

ACTION TAKEN INSURE PEACE FOR PORTUGAL

Rebellion Aboard Two Passenger Vessels Short Lived

LAND BATTERIES FIRE ON SHIPS

Despite Report That Rest of Country Not Affected, Precaution Taken

Lisbon, Portugal, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Portuguese government, quickly swinging land batteries into action, today crushed a short-lived rebellion aboard two naval vessels anchored in the Pagus river.

The crew of the destroyer Dao and part of the crew of the sloop Albuquerque revolted in the early morning and authorities ordered nearby fortresses to open fire.

Both ships were damaged. The crews were arrested. The remainder of the country was declared by officials to be quiet.

However, the government took extraordinary precautions in Lisbon.

Six sailors were killed in the bombardment of the Albuquerque and nine were wounded, several critically.

Strong guards were posted at all ministries and other public buildings, while all remaining troops were held in readiness in their barracks to meet any emergency.

The government placed Lisbon under a state of "precaution" as detachments of troops moved through the city to occupy strategic points after the mutiny.

Mrs. R. E. Corbett Claimed By Death At Local Hospital

Funeral Services to Be Conducted From Late Home on Paris Avenue Tomorrow Afternoon

Mrs. R. E. Corbett, 64, died last night at 10:30 in the local hospital following a serious operation.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from the home at 303 Paris avenue, with Elder S. B. Denny, pastor of the local Primitive Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery at Tarboro.

Mrs. Corbett was born and reared in Edgecombe county, but has resided in Greenville for the past 20 years.

Mr. Corbett is well known here, having served as deputy sheriff and also as superintendent of the county home for a number of years.

At present he is superintendent of a large number of farms in the county.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Corbett is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Alfred T. Worthington of Greenville, rural route, six sons, Mark B. Corbett of Tarboro, Russell G. Corbett of Greenville, Robert Corbett of Weldon, Reddin E. Corbett, Jr. of Greenville, Manual E. Corbett of Greenville, and Woodrow Wilson Corbett of Greenville; two sisters, Miss Mollie Felton of Tarboro, and Mrs. Joella Turner of Tillery; one brother, W. R. Felton of Tarboro rural route, and 14 grandchildren.

The six sons of Mrs. Corbett will be the active pallbearers.

Honorary pallbearers will be: S. A. Whitehurst, George A. Clark, L. O. Gross, T. C. Kemp, A. B. Corey, J. A. Watson, S. V. Morton, S. P. Thornton, J. C. Cockrell, W. E. Hooker, J. B. Simpson, Charles O'H. Laughlinghouse, Jr., D. S. Spain, Jr., S. I. Dudley, E. R. Dudley, E. G. Finagan, J. F. Harrington, J. C. Gaskins, S. T. White, R. E. Rogers, R. E. Harris, Jr., Hugh Blount, Milo Smith, K. T. Futrell, W. E. Warren, E. F. Duke, J. N. Williams, T. I. Moore, Grover Whitehurst, J. M. Flowing, Jr., H. H. Tripp, Dr. Joseph Smith.

Tax Deficiency Filed Against Tobacco Heir

Washington, Sept. 8.—(AP)—An appeal involving an alleged tax deficiency of $8,520,820 against the estate of the late Zachary Smith Reynolds, tobacco fortune heir, was filed today with the Board of Tax Appeals.

The treasury in assessing the tax on a net estate it valued at $21,963,644, held that all the property left to Reynolds under the will of his father, the late R. J. Reynolds was subject to estate taxes.

The appeal disclosed that the Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore and Moses Shapiro, Winston-Salem, N. C., administrator, returned a tax on the estate of $1,319,000.

Interest Centered On Georgia Vote

Voters of Five States Ballot Today, But Political Attention Glued On Primary in Georgia Tomorrow

(By Associated Press) Voters of five widely separated states balloted in primaries today with national attention centered on the contest in Georgia tomorrow where Governor Eugene Talmadge, bitter critic of the New Deal, is trying to replace Richard B. Russell, Jr., in the senate of the United States.

Primaries today included Washington, Arizona, Colorado and Vermont. In South Carolina a second run-off was being held between two Greenville Democrats to choose a successor to the late congressman John J. McSwain.

Governor Talmadge has campaigned up and down Georgia charging Senator Russell, a former governor, with being a "rubber stamp" for the New Deal. The senator said he was "proud" to have favored legislation "which told that gang in all Wall street where to get off."

In Washington seven Republicans and nine Democrats are contesting the seat of the late Marion A. Zloncheck. In the fifth district Mrs. Rosalie Dill, divorced wife of former Senator C. C. Dill, sought the Democratic nomination for congress.

LEAF AVERAGE HITS NEW HIGH

758,332 Pounds Sold For An Average of $23.23 Monday

The Greenville tobacco market paid the highest average yesterday than on any day during the 1936 season.

The $23.23 official average was 70 cents more than the average for the season up through last week's sales and compared with $22.66 average on the opening day, last Tuesday.

Last Wednesday the average was $22.40, on Thursday it was $22.27 and on the last day's auctions last week an average of $22.52 was paid, making an average for the week of $22.53.

Offerings yesterday were greater than for any one day except on opening day. Sales yesterday were 758,332 pounds, farmers being paid a total of $176,180.84 for their offerings.

Sales on each of the auction days last week were considered low, but it was freely predicted that much heavier offerings would be on the floors this week. Farmers in this section were late in curing their leaf, it was pointed out, accounting for lower offerings the first week of sales.

Good tobacco continues to bring good prices on the market, the percentage over last year's prices being about 32 per cent for all tobaccos sold. A large quantity of poor grades is being offered this year and is tending to keep the average down. Farmers who have fair to good tobacco for sale, however, are realizing high prices for their offerings.

Rocky Mount, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Farmers brought approximately 500,000 pounds of tobacco to the Rocky Mount market to be sold today. Yesterday sales amounted to 690,456 pounds, for $175,322.60, or an average of $25.39 a hundred-weight.

Wilson, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Tobacco prices set a new high for the season on the Wilson market yesterday when growers received $25.65 per hundred for 960,198 pounds. An estimated 500,000 pounds were offered today, with prices running about the same as the day before.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Priced paid farmers for most grades of tobacco officially graded and sold on the Farmville and Goldsboro markets yesterday ran higher than on Friday, the tobacco news service reported today.

A generally good demand was shown with heavy sales.

Orange leaf grade B3F averaged $30.80 per hundred yesterday, compared with $29.40 Friday; B4F averaged $22, compared with $21.60 and B5F, $11.30, compared with $10.70, but B6F was off slightly to $5.70 from $5.90.

All grades of smoking leaf averaged slightly higher, H3F being $30.60, compared with $29.00. Cutters C4F were slightly off at $36.80 from $37.20. Orange lugs X1F averaged $35.70, compared with $29.00. Priming lugs P5F averaged $4.60 yesterday, compared with $5.80 on Friday and lugs X4F averaged $5.30 each day.

Open Bids To Erect Johnston Power Line

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Bids were opened at Smithfield today for the rural electrification authority said, for building of the first 70 miles of rural electric extensions of the Johnston county cooperative. The cooperative has secured a federal allotment of $310,000.

Grant Seven Divorces Recent Court Term

A total of seven divorces were granted at the recent term of Pitt County Superior court, with Judge N. A. Sinclair presiding.

The following divorces were granted: Maggie Moore vs. John Moore; Letha Byrd vs. Edwards Byrd; Joseph Piron vs. Lizzie Piron; Robert Harris vs. Mary Harris; J. T. Pope vs. Ada Pope; Beulah Hamby vs. Agnes Hamby; and L. M. Odum vs. Emily S. Odum.

FOES FOR GEORGIA'S SENATE SEAT

The question whether Georgia will endorse or repudiate the New Deal in the Democratic primary Sept. 9 looms high on the national political horizon. Gov. Eugene Talmadge (left), caustic critic of the Roosevelt administration, seeks nomination for the United States senate in opposition to the incumbent, Senator Richard B. Russell, Jr. (right), vigorous champion of the New Deal. (Associated Press Photos)

N. C. FUGITIVE SPANISH CITY IN SOUTH CAR.

Coley Cain Shot At By Palmetto State Patrolmen

Florence, S. C., Sept. 8.—(AP)—State highway patrolman Charles Hennesy announced today two gunmen who fled a road house near here last night in a base of gun fire had been "positively identified" as Coley Cain, North Carolina fugitive, and Dan Kolb.

