HITCH-HIKING RABBIT DISRUPTS AUTO JAUNT

Perry, Okla.—(AP)—A frightened cottontail in a moving automobile with six persons can kick up quite a commotion.

The surprised bunny hopped suddenly into the front seat of an automobile on a county road near here.

After floundering around up front, the rabbit jumped to the back square in the face of Mrs. Antone Plisek and scratched her severely before bounding to the front seat again.

R. A. Plisek, driver, finally captured the crazed animal. He maintained control of the machine in spite of the excitement.

EFIRD'S OPENS THISSATURDAY

Greenville to Have New, Modern Department Store

Another modern and up-to-date department store will open in Greenville Saturday when Efird's will begin business at its stand on the West side of Evans street between Third and Fourth.

The building has been completely remodeled and equipped throughout with the latest fixtures.

The entrance to the store provides room for elaborate window displays.

On the first floor will be located the men's department, shoes for both men and women, the silk department, gloves, notions, etc.

Shelves, counters and racks run all the way back on each side of the first floor.

The office will be located on the mezzanine floor, while the women's ready-to-wear department will be on the second story.

Mr. J. Morris, formerly with the Durham store, has been chosen as manager of the establishment.

He declared today it would be the aim of the store to provide "everything for the entire family—from head to foot."

Mr. Morris said that a number of assistants would be employed to take care of the various departments, but did not say how many would be hired, saying it depended upon the number needed.

He added, however, that a trained corps of sales people would be on hand to take care of the patrons.

Officers Said to Have Intelligence Below Normal

Detroit, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Black legion was described by the Oakland county grand jury today as a terrorist organization with political ambitions which far outran the abilities of its members.

The report prepared by circuit judge George B. Hartrick of Pontiac was submitted as 12 men went on trial here for the black legion "execution" of Charles A. Poole.

"As conceived the black legion was a clan with a vengeance organized to accomplish its actions by force and violence if necessary; it was a black clan," said the judge.

Summary of the findings of the Oakland county grand jury investigation.

The report named 86 state, county and city employees as members of the hooded order but said:

"Certain it is that the men who are listed as officers of the black legion in Oakland county are not possessed of even average intelligence upon governmental affairs and the ordinary concerns of life. They do not possess the qualities necessary to attract men to their command."

The trial of 12 men accused of luring Poole, a young WPA worker to a lonely road May 12 and shooting him to death in punishment for false gossip that he had beaten his wife began in circuit court here today with preliminary steps, in the selection of a jury.

Forsyth superior court led the state in cases with 830. Wilson had 383; Edgecombe 211; Johnston 205; Pitt, 232.

Uncensored Estimates From Madrid Place Dead at 75,000 and 100,000

(By Associated Press)

Uncensored, careful estimates from Madrid today placed the dead in the first five weeks of civil war at between 75,000 and 100,000.

The wounded were estimated at 300,000.

Today, in the middle of the seventh week of war, air fleets and big guns of both the socialist government and the fascist rebels blasted new ruin and death.

The United States government, with one of its warships already the target for air bombs, moved to get all its vessels out of the danger area.

A rebel bombing fleet again crashed projectiles in Madrid streets while the government mapped a cabinet reorganization which would put a communist as well as the socialist "strong man," Indalecio Prieto, in ministry position.

Apparently there was little damage from the raid, but the first reports—censored stringently—were meager.

Although fascist hostages were chained in exposed places, rebels began a new bombardment from air and land at Irun on the northern coast. They said the exposure of the hostages was "monstrous" nevertheless.

Buildings, water and gas reservoirs and government defenses were smashed at Irun by bombing planes which the government said were German and Italian.

Field guns participated in the assault and the government said a land attack was thrown back.

Madrid's war ministry announced new successes in the Guadarrama mountains, north of the capital.

PARTY CHIEFS BEGIN DUTIES

Democratic Headquarters Opened in Raleigh Today

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—(AP)—J. Wallace Winborne, chairman, and Mrs. J. B. Spilman, vice chairman, opened state Democratic headquarters here today.

D. L. Ward of New Bern, newly appointed state secretary, and R. L. Thompson of Raleigh, publicity man, as well as four office staff members, also were on hand and a place was prepared for a representative of the young Democrats.

