashion illustration, but Carol's guess had been correct. They were able, at dinner on Friday, to pick up the threads snapped six years ago.

Before the consommé was finished they had left the preliminaries to friendship behind them.

Cornelia said lazily: "Of course I can guess you're here, and sympathize with you. It's the same reason why I'm working like a road-hound while there's still money in the family bank account."

Carol sighed. "Don't tell me you're drifting too."

"Oh, yes! I tried everything I knew. Being a debutante, and angling to get my engagement book a little fuller than anybody else's. After I'd filled the thing for six months I threw it in the fire and broke all the engagements. I went, it was Irma's business, not hers. She wasn't the philandering type either."

He drove slowly up Peachtree. "Here's Garbo, and Lionel Barrymore..."

"Let's see Garbo." They parked the car and plunged into the stream. Coolness breathed on them at the theatre entrance, and they went in and sat beneath hurrying clouds in an improbable blue and gilt sky.

DARKNESS had dropped on the city when they came out, and the city fought the darkness with a barrage of colored lights. Red lights that winked seductively, white lights that shone steadily, green lights that chased each other like squirrels in a cage.

The air was milk-warm, and the throngs had thinned; had slowed their pace and lowered their voices to match the sense of time suspended that occurs between day and night.

Blake said lazily: "Well, where do we eat?" "Wherever you say. Let's go where it's quiet."

They walked slowly to the Merrimac, and found the grill fairly cool and almost deserted. Carol ordered

WANTS PROFIT FOR COUNTIES. Solon Thinks Units Should Have Liquor Benefits

Representative Cooper said that he thought it very likely that the 1937 general assembly would enact a statewide enabling law which would permit those counties which now have liquor stores to keep them and which in addition would permit any counties that wanted liquor stores to hold local option elections and let the people decide.

Cooper, who was a member of the 1935 general assembly and who helped materially in getting the New Hanover and Pasquotank county liquor laws enacted under which 17 counties and two townships now have legal liquor stores, indicated he would fight to the last ditch to keep liquor revenue in the counties when he returns to the house in the 1937 general assembly.

DEWEY SNARES MANY RACKETS

New York Prosecutor After "Big Shots" Only

By CHARLES NORMAN
New York, Aug. 18.—(AP)—A young man from Owosso, Mich., who came here to study singing and law, and turned to law exclusively, heads New York City's vice and racketeering probe.

He is Thomas E. Dewey, credited generally with the first prosecution and conviction of a big-shot gangster on a felony charge in 20 years. As special prosecutor he sent Charles "Lucky" Luciano and his lieutenants to jail after trial in a state court on their racket crimes.

Thirty-four years old, tall from a few days' boating—he has not had a regular vacation in two years—brown-haired and brown-eyed, with a black mustache emphasizing his youthfulness, Dewey talks calmly in a deep "courtroom voice," and something of the zeal that fired Lexow, Jerome and Seabury, past prosecutors against vice and crime here, lights up his face.

Observers say he has brought a new method of criminal investigation to bear. Ballyhoo is out. No witness is named, no testimony made public, until he steps into a courtroom. In addition, Dewey is after the top men, not their hirelings, in the many-millioned industrial and miscellaneous criminal rackets of the metropolis.

A businesslike atmosphere pervades the fourteenth story Woolworth building offices of Dewey and his assistants. Appointed a year ago after a grand jury barred District Attorney William E. Dodge from viewing its findings, Dewey at once organized a staff of 20 lawyer aides, nine investigators, 10 accountants, four process servers, a battery of stenographers and a picked squad, numerically secret, of young detectives. Half a dozen young lawyers also serve, without compensation.