Hennesy, meanwhile, related details of a hair raising chase of the bandits for 80 miles, only to lose their trail near Monks Corner.

He and Patrolman Lionel Harvin had gone to the roadhouse to look for a stolen car and found two men and two women in an automobile there.

When the officers walked up the men jumped out and ran. The women were taken into custody.

Harvin brought the women to jail and Hennesy remained at the roadhouse to watch the car as a crowd gathered quickly.

Suddenly a hail of shot from a rapid-fire weapon splattered the building and cars nearby. One automobile in the line of fire was occupied by seven women. None was hit, but the car was riddled.

Hennesy returned the fire and said he saw one of the gunmen drop, apparently wounded.

While the crowd frantically sought shelter the two men — one dragging the other — climbed into the car and sped away.

Hennesy commanded an automobile and chased them alone, but they escaped.

Number Pitt Doctors Plan To Attend Meet

A number of local physicians are expected to attend the Second District Medical Society meeting to be held at Atlantic Beach Friday night.

Dr. S. W. Thompson of Morehead City is secretary of the society and has mailed invitations to Greenville physicians inviting them to attend the dinner session.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER INSURANCE: President Roosevelt is making the Spanish crisis the occasion for serving strict notice on Americans and Europeans that hereafter national peace cannot be endangered by a few citizens' stubbornness or selfishness.

Messrs. Roosevelt and Hull do not say so openly, but they will not permit cries for protection of venture-some lives and faraway property to drag the U. S. into war. So far they believe that public sentiment favors this policy, but they recognize that there has been no severe or fatal trial of the national spirit. The near-bombing of the Kane threatened a test, and the accidental killing of Americans might spoil their educational work. Behind the diplomatic lines there lurks serious concern over this danger.

Ambassador Bowers has been ordered to remain in France for fear of an accident to him. The 500 Americans remaining in Spain have been told to clear out or stay at their own risk; most have taken the latter course. Business firms have been urged not to ship goods to either side. Federal agencies have cracked down on shipping lines engaged in carrying exports into the troubled area. The Madrid Embassy may be closed as final warning that for the first time since Jefferson's embargo the U. S. is trying to erect a Chinese wall against involvement in a foreign war.

URGENT: Tacticians of the major parties are keeping more silent than customary about the September 15 election in Maine. The reason is that neither side cares to attack too much advance significance to the outcome in view of chances for a split in the spoils. Ex-Governor Brann (Dem.) is rated the probable next Senator. 11,121,000 Bales Cotton Indicated

Figures Based On September 1 Crop Condition Compare With Estimated Yield Of 12,481,000 Bales One Month Ago

Washington, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The agriculture department announced today the indicated production of cotton this year, based on September 1 conditions was 11,121,000 bales, compared with 12,481,000 bales indicated a month ago, and 10,367,130 bales produced last year.

The census bureau simultaneously announced that ginnings from this year's crop period to September 1 totaled 1,373,868 running bales, compared with 1,135,000 for 1935 and 1,402,835 for 1934.

The condition of the crop on September 1 was 59.1 per cent of normal, compared with 72.3 a month ago, 64.5 on September 1 last year and 57.7 the 1923 through 1932 September 1 average.

The indicated yield of line 1 is 179.2 pounds per acre, compared with 186.3 for last year and 169.9 the 1923 through 1932 average.

The indicated abandonment of acreage after July 1 is 2.9 per cent of the 30,621,000 acres in cultivation on that date, leaving 29,720,000 acres for harvest.

The condition on September 1 and indicated production by states included: North Carolina, 60 per cent, and 556,000 bales.

Only Nine Persons Killed On Highways In Division

Figures For August Compare With 16 Fatalities In July

Only nine persons were killed in highway accidents in the Eastern division of the state during August, as compared with 16 in the previous month. Lieut. Lester Jones, head of the division, announced today in his monthly report.

Eighty-two persons received injuries during the month, however, while only 67 were hurt during July. Also there were more accidents in the month just closed, 104 having been investigated by the force, while they were called to only 82 in the previous month.

The approximately 30 patrolmen in the division devoted a total of 14,865 hours to their duties, traveling 124,600 miles and using 4,500 gallons of gasoline and 1,094 pints of oil in their vehicles.

An even thousand arrests were made by the officers, compared with 771 in the previous month. Of this number, 85 were for driving drunk in August and 109 in July, a big decrease being noted for the charge in the past month.

Sentences meted out as a result of the patrolmen's activities totaled 12 years, one month and 10 days. Of the total arrests, 961 resulted in convictions and 19 defendants were acquitted.

The officers recovered seven automobiles, valued at $3,650. Fines amounted to $5,749 and costs $5,191.86, for a total of $14,590.85. In addition $7,521.70 in revenue was collected, making a grand total of $36,903.40.

Activities of the patrol, as shown by the report, included: 5,501 vehicles inspected, 48 light tickets and 1,517 warnings issued; 26 cars weighted, with 10 found overloaded; 345 complaints investigated; 1,096 courtesies extended; 71 vehicles stored; three fires extinguished; 631 citations made, 4,341 lights corrected; four first aids; 119 equipment tickets issued.

A total of 2,993 driver's license examinations was given by the force. Only two days were missed by the patrolmen on account of sickness. Days with leave totaled 146, these being for vacations.

Democratic Rally For First District Set For Sept. 25th

Campaign to Be Opened at Party Conclave to Be Held in Ahoskie Latter Part of Month

Ahoskie, Sept. 8.—An announcement was made today by State Chairman J. Wallace Winborne and Congressman Lin'ay C. Warren that the Democratic rally for the First District would be held at Ahoskie on Friday, September 25th, at 10:30 a. m.

It will be the opening of the campaign in the district which leaders assert will be vigorously waged from then until election day. Members of the various party committees, all candidates for county and district offices and all men and women active in party affairs are invited to be present to meet with Chairman Winborne, Vice-Chairman Mrs. Spilman Warren, Hartford and Congressman Warren. Hartford is the home county of Thad Eure, nominee for Secretary of State, the only candidate from the district on the state ticket. The Hartford county executive committee headed by D. Collin Barnes, county chairman, will give a barbecue dinner to the visitors.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—(AP)—J. Wallace Winborne, state Democratic chairman, announced today five congressional district rallies would be held over the state between September 16 and 25.

County Court Airing Cases

Resumed After Having Been in Recess Two Weeks

Faced with a large number of cases which piled up during the two weeks a Superior court term was underway, Judge Dink Jerns and Solicitor Jack Spain got down to work this morning and disposed of a number of charges at the morning session of county court.

Henry Curry was fined $50 and costs and had his license revoked for 12 months upon conviction of driving while drunk.

M. C. Thomas charged with assault with a deadly weapon, was ordered to pay the costs, but further judgment was suspended.

W. T. Gordon entered a plea of guilty to passing a worthless check and was given a 60-day road sentence, suspended upon provision he pay the court costs and make his checks good.

COTTON SOARS TO NEW HIGHS ON ESTIMATES

Prices Jump Nearly $3 Per Bale On Crop Report

MARKET LEVELS OFF AT ADVANCE

Every Option On Board Touch 12c Level When Market Resumes Operations

New Orleans, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Cotton moved upward nearly $3 a bale today when trading resumed after one of the most surprising bullish crop estimates in years.

Staging a major upset in cotton crop expectations, the government figure of 11,121,000 bales brought heavy buying into the New Orleans market.

In one jump every option on the board touched the 12-cent level when the market opened after the estimate.

October, selling at 11.43 earlier in the morning, sold at 12 cents even December sold at the same figure and January and March spurted 50 points to 12.63.

The trade had looked for a government estimate around 11,900,000 bales, but even the most ardent bulls did not anticipate a larger figure than 11,500,000.

The market leveled off after its initial sharp advance. The gains were maintained and trading was very active.

Holiday Accidents Claim Heavy Toll Throughout U. S.

Labor Day Week-end Accidents Took a Toll of at Least 304 Lives Over the Nation of which 267 were attributed to mishaps on the highways, a survey disclosed today.