Thursday the first of the congressional district conferences will take place at Taylorsville at 11 o'clock.

Chairman Winborne predicted a Democratic victory this fall, but warned against over confidence in party ranks.

To Examine All Children Who Will Attend Schools

Service To Be Provided by Count Health Office Here

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, today announced a new health service in connection with the school health program.

With the approval of Supt. D. H. Conley of the county schools, and of Supt. J. H. Rose of the Greenville city schools, all school children will, beginning September 7th, be examined for contagious diseases, especially contagious skin diseases such as scabies (itch) pediculosis (parasites in the hair), etc.

For the protection of other children, such children are found to be infected will be excluded from school. In the case of scabies and pediculosis, all indigent children will be provided with proper treatment free of cost and the nurse will make home visits to see that treatment is properly carried out and the child returned to school at the earliest possible date.

Dr. Ennett stated that when he proposed this plan to Superintendent Conley and Rose, he found them in hearty accord. He declared this service not only protects the other child, but prevents unnecessary loss of school time by the excluded child.

"In the past, it has been not uncommon for a child with a bad case of itch to be out of school as much as two or three months at the time and in consequence, fall in his grade. A week should be the limit under the new plan," he declared.

Dr. Ennett said he believes this new health service should mean much in the school progress of this type of child.

RECEIPTS OFF DURING MONTH

Revenue Under July, But More Than In August Last Year

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—(AP)—North Carolina's revenue receipts during August totaled $6,223,805.81, a gain of $208,658.57 over August, 1935, but the general fund income for the first time in a number of months fell below the similar months of the preceding year.

The general fund receipts were $4,075,713.53, a drop of $16,901.48 under the $4,092,615.01 in August, 1935.

Inheritance, license, income and miscellaneous levies all fell short of the August, 1935, level, while franchise, sales, and beer taxes showed increases.

In the motor vehicle division receipts were $2,048,092.28, up $225,470.05 over the $1,922,622.23 in August last year.

For the first two months of the fiscal year total income was $14,194,620.99, compared with $10,155,729.29 a gain of 39.71 per cent.

Gus Langley Gets Complete Pardon From Ehringhaus

Governor Signs Pardon Exonerating Morristown, N. J., Man of Asheville Murder in 1932

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus signed a complete pardon August 5 for Gus Colson Langley of Morristown, N. J., who faced electrocution here for murder seven times, but formal issuance has been withheld pending receipt from New Jersey officials of information showing Langley has been of good conduct in recent months.

Parole Commissioner Edwin Gill revealed the governor's action today in a statement in which he expressed approval of the move at Asheville to have a bill introduced in the 1937 general assembly to pay $15,000 to Langley for the time he spent in prison and the work he did.

Last night in Morristown Langley said he had written the governor for a complete pardon and charged that justice in North Carolina "is based on a man's bank account."

Langley was convicted of the murder in Asheville on Sept. 27, 1932, in a filing station hold-up of Lonnie C. Russell.

Fair Grades Bring Prices Above 1935 At Opening Sales

BELT REPORTS GOOD AVERAGE

Prices Range From One to 45 Cents At 15 Markets

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Prices ranging from one to 45 cents were reported as millions of pounds of tobacco went on sale today in the 15 markets of North Carolina's new bright belt.

Early reports indicated growers were generally satisfied.

The bulk of the offerings were classed as the cheaper grades but some good types were sold.

At Goldsboro, the first 150 piles sold brought an average of about 21 to 22 cents a pound.

At Wilson about a million pounds was offered, with the first 75 piles averaging $21.50.

Washington's first sales sold at an average of about 28 cents per pound, but soon dropped down to an average of about 21 cents.

Williamston reported a 1/4¢ higher average, the first hour's sales having brought an average of approximately 23 cents a pound.

At Rocky Mount, where a million pounds was expected to be sold, prices ranged from two to 30 cents. An unofficial average of $22.65 was recorded for 330 pounds of first and second primings.

Last year's opening day price average was $19.85.

At Wendell, warehousemen said 200,000 pounds would be sold during the day. An average of 29 cents per pound was indicated, they said, with prices ranging from two to 45 cents a pound.

An estimated 900,000 to 1,200,000 pounds was on the warehouse floors at Winston when the selling began. Observers said the quality was better than for the average opening break.