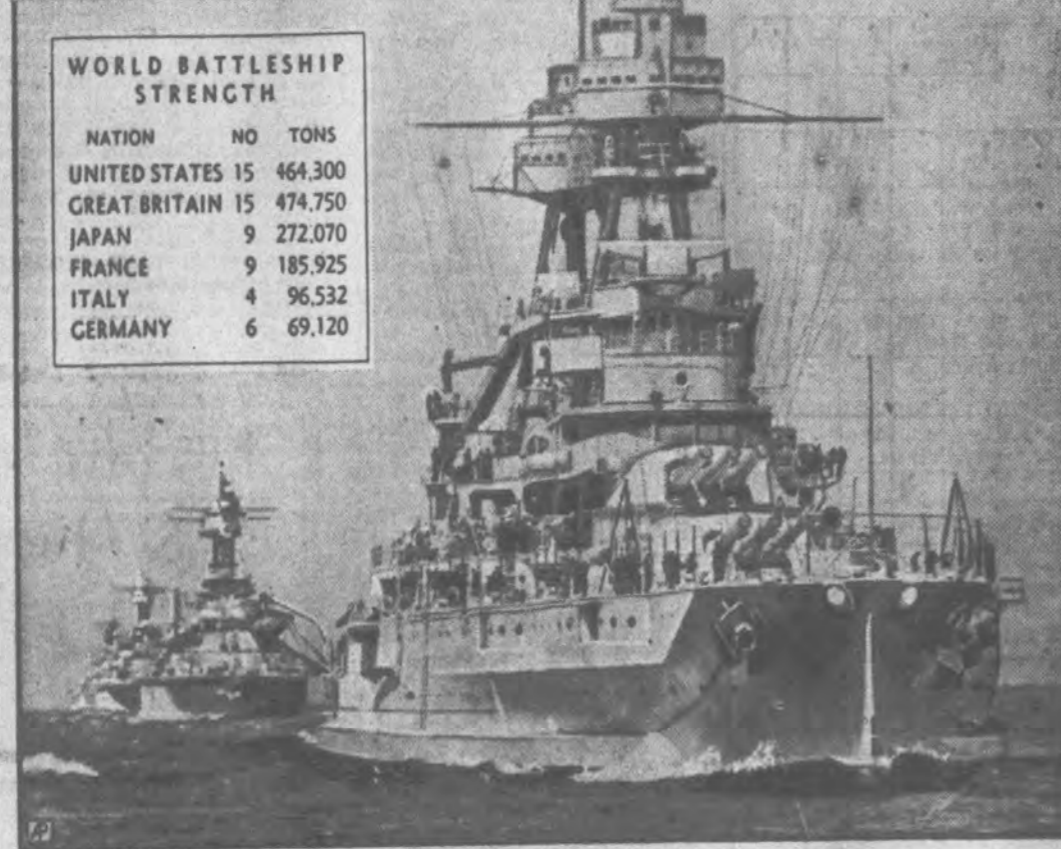

Not infrequently his work keeps him an average of 16 hours daily in his office, and his staff, including stenographers, remain with him. A law meeting with George Z. Medalla, United States attorney, started him on the road to his present post. At the age of 29 he was placed in charge of 50 lawyers as chief assistant to Medalla. Before this he never had tried a criminal case. He assisted in the prosecution of Charles E. Mitchell and later, as federal attorney himself, succeeded his chief, Kent Wasey Gordon to jail.

OVERSEERS GUARD EVERY BUILDING AS ITALY PREPARES FOR AIR RAIDS

In time of peace, Italy prepares for air attacks. Overseers must make certain that all buildings could be prepared quickly to withstand a sudden bombing. Among their duties is to see that tenants are ready to seal windows with a grease-soaked cloth. When an attack comes, they are to lead occupants to safety.

NEW BALLOTS DENY DRIVERS CARRY NAMES AUTO PERMITS

Presidential Candidates to Be Named On Tickets

Raleigh, Aug. 20.—The names of the candidates for president and vice president will appear on the presidential ballots in the November election for the first time in the history of North Carolina, while the names of the presidential electors will be left off. Secretary Raymond C. Maxwell of the State Board of Elections pointed out today.

So when the voters go to the polls this fall, they will receive tickets bearing the names of Roosevelt and Garner as the Democratic candidates for president and vice president and of London and Knox as the Republican candidates. Instead of the long list of presidential electors, as in the past, the ballots will have a foot note informing the voters that by voting for the party candidates they are automatically voting for the 13 presidential electors of that party.

Due to the fact that the names of Franklin D. Roosevelt will appear on the ballots in this election, a good many party leaders believe that he will get more votes than ever before, since it will be almost impossible to confuse voters. Only one mark in the square at the top of the space over the names of Roosevelt and Garner will be needed to vote the Democratic presidential ticket. Some estimate that Roosevelt will get between 50,000 and 100,000 more votes under this new system than if the old plan of voting for presidential electors had been retained. Four years ago there were three lists of electors of 13 names to each list on the presidential ballot—one list each for the Democratic, the Republican and Socialist parties. The new plan in effect this year will permit a very small and compact ballot, easy to mark and vote. It will also save the State Board of Elections a lot of money as compared with the cost of ballots in the past.

The adoption of the new type of presidential ballot, containing the names of the candidates instead of the electors, was secured in 1933 at the request of Secretary Maxwell of the State Board of Elections, who pointed out that other states had adopted the plan with great success, especially those states in which voting machines were used.

want to put a party in the field" is not enough. Some states require long petitions representing a certain percentage of the vote as a means of party entry. Often a certain proportion of the signers must come from every county, or at least every congressional district. And there are other hurdles.