New high travel records were set in many sections of the nation as holiday celebrations taxed transportation facilities in most states.

From coast to coast there were reports of greater travel than in any year since 1929 and one eastern railroad announced its business "25 per cent greater than in any year."

Railroad and highway traffic officers on the west coast estimated the travel increased at 24 per cent over last year.

Highway accidents resulted in at least 257 deaths, while 20 persons drowned, 12 died in airplane, four were killed by trains, four by falls and seven by other accidental causes.

More PWA Projects Are Given Approval

Washington, Sept. 8.—(AP)—One hundred forty additional public works administration projects involving 45 per cent grants, totaling $4,855,142 were approved today by President Roosevelt.

Indicating that the President had modified his previous requirements that relief labor be used exclusively, PWA officials said 70 per cent of the workmen would be taken from relief rolls.

Today's allotments were made from PWA's share of last year's $4,000,000,000 relief appropriation.

The allocations (grants only unless otherwise specified) included: $18,637.

Airplane Victim Well Known Here

News was received here today of the death in Miami, Fla., of Mrs. Waldo Brubaker, of New York, in an airplane crash early this morning. Mrs. Brubaker before her marriage was Miss Mary Belle Minstree, of Greenville. She was the niece of the late E. A. White of this city, and had a number of friends and relatives here.

While the details of the accident were meagre it was stated that Mrs. Brubaker had celebrated her 30th birthday yesterday and had decided to make her first airplane flight this morning. The plane crashed and she and the pilot were both killed.

SCHOOL CHIEF IN CLOSE SPOT

Erwin Is Faced With Making Appropriation Request

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Clyde A. Erwin is already in rather a tight place, which is likely to get tighter by the time the 1937 general assembly meets, as to the size of the appropriation which he will recommend for the public schools the next two years, according to observers here.

It is already known that the extreme school forces are bringing pressure to bear on Supt. Erwin to go along with them in advocating a minimum appropriation of $37,000,000 a year for the state supported school term, an increase of $4,000,000 a year over the present appropriation. If Supt. Erwin does not go along with this element of the school people, he is likely to lose the support of the most powerful groups among the school forces including the North Carolina Education Association, of which he is a past president, many agree.

On the other hand, Supt. Erwin has been here long enough and has had sufficient experience with the general assembly to know that in asking for an appropriation of $37,000,000 a year for the public schools those asking this amount are aiming at the moon and not likely to get anywhere near this amount, a good many observers here are convinced. It is also believed that if he should join with the groups seeking this large appropriation, he would at once lose the good will and support of the more moderate and conservative elements in the general assembly which are in favor of giving the schools as much as possible in the light of revenues available but which are opposed to giving the school extremists all they want, even if the revenue could be found.

Accordingly the question which Supt. Erwin is now facing and which he will have to decide before the general assembly gets under way is whether he will side with the more extreme school forces seeking a greatly enlarged appropriation and eventually compromise by accepting an appropriation far below the $37,000,000 they are going to ask for, or whether he will decide to seek an appropriation considerably less than that favored by the "sky is the limit" group but one which is more likely to be granted by the general assembly, and by means of which he can undoubtedly retain the good will and cooperation of the more moderate element in the general assembly.

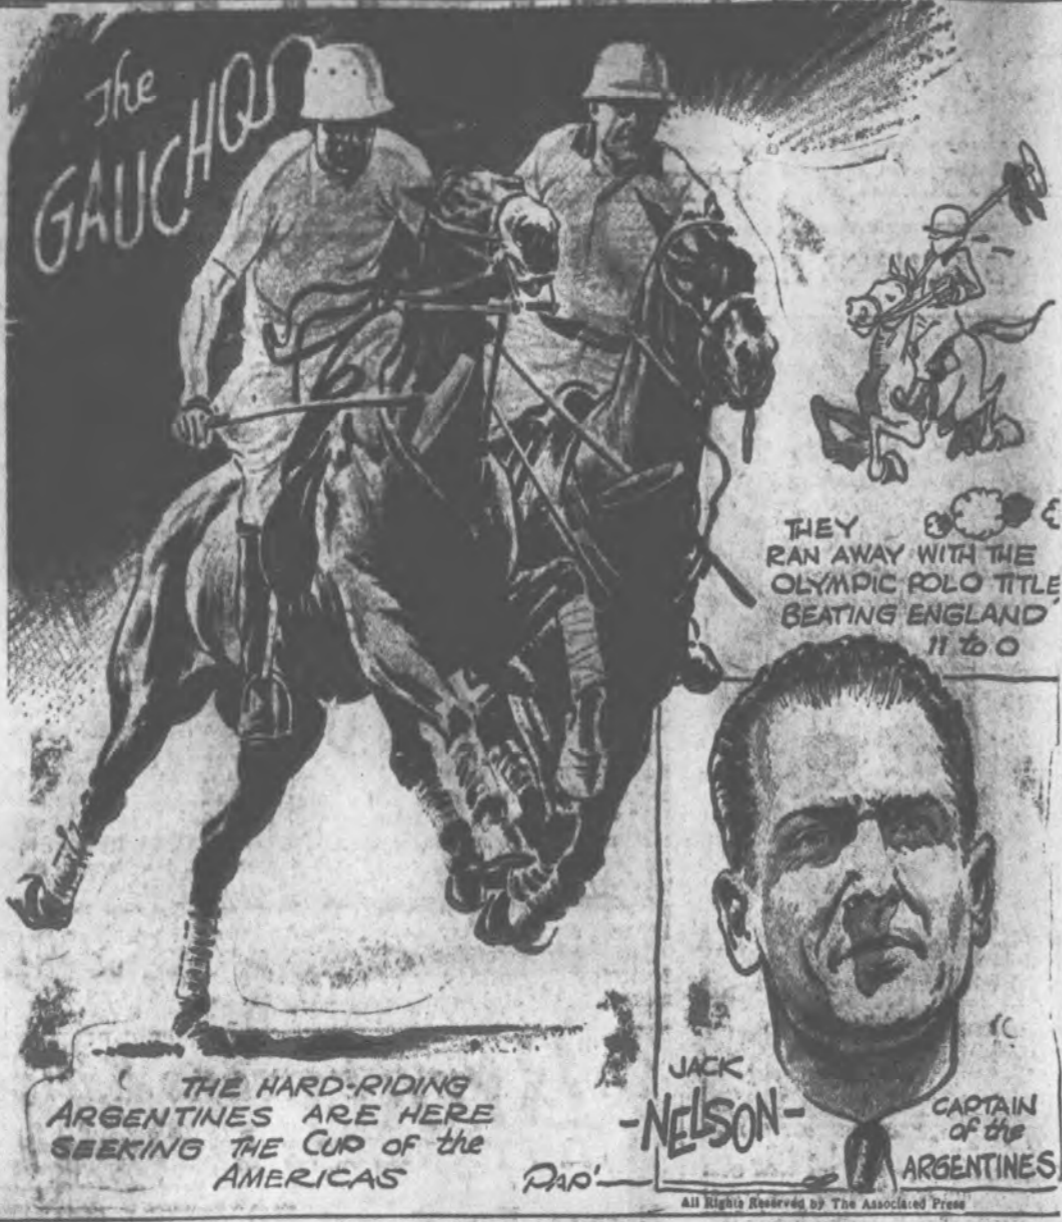

The belief is growing in a good many circles here that Supt. Erwin will probably refuse to go along with the extreme "free spenders" among the school forces, even though such a decision will undoubtedly call down upon his head the intense wrath of the N. C. Classroom Teachers Association and most of the big-wigs in the North Carolina Education Association. On the other hand, Supt. Erwin is regarded as sure to get the good will and support of the new administration and the more moderate and conservative groups in the general assembly which for years have held the balance of power and have steadfastly opposed the appropriation of more money than the state could find revenue to provide. He is also regarded as certain to win the good will of the business interests which pay the taxes and of which 63 per cent now go to support the schools.