Opening averages were expected to be 22 to 25 cents, warehousemen said, of three to seven cents higher than on the opening day last year.

There was good competition in the buying of the ripe, selected grades on the part of both domestic and foreign companies.

Up to $45 Per Hundred Paid for Best Grades Sold

LARGE PORTION LOWER QUALITY

Good Competition In Buying of Ripe Tobacco With Color on Local Floors

With offerings of more than a million pounds sales on the Greenville Tobacco Market got under way this morning with several thousand visitors here to witness the opening sales.

The price range was from one to 45 cents a pound with an estimated average of 21 cents for the day's entire sale.

Ripe tobacco with color were in good demand with prices higher than on last year's opening while there was little demand for the very common green grades.

The ripe grades with color sold from 22 to 45 cents a pound while the trashy grades were selling from four to six cents. There was a distinct division between the two price ranges with very little tobacco selling between 10 and 20 cents.

Tobacco on the ripe and good color side was practically all above the 30 cent mark while very little of the green type reached 10 cents.

The great quantity of the lower grades in the day's offerings was having its effect in keeping the day's price average down. Observers on the various warehouse floors estimated the day's average price to anywhere from 18 to 20 cents, indicating that when the figures are in the day's average price will be around 21 cents a pound.

There was good competition in the buying of the ripe, selected grades on the part of both domestic and foreign companies.

Large Number Pigs Shipped to County From Dry Areas

Twenty-Two Pitt Farmers Receive Total of 461 Pigs; More Available at Low Prices

Twenty-two Pitt county farmers have received 21,200 pounds of feeder pigs, averaging 80 pounds each, from the drought areas of Nebraska.

The pigs, 461 in number, cost about $10.75 per hundred pounds, the figure including the cost of the swine and transportation.

Each pig was double treated for cholera and the shipment arrived here without a one being lost.

The purchase was made by H. W. Taylor, swine specialist of N. C. State college, who went to Nebraska to select and ship the pigs.

Taylor said there were some good breeding stock in the shipment and advised farmers to keep this type to supply next year's crop.

He said that cows were being sent to the butcher in large numbers in the Western states, indicating the market will continue good throughout the season.

Farmers wishing to secure additional pigs may do so by getting in touch with the County agent's office and placing their order earlier than Friday morning.

Taylor will remain in Nebraska for about two more weeks. Farmers desiring to secure pigs will be required to make a deposit covering the purchase price and cost of shipment.

BEAVERS USE LIGHT TO WORK OVERTIME

Junction, Tex.—(AP)—John Tanner, who operates a 1,213 acre irrigated farm near here, recently cut a hole in a beaver dam on his place on the South Llano river.

He placed an electric light at the point, believing beavers would not work at night to repair the dam. They kept on working and filled in the hole.

Tanner took down the light, saying he was not going to furnish electricity for beavers to work overtime.

RUNNING FOR CONGRESS HELD BAD AS SPEEDING

Dallas, Texas.—(AP)—A man who was charged with speeding protested in city court to Judge King Williamson.

"I might just as well have been accused of running for congress as speeding,"

The judge nodded sympathetically.

"Running for congress or being accused of it would be terrible," he said. "Case dismissed."

Judge Williamson had just returned to his duties on the bench after an unsuccessful campaign for congress for this district.

SMOOTHING: The Roosevelt administration has taken extraordinary pains to prevent the Japanese spy scare from causing bad diplomatic blood between Washington and Tokyo.

Secretary Hull has sat down hard on hot-heads who insisted that Japanese purchasers of naval documents be publicly censured.

In his quiet way the Secretary of State has let Ambassador Saito understand how he feels about the situation.

Capt. Tamon Yamaguchi, naval attaché at the Japanese Embassy, will soon be recalled to Tokyo. There will be no unseemly haste in the matter, but this officer will probably leave Washington before ex-Commander John Farnsworth faces trial in October on a charge of selling navy secrets to the Japanese.

Tokio is cooperating most pleasantly to forget the unfortunate affair. Two naval attaches named in the Farnsworth indictment were called back home some time ago and will not appear in the witness box.