Labor's non-partisan league headed by George L. Berry, one of President Roosevelt's New Deal administrators, is looked upon in many quarters as the nucleus of such a party. The league, as well as John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, this year is supporting President Roosevelt, but without any commitments beyond 1936.

Some suggest the labor movement may attempt to take over the Democratic party but such a proposition calls up the difficulty of merging the viewpoint, say, of John L. Lewis and such figures as Senator Glass of Virginia, Senator Tydings of Maryland, Secretary of State Hull, and Owen D. Young.

More likely to most political eyes appear an attempt to consolidate the labor vote into a third party with enough strength—and permanency—to put a new division in the house and senate more sharply defined than the present progressives or farmer-labor members who usually sit with one or the other of the major parties.

To have two "atlas" through the legislative chambers to separate Republicans, Democrats and a third party would present a picture strange to American eyes although familiar enough in European governments.

Just what would happen if a third party obtained a "balance of power" in congress how would a president from the ranks of one of the older parties deal with this

Colored Farmer Says Pasture Paying Good

Raleigh, Aug. 20.—"This is the best investment I have made on my farm during the past ten years." That's what Walter Corbett, Alliance county Negro farmer, thinks of the pasture he seeded in 1928. "I thought once of plowing it up this spring," he told J. W. Jeffries, Negro farm agent of the State College extension service, "but decided to leave it alone." "Now I think even more of it and next spring I'm going to seed pasture grasses on a field adjoining it." His pasture was seeded with orchard grass, herd grass, Kentucky blue grass, Dallas grass, white clover, and lespedeza. Even though it is comparatively small, Jeffries said, it is one of the most luxuriant, efficient pastures he has ever seen. He is urging other farmers of the county to see for themselves the value of a good pasture, well seeded on fertile soil. "Our farmers need to put more of their land in soil-protecting grass crops," Jeffries stressed, "and there's nothing like a heavy stand of pasture to hold the soil in place." "Then, also, we need to raise more cattle and other livestock, and we can develop our stock industry while conserving the soil. In fact, soil conservation and stock-raising go hand in hand."

Prisoners Scrub, Get Freed. Charleston, W. Va.—(AP)—Kanawha county prisoners received a promise of "the finest meal you have ever had" after Sheriff R. C. Andrews looked over the almost spotless jail on which the prisoners had worked with scrub brushes and soap for three weeks. Contrary to general belief, beavers do not use their flat tails in their extensive building operations.

When I say Kessler's is fine-tasting, good-tasting whiskey, you can rely on that statement. N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Aug. 20.—(AP)—Although a few specialties including aviation issues managed to push ahead in today's stock market, most of yesterday's rallying leaders were inclined to fall back into a do-nothing phase. There was little change in the optimistic business picture but bankers noticed a disposition among their customers to take profits and wait for a more pronounced buying stimulus. After a brisk opening dealings turned apathetic.

The 184 tone was easy. Transfers approximated 1,000,000 shares.

To Issue Ruling On Discrimination Act

Washington, Aug. 20.—(AP)—A statement explaining provisions of the Robinson-Patman price discrimination law, enacted at the last Congress, was issued today by the Federal Trade Commission.

Already the commission has received several hundred inquiries regarding the act and has instituted a score of investigations into complaints that it is being violated.

"The new act includes some important provisions that are in the nature of extensions of the principle of non-discrimination," the act.

"Allowances for advertising and sales promotion work are declared unlawful unless they are made available on proportionately equal terms to all customers who compete with one another."

WINDMILL HATS STIR FALL FANCY

The new windmill hat a headliner of the coming season, is attractive from both front and side.

By ADELAIDE KERR
 New York—(AP)—Lilly Dache's new windmill hat is one of the smartest advance fall models seen around town. Fashioned in keeping with the trend for striking chaques, it is made of black panne velvet—the four arms of the windmill outlined with crisp black net.

The Spanish revolution has influenced the same designer to create a series of glamorous hats reminiscent of the dark eyed beauties of Seville. One is of black felt, fitting the head like a cap and rising in a sharp ridge like a dancer's comb with a mantilla veil floating down the crown and over the eyes. Another, fashioned like a treader's hat, has gold and red coils on the side over the ears.

Persian hats hold a big place in Madame Dache's collection of fall models. Black cone toques are finished next the face line with plentiful rolls of silk jersey or ribbed satin and a deep green velvet toque has a full braided roll of green, copper and Persian gold velvet forming a halo effect next the face.

Hats inspired by the characters of Moliere's plays are also seen. They have high peaked crowns, roll brims and are finished with a brilliant or frich feather trim in front and a draped chenille veil.