For while Supt. Erwin would undoubtedly like to go along with the more extreme element of the school forces, he is believed to have been here long enough to realize that tax money does not grow on trees and cannot be plucked out of the air. Dr. Ralph W. McDonald to the contrary. He is also believed to have come to the realization that it is better to stay on good terms with the administration, the legislature and the taxpayers than to antagonize them in order to remain solid with the school politicians. It is recalled that during the 1936 general assembly, Supt. Erwin decided to stick with the administration and the conservative element in the general assembly rather than to go along with Dr. McDonald and his more extreme faction among both the school forces and the general assembly, even though by so doing he brought down the wrath of the "free spenders" among the school people on his head. At that time Supt. Erwin sought a maximum of only $22,000,000 a year for the schools as compared to $25,000,000 sought by Dr. McDonald and the "free spenders," also that he finally compromised by accepting an appropriation of only $20,031,000 and $20,900,000 a year, respectively.

Accordingly, it will surprise most of the careful observers here if Supt. Erwin asks the 1937 general assembly for an appropriation of more than $25,000,000 a year for the public schools. It will also surprise them if the legislature appropriates more than $24,000,000 a year.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

Washington—Complete details of how Governor Landon composes his speeches are known perhaps only to himself and his closest intimates, but here is a flash picture of the general framework.

Besides his own outlines, various drafts are submitted by his aides. Those close to him get the idea he is a good editor. He picks and chooses, rearranges and coordinates, ripping paragraphs apart until almost the last minute.

He has trouble finishing a speech and letting go of it. Before his recent eastern invasion, reporters were told that advance copies of a speech were to be ready for them one day, and the next day that it was not yet finished. A new paragraph was added to the Chautauque educational speech less than a half hour before it was delivered.

Newspapermen appear at trifles close to the governor's elbow. He talks frequently by telephone with the Kansas City Star group—Roy Roberts, Lacy Haynes and Henry J. Haskell.

Less is said now about Charles F. Taft, once at the head of the table in the advisory group, and of Earl H. Taylor, agricultural writer. One good source says Taft drafted the labor section of the acceptance speech and after it became a subject of public controversy he wasn't so much about. Others insisted, however, that the labor section did not quote jibe with Taft's liberal reputation.

Olin Glen Saxon, head of the department of applied economics at Yale, holds a place close to Landon. The last "t's" were not crossed on the eastern group of speeches until Saxon had flown (a bit secretly) to Estes Park. Ralph West Robey of Columbia University, writer on financial subjects and formerly a Roosevelt brain-truster, was at Estes Park working on the Buffalo tax-finance speech.

Landon often spends much time in an effort to phrase a blow at the New Deal by indirection. That is he sometimes seeks to leave a certain feeling with his audience through his formation of a group of sentences, rather than by direct statement.

Kirby Hawks, English-accented radio voice, is available for consultation on "sound effects." He was at Estes Park, sent by Hill Blackett public relations director of the Republican national committee, whose private advertising firm specializes in radio work. Hawks also made the eastern trip.

Some of the experts claim the best "sound effect" sentence was Landon's own. It was, they said the "cokeyed" crack at the 1936 tax bill. One source close to Landon said he insisted on the word from the start, overruling squeamish national committee advisers. When he got to that line he smirked it over, and his audience rose to it.

More than one of his aides are guessing that Landon will use even more of his own stuff hereafter and thereby improve his delivery.

"Bloody" Jeffers earned much of his reputation for cruelty on the English bench because of his insistence suffering from a stone in his bladder, according to Dr. James Kemble.

The area of the District of Columbia is 70 square miles.

Liberal Democrats Plan Hold Session Raleigh Next Week

Group to Meet Tuesday to Complete Permanent Organization and Outline Plans For Campaign

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—Everything may not be hunky-dory when the Liberal Democrats hold their first state convention here Tuesday, September 8, to complete their permanent organization and outline their program for the coming year. It will convene at 12 o'clock noon in the Carolina Hotel and the list of speakers is expected to include Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Winston-Salem, who had the support of the "liberal" Democrats for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the Democratic primaries, although at that time the organization of the Liberal Democrats had not been begun.

The present move to form an organization of Liberal Democrats on a state-wide scale is conceded to be an effort to organize and hold together all of the "liberal" Democrats who supported Dr. McDonald into a permanent body with a view to getting legislation in which they are interested and to keep their forces in tact until the next gubernatorial primary four years hence.

All of the speakers who will address the convention of Liberal Democrats here Tuesday have been asked to refrain from mentioning anything about the recent primary and to confine their remarks to the three main objectives of the Liberal Democrats, it is understood. These are (1) the repeal of the absentee ballot law, (2) revision of the election laws prohibiting markets, and (3) the election of President Roosevelt. An effort will be made to avoid controversial subjects, especially any discussion of the state Democratic ticket, it is indicated.

But these studied efforts to assure harmony in the convention may not be entirely successful, according to rumblings heard here today. Some of the leaders among the "liberals" are not in accord with the statement made recently by Dr. W. C. House of Tarboro, president of the Liberal Democrats, to the effect that the "liberals" are going to support the Democratic ticket from "top to bottom" including the candidates for Governor and Senator. They are saying that Dr. House was not authorized to speak for them and several have told this correspondent that they have no intention of voting the straight Democratic ticket here in the state, at least not for the Democratic candidate for Governor. So there may be some fireworks at the convention here Tuesday.

Barbershop Harmony At Rotary Meeting

By WYATT BROWN
(Rotary Reporter)
Old time barbershop harmony and bass solos predominated last night at the regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Rotary Club when a quartet composed of Bill Lee, Jimmy Barber, Manly Sellers, and Ed Williams sang several numbers and Jimmy Barber strummed his ukulele and sang. Jimmy did a very amusing number dedicated to the "baby" Rotarian, Oscar Vacc.

He sang one Jewish number which he said was the oldest of known songs. Jimmy delighted the club by singing one of his own original compositions.

The program was presented by Bill Lee, chairman of the music committee. Dr. Grady Dixon of Ayden was a guest of the club last night. The attendance prize given by Kinchen Gobb was won by Sam White. J. B. Kittrell, president of the club, presided.

Guests of Mrs. Moye.
Mr. and Mrs. G. C. French, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. J. D. Hillary, Philadelphia, Pa.; Miss Hortense Williams, Jacksonville, Florida; William Williams, Hal Williams and William Brummell of Philadelphia were guests of Mrs. Hortense F. Moye over the week-end. The party spent Sunday at Atlantic Beach.

Mrs. French, Mrs. Hillary and Miss Williams will remain in Greenville for several days.

Gasoline Pipeline To Be Considered In North Carolina

Building of Line From Wilmington or Morehead City Being Studied by Gasoline Commission

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—The building of a gasoline pipeline from one of the ports in the state—either Wilmington or Morehead City—to Raleigh or Greensboro, or possibly even farther west, is being considered by the new state commission appointed to study all phases of the gasoline price and distribution problem in North Carolina, it was revealed today by Oscar G. Barker, of Durham, chairman of the commission.

Since one of the major objectives of the gasoline commission is the reduction of transportation rates on gasoline in North Carolina, it is going to give serious consideration to the building of a state-owned or state-controlled pipe line system from one or both of the state's major ports, Barker said.

"At first glance, the building of a gasoline pipeline system did not seem to be worth considering," Barker said. "But the more the commission has looked into the matter, the more interesting it becomes. In the first place, more than 300,000,000 gallons of gasoline are shipped into North Carolina every year, most of this coming into either Wilmington or Norfolk and being distributed by rail or tank truck over the state.

"There are indications that if the state should build or subsidize the building of a pipeline which would be available to all the gasoline companies alike and at a charge considerably under the present freight and truck rates, that it would be used extensively and thus make possible a material reduction in transportation costs. For the railroads and truck lines would have to meet the pipeline rates or else lose most of their gasoline hauling business."

Barker pointed out that since the state owns the right-of-way of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad from Morehead City to Goldsboro and also that of the Southern from Goldsboro to Raleigh and Greensboro, it would be possible to build a pipeline along this right of way from Morehead City to Goldsboro without having to expend a cent for right-of-way.

WHY WE NEED A PUBLIC LIBRARY

The farm women believe firmly that a good book is one of the best and most inspiring things in life. They are determined to have it for their children—and when they are really determined, they succeed in spite of everything.—Mary M. Atkeson in "The Woman On the Farm."