Capt. Yamaguchi's expected departure will make it impossible for him to testify on his instructions to subordinates in the matter of collecting useful information.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE
 A New Novel by Martin Shaw

SYNOPSIS: Carol realises that although she has tried not to fall in love with her employer, Blake Thornton, that is exactly what she has done. And, he loves her. But Blake is married to a selfish woman, years older than he, who will not divorce him, and there seems little that they can do about the matter. Carol just has been soaked early in the morning by a telephone call from the husband of one of her college friends, obviously in distress.

Chapter 34 DISASTER

"THEY'VE just taken little Hal to the hospital to be operated on, Mastoid..."

The word reverberated in her sleep-clogged mind. Mastoid. She whispered, "Oh, Harry..." and was silent.

Marge—wanted to know if you'd come and sit with her while they operate. I'll have to go back and stay with Dollie until the girl comes. It's after five now..."

"Of course I will! Where are you?"

"St. Martin's. Would you take a taxi? I'll come back here as soon as I possibly can."

"Of course. But wouldn't you rather have me stay with Dollie so you can be with Marge?"

"No, I'll stay at home." She guessed that the blow had so staggered him that he wanted to be sure of Dollie.

"I'll be there inside half an hour." She hung up the receiver and snapped on a light, then called a taxi before she began to dress.

The taxi was waiting when she came down ten minutes later. At St. Martin's she switched her girl said: "Third floor, sitting-room at the end of the corridor..." and she ran for the elevator.

Marge was a small frozen figure huddled into a lumpy couch. She whimpered: "Carol!" and began to cry.

Carol sat down and took her in her arms. "Hold it! Don't do that, darling." She sat still, holding Marge tightly. "Have they—started yet?"

HUMANS AT FAULT

In a recent study of American highways, with particular attention paid to the relation of roads to safe driving, the magazine Fortune said: "The cold fact is that traffic today is a combination of an eighty-mile-an-hour car in the hands of a twenty-mile-an-hour driver struggling to adjust itself to a thirty-mile-an-hour road."

There is little we can do about the car in this case—its speeds will continue to increase, and the automotive engineers have done wonders in improving the "safety factor," brakes, lights, steering mechanisms and body construction approach perfection.

There is something we can do about the highway, as the Fortune article shows. It says that half of the roads of the country are obsolete. It points out that engineers have devised the model highway of the future—a road with over-and-under passes at intersections, with a wide dividing island down the center to prevent head-on crashes, and with separate lanes for slow and fast traffic. Such highways will be built—but their cost is gigantic, technical problems are involved, and it will be many years before the mileage of such super highways will amount to much in relation to the total mileage of all roads.

So in the meantime, about all we can do about the automobile accident problem is to "work on" the twenty-mile-an-hour driver with his eighty-mile-an-hour car. We must revise and make more stringent our licensing laws—it is an undeniable fact that a very high per-

At nine she called Blake.

"A few minutes ago." The gates were down, and Marge found momentary relief in words. "He's complained of earache for two days, and I took him to Dr. Howard yesterday. He said to watch it carefully and let him know as once if the pain got worse..." He snaked up about half-past three, screaming, and when I called Dr. Howard he came right out, and we brought him here..." Her voice faded.

"Then you must have gotten hold of it promptly, and that's the main thing."

She wondered if that was true. She knew nothing of the way it mastoid, but the words had a confident, comforting sound.

"HAVE you had anything to eat?"

Carol demanded.

"Oh, no. I—it would make me sick."

"Not coffee. I'm going and see if I can't rustle some."

She found a young nurse who said, Yes indeed; she would see that they had coffee right away.

Minutes stumbled past. Coffee came, and inside and outside the hospital the world stretched and yawned and made noisy preparations for another day. Sunlight stole between two walls and poured its pale gold on the floor at their feet. At intervals Marge asked from the loneliness of her anguish:

"What time is it?" and her voice was small and unmodulated, like a child's.

"Twenty-five minutes of eight."

"He said it would take about two hours, probably." She turned to stare at the doorway. "Harry ought to be here before long. I wish I had my knitting; I was making him a sweater to wear to kindergarten..."

Harry came a few minutes later, looking gray and drawn, walking unnecessarily on tiptoes. He went to the couch and put his arms around Marge, and Carol got up and stood at the window with her back to them.

"Shall I clear out now?" she asked without taring.