State Could Secure Help For Vocational Education

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Aug. 18.—With people in every section of the state clamoring for more vocational education in the high schools and with the Federal government making available more and more funds to help vocational education, there is every reason to believe that greater emphasis is going to be placed on teaching children how to do things than merely about things in North Carolina, if the forthcoming general assembly will only make the appropriations needed to match these Federal funds, according to Director T. E. Browne of the division of vocational education of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Director Browne has just returned from a conference on vocational education in Washington, where the operation of the new George-Deen law was explained to state superintendent and vocational education directors.

The new George-Deen law, enacted by the last congress, sets up a fund of $14,200,000 a year for an indefinite period, to be distributed among the various states to help them increase their vocational education facilities. Of this fund, North Carolina is entitled to $498,851 a year, in addition to its present grant of $192,903 a year under the Smith-Sughes Act, and in which it is now participating, Browne explained. This new amount of $691,754 a year will not become available until July 1, 1937, but will continue indefinitely after that time. Another advantage of this new law is that from 1937 until 1943, the states will have to match this fund only 50 cents on the dollar instead of dollar for dollar, so that it will only be necessary for the general assembly to appropriate $249,425 for the state to get the entire $498,851 and have a total of $748,276 available for the teaching of more vocational subjects in the state, such as agriculture, domestic science, woodworking, handicrafts, automobile mechanics and so forth. It will enable boys and girls who do not want to go to college or who cannot go to college to earn good livings.

"With the Federal aid now available for vocational education in North Carolina, we can have a total of $1,132,082 to use in expanding our work if the general assembly will only appropriate $491,742," Browne pointed out. "For the appropriation of less than half a million dollars by the state will make available almost three quarters of a million dollars in Federal money, or a total of $739,230. We are hoping that the new assembly will see the importance of more vocational education in our schools and make this money available."

The school patrons are becoming more and more vocational education minded in North Carolina and are asking, fit not actually demanding, more facilities for the teaching of domestic science, manual training, wood-working and other skilled trades, Browne said. They are realizing that it is wasted time for children who do not intend to go on to college to be forced to take the college entrance courses in high school and that what these children need is training in some trade that will help them earn a living without having to go to college, he maintained. For out of some 250,000 children in the high schools of the state, only about 23,000 a year graduate of which only about 8,000 go on to college, leaving 20,000 who never go any farther.

cial exhibits will be the farm entries, according to Dr. F. E. Miller, of the State Department of Agriculture, who is in charge of agricultural exhibits. He reported much interest in the premium list, which has been broadened and increased to $15,000, which is 15 per cent more than the fair offered last year. Particularly interesting displays are being planned by the 4-H clubs, Dr. Miller said.

Work is about finished on the new fire-proof exhibit hall which will replace the structure destroyed by fire two years ago. The building will provide 12,250 square feet of space, nearly twice as much as the old structure contained. When completed, it will have cost nearly $30,000.

Space in the new exhibit hall is limited to exhibits by State and Federal agencies. Practically every State division will have a display, and several of the Federal government units will be represented. Space has already been reserved for the Rural Resettlement Administration and the Federal Housing Administration, and a display is being planned by W. P. A.

More Conferences Arranged Discuss Drought Situation

Prolonged Dry Spell Also Expected to Figure in Presidential Talk With Committee

Hyde Park, Aug. 20.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arranged further drought conferences today after one New Deal official had estimated Congress probably would be asked to bolster current relief funds now pouring into the heat and drought ravaged west.

Secretary Wallace, who is expected to accompany the President on his tour of the drought regions starting from Washington on next Tuesday night, was down for a morning conference at the summer white house.

The prolonged drought spell also was to figure in a presidential talk with the executive committee of the National Grange, headed by Louis J. Taber.

It was Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief director, who predicted Congress "in the long run" would have to be asked for money to replenish 1936 relief funds now going for WPA jobs and resettlement administration loans and grants to the drought victims.

The relief head told newspapermen $5,000,000 a month may be needed to provide WPA jobs in the drought emergency, that 90,000 persons already were at work and eventually from 120,000 to 150,000 would require jobs assistance probably through the winter.

ADULTS GO TO SCHOOL TO LEARN THE TWO 'R'S'

Clemson, S. C. (AP)—The school bell pealed late in the lives of 394 adults attending the Opportunity school conducted during July and August by Clemson college.

Many of the students, administrators officials say, were prompted to come to the college campus by ambitions to learn to read and write.

Credit of the students is Mrs. Lucy E. Evers, 70, a second-year teacher.

Cecil Hart, deposed as manager of the Les Canadiens hockey club four years ago, has been signed again for the coming autumn.