We have found that good literature more than anything else has been the means of making our home happy and of our children and us having a better understanding of each other. We are hard working farm folks and don't have much time to go anywhere or travel about any, but we can find as much pleasure and happiness, if not more, in some good book or magazine.—Farmer's wife in the "Progressive Farmer."

with greater and greater force as election day nears.

New Influences Figure
Moreover, there are still other factors which have received little notice hitherto, but which begin to stand out in greater relief as the campaign develops.

Within each party there are numerous subdivisions. If Mr. Landon could count on the legislative support of everyone elected as a Republican, or Mr. Roosevelt could rely on the vote of everyone elected as a Democrat, the situation would be far more simple than it is.

The Townsends are making a nationwide campaign not elect a powerful bloc of their own to congress, under whatever party label. The followers of Father Coughlin are endeavoring to do the same.

All along the line new influences and new considerations are qualifying former party affiliations.

So the congressional campaign has become, altogether, one of the most interesting and complicated on record. It is a pity that its wide diffusion, geographically and with respect to issues, prevents the electorate as a whole from getting any comprehensive view of it or understanding fully its great possibilities.

Average American Maintains Desire To Encircle Globe

Daring Voyager Finds Most Men Have Deep Seated Longing to Sail Around World Alone

New York—(AP)—A deep seated longing in the heart of the average American to sail around the world alone was disclosed recently by William Albert Robertson.

Of average appearance himself with a tanned, pleasant face, Robinson has had first hand experiences on voyages of that sort. He's been around the world once with a single companion in the 32-foot ketch Svaaap, he's roamed the Pacific (where the navy rescued him from the Galapagos archipelago after an attack of acute appendicitis) and is bound now on another expedition in a 60-foot schooner to the China seas.

"From the fan letters I get, half the country must be sitting around in back yards thinking about expeditions to far lands in small boats," said Robinson, jolling in an overstuffed chair in a suite of a child-town hotel.

"They write me by the hundreds. They tell what good companions they would make or ask where they can get a boat and how free the Tahiti girls are with their favors."

"But the ones that write letters will never get there. You have to go out and learn how yourself."

Robinson was a young textile engineer just out of college in Massachusetts when he started to "learn how" seven years ago.

He bought the Svaaap for $2,000 and in three years on the world trip spent another $5,000. He's made that up by writing books.

"I wouldn't advise many people to do it," he said. "It takes a certain mental outlook as well as physical ability and knowledge of boats."

"Danger? He pulled the one about being safer in a boat than crossing Fifth avenue."

Robinson has his own ideas about expeditions that infest the South seas. Members often spend their time carousing with liquor and native women, he essays, then try to cash in on whatever publicity they can obtain.

As for himself, he takes pictures of natives in unspoiled regions and gathers other information of scientific value.

With Robinson on his trip through the China seas will sail his wife who was with him also in the Pacific ocean expeditions to the Galapagos and to Tahiti. They will take passage to Singapore, buy a native teakwood schooner which he covets, rent it, and return home by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

WHITE YOUTHS PRISON WORRY

Most Dangerous Of Criminals Between 16 and 25 Years

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 8.—The most dangerous criminals in North Carolina today, likewise the most incorrigible prisoners in the state prison system, are boys and young men between the ages of 16 and 25. Edwin Gill, Commissioner of Paroles, said today. More of these are white boys than negroes, although the younger negroes give more trouble than the older ones, Gill also said.

"One of the principal reasons for this situation is that boys and young men between these ages are more lacking in judgment, and a sense of responsibility than any other age, also more reckless and less fearful of consequences," Commissioner Gill said. "Another factor is that most of them think it is smart and daring to flaunt the law and break it. Instead of regarding it as a disgrace to be convicted and sent to prison, many of these youngsters regard it as something to be proud of and imagine that they have become big, bad heroes both among their former 'gang' in their home communities and among the other prisoners. They also think they are very clever and smart."

"I have talked to thousands of these young prisoners, many of them convicted of serious crimes, and when they first get to prison most of them are proud of their past records as 'bad men' and brag about the many other crimes they committed without being arrested or convicted. They are utterly lacking in either self-respect or a desire to reform. Most of them also think they are very smart and clever."

"We have found that about the only way we can deflate the pride and egotism of these young criminals is to ridicule them and try to make them see how dumb they are and to intimate that they must have some form of insanity. I frequently send them over to the State Hospital for the Insane several days to be examined by the doctors over there. They usually come back to the prison greatly subdued and much less hard boiled for they want to think they are very smart and clever and want others to think so, too."

"Some of these young prisoners soon get a different slant on things and make sincere efforts to reform."

But on the whole, these youngsters are the most difficult prisoners we have to handle because of their mental attitudes."

Judging by the number of persons who visit our office each day seeking information as to availability of houses or apartments, Greenville is sadly lacking at this time in the way of places for newcomers to live. From the inquiries we receive we believe that the erection of more apartments or small residences here would prove a paying proposition for some of our investors.

North Carolina is host to President Franklin D. Roosevelt today and tomorrow, the chief executive visiting Asheville today and Charlotte tomorrow. The state of course is delighted to have the chief executive pay it a visit and it is our guess he will feel mighty good when he finds out just how strong our folks are for his re-election. It is our belief Tar Heels will go to the polls in November in greater numbers than ever before and cast the biggest Democratic majority ever piled up in this state.

Buy, bank and sell in Greenville is a good rule for farmers of this section to adopt. Nowhere can they find a better tobacco market than in Greenville, certainly our banks are adequate to take care of any needs and the shoppers will find the Greenville stores far above what is usually found in a city of this size.

 But the strategists are locked in a terrific clinch in FDR's vacation state. Each feels that a victory would give their side a tremendous psychological advantage, although the records don't substantiate the slogan that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation." But a smashing Maine triumph might supply the momentum now lacking in the Landon campaign. It might pep up party workers and loosen purse-strings.
 The administration has been exceptionally kind toward the down-easters. It gave them the now-defunct "Quoddy" project, and President Roosevelt promised to revive it on his recent political tour of the section. The Farleyites despatched a top-flight publicity expert to reopen a newspaper several weeks ago. The G. O. P. has countered by flooding the estate with more than a score of its best and most colorful speakers. Despite their reticence, neither party can invent any alibi after the votes are counted.
CHOICE: Political diplomats at Washington concede that Governor Landon has made a good start toward offsetting New Dealer's arguments that his supposed ignorance of foreign affairs would handicap him as President.
 The Republican nominee recently summoned to Topeka three G. O. P. diplomats who rank high as international sharks. He talked with J. Reuben Clark, William R. Castle, Jr., and James Graham Rogers. From 1906 to 1932 one or all of them handled almost every legal, diplomatic or financial problem confronting the State Department during that period. They have kept their contacts here and abroad, and are equipped to advise either Mr. Landon or President Roosevelt.

Keen observers note that the Governor didn't seek advice from the last two Republican Secretaries of State—Messrs. Kellogg or Stimson. Insiders suspect that choice of the younger trio was deliberate. In diplomatic circles they are known as hardy nationalists—big Americans—whereas Mr. Kellogg is best remembered for his abortive peace pact and Mr. Stimson for almost involving the U. S. in war with Japan by his missionary zeal for Manchuria's independence.

DYNAMIC: The President didn't indulge in partisan discussions on his drought trip, but members of his party are convinced that he sold himself and his policies in the Great Plains country.
 In each state FDR conferred with key figures aboard his private car. He cross-examined local spokesmen on their region's need for fuel, feed, seed, relief, school money, winter vegetables for young children. In some instances he revealed a knowledge of conditions as detailed as the natives. When he didn't, he promptly barked out assignments. "That's your job, Rex!"—"You look after that, Harry!"—"Put that down for reference, Morris!" He was in top form mentally and physically. He turned on all his "charm." He first-named Governors, Senators, Representatives—and none suffered any pain therefrom.
 The men who sat in with Mr. Roosevelt meet thousands of influential people each day or week; they will speak to many thousands before Election Day. It's assumed they will picture a President exuding sympathy for drought victims and familiarity with their difficulties. FDR may have eschewed politics, as he insists, but he didn't forego showmanship and salesmanship.