"Please don't," Harry said. "Unless you think you really ought to. If he—stands it all right—I'll have to keep two appointments this morning."

Business as usual. Because Carol knew, he would need his commissions more than ever, to cope with all this. Well, having to carry on would perhaps be better than this.

A SOUND in the doorway brought them to their feet, white-faced and silent and questioning. Dr. Howard stood there, dragging a white cap from his head.

"So far so good," he said, and his steady voice sounded loud and clashing in the hushed room. "He went through it better than we could have hoped for. We got it just in time..."

Marge whimpered with relief, and Harry's arm tightened about her shoulders.

"How soon will we know anything?" he asked hoarsely.

"I can't exactly tell. He won't be out of the ether for some time—maybe an hour." He eyed them keenly. "Why don't you go home and get a hot bath and some breakfast?"

They stirred and signed. Harry said: "I guess we will do that. Thanks, Doctor."

In the car Marge said: "Carol, can't you come on home and have breakfast with us?"

She shook her head. "No. I'll get a bath and put my clothes on properly, and have breakfast downstairs in the tea-room. Would you like for of Nations and intervention in the Spanish civil war. Uncle Sam declined politely on both occasions. But State Departmenters are afraid the principle will be revived at the forthcoming Buenos Aires conference.

Two developments account for this change of heart. In several countries, notably Peru, the Japanese are following up economic penetration with an infiltration of immigrants. The day may arrive when these nations will need strong moral backing in resisting Japanese advances. The other reason for greater dependence on Uncle Sam is the threat of another European conflagration. It's driving Latin-Americans into Yankee arms.

PERSONAL: Democratic and Republican women have staked off a battlefield for themselves in the 1936 presidential campaign. They have contributed several novelties to politics, although they haven't yet publicized their plans.

Feminine G. O. P.-ers have conceived the idea of a "market basket" appeal. The scheme is to picture the rise in the cost of living under the Roosevelt administration. The ladies will traipse through urban districts with two baskets on their arms, ringing all doorbells and asking housewives to take a look. One basket will contain the amount of food or clothing which a 1933 dollar would purchase, while the other will be filled with the goods which a 1936 dollar would buy. The implication is obvious.

But the Democratic ladies have cooked up a counter exhibit. They will set pairs of children to ringing downalls. One youngster will wear the garments which the return to the farmer would permit him to purchase in 1933. The presumption is that this child will be appealingly naked. The second will go fully clothed because of the producer's increased purchasing power in 1935. The idea is to convince the housewife that unless the farmer can buy the shoes, dresses and hats her husband manufactures, he'll go back to the breadlines. Leave it to the ladies to get personal in their politics.

SHIFT: Frances Perkins is supposed to be scheduled for a quick exit from the New Deal stage in the event of FDR's reelection. She might step out before November if it were not that her departure might prove costly in certain feminine and social welfare circles.

Inside word has it that Mrs. Perkins will become a member of the International Labor Board, which supervises the industrial agency set up by the League of Nations. The Secretary of Labor recently made a personal investigation of the labor board's set-up at Geneva, and was so charmed by its performances that she delivered a speech to laudatory to be cabled back to such a non-League nation as the United States.

Miss Perkins has confided to friends that she would like a larger sphere of activity than her present post. Certain high-up New Dealers would be glad to gratify her ambition. The unconfirmed story is that Mayor LaGuardia may succeed her at defeated for reelection—or if he should decide not to seek a second

College Specialists Plan Garden Contest

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—A fall and winter garden contest to begin October 1 and continue through the winter until March 31, is announced by Miss Mary Thomas, nutrition specialist at State College.

Miss Thomas says the contest will be sponsored in each county of the State by the County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs with the president of the council and the county garden leader, assisted by the local garden leader in each club, directing the plan.

Monthly records of the vegetables growing in the home garden together with the servings on the family table are to be kept by each farm woman entering the contest. The efficiency of the garden measured by these records and other data will be judged in each county and the two gardens scoring highest will receive cash prizes of $5 and $2.50.

Miss Thomas says that four state prizes also will be offered amounting to $20, $12.50, $7.50 and $5 for first, second, third and fourth places. These awards will go to the county council of a county having the highest percentage of its total enrollment of active home demonstration club members enrolled in the garden contest and completing all the requirements.

A contest almost similar to this has been arranged for negro home demonstration club members and will be under the supervision of Mrs. Dazell Foster-Lowe, negro district agent, Miss Thomas says.

Funds used for the prize awards have been donated by A. G. Floyd, manager of the Chilean Nitrate of Soda Educational Bureau in North Carolina.

WHY WE NEED A PUBLIC LIBRARY

The modern public library believes that it should find a reader for every book on its shelves and provide a book for every reader in its community, and that it should in all cases bring book and reader together. This is the meaning of the great multiplication of facilities in the modern library—the lending of books for home use, free access to shelves, cheerful and home-like library buildings, rooms for children, cooperation with schools, interlibrary loans, longer hours of opening, more useful catalogues and lists, the extension of branch-library systems and of traveling and home libraries, coordination of work through lectures and exhibits—the thousand and one activities that distinguish the modern library from its more passive predecessor. — A. E. Bostwick, librarian, St. Louis.

PATROL KEEPS AFTER DUTIES

Checks on Drivers Whose License Been Revoked

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—Does the highway safety division or the highway patrol make any effort to keep track of the drivers who have been convicted of drunken driving and other offenses for which their licenses have been revoked and to see that they do not drive automobiles while the revocations are in effect? Or after a driving permit has been revoked is that the end of it? These questions have been asked by both individuals and newspaper editors recently following the incident in Raeford, Hoke county, where the judge of the recorder's court gave a convicted drunken driver a permit to drive his car after 90 days, even though the highway safety division had revoked his driving license for one year, as the law decrees. But when this driver was brought before Superior Court Judge R. Hunt Parker he was not only sentenced to 18 months on a second charge of drunken driving but given four months more on the roads for driving while his license was revoked—a total of 22 months on the roads.

The answer to these questions from safety department and highway patrol officials is that a constant and careful check is kept on all of the nearly 6,000 drivers whose licenses have been revoked, chiefly for drunken driving, with the result that very few of these drivers can attempt to drive without being apprehended. They also indicated that the trouble in enforcing the drivers' license law was not any fault on the part of officers in arresting violators, but more with the courts, especially those which refuse to impose only the lightest of sentences.

"The name and address of every driver whose license is revoked for one year by the highway safety division is sent out to every highway patrolman, every chief of police and every sheriff every day," Director Arthur Fulk of the safety division said. "Each highway patrolman is required to keep a card index of every driver whose license has been revoked in his district."

"If these drivers whose licenses have been revoked are not already known to the highway patrolmen—though many of them are—they are required to learn where they live, their business and what they look like, so they can identify them if they should see them driving a car at any time. The result is that if any of these drivers do attempt to drive at any time, they cannot do so many times without being recognized and arrested by a highway patrolman. In addition, the other law enforcement officers are also on the lookout for them."

The public generally, the newspapers and local officers, are proving very helpful in preventing drivers who have had their licenses revoked from continuing to drive, according to Captain Charles D. Farmer of the State Highway Patrol. The publication of the names of drivers whose licenses have been revoked serves to let the public generally know they have lost their driving licenses, so that if they do try to drive, some one is very likely to report it, Capt. Farmer said.

"If a report is received that a driver whose permit has been revoked is driving, a patrolman is at once sent to watch this driver and to arrest him whenever he is discovered driving," Capt. Farmer said. "Local officers are also giving splendid cooperation and are either making direct arrests of drivers known to be driving after their licenses have been revoked, or are reporting such offenses to us. They are giving the best cooperation they have ever given in the enforcement of all the traffic laws, including the drivers' license law."

If a driver whose license has been revoked moves out of a city or county to another one, the patrolman in that district is required to find out where he moved to, so that the patrolman in the new city or county to which he moved may be notified to check his actions, Capt. Farmer also said.

THINK LIQUOR HERE TO STAY

Most Observers Feel Present Control To Be Continued

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. O. BASKEVILLE. Raleigh, Sept. 1.—County liquor control and county liquor stores, with the revenue remaining in the counties where the stores are operated, are here to stay for a long, long time, in the opinion of those who have been following the course of the hearings held last week before the state liquor fact-finding commission of which Victor S. Bryant of Durham, is chairman.