REVERSED: A Republican leader from the Midwest confides to New York friends that the biggest problem confronting his party is the lack of adequate county organizations. Out of 3092 counties in the United States, he figures that only about 25 have been effectively organized by the G. O. P.
 Other sources exceptionally well posted on political developments agree that this is one of the national committee's main headaches, although they do rate the estimate quoted above as unduly pessimistic. John Hamilton's numerous and rapid trips away from headquarters are mostly in search of other counties that can be added to the list. The chairman has tackled the tough job of revitalizing moribund county fighting forces.
 The Democrats on the other hand have been able to establish pretty good organizations in a majority of counties all over the nation. Alert Democratic governors have helped a lot in this respect—men like Earle of Pennsylvania, McNutt of Indiana, Homer of Illinois. Democratic organizations used to be weak everywhere except in a few large cities; Republicans strong everywhere especially in rural areas. This traditional setup has been completely reversed.

INCLUDED: Political sharps noted significant inclusions and omissions in the list of progressives who signed the telegraphed invitation to attend the Chicago conference for the purpose of endorsing President Roosevelt for reelection.
Inclusions: Senator Elmer A. Benson of Minnesota—whose presence will go far to commit the Farm-Labor party of his state to FDR—a severe blow to Coughlin—Lemke hopes, Edward Keating, editor of Labor, whose participation indicates that the railway brotherhoods—powerful and comparatively conservative unions—will string mostly with Roosevelt.
Bob LaFollette will of course bring in his Wisconsin Progressives. He and George W. Norris of Nebraska have been working for months to promote the conference.
MINUS: Omissions: Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Rep.) of California, Gerald P. Nye (Rep.) of North Dakota, Henrike Shipstead (F-L) of Minnesota, Lewis B. Schwelienbach (Dem.) of Washington and Burton K. Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana.
 Johnson may not be able to make the trip, but is almost sure to send his blessing. Shipstead and Nye are understood to be still on the fence. Shipstead is a pro-aide convert, Nye possible. Schwelienbach wasn't included, evidently because he hasn't a wide enough national reputation. Actually he will be one of the most enthusiastic workers for the cause.
 Wheeler—ah, there's the rub. He doesn't like FDR personally. He may continue to sulk in his tent in which case the "progressives" will be minus one of their most active and eloquent fighters.
IDENTIFIED: Mayor LaGuardia's participation in the conference of progressives—predicted in this column several weeks ago—was announced sooner than New York's chief executive intended. He originally planned to make a dramatic last minute entry on the Chicago scene, but circumstances forced his hand.
 The Mayor's (official) divorce from the Republican party won't complicate the political situation in the metropolis as much as you might expect. He has snubbed the local G. O. P.—ers so hard and so often they were through with him anyway. An effective Fusion party in the 1937 mayoralty election has been out of the question for some time. It is more graceful from LaGuardia's viewpoint to withdraw voluntarily than to be smothered in a Tammany landslide.
 Published intimations that LaGuardia will seek the mayoralty again as nominee of the new Labor Party are far off the mark. He probably will be identified prominently with the Labor Party, but

ROOSEVELT TELLS OF DROUGHT

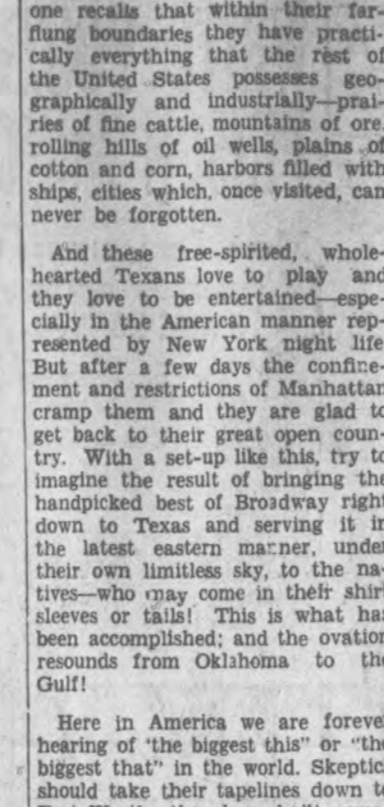

President Roosevelt is seen at his desk in the White House as he told a nationwide audience by radio of his 5,000-mile tour to inspect drought conditions in the west. He disclosed a long-range plan of relief for farmers in the stricken zone. (Associated Press Photo)

In the national, not the municipal arena. The extent of his future political activity will depend on how much energy he has left after coping with the mayor's job for four years. Meanwhile he will shoot the works for FDR.

DANGER: Quite a bit of ill feeling has been stirred up in financial circles as a result of the Securities Exchange Commission's effort to enforce stricter standards of "reoffering" advertising.
 The point is that even in these days of rabid investor appetites new issues of corporate securities have to be coddled along. Almost always a substantial portion of the issue is thrown back on the market within a month or so of the original offering.
 Unless the house that headed the underwriting syndicate and perhaps some other firms associated in the offering are prepared to support the market by buying in such "throwbacks" there is real danger of a disastrous collapse in the price of the security.

Manager's Compliments
 Baltimore, (AP)—Jack Ogden, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, writes out all passes to home games. One day recently, while seated in the grand stand, Ogden caught a foul. Without turning, he handed the ball to an usher. The boy returned to Ogden a few minutes later and, in a very polite manner, handed the manager one of his own passes.

Mother Rescues Son By Heroic Swimming

When Mrs. Chester V. Anderson of Quincy, Mass., discovered her five-year-old son, Chester, and a small chum drifting out to sea in an oarless boat, she swam out a mile and towed the canoe ashore at great peril to herself. She and Chester are shown just after the harrowing experience. (Associated Press Photo)

And these free-spirited, whole-hearted Texans love to play and they love to be entertained—especially in the American manner represented by New York night life. But after a few days the confinement and restrictions of Manhattan cramped them and they are glad to get back to their great open country. With a set-up like this, try to imagine the result of bringing the handpicked best of Broadway right down to Texas and serving it in the latest eastern manner, under their own limitless sky, to the natives—who may come in their shirt sleeves or tails! This is what has been accomplished; and the ovation resounds from Oklahoma to the Gulf!

Here in America we are forever hearing of "the biggest this" or "the biggest that" in the world. Skeptics should take their tapelines down to Fort Worth—they have built something that is really worth measuring. Certainly there could be no more appropriate setting for the biggest this or that than in Texas.
 The really beautiful, and now we come to it, the most tremendous achievement is the Casa Manana which is the largest safe theatre in the world; and which has, forgive me, the largest revolving stage ever devised. It is a great amphitheatre arrangement seating 3,500 diners at tables arranged in tiers, and several hundred more spectators in boxes above. The architecture is Spanish and the entire structure is white; the indirect lighting is blue. Upon the stage a company of 250 and celebrities of the stage, screen and radio perform in an extravaganza that is wholly worthy of its setting. America's No. 1 orchestra leader conducts three bands at a time, and at the finale the stage moves back and reveals a huge la-son upon which drift gold and silver gondolas, manned by gold and silver oarsmen and carrying the loveliest gold and silver ladies in the world.
 So! If the steaks are cold the Texans don't mind! They have a great show—and it is theirs! Being under the Texas stars with a Texas moon for a prop makes it so, regardless of whether the performing stars hail from Hollywood or Broadway.
 Naturally during the heat of the summer the Fort Worth show could not expect any considerable revenue from tourists, but the great appreciation of Texans, as shown in their "repeat" business is proof that they love their show. The endeavor from beginning has been to amuse and not to educate. The entire ground plan is the result of sound thinking

By PRESTON GROVER
 Washington—Washington's political critics—that coterie of brains and brass who say "that's a good idea" or "that's a poor idea" of any new campaign trick—had some good words to say of the Republican $1,000 prize contest on "Why I Am For Roosevelt."
 The plan is to give first, second and third prizes of $500, $300 and $200 for the best letters on the subject from anybody but Charles Michaelson or other smart ones from Democratic organizations.
 Offhand it sounded as if Governor Landon's newest pet word, "cock-eyed," would fit the proposal. But more study suggested it might be an alert one.
 It would give the Republicans an audience of Democrats, both in conducting the contest and in answering the pro-Roosevelt arguments advanced. Whether it is a large audience or a small one depends on how well the contest is conducted.
 Getting Democrats to study Landon arguments in preparation for telling why they like Roosevelt better was expected to bring the principal results. You won't see much profit in that for Republicans unless you agree that Landon's arguments will sway Democrats who read them. Democratic spokesmen say they won't.
 General Hugh Johnson's picturesque army English gets into circulation and headlines in mid-September when he begins a series of speeches for his former chief, President Roosevelt.
 Close friends say early drafts of his first speeches simply bristle with headline material. How the general loves a good firecracker phrase, pickled in vitriol! The ex-cavalryman hasn't been touted as naid of benefiting from mistakes made in previous fairs.