Regardless of what the commission may find out and recommend to the 1937 general assembly and in spite of Cale K. Burgess and the United Dry Forces, it is already evident that the prohibition myth has at last been completely exploded in North Carolina except among the "blind drays" and that enough other counties, in addition to the 18 now operating legal liquor stores, now want liquor stores with the result that the county liquor control forces will have a majority in both houses of the 1937 general assembly.

This does not mean that there is no chance for the enactment of a uniform state law which will permit any counties that want liquor stores to hold elections and let the people decide whether they will have liquor stores or not. It is generally agreed, however, that there is no chance for the setting up of uniform rules and regulations which will govern the operation of stores in all the counties which decide to have them. Such a law is regarded as entirely likely.

The legislature may even set up a single state board to make uniform regulations and purchase liquor for all the county stores, though many regard this as very doubtful. It may decide to abolish the present county liquor boards, all of whose members receive salaries from the revenue received from the sale of liquor, set up boards composed of present county officials to serve without any additional salaries. It is likely that a plan for joint state and county control will be proposed and possibly enacted. But the legislature will not enact any law removing either the control of the personnel or location of the stores or the revenue from the counties, most observers now agree.

The principal reason for this belief is that the counties, having found this new source of revenue which as enabled several to either decrease the property tax rate or prevent any increase, are not going to give up this new money without a fight, while other counties are going to cooperate with the "wet" counties in holding on to it and then in getting some for themselves. Advocates of the county control system with the liquor revenue left in the counties point out that the state has stripped the counties of almost every source of revenue except property taxes, and that the constitutional limits on property taxes have made it almost impossible for some counties to get enough revenue on which to operate unless some other source is opened up to them.

They maintain that just as much liquor, if not more, is sold in the so-called "dry" counties by bootleggers as is sold in the "wet" counties in their legal liquor stores, with the result that it is better to have the legal stores and let the counties get some revenue instead of letting all the money spent for liquor go into the pockets of the bootleggers. A good many here are already convinced that this argument is going to win out in the approaching general assembly, especially since between 40 and 50 more counties are going to want to have liquor stores.

Still another argument for county control is that there is greater incentive for more rigid law enforcement against the bootleggers and makers of illicit liquor than under state control, since the local officers are paid from county funds and realize that every time a pint or gallon of bootleg liquor is sold, the county loses that much in revenue.

The figures and records produced by the county liquor boards at the hearings before the liquor commission in Wilson and Wilmington last week showed that there had been no appreciable increase in drunkenness but that there had been a very definite decrease in bootlegging and the manufacture of illicit liquor in the counties which now have liquor stores.

Another reason why the county control system is being advocated by so many is because Cale Burgess and the "drys" are now opposing it and in favor of state control if they can't have prohibition, although in 1935 Burgess and his United Drys opposed state control and were responsible for institution of the present system by refusing to consent to any state-wide control plan. So now the prevailing belief is that county control and county liquor stores are here to stay.

Rural Power Line For Coast Island Awaits On Bridge

Stringing of Wires to Aid on Harker's Island Held Up Until Bridge Is Constructed

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 1.—The building of rural electric lines to aid on Harker's Island must await the building of a bridge from the mainland to the island and then the building of roads on the island, according to J. M. Grainger, engineer for the State Rural Electrification Authority who recently completed a survey of the rural electrification desires and needs of the 100 or more families which now live on this island with its population of from 300 to 1,000 people.

The island is in Core Sound some eight or ten miles northeast of Beaufort and is a part of Carteret county and at present is reached only by a ferry which operates in the daytime only. There is not an electric light, a telephone or a doctor on the island and only a few automobiles. Virtually the only occupation of the people on the island is fishing.

Many of the families on Harker's Island want electricity and fully half of the families there would sign up for it now, Grainger reported with almost all of them as potential customers. But the population of the island is too small to justify the cost of installing a small generating plant for the island or to warrant the laying of a marine power cable from the mainland, it was found. So about the only hope of getting electric lines on Harker's Island is to get a bridge and road to it first, Grainger maintains.