 The Midway has no gaudy, modern, or even effective lighting—in fact, it has none! It is constructed entirely as a replica of the main street of the old Frontier Fort Worth. It is authentically and well reproduced. It is more than gay—it is quite suggestive of the frontier "wild and woolly!" It has its bars, with the old upright piano constantly suffering abuse, and its sawdust on the floor and cowbells on the cash register. And perhaps this is going the frontier days one better and perhaps it is not, but it has its nudist cowgirl show.

Most of the laughs come from the Pioneer Palace which is a highly glorified frontier dance hall. This is a huge building constructed of logs and appropriately decorated with an unusual and valuable collection of firearms, skins, steer-heads and horns. It houses a bar 150 feet long above which are great mirrors framed in a heavy dark wood. These mirrors serve as a curtain for the stage above the bar, whereon nightly trips what is referred to by Texans as "The Beef Trust"—ladies of the ensemble of proportions more desirable in Frontier days than now. The acts include the funniest of American vaudeville comedians.

 This combination of circus, night club, "joke," and refined ballroom has hit the spot. And temporarily, at least, Texans are completely independent—at PLAY as well as work. To the visitor from any other state their whole-hearted appreciation and REFRESHING!

SHOW DEPICTS TEXAS SPIRIT

Lone Star State Frontier Centennial At Fort Worth

By JOVIA REAVIS
 Visitors to the southwest report that the promoters, creators, and operators of the Frontier Centennial Exposition at Fort Worth must have been reading the mail of traveling Texans for some time past. At any rate, by some means or other they have discovered just what the inhabitants of the Lone Star State want in the way of entertainment and are giving it to them in the Fort Worth show.
 Of all American Texans are among those most loyal to their own state. This feeling is so evident to a stranger going down there—particularly one from the East—where states are so closely related, and boundaries so frequently blurred in the mind—that he is quite likely to find himself with the sense of being in a country foreign to the U. S. A. Not that Texans are inhospitable by any means, for they have the rich combination of both southern and western hospitality; but their inherent independence is

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE... SMOKE CAMELS

A CASHIER has to be alert—accurate—pleasant. Miss T. Lander, shown at the ticket window of a New York movie, says: "Camels help my digestion—cheer me up. They have a marvelous taste."
"I'M FOR CAMELS," says Al Mingalone, Paramount News newsreel cameraman. "My experience proves that Camels are a big aid to digestion."

AT HARVEY'S famous restaurant in Washington, D. C., you enjoy the same dishes that delighted Mark Twain, Emerson, Booth, Taft, and other famous men. What cigarette is preferred here? Most emphatically, Camels. Julius Lulley, host at Harvey's, says: "Our diners agree on Camels. Those who prefer quality food appreciate Camel's costlier tobaccos."

Camels add zest to meals—aid digestion—increase alkalinity
RUSH and mental strain impede digestion by slowing down the flow of the digestive fluids so necessary to proper, smooth digestion. Smoking Camels assists digestion by increasing the flow of the alkaline digestive fluids in a pleasant and natural way.
 It is thus that Science explains the sense of well-being that you experience after you dine and smoke Camels. Make Camel your cigarette. They set you right.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

SYNOPSIS: While Carol Terrence is spending Christmas with her family, Blake Thornton, her employer, has been named to Florida and he hopes to get into Florida. Carol and Blake are in love with each other, and Blake hopes he may be able to persuade his nervous wife to divorce him. But Carol is not so hopeful. Blake has gone to a different hotel; he just has made a formal appointment with Irma, and Irma, pleased, is giving herself a "beauty pack" in preparation.

Chapter 40

DESPERATE ATTEMPT

The mark had begun to set, pulling at the flesh of her face—lightening relaxed muscles, the folder said. She stepped from the tub and began to towel herself gently; a sharp dried woman in a grotesque mask.

She surveyed herself when the mirror had been removed and decided that she would look very well when she had applied her makeup. She would put it on rather thickly tonight, with only the table lamp lit.

And her white chiffon dinner dress with the lavender flowers in it; Blake had seen that, but not on her, and there was no sense in inviting trouble by flaunting the white print.

Dread filled her body and mind.

He had been rather sarcastic about her bills before she left.

She went gracefully down to dinner and old Mr. Hammond—who was seventy-five if he was a day—bowed almost into his soup at the sight of her. His gallantry restored her confidence and her youth; she would have a sherry before her dinner, she decided, and a Benedictine afterwards. The wines were extra, of course, but she needed the stimulant.

But her room, after dinner, seemed bleak and hostile, as if it were waiting to close in and crush her. She realized that her heart was racing and that her hands were cold. She sat down, arranging her folds of chiffon with loving care, and picked up a book called "Rainbow's End."

At five minutes past the appointed hour Blake knocked, and the sound startled her because she awaited it so anxiously. She dropped the book nervously and went to open the door.

He came in without a word, closing the door carefully behind him. She put out her hands and said, "Blake, dear..." as she lifted her face.

He touched her hands briefly and she noticed that his hands were as cold as her own. But he made no move to kiss her.

She said, striving for the right note of lightness: "This is an unexpected pleasure..."

He looked straight into her eyes, and there was no answering light in his.

"Not exactly a pleasure, I'm afraid. You may not like it when I've finished. And then again you may."

The dread deepened and spread, until it filled her body and her mind. "What on earth do you mean?"

He gazed vaguely towards a chair and she sat down, but he stood with his hands rammed into the pockets of his coat and looked at her.

He saw how carefully she had dressed herself and knew that—subconsciously at least—she suspected his mission and had primed the only gun she knew. He felt a quick personal pity for the blindness of her like yours live to be ninety and die of something else."

HE was being brutal, but he had to be. He had to arouse her anger and her pride, so that she would hate him and be glad to let him go. He hurried on.

"I haven't cared—until recently. But now I've found a girl I want to marry. It can't matter to you, and of course I'll see that you're properly provided for. You can go on living just as you live now, without having to keep up this farce of being a wife."

She found her voice, but it was thin and cracked. "How can you talk like that about me? Of course I love you; of course I'm not going to divorce you because you've lost your head over some cheap woman!"

His hands clenched and then relaxed slowly. "She's anything but cheap. She's the most genuine thing I've ever known. And I haven't lost my head; I fought it every day for weeks, and so did she."

Irma said acidly: "I suppose it's this woman—in your office." She would not say "girl"; the word was too bitter in her mouth.

"Yes."

"And if you'll remember, I told you it wouldn't do any good to go falling in love with her."

"I remember. But it would have taken more than a warning from you to stop it." He said hotly: "I tried to get you to help me before it was too late; begged you not to go away again so soon. When you came back from Rockbrook I'd made all sorts of plans for the winter—trying to establish some sort of permanent relationship with you."

His lip curled. "And a hell of a lot of co-operation I got! This didn't happen until after you left this last time, and now that it has there's only one thing to do."

"I don't see why," Irma said flatly. "There are ways—"

He thought then he would surely strike her, but he gripped the arms of his chair and managed to sit still. "You poor conceited fool!" he whispered it beneath his breath.

Commend Decision Of Manufacturers Reduce Speeding

Highway Safety Director Arthur Fulk Convinced Action Will Tend Reduce Accidents

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

NA 10-1, 7-2-Action of the board of directors of the American Automobile Manufacturers Association in recommending that their member refrain from mentioning the top speeds of their cars in their advertising, was strongly commended here today by Arthur Fulk, director of the highway safety division of the Department of Revenue.

Director Fulk is convinced that a very large percentage of both the fatal and non-fatal automobile accidents are caused by excessive speeds and that much of the mania for speed has been encouraged by the stress placed on speed in the advertisements of many of the automobile manufacturers.