But the people on the island are not as anxious for a bridge and road as they are for electricity, although some of them want the road. But it has been a custom for years for no one on the island to ever lock a door at night, since everyone knows everyone else and since crime is virtually unknown on the island. A good many fear that if a bridge and road are built, that outsiders will begin to come over on the island, especially at night and that they will have to start putting locks on their doors, barns and boats. Some would frankly rather go without a bridge, roads and electric lights than have strangers and outsiders invade their island domain.

There are some residents of the island, however, who believe that if a bridge and roads should be built and electricity obtained, the island would develop and become popular as a fishing resort or as a resort for summer residents and that it would benefit just as Roanoke Island has benefited from bridge and roads. But this element is regarded as being in the minority at present.

Katharine Hepburn's golf score is in the low eighties.

EAGLES-ACES PLAY TWELVE INNINGS TO TIE

Score of 10-10 in 12th Inning When Game Is Called Because of Darkness; Play In Kinston Again Today.

Table with columns W, L, Pct. for Kinston and Ayden.

Kinston, Sept. 1.—The Eagles and the Aces battled to a 10-all tie in a 12-inning contest here today, the second contest of the championship series between the teams. Darkness ended the tilt.

The play-off of yesterday's tie game is being held in Kinston this afternoon, officials announced last night. After this contest, the teams will return to Ayden Wednesday to resume the series play there.

"Pop" Rumbert pitched the route for the Kinstonians and allowed a total of 14 hits, but held the Acesmen fairly well in the pinches. Three hitters went to the firing line for Ayden. Forest Glas, Wake Forest batter, started but was pulled in favor of Tessaue in the second. Tessaue, likewise, gave way to Woodr Upchurch who pitched the last 10-7-3 innings and allowed only seven hits.

Kinston scored all of its tallies in two rallies. Walks to Charlie Keller, Mewborn, Rumbert and Stonebraker, and hits by Humphrey, Michael, C. Keller, Morris, Mewborn and "Red" Keller scored seven runs in the second. Walks to Rumbert, Humphrey, Stonebraker's double, and a fielder's choice added the last runs in the eighth inning for the Eagles.

Warren Knowles' homer after Tabor had walked scored Ayden's first two runs. Humphrey by Johnson and Tabor added two more in the sixth. Ayden pushed over five runs in the seventh off hits by Mewborn, Parrish, Upchurch, Bousha and Tabor and a pair of Kinston miscues. Ayden tied the score in the ninth on Faust Johnson's second homer.

DOWNIE BROS. CIRCUS HERE THURS.

Daring Horsemen and Horsewomen Who Give Vim to Downie Bros. Circus Performance.

A circus without riding acts would be a deviation from the usual order. There is no feature of the old time circus which seems so essential to the completeness of the modern arena exhibition, or which has so persistently retained its popularity with the public. The daring equestrian, turning somersaults on the back of a swiftly moving horse, and the dainty equestrienne, poising and prouetting her way into the hearts of the audience, both add measurably to the effectiveness of the mammoth three ring circus of today, just as they did to the little one ring circus of a quarter of a century ago.

The men and women of the circus who ride, have not, however been satisfied "to let well enough alone." They recognized the public demand for something new, even in the way of equestrianism, and during the past two or three years many interesting riding novelties have been made known to this country.

The Downie Bros. Circus under the management of Charles Sparks has been a pioneer in introducing novel, and even startling riding acts to the American public, and this year, the management announces an unusually large number of equestrian acts of unique character. One is presented by Marion Shufford, a dainty rider in a graceful offering. The Hammett family, the famous English family of equestrians featuring George, the riding clown, a large company of clever menage riders is also announced. For the hippodrome there is a stable of blooded Kentucky racers and a group of especially engaged professional riders and drivers. It is evident that the patrons of the Downie Bros. Circus will have no scarcity of entertainment, for the program is replete with acts that program new sensations for those who enjoy the thrill incident to the modern up-to-date circus. The latest things in acrobatics and acrobatics; two herds of performing elephants; a gorgeous opening spectacle; a greatly augmented menagerie are among the incidental features of Downie Bros. Circus coming here Thursday Sept. 3.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Ralls and a few specialties attracted timid buying in today's stock market, but the list as a whole idled in a restricted area. Business news generally seemed satisfactory to speculative and investment forces and early profit-taking was fairly well received. Prices dipped in the early part of the session but came back later. The late tone was steady. Transactions approximately 1,050,000 shares.