"There are times when speed may be a safety factor in a car, but if this speed factor is abused it becomes dangerous," Fulk said. "I also believe that in stressing top speeds in their advertising many of the automobile manufacturers have unwittingly built up a speed psychosis among drivers which has added materially to the number of accidents. The decision to discontinue

ARTIST SEES CHARACTER IN HANDS — "FACE LIES"

Miami Beach, Fla.—(AP)—It's not your face but your hands that give you away, thinks Nathalie Davis, portrait mask-maker and painter.

"Hands do not lie," the 26-year-old former New Yorker declares. "They reveal one's true character by their shape and movements where faces usually hide it beneath a cloak of complicated and artificial poses."

That's why the slender, blue-eyed brunette finds it necessary to study a subject's facial expressions for a time before attempting to catch characteristics in plaster of paris or papier mache.

Psychology, she says, is handy in helping her obtain a person's honest expression. Sometimes, if the attractive mask maker is alert and hits on the right conversation, she can solidify a fleeting expression before the liquid plaster just applied to the face hardens.

First, however, she must study the subject's interests and gain his confidence. For some persons are frightened by the thought of having their face entirely covered for several minutes while the plaster is setting. During this operation they must breathe through straws penetrating the mold and she must assure them there is nothing to fear from the heat thrown off by the plaster's chemical reaction just before it solidifies.

After the one sitting, miss Davis who also is a sculptor, calls forth her knowledge of one's character and accentuates the expression on the final impression taken from the original.

"It's easier that way," she explains, "because most people haven't the patience for the long poses required by painters and sculptors."

TWIRLS NO-HITTER IN VAIN
Flint, Mich. (AP)—Recy Lewis pitched a no-hit game in the district football tournament against the Flint Kennedys. But the Kennedys won 2-0. Three errors that followed a base on balls in the second stanza caused both runs. The Flint Perceptors, Lepis' team, meanwhile bit into a triple play and three double killings.

Tam Contee Bowie Happy; Throws Buttermilk Party

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—Thomas Contee Bowie of Ashe county, better known to his friends and the state as a whole as "Tam," is a happy man. The reason his friends know Tam is happy is because he won the nomination for the house from Ashe county from a county Democratic convention that at first appeared to be hostile, whereupon Tam withdrew in favor of an opposition candidate and then invited his friends to a buttermilk party at his home in West Jefferson.

For whenever Tam is really happy and feeling his best, he invites his friends to his house and takes them down to his spring house and invites them to partake of the most choice supply of buttermilk to be had in North Carolina, according to E. B. Daugherty, President of the Appalachian State Teachers College in Boone and a close friend of Tam.

Tam, who has represented Ashe county in the legislature for eight terms since he first came here in 1919, has not been having such smooth sailing Ashe county the last year or two, where for years he and his faction virtually ruled the county, it is agreed by those who have been following developments in Ashe. But Tam is nothing if not a fighter. His grandfather fought in the Battle of the Alamo in Texas during the Mexican War and the Bowie knife is named for him. Tam has real fighting blood in his blood, as all who have served in legislative sessions with him well know. He is not the sort to give up without a fight.

So when the Ashe county Democratic convention met to nominate its candidate for the legislature and county offices—Tam has never liked the primary system—he was a candidate for the other again. And while most of the other candidates nominated were from the opposition faction, Tam again won the nomination for the general assembly and had the satisfaction of hearing his nomination announced by Ira Johnson, the leader of the anti-Bowie faction in Ashe county.

This victory over the opposition made Tam fairly beam. Then he arose, thanked the convention for the honor accorded him and withdrew in favor of a younger candidate. And when the convention was over he invited his friends to his spring house to drink buttermilk with him, his proof that Tam was happy. He had won another hard fight against big odds.

Hail Appointment Of Lon Folger as Finance Director

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Sept. 7.—The appointment of A. D. (Lon) Folger of Mt. Airy as Finance Director for the National Democratic Executive Committee in North Carolina, displacing Herbert Gulley, long-time political satellite of Senator Josiah W. Bailey, is being widely approved both by the rank and file and leadership of the Democratic party, according to comment heard here.

Not only is Folger, who is also National Democratic Committeeman, regarded as an extremely able worker, but he is conceded to have the good will and confidence of the younger and more liberal elements in the party. The fact that the State Democratic Convention instructed that he be elected National Committeeman by a unanimous vote, despite the fact that he had been state campaign manager for Lieutenant Governor Sandy Graham when the convention was regarded as being overwhelmingly pro-Hoey, is regarded as a tribute both to his ability and the esteem in which he was held by all factions.

will Folger is considered to have from all the various factions in the Democratic party, it is believed that he will be unusually successful in his new post as the raiser of campaign funds for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

Just as the election of Folger as National Committeeman to succeed C. LeRoy Shuping of Greensboro, former campaign manager for Senator Bailey, was interpreted as a slap at Senator Bailey, so his selection as Finance Director is at least being able to get the ear of National Chairman Jim Farley besides Senator Bailey, many observers here, especially among the younger and more liberal Democrats, think that Senator Bailey has exercised his domination over party affairs in the state long enough and that it was high time for a change to be made. It is pointed out that Shuping developed into a better anti-Rooseveltian and anti-New Dealer almost of the Liberty League type and that Gulley, regarded as Senator Bailey's chief trouble shooter and fixer, was unable to carry either his or Senator Bailey's home precinct for the Senator Shuping here in Raleigh in the recent primary.

N. C. PREPARES FOR PRESIDENT

Charlotte Eagerly Awaits Green Pastures Rally

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 8.—Eagerness and excitement over Charlotte was apparent today as the time for President Franklin D. Roosevelt's visit here steadily approached.

The President will make a special trip to this city Thursday to deliver an address before many thousands of men, women and children expected from seven southern states on the occasion of the Green Pastures Rally.

Charlotte presented a gala appearance today, with the nation's colors in flags, banners and bunting displayed lavishly throughout the entire downtown section. The central committee of the rally organization originally made preparations for an attendance of 100,000 persons but the intense interest among this city's 80,000 population and through out the Southeast caused the committee to revise its estimates upward and now the leaders in this far-flung movement content themselves with saying the crowd will be the greatest ever to assemble in the South to hear an address by the President of the United States.

The rally has been arranged as a non-partisan get-together and leaders in all phases of activity in Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida and Alabama have co-operated to assure attainment of the rally's objective. The committee and the leaders in these states' affairs have announced this movement aims at reviving the spirit of Southern progress and unity and at crystallizing sentiment for steady advancement toward the solution of the Southern problems affecting the general welfare.

Hundreds of outstanding men and women of these states for several weeks have been working in behalf of the Green Pastures Rally and this movement to start the South on a new forward push with the approaching return of good times. These men and women will be in the throng at the rally, which will be given thrilling and colorful aspects by the presence of regular army and national guard bands, hundreds of uniformed millmen of the two Carolinas and a number of musical organizations composed of young men and women from high school.

While the address by the President from a platform in the vast, newly completed American Legion stadium will be the climax of the rally Thursday afternoon, the elaborate program of rally events will include a brilliant but informal reception Wednesday evening and a luncheon Thursday noon. The women's committee arranged the reception, which will be attended by many early arriving, distinguished men and women from these seven states.

At the luncheon, to be presided over by Cameron Morrison, of this city, former governor and former United States senator, a number of nationally known men and women will speak briefly. The expectation here is that their remarks will deal chiefly with the significance of the rally, which has come to be recognized as one unique in recent history of the South.

President Roosevelt is scheduled to arrive in mid-afternoon on a special train. He will be accompanied by a group of men high in the nation's affairs. Cavalry troops will escort the chief executive in the procession from the railway station to the stadium along a 25-block route gaily decorated with patriotic colors.

Evidence of the nation-wide interest in the rally is the fact that the press will be represented by more than 100 men and women and the motion picture industry will have eight news reels cameramen, for whom reservations already have been made by the central committee on specially constructed platforms.

Governors of the seven states have indicated to the general committee their intention to join the rally day throng in its tribute to the President. Governor Ethington, of North Carolina, will present President Roosevelt to the assemblage at the stadium.
